LADY IRIS' MISTAKE;

Hero of 'Surata'

CHAPTER XX.

She felt herself compelled to repeat the lines; and then she laughed at her folly. 'I shall call him 'Sir Lancelot' until I forget his identity,' she said to herself; and then she stood for a few minutes, undecided as to where she would receive him.

If she could have followed her own impulse, she would have hastened to the hall-door; but that would never do; the mistress of Chandos must maintain her dignity. She thought she would go to the drawing-room; but it seemed so stiff and formal to receive him there. If she waited where she was, that would seem a cold way of greeting him. She returned to the house, and as she entered the hall she met him.

She knew well that a fair picture she formed with the light from the stained-glass windows falling full upon her face and golden hair, and on her white, morning dress; but she little knew how much was revealed by the dainty flush and the brilliant eyes. She held out her hand to him—the hand she had so proudly refrained from giving to John Bardon, when he first visited her.

'Welcome to Chandos!' she said warmly; and the candor in her face deepened as he held her hand in a lingering clasp.

'Thank you, Lady Iris,' he replied with simple dignity.

She could not help thinking how thoroughly in keeping he looked with the grandeur and magnificence of the old hall as her eyes went from him to the armor and the faded banners. He looked far more like a knight of the olden time than a gentleman of the nineteenth century. She stood just under the archway over which the Fyne crest—the lion and the Lily—was carved, and round which the old legend 'Held with honor' ran. His eyes lingered on the words.

'Is that the motto of your family?' he asked. 'Yes,' she answered, gravely; 'and I think it is more beautiful than any other motto.'

'I agree with you; it means so much,' he said. 'Held with honor' If I had to choose a motto, I would choose that.'

He bowed low before this stately young representative of an ancient family, and then they went together to the library, where the earl was reading his daily papers. She looked at Captain Osburn once, with a great gladness in her eyes and face.

'Papa will be pleased to see you,' she said. 'We have had quite a long talk about you.'

Then she opened the door and went before him into the library. At the first sight of him the earl felt his heart warm to the young soldier. He received him most kindly, and thought that, so far as appearances went, his daughter had chosen well.

While Captain Osburn talked to the earl, Lady Iris' eyes wandered from the living face to the painted one. The resemblance was certainly most striking. After a short time, the earl said to him— 'My daughter will show you the pictures here, and I will go with you through the gallery.'

She showed him a superb Madonna by Raphael, one of Greuze's fairest faces, a landscape by Watteau, an angel bearing a lily by Fra Angelico; and then they came to the magnificent picture she loved so well.

'Now look at this, Captain Osburn,' she said. 'Do you know what your own face is like—and most people do know such things, I imagine—tell me, is not that resemblance perfect?'

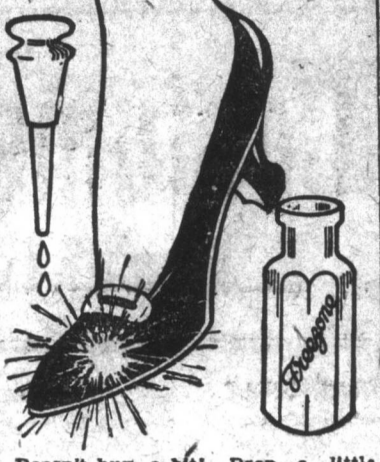

He turned his laughing eyes from the portrait to her. 'Yes; I think Chandos has almost the finest private collection,' he replied. 'It is the gathering of many generations. All the Fynes have loved art, and each lord of Chandos has added considerably to its treasures. I have been the most indolent. Most of my purchases have been works by modern artists. I think very highly of Millais, and I never miss an opportunity of adding one of his works to my collection.'

'They were in the middle of the long gallery now, and Lady Iris said suddenly— 'Captain Osburn, you will like to see my mother's portrait—it is one of the most beautiful pictures we have.'

Then she paused abruptly, suddenly remembering all that her father had said on the subject. She glanced at her father's face. It was slightly troubled and shadowed; but she could not help thinking that he looked like a man who had something disagreeable to do, and would do it. He bowed to Captain Osburn.

General Election For Great Britain.

British Constitution Assured Ratification --
Great Crowds at Leeds Welcomed Lloyd George -- International Fishing Schooner Race Being Sailed To-day.

MAYFLOWER GROUNDS
GLOUCESTER, Oct. 20. The Boston schooner Mayflower ran aground in Gloucester Harbor this afternoon. She struck a mud covered pier at the wharf in the inner harbor. It is expected she will float high tide without injury. The schooner, Canada's defender, also took her nose in the mud at the wharf, but sustained no damage. An unusually low tide was responsible.

GENERAL ELECTION SURE.
LONDON, Oct. 20. The still highly speculative situation tonight only two facts stood out as definite--there will be almost an immediate general election and Parliamentary ratification of the British Constitution is assured. Andrew Bonar Law in a message to the evening newspapers confirmed his intention to advise the King to immediately dissolve Parliament and added that this fact would give ample time to deal with the Irish Legislation. He did not intimate whether the present Parliament would reassemble, according to schedule, on November 14, to deal with the Irish Legislation or whether it would be left to the new Parliament.

I'm coming around to see you!

I'm the Fuller Man.
I represent the largest manufacturer of high-grade brushes for personal and household use, in the world.
I am located in your city. Hope to call on every woman who reads this ad.
To every one I visit, I give a Fuller Handy Brush--without cost or obligation--to prove the quality and usefulness of my line. By this token, you'll know why Fuller Brushes are so day used in over 5,000,000 homes!

Identify me by the Fuller trade-mark button I wear on my lapel. Identify Fuller Brushes by the Fuller Red Tip Tag and the Fuller trade mark on their handles.

"Till we meet!"

W. H. JOHNSTON, The Fuller Man.
G.W.V.A. Building.

est. From assurances given by various leaders, no party in the House is likely to offer any hindrance to carrying the Irish Treaty into effect. Lloyd George is credited with intentions to create a centre party. This would necessitate the creation also of a new party machinery and party funds, for the former Premier has no such funds or machinery at his disposal. One of the weekly political reviews declare the election will turn upon the simple question of for or against Lloyd George and will be purely a personal contest. There is no great question now before the country, and from slight indications afforded, the ex-Premier, who is in great fighting mood, seems to turn the whole contest on the personal equation.

LLOYD GEORGE'S WELCOME.
LEEDS, Oct. 20. Great crowds welcomed David Lloyd George and party on arrival here by special train tonight. He delivered five minute addresses at various stations on the way from London and elsewhere and was greeted warmly. "I invite your support in the battle for national interests," Lloyd George told his audience at Kettering. At Leicester: "You probably have heard they don't like me at the Carlton Club. That seems to have added a number of friends not only at Leicester, but all along the route. I have never witnessed such remarkable demonstrations. We were pulling together and now the Carlton Club orders party first. No wonder some of the oldest, ablest and most experienced speakers of the Conservative Party protested against the orders and declined to carry them out." The Liberal Association at Nottingham presented Lloyd George with an address to which he replied that he was standing for national unity. At Sheffield he told the crowd that the Carlton Club wrecked the organization which won the war.

PREPARING THE FORD.
GLOUCESTER, Oct. 20. Sailmakers aboard the Henry Ford, the American challenger for the International Fishermen's trophy held by the Canadian schooner Bluenose, were working overtime tonight, lopping off four hundred and thirty-eight square feet of the vessel's sail area in an endeavor to have her in readiness for the opening tomorrow, of the International series. The work is being done at the direction of the International Committee, headed by W. W. Luffkin, Collector of the port of Boston, which, acting upon the report of the American Race Committee, ruled that the Challenger's canvas exceeded by so much the area allowed under the rules. Three members of the Ford's crew have been eliminated as not bona fide fishermen.

Our Dumb Animals.

REPORT OF CHIEF AGENT S.P.A. WEEK ENDING OCTOBER 20, 1922.

Examined a number of outport ponies and spoke to the owners about having pritchards on their carts. Was called to humanely destroy two dogs and two horses, one horse having picked up a nail the other suffering from a swollen hind leg, which was incurable. Checked a man on Sunday night for over-driving. He promised that it would not happen again. Attended to the landing of 20 head cattle from the "Sable I", one being very wild the owner had it taken away on a cart; attended also to the landing of a carload of cattle at the Reid Co.'s station; and 115 head cattle, 60 sheep, 11 horses, and a lot of pigs from the "Canadian Snapper." All carefully landed and taken away. Received report of several horses having been killed along the railway line, made enquires at the company's office, who say that these cattle were not left to suffer, the law concerning the same being carried out. Attended two sales of cattle and saw that the cattle were taken away alright. My attention has been called to horses finding it hard to get along LeMarchant Road, about ten accidents having happened during the past week. Mr. Simmons had his wagon damaged and horse injured. A west end grocer broke the shafts of his express, and several coal carts had their shafts broken. It would be advisable to have the road covered with sand. Several complaints have been received of lame horses. I am doing the best possible under the circumstances, continually warning teamsters to be careful of their animals. All calls during the week have been promptly attended to.

Unusual Accident.

TRUCK BOWLED OVER BY STREET CAR.
Yesterday afternoon, near Rawlin's Cross, a motor truck, owned by Mr. Easterbrook of Pouch Cove, and loaded with about twenty quintals of fish was bowled over by a street car, and somewhat wrecked. Three occupants, Miss Newell, Herbert Moulton, and Kenneth Hudson, went over with the machine and had a narrow escape from being killed. The truck, which was being driven by Hudson had passed the Cross and was turning into Queen's Road, when the street car coming East appeared. Hudson was crossing the track to proceed on the left side, but the rear of the truck did not clear. The motorman of the street car applied the brakes to prevent a collision, but failed to bring his car up and the truck was thrown over on its side, bringing up against a telephone pole. It was at first thought that the occupants were badly injured but after a few minutes they managed to crawl out of the wreckage none the worse for their experience. The rear wheel of the truck was smashed to splinters and some minor damage done to the top woodwork.

AS OTHERS SEE US

And As We See Ourselves.

(By OBSERVATOR)

ONE OF THE "FINE OLD STOCKS"

On the train between St. John's and Holyrood, last summer, one of my travelling companions happened to be a fine old Englishman whose father had "come out" to Newfoundland from the Mother Country nearly a century ago. He was shrewd, original and cynical more than enough, but good-humored at bottom, and very entertaining. He knew the late Sir William Whiteway and Sir Ambrose Shea very well and had a high regard for both of them. He was in easy circumstances and took the well-to-do man's view of things; but if he had succeeded it had been in fair fight. He had been thrown into the arena of public life, with a good many others whose grandfathers and fathers had made Terra Nova their home in the days of the "fishing admirals" and "West Country merchants." Most of them had failed, or they were undistinguished in the general herd.

He, however, was an illustration of the survival of the strongest, was worth attending to, and was excellent company. In his youth, when he had nothing, and responsible government was on trial here, he had been a Radical. He had become a Tory in his age, because he had property at stake, and did not wish to lie at the mercy of those who thought as he had once thought himself. His political views, however, showed more reading and general knowledge than I was prepared for. He did not believe in the permanence of any form of government. None of them were good for very much, and they were always corrupting and requiring change.

The British constitution he regarded as an accidental result of the struggle between the feudal and popular elements in the British nation. It had been elevated into a principle, as a final solution of the great political problem. He was one of those who took an unfavorable view of the rising generation of colonialists. The fathers, he said (just as if he had been an old Roman in Terence's time), had worked hard to make money. The children only thought of spending it. They were idle and extravagant, living beyond their means, a complaint which has been heard of and will be heard while the human race continues. He was sceptical about the value of present day education, or of what we now understand by that unconsidered word. His education had been in work. He had been taught to earn his living with his hands. Leads nowadays he complained, were not taught to work at all; "education" was a mere shabbling of the wits. Suppose a Micmac Indian or an Eskimo to learn to read and write, to be sent to college to learn science, mathematics, languages, and the rest of it; but suppose him to have lost his courage and his sense of honor, and to have learnt to cheat, and to lie, and to gamble, as a good many white men did, had such a Micmac or Eskimo gained very much? In my friend's opinion, the only progress worth speaking of was moral progress. The rest was only change, and often a change for the worse, as every observant man must admit.

OUR LATE GOVERNOR, SIR C. ALEXANDER HARRIS.

While awaiting the arrival and inauguration of our new Proconsul, Sir William L. Allardyce, let me make a few observations about his retiring predecessor, Sir C. Alexander Harris. The latter, although not a brilliant administrator, has been successful in a number of little troublesome controversies between the Government and the Opposition—Sir Richard Squires and Sir Michael Cashin having frequently appealed to him to settle their disputes—which, if they had been less skillfully handled, might have been no longer little. He has vindicated his reputation for good sense, caution and resolution. He has never "trailed the flag," nor has he ever flouted it in music hall fashion. He has made us all feel that he was proud of the little country he governed, and resolute and able to defend her interests and to fulfill her obligations. This was no small achievement when it is borne in mind that at least one half of the political cranks and disturbers of the peace here had flattered themselves that Sir Richard's Administration would inaugurate a policy of general stampede.

Ex-Governor Harris has a pleasant art and genial old English humor which makes him fairly popular as a speaker. He does not speak much, never overstays his welcome, and always leaves his audience in a good humor with themselves and with him. The mirth which illuminates his speeches never degenerates into mere purposeless hilarity. He uses his jokes to illustrate his arguments, not merely to set the table in a roar. There is also a subacidity about his humor which in a more gloomy mind might degenerate into the saturnine, but which in his case only lends a more pungent flavor to his speech. Of this his speech at the unfringing of the old Newfoundland Penitents' time-honored flag at the Museum last summer was a notable case in point.

The best characteristic of Sir Charles Harris is the least known, and is one of which I hesitate to write. It would, however, be wrong to refrain from any mention of the fact that, although he did not read the lessons in his church on Sundays, he was as much dominated by the religions instinct as, perhaps, any man in the viceregal office anywhere. Sir Charles seemed to be always well informed about important matters outside, and his information by the time it reached him was reduced to the limits of ascertained facts. He was not confused with the perpetual clatter of other people's opinions. Thus what he said was his own and original. He, as well as Sir Ralph Williams, had his hobbies, and when he was mounted on one of them, I could admire his riding without trying to keep pace with him. But, now that "he goes into retirement," I am sure his many friends here wish him a kindly and "long-drawn-out farewell." Any way, in the quietude of private life, he will be able, I trust,

"To husband out its taper at the close, And keep the lamp from dying by repose."

Does not history tell us that there is nothing so melancholy as the aspect of a great man in retirement, from Nebuchadnezzar in the meadow to Napoleon on the rock? Sir Charles made mistakes, it is true, but one can learn more from some people when they are wrong than from most people when they happen to be right. In the last interview I had with him, he seemed to speak sadly and wistfully of his departure, and I could not help thinking that were it possible for him to return as Governor of Newfoundland, and to act on his own judgment, things would be different and we should have less trouble in the future than we have had in the recent past.

JOHN BARLEYCORN VS. MISS NICOTINA.

The other day one of our prominent city clergymen, as he "enlarged" on the pernicious effects of intoxicants, had the temerity to place nicotine in the criminal category with alcohol. He maintained that one was as bad as the other—an assumption, I contend, that cannot be sustained by available data. Passing in review successively the havoc wrought by opium, morphia, and alcohol, he compared the effects of smoking with those produced by spirituous liquors. The absurdity of the comparison is too obvious to call for comment. Tobacco has no such crimes as those committed by alcohol to reproach itself with. It has never led astray the reason, annihilated the will, or perverted the sensibility of any one. The most hardened smoker always and at every instant, enjoys the most perfect lucidity. At the very moment when he is under the influence of nicotine, he talks, reasons, studies and works with a freedom of mind which proves that his intellect is entirely uninjured. One would rather say that tobacco sets it free from physical impressions and that, as the late Dr. Henry Shea once remarked to me, "it only blunts the sensibilities of certain organs to leave more liberty to the evolution of the psychic functions."

Another characteristic difference between tobacco and other voluntary poisons, is that the habit can be easily left off, while the alcoholic who has phia manias are nearly, if not quite, incurable. At the present moment, and after considerable experience, I only remember two or three cases of reformed drunkards, or inebriates, and I would not guarantee their permanence in case the subjects had found themselves in presence of renewed temptations. As to the morpho-maniacs, they are absolutely incurable unless placed under restraint, and the way they are treated in institutions devoted to them in the United States and Canada proves how terrible must be a passion which requires the employment of such remedies.

To cure oneself of smoking, on the contrary, nothing is required but a certain amount of firmness, and we meet, every day, with men who have completely left off the habit. On the other hand, I entirely disagree with those who consider smoking a necessary help to intellectual exertion. It may be of great value as a stimulus, but only to those who have already formed the habit, and even they can usually do it without incurring any great inconvenience. My object in these comments is not so much to defend tobacco as to rebut the exaggerations by which its adversaries have done their cause more harm than good. My position is that smoking in moderation by adults, does no harm, though the actual benefit may be doubtful.

As to delirium tremens, convulsions, epilepsy, hallucination, dementia, premature old age, melancholy, and other affections, which have been set down as the result of smoking, it may suffice to remark that—smokers being as numerous as they are—it would be somewhat surprising if most of the ailments that flesh is heir to did not occur

Beaver Board is the Best of all Wall Boards

HERE IS THE PROOF:

On the outside of our Store there are two Beaver Boards which were placed there in 1912. These two Beaver Boards have been exposed to the rain, sun, wind and snow during the past ten years and are still in good condition.

No mere substitute has stood such a test as this.

During the past ten years seven substitutes for Beaver Board have been sold to take the place of Beaver Board, but to-day not one of these substitutes is seen, and Beaver Board holds its place as the best of all wall boards.

The back of every Beaver Board is branded with the Beaver trade mark

Look for this trade mark whenever you buy Beaver Board. Unless the board you buy as Beaver Board is branded with this trade mark, you are being cheated. Beaver Board is guaranteed by the Beaver Companies of Thorold and Buffalo and last as long as your house.

Beaver Board is real board made with long fibres of selected Spruce and necessarily will out-wear such imitations as consist of several thicknesses of cardboard glued together.

In Memoriam.

MR. GEORGE NEVILLE.

Death, the mysterious angel, the dread personification of an intangible yet real problem of life, whose sway is universal, whose ukase is final and unconditional, claims myriads daily. They pass on "unto that bourne whence no traveller returns"; the young, the ambitious, the old and enfeebled, the grave, the gay—all seek rest in the bosom of mother earth, when God's given Ambassador beckons. As the sable cortege betokening the dissolution of some unknown one passes through the highways of a populous city, respect is shown, and momentarily, at least, is realized the sublimity of the transfiguration which, in the material sense is death; but which in the conception of our common Christianity is a change ushering into being life in realms eternal.

But repair to the mourning home of the departed one and the heart is seared with the deep pathos of it all. A chair the resting place of a loved one is now vacant, some cherry voice is no more heard, the greeting of some kindly winsome personality is missed, and there is known only the heart-wrung cry of bereaved ones, the subdued sobbing of mother, wife, father, sister or brother. These sad reminders of the presence of death appeal to the most callous; excite sympathy, beset sorrow and when, to one in the flower of youth and manhood death comes suddenly and tragically, the emotions are profoundly stirred, grief is intensified and we realize with the poet that "Deaths arrows are at random flung Or he would not have died so young."

And so of the regretted subject of these hastily written obituary lines. But a short two weeks ago, Mr. Geo. Neville of the Topsail Road, young, ardent, ambitious, visualizing with hopeful eyes a promising future, went about his daily avocations with no realization that his earthly activities were nearing so sad a termination. The only surviving son of Mrs. Neville and the late Mr. James Neville, so well and favorably known in the West End and on the Topsail Road especially, he was the victim of the motor accident recorded in the press, and which occurred on Cornwall Avenue on Thursday, 6th October. Few there are who do not speak kindly of the dead, and properly so, but not many are there among the many who knew him, who will not miss the pleasant face and buoyant, cheerful presence of George Neville. Courteous, friendly and affable in disposition, Mr. Neville was beloved by a host of friends in the city and its Western suburbs, and it is safe to say that his friends were legion, his not being the temperament which might generate enemies.

A feature of the passing of the deceased, which renders it a most poignant blow to his immediate family and friends, is that he was married only a few months ago to Miss Margaret Kean of Kean's Valley, the young wife being inconsolable over the death of a beloved husband whose demise was of such a tragic nature. For three years Mr. Neville was employed by the firm of Steer Brothers, being head of the Boot and Shoe Department and commanded the respect of his employers, the esteem of his co-workers and the good will of the many who patronized the place. Not long ago Mr. Neville went into business for himself, having purchased the lumber mill off Hamilton Avenue known as Fynn's Mill, in which he pioneered what promised to be a very remunerative proposition and in which, had he been spared, his natural business tact and talent would have gleamed for him the success he so well deserved. Mr. Neville was predeceased by two brothers, Messrs. Peter and James Neville, and by one sister, the late Mrs. John Channing. Besides his sorrowing mother there are left to mourn him a wife and two sisters, Mrs. Geo. Butt and Mrs. A. Renout. Deceased, who was a graduate of Holy Cross Schools, was a member of the St. Patrick's Holy Name Society, and regret over his tragic death is widespread. To the sorrowing mother, wife and other relatives the sympathy of all will be extended in their bereavement.

STEEDMAN'S SOOTHING POWDER

The Gold Rush.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—Among other things promised by the Squire party and not performed was the re-organization of the Department of Agriculture and Mines. The only change (if any) wrought in that office was to bring debauchery to a fine degree of perfection. The Agricultural Dept. is no longer to be reckoned with; it has been reduced to the status of a seed shop where one may purchase the poorest seeds obtainable, but specially grown for the Nfld. Agricultural Board. As for the Mines Branch, it is, like the Timber Department, an easy mark for the land and timber shark. Our forest areas are fast approaching a stage of desolation, while the assault goes on.

The shameful run on the supposed gold placer deposits of Labrador furnishes an illustration of what can be done with a country's mineral lands, when there is nobody of sufficient thought to put our mining laws on a sane basis. Here we have the example of a few men grabbing up a whole country for purely speculative purposes. Nobody should have a right to speculate with a country's natural wealth. It is not good for the country. No man should be able to lease a mining area he had not previously staked. The first step to taking out a claim should be discovery, next staking, next application for a license. On no account should a placer claim exceed that permitted in Canada where the area allowed varies from the regular creek bottom claim of 250 feet square by 1250 by 250 feet.

By subdividing a gold bearing district into small claims, more real prospecting is going to be done than if the area were divided between one or two speculators who are not miners. It is better to have a thousand small claims, each with its busy prospector, than by one big claim held up by a speculator. There will be no rush to Labrador for the very good reason that all the supposed gold territory is now in the hands of that greatest of all curses, the promoter. That territory is as effectively barred to the real worker, the individual prospector, as if never existed, and we lose the advantage which a big traffic would offer. A little brains on the part of our legislators and we need not worry over our gold mines whether they exist or not. Brains are better than gold. Have we either?

Yours truly,
ARTHUR ENGLISH.

"SACRED AND PROFANE LOVE" AT THE NICKEL MONDAY.

Another big feature attraction will be seen at the Nickel Monday. The title is "Sacred and Profane Love." Carlotta Fiedl has been kept in ignorance of the facts of life by her aunt, but has managed to get hold of a victim when she meets a celebrated pianist who gives a concert in the town where she lives. Dix, the pianist, gets her to come to his rooms after the concert. While Carlotta is with the pianist her aunt dies. Carlotta goes to London and becomes a celebrated novelist. Frank Ipenlove, her publisher and a married man, falls in love with her and follows her to France. When she spurns him, he commits suicide in her apartment. Carlotta goes to Paris and finds Dix a physical wreck. She devotes herself to his regeneration and does not stop until he is again the great pianist. All this time she has thought only of him, but he realizes the depth and sacredness of her love and tells her he loves her in the same way.

A Destructive Force.

Editor Evening Telegram

Dear Sir.—One of the most welcomed and long-hoped for pronouncements made by the Government of to-day to the ex-Service men of the Dominion, through their electives and later to the Great War Veterans Association, was the elimination, as far as possible, of patronage in appointments to the public service, in as far as it affected the possibilities of ex-Service men and women receiving preferential consideration. It amounted to the abandonment of a path which led downward and making a new trail upwards. It was not hoped that at one stroke, the principle enunciated would be rightly adhered to, but it was nevertheless, felt that much might be accomplished from a start in the right direction.

To-day, what do we find—a return of the old system of appointment known as patronage; a reward for service rendered during an election campaign, while men and women who have served their country during more than four years of battle, possessing the qualifications necessary for certain positions, disabled in some cases and not re-established, are deprived of their preferential rights in Civil Service appointments. Investigation has shown that ex-Service applicants for various positions during the past few months have received scant consideration in the awarding of these positions. The writer does not believe that there is any doubt in the minds of the general public to the right of ex-Service men and women to preferential treatment in Civil Service appointments, providing, however, that they possess the necessary qualifications.

Upon demobilization the G.W.V.A. presented one source through which the Government could put into practice effectively, the policy which it recommended to all employers—that the preference be given in employment to former members of the Regiment, Navy, and other branches of the service. How can the Government of to-day, merit the confidence of the ex-Service men when Departmental Heads, and others holding positions of trust, are permitted to hand out "raw deals" to ex-Service men and women. Prior to the adjournment of the House of Assembly during the past session, the Government was asked to give certain statistics showing the number of ex-Service men employed in Civil Service positions. This information has not, as yet, been forthcoming.

The time has arrived when the G.W.V.A. Dominion Command, should request the Government to immediately form a Civil Service Commission which would have the awarding of all appointments, after due publicity of same had been given. Every citizen would then have a chance of making application for the positions vacant; dissatisfaction would be eliminated and the decision of a strictly impartial Commission accepted by all. The opinion of the general public is the answer. Give The Ex-Service Man A Square Deal. He Deserves It.

Yours respectfully,
"FOUR YEARS G.W.V.A. MEMBER."

Eczema Tortured Her on Face and Hands

HERE IS A VERY RECENT CURE IN NEWFOUNDLAND.

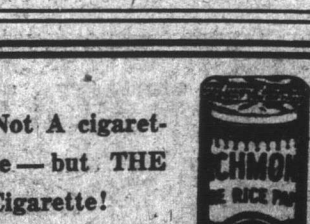

From September, 1920, I was a sufferer from eczema of the worst kind and I tried one doctor and the remedy he gave me would take the fire out of me. I could not even wash my face and hands, and to tell the truth I was tortured. After trying a good many remedies I said I would send to my druggist and get a bottle of D.D.D. on hearing so much about it, and I used it, one bottle two weeks and now I can use water to my face and every sign of it has disappeared from my skin.

You can certainly publish this letter as my friends know it to be a real fact.
Yours truly,
MRS. JAMES RYAN,

Ask your druggist and he will tell you what D.D.D. Prescription has accomplished in your own neighborhood. Your money back unless the first bottle relieves you.

Goodyear Cord Tires are to-day giving more than twice the mileage of ten years ago, according to veteran users.

Yet present Goodyear prices are far below those of 1910. Quality was never so high; prices never so attractive.

It is only natural therefore that more and more car owners are insisting upon Goodyear Cord Tires.

The long life and low cost of Goodyear Cord Tires is something for motorists to consider. They add considerably to the economy of operation every owner desires.

THE FATAL STORY OF STAG BAY.

The Evening Telegram.

Mr. J. Roche tells us that he has read Mr. Henry Bell's letters in your last two issues and also the report of Mr. John Roche. I shall deal as briefly as possible with Mr. Roche's report in order to take up too much of your valuable space as there are a couple of matters that I would like to refer to in this letter. Mr. Roche says he travelled 2 1/2 miles from the mouth of the river in a steam launch and 7 to 8 miles further in a boat. She was water prevented him from going further, although his boat drew only 12 inches of water.

Mr. Roche and I in 1910 went twelve miles from the mouth of the river in a large sized trap boat, with all our outfit and food supplies on a raft. The boat which had a deep keel, and the water was three feet deep, and we were able to go on a large scale of water.

Mr. Roche says, "I consider the timber in the area is of no commercial value, and is scrubby and very branched down to the ground, and very much of it is of no account on account of not sufficient nutriment in the poor soil to keep them growing. The average size of the trees is about 7 inches in the stock."

Mr. Roche's statement carries its own refutation for how in the name of that is reasonable could a soil that is too poor to keep the large trees produce these self same trees? that nature can produce in her work she can well take care of when she has produced it; if not she does not produce it at all. It is worthy to note also that only the large trees were dead, all of them. How it was that some of the small scraggy ones were dead he does not explain. He speaks of an average of about 7 inches in the stock, but a list of smaller size trees is always found in a forest; these help to make the average size, therefore his average of 7 inches must have been made up by including a great many of the smaller size trees, consequently Mr. Roche tells us in effect that there were more inches in the stock. After examining the timber he tells of the dead and booming facilities of a suitable location for buildings, etc. This shows the discerning mind that there was a lurking condemnation in his mind that he had made some profit after all because a condemned piece of timber when it is not a Big Brook then why speak of it, booming and buildings. These things are out of the question altogether where no timber of commercial value exists!

The timber limit begins three miles from the mouth of the river and extends thirty miles further inland, before Mr. Roche went only 6 1/2 miles above the beginning of the timber property. This distance he estimated, and, most likely, over in the ratio as he has estimated the timber growth, consequently he saw that a great deal of the timber in the area under lease on Big Brook was condemned. Other statements in Mr. Roche's report I could not be mistaken ideas were it necessary. Having dealt with what I shall tell your readers what Mr. Roche says of the Big Brook timber, I will now deal with the very person whom he knows the locality well and can vouch for the fact that there is a large size grows there. Mr. S. R. Winsor fished at Indian Island off the mouth of Big Brook a few years ago. He told me in the presence of two other gentlemen yesterday that they were about 3 miles up Big Brook and saw these trees that a man could not span around in the stock. I feel assured, is sufficient vindication for me before my fellow citizens. Outside opinions I care not at all in only in so far as they affect the property. Let a casual acquaintance and Captain Bob's is almost a perfect stranger to me, yet both were glad to give their support in this controversy and very kindly accorded me permission to use their names.

While writing my previous letters, Mr. Editor, I have met Mr. Bell in person. He very kindly showed me his report he held which was represented to him as being written and signed by me. The greater portion of this document is a copy of the words of my report to the owners of the property, but alterations and changes of a material nature had been made to cause it to be a document that I would not sign were I asked to do so. The signature to this report is a forgery. My full name is signed in a handwriting strange to me. It certainly is not mine. Mr. Bell was very kind to furnish me with the report who had been furnished him by the owner who was negotiating the sale of the property to him. On comparing it with another print of the same chart I found it had been doctored in such a way as to show 30, 40 and 50 fathoms in places that are almost dry of low water and which were so indicated on the survey plan. There were ten false soundings written in with a fine top pen in as close as possible a representation of the printed figures; these false soundings ranged from 50 to 50 fathoms. The alterations on my report, the false soundings on the chart and the forging of my name were all done to deceive Mr. Bell. Both he and I are the victims of a designing mountebank. The B. J.

John's owners of the property knew nothing of these happenings. They used only my genuine report and the plans I furnished them with. It was someone or other of the parties who handled or negotiated the sale between the owners and the prospective purchaser who, for personal gain, stooped to these low down tricks. Had I the means to do so I certainly would employ a detective to find out the rascal who forged my name to that report, and I would prosecute him to the full extent of the law.

Putting false soundings on a chart issued by the British Admiralty is, I learn, an offence punishable by law. Should this chart have fallen into the hands of a master mariner, loss of life and property could easily have been the outcome of the false soundings. The work of some unscrupulous person set Mr. Bell and me at cross purposes and it during this discussion any of my writings hurt his feelings, I take this opportunity of expressing my regret for the same, and likewise tendering him my full forgiveness for his part in this matter. It would certainly be better for both of us to be on friendly terms when we take that projected air-flight to Labrador together.

Thanking you very much, Mr. Editor, for all the space you have given me.

Yours truly,
MICHAEL J. JAMES.

Star Movie on Monday.

Rex Ingram's $1,000,000 production of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," made for Metro, is announced by the Star Theatre, for Monday. This will be the first showing here of the screen version of Vicente Blasco Ibañez's novel that has been acclaimed in New York, Chicago, Boston, Pittsburgh, Detroit and Los Angeles as marking a new epoch in the development of motion pictures. At its New York opening people paid $10.00 a seat. Critics said the picture had definitely established the screen not only as capable of rivaling the stage at its best, but of surpassing it in its grip upon the emotions.

"The Four Horsemen" is the supreme expression of the Great War. Certainly no novel has so stirred the universal appeal created by its own masterpiece. The book, now in its one hundred and sixty-sixth edition, has been read throughout the world. The monumental task of transferring it to the screen was accomplished by June Mathis, who made a scenario that from all accounts has preserved the force of the original and in many incidents heightened it. But it is the director, Rex Ingram, who has apparently achieved the most sensational success. He is reported to have set a new mark in artistry of picturization.

Mr. A. S. Whiteway Dies at Boise, Idaho.

Word was received in town yesterday of the passing on the previous evening at Boise, Idaho, of Mr. A. S. Whiteway, Architect and Builder. Death resulted from an attack of peritonitis. The late Mr. Whiteway was a native of this country, and besides his wife and two children, he survived by three brothers, R. H. Whiteway, Toronto; W. T. Whiteway, Vancouver, and Jesse Whiteway, of this city; and two sisters, Mrs. A. M. Dodge, of Seattle, and Mrs. H. Atwill, St. John's.

Does Your Roof Leak?

If your roof is in good condition, coat it now with Special Roof Coating Tar and keep it good. You know best it is easier to keep a good roof free from leaks than to make a leaky roof water-tight. Prevention is always better than cure. Special Roof Coating will prevent your roof from leaking and will keep it water-tight for the next few years. A 5-gallon can costs $8.50.

If your roof leaks, fill up the cracks with Lasty-gum; put it on like putty. It won't crack like cement and won't run like tar. Lasty-gum will stop even the worst kind of leaks. Use it around chimneys and skylights. Use it around window boxes to exclude wind, dust and rain. A 5-pound pail of Lasty-gum costs $1.50. After stopping the leaks with Lasty-gum, coat the entire roof with Special Roof Coating.

If you require a new roof covering we recommend VULCANITE ROOFING, which is made and guaranteed by the Beaver Board Company. Vulcanite Roofing can be had in full size rolls to cover 100 square feet of roof surface at $5.00 per roll, complete with nails and cement; also in half rolls (18 inches wide) at $2.70 per roll, complete with nails and cement. A half size roll will cover a porch or bay window roof.

We guarantee the good qualities of Special Roof Coating, Lasty-gum and VULCANITE ROOFING. Each is the best of its kind, warranted to give you satisfaction. When you buy Beaver Board take care to look for the BEAVER BOARD BRAND on the back of each board. If it isn't there you are being cheated.

ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL.
Cup Ties—The First Blood—St. Andrew's vs. C.E.I. Result: Saints 5 Goals; C.E.I. 1 Goal. Played on Llewellyn Grounds, Aug. 21st, 1898.

Notwithstanding the fact that there was bungling galore, on the part of those in charge of the final game under the League superintendence, a very fair number attended the game between the Saints and C.E.I. last evening. When they lined up at 6.11 p.m. the following comprised the players:—

SAINTS—Scapelin; Ayre, H. Rodger, Jardine, S. Rodger, F. Smith, Walker, Monroe, Mars, Munn, and MacFarlane.

C.E.I.—Woodley; Pilot, Hayward; Godden, Ayre, Thompson; Wood, Carnell, W. Reid, Adams, and E. Reid.

The ground was sodden after the rain and therefore slippery and unfit for football, and a greater mistake could not have been made than playing under such circumstances. When the start was made, the Churchmen came up with a rush, and within two minutes had obtained a corner, but failed to score, and at once the boys in blue became aggressive. Down on the goal went the ball, but Woodley saved brilliantly, but had to jump about lively for a few minutes until Mars put the ball over the bar. Once more the blue forwards dashed down the field, and from a scrimmage in front

College Union a Live Topic in Provinces.

STATUS OF NEWFOUNDLAND IN PROPOSED ORGANIZATION TO BE CONSIDERED.

(Sydney Post.)
People interested in the federation of the colleges of the Maritime Provinces under the scheme recommended by the Carnegie Foundation, are looking forward eagerly to a meeting of the representatives of all Maritime Colleges and representatives of the governments of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, and Newfoundland, which is to be held in Halifax on the 24th of this month, according to Dr. Borden, President of Mt. Allison College. Dr. Borden informed the Post that the Halifax meeting is expected to forward the Carnegie project considerably as the representatives of the colleges and governments appointed at an earlier meeting, to draw up a constitution for the formulation of the central maritime university and to make an estimate of the financial expenditure that will be necessary to bring the much discussed project to a head.

NEWFOUNDLAND'S STATUS.
Dr. Borden stated that such colleges will have a representation of six men at the Halifax meeting. Newfoundland has been invited to send three members of its government. The Premier of New Brunswick will attend with several members of his government and similar deputations are expected from the other provinces mentioned. Newfoundland, Dr. Borden pointed out, has not the same interest in the formation of the new central university that the Maritime Provinces have, inasmuch as there is no university in that country giving Arts degrees. But the Ancient Colony will be asked to contribute something in support of the new university inasmuch as many of its sons are patrons of the universities of the three provinces interested. If the central university is formed, Dr. Borden said, Newfoundland students now attending Maritime Provinces colleges will naturally gravitate to the Nova Scotia capital.

The Carnegie Foundation, in response to appeals made a year ago by Maritime Province colleges, for funds, appointed a commission to examine into educational conditions in this part of Canada. In their report to the Foundation the commission recommended the federation of all maritime universities with Halifax as headquarters. That is, each denominational college was still to retain its name and distinctive features and do

WELSH HARD COAL HOTTER THAN U.S.
Less Ash and Much Better Heat, Says Ottawa.

GREAT DIFFERENCE
Six Tons of Welsh Gives Same Heat as Seven Tons U.S. Coal.

OTTAWA, Sept. 16.—That the Welsh Anthracite delivered already in Ottawa has a much lower ash content and a much higher heating value than American anthracite received in this country for the past few years, that it is a true anthracite but breaks easier on handling and produces more fines than Pennsylvania anthracite coal, are the summarized results of an analysis of samples of Welsh coal submitted to John McLeish, director of the Dominion Government for testing. The report of the analysis is signed by R. E. Gilmore, chief engineering chemist, and B. F. Haanel, B.Sc., chief of the division of fuels and fuel testing.

An equal quantity of the lump and "fines", or dust, as some Ottawans who have received a delivery of the Welsh anthracite are disposed to call it, were submitted to the director of mines for testing. From the analysis given and from conversation with an official of the testing branch, it is claimed that the fines have excellent heating properties and should be extremely serviceable for the purpose of banking furnaces.

From further tests made it is seen that compared with Pennsylvania anthracite such as Ottawans have been used burning the Welsh anthracite has practically 10 per cent. less ash and about 10 per cent. more fixed carbon.

The British thermal unit is the amount of heat required to raise the temperature of a pound of water one degree. Under this test it is found that the calorific value of the Welsh anthracite is given as 14,860 as compared with 12,490 for Pennsylvania anthracite "as received," or 15,200 for Welsh as compared with 13,000 for Pennsylvania when dried at 105 degrees Centigrade.

According to these tests therefore the Welsh anthracite has from 17 to 19 per cent. more heat producing properties than that from Pennsylvania, so that six tons of Welsh anthracite should produce as much heat as seven of the Pennsylvania coal.

part of the work of the university courses while scientific subjects would be taught by the central university. Such a proposition, if carried out by the universities, would be endowed adequately, the commission pointed out. No specified sum was set by the commission for the removal of the colleges to Halifax, but it was intimated that the sum of $500,000 would be allowed each of them to cover removal expenses. The commission recommended that the colleges get together and make out a statement of their financial needs. They would be disposed to support generously any plan of federation which might be arrived. To receive a report on the cost of the new central university's establishment, is one of the main purposes of the Halifax meeting on the 24th. The committee appointed for the purpose of determining the cost has been at work for some considerable time past and it is understood, now have a financial estimate of the college removals carefully prepared.

OLD SCOTCH DIVINES.
Good old Saturday night of over sixty years ago—how I love to think of the happy days spent at the home friends, and reading a chapter from the good book before retiring to rest. Did you ever read Dr. Waddell's translation of the last four verses of the 52nd Chapter of Isaiah, they are impressively beautiful: "Blythe and brack out, lit' a' like ane ye bourocks sae awak' o' Jerusalem; for the Lord He has hearten'd His folk fu' kin'. He has e'en boucht back Jerusalem. "The Lord, He raz'd yont his hallie arm in sight o' the nations mony. O', an' ik neuk o' the virth sa' tak' tent an' learn the health o' our God sae bonnie o'.

"Aw, aw, clean but frae the town; mak' nor meddle w' nought that's roun'. Awa frae her bosom, hand ye soun', w' the gear o' the Lord forenent ye!
"For it's no wi' sic pingle y'ee gang the gate; nor it's no wi' sic speed ye maur spang the spate, for the Lord, He's afore ye, ear' an' late, an' Israel's God, He's ahint ye!"

The humour of the old typical pastor, it is true, has not to any extent been remarkable as a humourist—the reverse may with more truth be said of him. At the same time the Scottish pulpit has contained many earnest, good men, who were also good humourists. Yet, than the good old Scotch divines, certainly, no other class or section of the community has laid up to its credit so many witty and humorous sayings that are destined to live with the language in which they are uttered. There have been many ministers of the Gospel, of course, who not at all witty themselves, yet by reason of certain idiosyncrasies of nature and eccentricities of character, have been the cause of wit in others.

A late minister of Crossinch, in Galloway, did not disdain to illustrate his subjects with such images and allusions as were within the comprehension of his honest hearers. Accordingly, one Sabbath morning, he read a verse from the book of Exodus as follows: "And the Lord said unto Moses—shut that door I'm thinkin' it ye had to stt beside the door yersel' ye wadna be sae ready leavin' it open. It was just beside that door that Jedam Tamson, the bellman, gat his death o' cauld, an' I'm sure, honest man, he didna let it stey muckle open. And the Lord said unto Moses put out that dog. Wha let that brings dogs to the Kirk, ya' yaffin". Let me never see ye bring yer dogs here ony mair, or I'll put you an' them baith out. And the Lord said unto Moses—I see a man aneath that wast let wi' his hat on. I'm sure ye're clean out o' the ouch o' the door. Keep o' your bonnet, Tammas, an' if yer bare pow, he cauld, ye maun list get a grey worsted wig, like mysel' they're no sae dear, plenty o' them at Bob Gillespie's for tenpence." This said, he again began the verse, and at last made out the instructions to Moses in a manner more strictly in accordance with the text and with decency.

Dr. Paul, in his Past and Present of Aberdeenshire tells of a minister who, while preaching on the subject of the wiles and crafts of Satan, suddenly paused, and then exclaimed: "See him sittin' there in the crap o' the wa' What shall we do w' him, my brethren, can an' y' of you tell me? The Devil is takin' too much charge.

A certain divine—or perhaps we should say an un-certain divine—preaching a sermon from the parable of the prodigal son, took as his text the words, "And when he came to himself," and gave a reading of the passage at once unique and original. "We have here, brethren," said he, "an instance of the wonderful depth of meaning there is in scripture. We see how low this once splendid young man had fallen. When he came to himself—what does it mean. Money all gone—deserted by his friends, nothing left for him but the pawnshop. So he went and sold first his coat for a few shillings; he might live a week on that; then his waist-coat; that would not serve him long. Lastly, his trousers and his shirt would follow, and then—ah, then, my friends, he came to himself. He couldn't pawn himself, and so he went home to his father."

The older style of preaching was wonderfully graphic as well as cutting to the heart. "We freen's tak' ye heed!" Preaching from that text in Ecclesiastes "Dead flies cause the ointment of the apothecary to send forth a stinking savour. So doth a little folly that is in reputation for wisdom and honour," a North country divine illustrated his subject by of this Kirk. He is looking for a seat in almost every pew the noo. He wanna hang, for he's licht as a feather; nether will he droon, my brethren, for he can swim like a cork; but we'll shoot him wi' the gun o' the gospel! Then putting himself in the position of one aiming at an object, and imitating the noise of a shot, the minister called out exultingly: "He's doon like a dead crow! This incident would have greatly delighted the man who thus described the kind of minister he was in search of. "Name o' your guid—wark men, or preachers o' cauld morality for me. Gie me a speert-rousin' preacher that'll hand the devil under the noses of the congregation and mak' their flesh creep!"

Matrimonial relations are supposed not to have been of the most agreeable kind, that one Sabbath morning, while reading to his congregation the parable of the Supper, in which occur the passage "and another said, I have bought five yoke of oxen, and I go to prove them, I pray thee have me excused." And another said, "I have married a wife, and therefore cannot come," he suddenly paused at the end of this verse, drew off his spectacles, and looking on his hearers, said with emphasis: "The fact is, my brethren, one woman can draw a man farther away from the Kingdom of Heaven than fifty yoke of oxen."

A late Earl of Airlie, when Lord High Commissioner, had the retiring Moderator to dinner with him on the evening previous to the opening of the General Assembly Edinburgh. In a spirit of mischief, the Earl tried to unfit him for his duties on the following day. As often as the reverend gentleman would endeavour to retire, the Earl met him with the exclamation: "Another glass, and then!" In spite of his late obligations, the minister was in his place on the following day, and preached from the words, "The wicked shall be punished, and that right early." Notwithstanding the manifest impatience of the Commissioner, the sermon was spun out to an inordinate length, the minister repeating with meaning emphasis each time that the sand glass which showed the half-hours was turned. "Another glass, and then, the wicked shall be punished, and that right early."

A certain divine—or perhaps we should say an un-certain divine—preaching a sermon from the parable of the prodigal son, took as his text the words, "And when he came to himself," and gave a reading of the passage at once unique and original. "We have here, brethren," said he, "an instance of the wonderful depth of meaning there is in scripture. We see how low this once splendid young man had fallen. When he came to himself—what does it mean. Money all gone—deserted by his friends, nothing left for him but the pawnshop. So he went and sold first his coat for a few shillings; he might live a week on that; then his waist-coat; that would not serve him long. Lastly, his trousers and his shirt would follow, and then—ah, then, my friends, he came to himself. He couldn't pawn himself, and so he went home to his father."

this example: "See John at the Kirk, an' he looks amon' folk a man o' mense, but follow him to the post-mos, an' ye'll hear him teillin' coorse stories to the loons an' queans, haudin' them lauchin' at s'. There's a dead flea in John's sowl!" Sometimes, in his endeavour to give a vivid description, this same preacher became delightfully grotesque. Referring to Jonah, "The whawl," he said, "Shoutherin' awa' the waves, got at last seyan near the shore, and cried Byock-up. But Jonah didna come. Then the whawl cried (speaking it louder, and imitating the whawl retching) Byock-up! But na! Jonah aye stuck. Then the whawl cried (speaking it very loud and slow) Byock-up! Noo, sirs, dinna ye see Jonah rinnin', dreeplin' up the beach? Once he described the progress of a sinner in a course of vice to the last stage of his hopelessness, when there is nothing left for him but a cry of pain. "Sirs, not wery ye know there's a sheepie tether'd, an' in o' reach o' it's tether there's a bream buss (brown buss) an' it gangs round the buss, and round the buss, till it's hankit at the head, an' then, what does it dee? It cries, Bae! That's just the sinner cryin' out in its meesry." In the same sermon, looking down upon the old women who sat near the pulpit and on the pulpit stairs for the purpose of better hearing, in their clean white mutes, he said, "Here ye're a sittin', w' yer auld wither'd faces, that's bonnier to me than a lass in her teens, for I ken ye has seen sixty or seventy years, like ane o' ye, an' yer auld faces just say to me, "We has served our Maister threescore years thegither, an' we're no tired servin' Him yet." It does not surprise one to be told that this reference to the old women put them in a state of visible emotion.

The pastor of a small congregation of Dissenters in the west of Scotland, in prayer, often employed terms of familiarity towards the great being whom he invoked, was praying one day that such weather would be granted as was necessary for the ripening and gathering in of the fruits of the earth, when, pausing suddenly, he added in a lower tone of voice, "But needs it talk? When I was up at the shotts the other day, everything was as green as the leeks!"

The Rev. Dr. Young, of Perth, used to be annoyed by a couple coming to church, sitting away in the gallery; "Sh—Sh—" as they talked in lovers' language all through the service. He could stand it no longer, so one Sunday he stopped in the middle of his sermon, looked up to the gallery, and said, "If that couple in the right hand gallery there will come to me on Monday I will make them for nothing, if they will stop that "Sh—Sh."

Rev. Walter Dunlop, of Dumfries, while pursuing his pastoral visitation among some of the country members of his flock came one evening to a farmhouse where he was expected, and the mistress, thinking that he would be in need of refreshment, proposed that he should take his tea before engaging in exercise, and said she would soon have it ready. Mr. Dunlop's reply was, "I aye tak my tea better when my wark's done. I'll just

TRINITY.

When I was a boy I was taught to begin my letters to friends with the words: "I now take up my pen to drop you these few lines, hoping they will find you in good health, as, thank God, it leaves us all at present."

A friend who never misses an opportunity to be kind and helpful to me, kept an account of the names of visitors to Trinity during my absence, hoping that such information might be useful to me when I resumed my notes—and it was.

THE INDIVIDUAL GIVER.

A woman I know never gives a birthday present. Nor any Christmas presents. Nor any anniversary presents. Sincerely as she were a self, she isn't. On the contrary, she is very generous person in many ways, especially about gift giving. She doesn't like to give to a fixed number of people, on special days. She likes to give when the spirit moves her whom she chooses.

When the Spirit Moves.

What do both," she says, "that is, a regular list of Christmas and birthday gifts, and give gifts when I like it, and so I choose to do the way. It's much more satisfying. I think when I see something

Mr. Faunce Explains.

POSES AS BENEFACTOR OF NORTH WEST COAST.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—I am in receipt of a copy of your issue of September 22nd quoting a letter of mine sent the Philadelphia Public Ledger appealing for worn clothing to be sent North to poor but worthy people. I note that nobody knows me in St. John's. I have never been there. I have been married, and they are made up of all degrees of character and worth, just as men are anywhere. Some do not try but wait for outside aid, others do not need aid but want to get "their share," others try hard, will work at anything and are in every way worthy and for that class I have done and shall do again what I can.

Permit me to state briefly what has been done by The Temple Brotherhood of the Grace Baptist Church of this city along lines cited above. Since last fall they have sent to Newfoundland 27 cases of clothing in good usable condition and over 100 pairs of shoes and these have been distributed by clergymen regardless of race, creed, or religion and by the writer. I saw this summer a coming need and being urged on by letters received, almost without number, some of which were from people worthy and some not at all worthy, I took the matter up again and propose to carry it on. I was personally taken this summer by clergymen to places where they told me people were starving and where I could see, believe, in winter. I did not think it possible in summer. I saw families with dried caplin and herring, no flour, no potatoes but living on fish for days at a time, emaciated, anaemic and nearly naked. People, to whom a barrel of flour, a gallon of molasses and a pound of tea is a winter luxury. If you, Mr. Editor, have not seen all those things, then you have not travelled in the outports—the bays and in the coves. For your information regarding the writer is, permit me to say: Business—worn—married, and Mrs. Faunce has been with me every summer and fall to such places as a woman could go. In our years upon the island we have traded with the merchants and employed labor, returned this year in August and hope to go again. We have left on the island more than $20,000 in cash and wish it was more. We have been able through the Temple Brotherhood to keep warm many a person who otherwise would have been cold, and if our resolution to continue so to do is "knocking Newfoundland," then we plead guilty and suggest more knockers as a solution of the clothing problem.

Mr. Editor, a man with no clothes cannot eat pit props or pulp wood nor can he do out door work in bad weather. A man unable to work is a candidate for relief, and if by clothing him he can and will work, he at once recovers independence and therefore is not compelled to call on the Magistrate for relief—hence we were led to believe that clothing was a benefit to all the country. One cannot acquire clothing without a reason and the reason is that people used it and it must be sold.

Please do not imagine that I do not know the man with money in the bank who seeks charity or the people who would take clothing from me and sell it for tobacco. I know them both; but I also know hundreds of poor but, worthy ones and to them my letter refers and my efforts are directed. One word regarding the merchants. I know how far some have gone in the matter of credit and in providing for their people—to the very limit, even almost to the point of their own distress, but I have always felt and feel now that the class of people whom we have assisted could not buy supplies and pay for them and clothing also. The merchant will agree with me that he had better sell such things as he can collect, for rather than sell so much that his customers could not pay for a part. I want to add that I am not in the Missionary field. I do catch some salmon in the summer, have shot Caribou in the fall, but above these things I have had more than twenty summers in the pursuit of atmospheres, among a people whom I have learned to admire for more reasons than have any place in the telling here.

Yours truly,
J. S. FAUNCE

Manoa in Port.

HAD STORMY PASSAGE.

S.S. Manoa, Capt. Waterlow, arrived from Montreal and Charlottetown at 4 p.m. yesterday after a very stormy trip from the latter port. The Manoa has about two thousand tons of general cargo, including some twelve thousand barrels of flour. The ship brought the following passengers:—Mrs. J. P. Kelly, Gratton Kelly, Miss Elsie Huret, J. H. Adams, and Mrs. Thibaudou. The Manoa will likely get away again for Montreal late Monday night or early Tuesday morning.

A Large Fish Shipment.

S.S. MONS TAKES OVER 32,000 QTLs. S.S. Mons sailed last evening for the Mediterranean taking 32,512 1/2 qtls. of codfish and 5017 feet of lumber. The fish cargo, made up by various shippers is as follows: 3380 packages for Alicante, containing 13,823 qtls., and 50 barrels of caplin; 1060 packages for Ancona, containing 4067 1/2 qtls., and 3963 packages containing 14,622 qtls. for Naples, or a total of 32,512 1/2 qtls. The lumber was shipped by the Horwood Lumber Co., to Alicante on a special order from one of the concerns operating over there. The greatest part of the fish cargo was shore cured.

New Industry.

BIG DEMAND FOR PARTRIDGE BERRIES.

During the past ten years the export of partridge berries has grown into a profitable, if small, industry. 140,000 gallons have been shipped to American centres where they will be made into jam. The pickers are paid at the rate of 20 cents per gallon, and, as the berries are plentiful this is a remunerative return. The value of this year's shipments is about $30,000. A large consignment left by the Silvia today.

The High Standard of Home-Dyeing

The High-Standard mark of Home Dyeing has been reached by the SUNSET Way. SUNSET is just one more triumph of Modern Science applied to an old Household Art.

Women who previously could not be prevailed upon to even consider home dyeing in any shape or form have become delighted and enthusiastic converts to the Modern SUNSET Way of reclaiming old garments and draperies and of developing rare and beautiful color schemes with inexpensively purchased materials.

SUNSET dyes silk, wool, cotton, linen or mixed goods permanently, in one dye bath, renews the life of fabrics and gives them new and interesting color. It cleans while it dyes.

It's a REAL Dye. Ask your dealer to show the SUNSET Color Card. If he can't supply you, mail us 15c and we will send the color desired. Don't accept substitutes. Our Home Service Department will help you solve your Dyeing Problems if you write.
