BID FOR INTERVENTION

Arbitration of Russ-Jap War Pleaded By Lord Lansdowne.

At Lord Mayor's Banquet in London, in the absence of Premier Balfour, He speaks On Behalf of the British Government For Peace-utterances Are Regarded As Almost a Plea For Russia and Are Received in Silence.

London, Nov. 10.—Lord Lansdowne, in the absence of Premier Balfour, at the historic Lord Mayor's banquet, held last night, made a strong plea for peace and arbitration on behalf of the British Government. Lord Lansdowne pointed out to a large and rather unsympathetic audience that arbitration was the only way in which the North Sea dispute with Russia could have been equitably settled, and almost in the same breath drew a vivid picture of the horrors of the struggle now proceeding in the Far East. Between the lines of every reference the Foreign Minister made to the Russian-Japanese war was an urgent plea, amounting almost to a demand, that it might be settled by arbitration.

It was a carefully prepared statement before what is considered the most representative gathering of leading men of Great Britain. As such it was generally interpreted as a bolder bid for intervention than has yet emanated from any neutral power. America was writ large in his speech, for which Great Britain has been waiting for many days. The Foreign Minister prefaced all his remarks by saying: "That great statesman, John Hay, recently remarked that war was the most futile and fallacious of human follies."

An impassioned review of the North Sea affair. Although Lord Lansdowne was unable to announce the signing of the convention, he emphatically confirmed statements made in these despatches, namely, that Great Britain had found it difficult in arriving at a solution in principle of the dispute, and only supplemented what is already known by the statement that Russia has guaranteed the punishment of any officers in addition to those already detached from Admiral Rojestvensky's squadron, who might be proved to have been implicated.

By most of his hearers, Lord Lansdowne's utterances were regarded almost as a plea for Russia. A dead silence greeted him, as after pointing out that the two Governments in good faith believed in contradictory statements of facts, he asked: "Could we have done better than get full apology and compensation and leave the question of facts to an international tribunal with a guarantee of punishment of any who may be found guilty."

Lord Lansdowne, in connection with the question of contraband, seriously reminded the audience that Great Britain, as the greatest naval power, might some day be the greatest sufferer by a restriction of belligerent rights on the high seas.

War Secretary Heard.

At the Lord Mayor's banquet at the Guildhall last night, Foreign Secretary Lansdowne, in the absence of Premier Balfour, who by the advice of his physician, is still resting his injured leg, was the principal speaker. The 250 guests included the Archbishop of Canterbury, the members of the Cabinet, the foreign representatives, members of Parliament and other prominent persons. After the usual loyal toasts, War Secretary, Arnold-Forster, replying for the Imperial forces, said it was the determination of the Army Council not to rest until the British army was ready to enter the field at any time with absolute confidence of success.

Lord Lansdowne, responding to His Majesty's Ministers, referred to the unfortunate absence of Mr. Balfour, who, in spite of his illness, had not ceased to actively participate in the affairs of the country.

Continuing, the Foreign Secretary said that while London was principally interested that peace should prevail everywhere, he did not think they should think of peace at any price.

"At this moment," said Lord Lansdowne, "contemplating the terrible struggle between two brave and gallant nations in the Far East, can one of us contemplate without regret the legion after legion of brave men being led forth to meet their fate and the ruined homes and broken hearts? We can conceive no more terrible punishment than the remorse of any Minister or body of Ministers who from a loss of temper or desire of popularity brought upon the country the scourge and calamity of needless war."

Peace Still Unbroken.

At this auspicious moment I am able to announce to you that not only the peace of the country is unbroken, but so far as I am able to foresee, there is no reason why it should not remain unbroken. Not only have we had the good fortune to avoid war, but by the strict neutrality and wise international arrangements we have done something to restrict the area of hostilities. The country, however, has not altogether escaped anxieties. For the last few days we have been face to face with an incident which moved the people of this country as few other incidents have done. The incident of October 21 in the North Sea was an attack on our citizens and an affront to the British flag which, if intentional, I would rather not contemplate the consequences. It was a deplorable and unaccountable blunder, but I am bound to add that recent evidence have satisfied the British Government that the Russian Government believed that the facts were different from what we supposed, and that each party was convinced of the justice of its own cause. Great Britain has adopted the only course in referring the matter to an independent and impartial tribunal, and we found no difficulty in arriving at the principal questions nor in deciding what the terms for their reference under The Hague Convention were such as we could accept."

After detailing what would be the procedure of the court, Lord Lansdowne referred to the smallness of the number of Russian officers left at Vigo and said: "It was not for us to assume the responsibility for the selection of the officers. That rested with Russia and it would be a great mistake to relieve her of the responsibility."

Would Punish All.

The Foreign Secretary added that the Government had received distinct assurance during the last day or two that the Russian officers detained were those who were directly implicated, and if the enquiry showed that others were culpable, they also had received a full expression of regret, a promise of ample compensation and a guarantee against a recurrence, with security for all neutral commerce and promise of the punishment of the guilty persons. Was it possible to secure more?

Continuing, Lord Lansdowne referred to other questions which have arisen during the war, especially that of contraband, which had been largely cleared up, and since July there had been no case of seizing a British ship by Russian vessels.

"I am sanguine enough to say," Lord Lansdowne remarked, "that good is likely to come from this struggle in the Far East. It is my hope and belief that this terrible war will give a stimulus to the existing desire for some less clumsy and brutal method of adjusting international differences. I myself have signed no less than five treaties of arbitration."

Do Away With Wars.

"Only yesterday the American Ambassador, Mr. Choate, asked me if we were prepared to sign a similar treaty with America. I have also lately been asked by President Roosevelt, to whom we may offer congratulations on his recent participation in a second international peace conference. While reserving the right to consider what subjects and the terms of reference, we did not hesitate to say that we were ready to participate and to tell the president that we wished him Godspeed in the useful work he has undertaken. Is not there a better way than this? Is it not better to so arrange matters that a dispute shall not arise at all?"

Lord Lansdowne then referred to the Anglo-French arbitration and said he hoped it would be adopted by a large majority of the Chamber of Deputies and that it would be effective in removing dangerous and difficult questions from international controversy. He saw something of this in the assistance Great Britain had received during the last few days from the French Government in bringing about an amicable settlement between Great Britain and Russia.

AN OBJECT LESSON

IN A RESTAURANT.

A physician puts the query—Have you never noticed in any large restaurant at lunch or dinner time the large number of hearty, vigorous old men at the tables, men whose ages run from sixty to eighty years; many of them bald and all perhaps gray, but none of them feeble or senile? Perhaps the spectacle is so common as to have escaped your observation or comment, but nevertheless it is an object lesson which means something.

If you will notice what these hearty fellows are eating, you will observe that they are not munching bran crackers nor gingerly picking their way through a menu card of new fangled health foods; on the contrary they seem to prefer a juicy roast of beef, a properly turned loin of mutton, and even the deadly broiled lobster is not altogether ignored. The point of all this is that a vigorous old age depends upon good digestion and plenty of wholesome food and not upon dieting and an endeavor to live upon bran crackers.

There is a certain class of food jerks who seem to believe that meat and coffee and many other good things are rank poisons, but these cadaverous looking individuals are a walking condemnation of their own theories.

The matter in nutshell is that if the stomach secretes the natural digestive juices in sufficient quantity, any wholesome food will be promptly digested; if the stomach does not do so, and certain foods cause distress, one or two of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal will remove difficulty, because they supply just what every weak stomach lacks, pepsin, hydro-chloric acid, diastase and nux.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do not act upon the bowels and in fact are not strictly a medicine, as they act almost entirely upon the food eaten, digesting it thoroughly and thus giving the stomach a much needed rest and an appetite for the next meal.

Of people who travel, nine of ten use Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, knowing them to be perfectly safe to use at any time and also having found out by experience that they are a safeguard against indigestion in any form, and eating as they have to, at all hours and all kinds of food, the travelling public for years have planned their faith to Stuart's Tablets.

All druggists sell them at 50 cents for full-sized packages and any druggist from Maine to California, if his opinion were asked, will say that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the most popular and successful remedy for any stomach trouble.

A man's idea of the future is that of a rest from toil and responsibility.

MARTIN MURDER CASE.

Testimony Taken At the Criminal Assize Court At Toronto After They Had Pled Not Guilty.

Toronto, Nov. 10.—The trial of Alexander Martin and his wife, Ethel, was commenced in the Criminal Assize Court yesterday, before Chief Justice Falconbridge. They are charged with having murdered their infant child on Aug. 3, last. William Proudfoot, K.C., is Crown prosecutor; T. C. Robinson, K.C., is appearing for Mrs. Martin, and A. R. Hassard for the husband. Both prisoners pleaded "not guilty."

The Court adjourned at 5 p.m., and the jurors were locked up over night. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Forbes, 208 West Richmond street, testified that the prisoners under the name of Johnson, engaged a room for a week on Aug. 2 last. They had a child with them. On Aug. 3 they went out with the child and returned the same evening without it. Mrs. Martin said she had left the child in Port Hope with its grandmother.

Mrs. Butler told of her seeing them on a King street car on Aug. 3. They got off at Munro Park and walked towards the lake.

Henry Noakes, caretaker of Hicks' bathhouse, identified the prisoners as a man and woman to whom he had rented a boat on Aug. 3.

Richard Clark, who was out sailing on Aug. 3, testified that he saw a rowboat about five miles from the shore, and about a quarter of a mile distant from him. There was a man and woman in the boat. While watching the boat and its occupants the man ceased rowing, picked up something and made motions, as if knocking or shaking something and then threw it into the lake. He could not distinguish the object. The man resumed rowing, heading west and then turning towards the island.

Mrs. Winnie Ward said she saw a man and woman pulling a row-boat up on the beach on Aug. 3. She could not identify the prisoners.

Mrs. Clara Ward saw a man and woman walking west on the breakwater, but could not say whether they were the prisoners.

Mrs. W. Williamson, who came over from the island on the "Kathleen," positively identified the prisoners as a man and woman she had seen on the boat. She noticed them particularly, on account of the woman's nervous and dejected appearance. She was holding the man's hand and appeared to have been crying.

This is as far as the Crown prosecutor got. The case will be resumed at 10 a.m. to-day.

Read what Mrs. A. G. Wheeler, Waseau, Man., has to say about it:—"Please let me thank you for the great good that both my husband and my children have received from Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. One night when my husband came home from work he had contracted a very bad cold. He became so bad that he had to go to bed and send for the doctor. When the doctor came he pronounced it a very serious case, and wanted me to send him to the Winnipeg Hospital. This I would not do, as it is about 600 miles to Winnipeg. I decided to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup and got four bottles before he was all right again and only lost a few days' work. I always keep it in the house for the children. Even the baby, seven months old, takes it and seems to like it, and as for myself I do not know what I would do without it. I think that every good housekeeper should keep a bottle on hand, for I know it will save many a doctor bill."

DID THEY KILL BABY?

Crown Argues That Martins Premeditated Murder.

Counsel For Defence Advances Theories of Reasonable Doubt For Woman's Part of the Crime—Martin's Counsel Pleads That a Little Child's Life Is Not So Valuable That Accused' Lives Should Be Taken From Them.

Toronto, Nov. 11.—The trial of the Martins on the charge of murdering their child on Aug. 3, last, will be resumed at 10 a. m. to-day, when Chief Justice Falconbridge will make his charge to the jury. The courtroom was crowded all day yesterday. The prisoners were more downcast than on the day before, and seemed to cling to one another for sympathy and protection. They realized more fully the awful position they have placed themselves in.

Confession Not Evidence.

The principal witness of the day was Mrs. Whidden, the police matron, to whom Mrs. Martin made a confession the night she was arrested. His Lordship informed the jury that this confession could not be used as evidence against the husband. Mrs. Martin's confession was that she and her husband went out in a boat. Her husband complained that she was taking too long to find a place for the child. He wanted to go to the fort, but could not, as long as they were burdened with the child. They quarrelled, and Martin reached over, snatched the child from her, struck it on the head with something (it was not an oar), and threw it into the lake. Then she fainted. When she revived, they were some distance from the spot. She saw the child floating in the water. She said to her husband, "Oh, Alex! Oh, Alex! Row back! Row back!" They did so, but the baby had sank. Mrs. Martin did not say whether the crime had been planned or not in advance. After the confession, Mrs. Martin had asked if she might have a rattle that was found on the body of the child as a memento.

During the recital of the confession by Mrs. Whidden, the prisoners were both much affected.

The chief of the Crown's case, and the defence did not call any witnesses.

Counsel's Addresses.

Mr. Robinette, counsel for the woman prisoner, was the first to address the jury. He argued that whatever took place in the boat, Mrs. Martin was not a party to it. Her confession to Mrs. Whidden was the whole and the true story. Before a verdict of guilty of murder could be found against the woman, the jury must find that she aided and abetted the crime. There was no evidence to show that she was anxious to get rid of her child. That she had not told of the deed was due to the fact that she wished to shield her husband, the man she married and loved. The jury might find her guilty of the concealment of the murder, but a further imprisonment would add to her punishment. She had already suffered great anguish and trouble. Counsel spoke for 45 minutes.

For over two hours Mr. Hassard spoke on behalf of Martin. He said there was no evidence to show that the prisoners had plotted the crime, or that they had made any efforts to get rid of the baby.

It was possible that the child may have been irritable, and Mrs. Martin, while trying to soothe it by swaying it, the head striking on the edge of the boat, the body falling into the water. In order to avoid paying for a funeral, which would be expensive, they decided upon telling the story that the child had been taken to Port Hope.

If murder had been planned, they would not have gone to such a public place as Munro Park. They would not have returned to the place where they had been stopping. They would have removed the clothing, so that identification would have been impossible. The jury must not find that a murder had been committed. Was it possible that it was a case of manslaughter? The life of that little child was not so valuable that the lives of the two prisoners should be taken from them. Counsel closed with an impassioned appeal to hand him back the prisoners with a verdict of "not guilty."

Same Verdict For Both.

Crown Prosecutor Proudfoot explained to the jury that it was only his duty to lay before them the evidence, and not to make an appeal for the conviction of the prisoners. He argued that the crime was premeditated, that their coming to Toronto and engaging rooms under false names showed that there was a crime intended. When they hired the boat at Munro Park, they had the child with them. When they came back on the ferry boat it was not with them. Where was it? When they left the ferry, why did they not go to their room instead of remaining away until all in the house had retired? It was to give credence to the story that they had been to Port Hope and left the child there. It showed that the woman was willing to cover up what had taken place. Her sorrow on the street car going to the park showed that she knew what the journey was for. The jury must not sorrow for the prisoners obscure their vision of justice. It was always difficult in murder cases to obtain direct evidence of the commission of the crime, and in most murder cases something was forgotten that led to the conviction of the guilty. In this case Martin had forgotten that the body of an infant would float. If the woman did know that it was her husband's intention to murder the child, she was as guilty as he. If she loved the child, what was to prevent her making known his intentions? The jury must find the same verdict for both.

Darrell has been admitted to the Peninsular league. This was decided at the meeting at the Crawford House last evening of the Peninsular association football executive. President S. J. Watts presided, while Secy. Fyler represented Detroit, E. Stokes the Windsor, and Harry Wilson the Thistles. The most important question discussed was whether Darrell should be elected at this late season of the year. Secy. Fyler thought not, but both Messrs. Stokes and Wilson believed the eastern team should be allowed to defend the Walker cup. Capt. Abraham was present to press the question for his club. Detroit and Windsor play on Saturday at Sandwich, and it should be a fast game. The winners will play two matches with Darrell.—Windsor Record.

PIDGEE INQUEST

The Coroner's Jury on the inquest into the cause of the death of the late John Pidgeon, who came to his death while out shooting ducks at Bear Creek with a companion, Simon Thibodeau, Jr., brought in a verdict last evening "that the late Mr. Pidgeon came to his death from a gun shot wound on the afternoon of Oct. 25, 1904, and that according to the evidence we don't know where the shot came from."

This inquest, which has been held for two days and one night, was just concluded last night and, as can be seen from the verdict, no definite conclusion was arrived at as to how Pidgeon came to his death.

About twenty witnesses in all were examined by Coroner Mitchell, including J. F. Saint, Nelson Sturdevant, Wm. John Kelly, Simon Thibodeau, John Pidgeon, father of deceased, Chas. S. Benn, Simon Thibodeau, Jr., Robert Southgate, James Sutherland, Mr. Stonehouse, Dr. W. W. Hay, Henry Labadie, Wm. McDonald, James Thibodeau, John Grayson, Geo. McLaren, Isadore Lozon, and others.

Simon Thibodeau, the young man who was with Pidgeon at the time the accident happened, was, according to his story, sitting in the front of the boat with Pidgeon behind him. He saw a duck in front of him and fired. About the same time Pidgeon fired and Thibodeau turning around in the boat saw that Pidgeon had shot himself.

The case was a long one and much complicated and, according to the evidence no other verdict could be brought in.

School Girls

Mothers of young girls at this period of life, or the girl herself, are earnestly invited to write Mrs. Pinkham for advice: all such letters are strictly confidential; she has guided in a motherly way thousands of young women; her advice is free and cheerfully given.

School days are danger days for American girls. Often physical collapse follows, and it takes years to recover the lost vitality. Sometimes it is never recovered. Perhaps they are sickly from over-carefulness about keeping their feet dry; through carelessness in this respect the monthly or they will produce constant suffering. Headache, faintness, slight vertigo, pains in the back and loins, irregularity, loss of sleep and appetite, a tendency to avoid the society of others, are symptoms all indicating that the organs that make her a woman need immediate attention.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

has helped many a young girl over this critical period. With it they have gone through their trials with courage and safety. With its proper use the young girl is safe from the peculiar dangers of school years and prepared for healthy womanhood.

A Young Chicago Girl "Studied Too Hard."

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wish to thank you for the help and benefit I have received through the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills. When I was about 17 years old I suddenly seemed to lose my usual good health and vitality. Father said I studied too hard, but the doctor thought different and prescribed tonics, which I took by the quart without relief. Reading one day in the paper of Mrs. Pinkham's great cures, and finding Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. I did not say a word to the doctor, I bought it myself, and took it according to directions regularly for two months, and I found that I gradually improved, and that all pains left me, and I was my old self once more."—LELIE E. SINCLAIR, 17 E. 23d St., Chicago, Ill.

"Miss Pratt Unable to Attend School."

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I feel it my duty to tell all young women how much Lydia E. Pinkham's wonderful Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was completely run down, unable to attend school, and did not care for any kind of society, but now I feel like a new person, and have gained seven pounds of flesh in three months. I recommend it to all young women who suffer from female weakness."—MISS ALMA PRATT, Holly, Mich.

Thousands of such testimonials prove that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the one sure remedy to be relied upon at this important period in a young girl's life. Look for the bottle with Lydia E. Pinkham's face on it, and accept no other.

$5000 FORFEIT If we cannot forthwith produce the original letters and signatures of above testimonials, which will prove their absolute genuineness. Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co., Lynn, Mass.

Of course they do. It is their way of learning and it is your duty to answer. You may need a dictionary to aid you. It won't answer every question, but there are thousands to which it will give you true, clear and definite answers, not about words only, but about things, the sun, machinery, men, places, stories and the like. THE QUESTION OF DOCTORS' FEES

The question of doctors' fees is one of great and vital interest to the public at large. Yet it is one which is little understood and less appreciated.

The writer was brought up in the gloomy atmosphere of Harley Street and the inner circle of the professions and can speak with knowledge of the fees of the specialist, who must be divided into two distinct classes—the surgeon proper and the pure physician. The former unquestionably gets big fees in relation to his reputation. Sir Frederick Treves has only named his fee to the millionaire with appendicitis. With the fear of death before his eyes he will write his check gladly. If he does not boast. A younger and less-known man will perform the same operation for a tithe of the cost; but the public, with death staring them in the face, will have the man with the big name, regardless of expense. They feel, often wrongly, that it will only serve to swell the death duties if they do not. But the pure physician is an entirely different matter. His fees are standardised, not by act of parliament, but by that autocratic body the Royal College of Physicians. His fees for consultation at his own house are fixed at two guineas the first visit and a guinea for each subsequent one. For consultations away from home he receives a fee at the calculated rate of two-thirds of a guinea a mile.

Elstree, twelve miles out of town, is ipso facto 8 guineas; Tonbridge, 30 miles, is 20 guineas; Liverpool, 201 miles, is 134 guineas; and so on pro rata. But it must be remembered

Many Women Suffer Untold Agony From Kidney Trouble.

Very often they think it is from so-called "female disease." There is less female trouble than they think. Women suffer from backache, sleeplessness, nervousness, irritability, and a dragging-down feeling in the loins. So do men, and they do not have "female trouble." Why, then, blame all your trouble to female disease? With healthy kidneys, few women will ever have "female disorders." The kidneys are so closely connected with all the internal organs, that when the kidneys go wrong, everything goes wrong. Much distress would be saved if women would only take at stated intervals. Miss Nellie Clark, Lambeth, Ont., tells of her cure in the following words:—"I suffered for about two years with kidney trouble. I ached all over, especially in the small of my back; not being able to sleep well, no appetite, menstruation irregular, nervous irritability, and back-dust deposit in urine, were some of my symptoms. I took Doan's Kidney Pills. The pain in my back gradually left me, my appetite returned, I sleep well, and am effectually cured. I can highly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to all sufferers from kidney trouble." Price 50 cents per box, or 3 for $1.25. All dealers, or DOAN KIDNEY PILLS CO., TORONTO, ONT.

ed that nowadays all the big provincial centres have their own specialists and the town man is very seldom sent for, unless he be one of the very biggest names and the case desperate and rich. If the physician should accept more, he transgresses that professional fetish, "medical etiquette," and is branded a quack by his less lucky brethren.

Moreover, when he arrives at a sufficient standing in the ranks of his profession, the Royal College of Physicians will not elect him to their all-important fellowship, the crowning qualification and highwater mark of his calling. Often he takes confound of losing the badly-needed fee. For instance, a prepaid telegram will often save a considerable sum in the case of a consultation out of town. His only advantage is that he gets cash "on the nail." Compare these fees with the retainer and refreshment of our leading counsel, and the inequality becomes obvious. The cheapness of it becomes absurd.

"But what do we get for our two guineas?" asks the public. Only an opinion—a quarter of an hour in the consulting-room. True, often enough but what is that opinion built up of? Firstly, a brilliant career at the university and the hospitals; secondly, half the day spent voluntarily at the hospitals, seeing cases, often a hundred in an afternoon, free of charge, to qualify himself to arrive at and express the opinion. All his work, which weeds out the weaklings before name, fame or fortune is reached. To arrive at success, is above everything, the sign of an extraordinary tough constitution.

Further, no man in Harley Street can make two ends meet for many long years; and the waiting breaks many hearts and very backs. It is a weary struggle to keep up appearances, to pay a big rent and a bigger rate, to run a carriage, and to stimulate prosperity. Therefore, it means of necessity either a considerable privation to start with or marriage with a rich woman. The public who talk about big fees would be astonished if they could examine the books in Harley street.

Then, after years of struggling without enough money to enjoy the compulsory leisure of waiting, if success comes, the poor harassed consultant has no time to spend or enjoy the money he does make. All his return for it is a baronetcy and a comfortable fortune for his son to squander. His dinner is as often as not eaten in his carriage or in the train, and all his wife sees of him is his sleeping head, on the pillow beside her. The writer once heard the wife of one of the leading men in the profession say that she was far happier in the struggling days! Yet his fees, however, big his reputation, must always adhere to the one standard. It is nonsense to talk of any "physician with a reputation demanding from ten to twenty guineas for scribbling out a prescription of gentian and soda-water as a remedy for indigestion."

Thus it is with the Sir William Broadbents, the Sir Thomas Barlows, the Sir Richard Douglas-Powells of the profession, who earn large incomes, and have no leisure to enjoy them. Does it not prove that this standardised system is wrong? If the College of Physicians would consider a suggestion from a layman, it seems to the writer that a graduated system is not only more logical, but would show better results all round.

WHAT DID HE MEAN.

He—I believe congratulations are in order. Pray, accept mine. She—What for? He—I heard you were engaged. She—You're late—I've been married for two months to Mr. Roller. He—O, I beg pardon. How stupid! I'm so sorry.

ABSOLUTELY A LOST SECRET

The beauty of earth, except for some spots that our sordid industries have ravaged has altered but little since the days of Augustus and Pericles. The sea is infinite still, still inviolate. The forest, the plain, the harvest, the villages, rivers and the streams, the mountains, the dawn and the evening, stars and the sky—vary as these all may according to climate and latitude, offer us still the same spectacles of grandeur and tenderness, the same soft, profound harmonies, the same fairy-like scenes of changing complexity, that they show to the Athenian citizen, and the people of Rome. Nature remains more or less as it was; and besides, we have grown more sensitive, and to-day we admire more freely. But when we turn to the beauty special to man, beauty that is his own immediate aim, we find that, owing perhaps to our too great wealth or excessive application, to the scattering of our efforts, lack of concentration, or to the want of a certain goal and an incontestable starting point, we appear to have lost almost all that the ancients have been able to establish and make their own. In all that regards purely human aesthetics, in what concerns our body, our gestures, our clothes, the objects we live with, our houses and gardens, our monuments, even our landscapes, we are groping so timidly, we display such confusion and inexperience, that one might truly believe our occupation of this planet to date but from yesterday, and that we are still at the very beginning of the period of adaptation. For the work of our hands there exists no longer a common measure, an accepted rule or conviction. Our painters, our architects, our sculptors, our men of letters—and we in our homes, our cities—seek in a thousand different contradictory directions for the sure, the undeniable beauty that the ancients possessed so fully. Should one of us by any chance create, join together, or discover a few lines, a harmony of form or color, that should incontestably prove that the mysterious, decisive point had been attained, it would be regarded as the merest hazard, an isolated and precious phenomenon, and neither the author nor anyone else would be able to repeat it.—Maurice Maeterlinck, in the Fortnightly Review.

NOW HE CAN EAT WHAT HE LIKES

Mr. R. A. Barton Lost His Indigestion When He Found Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

"Now I can eat whatever is set before me asking no questions." Those are the words of Mr. R. A. Barton, well known in Toronto business circles, and living at 23 Ryndall Avenue, Toronto. But Mr. Barton was not always in this happy state. He says:

"I had indigestion in its worst form. I consulted several doctors. Their treatment did me no good. As a last resort I tried Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. I took several boxes before they did me much good, but finally they had the desired effect. I heartily recommend Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets to anyone troubled with indigestion. If you would eat what you like when you like use Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets."

A TIMELY SUGGESTION.

This is the season of the year when the prudent and careful housewife replenishes her supply of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is certain to be needed before the winter is over, and results are much more prompt and satisfactory when it is kept at hand and given as soon as the cold is contracted and before it has become settled in the system. In almost every instance a severe cold may be warded off by taking this remedy freely as soon as the first indication of the cold appears. There is no danger in giving it to children for it contains no harmful substance. It is pleasant to take—both adults and children like it. Buy it and you will get the best. It always cures. For sale by all druggists.

THE MINSTRELS.

The Evening Journal, Ottawa, says—Guy Brothers' Minstrels always please. They are old favorites in Ottawa, and so it was not surprising that they were greeted with a large crowd when they opened a three-night engagement at the Grand last evening. The entertainment has undergone several changes since it was previously seen here, and is decidedly improved. Most of the black-cork artists have disappeared and in their place is a company of sailors in natty white uniforms. The solo and chorus work is of the highest order. Then, too, there is a variety of clever tricks and most difficult acrobatic work, which evoked great enthusiasm. If the show gets what it deserves, there will be a bumper house for the rest of the week.

At the Grand Opera House here, Saturday night, November 12th.

"A $10,000.00 PRODUCTION."

In the picturesque drama depicting life in Chicago, entitled "On the Bridge at Midnight," which comes to us very soon, we are assured of seeing one of the finest comedy dramas of the year, and one which abounds in magnificent settings and wonderful stage effects. Although styled as a melodrama, this play, which will be given with the greatest freedom and Alma Hearn as leading woman, has none of the earmarks of the ordinary melodrama, but with an absorbingly interesting story of love, and some delicious comedy combined makes it one of the strongest scenic productions of the year. A jack bridge in operation on one side is a marvel of the stage setter's craft, this huge piece of scenery working as well as a real bridge, and giving as realistic an effect.

Of all Canadian sports, skating is the most popular. The bracing air and rhythmic movements set the body all aglow. Look out for the reaction. On the way home or when you get there, take a cup of steaming beef tea made with one quarter teaspoonful of

SLIGHT SPRAINS GROW WORSE

Unless promptly treated. The great strength of Nerviline enables it to quickly cure all manner of sprains and strains. "I sprained my wrist," writes Leonard E. Milford, of Rockland, "while working in the mill, but had to lay off, it became so painful and swelled. I rubbed my wrist thoroughly with Nerviline twice a day and put on a bandage. The pain soon went away and frequent rubbing with Nerviline soon cured. Nerviline is undoubtedly an excellent liniment and the best pain reliever I ever used." Nerviline certainly is extra good. Price 25c.

He had been on duty in his present position for a week. No one seems to know how the fatality occurred, but the body was found jammed in between the elevator and the flooring or ceiling. Chief Coroner Johnston is investigating.

SNAKE RIVER VALLEY.

The largest irrigation enterprise in America is located in the rich Snake River valley of Idaho which has been reclaimed through man's handiwork alone. In this valley which is now comfortably settled, there remains 270,000 acres of land belonging to the state of Idaho which is under the Twin Falls irrigation canals and open to settlement. This land is among the richest in America as experiments have proved. Potatoes here yield 200 to 400 bushels to the acre with an average weight of 63 pounds per bushel. Three crops of alfalfa are raised each season in the Snake River Valley. The climate is superb and of great value as a tonic for mind and body. Homeseekers' low rates to the Snake River valley are in effect via Union Pacific, the only direct route. Why not visit this district in person and fully realize its great possibilities? NEITHER WILL RUN AGAIN

Messrs. Pardo and Lee Both
Declare they will not
Champion the Corruptionists this time

The Task of Representing the Stratton-Sullivan-Ross Government is Doubtless Not a Congenial One.

T. L. Pardo, M. P. P. for West Kent, and John Lee, M. P. P. for East Kent, have both publicly expressed their determination of retiring at the end of the present Legislature and not seeking re-election. While neither member gives any specific reason for his decision, it is not difficult to draw conclusions. Mr. Pardo says he is withdrawing that other and younger men may have a chance. Mr. Lee in his own blunt and outspoken way simply declares he "had enough of it."

The general deduction is that both gentlemen decline to act any longer as sponsors for the Stratton-Sullivan-Ross government. The task of championing the cause of the corruptionists cannot be a congenial one, and, whatever the decision at the coming convention in Toronto, it is felt that the unsavory record of the past must mean defeat and punishment at the hands of the outraged electorate of both political parties. It is, of course, pointed out that this is not the first time Mr. Lee has promised not to run again and that one more he may "change his mind." But at the present the member for East Kent is very emphatic in his decision.

MACAULAY CLUB

Will Open the Season at the Public Library Auditorium on Saturday, Nov. 19th.

It was decided to hold the first regular meeting of the Club on Saturday evening, Nov. 9th, at the Public Library Auditorium, where the club will again meet during the coming season.

The subject for debate on that evening is an interesting one, viz., "Resolved that all official appointments except those of the judiciary should be made directly by the people."

A full attendance of the club members is specially requested for this initial meeting in order that arrangements for the season's work may be completed.

ALL ABOARD!

Local Liberal-Conservatives Will Leave by Special To-Night to Visit Blenheim.

The special Pere-Marquette train leaves Chatham at seven o'clock to-night for Blenheim, returning at 11:30.

Many local Liberal-Conservatives are taking in the big Blenheim demonstration in honor of Mr. Clements' victory and there is a large delegation of ladies in the contingent. All Liberal-Conservatives and their wives are invited to come along.

The Regimental Band and possibly the Bugle Band will accompany the contingent and lead the procession. The Blenheim demonstration includes a banquet, torchlight procession and public meeting.

BANK ROBBED

Isaac Unsworth of Florence, Banker, Loses Money and Valuable Papers.

The quiet little village of Florence north of Dresden, was visited by a bank robbery last night, according to Dame Rumor.

At three o'clock this morning the private bank of Isaac Unsworth, of that place, was entered by robbers. The safe was blown open but only a small amount of money and papers were destroyed.

The robbers then evidently stole a horse and rig to get out of the place, but the rig was returned this morning.

The C. P. R. operator at Thamesville, reports having seen three hard looking characters hanging around the station at that place yesterday, but so far no clue has been found as to the bank robbers.

Tobacco pouches, pipes, cigarette cases and holders in great variety. E. J. MacIntyre, Leading Jeweler and Optician.

THOSE LIGHTS

"I can tell you some news this morning," said a resident of Lorne Avenue. "The electric lights on Lorne Avenue were lit last night."

"I was going home last night," continued he, "and when passing one of the corners I saw a man with the lamp down and he was looking at it and trying to fix it."

"What are you doing?" I asked. "Why, I am trying to fix this thing," he replied. "The blamed thing is lit to-night and so there must be something wrong with it."

"However, I must add that we are getting a better service than we have had."

Long-Lived Clothes for Boys

If you have a boy that knocks his clothes to pieces and gets them out of shape a month or so after you buy them, don't blame the boy. It's the fault of the clothes. It's a poor sort of boy that will stand up along the fence to keep his clothes in good order, when the rest of the boys are playing leap-frog or having a wrestling match. We pick cloths that will stand the racket, made of good long yarns that give strength and "stay right" to the suit.

If your boy has a T. & D. Suit you do not need to worry about the fun he may be having. All sizes at all prices from $2.00 to $7.50.

THORNTON & DOUGLAS

A FAMILY QUARREL

Chief of Police Holmes appeared in a new role at the Police Court this morning—that of peace-maker between two women neighbors. It is said that women go and pour out their woes to their nearest friends when they are in trouble and if this is true Mr. Holmes has two very near friends on Ingram Street. The Chief had his hands full this morning.

It appears that Mrs. Jenkins, a colored lady residing on Ingram St., and Mrs. Latorneau, a white neighbor, have not been on the best of terms for some time. Mrs. Jenkins has six children and Mrs. Latorneau has five and Judge Houston thinks that maybe the quarrel is the result of Mrs. Latorneau's jealousy. There is no fence between the two houses and as a result there is great dispute as to the boundary line and the children are always quarrelling and have been for some time. Mrs. Jenkins' husband works in town and lives with her while Mrs. Latorneau's husband has left town and she does not know whether he is alive or not. The quarrel was brought to a focus by the following letter received by Mrs. Jenkins' little girl. The Smith referred to is a man named Deloise, a sailor, who it is supposed was married to a Mrs. Greene and whom Mrs.

Latorneau has taken to board as a means of earning her living. Mrs. Latorneau also takes in washing and this is the subject of much comment from the Jenkins children.

"My Dere friend,—I take this pen in ahnd to rite you a few lines to let you know I am well and hope you are the same. Now My Dere if you want me to carry your clothes, they say you are tired and we will keep you. My Dere I don't like to see you a lone now my dere hart is all luv for you. You can now marry Mr. Smith and when will you mak your weddin' and if you want me to wate table you want to write. As soon as you can, now marry. If you don't no may name I will til you Miss Kathleen Jenkins. Now Marry. I must cless now my little rate so good by."

Miss Kathleen Jenkins denies having written the note.

Both Mrs. Jenkins and Mrs. Latorneau were at the Police Court this morning both trying to explain their own side of it at the same time. Policeman Darr was in the room but the hubbub was too much for Henry and he left. Mr. Holmes advised the women to have a fence put up between the two yards and may be this will keep the children apart. Judge Houston recommended that the fence be made eight feet high so that they would be sure that neither party could see over it.

ROOM-MAKING SALE!

One of the largest wholesale houses burnt out at the big fire in Toronto last Spring contracted for a fine new warehouse to be completed in November, but owing to the strikes in Toronto lately, they will not secure full possession of their new premises until January, consequently they had not room for the hundreds of tons of dry goods continually pouring in their present crowded quarters, and had to unload at reduced prices. We took advantage of it, and are offering you the result of our fortunate purchase. Below we give you a few items as an indication of the bargains you may secure.
