A New York despatch says the explanation of the adverse Canada exchange is to be found entirely in Canada's unfavorable balance of trade, which now amounts to between $200,000,000 and $400,000,000, says the Wall Street Journal, Friday morning. Canada cannot ship gold and buy

The only solution in sight for Canada is to produce and sell more and to curtail her heavy purchases on the west side of the border.

NEW GUINEA

Little Known Part of the British Empire.

A fine or full sentence for wearing cloth. That's what happens to a native of New Guinea should he be decked himself in anything more elaborate than a loin cloth, says Bishop Sharpe. After ten years' service in the Antipodes, Bishop Sharpe has returned, its attendant the conference of bishops of the Church of England. Down in P. N. G. (the British section of the island) there's a law more than the regulation called. Should the Papuan swim who depression jump into a pair of trousers it means a visit to the magistrate for 10/- if the guilty one is the £2-50 fine, by way to deter him.

The Anglican Church has always frowned upon the adoption of native dress by the natives. Bishop Sharpe, "We don't think it is good for the natives to attire themselves. In our style of raiment. They're not used to it. We've always encouraged it, and now the British Government has taken up the matter and enacted a law against it." Even though the inhabitants of the largest island in the world are not troubled with taxes on costly apparel, they do not wear the native dress. In order to encourage the industry and, incidentally, add to the revenue, the Government now requires that all male Papuans over sixteen years of age pay a poll tax of from 10 shillings to £1 a year.

British New Guinea is never troubled with labor disturbances, as the visitors. There are plenty of workers, only too willing to work up with the plantation owners for three or four years at the modest wages of £2 a year, keep and four calves a year.

The Papuans are quite amenable, and when taken in hand by the mission, prove good workmen. Those not employed on the plantations work for themselves and add to the scanty income by producing copra, etc., said the bishop.

The white population, which numbers about 1,000, is mostly engaged in trading, the raising of coconuts and the manufacture and export of copra, the latter being the island's most important industry.

Explaining the good work being performed among the native population, Bishop Sharpe states that nearly four score schools are established in various parts of the possession and that thousands of the inhabitants can now read and write in English. There are about thirty white and one hundred native teachers, including several ordained Papuan clergymen.

A Royal Concert Singer. With a voice of the most melodious timbre, the singing of the star, Princess Obolensky, Your Majesty, said to a newspaper reporter. She is a daughter of Alexander II by a second marriage late in life, and is still a comparatively young woman. Her husband is head of the princely Obolensky house.

A rich mezzo-soprano, she gave a recital of English, French and Russian songs, and a critical audience enthusiastically applauded her singing rather than a fallen princess of royal blood struggling to earn a living.

Both my husband and myself lost everything in the revolution," she said to a newspaper reporter. "We are now living at Chelsea, and while my husband goes downtown to business in a financial concern, I devote myself entirely to music. I hope, however, I may be regarded as an artist and succeed accordingly. The past is done with and now we have to work for our living like most people. And we are very happy, too."

During the war the princess worked in Russian hospitals as a nurse. When the revolution broke out she was in the Crimea. "The Reds confiscated everything except the clothes we wore," she said. "My husband was in Moscow and volunteered to serve in the White Army, so his arrest was ordered, though he successfully hid in the city. During this period I had to wait on the Bolsheviks who called. I was also put to farm work. Afterwards I was allowed to work as a governess in a boarding-house. Eventually I got away to Moscow and joined my husband in hiding for four months, until eventually, disquieting ourselves as workers in a sugar factory, we managed to escape from the country with a Red Cross mission."

Why They Scribble. Scribbler—"In my opinion a man who writes an illegible hand does it because he thinks people are willing to puzzle over it. In other words, he is a chunk of deceit."

Scribbler—"Not always. Sometimes a man writes illegibly not because he is conceited, but because he is modest."

"Modest! What about?"

"About his spelling!"—Pearson's Weekly.

A Quick Relief for Headache

A headache is frequently caused by badly digested food, the gases and acids resulting therefrom are absorbed by the blood which in turn irritates the nerves and causes painful symptoms called headache, neuralgia, rheumatism, etc. 15 to 30 drops of Mother Seeger's Syrup will correct faulty digestion and afford relief.

THE OAK BAY, P. Q. school, Miss Pearl McColl, teacher, has been giving exercises on Friday afternoon, Dec. 17th, at 1.30. The parents of the pupils and all interested in the welfare of the school were present.

Also Rev. L. J. King, Inspector of Schools for Bonaventure Co., and Mr. T. R. Busted, Chairman of the School Board.

The different grades were examined in various subjects, by the teacher, after which a program of songs, recitations, etc., was given by the pupils.

Miss McColl then called upon the Inspector, the Chairman, and others present for a few remarks. A "Treat" of candy and nuts was served to school and audience. The exercises closed with "God Save the King," and all went home feeling that the school was doing good work under Miss McColl, and that the exercises reflected very favorably on the work of the fall term.

Employees at Charlo Mill Remember Teacher

Lon. Wm. Currie, manager of the Charlo Mill, was surprised on Xmas eve, when the employees gathered in the large dining room of the new cook house and presented him with a solid gold watch.

The presentation was made by James Woods, who has been in the employ of the mill for twenty-seven years, and who in a few well chosen remarks expressed the good and kindly feelings of those present and also the respect and esteem in which Mr. Currie is held.

Mr. Currie, though completely taken by surprise, thanked the donors for their beautiful gift and at the same time spoke of the harmony and good will existing between employer and employees and took this opportunity of wishing all present a joyous Xmas and a happy and prosperous New Year.

NARROW ESCAPE.
When John McCormack was singing in grand opera, as Signor Foli, some years ago, he had on one occasion to sing from a stage balcony which was hardly strong enough to support so heavy a man. The stage manager told off two assistants to hold it up from beneath, but before Signor Foli was more than half through one of the men below said, "Be jabers, Meeks, the Oitavian is mighty heavy."

"Let's drop him Pat," he's only an Oitavian, after all."
Voice of Signor Foli above; Wm. ye, ye dividis, will ye?
"Tare an' oulds Pat, but he's an Oitavian; should him up for the loife of ye!"

SAYS TANLAC GOT HER OUT OF BED

Halifax Woman Recovered From Breakdown After She Started Taking Tanlac

"The way I improved in health after I started taking Tanlac was truly astonishing, and I don't remember ever feeling better than I do at present," said Mrs. Lena Sampson, of 30A Frederick avenue, Halifax, N. S.

"When I started taking Tanlac I had been in bed for three weeks and was in a terribly weakened condition. For two years before that I had been very run down. My nerves were so bad at the noise of the children playing and I would often shake like a leaf and could not walk a block without getting out of breath. I was simply tired out from morning to night and didn't have enough energy to do my housework. I lost weight all the time, and as I've said, ended up by breaking down altogether and having to go to bed for three weeks."

"My husband had taken Tanlac with splendid results and it was he who insisted on my trying it. Well, remarkable though it may seem, I was up and about again before I had finished the first bottle, and now, after taking two more, I am feeling just fine again. That tired, run down feeling has all left me and my nerves are now as steady as can be. I sleep good and sound every night and am so much stronger that I can get through my housework with ease. Only today I have done a big round of shopping and don't feel a bit tired after it. Tanlac certainly is a grand medicine and I gladly recommend it to everyone."

Tanlac is sold in Campbellton, by THOMAS WRAN, Druggist, in Jacques River, by S. McALISTER; in Archibald Settlement, by M. S. McALISTER; in River Charles, by W. H. GLEN-DINNING; in Edgewick, by THE EDWARDS' MED. CO. LTD.; and in Chandler, by ARTHUR NADEAU.

MOTOR VEHICLE LICENSE FEES

New Brunswick Got Two Hundred Thousand in Year—More Next Year.

Fredericton, Dec. 28.—Receipts from motor vehicles license fees for the calendar year of 1920 in New Brunswick have been considerably more than $200,000, according to an announcement made today by Hon. P. J. Veniot, minister of public works, who is here from Bathurst on departmental business.

The collections of motor vehicle license fees for the fiscal year which ended on October 31 last, said, had amounted to $198,000 and there had been several thousand dollars received since then. As the rates have been increased 1921 promises to show a very large increase.

A DIFFICULT VOYAGE

Crossing the Atlantic Ocean in the Seventeenth Century.

A strikingly picturesque account of an Atlantic voyage in the days of small sailing craft came from the pen of John Henry Helrich, who emigrated to Pennsylvania in 1771.

It is quoted in "The Romance of Old Philadelphia," by Mr. John T. Paris.

"The first days out were so stormy that it was impossible to make fire on the ship, and the captain cooked soup for a child over candle light. The sailors had to stand in water on the deck up to the calves of their legs. One morning a wave came through a window to a cabin of a passenger, and he was nearly drowned in his bunk. The waves came rolling like mountains; now we were high up, now deep down, now lying on one side and then again on the other. Many chickens and ducks perished on deck because of the quantities of sea water there."

Another interesting entry that Helrich made in his journal is as follows:

"A rat tried to take the comfitter away from the child, and, as it did not want to give it up, it was bitten on the finger. The child screamed, the mother awoke, and the rat ran off. All sails were taken in during a heavy downpour. We passengers helped to haul the sails in. Our terror was still more increased when the captain called to us to load our rifles. The danger was this, the water around us here and there was drawn up in the form of an arrow. When it falls, it comes down with such force that, if it hits a ship, it breaks it to pieces, and even if it touches the ship but slightly it smashes the deck. It follows the ship. The English call it a water spout. The only means to scatter the rising water is to break it up by shooting."

The Scaplane.

Phenomenal as has been the development of the scaplane since Curtiss first rose from and landed on water, in 1911, little attention has been devoted to the incidental but important problem of mooring and handling these craft, says Popular Mechanics. Recently, however, the problem has been attacked by a prominent British airplane manufacturer, with the result that patents have been issued for an interesting floating drydock. The dock consists basically of four air-tight pontoons which form the corners of a flat, steel, angular steel framework.

Is the Badger Dying Out?

It is believed that the badger is dying out, but proof of the presence of badgers in a tract of woods that lies about midway between two Cheviot streams was unexpectedly provided recently. Digging operations showed that the hole formed the entrance to two separate chambers, from one of which a couple of foxes were driven while the other held four badgers, all of which were captured.

A Scientific Note.

An important contribution to scientific achievement has been made by Sister Monica Taylor, of the convent of Notre Dame in Glasgow, whose work has attracted notable attention in the world of science. She has discovered what many have sought, the method of breeding stream, leaving things which Molecular structure are set to study early in the year.

We take this opportunity of thanking our friends and patrons for their generous patronage and wish

All a Happy and Prosperous New Year.
