WOLFVILLE BASEBALL LEAGUE

Opening Games Won by East End and Centre Teams

The first game of the Wolfville Baseball League was played last Friday evening when the East End boys succeeded in defeating the West Enders by the score of 6 to 0. Despite the score the game was closely contested, the East End team getting five of their runs in the fifth innings. Howatt pitched for the West End, striking out eight men and allowing ten hits; while Munro for the East End allowed only four hits and struck out nine.

In the first innings Murray and Howatt reached first base on singles, Johnson struck out, and Elderkin reached first on an error, filling the bases. A run seemed certain, but Murray was put out when forced home by Corey, and McLean struck out. For the East End C. Munro and Patriquin singled, Gould sacrificed and brought in Munro for the first score. Kenney struck out and Harrington was out at first.

In the second Munro struck out three men in succession. He then batted first for the East End and took first on a single. Cohen fled to Spencer. Evans singled, but the next two men up struck out. Murray again started the batting for the West End and took first on a single to centre field. Howatt hit a grounder to Cohen who caught Murray at second, Howatt being safe at first on an error but was caught trying to steal third. Burgess struck out. The first two men up for the East End struck out and Kenney was out at first.

In the fourth Elderkin took first on a single to centre field. Corey fled to Munro who caught Elderkin at first. McLean walked but was out stealing third. Harrington struck out. D. Munro hit a grounder to Howatt and was out at first. Cohen reached first but was out stealing second.

Burgess opened the fifth with a fly to Evans. Hansford struck out. Spencer reached first on an error and Murray walked. Howatt got a nice hit to centre field but Spencer was out sliding home. The East Enders then went to bat and piled up five runs. Evans reached first on an error and second on an overthrow. G. Murray was out at first. C. Munro took first and Evans advanced to third. Patriquin singled and Evans was caught napping at third. Gould then got a long hit and took three bases, bringing home Patriquin and Munro. Kenney singled and brought in Gould. Harrington reached first on an error. D. Munro then hit out a three-bagger and brought in two more runs. Cohen fled to Spencer. The innings ended with the score of 6 to 0.

The game finished without further scoring. In the sixth Elderkin struck out and Johnson and Corey each fled to Evans. The first two men up for the East End struck out. C. Munro reached first on an error, but Patriquin was out at first.

In the seventh McLean took first on an error. Burgess fled to Evans and McLean was caught napping at first. Hansford struck out. The game was then called on account of darkness. The teams were as follows: West End—Murray, p; Howatt, p; Johnson, 3b; Elderkin, cf; Corey, 2b; McKean, rf; Burgess, ss; Hansford, lf; Spencer, lb.

East End—C. Munro, c; Patriquin, 1b; Gould, 3b; Kenney, ss; Harrington, cf; D. Munro, p; Cohen, 2b; Evans, rf; G. Murray, lf.

The second game in the series was played on Tuesday evening when the West Enders lost to the Centre team, the score being 9 to 3. As in the first game the scoring was mostly done in one inning, the Centres scoring six in the fifth. Ritchie pitched for this team and allowed only six hits and struck out nine. Murray pitched for the West End, allowing thirteen hits and striking out four.

The West End went to bat first but were unable to score. Murray was called out when he was struck by a hit ball. Outhouse nit a grounder and was out at first. Williams nit a grounder through short stop. Leighton struck out. The Centre's lead better. Dick hit to Burgess and Rudolph struck out. Angus reached first on an error and Bartheaux nit a mighty wallop out to left field scoring a home run and bringing in Angus. Rand was out at first.

In the second innings Boggs struck out. Burgess hit to centre field and took second base. Spencer struck out and Elderkin hit to Rudolph. Johnson and Regan were out at first. Ritchie singled and Baird was struck out.

In the third Corey struck out and Murray and Outhouse each hit to Dick. The Centres again got away in this inning. Dick hit a hot grounder to Boggs and was out at first. Rudolph singled and took first on an error. Angus was out at first and Rudolph advanced to third. Bartheaux then hit another long drive to centre field and took second base, bringing home Rudolph. Rand was safe at first but Bartheaux was caught playing off third.

The fourth inning was scoreless. Williams hit to Regan. Leighton singled to left field and stole second on an error, but was caught napping. Boggs struck out. Johnson struck out. Regan hit to Burgess. Ritchie walked. Baird hit to Outhouse.

The West Enders opened their scoring in the fifth, after Burgess and Spencer had struck out. Elderkin was safe at first. Corey singled and Elderkin stole second and from there around home on errors. Corey was caught napping at first. Then the Centre team started scoring. Dick hit to Boggs. Rudolph and Angus singled and scored when Bartheaux hit his third long drive and reached third. Rand singled and brought home Bartheaux. Johnson reached first and Regan singled and brought in two more runs. Ritchie took first. Baird struck out. Dick singled and brought home Regan. Rudolph hit to Elderkin.

BETTER ENGLISH

Enthusiastic Gathering Attends Opening of Miss Archibald's Classes. Carnegie Science Hall on Monday evening last was the scene of a most enthusiastic gathering of men and women, who came from Coldbrook, Kentville, Cambridge, Wolfville and Port Williams to attend the first meeting of the Society for the Betterment of Spoken English. This course will continue for five weeks, four evenings each week.

It is indeed fortunate for Wolfville that Miss Archibald is so loyal to her native town and is giving the town's people the benefit of her wonderful teaching ability. This is the beginning of circles which Miss Archibald expects to establish all over Canada. She intends issuing certificates to members completing the course in each group which will later be replaced by one bearing the King's own signature. "We are the keepers of the King's English" is the motto to be used.

After the rendering of a number of pleasing selections on the grounds by a youthful orchestra consisting of Theims, Tretheway, Gertrude Phinney, and Elizabeth Ford, Mayor Chambers in the capacity of chairman introduced the speaker.

Miss Archibald in a most inspiring and eloquent address explained her motives in starting the society and gave the audience a glimpse of what she intends to accomplish. She then proceeded with the first lesson which was made so lucid that a child might grasp it, yet so scientific that the best informed must profit.

Rev. R. F. Dixon, Mayor Chambers, Rev. Col. J. H. Macdonald, O. B. E., and Rev. A. N. Marshall, D.D., spoke very fittingly and paid high tribute to the movement. Bernice and Eleanor Cohoon, Queenie McLean, and Marion Eaton acted as ushers.

A feature of the course that appeals to all is the Question Box. Here are a few of the questions sent in to be discussed and answered at the next meeting.

"Does the cake come out of the oven 'good' or 'well'?" "Should we say, 'Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive them or those'?" "Is there any justification for answering the Nova Scotian expression, 'How are you today?' by 'I am nicely, thank you'?"

The correct pronunciation of interesting, schedule, advertisement, out, about. In the possessive case why do we write Moses' but St. James's?

Will you deal with the expression involving the verb 'got'?

Can you explain why so many say "Like I did," etc.? Is there any authority for using "like" as a conjunction?

The full attendance on Tuesday night at the second meeting and the rapt and intelligent attention paid to the subject under discussion of the verbs "shall" and "will" proved, not only the effectiveness of the method but also the high mental calibre of the class which promises to grow nightly.

Miss Archibald has already started a correspondence course.

The service at St. Andrew's church last Sunday morning was of an especially interesting character. There was a large congregation of worshippers present and at the close the sacrament of the Lord's Supper was observed. Nine young girls of the united congregation were received into full membership, four of whom received the rite of baptism at the hands of the minister, Rev. Dr. Hemmeon, who gave an interesting and helpful address to the young people on "The Arithmetic of the Bible".

The game was ended with the West End's half of the sixth when they scored two runs. Murray walked. Outhouse hit through third and reached second. Williams hit to right field and brought in two runs. Leighton was out at first. Boggs walked and Burgess and Spencer were struck out.

The teams were as follows: West End—Murray, p; Outhouse, 3b; Williams, 1b; Leighton, c; Boggs, 2b; Burgess, ss; Spencer, lf; Elderkin, cf; Corey, rf.

The next game of the series will be played tomorrow evening between the East End and Centre. This will be a good game as both teams are determined to take the lead.

FILM REVEALS STAGE SECRETS

The inside story of stage life—that glamorous realm of which so little is known to the general public and which possesses a powerful appeal for them—is revealed in a fascinating manner in "Chastity", a First National picture produced by B. P. Schulberg and directed by Victor Schertzinger, which is coming on Monday and Tuesday to the Orpheum Theatre. Katherine MacDonald is the star of this picture, which was adapted from the famous novel by Ernest Pascal.

"My husband and I wish to express our warm appreciation of the beautiful cake recently received for our silver wedding anniversary.

"The cake was greatly admired by every one here and should bring many more orders to your famous firm. Here's hoping for a large increase in your business and success in your cake making especially.

Mr. and MRS. ALVIN SMITH, Shelburne.

"P. S. Such a cake as yours was never seen here before. At least that was the general remark. Being an Old Country woman I have had a chance to observe many cakes in London and elsewhere.

Hon. Charles Dunning, Premier of Saskatchewan, is today receiving the honor of an official municipal reception in his native city of Leicestershire, England. Dunning left Leicester 20 years ago and arrived in Canada with little more than the proverbial dollar.

GOVERNMENT WHARF IMPROVEMENTS

Cars May Now be Loaded or Shipped at This Port.

Conditions at the government wharf have been greatly improved of late. In company with Mr. H. D'Almaine, who has shown considerable interest in the work done, we visited the wharf one day recently and were much pleased with what we found.

Mr. J. L. Franklin, who for a good many years has had the wharf in charge, has just laid out a small grant from the government to very good advantage. The approach has been widened and now affords ample accommodation for teams and cars. The east end of the wharf has been raised and newly planked and affords excellent opportunity for loading and unloading cars and other heavy freight. By cutting an ample opening in the side of the shed a sufficient drive-way is provided and cars may now be easily and safely transported.

Heretofore it has been necessary, owing to lack of proper accommodation here, for motorists to drive to and from Kingsport, that being the only point on this side of the basin at which cars might be shipped or received by the Minus Basin steamer. Now the accommodation here is equal to that at either Kingsport or Parrsboro and Mr. Franklin deserves community thanks for the painstaking efforts which he has expended upon the work.

The new arrangement will be a great advantage to tourists and others who patronize the "Prince Albert" in transporting their cars, and we predict a very large increase in business when the fact of the change becomes better known.

DR. PAUL R. TINGLEY

Wolfville Boy Receives Medical Degree from Edinburgh University

Paul R. Tingley, a Wolfville boy, received his degree in medicine from Edinburgh University on Wednesday of last week, and will continue his work there in the surgical wards of the Royal Edinburgh Infirmary, in which he has been offered a residency.

Mr. Tingley, who is a son of the late Capt. J. B. Tingley, entered Acadia University upon the completion of his High School courses here. Early in 1916 he enlisted. He was then only eighteen years of age and a Junior in college. He was overseas three years, first with the Dalhousie Medical Unit and later with the British Air Force, in which he rose to the rank of Instructor. At the close of the war he returned to Acadia, from which he received his B. A. in 1920 and his M. A. the following year. In the spring of 1921 he left for Edinburgh, entering the second year of the Medical course. During the vacations he has done surgical work in hospitals and has taken special medical courses in Paris and other places.

While residing in Wolfville Mr. Tingley took an active interest in such organizations as the Boy Scouts and took part in many sporting activities, being a star player on the Acadia hockey and football teams during all his college career. He was also football coach the year after he graduated.

He has kept up this record since arriving at Edinburgh and made the First Rugby Team, for which he won the distinction of the Edinburgh University Blue, and on which he played in France and Ireland.

During the past week Dr. Tingley has been with his brother Mr. Harold Tingley, Lieutenant Navigator on H. M. S. Snapper, which is now in home waters.

His Wolfville friends are hoping that Dr. Tingley may later decide to take up the practice of his profession in his native town.

WOLFVILLE DEFEATS MIDDLETON

Locals Scored Easy Win Over Last Years Champions Yesterday

The Wolfville baseball team got back at Middleton yesterday on their own grounds, when they easily defeated them by the score of 5 to 0. Both teams were weaker than in their previous contest and errors were numerous on the part of the Middleton players. The locals played fine ball and made only two errors. Munro pitched an air-tight game, allowing only one hit, and striking out eleven men. Coleman pitched for Middleton, striking out seven and allowing eight hits. The feature of the game was the splendid work of Elderkin in the field. He had two assists and four put-outs to his credit.

Bartheaux scored in the first inning on a two-bagger by Leighton. Bartheaux again scored in the third on errors. Eagles also added two runs in the fourth and seventh innings. The fifth run was made by Murray in the sixth. No player on the Middleton team reached second base.

The teams were as follows: Wolfville—Murray, 2b; Bartheaux, ss; Kenney, cf; Leighton, 3b; Dick, lf; Eagles, lb; Elderkin, rf; C. Munro, c; D. Munro, p.

Middleton—Andrews, 1b; Langeille, 3b; Bentley, 2b; Carter, c; Baker, ss; Parsons, cf; Chesley, rf; Kelley, lf; Coleman, p.

Umpires—Richardson and Baird.

THE SIDEWALK WORK

To the Editor of THE ACADIAN.

Dear Sir,—A few words may explain our position regarding the foundation being placed under the concrete sidewalks and concerning which an inquiry was made in the last issue of THE ACADIAN. We are excavating 12 inches in depth and putting in 6 inches of rock. The rock, of course, is placed to provide spaces through the foundation for drainage. The soil, to a depth of 6 or 8 inches, contained more or less clay or loam which had to be removed. It hardly could be said positively that the soil at that depth would not heave under frost action. The rock is a safeguard. We could hardly put in less than we did to be of any service. It does not add greatly to the cost. The rock, in place, costs about 35c. per square yard. The extra material removed has been used for building up other sidewalks which otherwise would have been brought from some gravel pit.

Excavation already made on the south side shows sand at not less than 12 inches at some points. With the surface water draining towards the sidewalk from the adjoining properties it would hardly be apt to leave the rock out. We could provide drainage by putting in a few inches of coarse gravel under the concrete and placing drain tile along the south side, but it would not mean much difference in the cost.

All information possible will gladly be given to anyone making inquiry, but one can hardly be expected to reply to anonymous communications.

Editorial

Our pulpits are our work clothes. Each of us live some kind of a sermon every day.

REFORMING THE SENATE

After fifty-seven years' operation of our federal constitution, and with full recognition of the very material progress which has been made during that time, it will be admitted by every honest student of Canadian affairs that in common with every other country we are confronted today with problems of readjustment and reform that demand the best attention that can be given them.

Perhaps the most serious problem in regard to our constitution relates to the Senate. Its reform has long been advocated and even its abolition has been suggested. Some members of that body have declared themselves as not content with the Senate as now constituted. It is evident, however, in the matter of Senate reform that we must wait until the difference between what is and what ought to be has been made so apparent as to make obvious the advantage of moving away from one and towards the other. Although many of the provinces of the Dominion have wisely limited their legislative powers to one chamber and amply demonstrated the uselessness of a second chamber when applied to provincial or municipal affairs, it may be safely argued, we think, that the Parliament of Canada has need of such an institution. Upon those who advocate abolition, who contend that the best way to mend the Senate is to end it, rests the burden of proving, in the face of history, that a single chambered national legislature can be safely entrusted with an untrammelled power to make laws.

T. A. Patrick, of Yorkton, Sask., has recently published an interesting booklet which deals with the question in a practical manner. It is entitled "Our Senate Problem and its Solution" and contains a message worthy of careful consideration. The writer reviews the whole question in a manner which indicates his familiarity with our national conditions. His solution of the problem of the Senate suggests the abolition of the present chamber and the establishment in its stead of a real federal Senate, in which each province, however small, shall have equal representation with every other, however large. The selection or election of the Senators would be for a fixed term of eight years to be determined by each province for itself, by quotas of one half the whole number every four years, the filling of vacancies to be made by the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council.

Because of the patronage which the present system of appointment provides, Mr. Patrick does not expect that the Dominion Government will of its own motion move in this manner of reforming the Senate, nor is it probable that the Senate, as at present constituted, make an effort to relieve the nation of the incubus. Both have justification for not seeking to foist on the provinces rights which have never been claimed or asserted. Neither Ontario or Quebec can be expected to take the initiative. It is suggested that each under-privileged province should demand for itself the right to representation co-equal with all other provinces in the Senate by Senators of its own choice, and when a majority of the provinces have taken such action they should together move on Ottawa and Westminster.

BOOSTING

Boosting is the cheapest commodity on the market. And yet it does more actual good for the individual and the community than the expenditure of thousands of dollars.

Some people are natural born boosters. Others have to cultivate the art. But whatever it takes, it is certainly worth the effort. Boosting doesn't consist simply of talk. The real booster has also to be a "doer". Your booster is the fellow who is back of the civic program. He is the man who attends mass meetings, reads this paper and otherwise keeps himself informed on what is going on. The booster is slow to criticize. There are plenty of things with which he is not in hearty accord. But he takes the time and pains to equip himself with the facts before he starts talking.

The booster knows there are two sides to every question. And he knows the other fellow may be right at least part of the time. For that reason he tries to get the mass perspective on any question which concerns others besides himself. He is forever asking himself the question: Will this thing react for the general good of the most?

The smallest individual in the community is the man who, for various reasons is forced to live on in a place about which he hasn't one good thing to say. The fellow who is forever making disparaging comments about his city and neighbors is not a very valuable citizen, any way one looks at it.

But the booster never overlooks a chance to cast a vote in civic, provincial and national elections.

ONE CURE FOR HARD TIMES

The prevalence of higher prices during the last years of the war and since had the quite natural effect of making money more plentiful while not tending to minimize the difficulty of financing either private or public affairs. One of the results was that people contracted expensive and extravagant habits that make it very hard to return to normal conditions. The present mode of living, however, has demonstrated one useful lesson—that a dollar properly invested is not lost but is pretty sure to return. "Hard times" are often produced by the undue hoarding of money which ought to be kept in circulation, while a wise policy of expenditures makes for good business conditions and all round prosperity.

This is particularly true when applied to the payment of bills. Every business man has upon his books overdue accounts which if paid would put him in a position to square himself with those to whom he is indebted and in most cases the money if paid in would be so applied. It should be remembered that the real purpose of money is to provide a medium for the exchange of commodities and not to be hoarded under lock and key and thus prevented from functioning in the manner for which it was devised.

TOURIST INFORMATION BUREAU

One of the best of the Board of Trade's operations during recent years is the establishment of a tourist information bureau, which if properly conducted cannot fail to prove a most useful institution to summer visitors. Hitherto it has been extremely difficult often for these to secure anything like trustworthy information regarding the accommodation that might be obtained in the vicinity or reliable facts regarding historical facts or points of local interest. In many cases those who were engaged to act as guides were altogether unfitted to furnish accurate data while gross misrepresentations on the part of some of these were not uncommon. At the information bureau all that the visitor may desire to know will be provided. There will be no attempt to further the interest of any particular individual or enterprise but an honest and courteous effort to assist "the stranger within our gates" in every way that is possible to protect him from imposition and cause him to desire to come again. Citizens are invited to co-operate to the extent of their power in making this institution a success.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE NATIONAL CHAPTER, I. O. D. E.

Report Submitted to Sir Robert Borden Chapter by the Regent, Mrs. H. W. Phinney.

The official opening of the 24th annual meeting of the National Chapter, Imperial Order, Daughters of the Empire, took place on Monday, June 2nd, in the Crystal Ballroom of the King Edward Hotel, Toronto.

At the sound of the opening bars of "O Canada", about 1,000 members rose to their feet, while Miss Brotherton of the Toronto Municipal, led the procession of standard bearers, which proceeded to the front of the room where the standards were arranged.

A large crest of the I. O. D. E. was placed in the center with the Coats of Arms of the various Provinces on either side. Following the standard bearers came our National officers, accompanied by His Honor, the Lieutenant-Gov. and Mrs. Cockshutt of Ontario; Mayor Hiltz, of Toronto; Sir Robert Falconer, President of Toronto University and Canon W. L. Bayes-Reed, as guests for the afternoon.

In his address of welcome to the delegates, the Lieut.-Gov. said: "Your record, as an Order, has been wonderful. All Canadians should be grateful to you, for the work you have done for Canada and Canadians." He expressed the hope that the work would be carried on in all the other Dominions of the British Empire, as splendidly and successfully as in our own, and he said: "The women of the Empire are the ones that count."

Sir Robert Falconer, of the University of Toronto, then addressed us. He said: "It is a great honor to be asked to address you this afternoon, because I am perfectly conscious of the great work you, as an Order, have been doing. The I. O. D. E. is an order that is strong and firmly embedded in the life of this country. Those who belong to it, may regard themselves as promoters of a cause. What is this cause?" It is to visualize and to promote within this Dominion a realization of the great Commonwealth of the British Empire. In closing Dr. Falconer said: "I want to congratulate you on your War Memorial, especially on what you have done in the way of your scholarships, which have given many of our students the benefit of intercourse with the Universities of the old Land."

Mrs. W. R. Jackson, Regent of the Toronto Municipal Chapter, welcomed the delegates from the far corners of the Dominion, and gave a brief outline of the work of the organization since its inception.

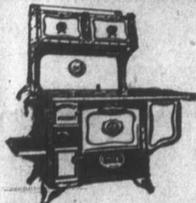

Mrs. W. C. Hodgson, of the newly formed Provincial Chapter of Quebec, replied to the Address of Welcome on behalf of the visiting delegates. She said: "The situation in the Province of Quebec is not quite the same as in the other Provinces, for in our Province we are bi-lingual. We have Chapters which are both English and French speaking and it was with great pleasure that I read some of the Annual Primary Reports, written entirely in French. We are proud of our French-Canadian sisters. They have a warm French heart under an English breast and are doing their duty as loyal Canadians."

Our National President then addressed the meeting in a very pleasing way. In part she said: "I trust that we may approach every question that comes before us with the attitude of a right spirit, never losing sight of the basic principles on which our Order was founded and the sacred trust committed to our keeping. Recognizing our duty in this regard, we can each of us learn something new. Surely we can gain a wider outlook, a newer vision and a clearer conception. Let us hope we may all, even in a small way, glimpse something of that much-hackneyed word 'inspiration'." In welcoming the members she said: "While not unduly boastful, we welcome you to a city whose loyalty is unquestioned, whose unwavering allegiance to our British heritage remains firm, whose patriotism is founded on deeds, and which cherishes the inheritance founded of a love of ordered liberty which cannot be dislodged."

A beautiful bouquet of roses was presented to Mrs. Doolittle upon the conclusion of her address. Mrs. C. E. Burden made the presentation on behalf of the Municipal Chapter of Toronto. Mrs. Betty Thompson Mackenzie sang "Land of Hope and Glory". Monday evening we had the usual open conference of Regents, with Mrs. Malcolmson in the chair, during which was discussed ways and means of making money. Many were the same as we

KEEP OUT OF THE HEAT Telephone

It seems to the Business Man a bit "off" to have to peg away at the daily grind when summer is here and all outdoors calls him out to play.

But, unless the wheels of Business are kept a-whirring the Business Man may find the making up of his Income Tax Return too simple to be altogether pleasant. So, whir their job!

But the job of making them whir is not so hard as it used to be.

There's no need now, for instance, of sweltering for hours in hot, musty, dusty, frowsy railway cars preliminary to talking to an out of town customer.

Instead, behind the cool shades of his window, in the tempered light of his office, the Business Man reaches for his Telephone, says a word or two to "Long Distance" and is soon in talking-touch with his customer.

What a lot of discomfort the use of the Long Distance Telephone Line prevents! What an amount of energy, time and money it saves!

Rod didn't attempt to account for this. He hadn't cast a sentimental halo about her. His pulse did not quicken when he thought of her. He simply remembered her vividly as a girl he knew and liked better than all the rest. The nearest he came to an analysis of the "why" was to wonder if it were not because he remembered Mary in her look and ways, in her person and manner, as supremely natural. He had an ingrained dislike for the artificial. She had been born with that predisposition. So had Phil. He liked to think that was a Norquay characteristic. And the generation of girls and young women Rod knew seemed like exotic flowers, with their lipsticks and powder, their exaggeration of speech, their startling frankness. They were easy to admire. Upon occasion their provocative sex might trumpet a challenge. But in the main rouge and talcum, pert along, the assurance of complete sophistication amused Rod without greatly interesting him.

He took it for granted Mary would be at home. But the Thorn would have moved as well as his own. He found Oliver Thorn sitting on the porch looking over a newspaper. They shook hands. Mrs. Thorn came out to greet him. And freshly she impressed Rod with a sense of serenity, of kindness, of a motherly quality he could not remember in his own life.

"Where's Mary?" he asked.
"Still in town. She'll be home soon, though, I hope. She cut a year in high school and entered the U. B. C. last summer," Mrs. Thorn told him. "She's quite grown up, Rod. I don't believe you'd know her. She's changed, like you."

"But I don't think I've changed much," Rod demurred.
"Of course you wouldn't see it yourself, but I can," Mrs. Thorn smiled. She went back into the house. Rod sat talking to Thorn. Treat fishing, the salmon run, timber matters current along the B. C. coast. Westward of the float a set of boomsticks enclosed a floating mass of fresh-cut cedar in four-foot lengths, split to a size—single bolts for the mills.

Oliver Thorn had owned for years a square mile of the finest timber on Valdez; magnificent in close-packed on the ridges, cool groves of cedar in shadowy lowlands. He held it indefeasibly, under a Crown grant. Rod knew that because he had once heard his father and Grove comment impatiently on the man's clear title, and wonder why in his circumstances he would neither sell nor cut the timber himself. Grove had observed caustically that some one had blundered. That particular stretch of woods was almost surrounded by the Norquay holdings. His father had merely shrugged his shoulders. Rod wondered idly now why a poor man did not turn those trees into useful cash. He uttered a modification of this thought.

Thorn smiled.
"I follow the wise course of greater folk," he said musingly. "Your people own miles and miles of timber, for instance. Yet they don't fill the woods with loggers and market every stick that can be cut. They log enough each year to bring in the necessary revenue. Isn't that about it?"

"Probably. I really don't know the family policy about timber, though."
"That's about it, I'd say," Thorn went on. "And mine, although it looks like a lazy man's tactics, is much the same. I bought this stretch of timber cheaply. By and by, when the time is ripe, I'll log it off or sell it to a logger. I'm doing just what the founder of your family did, Rod, and what your family continues to do. I'm holding property that will steadily increase in value."

He stopped to pick up his pipe and put a match to it. Then he continued in his slow, drawing voice.
"People have often thought me either a sluggard or a fool to sit tight here, as I've done. Some men would throw a crew of loggers in here, rip the heart out of this limit in a season, make twenty or thirty thousand dollars, and go somewhere else to do the same thing. Your pushing, bustling kind of man who doesn't see anything in the woods but so many thousand board feet per acre—that kind of man thinks I'm a damned fool."

to read and think. Freedom from hurry and worry. That seemed good enough for me. And this he waved his hand toward the timber banked thick on the slopes behind his house. "Has given it to me for several years. Each season I cut a few hundred dollars' worth of cedar, without making a dent in the total. Each year the value of the stand increases. There's twenty-two million feet on my ground. When I choose to sell, it will bring me enough for a decent living as long as I'm likely to live, and something left over for Mary. That's good enough."

Half an hour later Rod heard the Haida whistle far down channel. The tide had gone slack. He rowed back, a little keen to see Phil. And as he crossed he looked back at Oliver Thorn's timber and thought to himself that Thorn was doing precisely what the earlier Norquays had done. He had shrewdly based his material security on possession of a natural resource. There was no accident in Oliver Thorn's ownership. The man had a sound design that differed in scope but not in kind from the design whereby the Norquays had become what they were and held what they had.

This was the man Norquay senior had termed a dream-eyed incompetent. Rod smiled. It wasn't like his father to make blunders in estimating men. Then he fell to thinking of Grove, and he was not so sure of the paternal judgment. Or was it that his own distaste for his elder brother blinded him to excellent qualities and abilities easily visible to a father's eye?

CHAPTER VI

"When I went away you were talking about going on your own," Rod said. "What kind of a twist have things taken here? You seem to be pretty much the whole works now."
"Only by proxy," Phil answered. "Somebody has to be on the job more or less. I don't mind so long as they give me a fairly free hand. Matters here have become secondary in the Norquay scheme of things, but they're still quite a handful for somebody."

"Loosen up," Rod commanded. "You weren't at all explicit in any of your letters, and the governor confined himself mostly to checks and a few casual admonitions. Has Grove quit Hawk's Nest for a career in business? What does this trust company thing amount to?"
"Lord knows. Did you go and see the plant?"
"I wasn't interested. Seeing the governor was away I only stayed in town overnight. I saw an electric sign in huge letters on a roof downtown."
"The sign of progress. The oriflame of a budding financier, a comet flashing athwart the financial firmament," Phil intoned with ironic inflection. "That is Grove. Hawk's Nest and timber was too cramped a field for his vaulting ambition. He couldn't be satisfied with the one-horse show that was started here a century back. Our brother is by way of shedding a golden luster on the name, Rod."

Rod snorted.
"What's he after?"
"That's what I ask," Phil replied. "Echo answers what? Money, is one's natural answer. But that doesn't follow. He could live here and run things in the same offhand manner that we're used to, and have more money than he would ever need. There's always been a surplus. Do you know what the income of this estate runs for the last twenty-five years?"
Rod shook his head.
"Over a hundred thousand on the average. It could be doubled, trebled, if one cared to go at the timber roughshod. So it isn't money," Phil continued.

"The governor would have been perfectly satisfied to turn everything over to him as soon as he gathered. On the contrary, he persuaded the gov. to set him up in this blatant money-grabbing scheme. Personally, I think private banking and trust fund operations are just a glorified sort of pawnbroking. We've always made our money out of productive enterprises. I can understand Christ's indignation at the money changers. They're damned parasites. Grove, however, has no such peculiar ideas. He's become a man of affairs. The two years he spent in New York and London financial circles have turned his head, I think. Talks in millions. A wizard of finance. A wizard! Grove could always fool women. He never fooled a man of keen perception—outside of his own father. Grove's actually proud of this trust company thing, you know. Nailed our name to his financial flagpole. And he has associated with him five or six of the shrewdest business buccaners on the coast.—Deane, Arthur Richston, Mark Sherburne, and his father-in-law, John Wall. I don't like it, Rod."

"It's his funeral," Rod answered carelessly, "if they pluck him."
"I wasn't thinking about him," Phil drawled. "It's the rest of us. We wouldn't like a smash. Maybe I'm pessimistic."
"What does the pater think of it?"
"Oh, backs him stoutly. Keeps all his loose change in the Norquay Trust. Believes Grove is launched on a wonderful career. Maybe he is. But I don't think our beloved brother has the necessary grip for that sort of career. He loves power; he's the chesty sort. He revels in big affairs. And I don't think he really knows what power consists of, nor how skillfully and wisely to direct affairs."

"Did you ever like Grove, or trust him?" Rod asked bluntly. "Did you ever get on with him?"
"No," Phil answered as bluntly. "I wouldn't admit it to any one but you, old kid. But I don't. I never did. I never will. We'll always be secretly at odds in everything."
"Same here. I wonder why?" Rod uttered reflectively. "Suppose we're unconsciously resentful—jealous because he's first and entitled to the lion's share?"
"No, no. Nothing so petty. It's fundamental. Grove looks like us.

But he isn't like us, only outside. Inside he's different. They can talk all they damn please about heredity, environment, cultural influences. They don't account for some people. Grove's a snob at heart. He's gross. He's a fairly clever—or cunning—good-looking healthy animal, with a purely animal psychology under a veneer of good manners. And I suppose one should view him with a degree of tolerance, because he was certainly born what he is. But one doesn't like that type of man as the chief representative of one's family."

"And you think the governor fondly imagines Grove is quite a decent sort and plays the game like a gentleman—a bit masterfully, but still according to Hoyle?" Rod mused.
"Absolutely," Phil frowned. "To me, that's the devil of it. He's honest the governor is, and a bit old-fashioned in some notions. And he's fairly tolerant and pretty blind to certain obvious defects of character close home. The fact is, old kid, he's rather proud of his three sons. He'd wink at almost anything one of us did—in reason. And Grove comes first. He simply can't see Grove with critical eyes. It's quite natural, Rod."

Rod would have pursued the subject further, but there they sat dangling their legs over the Haida's cabin, their male house guests armed with gear for salmon fishing at the upper narrows. That evening, as they drew clear of a look in Stuart Island at slack water, a long, lean, cruising yacht, canopied, mahogany tenders shining in boat chocks on deck, her bow wave curling out with a hissing sound, swept by the Haida.

Young Deane's eyes followed her enviously.
"Classy packet that," he said to Rod. "I was out on her a couple of weeks; she's a dream inside. Fast, too; shows her heels to everything in Vancouver Harbor."
Rod smiled. Grove's yacht interested him less than the owner. Grove was expanding. Decidedly. Rod had a fanciful vision of his brother as a balloon, swelling and swelling to the ultimate overstrain and collapse. A whimsy of course. Finance was profitable. Money bred money. Yet it seemed strange that a Norquay could turn his back on Hawk's Nest, its ordered comfort, its atmosphere of security, its leisure and its peaceful beauty, to sweat over making a barrel of money only to invest it on such costly toys. It was even more strange to think that their father abetted and encouraged Grove in this departure from the old accepted way.

"Makes this look like small potatoes, eh?" Rod found Phil grinning at his elbow as they rolled in the Kowloon's wash.
"Must be money in trust companies," Rod observed sardonically. "That's bigger than the Hermes, in which old R. S. N. sailed around the Horn."
"I wonder what he'd think of Grove?" Phil murmured.
"I wonder," Rod echoed.

He repeated that mordant query to him in the course of the evening. Grove brought a new people on the Kowloon, a further installment of Deanes and Richstons, and several young men and women whom Rod met for the first time, but whose names were familiar enough as people who were "somebody" in B. C. They had dinner aboard, but afterward they took possession of Hawk's Nest, hauled a piano outside and danced on the wide verandah or wandered over the grounds in pairs. Rod detected a livelier tempo than had been common to Hawk's Nest gatherings. They drank a little more freely than he remembered as the usual thing there. By eleven o'clock two or three of the men were quite comfortably "lit up." Rod noticed that, even before Laska drew his attention to them.

"Young Deane and Tommy Richston are tight," she said amusedly. "Look at their eyes. See how very solemn Tommy is."
They were sitting by an open window in the living room, watching the glide and dip and sway of the dancing couples.

"Yes, rather," he replied. "Time to turn off the tap when the guests get pickled."
"It won't hurt them," Laska remarked indifferently. "They generally behave well. Isn't it lovely here, Rod? So clean and fragrant with the woods all about and the sea at your door. I love this old place."
"You ought to," Rod smiled. "You belong to it now."
"Do I?" she said. "I hadn't thought of it in just that way."
It struck Rod that he might find it difficult to explain just what he meant. He felt that he belonged to this old gray house. Some indefinable bond existed between him and it, something woven about him by heredity, usage, affection, by the generations of his blood who had belonged there before him. Could any one else feel that way about Hawk's Nest? He didn't know.

He looked at Laska with frank admiration. She was one of them now, in a special sense. One of the clan. She was a beautiful woman. Her hair was the color of ripe wheat straw, her eyes a very dark blue, luminous, expressive. She had grace and dignity. Rod had a feeling that she must be innately kind and generous. He wondered why in the name of God such a woman preferred a man like Grove to a man like Phil.

"I hoped we'd live here," she said presently. "But Grove has to be in town."
"Has to be?"
Rod could not help the inflection. Laska looked more keenly at him.

"Do you also disapprove of Grove?" she inquired.
"I also," Rod countered. "I don't get you, sister-in-law. I don't really know you very well, Rod," she said softly. "But I'm quite sure you're not stupid."
She eyed him with a tantalizing smile that made Rod uncomfortable.

"You're just as well pleased we don't live here, aren't you now?" she went on. "And you aren't the only one with that attitude, are you?"
Rod considered a moment. He thought he understood her. And he retaliated, in so far as his breeding permitted him to retaliate. He had a retentive memory to draw on.

"I told you once that only the oldest son counted for much in this family," he replied, with a short laugh. "You drew the lucky number. Isn't that good enough?"
She sat silent for a few seconds.
"I am answered," she said briefly. "The subject ended there. Some one came to get Laska for a dance. Rod, who was tired of dancing, a little bored with the high spirits which had originated chiefly in various deacons, betook himself upstairs to bed.
Something had gone wrong with Hawk's Nest. The old sense of cohesion, of the family as a unit, seemed lacking. Rod missed that atmosphere of solidarity. Until now he had in a vague fashion regarded his brothers, his father and grandfather, his sister Dorothy, the little groups of first and second cousins as links in a chain. There might possibly be a weak link or two—perhaps it had been a chain forged of kinship, common aspirations, interests, and traditions. For each of them and for all of the fairly numerous brood descended collaterally from that adventurous fur-trader, Hawk's Nest and the Norquay estate had formed a cherished background, a guarantee of certain rights and privileges, a sure wellspring of reasonable opportunity to make the best of the business of living.

Materially it was still that. But Rod had a curious impression of the old spirit having subtly withdrawn, of them all having become individualistic, separate entities with conflicting desires, ambitions, both active and potential—individual eyes unshaded, clashing, bent headlong on each his own ends, without regard to the others. He blamed Grove for this, and his father for letting Grove make it so. Grove was the disturbing element. He was turning everything inside out. Rod didn't like the people Grove surrounded himself with. He resented Hawk's Nest being subject at Grove's pleasure to an invasion by free-drinking, slang-speaking people, whose pursuit was not so much pleasure as excitement.
He grew drowsy in the midst of such reflections. After all, it didn't matter much. Especially to him. Probably this crowd was not much different from the general run of people who had money to spend and time to burn. He supposed that he was hypersensitive, too damned particular, finicky,—too infamously quick on the hair trigger of an impression.

And so he fell asleep.

HOW A PLANT FEEDS FROM THE AIR
When wood is burned it becomes black. This black substance is carbon. A large part of every plant or tree is carbon. A large tree, weighing let us say, six tons, requires for its growth carbon from 16,000,000 cubic yards of air. All the carbon that a plant gets is taken from the air, none from the soil. It is the leaves of plants that do this work. The leaves are the carbon catchers.

When wood or coal is burned the carbon goes back into the air and other leaves take some of it up, and thus plants grow. Of a whole plant, only a very small part comes from the soil. This were not so every tree would die a hole as it grows. The fact is, over one-half of a tree is built out of the carbon material that the leaves take in from the air.

Only green plants can use the carbon of the air. Moreover, plants can do this work only in the sunlight. Hence, there are two essential things about taking in the carbon. There must be sunshine and the leaves must be green. The green coloring in leaves is known as chlorophyll. With these two facts being present, carbon is taken into the leaves through little mouths on the underside of the leaves, and then in the leaves the carbon is made into two kinds which are called starch and sugar. The plant uses this starch and sugar in its growth, or for the building of the plant tissue.

The plant may be compared to a manufacturing enterprise. The green coloring matter of the leaves is the machine; the sunlight is the engine or power that keeps the machine running, and so growth follows. All the carbon of a farm crop is the result of leaf work. None of it is from the soil. The roots have another job—they take in water and minerals. But getting water into the plant is their great work.

How foolish a man feels after he fears of a baby being named when he

There is a practice among some economical housekeepers of putting in the extra tea with the old leaves and using the teapot back on the stove. This should never be done. Either use a new brew entirely, or else pour the boiling water on the leaves, and the latter will give you a cup or two of fairly good tea. The best results, of course, are obtained with MORSE'S.

FIRE AT HORTONVILLE

The dwelling of Mr. George S. Taylor, of Hortonville, was very seriously damaged by a fire which broke out about noon on Monday. An overheated stove is supposed to have been the cause of the fire which originated in the cell and made rapid progress. Neighbors quickly responded to the alarm and most of the contents were removed in a more or less damaged condition. A request for assistance was phoned to the Wolfville Fire Co. and in response the new engine was at once despatched and rendered splendid service. Due to the effective work done the fire was finally extinguished and the building was saved although practically a wreck. There is some insurance but the loss is a heavy one. Mr. Taylor is absent in the United States as is also his oldest son, and the occurrence is in consequence particularly unfortunate for the family, who have the sincere sympathy of the community.

It was expected at one time, had the proposed celebration materialized that there would be a special pilgrimage of Acadian descendants come up from Louisiana. This is now all postponed to next year.

When last seen he was fishing from a log and it is supposed that he had a faint turn and fell off. When he failed to return home some time later a search was instituted with the result stated. On the following day an inquest was held by Coroner W. Y. Fullerton, of Port Williams. Mr. Charles O'Leary was the foreman of the jury which after full investigation rendered a verdict of accidental drowning. NEWS—HAND IT IN

If only a few friends of the Acadian will only remember us from week to week in a little way it will help amazingly to make The Acadian much newer and therefore that much better from the real test of a paper, the subscriber's standpoint.

As you know, the local weekly paper is made up of little items and it is almost impossible sometimes to run down the news.

If you have an item drop in and tell us about it, send us a little story about it, phone us, anyway, so it gets to this office and the business will be promptly attended to.

Small sands, the mountains, moments make the year. And trifles make the newspaper.

Some people have made a decided success in life by attending to their own business.

Echoes Secty. Report: Mrs. Barker, Nat. Echoes Secty. reported a financial gain over last year of about $2,000. This was mainly due to changes in publication, and partly to increased subscriptions; there being 700 new subscribers last year, which makes a total of nearly $9,500, of which Nova Scotia sends in 624. We were asked to get ads, if possible for Echoes and also to send in news of Child Welfare Work, such as removing tonsils and adenoids, helping poor school sections, baby clinics or anything relating to child welfare.

The simple, sure way to keep that schoolgirl complexion

Youthful complexions are becoming the rule—even in middle life and later years. For millions now follow a simple rule—a method you, too, may easily employ.

Do this at night

Cleanse the skin regularly, authorities say, to keep your complexion lovely, radiant, youthful. But beware of harsh cleansing methods. They injure skin.

Wash thoroughly with Palmolive Soap—each night before retiring. Rub the creamy, foamy lather well into the tiny pores. Rinse—and repeat the washing. Then rinse again.

The simple, correct way You cannot find a more effective beauty treatment. Because Palmolive Soap is blended of rare palm and olive oils—famous for mild but thorough cleansing qualities since the days of Cleopatra. And it is inexpensive. All dealers carry Palmolive Soap. Try it for just one week. See how it does improve your skin. Note well the name and wrapper. Palmolive is never sold unwrapped. Costs so little that you may enjoy it for the bath also.

PORT WILLIAMS AND VICINITY

Mrs. D. S. Collins very gracefully gave the address of welcome from the local Women's Missionary Society to the delegates of the Presbyterial which met in Kentville last week. She expressed thankfulness for the great achievements the women had been able to accomplish and assured the delegates that all hearts and homes were open to them while there transacting business for the King.

Mrs. Belle Harris entertained the Misses Scott, of Windsor; Mrs. Cecil Woodworth had Miss Wallace, of Halifax, as guests while attending the Presbyterial.

The Avon Deanery comprising the clergymen (Episcopal) of Kings and Hants counties met last week with St. Johns church. A large delegation were present, among them being venerable F. W. Vroom, Archdeacon of Nova Scotia. The efficient work of the resident pastor, Rev. G. C. Brown, added much to the success and interest of these meetings. Special music was provided by the choir. An alms basin of polished brass and brass offertory plates were dedicated to the memory of the two sisters, Mary and Alma Robinson, who were called in the springtime of their youth to higher service. A sanctuary chair and stool were dedicated to the memory of the late Wm. Sutton, who was a faithful warden of the church in days long gone. A pleasing feature was the luncheon tendered by the ladies of the parish to the delegates and senior wardens, the clergymen of the neighbouring churches of Canard and Port Williams being invited guests.

Mrs. Jessie Walton, of Halifax, is the guest for a few weeks of Mrs. G. Cyrus Ellis.

Mrs. Ralph Regan has returned from a three weeks stay at Miss Wood's Hospital, but is still confined to her bed with rheumatism. Dr. Grant, of Wolfville, is in attendance.

Mrs. Willard Gates, of New Ross, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Arthur Bezanon, Belcher Street.

Miss Blanche Regan was in Granville Ferry last week attending the Regan-Wade wedding.

At the closing of the primary department of our school the following pupils carried off the prizes awarded by Miss Coleman for highest averages: Primary, George Merritt; Grade I, Douglas MacDow; Grade II, Bessie Shaw; Grade III, (a) Dorenda Harvey, (b) Marguerite Taylor; Grade IV, Ena Coulstan.

Mr. and Mrs. Barkhouse, with three children, motored from Steviacke and spent the week end, guests of his brother, Mr. Stanley Barkhouse.

Mr. and Mrs. Dixon Regan returned from their wedding trip to Halifax on Monday, and were tendered the customary salute by the young folk at evening. They were well treated with ice-cream and cake. Mrs. Regan—nee Miss Edna Wade—is well known in this vicinity having taught school in Wolfville, Port Williams and White Rock.

Supt. R. E. O'Brien, of the Manhattan Eye and Ear Hospital, N. Y., with his daughter Miss Esther, is the guest of Mrs. O'Brien's aunt, Miss Ella Wood. They will go from here to his old home at Noel, P. I., F. H. Daniels, of Royal Bank staff, is away on his annual vacation, spending it at his home in Lawrencetown and Digby.

We note from the Secretary, Mrs. B. B. Balcom's report given in the Bible School last Sunday for the quarter ending June 30, the following: Notwithstanding there were three rainy Sundays, the attendance totalled 1824 with an average of 140 per Sunday, the offering being $115.90. Twenty-three scholars, one teacher (C. A. Campbell), and the secretary (Mrs. Balcom) were present every session. We note that at the recent association held in Kentville that the Bible School of this place had given the largest amount to Missions last year of any school within the jurisdiction of the association, which embraces the Baptist churches of Kings, Hants and Halifax counties.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Harvey have returned from Halifax, where Mr. Harvey went for treatment at V. C. Hospital. Mrs. Mackay and two children, of Halifax, and Mrs. Gillman, of Haverhill, Mass., are visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Harvey.

REGAN-WADE WEDDING

On Wednesday morning, July 3rd, the Methodist church at Granville Ferry, Annapolis county, was the scene of a pleasant event of especial interest to residents of Port Williams. The occasion was the marriage of Miss Edna Matilda Wade, a former teacher here, the only daughter of Mrs. Adelaide and the late Edward Wade, to Dixon Roy Regan, of this place.

At half past ten, to the strains of the wedding march played by Mrs. Thomas, the bride entered the church on the arm of her uncle, Capt. Herbert Rawding, of Clementsport, and, took her place beside the groom under a beautifully constructed arch of wisteria and syringa. She wore a gown of ivory crepe de chine and georgette, with conventional veil and orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of pink carnations, sweet peas and maiden hair fern. She was attended by Miss H. Laura Hardy, the groom being supported by Mr. Allan Longley, of Lawrencetown.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. R. B. Thomas, the pastor of the church, in the presence of a large number of interested friends and invited guests. Misses Marion Troop and Ruth Mills acted as ushers. The church looked very pretty, the decorations including an embankment of daisies and potted plants, artistically arranged on the pulpit platform by a number of the young ladies of the church and village.

Following the ceremony luncheon was served at the home of the bride, where Miss Dorothy Wood had charge of the bride's book, in which the guests signed their names. The bride was the recipient of gifts of silver, linen, cut glass, pyrex and money, and the evening before the wedding her girl friends tendered her a "shower" which included a number of useful and beautiful gifts.

The happy young couple left by the afternoon train for Halifax and on their return will reside at Port Williams, where they have the best wishes of a host of friends. The bride's travelling costume was a suit of navy tricotine with blouse of sand all type crepe, shoes and stockings to match, and gray hat.

COMEDY PACKED WITH THRILLS

A comedy packed with dramatic situations is Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.'s first stellar production for Paramount, "Stephen Steps Out" which will be the feature at the Orpheum Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday. Joseph Henabery directed the picture, which is an adaptation of "The Grand Cross of the Crescent", a story by Richard Harding Davis. Theodore Roberts is featured in the principal supporting role, and Noah Beery, Harry Myers and Frank Currier are cast in important parts. "Stephen Steps Out" is an enjoyable entertainment for old and young alike.

GREENWICH

Dominion Day was quiet here, several being away in motor parties to various places. Messrs. John and Charles Fenwick in the former's motor truck, accompanied by Robert Bishop and Alec Andrew, left that morning on a fishing trip. They returned home on Friday afternoon, with a good supply of fine trout, having enjoyed their outing in the woods to the full.

The Fruit Company has greatly improved the appearance of their house and store here by giving both two coats of paint, also putting in new underpinning and cement front steps to the house, also in front of store, making a vast improvement all around.

We hear with regret that Mr. Omar Pursey is not so well again. He and family have the kindest interest of all in this community and every good wish is extended to him for improvement in health.

Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Forsythe left last Thursday morning for a visit of a few weeks in New Brunswick, at Mrs. Forsythe's old home and with her relatives. We wish them a pleasant time and rest.

We noticed Mr. B. L. Bishop started having last Friday.

Mr. Leslie Bishop, accompanied by his sister, Mrs. Minnie Davis, also three of his little nieces, motored to North Kingston last Saturday, where they were guests for the day of Mr. and Mrs. James Robertson, returning home that evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hennigar, accompanied by three Wolfville friends motored through to Chester Saturday afternoon, where they spent the week end with friends.

Miss Leah Forsythe, who has a good position in St. John, N. B., arrived home last Saturday to spend her vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Forsythe.

Mr. and Mrs. Chesley Forsythe and children, of Bridgetown, motored up and spent Sunday with the former's mother, Mrs. Leilla Forsythe. With the usual church service here on Sunday afternoon, a very interesting event took place, when three of our girls united with the church, also a small boy being baptized. The pastor, Rev. Dr. Hemmeon, delivered a splendid sermon and Mrs. Currie, the popular soloist, sang very beautifully the solo, "Just for Today", which was much enjoyed. The church was very prettily decorated in flowers, color scheme being yellow and white.

Mr. and Mrs. Burpee Bishop, accompanied by Mrs. Grace Andrew, in the former's auto; also Mr. and Mrs. Byron Cox and daughter Evangeline, accompanied by Miss Marion Bishop, in Mr. Cox's auto, left on Monday morning about 7 o'clock on a trip through the western part of the Province, spending most of the time at Crescent Beach on Petite River. Here's wishing them good weather and a pleasant outing.

Mr. John Andrew, who has again been away to sea on a voyage of six months on an American ship, returned home Monday afternoon on a vacation of a few weeks, a guest of his mother, Mrs. Grace Andrew.

Minnie Bishop left on Tuesday morning for North Kingston to visit for a time with her cousins, Annie and Kathleen Robertson.

Mr. Dexter Forsythe has recently had his grounds at his new home graded and a splendid lawn made, which is a great improvement to his fine property. Mrs. Arthur Lockwood, who was a patient for a few weeks at the home of nurse Mrs. Grace Andrew, returned to her home on Sunday.

NEW BRUNSWICK HAY CROP

FREDERICTON, July 9.—Haying operations have been started in some parts of Central New Brunswick, the present heat wave having caused the grass to ripen more rapidly than expected, but, generally, it is believed the crop in New Brunswick will not be heavy because of the extended drought.

PRINCE WILL SAIL AUGUST 25

SOUTHAMPTON, July 9.—It is announced that the Prince of Wales will sail for Canada with four or five friends on August 25 and will return to England about the beginning of October. No elaborate arrangements are being made for the trip and the Prince, at his own request, will travel as an ordinary first class passenger.

SOME HANTSPORT GARDENERS

The picturesque town of Hantsport on the Avon River never presented a more beautiful appearance than at the present time. In gazing through the beautiful foliage for which the town is noted the view cannot be excelled. The citizens are taking a great deal of interest in horticulture. Special mention should be made of the garden of Mr. A. E. Blois, who removed with his family from Halifax over a year ago to his newly constructed, up-to-date bungalow on Oak St. Mr. Blois is an expert in the art of gardening. His sweet peas are blooming profusely, also his dahlias, of which he has a choice variety, sending to England for the bulbs.

The new ship will cost approximately $2,250,000 and will be 428 feet over all, will accommodate 300 passengers and 5000 tons freight. Her speed will be 16 knots, making the trip between above named ports in 3 weeks, laying up one week at end of route between trips. The Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co. received the building contract.

The value of the tourist traffic to Canada is proved by figures supplied by the Parks Department of the Dominion Government, which show that the enormous sum of $138,000,000 was spent by tourists in this country in 1923. This represents the Dominion's fourth largest source of foreign cash income.

On her arrival at Quebec, June 14, the Canadian Pacific steamship "Empress of France" broke the record for the fastest time made between that port and Southampton, England, from which she sailed, having maintained an average speed of over 19 knots. This vessel also holds the record for the run between Quebec and Liverpool.

Arrangements for the Pageant of Empire, to be held at the British Empire Exhibition July 21-August 30, are now rapidly completing. Episodes showing the history of Canada and the other Dominions as well as of the Mother Country from the earliest times to the present day are being organized with the assistance of prominent residents of the Dominion now in London.

Hon. J. E. Ferrault, Minister of Colonization, Mines and Fisheries for the Province of Quebec, on his return from a recent extensive trip to the Temiscaming district of that province, stated that there were over 2,000 prospectors exploring the gold-fields of Quebec and at least a million dollars would be expended in development work in the region during the course of the season.

According to figures prepared by the freight department of the Canadian Pacific Railway, the export movement via Vancouver reached a total of 46,271,980 bushels on May 31, 1924, compared with a total of 17,887,718 bushels as on May 31, 1923. In each instance the figures cover the crop year commencing September 1st. The increase is therefore 31,584,215 bushels or 181.5 per cent.

Enthusiastic celebrations took place at Vancouver and Victoria, B.C., when the special service squadron of the Royal Navy, headed by H.M.S. Hood, the largest warship in the world and flagship of the squadron, visited those places recently. The squadron is expected on the Atlantic seaboard in August, when efforts will be made by Canadians on that coast to outdo the Pacific cities in the warmth of the welcome they extend. The anticipations are that thousands of spectators will gather at Quebec and elsewhere to demonstrate their affection for the officers and men of the fleet.

"You may say that Canada is becoming more and more interesting to Englishmen and before long additional English capital will be used here in the development of industries. I am very optimistic and I believe that we are now progressing towards an era of unprecedented prosperity. What we need more than all now is the immigration of good men who will become an asset to this country," declared Sir John Aird, President of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, on his return from Europe recently aboard the Canadian Pacific steamship "Empress of France."

The man who is a great man to his neighbors is a very great man indeed.

DIARY OF MARGARET D. MICHENER

June 22nd, 1849. This has been a fine warm day. After dinner Rebecca Brison took us in their carriage to the Town Landing. We called at her sister's, Mary Maria Mosher, and were introduced to Wm. Harvie's wife; they said they were going to Mrs. James Harvie's, and for us to go too. We next called at Mr. Andrew Harvie's, Simeon's Uncle; he was the only one at home. Upon arriving at Mrs. James Harvie's we found the other ladies had arrived, so we all spent a very pleasant afternoon.

23rd. We arose in the morning and found the weather very warm. Big Becky and her niece, little Becky, were at their work getting breakfast, after which we took our leave, accompanied by Mrs. Harvie. We called at Mrs. Dunbar's and Mrs. Cochran's, then went to Mary Maria Mosher's and spent the day. Sarah Ann Harvie was there, also an invalid brother of William Mosher's. We thought of going home after dinner, but the wind blew too hard. We went to Mr. Elkanah Harvie's and stayed all night; we had a pleasant visit.

24th. We went to meeting in the morning, saw Rebecca Elder, then went to Mr. Andrew Harvie's to dinner. Job Harvie was there and we came across the river with him to Michener's Point, then walked to Exmouth Davidson's where we found the little girl sick. We walked over to Mother's and had our supper and arrived home about dark. We spent a very pleasant time among the Newport relatives, some of whom Simeon had never seen before.

25th. A rainy day. Joe Davidson was in to Mrs. Michener's a while, the Wanderer having come in. After tea Simeon and I, with Maria and Mrs. Manson, went on the marsh to pick greens; returning, Simeon and I lingered in the graveyard. The graves have multiplied so—I can scarcely tell them.

26th. Simeon went up in the "Wanderer" to load. In the afternoon Mother came down to Mary's and stayed all night. She went home early in the morning.

27th. Mrs. Sarah Marsters came to see me today. Some of the folks have been riding around at a great rate—a number have gone to a Bazaar at Wolfville for the Sons of Temperance. Simeon returned at night.

28th. Mrs. Lydia Holmes came and spent part of the day with me. Simeon is not well today, having a severe pain in his head. We went to meeting at four o'clock. Mr. Cogswell preached. In the evening I wrote a letter to Mary Ann Keys, to send by Mr. and Mrs. Bently and son, who are at Father's, just returning from the Association. John, Robert and young Bently were at sister Olivia's this evening.

29th. It rained today. Mary sent for me to go over to milk for her as she was sick. I went and found her in bed.

30th. This has been a fine day. I have been back and forth between here and Mary's. In the afternoon I went to meeting, we had a very interesting conference. Mrs. Cogswell and Miss Maria Chandlee, Ruth Holmes, Rebecca Lawrence and Miss Pears were baptized. I stopped and assisted Maria, then we came to meeting. The house was filled. Mr. Cogswell preached. In the evening we went again and Mr. Roe preached. Mr. and Mrs. Gideon Reid appeared out today; they went to Horton yesterday and were married. Simeon, Maria and I went to Mr. Toye's pasture to pick strawberries. After supper we started to go to Mrs. Elder's, met Jane and Ann on the hill, and came back with them. Jane brought me a letter from Rebecca.

10th. We went to Abigail's in the afternoon; there is a fine view of the vessels as they sail up and down the river. The "Ellis" came up but James Holmes was not in her, he and John William having left.

11th. We spent the day at Olivia's with Mary. James Holmes arrived, came up in another vessel.

12th. We went to Mrs. Elder's and Ann accompanied us. Mr. Elder is now at home.

13th. The farmers have begun mow-

14th. The "Hantsport" came in tonight, bringing Miss Jane Lockhart and brother, and John Michener as passengers. James Phalen and John Michener also arrived.

15th. We went to meeting at 4 o'clock and heard Mr. Roe preach. Olivia Bradshaw and John Michener took tea with us. In the evening we went to Asa Davidson's to a sing.

THE INSECT PEST SITUATION IN JUNE, 1924

Apple Sucker—Copper Injury.

In Bulletin No. 10 of the N. S. Department of Agriculture, (March, 1923), the writer called attention to the action of Bordeaux sprays or dusts in aggravating the injury caused by the European Apple Sucker which in itself may be of little or no importance. This injury consists in a pronounced yellowing or even burning of the leaves followed by a heavy drop in severe cases. A more complete account of this injury, with the results of experiments, appeared in "Scientific Agriculture" for January, 1923. At the annual meeting of the N. S. Fruit Growers' Association in Wolfville January 1924, the writer, in speaking of the Apple Sucker, made the following statement:

"The most serious feature of the insect's work seems to be its influence in rendering affected foliage susceptible to Bordeaux injury, a fact which may force the use of sulphur spray or dusts in certain cases."

A combination of circumstances has this year tended to aggravate the type of injury described above. The rapid spread of the Apple Sucker has now brought it into prominence in districts where it was before unknown and the dry weather in the early part of the season tended not only to accentuate the direct damage from the insect, but also enabled copper sprays and dusts to adhere to the foliage until the heavy rain of June 15th, when the undissolved material was brought into solution and, entering the feeding punctures of the insects, caused the damage to which we have referred. Any form of Bordeaux, either dust or liquid, will apparently cause damage where suckers are exceptionally numerous. It makes little difference whether the material has been mixed with arsenate of lead or arsenate of lime as the same damage will result in either case. Bordeaux and Paris green is a particularly dangerous combination—that is, it is dangerous to the trees not the insects—but even orating the poison altogether will not prevent the injury. All varieties are subject, but probably the Ben Davis shows most injury, partly because it is likely to be heavily infested and partly because it is particularly susceptible to this type of injury. Trees that have been treated with sulphur, lime sulphur or wettable sulphur show an entire absence of the described injury under identical conditions, as do also orchards where the Sucker has been destroyed by the use of Nicotine, even though the copper fungicides have been freely used. Neither is it in evidence where the Sucker does not occur. While the foregoing appears to be true, growers should be cautioned against attributing every failure of the fruit to "set" to the effect of the material used in spraying or dusting their orchards. A failure to "set" or even a patchy set is just as characteristic this season in districts where the Apple Sucker is not a factor or in orchards where sulphur sprays or dusts have been used. Furthermore, where the insect has been controlled by means of Nicotine dusts or sprays, Bordeaux sprays can be safely used. It should be borne in mind that except in dry seasons and in exceptionally heavy infestations the Apple Sucker is a pest of minor importance. It should also be clearly understood that the Bordeaux sprays or dusts used in the Valley are as safe materials as can be used on trees under ordinary conditions. It is the combination of dry weather, abundance of apple sucker and copper fungicides that cause the damage. In districts where the insect is not yet a factor, there need be no modification of present practices, but where it is now abundant an application of a sulphur fungicide may be substituted at the "blossom pink" period as is already recommended for the "calyx" period. For the earlier and the later applications of copper fungicides can be safely continued by all who desire to use them.

Nicotine Dusts. Those who follow the dusting method will be interested to know that a special nicotine dust has now been shown to be satisfactory for the treatment of sucking insects if applied at the right time. This right time is just as soon as possible after the flower stalks have spread wide apart, or, just as late as possible before the trees come into bloom. It will not work, however, if applied too late. After an apple sucker has become half grown or more it can only be killed with a hammer or similar implement. Apple suckers can also be controlled any time after the flower stalks spread apart, but, unlike the green apple bug, which drop from the trees immediately they are treated, they may, for a day or two, appear to be unharmed by the material. At the end of the third day, however, if enough material (2 or 3 lbs. per tree), has been used, and if it has been applied at the right time, the insect will be seen to shrivel up and die.

Apple Scab or Spot. Considerable spot is showing up on the leaves of susceptible varieties like Stark, Gravenstein, etc. Those who missed the early application are likely to have considerable trouble with spot.

Bud Moth. Many complaints of severe bud moth injury have been heard this season. In most cases this severe injury is the result of the neglect of the early application. Where much severe injury is experienced, the use of materials with an extra strong arsenic content in the first spray is indicated.

JULY 15 FOR GOD SO LOVED THE WORLD, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.—John 3: 16.

JULY 16 BLESS THE LORD, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits; who forgiveth all thine iniquities; who healeth all thy diseases; who redeemeth thy life from destruction.—Psalm 103:2-4.

JULY 17 PEACE I LEAVE WITH YOU, my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid.—John 14:27.

FIRST TREATY MADE BY CANADIAN GOVERNMENT

OTTAWA, July 3.—A treaty extending the most favored nation treatment between Canada and Belgium was signed at seven o'clock Wednesday evening at Laurier House, Ottawa, by Hon. J. A. Robb and Hon. Dr. H. B. Land, on behalf of Canada, and Baron De Selys, consul general for Belgium, in the presence of the Prime Minister. This is the first treaty entered into by the Canadian government and signed in Canada.

Full powers from His Majesty, the King, to sign the treaty on behalf of Canada, were received a few days ago by Hon. Mr. Robb and the Hon. Dr. Bland.

Canada extends to Belgium the benefit of its intermediate tariff and receives from Belgium most favored nation treatment which is a wide variation from its regular tariff, which is rather high. Canadian imports from Belgium for the year ending March were $5,340,875, and exports to Belgium $17,452,442. Our principal exports were grains ($14,000,000), automobiles ($200,000), tires ($108,000), canned salmon ($400,000), asbestos ($400,000), raw tobacco, implements, butter and cheese. Among the imports were considerable quantities of glass, of which the importation will not prove injurious to our manufacturers, as the duty under the intermediate and general tariffs is the same. It is understood that negotiations are also under way for a somewhat similar treaty with the Netherlands.

BOTH WERE WRECKED

Two battered old wrecks were sitting on a bench on the common when one remarked: "I'm a man who never took advice from anybody."

"Shake, brother," said the other, "I'm a man who followed everybody's advice."

is. Bake twelve minutes in a moderately hot oven. As these cookies need no butter they are not expensive. If sour cream is used stir one-fourth teaspoon soda into cream. Use the same amount of baking powder as with sweet cream.

Nut Bread: Two cups sour cream, two-thirds cup sugar, two cups white flour, one teaspoon salt, three cups Graham flour, one teaspoon soda, one cup nut meats, two teaspoons baking powder. Let rise one hour, and bake.

Fried Pies: These are on the order of old-fashioned "turnovers" and are especially good to carry for an automobile lunch or picnic. The dough is made like that of baking powder biscuits, rolled to the thickness of one-eighth of an inch, and cut with a small round cutter. On half of each circle put old-fashioned apple sauce baked in the oven until dark red, wet the edge and turn the other half over the apple, pinching the edge firmly together. Fry like doughnuts in deep hot fat. Drain carefully on paper.

The Toy Canoe

THE TOYMAKER AND HIS CARVING IS A PLANT OF VILLAGE GROWTH.

When at Christmas time we turn into a toy store or in a large department store toward the toy counter, we are apt to see in our minds' eye only the toy and the child. Some of us see and feel, ourselves. And in spirit go back to the days when toys were to us, as they are to children, the embodiment of the imagination. The tangible form of our dreams! Sight of the toys, the touch of them, is a magic wand restoring our lost childhood. And so we really end
