present offensive and one of the most important contests of the war.

New York, Sept. 3.—The Associated Press today issued the following:
On a front of virtually 50 miles, from just below Ypres to a point near Peronne on the Somme, the German armies are in retreat.

This retrograde movement is not a voluntary one on the part of the enemy, but has been forced by the series of unremitting hammer blows inflicted by Marshal Foch in the past six or seven weeks. It has now been accelerated by the notable victory of Field Marshal Haig yesterday in breaking through the strong defensive lines protecting the railway centres of Doual and Cambral, and threatening to outflank even the main Hindenburg line south to St.

as not met with a disaster, is perilously on the verge of one. It is too early to estimate with any degree of accuracy what effect the present big drive of the Allies may ultimately produce. The fall of Doual and Cambral which now seems would put the entire German line out of Joint between the North Sea and Rhelms, however, and would be likely to force the evacuation of a great part of Northern France now occupied by the Germans. Operations by the French and Americans in the south may be counted on to work toward such a result. Haig's Troops and Currie's Boys Are Still Advancing - Lens, Queant and Other Important Places Taken By British---Over 10,000 Germans Taken By Tommies In Yesterday's Fighting.

London, Sept. 3 .- The capture of the town of Queant, the southern support of the famous German switch line before Cambrai and Douai, is announced in an official statement from Field Marshal Haig today.

Along this line the enemy was heavily defeated in his prepared defences, and is retiring on virtually the whole battlefront. The text of the statement reads:

"Our operations carried out yesterday south of the River Scarpe were completely successful. The enemy was heavily defeated in his prepared defence of the Drocourt-Queant system. "In the course of yesterday's battle, in addition to inflicting heavy losses on the enemy, we captured 10,000 prisoners. "We are now advancing, and are reported to have entered Pronville, Doignies and Bertincourt.

One of the most despicable cases of German "frightfulness" is told by James Rose of the sailing trawler Trevone, when a U-boat fired upon and sank the ressel. He says:
"A German submarine suddenly peared on the surface and opened fire. Her second shot hit the peak halyards, and the master and crew immediately took to their boat. They were ordered ook to their boat. They were ordered ulongside the submarine and told to board her. In attempting to obey the master and cook were both washed overboard. These two men could easily have been rescued, but the Germans took not he slightest notice of them. The maser was seen hanging on to the submater was seen hanging on to the submarine's side, aft, for over ten minutes, but finally disappeared.

The pirates could have saved these two men easily, but they let them drown, and their kin in Britain are the

FINE GIANTS OF THE WEST

SAMMIES THRILL

Citizens Did Best To Make Fighting Men Feel at Home, But Stay Was Brief.

Labor Day groups stood about the sidewalks at noon yesterday discussing the war. There was not much stirring, and most people were storing up energy and sunshine against the coming of a hard winter.

Then the notes of a tune from a brass band came through the air. It was a band that sent forth volume and melody stronger than any local band since the ranks of musicians have been so much decimated by the war.

People looked toward Richmond street. Suddenly a formation of men in khaki swung round the corner onto Dundas street. Most men thought a party of returned soldiers was being escorted home.

But there was something distinctive, something different, about these men from the thousands of Canadians who have paraded the familiar streets of this town on route marches, on ceremonial parades, going overseas and coming back in more irregular order.

after cheer went up. The cheers may have lacked the strength that numbers give, but they were real cheers.

Two Fine Companies.

The band preceded two of the finest companies of fighting men ever seen in a city that has watched upwards of 40,000 men trained fine, and inspired by pride of their corps, leave for the war. Upstanding, six-footers, bronzed and free-muscled, moving as one winding automaton, they marched eight abreast through Dundas street and turned at Wellington street, to board again the train which brought them to the city from Camp Grant, near Chicago. They were two companies of the 343rd Battalion, traveling to Toronto, for a stay during the exhibition.

The parade of the first two companies was followed by a second route march through the principal streets of the other two companies, which reached the city a short time after the first section. Two trains of fourteen coaches brought the Sammies to London.

Second Section Arrives.

The second section presented an appearance that brought even more applause than was bestowed on the first section. This was not because they excelled the first two companies, but because more people heard that American troops were in the city, and came down town in larger numbers. A cheering throng of citizens met these American

TEACHERS IN READINESS

Only One or Two Failing To Be On Hand the First

There's a feeling in the air that the holidays are really over and that everybody must be crisp, business-like and efficient once more after the relax-ation of the past two months. This morning at 9 o'clock the school bells rang and the boys and girls trooped into classes, ten or twelve thousand of them in the public and separate schools and the Collegiate Institute and Tech-nical School.

Labor Day, for numbers of London people, meant trekking home from sum-mer camps and cottages, and early to bed that early to rise today might not too sorry a task. So far as the students themselves were concerned, curi-osity and the prospect of reunion with osity and the prospect of reunion with pals got them out at an heroic hour, and in many a case whole rows of youngsters, carefully washed and combed, waited for the time to be off to school this morning. this morning.
"How time flies," sighed many a grown-up who heard the shouts and trillings and chatterings of the children on the way to school. "It only seems yesterday that the holidays began," they added.

With the exception of only one or

SEVEN TOMATOES TO A 11-QUART BASKET

McVean Brothers Aiming at a Perfect Product.

A tomato big enough to furnish a whole meal for a moderate-sized family is an achievement in selective cultivation accomplished by two local Burbanks, Fred and Frank McVean of this city. Today, Frank McVean visited The Advertiser office, bringing with him a twelve-quart basket which just afforded a comfortable resting place for seven of the mammoth McVean tomatoes grown by himself and brother this summer at their Port Stanley place. The tomatoes, which are now on exhibition in The Advertiser window, weigh exactly eleven pounds. Among these are several perfect specimens of tomato fruit. British have succeeded, with strong, superior forces, in throwing back our infantry line on both sides of the Arras-Cambrai highroad, says the official statement issued today by the German army headquarters.

COUNTER-ATTACKS BY GERMANS EXPECTED TO FOLLOW DEFEATS With the British Army in France, Sept. 3.—It was the Canadians who took Dury and the mountain of the same name. Although facing a heavy fire, they had only a small fraction of the casualties they inflicted on the foe. All sorts of troops have been captured. Elements of six German divisions, fresh and tired, have been identified by troops on a front of two thousand yards. Good troops and the sweepings of the German army are fighting here. One prisoner taken was a Red Cross man until he was discharged a few months ago because of an incurable illness and a mutilated hand. He had been taken back into the army as an infantryman. At this writing counter-attacks by the Germans are expected, and they will probably be of a violent nature.

Diabetes Seldom Due to Excessive Sugar Eating

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG. A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins University.)

A baby takes relatively much more sugar than does its elders. It is able to digest and absorb more than growncow's milk alone. Contains rich milk and malted grain extract.

"Sweets to the sweet, farewell," henceforth takes on a new meaning. Sugar is absolutely necessary for human life as it is at present constituted. Its importance to babies is found in the fact that it supplies in mother's milk nearly one-half, or 48.7 per cent of the heat and energy units—calories.

Too much sugar from the diet for ten days or so. Castor oil alternated with that defunct cognomen, "rheumatism," may be controlled by a simple omission of all sugar from the diet for ten days or so. Castor oil alternated with Epsom salts and a dilution of the sugar afterward will prove to be an effective measure.

If your doctor by indefatigable tests and attention discovers that your baby receives too much sugar it should be eliminated for a few days and bicarbonate of soda in 20-grain doses administered.

THE LONDON ADVERTISER COMPANY.

London, Ont., Tuesday, Sept. 3. BLOOD BROTHERS.

ONDON WAS inspired and thrilled on Labor Day by the visit to the city of four companies of an American regiment from Camp Grant, bound for Toronto exhibition.

The Sammies marched with the precision of wrested from any member of the battalion, there was such an air of quite resolution about these least looked the part of equals of the crack troops who have gone overseas from this district.

stream are filling up with the men who come from the vast reservoirs of the United States. The cities pour their men into the training camps, from the plains and hills and forests come the finest of young American manhood. The forward intensity and a mastery of the tools, which is rush of this vast streaming of men into the skill, get harnessed to the plow, and the furrows European pool has caused a wave that comes dangerously close to washing back the blacker stream that crept out from the swamps of Central Europe in 1914.

Canadian soldiers who saw the Americans in the city yesterday must have thought "these are blood brothers of mine."

STAY IN ONTARIO.

THE TORONTO NEWS says that an Ontario farmer made the following remark:

I think that the newspapers in this province spend too much time and energy in boosting the west. We hear a good deal of the production of the prairies, but not enough about the wealth of On-

The Advertiser thinks so too, and has been making the fact known since 1912, when it launched a movement called "The Stay in Ontario" campaign. This campaign had no monetary feature attached to it, except that it cost The Advertiser thousands of dollars to convince the people of this province that they were living in the best part of Canada. Hundreds of columns were published and a fine response given by the leaders in agriculture. The wonders of agriculture, the drama of the soil, were told in countless ways by people who could find the news of the thing. With no attempt to disparage the west, The Advertiser maintained that Ontario had no equal for home life, for the chance of success and for a revival of interest in the greatest industry in the world. Ontario will long rank as the foremost agricultural province. It is a good province to stand by. After the war, we mean again to sound the slogan that counsels young men to make their lives count in the province where opportunity is as great as in the west.

Our young men will not stick if the great lure of the distant provinces continues to be "played up," and the Ontario Government does not get into the advertising business to attract desirable settlers not only to new Ontario, but to old Ontario, where thousands of farms await the rejuvenation process. The more progressive these settlers are the better, and the middle western states are an inviting field for the Ontario immigration agent as well as some of the eastern states. Let us capitalize the good points of this province into more farmers! There is a big success ahead for someone who can put spirit into such an undertaking.

THE RETURN OF THE "EDITORS."

O CLASS of citizens as individuals should put the British Government to an expense of more than $100,000 in order that they might meet the leaders of war effort, inspect the British supply factories and visit the west front. But if a class of citizens is given such a trip because of the benefit they may confer upon many other people, there may be reason in such a grand expedition as that which was misnamed the Canadian editors' party.

If there were half a dozen actual writing newspapermen in the party there were not many more. Bona-fide editors were left at home, while those more fond of the term "journalist" than the actual work that such a title entails did the honors and accepted the kudos on behalf of Canadian newspaperdom. Very few of the members of the party, even if they are able to do so, will sit down and write their impressions of the journey. For them it was a strictly personal party, courtesies being extended by Lord Beaverbrook out of the coffers of the British taxpayers. But it is less the fault of those who went than the fault of those who selected the personnel of the party, and no doubt this was carried out on lines of personal preferment and political influence.

The city of Quebec had four members on the party. The west had one or two. Toronto, Hamilton and London had at least two newspapermen in the party, and the other membership was made up of members of class publications, and those who conduct printing houses. Just what will be short time his articles will appear. His entire expenses were paid by The Advertiser and several other newspapers, and the series promises to fill a lack in some newspapers of the material which would have been gathered had the party which went to the battlefront been composed entirely of writing newspapermen. The man with the reporter's instinct was the man to send, and this type of newspaperman was chosen by those papers which joined with The Advertiser to endeavor to give a close-up Canadian conception of the war work in Britain and the fighting in the west. He will return from overseas at an early date.

ON TRYING HARD.

TTAVE you ever noticed that many people who say they are incapable of performing certain things are the very ones who accomplish them with the best results? We do not mean they are the "won't try" class of people, but they recognize in every task something worthy of honest effort, and they do not feel able always to give a subject or a task the effort it deserves. With much of aching uncertainty they tackle the thing that comes their way, full of willingness, but a willingness intermingled with doubt. They are the extreme opposite of the cocksure person who makes known his ability and capacity to perform the best work with greatest ease.

It is when a man suffers at his work that he voterans. Officers and men showed a pride in manages to get somewhere. First comes a c.r. their unit which was unmistakable, and while no tain resolution to go ahead, then the tightening word of possible fighting qualities could be of the mental muscles, then the drive forward, then the uncertainty of the finished task. But if the best one has is given, if the stimulus of sincere soldiers that Canadians were glad to say they at striving has been applied, there is generally something about the work that, with all the imperfections it may yet possess, stamps it as something The river that flows to France is thick with more worthy than the result that came from a hurrying men. All the tributaries of the vast superficial cultivation of the soil, and a dashing over the seed with a rickety harrow pulled by a couple of breakneck brain-horses.

There is nothing like trying hard. Ease of abor is not always a good thing to cultivate. Let are best turned for the sowing of the future.

The old-fashioned man who voted his a corkscrew for $4 from a mail-order booze house now buys $4 worth of Jamaica Ginger a week and has to supply his own corkscrew.

As a rule a job is dirtier and harder than a position. But the average job pays more money than the average routtlen.

And if a man did know himself may-be he would be forced to admit that he wasn't acquainted with very much. You may imagine that a small boy makes a blame fool of himself over his first watch. But you should pay a little attention to the way a grown man acts over his first automobile. The average man finds it so hard to save money when he is single that he doesn't see any use in trying to save after he gets married. A mother simply has to worry. When the temperature is about 100 she gets up in the middle of the night and throws a spread on the children so they won't catch cold.

A number of newspapers which were not represented on the trip, and which under the circumstances are probably quite comfortable in the fact, arranged to send a well-known Canadian journalist to England and the west front at the same time as the official party was enjoying itself, and in a state of the stories of the visit of the seas."

THE WOOD FOLK HAVE A ROW ABOUT THEIR FAMILY TREE.

Mrs. Possum started the trouble by bragging about the blue blood in her veins. And Teddy's boasting got all the Wood Folk by the ears, when they were down by the dam of Mirror Pond.

They were all talking at once, as some big and little people do, when they get excited. All were talking at the top of their voices, and I am sorry to say most of them got mad.

Mr. Fox got very red in the face, as he yelled out, "The Fox Family is the best and most ancient family in the Great Forest, and I'll fight anybody who denies it!"

Bobby Skunk was on top of an old pine stump, and he got so angry that he shouted that the Skunk family was the face most lovely, the sweetest, and the oldest family in the shouted that the Skunk family was the face most lovely, the sweetest, and the oldest family in the first one who denied it.

About THEIR FAMILY TREE.

And old Mr. Porcupine stuck out all his little around, as you have seen some proud people do, and he swelled up about twice his size, and he stuck out all his little spears all over his body, and he marched up and down, and around and around, as you have seen some proud people do, and he swelled up about twice his size, and he stuck out all his little spears all over his body, and he marched up and down, and around and around.

Mr. Porcupine was so stuck up about his family, and got so angry, that he was careless where he strutted, so that his sharp quills tore the new black fur cape of Mrs. Mink, and her husband cuffed Mr. Porcupine's ears! Mr. Mink gave an awful howl, for some of Mr. Porcupine's quills went right through his right hand and filled his new glove with blood!

Then Mrs. Beaver and Mrs. Otter strutted through the crowd, wearing their new and costly furs, and both yelled out at once, "Look at our expensive furs! Our families are the richest in the world, and our ancestors have always been the best dressed and the best behaved people in the Great Forest!"

And then Mr. and Mrs. Mink ambled around the dam, showing off

And then Mr. and Mrs. Mink ambled around the dam, showing off-their elegant and expensive new furs, and both yelled out, "The Mink family is the richest and best family on earth!"

And in the midst of the boasting and din, a big voice from behind a near-by tree made them all tremble in their furry boots. "What's that you say? You rascals! Eat your words at once, or I will eat you all! My family is more powerful than any of you common trash!" That big voice belonged to Mr. Wolf, and everyone either climbed up his family tree, or any old tree he could find, or hid his head under the sheet of Mirror Pond.

Dear Miss Grey,—I am coming to give you end the correspondents a few words of praise. I am so glad so many can do up applesauce. I am going to try it. I must say "Brown Betty's" date cookies are real good. Let's have some more of your good recipes, "Betty."

I have been making apple jell. If you boil the juice down and put in the cans hot, it will keep, and then make the jelly when sugar is more pientiful. Boil juice about 20 minutes and about five minutes after you put sugar in, or until it jellies.

Could you tell me how to preserve yellow tomatees? Please, may I have the stocking-foot pattern. My feet are going bare. With best wishes, from BUNNY.

THOMAS E. WILSON (President of Wilson & Co., Chicago).

Personal Sketch of a London Boy by B. C. Forbes. In "Men Who Are Making America."

One day Nelson Morris & Co., the Chicago packers, asked the chief clerk of the Burlington Railway to send a young fellow to keep tab on their refrigerator and other cars. He selected his chief assistant as the man best qualified for the job. Within an hour or two the assistant returned from the stockyards. "If they offered me the whole stockyards I would not go out there to work," he declared emphatically, as he reached out for his pen to resume his clerical

"Will you let me go out and look it over?" asked a 19-year-old youth, who had only one year's experience. His superior assented. Off he went to the stockyards.

"I found," he said, describing his visit, "that conditions at the stockyards were not exactly salubrious. When you got there you found the plank roads floating in mud, which had a knack of squirting up the legs of your pants when you stepped from one plank to another. Inside Morris & Co.'s office the employees were so crowded and huddled together that they appeared to be working one on top of another. But there was no lack of business. It certainly looked as if a fellow could find a lot to do. The prospects appealed to me; so I accepted the job at $100 a month. I was getting only $40 a month from the

On the morning of July 21, 1916, Americans awoke to find the name Wilson & Co., successors to Sulzberger & Sons Co., blazoned in bold type in every newspaper. Who is Wilson? everyone asked. The public was curious to know who could be. What had he done to achieve such distinction almost over night? The man was the penniless clerk who was not afraid of the stockyards and its hard work. He was Thomas E. Wilson. He tells the story of his career in the following: "My first work was that of car checking. We owned special stock cars, refrigerator cars, and others. The railroads paid us for the use of them. I didn't stay all the time in the office, but went into the yards and took an interest in the actual handling of the cars, became familiar with the car repairs, and by and by I was made superintendent of all repairing work. I also had to purchase the material used in the repair shops. Gradually we developed into building cars for ourselves, and I supervised this new development. I broke another fellow to take my place, as I always had a desire to trade, and I took over the purchasing department for the whole plant, buying supplies of all kinds, machinery and construction material.

"We were branching out, and I took charge of construction work. I spent ne whole winter with headquarters in Boston and covered the New England territory with branches.

Armour or Swift or Hammond was doing there, and if I thought the place would stand another plant, I would buy or rent property. I would outline to our drafting department the kind of layout wanted; they would prepare a rough plan and send it to me for revision. Before the building was finished in all its appointments I would look around for the best man I could find, possible a local man, to run the business. When we had the thing safely launched I would repeat the performance in another city. I opened many of these establishments.

"Yes. I was always very busy and always one to be busy. The days were never long enough, although I ate breakfast at five-thirty every morning, caught the stockyards 'dummy,' which left Chicago at 6 o'clock and seldom left before 9 o'clock at night. In all the years I was with Morris & Co., I was off only five stone Hotel from two New York bankers, who said they wanted to see me. had a long talk with them. They wanted to engage me-at any salary I wanted to name to take charge of Sulzberger & Sons Company. Ferdinand Sulzberger had died two years before, and the business was being run by his son. They had made a deal for the re-financing of the concern by New York banking interests. After proper consideration I felt compelled to turn down their proposition.

"One day shortly after I had rejected the offer of the presidency of Sulzberger & Sons Co., I met a friend in Chicago who hailed me with, 'So you're going with Sulzbergers?' No, that's all off I told him. 'Oh, yes, you are,' he came back. I was talking with some New York bankers, and they told me you were to make the change, but that you did not know it yourself yet. They told me they would get you yet.' They did. They worked out a proposition, giving me a very substantial interest in the business and everything else I wanted. They were very liberal. And so here I am." "To what do you chiefly attribute you wonderful success?" I asked Mr. Wilson.

"I am no wonder," he rebuked me. "I am no brainler or wiser than any number of other people. My whole success is traceable to the fact that I have enjoyed my work and have given to it the best in me. No job ever was too big for me to tackle. That is the foundation of success-nine times out of tenhaving confidence in yourself and applying yourself with all your mind to your

"Too many men try to travel on a reputation. They stand upon their past achievements rather than daily press on towards further achievements. You cannot stake your future on the past, but on the present. A fellow must throw his whole energy into everything he undertakes and feel keenly that on this one thing, whatever it be he is doing, depends his whole future."

Mr. Wilson is the most natural, unaffected man imaginable, he is a giant physically and mentally. There are no hard lines in his face, and his large blue eyes reveal a kindly heart rather than suggest a cold, shrewd, business men-

Mr. Wilson always had an eye to business-even when on his honeymoon. He saw in Brooklyn on that occasion a piece of property that impressed him, and he immediately went and opened negotiations for its purchase. It proved one of the most profitable trades in his whole life.

He was fortunate in marrying Miss Elizabeth Foss, who has ever enthusiastically entered into all his ambitions and gladly sacrificed her own comfort and convenience for the sake of his success. In other words like her husband was willing to pay the price of success.

Thomas E. Wilson has risen without outside aid. He was born in London, Ont., on July 22, 1868, but the family of Scots-Irish extraction, moved to Chicago, when he was nine years old. Today Thomas E. Wilson is universally conidered to be without a superior as an all-round practical packer, capable of showing anyone of thousands of employees how to do a task, not one person in Chicago, not one fellow-worker or one packer grudges Mr. Wilson his phenomenal success. It was inevitable that Thomas E. Wilson should rise to the very top. One of his latest achievements is the establishment of a sporting goods business doing a nation-wide trade. Its products all carry the Wilson guarantee.

My prediction is that high up as he already is Thomas E. Wilson will go

PRODUCTION OF GOLD MUST BE INCREASED.

Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo recently stated that next to munitions and food, gold is the most important of all natural resources as a war necessity, and facing as we do the most critical time in the financial condition of the entirworld, everything must be done at once to greatly increase the production of this precious metal. The American Mining Congress, composing in its membership 75 per cent of the producing operators of the country, has sounded an alarm intended to secure early relief for gold producers in the United States. Unless relief is accorded, they state, thousands of gold miners will be out of employment, and millions of dollars worth of equipment will lie idle until cost of production can be adjusted. The necessity for having the gold output of this continent at maximum is best exemplified by the statement of an authority on world financial conditions that the gold reserve of the world before the war was $10,-000,000,000, or 35 per cent of the debt of the warring nations, and now it is only 8 per cent. Relief will undoubtedly be quickly accorded by the Government of the United States, and will probably take the form of a bonus over the present price of $20 per ounce, tax exemption, and the putting of labor engaged in gold mining in a deferred class of the army draft.

WALL STREET CONDITIONS.

With the Liberty Loan 31/2's and the Federal Farm Loan 5's establishing new high prices; with the money basically strong, and the Government arranging to increase gold production by offering a generous bonus, releasing gold properties from taxation and gold miners from military obligation, stocks are in a well defined position for advances by easy stages. These anticipated uplifts may hold without any violent recession, even in the face of the impending Fourth Liberty Loan and additional taxation measures. Fundamentally strong, the market, while presenting changing sides kaleidoscopic fashion, offers an era in which opportunities occur and recur. The feature of a gradually lifting market, gaining and retaining gains as natural fluctuations intervene, is in evidence.

The market is steadily climbing over the low quotations of 1917 with ample omise of attaining former higher levels, and it is not too much to expect that the highest of these may be overtopped. Such, likewise, is the prospect, with which keen investors view the horizon of future price spheres, expressing the assurance that greater earnings, easier money, greater demand and forecasted great success for the Fourth Liberty Loan will all serve to stimulate public regard for good securities and consequent heavy public participation. With stock prices low and price advances thus looked for, the thoughtful investor will seriously and advantageously regard the present opportunities.

SOME DAY!

You have determined to insure SOME day.

Let THIS Be the Day---It May Be Too Late Some OTHER DAY

Prompt action is desirable, because the older a man grows the higher the charge, and also because delays are dangerous. During the year 1917 over 110,000 persons in Canada and the United States who applied for insurance discovered that they were not "acceptable risks." Most of these people could have obtained the insurance desired if they had applied for it when they decided that "some day" they would insure,

Makes a good car better

For Piston Pins

ISTON pins receive the full force of every explosion. Unless their bearings are adequately cushioned with oil of correct body and lubricating qualities, they soon wear loose, with vibration that racks connecting rod and crankshaft bearings. Correct lubrication guards your motor against this danger.

BEWARE OF "KNOCKS"

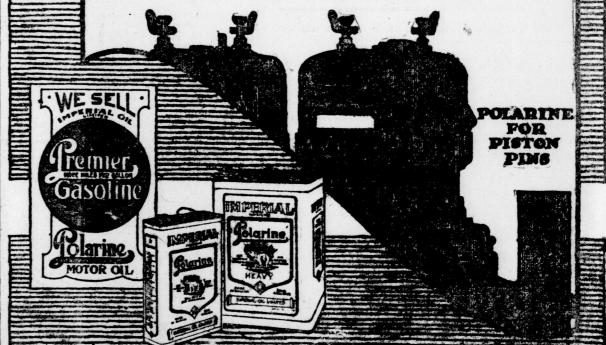

Every "knock" in your engine is a danger signal. Knocks mean extra strain, excessive wear on moving parts. They foretell increased repairs decreased intrinsic car value. And often the cause of these "knocks" is the use of the wrong lubricant. Don't wait for that metallic warning from a worn part before you realize that there is a great difference between lubricants. Help save your engine to-day from that possible breakdown of to-morrow

It has both body and lubricating qualities that minimize wear and friction. It flows freely at all temperatures does not break down and run thin when your meter heats up. It lessens carbon troublesoftens vibration-keeps your car running smoothly and delivering full power day in day out.

Premier Borden Makes Significant Remark.

AN ANNOUNCEMENT SOON

Hopes for Better Understanding Between Labor and

TORONTO, Sept. 2.—Sir Robert Borden was the principal speaker at the Labor Day directors' luncheon at the Canadian National Exhibition today, and late in the afternoon addressed an immense gathering of the general public in the open air from the main band stand. Probably fifteen to twenty housand persons listened to what was sesentially an appeal to labor not to subtract from the national effort to win the war by controversy or discord. Sir Robert declared his belief that the Canadian board of adjustment, consisting of six members representing the Canada Railway Board and as many representing the various organizations of employees, would be able to adjust all differences promptly and satisfactorily and that it would justify

At the luncheon the premier devoted some time to the question of Government ownership and operations of rail-'With one exception," he declared, "the largest railway proprietor in Can-ada is the Canadian people, and," he added significantly, "the day may come when there will be no exception." An Announcement Soon.

If the policy of state ownership of railways were to be successful, the methods of operation must be as efficient as those of any private corporation, there must be no party political interference, while the people and Parliament must retain the general control inherent in ownership. the Canadian Northern system would be reconstituted in the immediate future. The 14,000 miles now owned by Canada should be operated as one system and one management, it should not be administered by a department of the Government, it should be connected as soon as practicable with steamship lines on both Atlantic and Pacific, and 12 should be keptabsolutely free from party political influence. "For these reasons and for this pur pose," he declared, "the board of the Canadian Northern system will be re-constituted in the immediate future." Was Needed Abroad.

Was Needed Abroad.

Sir Robert held that his presence at the imperial war cabinet as the representative of Canada was necessary to accomplish essential unity of purpose and of effort, and told of the decision of the imperial war conference on the subject of immigration between India and the dominions. The first clause was executed by important. "Pacause it acand the dominions. The first clause was especially important, "because it accepted the principle (for which Canada had contended throughout) that the government of each dominion and of India was entitled to complete control of the composition of its own population by restriction, if necessary, on migration from any other part of the Empire."

The second clause dealt with regula-The second clause dealt with regulations respecting visits for pleasure or commerce, or temporary residence for education. By the third clause Indians already domiciled in other British countries would be allowed to bring intheir wives and minor children, on condition that not more than one wife and her children be admitted for each Indian

On Imperial Preference he said:

"We hold ourselves free to work on the problem of preference, according to Canada's needs and conditions. For the same reason Canada must avoid any attempt at interference with domestic policy in Great Britain."

The premier said that Canada had 175,000 troops in France and Belgium. Up to August nearly 414,000 men had gone overseas. This was made possible by Canada's resolve to stand by her army and provide adequate reinforcements. policy in Great Britain

Regarding the assertion that men were remaining in England who should be at the front, Sir Robert declared: "I found no evidence of any such condition." Every department "from headquarters down" was combed out and the fit men sent to France.

"The issue," he said in conclusion, "must be settled now, and Germany must learn her lesson, once for all. There must be no inconclusive peace. CANADIANS MADE READY FOR GREAT VICTORY BY WEEK OF HARD FIGHTING

Currie's Troops Made Steady Advance Along Cambrai

Prisoners and Machine Guns Taken During Several Encounters.

WITH THE CANADIAN FORCES, Sunday, Sept. 1 .- (By J. F. Livesay, Canadian Press correspondent) .-Successful minor fighting has been carried out along the Canadian front carried out along the Canadian front during the last 24 hours, whereby the line has been straightened out, the kinks removed, and the whole position consolidated. The advance of the Canadians has followed the line of the Cambrai road in the ground on our left, north of the Scarpe River. Good progress has been made by British troops, and with the capture of the line of Oppy.-Biache (where the enemy apparently still holds the factory in parently still holds the factory in the southeast corner), general relief has been afforded the Canadians from enfilading shelling directed from the northern summits. The most considerable advance made within our area yesterday and last night was by other British troops working with us as our left flank. These have stormed Harblainle-Pres, immediately south of the Scarpe, and held the line running practically direct from there to the western outskirts of Eterpigny and thence southwesterly to Haucourt. These two villages and the large Eterpigny wood connecting them were held in strength by large num-bers of machine guns, and the storming of the position was a very gallant piece of work. Move Up on Hendecourt. From Haucourt to the outskirts of Hendecourt good progress was made yesterday in consolidating our front. The Crow's Nest, a pyramidal hill half a mile north of the latter village, was recaptured after having changed hands several times in the last day or two last day or two. Farther south English troops are well up on our flank, and the line as a whole is satisfactory either for defence or attack. In these operations we have cap-tured several hundred more prison-ers and a large number of machine guns.

Enemy artillery has been withdrawn back of his main line of defence. This line has been named by ourselves as the Queant-Dro-court switch, and by him the Wotan line. Last Monday and Tuesday we passed over the Hindenburg line, or what remains of it, but still easily reinforced by steel. The enemy pushed out this line in a sharp salient running close to Arras, fearing no doubt that what has actually happened might occur, and he constructed behind it the Wotan line or switch, which in offset is line or switch, which in effect is a strongly fortified cut-off from Queant to Drocourt, at each of which points it joins up with the original Hindenburg line. It is equally strong. A Formidable Position. In our first rush of Friday morning last our troops pushed out beyond the Upton wood and the Crow's Nest to the Hendecourt-Dury road, where they were actually within a thousand yards of the switch, here a short distance in front of Cugnicourt and running in a northeasterly direction on top of the ridge. We were not in sufficient force to hold the road, which was swept by enemy battery and machine gun fire Now we are consolidating all along our unbroken and bare ridge to the Scarpe. There is no way of turn-ing it, and to take it by frontal attack must be costly. Yet it is a very great prize, for it is certain that this line, once broken, the enemy has no prepared defence for a number of miles back. What is more important, it lets through be hind the entire Hindenburg line. It opens the way to Cambrai and

Week of Hard Fighting. Except for the opening day of the show our troops have been up against very hard fighting all last week. It is a very different affair to that of Amiens, where first our surprise and then the weight of the attack carried all before it. The enemy was prepared for an attack, issued the information that the Canadians were not near this particular sector. It was supposed that they were resting after the Amiens drive. It has, nevertheless, only been by the most determined fighting that we have made head-way against the special reserves he has squandered against us. Some of his picked divisions, such as the Alpine and the marines, are, or have been on the line against us. The enemy is putting forth every effort to prevent a break which might prove a catastrophe. Through it all the morale of our troops has been wonderful. out by heavy fighting and long night marches, yet they have gone singing into battle and absolutely confident in their ability to beat the

LABOR DAY GIVES TORONTO EXHIBITION LARGEST CROWD EVER

Hun on his own picked battle-

TORONTO, Sept. 2.—Labor Day of 1918 supplied the Canadian National Exhibition with its greatest crowd, exceeding the previous record for the fair on Labor Day of 1913 by 20,500.

Even with the two wet days of this year, the attendance for the first seven days now exceeds that for the same period of 1917 by 6,900.

Today's attendance is the world's record for an annual fair.

RAINFALL LAST MONTH MORE THAN AUGUST, 1917

During the month of August, 2.46 inches of rain fell in this city, according to the records. This was slightly more than last year, when only 2.06 inches fell in August, 1917.

The highest temperature was 196.5 on August 6, while the lowest was 45 on August 1. This is thought to constitute a record for this city for high temperature, as London was the hottest city in Canada by a large margin on the day mentioned.

In August, 1917, the hottest day was the 1st, when 95 degrees were registered, and the lowest was on August 26, when the thermometer went down to 43. inches of rain fell in this city, according braves clearly showed the efficiency of the city protectors.

NEW MARK SET BY LABOR MEN AT BIG FIELD DAY MONDAY

Efforts of Previous Years | looking mother—Gordon Monks; mo

One of the features of the exhibitions was that of the members of the Physical Training School of Military District No. 1. These men, in charge of Sergt.-Major A. L. Ponton, furnished some interesting physical exercises for the crowd, as well as four bouts of bayonet fighting. At the close of the physical exercises all the men suddenly dropped on their stomachs, each one falling into his respective position, and the word "Victory" was formed. This happening thoroughly surprised the onlookers, who showed their appreciation by deafening applause. The Wheeler trio, a group of supreme comedy acrobats, also performed many side-spliting stunts greatly to the appreciation of all, especially the younger people.

Appeals for Navy League.

Following the exhibitions, Rev. T. J.

Conn, local organizer for the Navy League Campaign of Canada, spoke to the audience on the British navy and merchant marines. Rev. Mr. Conn told of the hardships of the sailors, and of what these men endured to make lives of the hardships of the sailors, and of what these men endured to make lives secure and safe. At the outbreak of the war Mr. Conn said that the sailors in the navy only obtained $23 per month for their services, but they have since been raised, and are now receiving $60. He said that they have no appetizing food or clothing, and are given no insurance or pensions, and no patrictind is raised for their benefit. He stated that over 4,000 of these sailors' pals were prisoners of war, and that over 15,000 had been killed by mines or submarines of the Germans.

Mr. Conn stated that the sailors carried more than $1,800,000,000 worth of munitions to the old country, which was more than enough to offset the entire national debt of the Dominion of Canada. They had transported 500,- more than enough to offset the entire national debt of the Dominion of Canada. They had transported 500,000 men, without the loss of a single lite, as well as over 80 per cent of the American troops. They have also transported more than 15,000,000 men from port to port, as well as gigantic quantities of food, munitions and horses. The sailors have also practically fed the British Isles, France and Italy.

Mr. Conn stated that these 300,000 men, who were all volunteers, and did not include a single conscript, were a greater national service than either the navy or the army, because neither could exist without them. He said that these men by their various actions have practically declared that after the war every German shall be banished from the seas, which have been disgraced by their heartless murders. In concluding, Mr. Conn expressed his thanks to the labor men for their kindness in allowing him to speak, and implored everyone to help and give towards the navy fund campaign, which will be shortly started in this city for these gallant men.

REMEMBER BY GIVING

AN you ever forget the stark horror when the newspapers spread the word that on May 7th, 1915, the unspeakable Germans had sunk the Lusitania, murdering women. children, and noncombatants?

The horror is very fresh in the minds of the widows and orphans of the heroic crew.

To their mental distress is added the torture of threatened poverty. Governments do not make recognition of their needs,-makes no allowance as in the case of dependents of the men of the Army and Navy.

The widows and orphans must rely on your benevolence, as do the families of 15,000 merchant seamen lost in the war, victims of the U-Boat and the floating mine.

Surely no life was ever more nobly given than by these unsung heroes who go down to the sea in ships.

What shall be said to their dependents? Let your cry be "They shall not want!" and make your offering as large as a worthy sacrifice will allow.
