With the practical suspension of news from the front, the interest, for the time being, centres in rumors that Victor Alexieff has resigned as reported Sunday.

One Russian correspondent points out that when the Japanese withdrew from the Russian front, it is usually the precursor of their appearance on the flanks.

London, Sept. 13--The Morning Post states that Russian despatches received in London announce that Lieut. Gen. Svalich, who commanded the portion of the Russian rear guard south of the Han river, has been captured.

BANDITS ON C. P. R. BAGGED $10,000

Company Offers $1,000 Reward for Capture of Desperadoes.

ONE ARREST MADE.

Pinkerton Men and Other Officials Hot on the Track of Others--The First Held up Road Ever Had and the Second That Occurred in Canada.

Montreal, Sept. 12--(Special)--At the Canadian Pacific headquarters today it was announced that the company has offered a reward of $1,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the bandits concerned in the daring hold-up in British Columbia on Saturday night.

Special constables in large numbers have been sworn in all along the line, and the most vigorous watch is being kept. The officials of the road are confident that the desperadoes will be captured before long.

It is believed that the total amount of loot secured by the highwaymen will be in the vicinity of $10,000. Of this amount, $5,000 was in gold dust, which was in transit from British Columbia mining towns to Vancouver and Victoria; $4,000 was in cash, which was taken from the express safe, while the remaining $1,000 is made up of the contents of registered letters.

This is the first train robbery ever reported on the Canadian Pacific, and the second in Canada, the other occurring on the Grand Trunk, near Toronto, twenty years ago.

In addition to the force of special constables and regular police, Pinkerton men have been called from St. Paul, Chicago and Vancouver, and there is every prospect that the robbers will soon be captured.

MAINE REPUBLICAN BY 33,000 PLURALITY.

Vote the Largest Cast Since 1888--Portland Votes for Open Saloon.

Portland, Me., Sept. 12--The Republican carried the state in the biennial election today, returns indicating a plurality of about 33,000 for Wm. T. Cobb, the party candidate.

In the first and second congressional districts the returns indicate the election of Amos L. Allen and Chas. E. Littlefield by about the same plurality as four years ago.

In the third district E. C. Burleigh ran ahead of his vote of four years ago. At a late hour tonight very few reports had been received from the fourth district where the re-election of Llewellyn Power is conceded.

Early returns showed that the Democrats had probably made slight gains in both branches of the legislature but that the body will remain strongly Republican and will probably re-elect U. S. Senator Eugene Hale.

QUEENS COUNTY FARMER LOST

Henry Palmer of Grand Lake Has Not Been Seen Since Wednesday.

FRUITLESS SEARCH.

Fredricton, N. B., Sept. 12--(Special)--The residents of Newcastle, Queens county, and vicinity are much perturbed over the strange disappearance of Henry Palmer, who left the home of his brother, Daniel Palmer, at Grand Lake, on Wednesday last and has not been seen since.

The missing man was not quite sound mentally, but was not considered dangerous, and was accustomed to work about the farm. On Wednesday morning he went out with the cattle and did not return.

There is an extensive wilderness of woods between Newcastle and Keboe, and his relatives became anxious and searching parties went out to look for him. He was traced along the highway for about a mile, when he evidently wandered into the woods. His last was found with the crown torn out, but further trace of him could not be seen by the searching parties, and the search is continued.

Mr. Barnett, who recently purchased the Ran Murray farm at Kingsclear, is to take a housekeeper on Wednesday of this week, when he will be married to Miss Peters, a fair young lady of Gagetown, daughter of Sherman Peters, of that place.

On the same day, Norman P. McLeod, youngest son of Dr. Joseph McLeod, of this city, will wed one of St. John's most popular young ladies, Miss Sadie Smith, daughter of the late Albert Smith, ex-M. P. P. The ceremony will take place at St. John.

On Wednesday, Sept. 21, two fashionable weddings will take place. In the afternoon George Y. Dibble will lead to the altar Miss May Delancy Robinson, of this city. The ceremony will take place in the evening. Miss Carrie Babbitt, daughter of George N. Babbitt, deputy receiver of this city, and Frank McGinnis, of Boston, will be united in marriage.

The bans were published at St. Dunstan's church yesterday, by Rev. Father Carney, of Miss Alice Moore, daughter of ex-Alderman Moore, of this city, and Benjamin Bush, of St. Mary's.

Henry G. C. Wetmore, formerly legislative librarian, died last night, aged sixty-seven. He was a brother of Justice P. L. Wetmore, of the Northwest Territories.

Two children of Mr. and Mrs. William Grannen, of Douglas, died within an hour of each other yesterday, and are being buried together this afternoon. A third child is in a critical condition today, and not expected to recover.

Miss Alice Thompson, daughter of the late David Thompson, was married this morning to Wm. Bruce Bird. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Willard McDonald, and the happy couple left for St. John and Halifax.

It seems to be the general impression, though no official announcement has yet been made on the subject, that the government will take over the Canada Eastern railway on Monday, Sept. 19.

G. Fred Whitaker, of this city, has been appointed to the position of clerk in the truck department of the I. C. R., with headquarters at Gibson.

OTTAWA HOTELS FULL, AND ELECTION TALK IS LIVELY

Cabinet Meeting Postponed Till Tomorrow, When Full Attendance is Expected--Many Preliminaries Will Have to Be Settled Before Contest is Called On.

Ottawa, Sept. 12--(Special)--The hotels look tonight as if there was a session of parliament on. The reports circulated in the press that the dissolution of parliament was at hand, and that an announcement was to be made today or tomorrow, brought a large number of politicians representing both parties to the city.

Upright the arrival of these parties very little has been said here of a general election. With the absence of the premier until today and the knowledge that the presence of the government would be necessary before dissolution was obtained, it was idle to talk of any arrangement being reached for an immediate contest.

Those who are familiar with the work preparatory to a general election know that it cannot be done in a day and at a time when the members of the government were taking a well earned rest after the laborious work of a long drawn out session of parliament.

NOVA SCOTIA PULP AND PAPER CONCERN UNDER THE HAMMER

The Sissiboo Plant Sold Under Foreclosure Yesterday--Company May Be Reorganized.

Digby, N. S., Sept. 12--(Special)--The Sissiboo Pulp and Paper Company's properties situated near Weymouth were sold at foreclosure sale in Digby this afternoon by Deputy Sheriff Barnham in the absence of Sheriff Smith, and were bought by A. A. G. Ross, of Montreal, manager of the National Trust Company, plaintiffs in the suit on behalf of the bondholders.

Among those present and bidding were W. G. Clarke, of Clarke Bros., Bear River, and G. D. Campbell, of G. D. Campbell & Co., Weymouth.

The properties comprise about 25,000 acres of good timber land covered with spruce, pine, hemlock and hardwood, two pulp mills equipped with all the necessary appliances, a large dam constructed of solid masonry, one of the best in the province, long wharf at Weymouth Bridge with large warehouse, shed 50 by 200 feet, offices, stoves, smithy, dwelling houses, village lots, etc.

Mr. Ross, who is at the Pine Hotel tonight, intimated his intention of inviting tenders for the purchase of the properties en bloc.

The Sissiboo Pulp and Paper Company was incorporated in 1909 with $250,000 in issues. Outlays of $300,000 was expended in acquiring the limits, the mill sites, the construction of dams and plant and machinery equipment.

Owing to the unfortunate flood of 1901 and the general depression in the pulp trade the concern was forced to suspend operations.

There is at present considerable enquiries for limits among the Harmsworths, of London (Eng.), proprietors of the London Mail, who are contemplating purchases in Newfoundland and Nova Scotia. It is possible that local capitalists may purchase with a view to the reorganization of the company.

At present there are thirty men employed at the Beersville coal mine. The coal sells quickly, about all the available output of the mine being contracted for in advance.

The mine at Mount Carlyle, which owing to litigation between Messrs. Foley and Seely, had been closed down for a time, has reopened. A full staff is not yet engaged, but last week about seven men were working on the premises.

Abdullah Sayre, who last fall established a mercantile business at Adamsville, has engaged an assistant to run that store and has built another store at Mount Carlyle Station, where he will now reside. The latter building is about completed.

Noble Beers and James Agnew, of Harley Road, and Miss McKay and Mrs. Smith are repairing their buildings. A daughter arrived last week in the family of Mr. and Mrs. Harrett.

BISHOP'S ELECTION CLAIMED TO BE ILLEGAL

Archdeacon Worell Didn't Get Enough Votes for the Nova Scotia Bishopric, and New Vote May Be Necessary.

Halifax, Sept. 12--A meeting of the executive committee of a synod is to be held to consider a point raised by one or two laymen. It is stated by those gentlemen that the election of Archdeacon Worell, of Kingston, to the Nova Scotia bishopric was not legal, and they base their opinion on a fact which at the time that synod was in session escaped attention.

The canon governing the election of a bishop requires that if two-thirds of the clerical and lay members are present a majority shall determine the choice; if not, the vote, to be decisive, must be a two-thirds vote of those present. There were on the lay side 115 votes cast out of a total of 173, thus lacking the two-thirds required by one-third of a man.

Mr. Ritchie, of Bedford, Ritchie & Chisholm, barristers, has given it as his opinion that the election was not legal. He states that in law whatever is not legal is illegal, and that the lack of the two-thirds vote by even so slight a deficiency makes the election illegal.

At this time it seems probable that another meeting of the synod will be called.

J. M. JOHNSON ELECTED TO MAINE LEGISLATURE

Republican Majority in Calais Greatly Reduced--Democrats Jubilant.

St. Stephen, Sept. 12--(Special)--The election in Calais was a surprise to both parties. The Democrats made heavy gains. The Republican majority was only 314 against 858 last election.

The Democrats are jubilant.

The total attendance at the exhibition today was 8,000.

Windso, Sept. 10--King's College is to be congratulated on having a very large freshman class, numbering about thirty. This is due to the zeal and enthusiasm of President Hannah. The fact that King's is in affiliation with McGill is another great step in the right direction.

A quiet wedding took place at the Reformed Baptist parsonage, Marysville, on Wednesday evening, Sept. 7, when Stephen W. Youmans, of Pennac, and Miss Ethel M. Barnett, of Lowell (Mass.), were united in marriage by Rev. G. B. Trafton, in the presence of a few friends.

Very heavy frost last night, phenomenal for this season of the year, did much damage to crops.

Martin Johnson, the six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur S. Johnson, of Toronto, and grandson of William Demont, fell over the Star line wharf this morning and would have been drowned but for the prompt action of Robin Cropley, agent for the Star Line Steamship Company. The little fellow and a young son of R. B. Adams and several other boys were playing near the upper slip, and the Johnson boy, while trying to throw something into the water, lost his balance and fell overboard. The Adams boy ran to the vestibule and notified Mr. Cropley of the accident, and the latter, without a moment's hesitation, sprang overboard and saved the boy from a watery grave.

John A. Morrison, contractor for the Corporation drive, now has a crew of men at work on the Aroostook, where he has about 3,000,000 feet to bring out. Since the recent rise of water, the lower Corporation drive has been making splendid progress.

The Nashwak Baptist church will celebrate the centennial anniversary of the organization of the Baptist church at Nashwak village, beginning Sept. 25 and continuing on Monday and Tuesday evening. FARMERS AND POLITICS.

Speaking before the Farmers' Association in Toronto last week Mr. Goldwin Smith urged the abolition of the party convention for the selection of candidates.

NOTE AND COMMENT.

Now for the finishing touches, for the best exhibition yet held in St. John.

TRADING RELATIONS.

The Telegraph on Saturday quoted from a Minneapolis journal some plain and frank statements to its readers concerning the relations between the United States and Canada.

in Canada, nor blind to the facts of past negotiations. An eastern paper, the Boston Traveler, is equally frank to its readers.

Continuing, the Traveler thus accurately sizes up the situation for the benefit of its New England readers: The Canadians have put the idea of reciprocity out of their minds.

Our New England readers may rest perfectly secure in the knowledge that no proposal for reciprocity will be made by Canada, and that none will be received with any cordiality from the United States.

A WISE MOTHER.

A wise mother never attempts to cure the ailments from which her little ones suffer by attempting them with sleeping draughts, "soothing" preparations, and similar medicines containing opiates.

REVIVAL OF THE DISCUSSION.

There is a revival of the discussion about "foreigners." One reason why public speakers are careless in speaking about those who live outside the Dominion may be that they do not vote here.

DEMOCRATIC PAPER.

A Democratic paper has this fling at the Republicans in connection with their Philippine policy: "Of the 132 new stations of parasites discovered by Rev. Fr. Stanion in the Philippines, some have been named after the discoverer and others after Secretary Taft and other prominent persons. There may be a division of opinion as to whether it is complimentary to have a parasite named for one."

A Winnipeg despatch says: "Politicians here and organizers of parties are showing their belief in an early dissolution by increased activity. No one now apparently doubts that the elections are near at hand."

"The Russian McClellan" is the latest description of General Kurapatkin. General McClellan is said to have generally permitted the enemy to mass more troops at important points than he could oppose to them and to have failed in the larger strategy necessary to properly handle great armies. He was skilful in retreat.

NOVA SCOTIA TEACHERS' WIN SCHOLARSHIPS

Eight Chosen to Go to Guelph in Line With Sir Wm. Macdowall's Plans.

Truro, N. S., Sept. 10.—(Special)—The provincial government has granted eight scholarships of $75 each for female teachers who will go to Guelph to take a three months' course in the McDonald Institute in nature study and school gardening.

As the hunting season opens on the 15th, there are several hunters expected this week to proceed to the happy hunting grounds on the New Canada waters.

Mr. McDonald will select two more companies of lady teachers from Nova Scotia for similar favors, one in January, the other in April. Scholarships have been offered two male teachers, $100 each, but none have been selected for the honor.

A MAN OF THE DAY.

The Rev. John H. Rison, M. A., one of the secretaries of the British and Foreign Bible Society, who is about to make a tour through the Dominion at the invitation of the Canadian auxiliaries, is a prominent and interesting figure among the personnel of the religious world in England.

Born in 1858, he is still a young man, with presumably his best years of service yet before him. Nevertheless, he has already accumulated work that would do small credit to most men's record of three score years and ten.

His incursions gravitated towards religious work, touching all denominations, in which the Bible society is engaged. He has at present secret that the universal interest aroused in the recent Bible centenary and the phenomenal success of this colossal celebration throughout the world were largely due to the first place, to the foresight and energy which Mr. Rison and his colleagues, the Rev. A. Taylor, M. A., displayed in the organization of what has proved the most unique demonstration that history has ever known.

In 1902 Mr. Rison formed one of the deputations which presented to the king a handsome Bible as a memento of the occasion. Mr. Rison has travelled extensively in the old world, but this is the first time he has visited North America.—Toronto Globe, Aug. 27.

BURIAL OF MRS. JOHN HENNESSY AT JOGGINS

The body of Mrs. John Hennessy was consigned to the grave in the R. C. burying ground, Ragged Reef, this week.

Rev. Father Currie sang high requiem mass in St. Joseph's church, the response being sung effectively by D. Belliveau. Mrs. F. J. Stephens presided at the organ. The church contained a large congregation, representative of all creeds and classes.

The carriages in the funeral procession covered at least three-quarters of a mile. A large number attended from Springhill.

The scene in the church and at the graveyard was most solemn and impressive. During the morning all business was suspended, and every private house had blinds drawn.

Beautiful floral tributes had been given in abundance. B. B. Barnhill of Two Rivers paid his tribute of respect and sympathy by lining the grave with moss and flowers. When the burial was completed, the grave was one mass of beautiful bloom.

The funeral arrangements were under the control of the C. M. B. A. A good woman has departed this life, beloved by everybody. The scenes of yesterday will impress those who witnessed them for a life time, while for the lifetime of eternity, her good name will live on and on after her.—Amherst Telegram.

Hopewell Hill News.

Hopewell Hill, Sept. 12.—Mrs. Keiver, wife of John Keiver, of Beaver Brook, died suddenly on Thursday night at her home there. The deceased, who was a daughter of the late Agnes Timbley, was about fifty-eight years of age. She was a consistent member of the Baptist church and very highly respected by all. Mrs. Keiver leaves a husband and brothers and sisters, besides a large circle of relatives. The funeral took place yesterday afternoon from her late residence, and was largely attended. The interment was made in the Hopewell cemetery, near John L. Barkhouse, an elderly resident of this village, fell from a load of oats on Saturday and broke his collar bone. Dr. Carruth, of Riverside, rendered the necessary surgical aid.

Hampton Items.

Hampton, Sept. 12.—Mr. Osgood, manager of the United States and Canada Coal & Iron Company, has gone to Portland (Me.), to hand in his report and confer with the directors with regard to the future working of the mine. Henry Fawcett has been appointed steam-drill sharpener at the mine. The rust has played havoc with the potato crop, and some fields will be hardly worth digging. The recent heavy frosts have about finished the buckwheat crops and many other green vegetables. Vestra Stewart, theological student of Lakeside, read the service in the Anglican church at the village last Sunday week. Councillor R. Fawcett and George White were in Hampton on Friday last. The Hampton Cornet Band played at Riverview hotel last Saturday evening. Local biscuit manufacturers have advanced the price of biscuits one-half cent a pound, because of the rise in the price of flour. Your lamps must be kept clean or they will smelt. Clear away the burnt wick every day, and keep the burners clean.

Albert County Story.

Liquor Alleged to Have Been Stolen from a Temperance Advocate.

The steamer Beaver plying between St. John and ports up the bay, carries varied cargoes every week ranging from baby-carriages to bricks and shingles. Hence, when a box consigned to a leading temperance worker at Hopewell Cape, Albert county, was put on board recently no excitement was caused, even when the box bore the name of a wholesale liquor establishment.

But when the consignee attacked the captain of the steamer and accused the crew of abstracting several bottles of alcohol, this is the steamer's cook with a trick, but the offer was not accepted. Then the dealer invoked the aid of a bluecoat and threatened the arrest of the vessel for three weeks. Then there was a bigger row. But the dealer was willing by this time to cry quits, and so the matter for the present rests. But the steamer's crew say they have not fired their guns. This is the story of the crew who say they think it meaner to pilfer liquor from a man living in a Scott act community, than to steal sheep.

Earl Percy Olive.

The death of Earl Percy Olive took place suddenly at Somerville (Mass.), on Sept. 8. He was the only son of E. Percy and Sadie E. Olive, and was aged twelve years. He was a very bright lad. He came to this country at the Bay Shore company with his mother and sister, and left here only about two weeks ago. Since going home he was taken ill with appendicitis and died Sunday morning. He was a for-throw disease. He never recovered from the effect, but lingered till the 8th, when he died quite suddenly. The body was brought here last evening. He was accompanied by his father, who is a brother of the late Isaac J. Olive, inspector of hulls. The funeral will be held from the residence of S. M. Watson, 203 Tower street, West End, on Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Rhodes Scholars Exams, 1905.

To the Editor of The Telegraph: Sir—Will you be so good as to announce in your journal that the examination connected with the appointment of Rhodes scholars for the year 1905 will be held throughout Canada about the middle of January next, and that the committee of selection or universities making appointment will communicate with the trustees. I am glad to see that the examination will be held in the month of April.

Many of the Oxford colleges complete their entrance lists for October during the summer term and in order that the scholars may be entered at the various colleges with due regularity and that the committee of selection be able to make their appointments with the greatest possible certainty, it is found necessary to fix upon these earlier dates for the examination and selection. I am glad to see that the examination will be held in the month of April.

Yours sincerely, GEO. R. PARKIN. London, E. C., Aug. 30, 1904.

Hugh McKenna.

St. Stephen, N. B., Sept. 9.—(Special)—After an illness of but two days, Hugh McKenna, one of St. Stephen's most respected citizens, died this afternoon, aged sixty-seven.

He had been in poor health for some years, but a fatal termination of his late attack was not expected. He was born at Doxachs and has carried on a large grocery and general trade here since 1874, in which he has been very successful. He was universally esteemed for his honest dealings and kindly disposition. He was a widower without children, but is survived by his brothers and four sisters. The funeral will probably be held on Monday.

Rev. Mr. Millington Resigns.

Rev. H. W. O. Millington, pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist church, Halifax, has resigned and accepted the pastorate of a church in Binghamton (N. Y.). The resignation is to take effect the middle of October.

Mr. Millington, who is an Englishman, came to this country about twelve years ago and was for ten years a half pastor of a church in Lowell, his first charge. From there he went to Halifax.

If any article has been searched in tracing lay it where the bright sunshine will fall directly upon it, and the scorched part will be entirely removed.

The Coming of The King.

BY JOSEPH HOCKING.

I noticed the change in the king's tone, and saw that his heavy eyes became hard. "Then do you plead guilty to the charge?"

"How could I have done from General Monk's anger?"

"For a moment Charles was silent, as though he knew not what to say, but presently he burst out laughing.

"Why, here my lords and ladies is a strange thing," he said; "and in truth it is worth coming to England to see. The sight of one who sought to bear the shame of another is surely rare. Come closer, fair Constance, and let me have a closer look at thee!"

Again I wondered what she would do, for if I saw evil in the king's eyes, so also I believe did she.

"I may not come closer to Your Majesty," she said.

"And why priffest?"

"I am afraid to dazzle my eyes too much."

The king did not notice the scorn in her voice, else would he have been angry. Instead he laughed gaily.

"We must do something to help you, fair Constance," he said, "for you please us much, and I would fain have you near me often. Nevertheless, justice is justice, and if must e'en keep my word and probe this thing to the bottom. Now whether it was you or another who sought to lay murderous hands upon the Duke of Alburnham can easily be proved. What say you, your Grace? You say you saw the woman; can you assert that it was those pretty hands which held the bloody knife?"

I turned and saw the Duke of Alburnham. He had been standing in the shadow, so that I had not recognized him, but now he stood out clearly, and I noted that his dark searching eyes travelled slowly up and down Constance's form.

"No, Your Majesty, it was not she. At first I thought it was, for truly the other is like her, but there is much difference, and the longer I look the more difference do I see. The murderous woman was not so tall as this fair maid by at least three inches, neither are the features altogether alike, although there is a resemblance."

"You could take your oath on this, Alburnham?" said the king.

"Certainly, Your Majesty."

"Ah, then, we have made the first step in our voyage of discovery. So you see, fair Constance, although you would condemn yourself you cannot get another to condemn you. And truly this is a strange thing, for hitherto I have found it true, especially of women, that they be always ready to excuse themselves, while others be always ready to blame them. Master stance dreaded, but she answered bravely. "I do, Your Majesty."

"Then tell me."

"She was silent."

"Come, speak plainly."

"Nay, Your Majesty, I cannot tell you that."

"But I command."

Still Constance was silent, and I thought the king would have given way to his anger.

Presently he burst into a laugh, but the laugh had but little merriment in it. He made me think of a dog who showed his teeth even while he wagged his tail.

"Ah, then we must e'en find out our selves," he said, and there was a snarl in his voice, although the mocking smile had not left his lips.

"Methinks young Master Rashcliffe may be able to give us some information," he said, and he turned suddenly to me. "Here methinks is also a strange look of nature, for verily on the day we landed at Dover, we asked Master Rashcliffe if he desired anything as a favor from the king, but he answered no. Our brother of York, however, cannot say the same for his father. Come, Master Rashcliffe, can you tell us where Mistress Constance's sister is?"

"I know not, Your Majesty," I replied.

"Come, that is a brave answer, and perchance a true one. Yet it may cover up a big lie. Have you any suspicion where she is?"

At this I was silent, for I believed I knew where the woman was in hiding. I remembered that the farmer had told me at the inn near Pyecroft. I recalled the words which the woman who with old Skomon had said: "We have need to go to Bedford." I had also believed that the reason Constance had given herself up to the constables who came to search the house at Goodlands was that she was afraid they might find her sister. Nevertheless I was not a slave long, for I knew this would arouse suspicion.

"I have no knowledge whatever where she is, Your Majesty."

"I did not ask for your knowledge but your suspicion," said the king angrily. "Tell me, do you believe, do you think, have you a fancy that you know where she is hiding?"

I was silent, for what in truth could I say?

The king laughed quietly. "It seems there are two who would defy justice," he said. "Well, well, we shall see! But let us return a little way. For what purpose did you seek to set this maid at liberty when she was put into Bedford Gaol?"

"Because I believed that she was imprisoned unjustly," I answered boldly.

"Ah, I see. You thought yourself wiser than others. Had she told you that she was innocent of the charge laid against her?"

"No, Your Majesty."

"Nor given you hint of it?"

"No, Your Majesty."

"Did she tell you of what she was accused?"

"No, Your Majesty."

"Ah, ah. The mystery deepens; but depend upon it we shall unravel it. You were in Dover on the day of our landing, and yet the next night you were in Bedford. You went there to set her at liberty. How did you hear of her imprisonment?"

"I heard it spoken of at Dover."

"And then, like a brave knight, you rode away to set her free. Ah, well, I like you none the worse for that. You have brains, and you have decision. But this means that you had met her before. Where?"

"Near Dover, sire."

"What did she there?"

"She never told me, sire."

"Reports have reached me that you have been seen near an old house called Pyecroft, whence is your long ride from Dover. Did you see her there?"

"Yes, sire."

"Ah! that is better. Why did you go there?"

"I do not think Your Majesty would be pleased if I told you."

"That is possible, ay, likely. Such as you often do that which might not please me. But tell me, what led you to go to Pyecroft?"

"If I told you I would rather speak to your private ear," I said.

"Ay, and fancy you would get off a cock-and-bull story upon me. Nay, nay, methinks we are getting to the bottom of this thing. Now then, what led you to go to Pyecroft?"

"I had heard that there was something of great import there."

"Ah, that is fine. But why should it please me?"

"Because it had to do with Your Majesty."

"With me. With me. From whom did you hear of it in the first place?"

"From a woman named Katharine Harcourt," I replied boldly.

"I am weary of this," he said, "for the thing hath ceased to be sport. Let this boy and girl be securely guarded until I have had time to look into the matter carefully." And then he turned negligently to the woman with whom he had been speaking, while the others in the company exchanged meaning glances.

It was near midnight that same night when I was brought before the king again.

CHAPTER XXV.

It came about in this way. I had been taken away by myself into an empty chamber which was carefully guarded. Not that I was treated rudely. Rather marked respect was paid to me, and I lacked nothing which any man might desire. Nevertheless I had thought much of the scene through which I had been passing, and what it all portended. I could not help realizing that the king had dismissed us very abruptly, and that some displeasure had rested upon his face as I had spoken. As for Constance, her condition troubled me more than my own. I had noted that she came as though she had been watched, and remembering what men said concerning him, I feared much. I determined, however, that no harm should happen to her, whatever might befall, for did I not love her with all my heart, and had I not told her of my love? Moreover I had promised that I would protect her, and as I thought of this, even prison walls became as naught to me. It was while I was soeming how I should fulfil my promise to her that a lackey entered the room and made me follow him.

This I did like a man in a dream, for a great silence had fallen upon the king's palace, and everything appeared grim and gloomy. He led me through long corridors and tortuous ways, so that without a guide I doubt if I could ever have found my way back to the room from which I had come. Presently, however, I heard the sound of distant laughter, and the noise of songsters, then as some intervening wall kept these sounds from reaching me, I passed by an open window, and heard the nightingales singing amongst the trees close by.

The lackey spoke no words, neither good nor bad, to me. I thought he looked sleepy and would gladly have gone to his rest. Perhaps this was true, for it was rumored that the king kept strange hours, and expected peculiar service at the hands of his serving-men.

Presently I stood in a little ante-chamber, where I was bidden to wait until it was the king's pleasure to see me, and here I waited I should think a full hour. The first part of the time was weary enough, but the second passed like a flash of light, and this was because, even although I had tried not to listen, I had heard that which interested me past words.

Evidently I was close to the apartment where the king was, for every word he spoke reached me with great plainness; but it was not his voice which thrilled my heart, it was another's, as I shall soon have to tell.

"I pray thy pardon, pretty maid," I heard Charles say. "I know thou hast had a long day's ride, and must be weary, but I felt I could not sleep until I had speech with thee again."

"I have nothing to say to Your Majesty," replied the voice of Constance.

"But I have much to say to thee, fair Constance. It is not oft that even a king beholds one so fair, or hears one whose speech is so pleasing. Besides, it will be to thee interesting to listen to me, and to regard my proposals favorably."

The king's voice was, as I thought, thick with much wine, and I fancied I could see the evil leer in his black beady eyes as he spoke.

"I have brought thee here tonight," he went on, "so that I may tell thee of many things. And first, I desire that thou shouldst tell me what thou didst refuse but a few hours since. Where is this Puritan sister of thine?"

"Ah, pretty Constance, if it had been thee—well, I fear thou wouldst have to lenient a judge. But thy sister is the wife of Denman, a man whose immediate arrest I have commanded. A bitter, sour-faced, lying Puritan, a man who took a leading part in the murder of my father. And this sister of thine, well she tried to kill the man who sought to bring me back to my kingdom. That is not easy to forgive. Had it been thy little hand which would have done this, I should e'en have laughed at Monk's sour face, and forgiven. And yet I must not forget. Thou hast shielded thy sister; thou hast kept her from punishment, and therefore—well, unless—let me think—bring me back to my kingdom. I have decided to forgive thee on two conditions," he went on presently.

"And they, Your Majesty?"

"The first is that thou wilt tell where this woman is. The second will, I trust, be pleasing to thee, for surely the king's smile, and the king's companionship should—"

"Pardon me, Your Majesty," cried Constance, "but there is no need to speak of the second condition since I will never accept the first."

"You will not tell me where your sister is?"

"No, Your Majesty."

The king laughed. "I must e'en find out without your telling," he said.

"You never can," and there was defiance in her voice.

"Ah!"

I noted the anger in his voice, and I forgot that I was listening to conversation which the king never intended should reach my ears, so eager was I to know what would follow.

"It is said that I am of an easy temper," he went on presently, "and it is hard to be angry in the presence of one so fair. Yet must the king be obeyed. So be sure of this, pretty Constance. I will e'en find the whereabouts of your sister. As for your father, he is already under arrest, and it will depend on you as to whether he goes to the gallows with the rest of my father's murderers, or whether he holds his head high in the state."

"On me, Your Majesty?"

"Ay, on you, pretty Constance," and then he said words which I will not write down, so base were they.

"Of this be assured," he went on, and it was easy to see that wine had loosened his tongue, and driven away his judgment. "I will give no quarter to these canning Puritans. Neither for that matter will I bestow any favor upon these Presbyterians. I will have only such religion in my realm as I please. Not that I am much wedded to religion at all, especially that of the stern and strict nature. But this I know, it is to the Episcopalists that I owe my crown, and it was they who fought for my father during the civil wars. Depend upon it, therefore, I will make short shrift of these hot-spellers, and I will see to it that only those who are loyal to the crown shall be tolerated."

"Then Your Majesty's promises will go for nothing!" And there was a sting of scorn in Constance's tone, as well as in her words.

The king laughed. "A man makes reservations even in his promises," he said, "and think not that I am going to allow my father's murderers to go around stirring up dissension, or hot-spellers to preach rebellion. Nay, you will soon see. The Puritans had no mercy, and Grand Dieu neither will!"

At this there was silence.

IN MODERN DAYS
 THE WAYS OF DOING THINGS HAVE GREATLY CHANGED.

No Branch of Science Has Made Greater Advancements Than That of Medicine—Thousands of Lives Prolonged by Modern Discoveries.

"Few things have developed so rapidly during the past quarter of a century as the science of medicine," said a well known practitioner recently. "And undoubtedly the most striking phase in its progress is in the treatment of the blood. In the old days it was thought that opening a vein and letting the blood out was a cure for most diseases. The utter fallacy of that theory was discovered after a while. Then the symptoms of the disease were treated and the blood disregarded. That also has been shown to be a wrong practice, for, though driven away for a time, the germs always return if the cause is not removed and the disease worse than before. It is the root of the disease that must be attacked, and the most important development of modern medicine science has been the discovery that, in most diseases, it is the condition of the blood that must be changed, not the removal of the blood, and that the system becomes broken down under a condition of impure blood. But by the use of the blood-purifier, you restore the worn-out system, and you remove the cause of the disease, and the disease is gone."

An instance of the truth of this is given by Mrs. A. G. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, which actually make new, rich, red blood, thus reaching the root of the disease and driving it from the system. The great success of this medicine has induced some unscrupulous dealers to offer pink colored imitations. You can protect yourself against these by seeing that the full name, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," is printed on the wrapper around every box. Sold by all medicine dealers or may be had direct from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50.

Charity covers a multitude of sins that are committed in her name.

CLOTHES YOUR BOY WILL BE PROUD OF

We have the Boys' clothing business in our own hands. There isn't another store in town that sells near so much as we do, or that shows the variety. But the principal thing after all, is the way our clothing is tailored—tailoring counts far more than variety or anything else. It is the tailoring that holds the clothes in shape, keeps the buttons on and the seams together. Take for granted that materials are good—it isn't worth while to spend money for good tailoring on any other kind.

RESULT MISSIONARIES ON THE RIVER ST. JOHN

The Ministrations of L'Abbe Bailly--Ineffective Efforts of Government to Remove Acadians--Long-lived People of Olden Days--A Model Settlement.

W. O. RAYMOND, LL. D. CHAPTER XXI.

Our knowledge of affairs on the River Saint John down to the period of English occupation is largely derived from the correspondence of the Jesuit missionaries, the last of whom was Charles Germain. After his retirement the Acadians and Indians remained for several years without any spiritual guide...

An Ancient Church Register.

In the summer of 1767, Father Charles Francois Bailly came to the River St. John and established himself at Annapolis, or as he calls it, "la mission d'Ekoupagah on la Riviere St. Jean." The register of baptisms, marriages and burials at which he officiated during his year's residence at Annapolis is still to be seen in French Village in the Parish of Kingsclear, York county.

Acadians Not to Be Expelled.

It is remarkable with what persistence the French cling to the locality of Annapolis in spite of repeated attempts to dispossess them. The New Englanders under Haverhill and Churchill tried to expel them as long ago as 1696, but Villebon repulsed the attack on Fort Nachoche and compelled them to retire.

What these magistrates did, or attempted to do, is not recorded, at any rate they did not succeed in effecting the removal of the Acadians for we find that the little colony continued to increase.

of France. The husband died at Memramook in September, 1802, at the age of 100 years and 3 months; his widow in March, 1804, at the age of 96 years. Their son Jean died at Pokenouche in August, 1832, at the extraordinary age of 112 years, leaving a son Mose who died at Rogersville in March, 1883, aged over 96 years.

A Model Settlement.

In the course of a year or two after the arrival of the Loyalists the greater portion of the Acadians living on the St. John river above Fredericton removed—either from choice or at the instigation of government—to Malawaska, Caraque and Memramook. A few, however, remained, and these are today at French Village, in York county, about 31 families of Acadian origin numbering 140 souls, and 17 families in addition reside at the Mazerolle settlement not far away.
