number of people with axes to grind were on hand. His worship took the oath of office in his private room shortly before 11 o'clock. Judge Boyd administered it.—The mayor entered the council chamber at 11 o'clock under the escort of Ald. Baxter and Adamson. His worship was attired in a brand new broadcloth suit of the Q.C. cut, and he carried in his hand a draped beaver. It was said Mr. Manning would revive the befrilled sleeves and shirt front so well known in the days of the late Mayor Morrison, but this was not the case, as his worship wore a plain boiled shirt, a regulation pair of cuffs and a white tie. Thirty-five members of the new council were in their places and subscribed to the declaration. Ald. Shaw was the only absentee, being away on account of illness. hand. by his worship. Quite a number of corks were pulled, and the contents of the bottles stowed away.

Mayor Manning delivered his inaugural address just after the council opened. He assured the aldermen that he would advocate strict economy in every department, and retrenchment wherever possible, consistently of course-with a due regard for the city's requirements. He would aid them in every possible way in promoting every work which would add to the health and cleanliness and good government of the city. He would especially insist apon greater cleanliness of the thoroughfares. Amongst the most important matters that should engage their attention was thorough repairing of the engine house, pumping wells, crib and wooden conduit pipes at Hanlan's point, so as to secure an unfailing supply of pure water from the lake. The construction of a trunk sewer was urgently demanded to divert the sewage from the bay to some point east of Ashbridge's bay. He recommended the council to invite leading citizens to a conference as to the best course to adopt in carrying out this work.

As head of the council it was his duty to report on the condition of the finances. He asked their attention to the treasurer's report of receipts and expenditures for the past year as compared with the year 1883. It would be found that in almost every department of expenditure there had been a large increase, which, if continued in the future and during the period of depression, must result in increasing the taxation to a point beyond the legal limit of two cents in the dollar, the present rate being 18 mills, including the ocal improvement rate, as he believed the debenture debt had increased from $2,600,000 in 1873 to $7,000,000 in 1884. He called particular attention to the fact that the annual increase in the value of real and personal property subject to agessement is not keeping pace with the very great increase in the rate of expenditure. For instance, the demand for school purposes, exclusive of buildings, was in 1873 $58,995. In 1884 it was $184,000, being one fifth of all the ordinary taxes collected. The police department was $21,236 in 1873 and $134,296 in 1884. The rate in the dollar had increased from 12½ mills in 1873 to 15½ mills in 1884, with 2½ mills for local improvements in 1884. The population had increased from 67,000 to 95,000 from 1873 to 1884. The general debt in 1884 was $6,202,808, with a local improvement debt of $837,430—a total of $7,040,-239. He recommended to the council that they apply to the legislature for power to control the expenditure of the police and public school boards.

They should carefully consider how far the proposed annexation of Parkdale would benefit Toronto. If they had to incur a large expenditure and assume any additional liability, he thought they had better remain as they were, but if they could unite on a reasonable basis the union might prove of mutual advantage. He thought the work of street watering could be done cheaper and to better advantage by letting out at contract. The water-warks arresident of the first proposed and to the street advantage by l might prove of mutual advantage. He thought the work of street watering could be done cheaper and to better advantage by letting out at contract. The water-works expenditure was very large, the cost of fuel alone amounting to the enormous sum of $52,000 during the past year. He strongly recommended the appointment of a competent manager to this department. He would, as soon as possible, investigate the complaints against the police commissioners. He would recommend the doing away with the local improvement initiative principle, compelling citizens to make improvements when they did not ask for them. He referred to the large increase in the number confined in the jail. He did not think assessors should re-value lands every year. He thought two aldermen from each ward would be sufficient. Also, that a permissive bill he obtained from the dominion parliament regarding the Esplanade, and also to make application to the legislature for the abolition of tax exemptions. [Applause.]

AMERICAN LEGATION.

The Strange Conversation That a Visitor to London Overheard in a Tenement With the mail matter received by The

This is sent to The World in advance of any other paper, in the nope that they will honorably absain from trying to identify the writer or assist others to do so, as his identification with such a confession would be political, professional, and social ruin. We can assure our mysterious correspondent that it is not our intention to start a private detective agency, but we cannot help thinking that it his story be true he should have found some means of communicating with the legation, in order that the house where he overheard the converation might have been watched and Mr. Lowell and his subordinates put on their guard. However, that is pone of our uneral, but here is the story, which can be taken au serieux or any other way that may mit the reader .

suit the reader:

The recent fire at the American legation offices, London, may have something to de with the circumstance I am about to relate. A few weeks ago I was in London and took shelter one evening about 6 o'clock from a sudden shower in a doorway in the Strand. A handsome girl of about 20 was seeking shelter in the same doorway. We got into conversation, and I agreed to accompany her home. She led me through some narrow streets north of the Strand passing Long. Acre, and turned into a narrow court-yard with high tenement houses on both sides. Entering one of the houses, I found myself in a small room, two sides of which were thin board partitions, evidently dividing up what had been a large, handsome room. Its furniture was old and mean, the walls whitewashed, and as far as could be conveniently reached was papered with pictures from the illustrated papers. The girl summoned an old hag from the depths below, who brought in beer, biscuits, cheese and two bottles of wine at my expense, which I fear I partook of the freely, as I must have fallen asleep. When I awoke I was alone and in total darkness, and, hearing voices in the adjoining room, I kept quiet and listened. Two men were in earnest consultation. From their voices I judged one to be a man of education and position, and the other a cockney of the lower orders, his remarks being plentifully sprinkled with oaths. I could not hear every word that wassald, but theardenoughto inform me that a plot to blow up the American legation offices in London, and possibly the American Exchange was in progress. The aristocratic voice distinctly agreed to meet the other party the day after the job was done and pay him one thousands pounds. Whether the job was to blow up one or both of the places mentioned I could not clearly understand. The aristocratic voice complained in the clear deliberate tones of an educated Englishman how easily access could be gained to the waiting room (of the legation I supposed), and the necessary material carried in a box go up to rese

A Chance for Trinity.

We are bold enough to suggest to Principy Body and his fellows in the govern ment of Trinity college that the aim of Bishop Strachan the venerable founder of that institution would beat be vindicated by accepting the scheme of university federation now under discussion. Were Trinity to self or rent her valuable prop erty in the west end of the city, get a free site from the government for new build ings in the Queen's park, move the establisment up there, build a first-class residence hall for anglican students, she would still have plenty of money left to many a thoroughly equipped theological college. The faculty and board of man agement would thereby be able to super rise the education of not 35 but mor likely from 100 to 150 students of their own faith, the bulk of whom would be merely taking an arts course.

Trinity would have her due representa tion on the senate of the provincial university and she would make her influence felt in all university affairs. There is no doubt, further, that such an anglican in stitution, presided over by Provost Body and his fellow professors, would be the leading one from the social and other standpoints of the cluster of colleges now forming round the provincial university. How much better an educated ministry they would be able to turn out. Their men would get a better training in arts, free of all cost to Trinity, for the simple reason that the provincial institution is bester equipped; they would get a better training in theology, for all the resources of the college could be devoted to that branch. Surely the reverend provost

The Lancet prints the report of the special commission sent out from England to India to inquire into the cause of cholera, with particular reference to the theory of Prof. Koch, the German physiologist, who regards the minute germ known as the comma bacillus as the true seed of the disease.

The commissioners were Dr. E. Klein and Dr. Heneage Gibbs, both medical men of distraction, and accomplished in physi ological resea ch. The result of their labors in the very home of cholera is tersely stated by Dr. J. M. Cunningham, the sanitary commissioners of the government of British India, when he says their conclusions "are altogether subversive of the statements advanced by Prof. Koch as to the so-called comma bacillus being the cause of cholera."

Their own report shows that another organism, which they describe as a peculiar, minute straight bacillus is to be found in the hodies of persons who have died of cholera, even when the comma bacillus i absent; but neither form of bacillus, when introduced into the system of animals by inoculation, occasioned any injurious effect. The rabbits, cats and monkeys experimented on remained unaffected.

These results are important, although mostly negative. They indicate to physicians that they must look beyond Koch's comma bacillus for the true cause of cholera. In view of the possibility that the disease may visit our own country this year, the report of the special commission to India will be read with more than usual interest.

Russia and India.

A very forcible, if not startling, article has recently appeared in the Russian papers upon the subject of "Russia and India," and is creating something like constemation in England. The proofs are conclusive that it was written by Gen. Soboleff, whose writings on matters con nected with Turkestan and Afghanistan have always been regarded as authoritive and have been much quoted from in England and elsewhere. The London Times' St. Petersburg correspondent telegraphs a summary of it to that paper, and it is commented upon as at least a foreshadowing of Russia's policy; nor is it less unpleasant to the English because it may be declared as premature. Though the danger may not be faminent, it has caused great alarm, and it adds to the general apprehension that it appears at a time when the Anglo-Russian commission is about to commence the work of defining the Afghan frontiers, towards which the Russians are so rapidly

The English are a practical people and when they understand that we are not going to play the coward and are not afraid of their threats being put inte execution they will soon talk in another strain and come to terms. We do not want India for itself, but what we want and intend to have is the Bosphorus.

But what if we enter India and proclaim a liberation of the natives from the English yoke, leaving them their independence when the English have been routed? Should we not have millions of Indians at once on dur side? It has already been asserted by a native authority that our friends in India whenever we undertake such a task, will be as numerous as the stars in heaven. Step by step she has absorbed province after province, upon one pretense or another, until at last she has reached Merv, which is the key to Herat, where her influence has always been powerful. At last she has reached a spot where England in alarm calls for a definition of the boundaries of Afghanistan. The Cause of Cholera.

The Lauret with the report of the course o puts the case thus strongly:

A struggle in India between England and Russia for Asiatic supremacy is one of the probabilities of the future. Its inception will depend upon the period when Russia thinks the situation favorable for making the attempt. Gen. Soboleff may have spoken prematurely, but he has told ome home truths, and their significance is est attested by the alarm they are creating.

If the London Free Press wishes any netice to be taken of its editorials it must first purge them of the exaggeration which characterize them. That paper has yet to learn how to state an opponent's position fairly, and to answer an argument squarely. Perhaps the western people like that kind of writing, but we doubt it much.

We publish another letter from Shareholder discussing the position of the British American Assurance company and its approaching meeting. We have been assured by the management that there is nothing to keep back from the shareholders, and that the fullest information will be supplied at the meeting.

It has been estimated that a public speaker says in one hour, on an average. what, if printed, would occupy fifteen octavo pages. In one year he speaks fifty-two such olumes; and in thirty years he would have an extensive library of 1560 volumes It is a matter of rejoicing that the talk of society is not thus printed and perpet-

Romans came with a new religion, overthrowing the alters of Bel; building a temple and erecting therein statues and images of Grecian, Phonician, and Chal-dean astronomical deities. Saxon policy changed names of places. One rm of the ancient Britons, or Brigantines, for a river was Yar, Ayr, Aire, Ewer, Ure as variously spelt by their successors. The Ure river flowed out of valleys among the western hills, washing the walls of Eboraam, the old Roman fort. Saxon effort to offer a new name on that fortress and on the Brigantine territory resulted in Eure-wickscire. Wic, or Wick, or Wyke was a Bailiff's district; and Scire, the district of a Sheriff. Eurewickscire became Yorkhire; which being divided into third parts, or Thirdings, these were locally called Trid-ings. In time the term was written Ridings; This word for electoral districts has come to modern Canada. Having in World of Wednesday 14th traced the name of the English translator of christian gospels, that name may now be written Wykeeliffe, or John of Wickliff as at his native cradle ground on Yorkshire bank of Tees river. By permission of The World's master I may return to the Witcomote—Parliament of Wise men—and rapidly follow the light of christianity from the day of Edwin, king of the land from Humber to Tweed, taking into the pen in passing two sen-tences written by John of Wickliff; closing with a beautifully expressed illustration of the Ever-Running Waters of Eter nal Life, uttered lately by Archbisho Lynch, and quoted in the pulpit by Rev. THE COMBAULT'S TORONTO

Is undoubtedly the most valuable and reliable Veterinary Remedy ever discovered. It has superseded the Actual Cantery or hot iron; produces more than four times the effect of a blister; takes the place of all liniments, and is the safest application ever used, as it is impossible to produce a scar or blemish with it. It is a powerful, active, reliable and safe remedy that can be manipulated at will for severe or mild effect. Thousands of the best Veterinarians and Horsemen of this country testify to its many wonderful cures and its great practical value. It is also the most economical remedy in use, as one tablespoonful of Caustic Balsam will produce more actual results than a whole pottle of any liniment or spavin cure mixture ever made. ### THE CENUINE PIANO, Manufactured by Rainer & Co., Guelph, Ont.

Manufactured by Rainer & Co., Guelph, Ont.

The undersigned respectfully amounce that on the 9th day of April, 1884, Joseph F. Rainer dissolved partnership with Frank Sweetnam and John Hazelton, as piano manufacturers, and that said Joseph F. Rainer, with his son, will continue to manusacture the original cross-scale Pianos, of which the said Joseph F. Rainer is the sole inventor.

Since the above dissolution, Mr. Rainer, sr., has greatly improved the small Cross-scale Piano by adding one string more to each note throughout the middle, making three strings to each note instead of two, thus giving the Piano a third more power of tone throughout the middle. There will be fifty-three notes from the treble down that will have three strings instead of twenty-four notes from the treble down that will have three strings instead of twenty-four notes from the treble down as formerly. The undersigned will give to wholesale and retail customers the benefit of this improvement by letting them have these Pianos for the same price as the ones formerly made with two strings.

These Pianos have now been before the public for 23 years, and have always rasked among the very best, and are celebrated for quality of tone, great power and durability of action, prompt elastic touch, fine finish and elegant style of case, combined with every known improvement. The most complete and unbroken list on record, embracing a period of 30 years, and diplomes, received at the principal exhibitions in Canada—Montreal, Kingston, Toronto. iplomes, received at the principal exhibitions in Canada—Montreal, Kingston, Toronto, Hamilton and London. At the Centennial Exhibition in Philadelphia, in 1876, we secured a medal and diploma for our piano. The great favor with which the cross-scale pianos have been received for so long a period, and the reputation they bear, has induced others to intate them. We therefore caution intending purchasers and dealers wishing to obtain the critical cross-scale piano to see that the name original cross-scale piano to see that the mof "Rainer & Co." is on each instrument.

A LOVE MATCH.

BY O. B. SMEPPARD. It was a chilly November night when the train got into Hampden.

Hampden was one of those now unfinlished places which require the brightest of sunlight, the greenest frame of quivering leaves to make them at all presentable.
And in the gray, uncompremising medium of the November dusk Hampden looked dreary enough, with the dark chimney of the new silk mill piping out of the hemlook woods, the staring Queen Anne depot, the church, which bore a strong family resemblance to a child's wooden toy, and the stone quarry to the left, which resembled the thoughtful lookers. Hampden was one of those now unfinthe stone quarry to the left, which resembled the thoughtful looker-on of a sembled the thoughtful looker on of a gigantic fortification in an unfinished state.

"Humph!" said Mrs. Nedley, as she looked around her. "A queer place!"
Her niece Phebe was there to meet her with a wagon and a white-nosed old horse.

"Folks can't always choose where they're to live," said Phebe, who was always in a state of antagonism to Mrs. Nedley, "and Hampden is good enough for me."

"How is Philip," said Phebe, as she helped the dorot boy to hoist Aunt Nedley.

"Didn't you get my letter?" said Philip's wife.

for me."

"How is Philip," said Phobe, as she helped the dopot boy to hoist Aunt Nodley's trunk into the wagon.

Philip Barrow was Aunt Nedley's favorite nephew; she had paid his bills at school, superintended his fortunes, and finally purchased a share for him in the new silk mill

"He's all I've got," said Mrs. Nedley,
"except Phosbe, and Phosbe and I never did hitch horses together. And I want him to succeed in the world."
But within a few days a new channel had arisen to Aunt Nedley's protection and tender consideration.

and tender consideration.

"To be sure she is no relation to me," said Mrs. Nedley. "But her mother was said Mrs. Nedley. "But her mother was my dearest friend, and I think I will adopt her 'for my sake.'"

And it was scarcely an hour from the time in which she learned that Silvia Gray was an orphan that she wrote a kind letter to the distribution bear the same and the silving house. to the girl, inviting her to come to the east "If you like it, my dear, there need be no occasion for your going back," she wrote. "We are both alone. Let us be companions to one another."

She had waited and waited, and no reply had arrived; and while she waited a plan had developed itself in her mind.

"If she's her mother's daughter she can't help being ptetty," said Mrs. Nedley.

"Pnil is a handsome lad. She shall marry

And this explains Mrs. Nedley's presence at Hampden.
"I suppose you are still keeping house for Philip?" said she to Phebe, as they drove along in the chill twilight.

"No," said Phebe, skilfully guiding the old horse down a steep place in the road.

"He boards, eh?" said Mrs. Nedley.

"No; he don't board," answered Phebe;

"his wifs keeps house for him."

"What?" said Mrs. Nedley.

"He is married," announced Phebe, very much in the tone in which she might have said: "It is a cold evening," or "The train is the."

is "Pailip married!" repeated the old lady — "married! Stop, Phebe; don't drive a step further! Turn around at once. Take me back to the station. I'll return to Concord. 'Aia't you going to see Philip?" asked

"Not if he's married," answered Mrs. Nedley, in a choked voice.
"He's got a proper, nice wife," pleaded Phebe. "You'll like her." "No, I shan't," said Mrs. Nedley.
"Philip—married. Phebe, if you don't turn around I'll get out and walk."
Mrs. Nedley's will was like adamant, and Poebe Barrow was forced to succumb And so it happened that Phebe and the white nosed pony arrived, solitary and alone, at the little cottage of the mill superintendent half an hour later.

Philip came out into the porch, carrying a lamp in his hand. Mrs. Phil ran after him with a pink apron tied around her trim waist and her brown fringe of hair blowing back from her forehead.

"Where's my aunt?" said Phil, as Phebe jumped out. "Didn't she come?"

"She came," said Phebe, curtly; "but

"Oh! but Phil, she has done so much "She's a good soul, but she's eccentric," said the mill superintendent. "Go in, Phebe, and get your tea."

'I'm sure I can't eat a mouthful," said Mrs. Phil, despairingly. "And the biscuits I mixed myself, and the fried chicken, and the White Mountain cahe-oh! Phil!

"Don't fret, dear," said Phil, "my Aunt Nedley has missed a very good supper; that I can tell her." But I've blighted your future," said Mrs. Barrow, tragically seizing the sugar-

"We'll go to Concord to-morrow and see the old lady," soothed Phil. "She must surrender if she sees you, wifey." Phebe chuckled grimly.
"That's all very well," said she; "but you forget that an old lady and a young man don't look at a girl with the same eyes."

-"Hold your tongue, Phebe," said the mill superintendent. "Where's the use of

AMUSEMENTS.

A Bunch of Keys at the Grand. It was a relief to the managerial heart to see a good house after the two or three weeks of dull business, at the Grand opera house last night. Those that attended to see and hear the satirical musical comedy of the Bunch of Keys were rewarded by an exceedingly brisk and entertaining performance. There are ten very clever people in the company. Outside of a fusilade of entertaining music the piece is full of taking gags on modern hotel life, and they are cleverly interpreted by the they are cleverly interpreted by the com-pany. Fun at Montford's Museum Mills, Rice and Barton's minstrels caught on at Montford's museum last night and their excellent performance was rewarded by a crowded house and the company was enthusiastically received. Minstrelsy, when of a refined clean nature, is one of the popular amusements of the day and it may safely be said that Manager Montford's attraction this week fills the bill. They will and outletely have a preservous run. matiness will be given every afternoon at 2.30.

The Queen's Own Masquerade P stport ments are not always unfortu nate adairs. The Queen's Own Rifles' masquerade carnival came off at the Granite rink last night, after being post-poned from Wednesday nightlast. It was a success in every sense, and the ample rink was crowded with gay, grave and comical skaters in costume. The citizen soldiers of this corps never do things by halves, and as everyone expected, the car-nival was an enlivening, happy affair. The excellent band of the regiment dis-

Death of J. N. Scatcherd in Buffalo. From the Buffalo Telegraph, Jan. 19. He was born Dec. 4, 1824, at Wyton, ne London, Ont. His father was for years a prominent reformer and member of the Canadian parliament. He located here in 1852, as agent for a Canadian lumbering firm, and six years later he succeeded to the interests of the firm here, the foundathe interests of the irm nere, the founda-tion of the firm of Scatcherd & Son, which death has just dissolved. The deceased was for over thirteen years water commis-sioner of this city, and in that capacity he perfected the splendid water system of Buffalo, overcoming numerous obstacles perfected the splendid water system of Buffalo, overcoming numerous obstacles and troublesome prejudices. He took an active interest in municipal affairs, but not in politics. Was a liberal giver to charities, and since 1879 was president of the General hospital association. Was also one of the pillars of the Delaware avenue M. E. church. He leaves a widow and two children, John N. and Emily.

A Question in Surgery. Editor World: Would you inform me of the nature of a Cæsarean operation, which is evidently attracting a great deal of attention at Syracuse. MAGILL STREET.
[The operation referred to is an incision ade through the parietes of the abdomen and uterus in order to extract the feetus. It is so called from Julius Cæsar, whose irth is said to have been accomplished by means of the operation, and who received his surname from it: "A ceso matris utero dictus." N. B.—The victim of the Syracuse operation is reported dead .- ED. WORLD.

Perhaps the most extraordinary success that has been achieved in modern science has been ttained by the Dixon treatment for catarrh. attained by the Dixon treatment for catarrh. Out of 2000 patients treated during the past six months, fully ninety per cent, have been cured of this stubborn malady. This is none the eas startling when it is remembered that not five per cent, of the patients presenting themselves to the regular practitioner are benefitted, while the patent medicines and other advertised cures never record a cure at all. Startling with the claim now generally believed by the most scientific men that the disease is due to the presence of living parasites in the tissues, Mr. Dixon at once adapted his cure to their extermination; this accomplished, the catarrh is practically cured, and the permanency is unquestioned, as cures affected by him four years ago are cures still. plished, the catarrh is practically cured, and the permanency is unquestioned, as cures effected by him four years ago are cures still. No one else has ever attempted to cure catarrh in this manner, and no other treatment has ever cured catarrh. The application of the remedy is simple and can be done at home, and the presentseason of the year is the most favorable for a speedy and permanent cure, the majority of cases being cured at one treatment. Sufferers should correspond with Messrs. A. H. DIXON & SON, 305 King street west, Toronto, Canada, and enclose stamp for their treatise on catarrh.—Montreal Star. 28

DEAR SIRS.

My wife was affected with Catarrh for over fifteen years, the inside of the nose was badly eaten away with the disease. For the past five years it was almost impossible for her to breathe through her nostrils. For the last year she has constantly taken doctors' medicine without receiving ary benefit, and finally we were told that the Catarrh had got so bad that there was no cure for her. Without any hope we applied to you for your remedy and eight days after the first treatment she was able to breathe freely through her nostrils and the disease had emirely disappeared—but as you advised, she took a second treatment. It is now nearly four months since she used the remedy and she has had no signs of Catarrh and we consider it a permanent cure. However, we wishing you every success, I remain faithfully yours,
