From one end of the Province to the other WENTZELL'S LIMITED is known as the "Big Store." It is known as a store having a big stock, a big variety, and giving big value—the only part that is small is the price.

WENTZELL'S LIMITED buy in the very largest quantities direct from sources of supply. Having ample capital, they pay cash, thus securing everything at the very best market price.

The policy of the "Big Store" is "large sales and small profits." This has built up a tremendous business, nothing like it east of Montreal. That's the reason why the "Big Store" prices are always so reasonable, and why you can keep down the cost of living if you trade here.

Heart of a Hundred Sorrows.

O heart of a hundred sorrows
Whose pity is great therefore,
The gift that the children bring thee
Is ever a sorrow more.

Sure of thy dear compassion,
Concerned for our own relief,
We bring thee our gift of grief,
And each with his gift of grief.

Oh, not to improve my lot,
Yet I, who am less than less,
Would bring thee joy of being,
The true of my happiness.

The spirit that makes you kinder,
The goodness without alloy,
O heart of a hundred sorrows,
Bring thee a little joy.

An Easter Offering.

BY MARY E. MITCHELL.

"Shoo! Shoo! Shoo!" Miss Brown's calico apron flapped in unison with the command. "Shoo, you noisy things, shoo!"

Intimidated by the apron, the hens retreated into the shed. Miss Brown closed the door with a bang.

"Land of liberty!" she exclaimed, as she went into the house. "I don't believe them thirty orphans next door are any more trouble than hens. If it ain't scratching up other people's gardens, it's not laying, and if it ain't not laying, it's bound crops. It seems as if they was possessed."

There was an air of abstraction about Miss Brown that night as she ate her solitary supper. She put things in wrong places, spilled the dish water, and was brought to her senses only when she made a futile attempt to wring out the dish pan. This last act of absent-mindedness mortified her so much that she gathered her faculties and finished her work without further mishap. Then she took her knitting and sat down by the stove, but her work soon sank unheeded to her lap.

"I must say the minister is wrong for once," Miss Brown said to herself. "It was all very well for him to say in his sermon yesterday that nobody's too poor to make an Easter offering, when he looked right down on Mrs. Joseph J. Turner, who rides in her own carriage, or even on Betty Sills, who makes seventy-five cents a day sewing, and victuals thrown in. But how can I expect to give when I ain't got one extra cent! What with the rent due and my having to get new shoes, I can't lay my finger on a penny. I am afraid of getting a mortal illness with my soles all wet through, and it is my Christian duty to keep well and off the town. There ain't a thing I can call my own but the hens and bossy, and they are meat and drink to me."

At half past eight she rolled up her work and put the reluctant cat down the cellar stairs. As she did so, a thought came to her.

"There's eggs!" she exclaimed aloud. "I can't spare 'em! I never had 'em here, almost defiantly. 'I'm taking the very best out of my mouth.'"

The next morning she counted her eggs carefully.

"I ain't got anything to dye 'em with," she remarked. "However, I reckon I could fix them up pretty. But there, it ain't to be thought of!"

As Miss Brown sat at her lonely breakfast her eyes wandered across the muddy yard to the bare brick orphan asylum. "I don't suppose there's much Easter comes into them young ones' lives," she thought. "They are awful hateful sometimes, but even if they are, I suppose I could spare one laying for 'em."

Some weeks later, the day before Easter, Miss Brown counted a pile of eggs that had been laid aside in a wooden bucket.

"Twenty-eight, twenty-nine, and this little hantam for the baby!" she exclaimed triumphantly. "I don't suppose the minister would call it much of an offering, but it's the best I can do."

More than once during those days of saving Miss Brown's heart had almost failed her. Then, too, the orphans had been unusually exasperating. "They chased her hens, teased the cow, and when Miss Brown remonstrated, Bobby White had made faces at her."

She had risen early this Saturday morning to blow the eggs. "I wish I had some pretty dyes," she said, as she viewed the heap of carefully blown shells. "Not one crack in the whole thirty, and a bowl of yellow yolks and a bowl of clear whites on the dresser."

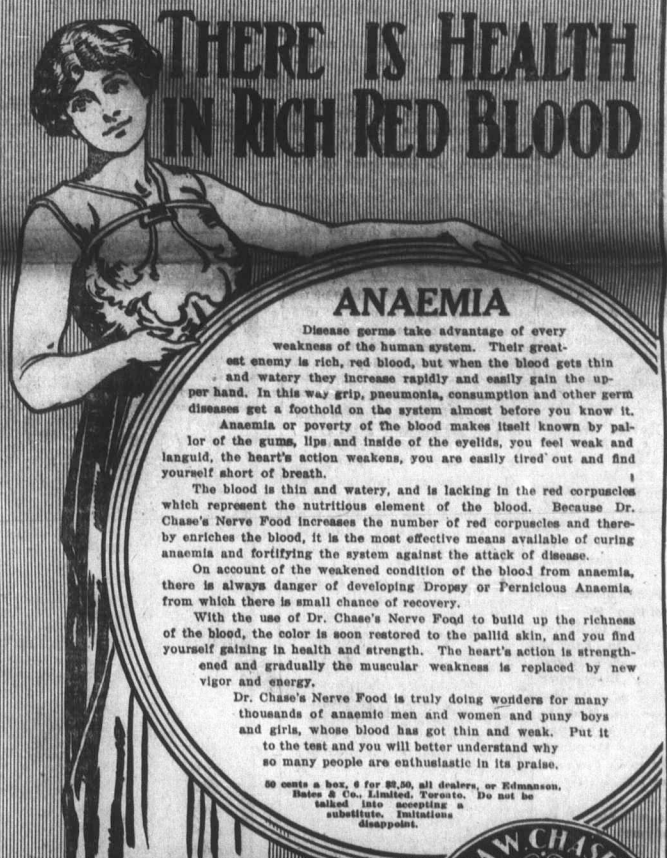

"Land! she exclaimed suddenly. "Why didn't I think of that before?" She climbed to the attic, and returned with a box of colored papers. "I never knew what I was saving 'em for," she remarked to herself. "But they'll come in handy now."

With eager, clumsy fingers she cut out crooked crosses, wavy crowns, ill-balanced stars and misshapen circles, and pasted them on the smooth shells. Then she drew through each egg a long piece of red worsted, secured at one end by a knot, and tied in a loop at the top. No two eggs were decorated alike.

She was very happy over her work, and she sang little snatches of hymns as she snipped and pasted and tied.

"Mrs. Turner wouldn't think much of 'em," she thought. "But dollars

THERE IS HEALTH IN RICH RED BLOOD

ANAEMIA

Disease germs take advantage of every weakness of the human system. Their greatest enemy is rich, red blood, but when the blood gets thin and watery they increase rapidly and easily gain the upper hand. In this way grip, pneumonia, consumption and other germ diseases get a foothold on the system almost before you know it.

Anemia or poverty of the blood makes itself known by pallor of the gums, lips and inside of the eyelids, you feel weak and languid, the heart's action weakens, you are easily tired out and find yourself short of breath.

The blood is thin and watery, and is lacking in the red corpuscles which represent the nutritious element of the blood. Because Dr. Chase's Nerve Food increases the number of red corpuscles and thereby enriches the blood, it is the most effective means available of curing anemia and fortifying the system against the attack of disease.

On account of the weakened condition of the blood from anemia, there is always danger of developing Dropsy or Pernicious Anemia, from which there is small chance of recovery.

With the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to build up the richness of the blood, the color is soon restored to the pallid skin, and you find yourself gaining in health and strength. The heart's action is strengthened and gradually the muscular weakness is replaced by new vigor and energy.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is truly doing wonders for many thousands of anemic men and women and puny boys and girls, whose blood has got thin and weak. Put it to the test and you will better understand why so many people are enthusiastic in its praise.

50 cents a box, $ for $2.50, all dealers, or Edmanston, Boston & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations cheap.

Don't Whine.

A recent number of Medical Talk has an article on the physical effects of "whining." Complaints, says the writer, are usually made in a minor key. This monotony raps the vocal chords, taxes nasal nerves and muscle that should not be brought into play at all in speaking, and tends to shallow, uneven breathing. The whiner, too, is also without exception a more or less idle, lazy person. The habit of whining itself tends to sap initiative impulse and increases phlegmatic tendencies. Habitual whining, not healthy, vigorous self-feeding, but fault really exists, but the helpless, futile complaining of a narrow nature too indolent to make any effort to right the causes of complaint, has definitely deleterious physical effect on the whole constitution. Add to this the fact that certain fault finding is more than likely to wear out the weakest friendship, and take the light from the lover's countenance, and the fall effects of this insidious and prevalent habit will be better appreciated.

"Get the whine out of your voice or it will sap development and growth of your body. It will narrow and slack your mind. It will drive away your friends; it will make you unpopular. Quit your whining; brace up; go to work; be something; stand for something; fill your place in the universe. Instead of whining around, exciting only pity and contempt, face about and make something of yourself. Reach up to the stature of a strong, ennobling manhood, to the beauty and strength of a superb womanhood. There is nothing the matter with you. Just quit whining and go to work."

At a British recruiting meeting recently the speaker, having got his audience in a high state of enthusiasm by telling them of the many brave deeds performed by our soldiers in France, suddenly espied a big, strong built man at the back of the hall. "My man," he cried, "How is it that you are not at the front?"

"Oh, it is all right," replied the burly yokel; "I can hear every word you say from here."

The Parcel Post.

The parcel post has made its usefulness felt in many ways, unexpected as well as foreseen. But the English parcel post does one surprising thing that has not yet been introduced into our own system.

An Englishman wished to reach a customer living in a remote part of Balham, one of the suburbs of London, and it was necessary that he find him quickly. Knowing nothing of the district, he called at the general post office at St. Martin's-le Grand, to consult a directory. On explaining his case to a clerk, he was amazed to learn that he could be sent to the address by parcel post by paying a fee of three pence a mile.

The gentleman had never heard of such a thing, and it is said that very few persons in England know that it can be done. He was placed in charge of a messenger who was familiar with all parts of the city, and was soon on his way. The boy carried a printed slip on which was written a description of the "parcel" in charge, under the heading, "Article required to be delivered," and before leaving the customer's house both the customer and the gentleman had to put their signatures on the paper. The limit in weight for anything delivered by parcel post in England is generally understood to be eleven pounds, but there is one clause that reads, "A person may be conducted by express messenger to any address on payment of the mileage fee."

Paralyzed Limbs.

To day it is sleepiness, headaches, digestive trouble, and irritability, of which you know some form of paralysis has developed. Mr. Alex. Houshager, 10 Moore street, St. Catharines, Ont., writes: "Nervous trouble developed into paralysis of the limbs so that I became helpless. Doctors failed me, but after using ten boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I resumed work, and now feel better than I did for 20 years."

To the village clergyman's house there came one day a bonny baby boy. Kind neighbors and members of his flock hastily gathered together a few dollars and presented the money to the proud but poor father.

So great was his gratitude that he decided to thank his congregation the following Sunday before beginning his sermon, and this was what the wondering congregation heard:

"Friends, I want to express my keen appreciation and gratitude for the timely little sum of that came to my house yesterday.

"Blessings—How do you like my new hat?"

"Caroline—I think it is charming. I had one just like it last year."

AN IDEAL TONIC

When your head is dull and heavy, your tongue furred, and you feel done-up and good for nothing, without knowing what is really the matter with you, probably all that is needed to restore you to health and vigor is a few doses of a reliable digestive tonic and stomachic remedy such as Mother Seigel's Syrup. Take it after each meal for a few days and note how beneficial is its action upon the stomach, liver and bowels—how it restores tone and healthy activity to these important organs; and by so doing enables you to gain new stores of vigor, vitality and health.

An Easter Party.

The pleasure of an Easter party for children can be made to begin when the small guests receive their invitations.

Inclose with each invitation a bow of ribbon with the request that the recipient wear it at the party. Let each guest have his or her particular ribbon, differing from all the others in shade or pattern.

Arrange the table with all the colors of the rainbow. Give each guest a napkin that matches his or her bow, and from the chandelier, lead a corresponding ribbon to the place he or she is to occupy. After luncheon comes the surprise. In every mook and corner, suspended from the walls, and placed on chairs, tables, sideboard, and in every available and easily reached place are favors—Easter eggs, rabbits, birds and chickens, nests with tiny eggs, candy boxes in odd forms, each tied with a ribbon that matches the bow of the guest for whom it is intended.

The hunt begins at a given signal. When all have found their Easter gifts and it is time to go home, the hostess distributes colored paper horns filled with tiny eggs.

Letter from Mr. I. B. Oakes

To the Editor of THE ACADIAN:
DEAR SIR:—The undersigned submits the enclosed reply to Mr. Beckwith's open letter in THE ACADIAN of last week.
I. B. OAKES.
Wolfville, April 18th, 1916.

H. M. BECKWITH, Esq., Canning.
DEAR SIR:—My attention has been directed to your open letter in the Advertiser of April 17th. You have addressed it to me as President of the Liberal Association instead of the Secretary. You of course know I have no right or authority to dictate to the Association how it shall vote on any resolution submitted for its consideration, or to answer for its action. I will, however, out of consideration for you, at the next meeting of the Association, call its attention to your communication for whatever action thereon it may choose to take. Would it not have been more regular and more just to yourself and the Association, had you given to the public along with your letter, a copy of the resolution on which you try to base your strictures?

In order that the public may properly estimate you and your letter, I submit a verbatim copy of this resolution contained in the press of last December.

"Resolved that the Liberal Association of Kings county hereby commands the action of its Executive Committee in promoting the appointment of additional magistrates pledged to try cases of those guilty of the illegal sale of intoxicating liquors, and is gratified that as a result many offenders within the county were convicted and fined during the year. As an Association we hereby pledge our efforts to secure, if possible, still more effective temperance legislation, and to our provincial representatives our continued support in any action they may take to this end."

The above contained two simple statements, (1) approval of successful efforts made to punish offenders (twenty in number) for the illegal sale of liquor; (second) pledging support to our provincial representatives in any action they may take to secure more effective temperance legislation.

This resolution has two and only two plainly stated objects in view: the one to commend and stimulate magistrates in their efforts to enforce temperance laws; the other, to encourage our provincial representatives to support improved temperance statutes, meaning by that, the impending bill to abolish the license system in Halifax city, and any other possible improvements.

You have taken the responsibility to condemn the action of the Liberal Association and to impeach its motives. With this and other matters in your letter referred to, with which I have nothing to do, it is not necessary for me to interfere. I regret you were not present at the December meeting of the Association. Permit me to suggest that you attend its next meeting.

Faithfully yours,
I. B. OAKES.

The War's Effect on Paint.

Every one is familiar with the abnormal conditions existing in the business world today, owing to the European conflict. Few lines of merchandise have been affected more than paint products.

Mr. L. W. Sleep, who has again made arrangements for placing Brandram-Henderson paints, varnishes and leads on the market in Wolfville, stated to THE ACADIAN that, while the paint markets had been greatly disturbed, with the exception of a few special colors, all supplies could now be obtained and offered at reasonable prices.

"While practically every one is interested in paint," said Mr. Sleep, "few realize that the raw materials for their manufacture come from the end of the world, and with the world wide war, many changes in the raw material market have come about."

"B-H" English Paint, said he, is our leading paint line. It is made on a pigment base of 70 per cent, white lead and 30 per cent, zinc oxide. Previous to the war, our white lead was manufactured from pig lead obtained from the smelter at Trail, B. C., and the zinc came from the zinc mines of Belgium and France; but this supply of zinc has now been cut off, and the lead from Trail is now used almost entirely for munitions, so that both zinc and lead products are now being imported from the United States.

"When one realizes that so many of the tinting colors come from the European countries—the siennas from Italy, the umbers from Turkey, and many chemicals for color making from Germany—one can appreciate the effort required in the paint industry to keep the Canadian Market supplied with paint of standard quality."

Alma Mater.

The oldest university
Was not on Ind's strand,
Nor in the valley of the Nile,
Nor on Arabia's sand;
From time's beginning it has taught
And still it teaches free
Its learning mild to every child—
The school of Mother's Knee.

The oldest school to teach the law,
And teach it deeply, too,
Dividing what should not be done
From what each one should do,
Was not in Rome or Ispahan,
Nor by the Buxine Sea;
It held its sway ere history's day—
The school of Mother's Knee.

The oldest seminary where Theology was taught
Where love to God, and reverent
prayer,
And the Eternal Ought
Were deep impressed on youthful hearts
In pure sincerity,
Came to the earth with Abel's birth
The school of Mother's Knee.

The oldest—and the newest, too—
It still maintains its place,
And from its classes, ever full,
It graduates the race,
Without its teaching where would all
The best of living be?
'Twas planned by Heaven this earth to leave—
The school of Mother's Knee.

morrow, if to-morrow ever becomes to-day.—Malbie D. Badcock.

Patriotism.

Canadians are loyal to the British Empire whose protection has made possible this young country's great development. Every intelligent, well informed elector knows that the liquor traffic weakens Empire power, degrades moral character, and is thus an effective ally of Great Britain's deadliest foe.

Patriotism and support of the liquor traffic cannot be reconciled. The awful curse cannot be maintained without lowering physical efficiency, trust manhood and all that makes Canada worth living for, working for and fighting for. Be true to your country by voting against drink!

Aside from the tragedies that the most careless observer must attribute to alcohol, there are hundreds of thousands of cases catalogued under the head of disease. An illustration is found in the following well-established fact: "It has been found that out of every one hundred alcoholics attacked by pneumonia seventy die, while out of every one hundred non-alcoholics attacked only twenty-three die. There is just one way of treating these tragedies that is more heartless than doing the ostrich act, and that is to make light of them. Sometimes the press is guilty of this sin, and will even joke over the spectacle of a Cabinet Minister, arrayed in evening dress, mounting the driver's seat of a hack, and drunkenly driving into a street car.—L. F. McKelister.

AFTER THE GRIPPE

Vital Restored Her Strength

Clinton, Miss.—"I am 75 years old and become very weak and feeble from the effects of La Grippe, but I feel like a new world of good. It has cured my cough, built up my strength so I feel active and well again."—Mrs. LIZZIE BALDWIN, Clinton, Miss.

The Church's Duty.

The function of the Church is not to urge or advocate any specific measure in regard to social reform. Her duty is to create an atmosphere in which the leaders of this country in the legislature and in the municipalities may find encouragement to engage in reforming the dire evils which exist.

First the Church must rouse the national conscience to the existence of these evils, and afterward to a sense of the nation's responsibility for dealing with them.

Second, the church must inculcate the necessary spirit of self-sacrifice without which it is impossible for a gigantic problem of this kind to be dealt with.

Third, the church must insist on the truth being told about these social wrongs. The Church ought to be like a lighthouse turned on the storm, to shame those in authority into doing something.

In cottages reeking with tuberculosis, dark, damp, wretched, dismal abodes, are men and women who neglect their church because they neglect them. No speedier way of reviving the wavering faith of the masses could be found than for the religious bodies to show that they are alive to the social evils which surround them.

It is not for the Church to drift along. Acts, not to enter into a political propaganda nor to support one particular measure or another, but to let her light shine on the conditions, expose them, drag them into the light of day, and when they come to be dealt with, let her, as the church of old, hand them over to the secular arm.

The church's duty is to stand by the side of the oppressed and the suffering, with folded arms and protesting zeal. "Am I my brother's keeper?"—Right Hon. David Lloyd George.

A Wonder Worker.

"It heals like magic," is favorite expression when Dr. Chase's Ointment is used. It works quickly, stops all itching at once and often heals in a single night. For eczema, salt rheum, barbers' itch, skin irritation or eruptions, it is a most satisfactory treatment. Being antiseptic, it prevents blood poisoning.

The showman was exhibiting a very small skull which he said was the headpiece of the great Oliver Cromwell.

"This skull is much too small to be the skull of a man," said one patron indignantly. "It can only be the skull of a little boy. You're a fraud!"

The showman did not lose his nerve at this, but retorted with dignity: "You are right, it is not the skull of a man, but that of Cromwell when he was a small lad."

I consider Minard's Liniment the Best Liniment in use.

I got my foot badly jammed lately I bathed it well with Minard's Liniment, and it was as well as ever next day.

Yours very truly,
T. G. McMillen.

GIANTS' WAR IN ALPS

Italian Alpine and Tyrolean in Terrible Combat

A Swiss editor who was called to the colors and is attached to one of the regiments guarding the Austrian and Italian frontiers, writes: "From our lofty positions in the neighborhood of the Stalvio Pass we daily can watch the bloody battles of the Austro-Hungarian and Italian troops. The Italian artillery does admirable work, but its shells often fall across the border and explode dangerously close to our observation posts. The combatants between the Italians and Austrians are terrible. Recently the Italian gunners succeeded in throwing four shells into the camp of the Austrians, which was literally blown to pieces. Two days later the Austrians took their revenge. They brought up thirty large guns and began a terrific bombardment. At two hours they were nothing left of the Italian batteries. On the same day we witnessed a terrific infantry battle. Two hundred Italian Alpini attacked an advanced Austrian position which was held by only twelve Tyrolean sharpshooters. The Tyroleans calmly waited until the Italians approached their trench and then fired. Every third Italian bullet took effect and within ten minutes, more than sixty dead or wounded Alpini lay on the ground. The rest of the Italian detachment had to turn back.

"The Alpini are the most daring mountain climbers in the world and reckless fighters, but as marksmen they are no match for the long, deliberate Tyrolean snipers and sharpshooters, who never fire a shot without careful aim and are always sure to hit their man."

Clergyman Rites Fast

The Rev. Frank Edwards, a Wesleyan minister at Hull, enlisted early in the war as a private in the Royal Fusiliers. In a month he got his corporal's stripes, and two months later was promoted sergeant. He was a most efficient soldier. Distinguishing himself at the Hythe School of Musketry, he was given a commission as lieutenant, and has been made captain.

If a boy of ordinary intelligence is not sufficiently educated at sixteen to commence regimental work, then his schoolmaster cannot have done his duty.—Major-General Alexander Bruce.

Farmers Growing Food at Home.

The growing of a greater number of kinds of crop is being suggested as a saving move for the farmer who has done much harm to his land by growing one kind of crop for years in succession. This diversified farming plan must be considered carefully and not followed too closely.

A man is perfectly justified in making a specialty of any crop that is best suited to his soil, and the requirements of the market with which he is in closest touch, but judgment should be used with regard to rotation, so that fertility can be maintained at least cost for manure and labor.

With stock raising becoming generally popular, there is some danger that crops other than those for feed will be neglected by many farmers even to the extent of failure to provide food for home consumption. This condition must not be allowed to become possible, because there is always a danger of a failure of certain staple crops in those districts that are given up almost entirely to some specialty, and as a result a general scarcity of a certain commodity.

The potato crop of the country for instance, would be much better assured if every farmer would make it his practice to grow enough of this food for his own use and incidentally a surplus for local consumption. This means not only would local crop failures not be so intensely felt, but the expense of transportation would be greatly reduced. To accomplish this purpose of supplying home and local needs, no break in the regular stock farm need be made, nor need there be any extra expenditure for fertilizers or labor on the individual farms so employed. Special farming that necessitates the purchasing and shipment of manure is not an economic except in favorable circumstances, such as those for tender fruit growing, because all the necessities and a good many of the luxuries can be grown on almost any farm if some pains are taken.

An old black servant was dusting a drawing-room when she came to a small broeze bust of Shakespeare. "Miss Juliet, child," she said to her young mistress, who happened to be in the room, "who am de yere gentleman?" "This is Shakespeare, a wonderful poet, who died centuries ago." "Dat him, miss? I's done hyes o' Mistab Shakespeare a lot ob times. Ever'body seems to know him. Did I doo' hys act, much 'bout him, dat I alse thought he was a white gentleman?"

FINISHING BIG GUNS IN BRITISH PLANTS

Britain in Forefront in Inventing the Wire Gun—Wonderful Processes Described

When quite cool after the boring and the tempering of the metal the embryo gun is subjected to a second boring. Its outer tube for the next two tubes is fixed permanently to the inner tube in a most interesting position. This latter is placed upright into a pit made for the purpose, and over it is dropped the outer tube, taken from the furnace and blue heat the two uniting by the shrinkage set up by cooling. To ensure, as far as possible, it is measured before the wire gun is started, and the important operation will turn out an unqualified success, the bore is measured to the infinitesimal part of an inch. A little grit in the outer tube may ruin all, but even when all conditions have been faithfully complied with, something may still go wrong to spoil the gun. Perhaps, through some inequality in the cooling process, the ends of the two tubes may not meet before the riddle part has definitely left the expansion stage, with results which may well be guessed. It is a matter of the value of the parts as a heating agency enters. Unless required contraction is assured, the gun will be a failure. The wire gun is a simple one, or, worse still, be passed and certified only to see up a fatal defect when put to actual use.

Rifled to Get Accuracy

By this time a multiplicity of operations have been passed through, yet the new gun is still rough to the touch. The rifling, or the cutting of the grooves, has to be performed, and the surface of the gun is smoothed. The latter to produce a faultless surface. Of course, the rifling process, which gives the gun its accuracy, is attended to in the most careful manner. The rifling is done by a machine which has been specially designed for the purpose. The rifling is done by a machine which has been specially designed for the purpose. The rifling is done by a machine which has been specially designed for the purpose.

How to avoid Operations

These Three Women Tell How They Escaped the Dreadful Ordeal of Surgical Operations.

Hospitals are great and necessary institutions, but they should be the last resort for women who suffer with ills peculiar to their sex. Many letters on file in the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., prove that a great number of women after they have been recommended to submit to an operation have been made well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Here are three such letters. All sick women should read them.

Martha, Wis.—"I went to the doctor and he told me I must have an operation for a female trouble, and I hated to have it done as I had been married only a short time. I would have terrible pains and my hands and feet were cold all the time. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and was cured, and I feel better in every way. I give you permission to publish my name because I am so thankful that I got well again."—Mrs. Fazo Dwyer, Marinette, Wis.

Detroit, Mich.—"When I first took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was so run down with female troubles that I could not do anything, and my doctor said I would have to undergo an operation. I could hardly walk without help when I read about the Vegetable Compound and what it had done for others I thought I would try it. I got a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and a package of Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and used them according to directions. They helped me and today I am able to do all my work and I am well."—Mrs. Thos. Dwyer, 969 Milwaukee Ave., East, Detroit, Mich.

Bellevue, Pa.—"I suffered more than tongue can tell with terrible bearing down pains and inflammation. I tried several doctors and all told me the same story, that I never could get well without an operation and I just dreaded the thought of that. I also tried a good many other medicines that were recommended to me and none of them helped me until a friend advised me to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. The first bottle helped, I kept taking it and now I don't know what it is to be sick any more and I am picking up in weight. I am 30 years old and weigh 145 pounds. It will be the greatest pleasure to me if I can have the opportunity to recommend it to any other suffering woman."—Miss LUELL FROELICHER, 1923 Manhattan St., North Side, Bellevue, Pa.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

Precocious Offspring—Pa. may I ask just one more question? Patient Pat—Yes, my son, just one more.

Offspring—Well, then, pa, how is it that the night falls, but its the day that breaks?

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

The man in the barber's chair squirmed so uneasily under the razor that the manipulator of the blade felt moved to cease ere long.

"Does it hurt, Mr. Sandford?" "Well," replied the defenceless victim, "that depends; if you're slicing me, it doesn't; but if you are shaving me, it does."

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

Sentry—Hull! Who goes there? Voice—Chaplain.

Sentry—Pass, Charlie; all's well.
