City Police Court.

There were no prisoners in the Dock this morning, charged with the usual offences, but about twelve o'clock the Feeny family held high "Carnival," one brother having charged another Feeny and his wife with assault. It was impossible from the manner in which their tongnes rattled to find out what was the cause of the trouble, and after a great deal of recrimination the Justice dismissed the case.

"A series of charming Essays. . . . Each chapter branches out into innumerable topics of a secondary and collateral nature, giving to the work a boundless diversity enriched with stores of ethical as well as of spiritual wisdom, evinoing at once acute observation of social life and of human character, and containing the noblest lessons for practical guidance. Our author's style is remarkable for its free, unconstrained flow, almost collequial at times, but invariably signalized by elegance, force, adaptation to the subject, and not seldom by originality of thought in combination with terseness and beauty of expression . . There is about it a freshness, as well as a fullness of practical teaching, rarely to be met with in ordinary Biblical commentaries."—Londonderry Standard, Feb. 15, 1871.

Head Quarters, March 1st, 1871.

"The writer is evidently well acquainted with the literature of his subject, and that acquaintance reveals itself almost unconsciously in every page. There is no ostentation of reading or learning, but there is everywhere the gleaming forth of light which cannot be hid.

The style is simple, intelligible, graceful. It shows at once that Mr. Bennet is a man of literary culture, who can express his thoughts with scholarly chasteness and good taste. We could not open a page without meeting some thought vigorously expressed. The work is eminently fresh and readable."—Pres. Witness, Halifax.

"He reveals in the treatment of his themes strong common sense, a firm gresp of thought, a logical acumen and a clear insight into human character. Even when dealing with trite ideas he imparts to them a novelty and interest by which they are lifted into an importance they scarcely deserve. The style throughout is lucid, pure, compact, forcible,—and it is his own—the garb of his own thinking. We have met in our perusal of the book with numerous paragraphs of finished and brilliant rhetoric—fine specimens of pulpit oratory. He is never tame nor tiresome. "This is a remarkably thoughtful, solid book" Mr. Bennet is evidently at home in Metaphysics and Ethics, and he is a shrewd observer of human nature in its ordinary manifestations; consequently he ranges over the lessons of the Preacher with a power of illustration which shews his mastery of the subject. The style is close and direct, and yet so lucid, that any reader may understand every sentence in the volume. . . . It will, we doubt not, take its place, as it ought to do, among our household expositions of this treatise of observation and Jewish wisdom "—The Presbyterian (Philadelphia), May 20, 1871.

"The Wisdom of the king is well worth careful reading. Indeed you cannot read much of it at once. There is a constant play of fancy about the thoughts, and ofen the very words, that is admirably suited to the Scripture book, of which this is an exposition, but which demands such constant attention on the reader's part that be gets tired, for he does not know where it is to end. The style is compact, lucid, often sparkling and epigrammatic, the sentences cut sharply, but with a poetic fullness of original illustration that redeems them from all hardness." Halifax Monthly Record, (Church of Scotland).

"Each chapter is so well done, so lucid, yet concise in its exposition, that it is sometimes difficult to determine which is the best and most interesting. Stepart's Quarter. Pharmaceutical Pharmacy GEORGE STEWART, Jr., GEORGE STEWART, Jr.,
