The Road to Yesterday.
Down the long, broad road as it leads away To the pleasant scenes of yesterday—To the orchard wide where the laden trees Swing to and fro in the balmy breeze;
By the old well-sweep with its creaking pole,
And the big white rock by the swimming pool—Ah, the scent that comes from the new-mown hay
Whose long drifts lay
Where the meadows play
On the long, wide road to yesterday!
The milestones stand with their tinge of grey As the tired horse back to yesterday,
And the road grows smooth as the eyes behold
The long lost scenes of the days of old—Faces bright of the old school creed, Long since wrapped in the sheet and shroud, Welcome thence from the chimneys so gay Who romp and play
To the old-time way
By the long, wide road to yesterday!

A Period of Drought.
Every winter when Mrs. Bronson, whose throat was delicate, was banished West or South, her cousin, Harriet Kingsley, was engaged to mother the family.
Miss Kingsley made an entirely trustworthy guardian, yet she possessed one striking peculiarity that not only amused, but exasperated the left-at-home Bronsons. Before her mother's death, Cousin Harriet had spent twenty years trying to live within an income that was a good deal too small. Afterward the income expanded to twice its former size, but Harriet did not. She had been cramped too long. Her sobriety, saving mind refused to see her former dollars doubled; and she continued to "scrimp" long after the necessity for scrimping had ceased to exist.
During the luxurious months that she kept house for her well-to-do, open-handed cousin, an employment that she thoroughly enjoyed, she kept it after her own parsimonious fashion.
She saved scraps, turned down all the gas-jets, ordered one pie when circumstances really demanded two, used her matches twice, and by cutting in a two before-hand, compelled a single beeswing to serve for two somewhat restricted meals.
In households where it was needed, Harriet's economy would have proved a blessing; but under the Bronsons', well-shingled roof, fragility seemed an exaggerated virtue. As practiced by Cousin Harriet, it certainly added nothing whatever to the Bronsons' comfort, whatever it may have done toward increasing their already ample income.
"Now, Harriet," Mr. Bronson would say, when the cream ran short, "there isn't any earthly reason why we shouldn't take a gallon of milk a day if we need it. What are we getting?
You've cut it down to a quart! Dear dear! And here we are getting enough cream of our quarter for two able-bodied meals! Harriet, you'll really be the death of me! My system won't stand cream in such quantities."
"But," said Harriet, triumphantly, "I've saved over half the household allowance this month."
"That," returned Mr. Bronson, "would be entirely commendable if there were any need of saving it; but there isn't. I'm making it to spend, I'd rather spend it. You see, the milkman has to live, so does the grocer, so does the butcher. By the way, let the cook to broil the rest of this beefsteak. I'd like to live myself; I'm sure I shan't if I have to go without cream in my coffee. Why, Harriet, every time I part with another acre of that mineral land near Gogebic I'm afraid I'd discover that I'm a millionaire! Half of one, anyway. We can't spend our money but once. Let me have our cream while it agrees with us."

Gradually good-natured Gershon Bronson overruled his cousin's too parsimonious habits; not, however, with entire success, because as fast as he disposed of one, another broke out where it was least expected. For instance, by the time she was convinced that he really could not see to send with the gas turned down, Harriet had rescued seven uncancelled stamps from the waste-basket, soaked them off and laid them, guiltless of gum, on her busy cousin's desk.
Having a saving sense of humor, his only saving quality, Harriet said, "Mr. Bronson found his economical relative amusing. And Cousin Harriet realized that so much genuine kindness lurked beneath Gershon Bronson's bantering that her feelings were never hurt. But she still persisted in going to bed by candle-light to save gas."
"If we had forty million," muttered seventeen-year-old Elydia, fying a parcel with eard from an astonishingly knobby ball, "Cousin Harriet would still hoard string. She's saved enough to last forever. I wonder how it would feel to use brand-new twine."
"You'd miss the knots," giggled Frances.
"I see," said Mr. Bronson, looking up from his paper, "that the water-board has decided to put in meters.
That will afford a new field for economy."
Cousin Harriet's brow puckered anxiously. She was darning an odd sock that she had found in the rag-bag.
"Meters! Don't you see! Water is the one thing that this town has always been able to have enough of. I must tell Mary."

"Don't worry," soothed Mr. Bronson. "I guess we'll still be able to think it."
The meter, an inoffensive affair that looked like a brass teapot, was duly installed. The plumber, lifting the singular metal lid, showed Miss Kingsley six little groups of figures on the four-inch disk. One could see, it appeared, anywhere from no water at all to an ocean as much per thousand cubic feet. Compared with the bill for the same amount of ice, the meter seemed moderate.
"How much," asked Miss Kingsley, "does it cost us to likely to cost a ton?"
"Well," confided the plumber, collecting his tools, "I really don't know much about them,—this is only the fourth I've put in, and I haven't seen one busy—but I should say that it would all depend on how much a body used."
The meter weighed heavily on Cousin Harriet's mind. She could picture it in the Bronson cellar, greerily counting every drop that trickled through the pipes. Of course from the very moment that the system went into force, the good lady began to save water.
"Mary," she said to the cook, "you mustn't waste a drop. When you've rinsed the dishes, pour the water into this pail, so I can use it to water the plants. And, Mary, save part of your washwater on Monday to scrub the laundry floor. It seems a pity to waste all that nice bluing water. Can't there something we could do with it?"
"We might," suggested Mary, doubt-fully, "beat it to wash windows with."
"We'll try it," returned Miss Kingsley, screwing the laucets tighter.
Mary, now restricted at every turn —every turn of the faucet, Mr. Bronson said—was fast losing the amplability for which she had been famed.
The hitherto fastidious girls wore their white shirtwaists a day longer than usual to save washing. Indeed, the entire family was gradually becoming niggardly with the water-supply. Even Elydia was observed saving half the contents of her glass for the benefit of the parched fern-dish.
"Really," expostulated Mary, Bronson, when this discovery was made, "if this 'savings' doesn't stop we'll all die!"
"It's all I can do to turn on every fancet in the house just to see how it seems actually to possess enough water to wash both hands in at once."
"You can't," said Cousin Harriet, with dignity. "I've had all the fan-cets fixed."
"That's why they merely drizzle!" exclaimed Frances. "I supposed they 'd just grown economical of their own accord."
"I've tried for half an hour to read that meter," confessed Cousin Harriet, emerging dustily from the cellar the morning of the thirty-first, "but I can't understand the figures. This is the day they inspect it. I wanted to be prepared."
Three hours later Mr. Kingsley followed the meter-man to the cellar.
He lifted the metal lid, held his lantern close, and read the figures to which the indicator pointed. Suddenly he uttered an ejaculation and stooped lower. Then he shook his head. His manner expressed disapproval.
"Have we used very much?" demanded Cousin Harriet, anxiously.
"Just about all Lake Superior!" replied the man.
"What! gasped the guardian of fan-cets, in horror?
"The meter's put on wrong," explained the man. "That plumber's got it hind end to it. This makes nice that'll have to come out so far. This way it registers all the water that you don't use, I guess. Of course we can't go by it this month. We'll have it reversed."
The Bronsons became dilatory when the matter was explained. Miss Kingsley, however, seemed depressed.

Value of Rest.
The philosopher, Herbert Spencer, used to lament, in his later years, that he had not adopted a regular system of recreation. He often said that what he had needed was play, simple play, "useless" from every point of view excepting that of recreating the system. This sort of human philosophy, says The Independent, is gaining ground every year.
No one, at any age, can live healthily without play. Play is particularly demands provision for relaxation for those who are in nature life.
In this way only can the burdens of life be kept from wearing one out prematurely. Further, there is no doubt that the public can so provide for relaxation and recreation that the whole community shall feel the benefit of it from a sanitary standpoint and in the reduction of crime. Public playing is a feature of the life of many Norwegian and Swiss communities. It works admirably in the way of keeping health and a good social atmosphere.
Precisely so with the young, so with the old—play has a hygienic value. It relieves the brain and the heart, the organs most likely to be broken down through hard work and worry. Play seems to have an admirable effect in equalizing the circulation of the blood and in mitigating the strain placed on the different organs. Play furnishes also a kind of mental training which is very necessary in adult life. It takes the attention from a single affair, and it keeps all the sense organs alert. Nor can we make too much of the social element in this matter. A good playground is the best means of counteracting the differentiation from each other which we undergo in the struggle for life. But have we really any time for games? Who can leave his business to spend an hour at sport every day of his life? We have seen this tested, in a small way, very successfully, by a communal bowling alley and bankers did find it possible to get away from work and enjoy themselves in a very simple, free and easy way. They threw off their burdens, laughed and shouted and recreated.
Golf has proved a useful game for many, and croquet and tennis have done a great deal of direct good.
They do not quite fill the bill, however, as family games. What we want is a public recognition of the value of play, and opportunities for gathering together precisely as we would group our children.

The Church Must Lead.
"The Church of to-day, much more the Church of the future, must take to its heart the duty of combining and massing its forces against that giantic atrocious of Christian civilization that mothers nine-tenths of the woes and sorrows that blight and curse our modern age—the traffic in intoxicants, which hides the deformity under forms of law. The conflict, is now upon us. The Church must lead the great class of moral issues of which she is the recognized guardian.
The rum hole must be closed or the rum hell will engulf Christendom. If ever the pulpit had a right, the duty to flay with unsparring rebuke, it is here."—Bishop R. S. Foster.

Mother's Anxiety.
The summer months are a time of anxiety for mothers because they are the most dangerous months in the year for babies and young children.
Stomach and bowel troubles come quickly during the hot weather and almost before the mother realizes that there is danger the little one may be beyond aid. Baby's Own Tablets will prevent summer complaints if given occasionally because they keep the stomach and bowels free from offending matter. And the Tablets will cure these troubles if they come suddenly. The wise mother should keep these Tablets always at hand and give them occasionally to her children. The Tablets can be given with equal success to the new born babe or the well grown child. They always do good—they cannot possibly do harm, and the mother has the guarantee of a Government analysis that this medicine does not contain one particle of opiate or harmful drug.

Old Time Capital Crimes—In England during the sixteenth century stealing above the value of twelve pence, burning a haystack, killing or stealing sheep, breaking a dice or a bridge, breaking a bank of a fishpond, cutting down a tree in an orchard and the malicious tearing or defacing of the garments of a person in the street were all capital offences and were punished as such by death.
We should begin life with books, they multiply the sources of employment, so does capital—but capital is of no use unless we live on the interest; books are waste paper, unless we spend in action the wisdom we get from thought.—B. Lytton.

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFFVILLE, N. S., AUG. 9, 1907

Local Happenings.

The funeral of the late Dr. A. W. Sawyer takes place on Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock, from his late residence on Acadia street.

The Wolfville Tennis Club held an other enjoyable tea on the grounds last Saturday afternoon. A number of Kew-ville players were present.

Our Canning correspondent writes: 'I do not write for the Kentville papers as you might suppose from seeing the same items in the Orchardist.' The inference is plain.

FOR SALE—Draft horse, 12 years old, 1400 lbs. Good to work. Price, $125.00. J. C. ARCHIBALD.

Mr. Frank Colwell and family, of Halifax, are occupying the house of Mrs. Harrington, Prospect street, for a few weeks, while Mrs. Harrington and daughter are visiting in Halifax.

Handsome, thoroughbred Jersey cow, 4 years old, and calf two years old. Rare chance to secure such an animal. Big milker. Price $50. Apply to L. G. HARRIS, Canning.

Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Peck wish to express their thanks through THE ACADIAN to the many friends for acts of sympathy and help during their recent bereavement in the illness and death of their son.

Free sample pkg. Mennin's Talcum powder at Rand's.

As a mark of respect for the late Dr. Sawyer, the Wolfville merchants will close their places of business on Monday afternoon next at 4 o'clock, at which hour the funeral of our much esteemed townsman will take place.

The executive of the Kings County Temperance Alliance is arranging for a mammoth temperance picnic to be held on the Camp Grounds at Berwick some time during September. Further particulars will be given later.

A Tudhope wagon run just a short time for sale. Apply to P. O. Box 336.

The residence of Rev. Dr. Chute, Westwood avenue, is being much improved by the addition of an ell and tower, which will greatly enhance the appearance of the place and provide a convenient and commodious study for the owner.

Mr. Emery's time for the coming season is already so well taken that any new pupils wishing to study are advised to apply soon. Classes in Kentville and Halifax were offered Mr. Emery the past week, also another Choral Club.

Dulse 12 cents per pound at Acadia-Pharmacy.

In anticipation of the marriage of Miss Agnes Johnson, one of Wolfville's most popular young ladies, to Dr. Owen B. Keady, of Liverpool, the young ladies of the town combined on Wednesday evening of last week and surprised her with a shower of beautiful china, including a Luncheon china tea set, from thirty-five girls.

A meeting of the Board of Governors of Acadia University was held here on Wednesday. It is understood that certain conditions which hindered Dr. Archibald's acceptance of the appointment to the chair of mathematics have been met and overcome, and that Dr. Archibald has accepted the position.

Have you tried a drink of genuine Hie's Root Beer from the keg at Rand's?

Considerable improvement is being made in the residence of Mrs. Henshaw, Gasparava avenue. The house has been newly painted and a neat veranda is now being constructed on the south side. The condition of the grounds has also been improved and the whole place presents a much better appearance than formerly.

J. B. Woodworth, of Toronto, the discoverer of the original 'Nova Scotia' mine in Cobalt, is a guest at the Royal. This is now a valuable property, but Mr. Woodworth has closed out practically all of his Cobalt interests and is at present concerned with valuable properties in the state of Sonora, Mexico. He is associated with a group of London capitalists. He spent the month of April in Mexico, making an examination of the properties and will return there again shortly. Mr. Woodworth will leave to-day for St. George where Mrs. Woodworth has been visiting.—St. John Sun, 6th.

Mr. Woodworth is a son of the late J. A. Woodworth, formerly of Grand Pre, and later publisher of the Windsor Tribune.

To RENT—On Prospect Street, a house or flat. Toward water and lawn. Apply to Box 139, Wolfville.

The death, on Monday morning at Gasparava, of Irad Benjamin, J. P., in the 62nd year of his age, removes one of the oldest and most widely known residents of this county. The deceased was the eldest son of the late Perez M. Benjamin, who in the stirring times of Howe twice represented this county in the Provincial Parliament in the interests of the Liberal party. Mr. Benjamin was prominent in county matters and was councillor for several years. He leaves two sons, Thomas E., a resident of this town, and Nathan O., with whom he resided, and two daughters, Mrs. H. C. Vaughan, of Sheffield's Mills, and Mrs. James Stevens, of Boston. The funeral took place on Tuesday afternoon.

How Do These Styles Suit You?

They are the very newest and latest for summer wear, and they are the finest combination of style and value that we have ever shown. Note the fit of the shoulders and see how snugly the collars and lapels follow the form, and how artistically proportioned they are! Even if they hadn't the label on them you would know that they are the product of the tailor shops in Toronto. No style point has been overlooked and no effort spared to make them what they are—the best in Canada. Prices are the lowest you ever paid for good clothes, but perhaps not the lowest you ever paid for had ones. All sizes, many prices.

20th Century Brand

WE ARE SOLE AGENTS.

WOLFFVILLE.

Canning Items.

It is expected that Earl and Countess Grey, who are now attending the summer carnival in Halifax, will be in Canning over Sunday as guests of Sir Frederick and Lady Borden.

Rev. Dr. Crowell is enjoying a vacation in Yarmouth with his wife and children.

Mrs. Warner, of New Haven, Conn., is visiting her daughter, Mrs. John DeWolf.

Canning is well represented at the Borden camp meeting this week by Mr. and Mrs. Hennigar, Miss Bessie Hennigar, Kenneth Hennigar, Mrs. Alfred Ellis and Miss Lou, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lockwood, Mrs. N. W. Eaton and five children, Miss Annie Eaton, Mrs. Victor Eaton and baby, Miss Belle Stark.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert North and two children are spending a week at Hall's Harbor.

Mrs. Daniel Bigelow and two children, of Spencer's Island, were in town over Sunday.

Miss Eva Rooney is home from Moncton.

Mr. Victor Eaton had the good fortune recently to win a valuable field telescope for good shooting at Kentville. He went to Truro last Thursday with the Kentville Rifle Club to compete for the Truro Trophy.

The Royal Arcanum Grand Council for the Maritime Provinces meets in Kentville on 14th. This session of the grand council will be of special interest to all members in attendance and to all members of the Royal Arcanum generally, from the fact that the supreme regent, Robert Van Sandt, a prominent lawyer of Chicago, is to be in attendance, accompanied by the Hon. Howard C. Wiggin, of Rome, N. Y. The presence of these two distinguished gentlemen will add special interest to the annual session. A public meeting will be held in the evening in Pastime Hall and a cordial invitation is extended to all. Addresses will be delivered by the chief officers.

Dr. Saunders, director of the experimental farm, Ottawa, and Mrs. Saunders celebrated their golden wedding last week. The central farm staff presented them with a handsome tea service.

William D. Haywood, secretary and treasurer of the Western Federation of Miners, on trial at Boise, Idaho, for the murder of the late Governor Steiensenberg, was on Saturday found not guilty.

Horse Notes.

Mr. Charlie Porter has sold his very nice driver, and will have some trouble to replace him. A proper young man with a proper 'turn out' has a thrifty appearance, and Charlie is all that, and more.

Our Street Commissioner, Mr. Harvey, has just bought from Mr. Low Harris, Canning, a fine looking youngster, sired by Remus, dam a great flyer, 'once owned by a Methodist minister in Philadelphia.' Mr. Collins is not strong on Theology, but he knows how to 'get on' and make it pay.

Mrs. Hutchinson was the recipient this week of the following letter, accompanied by a substantial amount in cash, from the Grand Pre subscribers of the Valley Telephone Co. This expression of appreciation must be very gratifying to Mrs. Hutchinson:

Grand Pre, Aug. 5, 1907.
To Mrs. L. C. Hutchinson, Wolfville.

We, the undersigned, subscribers of the Valley Telephone Co., regret to hear that you are about to resign from your position as operator at Wolfville. We appreciate your kindness and obligations since you have held the office.

We would ask you to accept the enclosed as a token of the regard and esteem which we have for you.

Wolfville, July 25, 1907.

The Dartmouth correspondent to the Acadia Recorder says: 'Much to the regret of his congregation, the Rev. Mr. Kempton has tendered his resignation as pastor, and although unexpected, as he has been in health for several months past. Dr. Kempton is a graduate of Acadia College, and a few years ago received the degree of D. D. from that institution. He has always manifested a keen interest in the work of the College and of the denomination. Dr. Kempton's ministry has been remarkable in that during his whole career he has only had two pastorate. His former charge was at Casard, Cornwallis, King's Co., where he was for 25 years. He has been in Dartmouth for nearly 14 years.'
