The Political Clean-Up

By Chas. M. Flatt

Now that the recent turmoil in Provincial politics has settled somewhat we are able to make a fairly definite survey of the government that is to be. For the first time in the history of Canada since confederation the producers of the country's wealth are in a position to direct how it shall be used. While this condition prevails in only one province, it is safe to predict that it will soon have a national effect.

It is amusing to listen to the wise prophecies of old time party politicians who as yet are living in hopes of a return of former conditions. It was only a few days ago that a formerly prominent political gentleman (?) was heard to say in Toronto, "We are on the verge of anarchy". That any one, no matter how ignorant, should say such a thing, is sufficient indication that we were on the verge of something worse than anarchy and that was autocracy.

We are nearly approaching the ideal condition where the representatives are elected in numbers proportionate to the class they are to represent.

In looking over the list of Farmers elect, one cannot but be impressed with the fact that the large proportion of the representatives received their initial training in the smaller field of municipal affairs. While this perhaps has always been more or less the case, it is more noticeable now that the members belong to the class they represent in parliament. That they have risen politically is due to the fact that they conducted the smaller affairs of the municipality in an efficient manner.

It is a fact, not generally accepted that it is even more important that we have good men in our township and county councils than in our Provincial or Dominion Legislature. While their mistakes, or even their failure might not involve such great issues as those dealt with in the Provincial or Dominion field, the effect is more noticeable to the ratepayers of their municipality. This is largely because each Township or county council deals practically altogether with affairs that are vital to the interests of each man in their constituency.

Lack of efficiency in the parts of a nation are finally as detrimental to the progress of that nation as mistakes committed in a great national issue. The time is past when representatives are selected because of their position, wealth or skill in debate. Honesty of purpose, determination and ability to think straight are the political virtues that must prevail in a democratic country.

So every aspirant for political honors, in Township or council affairs must have ever in view the fact that upon their efficiency depends, not only progress of their own municipality, but indirectly that of the province.

That more attention must be given to this matter is evidenced by the scarcity of men of sufficient ability to be nominated or elected in either provincial or Dominion parliament. That such men will be needed is certain if the present movement for representation by population is to become permanently established.

Finally it is safe to say that the general clean-up in political affairs will be the greatest inducement for good men to enter politics, because formerly it was a game in which few could play and not lose. And those who won did not always win fairly. The whole issue rests not so much on the shoulders of the individual representatives or the government into which they are formed as it does on the individual.

Waterdown Boys

In these days, there are some words, such as, work, duty and responsibility that will have a new meaning in the minds of Canadian boys.

War conditions have placed certain responsibilities on you from which you formerly would have shrunk but because you were game and stood up to them, and you not only helped in a crucial and abnormal time in the history of the nation but you built with your own life, the qualities which make for citizenship.

That was in the war times, but what about the days ahead. Our boys today are living in the most wonderful age in the world's history.

What are you doing, now that the war is over, to show your patriotism in the wonderful peace days ahead? When peace was declared you almost yelled your head off, you felt you were a full fledged partner in that day of national rejoicing and thanksgiving and rightly so.

That day you certainly were an active partner and there is not the slightest reason in the world why you should not continue to be so. You must be a partner in feeling responsibility for the kind of community you live in. You share the dividends, therefore you should share the responsibility.

What kind of village would yours be if every boy was like you? Did you ever think of having a part in making it a better place to live in? Did I hear one of you fellows say, "Aw what can I do I haven't a vote, wait till then".

Well that won't be far away for long trousers, your first sweetheart and the vote follow one another quickly, and, if you wait till then before you take an interest in the affairs of our village, the chances are you will never be a force in its life. What can you do?

Have you read that story of the collegiate boys in an Ontario city who practically stamped out cigarette smoking in their school. In another village the boys were immoral; impure language and thoughts among the youthful population were making the village undesirable from the standpoint of moral health. A few boys realized the situation and started a campaign of clean speech, in a few months that village was completely changed. Every Waterdown boy can feel that he has a real part in making our village keep its hands and face clean, (so to speak).

Just sit down and make a list of things which you think would improve the village you live in. Tin cans are alright to keep worms in but they are poor soil for ideals of beauty, health, etc. Think how much you can do to introduce improvements, make it a better place for boys, a happier place for children.

Anderson-Hasselfelt Wedding

At Orchard Grove, Freelon, the residence of Rev. E. J. Haines, Baptist pastor, on Wednesday evening November 26th, a very pretty wedding was solemnized when Miss Gladys Hasselfelt, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hasselfelt of Flamboro Centre, was united in marriage to Mr. Chas. S. Anderson of Waterdown. The bride who was given away by her father, was daintily attired in white georgette crepe with pearl trimmings, the only ornament being a beautiful necklace, the gift of the groom. Only the parents of the bride and groom witnessed the ceremony, after the conclusion of which the wedding party returned to the home of the bride's parents, where a hearty welcome and sumptuous repast awaited them. The groom's gift to his bride was a handsome piano. The groom's brother's gift was an oak buffet, while a large number of costly gifts were received from friends. We extend to this young couple hearty congratulations and best wishes for a long and happy married life.

Foley-Rankin Wedding

The marriage of Miss Marjorie Rankin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Rankin of Waterdown, to Mr. John J. Foley, son of Mrs. and the late Henry Foley, took place Wednesday morning, November 26th, at St. Joseph's church, Hamilton, the Rev. A. J. Lyles officiating. Miss Anna Rankin, sister of the bride was bridesmaid, and John Gavin, cousin of the groom, acted as best man. The fair bride, who was given away by her father, looked charming in an embroidered georgette gown with bridal veil and wreath. The bridesmaid wore a pink georgette gown with black picture hat. After the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home, where the happy couple received the congratulations of a large number of relatives and friends. They left shortly afterwards taking an evening train for Toronto and Montreal. The bride travelling in a novelty dress, black and gold hat, and seal coat, the gift of the groom. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a pendant, and to the best man a set of gold cuff links.

Mr. J. Tweedle of Kilbride, L. Best and Mr. Hayes of Waterdown, had a miraculous escape from death on Saturday last when the truck Mr. Tweedle was driving went over the filling near Mr. Cranes farm. Mr. Tweedle was on his way to the city with a load of farm produce, and on attempting to make the turn in the road just north of the filling the steering gear refused to work. The truck with the three men went over the bank a distance of over fifty feet. The car was a complete wreck. Mr. Tweedle sustained a slight injury to his hand, while Mr. Hayes was seriously injured. Mr. Best luckily escaping injury, Mr. Tweedle gathered up the produce that was uninjured and proceeded to market in a car borrowed from a neighbor.

means intelligent citizens. Waterdown boys, who are building or wish to build four square lives will find ample opportunity for the betterment of our village.

Was Great Jap Soldier.

Gen. Baron Fukushima, although one of Japan's most notable military men, received but scant notice in the American press on the occasion of his death in Tokyo. He began life as a drummer boy, and in 1892-93 distinguished himself by a trip he made on horseback from Berlin to Vladivostok, through Russia, Siberia, Mongolia and Manchuria, a distance of 9,000 miles. From 1887 up to the time he started on this famous trip he had been military attaché in Berlin. General Fukushima was in command of the Japanese contingent in the war with China until the fall of Tientsin, and was general staff officer during the Boxer troubles. He was staff officer at headquarters of the Manchurian army in the Russo-Japanese war in 1904-05. At different times he represented his country in China, India, Egypt, Turkey, Persia, Cascaia, Arabia, Turkestan, Burma, Siam and Annam.

Real Names of Nobility.

When one glances casually at the roll of British peers, says London Answers, and sees such sounding names as De Montmorency and Chomondeley, Grosvenor and Howard de Walden, one is impressed by a sense of the grandeur and proud descent of our nobility. But a closer examination dispels this illusion; rubbing shoulders with such splendid patronyms, suggesting long centuries of blue-blooded ancestry, you will find scores of surmises such as Smith and Robinson, Hoze and Gardner.

Two of our marcesses have for surnames Browne and Hay, in common with many a farm laborer, while Lord Headfort is a Taylor, like his remote forefather, who probably earned his bread by his scissiors. Among the wearers of Tricked.

A story is told of Admiral Hall, of the British Naval Intelligence Service, which illustrates admirably the simplicity and effectiveness of his methods. A German spy, says the Manchester Guardian, a naval officer, masquerading as an American, was known to be trying to return to Germany through London and Holland. The information was indefinite, but the intelligence service believed that a passenger who was arriving at a London station was the man. Admiral Hall went to the station in uniform and questioned the suspect as he left the train. The man had all the necessary papers, however, and his American accent was good. Suddenly the admiral shouted to him in German: "How dare you stand like that when you are speaking to a superior officer." The suspect straightened his back, his heels clicked, and his hand was halfway up to the salute before he could control himself. It was then too late, and after the arrest the proofs were found. The admiral knew that, if the man were surprised, no exercise of will could prevent him from reacting to an order in the typical manner of a German officer.

VEGETABLE POISONS.

Some of Them Have Very Peculiar Effects.

Sixteen years ago a young man was brought into the hospital at Cairns, in Queensland, Australia, suffering from a strange paralysis of the optic nerves. In spite of skilled treatment, he became blind. Other cases occurred in the same district, and were traced to the eating of a wild fruit known as the finger cherry, a long, bright red berry, which has nothing in common with the English cherry. The effects of certain vegetable poisons are at present beyond scientific explanation. The finger cherry is not the only Australian plant which has a beneficial effect upon the optic nerves.

Some years ago Mr. W. H. Morrison, a well-known Australian horse harmless in themselves, may have unpleasant consequences. Be careful not to eat spinach and an orange at the same meal. The oxalic acid of the former is freed by the citric acid of the latter, and the result is a more or less sharp case of poisoning. Tomato must not be followed by lemon or the result may be the same. Some fruits are injurious in an urticarial condition. The juice of a raw pineapple if injected under the skin is most dangerous.—Tit-Bits.

WELL SATISFIED WITH BABY'S OWN TABLETS

Mrs. Emilie Malette, Montpelier, Que., writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for some time and am well satisfied with them. They are surely the best medicine I know of for little ones." What Mrs. Malette says thousands of other mothers say. Once they have used the Tablets for their children they would use nothing else. The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative; are absolutely free from opiates, narcotics or other harmful drugs and may be given to the youngest baby with perfect safety and good results. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A FAMOUS FOUNTAIN.

The "Lumneuse," On Schwarzenbergplatz, Vienna.

After night has set in upon the Schwarzenbergplatz in picturesque Vienna, hundreds of enthusiastic tourists were wont to throng about the place to hear a well trained outdoor band peal forth strains of classic music and to gaze upon the wonders of its glorious fountain.

Before the palace of Prince Schwarzenberg is the celebrated "Lumneuse" fountain, lighted by twenty-seven hidden reflectors, containing a total power of 270 million candles. The bowl is tremendous in size and sprays of water ascend in every color and shade imaginable, built within each other in circular form. The outer part, for example, will be crimson red, while the extreme inner centre sends forth a brilliant ray of gold, and each few seconds the former changes to a paler tint, going gradually from the original hue to garnet, ruby and lastly light red. Mean while, with the gold section running into bronze and yellow a sudden outburst of dark green emerges from another spot, blending its spray to an apple, olive and finally blue shade, while the beautiful contrast of a deep blue at its side, this also changing from navy to its more delicate colors. Little sprinklers of quickly revertible brown, pink and orange play together, and flit over each other, dropping ping back into the large pool in an entirely different tone, namely, violet. Immediately on top of this, heliotrope and pale lavender bounce up, and so they go on, always illuminating the tiny drops differently upon their descent.

With all these marvellous interplays of every existing hue, perhaps the greatest splendor of the scene lies in the fact that each radiance of dew takes turns at shooting up the highest, and often one must cast his glance to a considerable height when gazing upon the tallest little bubble.

Turkish Promises.

The first of more than a hundred treaties wrung from Turkey by which the porte promised protection to the Christians within the boundaries of the Ottoman empire, was signed 145 years ago, at the instance of Russia. Not one of these hundred promises has ever been kept--which is sufficiently indicated by the fact that all the treaties cover practically the same points. Every time the European powers saved Turkey from dismemberment, the reigning sultan in his gratitude, solemnly promised that he would grant his Christian subjects in European Turkey liberty and equality before the law with Moslems. After France and England, at the tremendous cost of the Crimean war, had saved the Turks from the famous Hattihumaton of February 18, 1856, in which he swore by the bears of the prophet to give Christians fully equality. The promise, like so many others, was but a "scrap of paper." Abdul Hamid on his ascension to the throne, declared that he would make "no distinction of creed" and posed as the protector of the Christians and Jews, to whom probably more than a million were slain during his reign of 35 years.

Clearly Barred.

The German authorities, distressed, not to say outraged beyond expression, at the harshness of the Allied peace terms, and seeking for the German people some adequate means of expressing their feelings on the matter have, according to recent despatches from Copenhagen, sent out a telegram to the German states of which the following is a paragraph: "By a decision of the Imperial Government, the Free States are requested to have all public amusements suspended for a week, and to allow in the theatre only such productions of these grievous days." No one would wish to be unduly kind about the matter, but such a request as this latter surely places a terrible responsibility on theatre managers. It is not easy to think of suitable plays, but "All's Well That Ends Well," by Unser Shakespeare, is clearly barred.

Where Foch is Second.

Madame la Marechale Foch is commander-in-chief in her own home. She is said to be a French lady of quiet order and determination where the order and regularity of her household are concerned. She dislikes being late for luncheon, and she dislikes the marshal being late for luncheon. Fortunately, the marshal dislikes it himself. On one occasion, when after the signing of the armistice Foch was engaged in prolonged conversation with allied representatives and the hour for luncheon had gone by, a message came into the conference room to say that Madame la Marechale could wait no longer for lunch. It may have been impatience on the part of Madame la Marechale, or perhaps Foch expected that message, according to a possible little prearranged stratagem between monsieur and madame. Needless to say that, in times of great pressure, madame makes no demur when the rules of her household are just simply ignored.

STERN MESSAGE OF CLEMENCEAU

To the Peace Delegation From Germany.

No Deviation From Terms to Rebuilders.

London, Cable — A wireless message from Berlin gives the text of a stern note from M. Clemenceau, president of the Peace Conference, to the chairman of the German delegation to Versailles, refusing to deviate from the terms of the peace treaty in favor of German prisoners who are employed in the work of reconstruction in devastated Northern France.

Referring to the brutal treatment meted out to the populations of this district under the German occupation, M. Clemenceau is quoted as saying:

"The deepest sentiments of the human heart have been so cruelly injured that French public opinion cannot agree to grant the favor you request."

The note sets forth that Germany systematically delayed the performance of the armistice terms, and instances the sinking of the German warships in Scapa Flow, the delay in the delivery of German ships, Germany's Baltic policy and the anti-Entente propaganda in Alsace and the world at large, and declares:

"We owe nothing to Germany except the precise fulfillment of the provisions of the peace treaty accepted by Germany."

POOR THIN BLOOD BRINGS INDIGESTION

Make the Blood Rich and Red by Using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Thin-blooded people generally have stomach trouble. They seldom recognize the fact that thin blood is the cause of indigestion, but it is. Thin blood, weak, watery blood, is one of the most common causes of stomach troubles. The glands that furnish the digestive fluids are diminished in their activity, the stomach muscles are weakened and there is a loss of nerve force. In this state nothing will more quickly restore appetite, digestion and a normal nutrition than good, rich, red blood.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills act directly on the blood, making it rich and red, and this enriched blood strengthens weak nerves, stimulates tired muscles, and awakens to normal activity the glands that supply the digestive fluids. The first sign of returning health is an improved appetite, and soon the effect of these blood improving pills is felt throughout the whole system. You find that what you eat does not distress you and that you are daily growing stronger and more vigorous. Mr. J. J. Murray, Regent street, Toronto, bears testimony to the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in cases of this kind. He says:

"During the latter part of 1918 I was a sick man. My stomach seemed simply down and out. I had no desire for food, and when I ate it distressed me. I was pale, did not sleep well, naturally got up in the morning feeling grouchily. My wife was worried over my condition, and urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, reminding me of the good they had done our eldest daughter when she was in a somewhat similar condition. I decided to follow her advice and got a supply and here is the story in a nutshell: I have got my appetite back, sleep soundly at night, enjoy my meals and am so gratified with what the pills have done for me that I strongly advise their use for all pale, sick people."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CANADIAN GIRL "INSULTS" U.S.

Woodstock, N. B., Nurse Calls Flag a "Rag"

And Rutland, Vt., People Are Angry.

Rutland, Vt., Despatch — An alleged anti-American incident, reported by nurse at the Rutland Hospital, is to be the subject of inquiry at a joint hearing by a committee of the Board of Aldermen and the directors of the hospital to-morrow night. The incident, as reported to the aldermen, developed from an alleged conversation between Miss Annie McLane, of Woodstock, N. B., and Miss Marion Niles, an American girl, both nurses at the hospital.

Miss Niles, it was said, had shown a postcard picture to Miss McLane, remarking on its beauty, when the Canadian girl agreed, but added: "Except for that dirty rag," referring to the American flag which had a prominent place in the picture. A spirited argument between the nurses followed, and the incident was called to the attention of Miss Annie Aitken, superintendent of the hospital, who is a sister of Lord Beaverbrook, of Canada, with a demand by American nurses that Miss McLane apologize. When the apology was not forthcoming, the American nurses went on strike as a protest, but returned subsequently. Miss McLane is now said to be at her home in Woodstock, on leave of absence. American nurses assert that she has not yet apologized, and on their representations Ald. C. W. Pencher brought the matter before the city fathers for inquiry.

Impurities of the Blood Counteracted.—Impurities in the blood come from defects in the action of the liver. They are revealed by pimples and unsightly blotches on the skin. They must be treated inwardly, and for this purpose there is no more effective compound to be used than Parlee's Vegetable Pills. They act directly on the liver and by setting up healthy processes have a beneficial effect upon the blood, so that impurities are eliminated.

HIS RETREAT A REAL STAMPEDE

Kolchak's Retirement From Omsk a Disaster.

Troops Threw Away Arms, Seized Trains.

Taiga, Siberia, Cable — Eight thousand wives and children of officers making an eleven-hour flight from Omsk are reported to have been captured by the Bolshevik ten miles east of Omsk. The retreat of the rearmost units of the Siberian army from the All-Russian capital became a stampede, the troops throwing away their guns and commandeering locomotives, trains and carts, in which to escape. Fifteen trains carrying officers and their families, besides scores of other trains filled with refugees, ammunition and merchandise, which were blocked by wreckage and lack of motor power, fell into the hands of the Bolsheviks, who followed up the Cossacks by a cavalry pursuit.

Street fighting occurred in Omsk. Panic is reported to reign at Tatarskaya, 100 miles east of Omsk, which is overrun by fleeing soldiers. Polish troops who have been guarding the railway are leaving with the utmost haste.

Admiral Kolchak is reported to be approaching Novo Nikolievsk. One year after assuming the supreme rulership, Admiral Kolchak to-day is on his way eastward, facing the necessity of re-establishing his seat of government on the shore of Lake Balkal and reconstructing his army, which has been badly shattered.

First Wireless Distress Call.

The first case on record of "wireless" being employed by a ship in distress occurred on March 3, 1890. On this late the R. E. Matthews ran into the East Goodwin lightship during a heavy fog. The weather conditions would, in the old days, have rendered the work of rescue very difficult, if not impossible. But the R. E. Matthews was equipped with what was then a novelty—Marconi's system of wireless telegraphy. Messages were sent ashore and speedily brought lifeboats to the rescue. —London Globe.

LAST MESSAGE OF THE PRINCE

Can't Express Gratitude to "Fellow-Canadians."

Never Be Happy Without Frequent Return.

Ottawa, Despatch—"I can never forget it, nor can I express the whole of my deep gratitude for the open-hearted welcome which my Canadian comrades in arms and all my Canadian fellow-countrymen and women have given me." The foregoing is from a farewell message from his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, which has been received by his Excellency the Governor-General.

The message follows: H.M.S. Renown, Barrington Passage. "The Renown is weighing anchor, and I feel that my first visit to Canada is really at an end. I can never forget it, nor can I express the whole of my deep gratitude for the open-hearted welcome which my Canadian comrades in arms and all my Canadian fellow-countrymen and women have given me."

"Will you please convey this message of thanks, most inadequate though it be, to Sir Robert Borden and the whole Dominion Government, whose care and hospitality throughout my visit have been so generous and so kind." The last four months will influence the whole of my life and I shall never be happy if many months elapse without a visit to my home on this side of the Atlantic. "My best wishes to all the people of Canada till we meet again. (Signed) "Edward P."

Miller's Worm Powder will not only expel worms from the system, but will induce healthful conditions of the system under which worms can no longer thrive. Worms keep a child in a continual state of restlessness and pain, and there can be no comfort for the little one until the cause of suffering be removed, which can be easily done by the use of these powders, than which there is nothing more effective.

ULSTER IS NOW TENDING TOWARD A RECONCILIATION

New Home Rule Bill to Come Up in Two Weeks—Cabinet Studies It Daily—Final Word Rests With Sinn Fein, Who May Capture Southern House.

London, Cable — A new Home Rule bill, setting up two Parliaments in Ireland, with a Council or Senate of forty to be chosen by the two, will probably be introduced in Parliament within the next two weeks. Daily sessions are being held by the Cabinet committee in charge of the measure, the subject under discussion at present being finance, which is in charge of a sub-committee under the chairmanship of J. Austen Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer. Control of customs has always been a point of sharpest difference when other Home Rule schemes have been debated, and one of the rocks upon which the Irish convention was shipwrecked. Control of police is another knotty point.

The most hopeful sign of an agreement is the silence which Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster leader, has preserved since the latest Irish kite was flown. Sir Edward has not issued any mandates to the Ulster Volunteers "to keep their powder dry," while the presence of two hitherto staunch Unionist leaders, Walter Hume Long and Baron Birkenhead, on the committee, show that Ulster is tending toward conciliation.

It is the supposition that there has been an understanding on the main points before the committee; and that, in fact, there was a tacit agreement before the committee was named. The final word, however, does not rest with Parliament, but with the Sinn Fein party. If that organization pursues its policy of refusing recognition of any British law, this British-planned Irish Parliament may come to nothing, since the Sinn Fein polled a majority of the Irish voters at the last election. Moderates, however, believe the Sinn Fein leaders may not be able to keep the mass of their followers in line against an offer of Home Rule which promises to satisfy most of the ambitions of the old National party.

The other alternative remains, that the Sinn Fein may capture the new southern Parliament and promptly declare Ireland an independent republic. It would be possible in such case to carry on the work of the Parliament without recognizing any imperial overlordship.

Bolshevik Claim Denikine and Kolchak Retreat

And Estonia Curbing Gen. Yudenitch.

London, Cable — General Denikine's army in Southern Russia is retreating, the Bolsheviks having captured ten towns in three days, and still advancing, according to a wireless despatch received here from Moscow. Bolshevik troops are entering Ukraine, where they intend to stay, the despatch says.

Admiral Kolchak's forces in Central Siberia are retreating rapidly, according to the despatch, and the Reds have reached a point 87 miles east of Omsk.

Demands by the Estonian Government that the Northwestern Russian Government cease activities within the boundaries of Estonia, have been acceded to, according to information in official circles here.

Bolshevik forces continue their attacks against the Estonians in the direction of Narva, using heavy forces in the fighting, which is very severe.

Its Virtue Cannot be Described.—No one can explain the subtle power that Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil possesses. The originator was himself surprised by the wonderful qualities that his compound possessed. That he was the benefactor of humanity is shown by the invasions that rise in praise of this wonderful Oil. So familiar is everyone with it that it is prized as a household medicine everywhere.

YUDENITCH ARMY THING OF PAST

Force Which Moved On Petrograd Melts Away.

Ukrainians End Armistice With Denikine.

Vienna, Cable — The Ukrainian Legation says that the armistice between Gen. Denikine and the Galician Ukrainian army, concluded on Oct. 24, has been annulled in consequence of the discovery that Gen. Tarnowsky had treacherously negotiated behind Hetlura's back. Tarnowsky and his associates have been arrested, and will be court-martialed.

Reval, Esthonia, Nov. 25.—The Russian northwest army which attempted recently to capture Petrograd under Gen. Yudenitch, has virtually gone out of existence, according to Gen. Soots, chief of the general staff of the Esthonian army. He made this statement on the basis of a report brought in by Col. Rink of the general staff, who returned from the Narva front Sunday.

According to Col. Rink's report the Russian northwest army was in a bad condition during the retreat following the attempt on Petrograd. Gen. Yudenitch and his staff lost all connection with the army, which was left to its fate, unable to resist the Bolshevik attack. The Yudenitch troops retired in disorder and sought protection on Esthonian territory. Part of the Russian troops, with 10,000 refugees, have settled south of Narva. Some of the soldiers have already been disarmed, and the remainder will be deprived of their weapons in the near future.

"The present critical condition of the Russian troops was caused by the incompetence of the Russian chief command," said Gen. Soots.

"The troops had to mix flour with snow, owing to the scarcity of bread. Many refugee children died of hunger and cold, but we made conditions better for the survivors."

Asthma Overcome. The triumph over asthma has assuredly come. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy has proved the most positive blessing the victim of asthmatic attacks has ever known. The Tact of Greatness.

When Elliston, the theatrical manager, went from London to his own theatre at Birmingham he was known to scarcely a member of his own company. On reprimanding one of them sharply the late actor threatened to kick him off the stage. He rushed to the stage manager and asked who that man was.

"Mr. A.," said the manager. "A great man, a very great man," said Elliston. "He threatened to kick me, the lessee of Drury Lane. Such a man as that must go to London. He mustn't waste his energies here." And he engaged the actor on the spot for Drury Lane.

THE MAKING OF A FAMOUS MEDICINE

How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is Prepared For Woman's Use

A visit to the laboratory where this successful remedy is made impresses even the casual looker-on with the reliability, accuracy, skill and cleanliness which attend the making of this great medicine for woman's ills.

Over 500,000 pounds of various herbs are used annually and all have to be gathered at the season of the year when their natural juices and medicinal substances are at their best.

The most successful solvents are used to extract the medicinal properties from these herbs.

Every utensil and tank that comes in contact with the medicine is sterilized and as a final precaution in cleanliness the medicine is pasteurized and sealed in sterile bottles.

It is the wonderful combination of roots and herbs, together with the skill and care used in its preparation which has made this famous medicine so successful in the treatment of female ills.

The letters from women who have been restored to health by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which we are continually publishing attest to its virtue.

The annual bazaar held by the Ladies Auxiliary of Grace church yesterday was very successful. A large assortment of useful articles and home baking being disposed of. The proceeds of the day amounting to nearly $200.

We heartily congratulate our fellow townsman, Mr. J. F. Vance, on his elevation to the bench. A recent order-in-council announces his appointment as magistrate for the County of Wentworth. Mr. Vance has held the position of County clerk since 1917, and has had a great deal of experience in county affairs, having served in the council for a number of years and at one time acted as Warden. Mr. Vance states that any case to be disposed of would be dealt with as they came up and that there would be no special day for him to sit. His new duties will not interfere with his clerical duties.

A certain lady of this village is so painfully neat that she makes life wretched for the male portion of the family. One of her rules is that all members of her household, especially male members, must remove their shoes before entering the house. "Bill" (name camouflaged) she whined one day last week to her husband "I found a grease spot on one of the dining room chairs, and I think it came off those pants you wear in the factory. "Well Mirandy" (camouflage again) shouted Bill, his patience exhausted, "for the last 15 years I have taken my shoes off every time I came into this house, but I'll be hanged if I am going to go any further" Our scribe vouches for the truth of this report. Anyone sufficiently interested may obtain the names of the parties at this office.

Money Well Spent

In these days of expensive living question with most people is to get the best value for one's money. In the case of newspapers or magazines there can be no doubt about The Family Herald and weekly Star of Montreal giving the greatest value for the money on the continent. The Family Herald and Weekly Star is a wonderful combination of newspaper, magazine, and agricultural paper. It costs only $1.25 a year and each subscriber receives a handsome souvenir portrait of the Prince of Wales, 16x22 inches. We learn the subscription price will be $1.50 after December 31st. No better value can be had than a year's trial of the big Montreal Weekly. It consists of 64 pages each week and every page interesting and instructive.

There is an exceptional man in our army. He was a milkman. "I like the army life," he wrote home, "only it's mighty hard to lie abed every morning until 5.30!"

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

LESSON XI. Dec. 14, 1919.

At the Trial and Crucifixion of Jesus.—John 18: 15-27; 19: 25-27.

Commentary.—I. Peter and John at the high priest's palace (18: 15-18). 15. Simon Peter followed Jesus—Jesus was taken first before Annas, the father-in-law of Caiaphas, for a preliminary hearing. Caiaphas had said to the Jews that it was "expedient that one man should die for the people" (John 18: 14). The eleven disciples had forsaken Jesus and fled when he was arrested, but Peter and "another disciple," almost certainly John, followed Jesus to the palace of the high priest. John was acquainted with the high priest and went into the palace, but Peter remained outside. 16. Brought in Peter—The description here is minute and indicates that the writer of the narrative was a witness of what was done. John was interested in his fellow disciples and made use of his acquaintance with the high priest in favor of him. Peter, in common with the other disciples, had been quick to forsake Jesus, but he was quick to come back to see what would be done with him. 17. The damsel that kept the door—The one to whom John spoke, requesting her to admit Peter. Art not thou also one of this man's disciples—This question came with suddenness and directness to Peter. The young woman recognized him as one of the disciples of Jesus, and in her contemptuous question accused him. He saith, I am not.—John had hurried on to the room where Christ was being examined; as at the cross (John 19: 26) he kept close to the Master; and in neither case was he molested. Peter, who "followed afar off," and that more out of curiosity to see the end (Matt. 26: 58) than out of love, encountered temptation and fell.—Cam. Bib. 18. Peter stood with them—Peter mingled with the servants and officers who were warning themselves about a fire, thus hoping to escape observation.

II. Jesus before the high priest (18: 19-24). 19. The high priest—It was probably Annas, here spoken of as high priest, who was conducting the examination of our Lord. Asked Jesus of his disciples—the high priest desired to have Jesus tell him what sort of persons and how many were his followers. It was but four days before this that Jesus was received in triumph into Jerusalem. Of his doctrine—Many different reports of Jesus' teachings must have come to the ears of the high priest and he wished to receive from Jesus himself a statement of what he was proclaiming. 20. I spake openly—Jesus had nothing to hide. He had spoken openly in the synagogue and in the temple. There was full opportunity for all to hear what his teachings were. Whether the Jews always resort—Jesus gave the Jews who were demanding his death credit for being religious in their regard for the synagogue and in the temple worship. In secret have I said nothing—He had taught no doctrines which were not open to all the world. He was engaged in not plot against the government or against the Jewish ecclesiastical system. He was fostering no secret conclave. His language is a reproof applicable to the secretism of the present day. 21. Ask them which heard me—Jesus respectfully and firmly declined to review his teachings there and referred the high priest to those who had listened to him in his ministry. They know what I said—Those who had heard him and were unfriendly to him knew his doctrines, whether they would report them candidly or not. 22. One of the officers . . . struck Jesus—This officer would show that he considered Jesus' answer an insult to the high priest and therefore inflicted the blow. He was doubtless moved also by personal prejudice and hatred. 23. Jesus answered—The reply of Jesus was unanswerable. If it was thought that he had said anything wrong or injurious, there should have been testimony offered to prove it. If he had said nothing out of the way, the blow was not deserved. In either case he should not have been struck. 24. Sent him bound—Jesus was being treated as a dangerous criminal. Jewish hatred had decreed his death, and he was being led "as a lamb to the slaughter." He was taken from the ex-high priest to Caiaphas, the high priest. In the course of his trial he appeared before Annas and twice before the Sanhedrin, also before Pilate twice and before Herod.

III. Peter's denials (18: 25-27). 25. Art not thou also one of his disciples—Peter's eagerness to know what would be done with Jesus brought him into a close place. He must take his position for Jesus or against him. He denied it—This was the second of the three denials of which Jesus had warned him. Peter was not prepared, even with all his declared loyalty to Jesus, to stand up for him when the test came. He could not use his sword to defend him, but he failed to use his tongue in the right way in the critical time. 26. Did not see thee in the garden with him. It was difficult for Peter to hide his identity. Not only did his speech betray him, but he had been seen by one of the servants of the high priest in the garden where he was prominent for his defence of Jesus. 27. He denied again—In the face of all the evidence against him Peter persisted in denying Jesus, even resorting to oaths in his denial. Immediately the cock crew—Peter was thus reminded of what Jesus had said to him. "And the Lord turned, and looked upon Peter" (Luke 22: 61), and this look so deeply affected him that he "went out and wept bitterly" (Luke 22: 62). His penitence was deep and effectual. He sought Christ's body in the tomb on the third day after the crucifixion. Jesus sent a special message to him after his resurrection.

IV. Jesus provides for his mother (19: 25-27). 25. There stood by the cross—There were many present at the crucifixion to "rail on" Jesus (Mary 19: 25), but there were some present who had loving regard for him. The three Marys are mentioned by name and there were other women present (Matt. 27: 55). 26. When Jesus therefore saw—He was conscious; and in the midst of his sufferings he was solicitous for his mother. The disciple whom he loved—John, who modestly refrained from mentioning his own name. Woman, behold thy son—It is probable that Joseph was dead and Mary was a widow. Jesus arranged for a new and tender relation between his mother and John that she might be well cared for. John was at the cross and received this high honor. 27. Behold thy mother—A large responsibility was placed upon John, but not a burden.

QUESTIONS.—Whether did Peter and John follow Jesus? What question was asked Peter, and what was the reply? What questions did the high priest ask Jesus? What answer did Jesus give? What insult was offered to Jesus? Who was the high priest? Who was Annas? How many times did Peter declare he was not one of Jesus' disciples? Who stood by the cross after Jesus was placed on it? What did Jesus say to his mother? What did he say to John?

PRACTICAL SURVEY.
 Topic—What the crucifixion meant to Peter and John.

I. The arrest of Jesus.

II. The trial of Jesus.
 III. The crucifixion of Jesus.

I. The arrest of Jesus. The essential significance of the events which we are studying lies in the divine intention expressed therein. They have relations of infinite depth. The connecting link between the preceding and the present lesson was the arrest of Jesus following immediately upon the agony in Gethsemane. With this began the outward shame and torture of the passion. His advance, avowal and the manifestation of His power express the wholly voluntary nature of His surrender. Afterward He spoke confidently of help available, which would have swept His enemies from the field (Matt. 20: 55).

II. The trial of Jesus. Of the disciples only John and Peter were present at the trial of Jesus, and the former, only, at the crucifixion. The accounts of the four evangelists should be carefully studied and compared. The ecclesiastical authorities were the investigators and eagerly sought to secure the consummation of their murderous purposes. By them the case had been prejudged and the end determined (John 18: 14). The whole procedure has passed into history as an unparalleled instance of brutality and injustice, branding the perpetrators with enduring infamy. Observing the letter of the law, the spirit of it was ruthlessly violated. Disagreeing witnesses nullified their testimony, which was a garbled misrepresentation of Christ's words. Upon His own calm avowal of His Messiahship and divinity He was condemned. The scene shifts to the judgment hall of Pilate, and a charge of sedition is proffered His innocence, and an effort to shift responsibility transferred Him to Herod's jurisdiction, from which He returned, mocked, bruised and beaten, but acquitted. A re-examination by Pilate confirmed his earlier decision and enlisted renewed efforts to secure His release, which should have rested upon a judicial decision wholly. The result was a shameless surrender of personal and judicial honor, the release of a bandit and the surrender of Christ to the demands of the mob, instigated by the high priests.

III. The crucifixion of Jesus. The purpose of destruction which from infancy had followed Jesus was about to be fulfilled. Two things we must hold firmly in mind. His death was voluntary. It was expiatory. He who was the "Life" could not die by disease or accident. The alternative was a voluntary surrender of life, which He accomplished by a violent death at the hands of His enemies. The cross and the victim were both ready, and heaven consented to the sacrifice. It was the great day of world atonement. In the crucifixion sin attained its last possibility and redeeming love its highest expression. The cross has become the most expressive of earthly symbols because it exhibits Christ's perfect identity with sinful men. It is worthy of remark that representative of the race, Jews and Gentiles, united in an unwitting accomplishment of a redemption including all. In the hours on the cross lay the crisis of the world, and in its agony the conflict of the ages concentrates. The gloom which enveloped the "whole land" was but the twilight of the divine forsakenness.

Meat vs. Vegetables

How did our ancestors take to eating flesh food? Did one of them suddenly conclude to serve up one of his enemies for lunch after he had slain him in combat? Or did he take to eating meat from physiologic necessity, after the stores of wild vegetable proteins had failed him? And has his meat diet improved his abilities as a fighter? Here, apparently, vegetarians and flesh-eaters do not agree. The war just ended has certainly demonstrated that there is still in man much of the wild beast. Dr. Harry Campbell, a London physician, who believes both in fighting and in flesh-eating, seeks, in an article in the Lancet (London) to find an explanation for human savagery and ferocity in man's acquired carnivorous habits. He says: "It was a condition entailed by a hunting career which brought about the evolution of the primate ape into man. For, observe the curious situation—assuredly one of the most eventful and dramatic in the whole of man's evolution—when this creature took to hunting. Here was a being lacking the stereotyped equipment for slaughter, instinctive and anatomical of the carnivora, but with an intelligence surpassing that of any other creature, and endowed with prehensile hands capable of giving effect to that intelligence.

"The fact that carnivorous makes for ferocity and develops the fighting instinct has this interest—that man is himself carnivorous. Indeed, in the matter of slaughter he leaves all other animals far behind. He is the arch-slayer. Since the time the prehuman ape took to hunting he and his human descendants have wrought ruthless havoc among the lower animals, and at the present day man not only hunts them, but breeds them for the express purpose of destroying them, chiefly for food, partly for amusement. Many a person of gentle nature would be amazed and horrified were he at the end of a long life to see on his face the hecatombs of living things sent to death on his behalf.

The editor of Good Health (The Crook, Mich.), comments what he calls Dr. Campbell's frank admission that flesh-eating, with the slaughter-house and other cruelties which it involves, tends to foster and maintain in man the brutal qualities which are manifested in the barbarities and cruelties of war. But he regards the doctor as wholly at fault in thinking that flesh-eating and hunting were essential to the development of the aggressive spirit in man, or even the fighting spirit, for—

"Man did not have to leave the forest and frugivorous diet and become a hunter and killer of animals in order to develop his brain. Primitive man sought the plain not to find animals—there were plenty of animals in the forest—but to find food, and as rapidly as possible developed the art of agriculture so as to secure to himself and his family a certain food supply.

"Man's resort to the use of flesh food was doubtless prompted by his instinctive search for complete proteins when the nut-trees (largely nut-pines, probably) were killed off by change of climate or some cataclysmic event which destroyed an essential source of complete protein without which development and life could not be maintained.

"Among the fiercest fighters of the forest are animals which are not flesh-eaters, as, for example, the buffalo of our western plains and the bison of India. Dr. Sanderson, the great elephant hunter, said he would far rather encounter a lion than a wounded bison.

"The rhinoceros, which lives on the coarsest herbage, is so fierce a fighter that the lion flees before him. The elephant, though timid, is no coward, and often gives up its life in resisting captivity.

"The gorilla has long been known as the fiercest beast of the forest. It will kill a hunter by a blow with a club, and will snap his gun-barrel with a grip of its hands, but it will not eat him.

"The vegetarian is a good fighter, but he does not torture. Cruelty is a trait peculiar to carnivorous animals. The cat often tortures the mouse for a long time before she kills and eats it.

"A certain species of wasp paralyzes a fat caterpillar and shuts it up in a cell with its eggs to be devoured by its young, piecemeal, while still alive, and incapable of making a motion in defence.

"Certainly man had abundant opportunity to develop fighting qualities in defending himself against his enemies, which the testimony of the rocks shows to have been great and numerous enough to call forth his highest means of escape and protection.

"The gorilla uses his hands as man does. He has learned to fight with a club, and uses stones as missiles. He is so skillful in the use of these weapons as to be more than a match for a man armed with the same weapons.

"The idea that man had to eat his enemy after killing him, to acquire a hankering for flesh and a thirst for blood in order to be a good fighter, is preposterous. The only mental quality man has acquired through the appetite for flesh is the disposition to slay in cold blood and not in

SIR WILLIAM'S WILL

CHAPTER XXII.

Both Lady Mervyn and Mollie had noticed Clytie's pallor and listlessness at the theatre; and Mollie, when the ladies had reached the drawing-room, unobtrusively drew a chair to the fire. Clytie sank into the chair and held her hands to the warmth of the fire as if she were cold, though the evening was a warm one for the time of year, and the fire was scarcely needed. Mollie watched her, but covertly, for she knew how mortally Clytie liked any fussing.

Clytie had been comparatively well in the early part of the day. They had been for a drive in the afternoon, had dined quietly at home with Mr. Hesketh Carton, who had run up to London for a day or two on business; and they had gone to the theatre with him in the evening. There had been nothing apparently in the day's programme to tire Clytie—indeed, they had of late carefully guarded her against fatigue—and yet to-night she looked almost as bad as she had done on the occasion of her first seizure, if the word is applicable, at the Hall. Mollie could not understand it, and was very anxious and greatly worried. Before they left home she had spoken to Doctor Morton, without Clytie's knowledge, of Clytie's mysterious fainting-fit; but he had not been very seriously impressed, and had assured her that the change which Lady Mervyn proposed for them would be a better medicine than any he could prescribe; and at first Clytie had appeared to be the better for the change, though she had not been so light-hearted and bright of spirit as she had been before Jack Douglas's departure.

"You are feeling tired to-night, dear?" Mollie said, as casually as she could.

Clytie's brows came together a trifle impatiently.

"Yes," she admitted, reluctantly. "I do feel tired, but I'm sure I don't know why; we've had such a pleasant day and the play was delightful."

"I shall drag you off to see a tip-top physician to-morrow," said Mollie.

Clytie laughed and shook her head. "You will do nothing of the kind. There is nothing the matter with me; he would only prescribe a tonic; and I'm taking them already. It is a sudden change in weather. It is so much warmer, and it was quite hot at the theatre to-night."

"You would not have noticed it a few months ago," said Mollie.

"And I shall not notice it in a few days," retorted Clytie, almost irritably. "Forgive me, Mollie, dear, but I am really quite well, only a little tired; and the best place for tired persons is by-by bed."

Lady Mervyn and Mollie had a long talk about Clytie when she had gone; but they both felt that they were hopeless; for it was not easy to drag a girl, with Clytie's strength of will, to a physician; and they could only hope that she was right when she ascribed her weakness to the sudden change of weather.

Clytie came down to breakfast the next morning still looking a little pale, but much better than she had been on the previous night, and quite prepared to laugh at the anxiety of the others. But as she opened the letters that lay by her plate, her cheerfulness fled, and Mollie saw her brows come together as if she had received some bad or disquieting news. At the same moment Lady Mervyn looked up from the letter she was reading and uttered an exclamation.

"Oh, poor Percy!" she cried.

Mollie set down the coffee-cup which was half-way to her lips and turned pale; the moment afterward her face was flushed as if with indignation, and she said:

"Dear Lady Mervyn, what a cry of distress! You strike terror to our hearts! What has happened to 'Poor Percy'?"

He had been with them in London, helping Mollie to enjoy herself, and in hilarious spirits himself, until two days ago, when much to his discontent, he had been obliged to run down to the Towers to meet the architect and the surveyors of the new jetty.

"He is ill," said Lady Mervyn. "He has got the measles," she added solemnly.

Mollie covertly drew a breath of relief, and laughed with what seemed to Lady Mervyn sheer heartlessness.

"Is that all? I thought that he had broken his leg, at least. He ought to have had the measles long ago. Don't look so alarmed, dear Lady Mervyn; they're not usually fatal."

"I am not unduly alarmed, my dear," said Lady Mervyn, gently; she would have resented the banter if it had come from any other than Mollie; but, as Clytie declared, Mollie could say and do nothing wrong in Lady Mervyn's opinion. "But the poor boy's all alone in that great place."

"Of course, you must go back and nurse him, Lady Mervyn," said Clytie. "We will all go back. Poor Percy! I am so sorry."

Lady Mervyn looked uncertain and distressed.

"Thank you, dear," she said. "But I do not like to take you back so soon. I am sure the change in doing you good, though you had a slight relapse last night; and I do not think you ought to go back. The east winds are very cold at Bramley, and I feel sure that you ought to be in a more sheltered place."

In her heart, Mollie wanted to go back; but she agreed with Lady Mervyn, and sat pondering for a minute with knit brows; then she cried suddenly:

"I have it! No; not the measles, but an idea. You won't be gone long, Lady Mervyn; Percy—I mean Lord Stanton—will be all right in a week or ten days, and you could come back and bring him with you." She knew that Percy would come back, if he were well enough, whether Lady Mervyn brought him or not.

"But you two can't remain in London alone, dear," Lady Mervyn reminded her.

"I suppose not," said Mollie. "I suppose we should be run over, or run away with, or get into trouble with the police."

"Mollie!" said Clytie.

"And here's where my idea comes in," said Mollie. "Why shouldn't Clytie and I go down to that pretty little cottage of yours at Weybridge? We both fell in love with it when you took us down there the other day; and it's just the place for Clytie; so snug and warm, sheltered by those pines; and so quiet. And there could not be anything really criminal in two young ladies going down there alone and protected by a couple of able-bodied maids."

"How clever of you, Mollie dear!" exclaimed Lady Mervyn, with loving admiration. "It is the very thing! Of course, you can go down there! How singular and how fortunate it is that I told them to keep the place aired, as we should probably run down for the week-end. You can take two of the maids from here; they, with the women in charge, would make you very comfortable; and, as you say, the place is so sheltered."

"I think we had better go back, Lady Mervyn," said Clytie, glancing at the open letter beside her plate; but Mollie ran round and placed her hand over Clytie's lips.

"You shut up, as Per—Lord Stanton would say, with unparadisable rudeness. Don't you be so selfish, Clytie, but think of your little sister sometimes. I'm simply dying to go. Think of it, Clytie dear! It would be quite warm there; and we could run about without our hats and pick primroses and violets, and—the other early vegetables. You run upstairs and pack, Lady Mervyn, and I'll come up and help you presently."

"No, no, dear; don't trouble," said Lady Mervyn, as she left the room; for she knew what Mollie's packing would mean. "Martha can do it all."

"What is it in that letter you are worrying about?" asked Mollie, when Lady Mervyn had gone.

Clytie winced. "It's from Mr. Granger," she replied. "He writes to remind me that the time of grace has nearly expired. It expires on the twenty-third."

"And there is no news of Sir Wilfred Carton?" said Mollie, very quietly and gravely for her.

Clytie changed color slightly. "Mr. Granger has no news," she said.

Mollie jumped up with a kind of desperate determination.

"Sufficient for the day is the evil thereof," she said, decisively. "We have still got a little more rope; and we won't worry till it's given out. We shall have a nice quiet time in our cottage in the woods, to think it over and come to a decision."

"I have decided," said Clytie quietly, her eyes downcast.

Mollie looked at her sharply. "Then for goodness sake, keep your decision to yourself until the proper time arrives for declaring it," she said. "Now, we won't say another word; indeed, we shouldn't have time, for we must leave here to-day, or all sorts of things might happen to two defenceless maidens in this ravaging London."

That afternoon, when Mr. Hesketh Carton called, in accordance with etiquette, at Grafton street, he was informed that Lady Mervyn had returned to the Towers and that the young ladies had gone to Rose Cot-

ATLANTIC FLIGHT!

Wonderful example of the value of OXO.

Captain Sir J. ALCOCK writes—

"You will be interested to learn that OXO was a great help to us during our Trans-Atlantic Flight; it sustained us wonderfully during our 16 hours journey."

"We had found out what a good thing it is when flying in France, and so decided to carry it with us on this occasion, and we can assure you that hot OXO is most acceptable under such cold and arduous conditions. OXO was the only article of its kind which we carried."

lage, Weybridge. He permitted the surprise to show itself in his pale face for a moment, then handed in his card, and walked away. Jack, who was passing the end of the street, saw him leave the house, and noticed the expression of disappointment and uncertainty on Hesketh Carton's face.

A few minutes later he saw the blinds pulled down and a footman come out and air himself on the steps, as if he had just bought the place, and was quite satisfied with his bargain; and Jack, by these unmistakable signs, knew that the ladies had gone. Had they gone back to Devonshire? He felt he must know, at any risk, and inquired of the footman—whose manner underwent an electric change at Jack's distinguished appearance—whether Lady Mervyn was at home.

The man repeated, parrotlike, the reply he had given Hesketh Carton. Jack pretended to fumble for a card-case; then muttered:

"No card; no matter," and walked away, the footman resuming his lounging attitude against the doorway and trying to look stalwart figure with languid approval.

Mollie's praise of their temporary retreat had not been extravagant. As she had said, the cottage stood actually in one of the small pine-woods for which Weybridge is so justly famous, and the air was not only soft and warm, but full of terebene, that balmy exhilaration of the firs, in search of which so many thousands of misguided persons across the troublesome Channel and undergo innumerable discomforts in foreign places, regarding the fact that the health-giving air may be breathed within thirty miles of London.

"We might be in South Devon or California, for that matter," remarked Mollie, as the two girls were sitting under the little veranda after dinner, with their tea-cups in their laps. "Isn't it almost impossible to believe that we are so near London; and that every morning men rush up to the city with little black bags and come down again in the evening in time for dinner? And what a lovely place it is! Lady Mervyn ought to bring Lord Stanton here when he is well enough to be moved. This air will do you good, Clytie. It is like Somebody's Cocoa, soothing and grateful. It makes me feel quite good."

"Quite so," assented Mollie cheerfully. "That being the case, you will grow into an angel if you stay here long."

"I almost wish we could stay here forever," said Clytie, with a sigh. "It is so peaceful; one seems to be in a place where trouble and anxiety cannot enter."

"Oh, a fortnight will be long enough for me," said Mollie. "I like

MY HEAD!

When the head feels thick or aches, when one feels all out-of-sorts—perhaps a coated tongue—it is the signal that poisons are accumulating in the system, and should be cleaned out at once.

Auto-intoxication can be best ascribed to our own neglect or carelessness. When the organs fail in the discharge of their duties, the putrefactive germs set in and generate toxins—actual poisons, which fill one's own body.

Sleepiness after meals, flushing of the face, extreme lassitude, biliousness, dizziness, sick headache, acidity of the stomach, heartburn, offensive breath, anemia, loss of weight and muscular power, decrease of vitality or lowering of resistance to infectious diseases, disturbance of the eye, dyspepsia, indigestion, gastritis, many forms of catarrh, asthma, ear affections and allied ailments result from auto-intoxication or self-poisoning.

roughing it well enough for a time; but after a while my soul would hanker after flesh-pots of Bramley Hall and Grafton street.

"And they may pass away from us forever," said Clytie gravely.

"They may," admitted Mollie cheerfully. "On the other hand, they may not. Sufficient unto the day. What a useful text that is! It seems to fit everything, I wonder whether I could buy one of those illuminated things and hang it over your bed?" She yawned. "How deliciously sleepy this air makes one. Just what you want, my child. You scarcely slept at all last night."

"How do you know?" demanded Clytie quickly.

"Because I went to your door and listened," retorted Mollie. "There's a devoted sister for you! But let it be a lesson to you; and remember, when you get out of bed and pace up and down like a restless cat, that you are keeping the aforesaid devoted one from sweet restful sleep."

Clytie stretched out her hand and laid it on Mollie's arm. "I am sorry, dear."

"Don't use being sorry; mend your ways," retorted Mollie.

Goat Got Even.

One really unusual incident occurred during a recent military ceremony in France, and that revolved about the goat mascot of one of the divisions in the parade. The goat had followed in with his men as befitted a proper mascot, but once in the square he was rudely relegated to the rear ranks. It chanced that a number of red-hatted staff officers took up their position in front of the goat and stood during the inspection at attention with huge bouquets out back from under their arms. When the inspection was over the officers stood at ease again and looked to their bouquets. They were holding only stems. The mascot had taken a sweet revenge and a square meal for the insult to dignity.

THE GARDEN OF EDEN.

The First Irrigated Area in the World.

And the Lord God planted a garden to the eastward of Eden. And a river went out of Eden to water the garden; and it was parted into four heads:—

Genesee.

Sir William Willocks, who, in behalf of the British Government, had charge of the wonderful irrigation works in Egypt, was assigned not long ago to the duty of planning a similar large-scale enterprise for the restoration of ancient Babylonia to its former agricultural productiveness.

This it happened that he located, to the reasonable satisfaction of archaeologists, the veritable site of the Garden of Eden. For reasons wholly practical, he thought that the best way to begin.

Starting from the spot where Jewish tradition placed the Gates of Paradise—the word paradise meaning "garden"—he followed the traces of the four streams mentioned in Genesis, which, as therein named, were the Pison, the Gihon, the Hiddekel, and the Euphrates.

The Euphrates (known by that name to-day) flowed through the great city of Babylon. The Gihon is now called the Tigris. The Hiddekel is the modern Sakhalawia, which flows into the Tigris at Bagdad. The Pison has gone dry, but is represented by many-armed channels "encompassing the whole land of Havilah" (see Genesis), which lay between Egypt and Assyria.

The Euphrates enters its delta a few miles below Hit, there leaving the desert and debouching into a vast alluvial plain. In this departure it has a considerable fall, with a number of cataracts, and along a narrow valley giant water-wheels lift the water to irrigate the land on both sides of the stream.

The entrance to this valley, according to Jewish tradition, was the gate of the Paradise in which Adam and Eve dwelt, and from which they were expelled for disobeying a divine command. There the traveler first meets the date palm, which is a "tree of life" (see Genesis) to the whole Arab world.

Along the valley garden succeeds garden. It is to-day a veritable paradise, orchards and date groves checkered with fields of cotton. The climate is everlasting summer, so that three or four crops a year may be grown.

Antiently the cataracts were much higher, and water-wheels were unnecessary, the water being led off by ditches.

The Garden of Eden, indeed, gains interest from the fact that it seems to have been the first irrigated area in the world.

FLED IN DISGUISE.

Noted Men Who Escaped Captivity by Subterfuge.

Gen. Hans von Beseler, of the German army, is said to have escaped out of Poland in disguise as a stowaway on board a Vistula River steambot.

In the fall of 1914 Von Beseler was glorified as the conqueror of the city of Antwerp, the chief stronghold of Belgium and the chief port of continental Europe. Germany's conquering heroes of 1914 have been vanquished and Von Beseler is but one of a great company of notable fugitives who have saved their lives by fleeing in disguise. Judge Jeffries of English history, whose name is associated with the "bloody assizes," tried to hide himself and escape the vengeance his savage cruelty merited by donning the garb of a coal miner and hiding in a tavern in Woking, but he was recognized, captured, imprisoned in the Tower of London where he soon died. Prince Charles Edward Stuart, pretender to the throne of Great Britain, escaped from Scotland in petticoats, disguised as Betty Burke, maid to Flora Macdonald.

Louis Philippe, the "citizen king" of France, fled to the coast of Normandy, where he posed as "Mr. Smith," a British subject, in order to procure passage to England on a steambot Napoleon III, while a pretender to the throne of France, was imprisoned in the fortress of Ham. After several months of confinement repairs were begun on the fortress. Napoleon bribed one of the carpenters to smuggle in a workman's garb for his disguise. He dressed himself in the coarse overalls and blouse, shouldered a short plank, which he carried on edge so as to conceal his face, and walking past his guard he escaped to Belgium and thence to England.

Porfirio Diaz was twice compelled to flee from Mexico and seek safety in the United States. He made one trip from New Orleans to Vera Cruz disguised as a stoker on board a steamship and was soon leading a new band of revolutionists. Empress Eugenie, disguised as a servant woman, was taken out of Paris by Dr. Evans, an American dentist in whose house she had been hidden. Thus she escaped the blind fury of the French mob and gained safe asylum in England.

Jefferson Davis, fallen President of the Southern Confederacy, is said by his enemies to have tried to escape out of the country and evade his pursuers disguised in woman's garb, but he was captured and imprisoned until the prisons of some of the northern fire-catchers had cooled.

Finest Thing Ever For Chronic Catarrh!

Get Away From the Medicine Habit. Cures By Novel Method.

With the many remedies you have tried you surely know that no liquid medicine can cure your throat or nose. Even a gargle only bathes the entrance of the throat—it can't really get inside, nor can it reach the inflamed bronchial tubes.

With Catarrhazone, it's so different from medicine-taking—you simply breathe its balsamic fumes, which carry cure and relief to the minutest air cells in the lungs, nose, throat, and bronchial tubes.

In this scientific way the soreness and inflammation is rapidly allayed, relaxed cords are tuned up, the entire mucous membrane irrigated. Every trace of catarrh disappears, the disagreeable drooping of mucus in the throat, hawking, spitting, and stopped-up nostrils—all these sure signs of catarrh and bronchitis are permanently cured by Catarrhazone. Large outfit lasts two months, costs $1; small size, 50 cents, trial size 25 cents, at dealers everywhere.

In a small village in Ireland the mother of a soldier met the village priest, who asked her if she had had bad news.

"Shure I have," said she, "Pat has been killed."

"Oh! I am very sorry," said the priest. "Did you receive word from the war office?"

"No, I received word from Pat himself."

The Priest looked perplexed and said: "But, how is that?"

"Shure," she said, "here is the letter."

He looked at it and he read: "Dear mother, I am now in the Holy Land."
