HONEST, INDEPENDENT, FEARLESS.

Vol. II.

WOLFVILLE, KING'S CO., N. S., JANUARY 11, 1884.

Doctr.

Gaspar Becerra.

By his evening fire the artist
Pondered o'er his secret shame:
Dull & weary, and disheartened,
Still he mus'd, and dream'd of fame.

'Twas an image of the Virgin
That had tasked his utmost skill;
But alas! his fair ideal
Vanished and escaped him still.

From a distant eastern island
Had the precious wood been brought;
Day and night the anxious master
At the toil untiring wrought;

Till discouraged and despairing,
Sunk he not in shadows deep,
And the day's humiliation
Found oblivion in sleep.

Then a voice cried, "Rise, O master!
From the burning brand of oak
Shape the thought that burns within This!"

Woke, and from the smoking embers
Seized and quench'd the glowing wood
And therefrom he carved an image,
And he saw that it was good.

O thou sculptor, painter, poet!
Take this lesson to thy heart:
That is best which lieth nearest;
Shape from that thy work of art.

My First and Last Night on the Battle Field.

(BY J. H. R.)

The clock had just finished striking the hour of five, in the hotel at Avignon in the south of France. I had enlisted only a few hours previous as a common soldier in the 21st regiment, and I was all fever and excitement as I thought of the new life upon which I had entered. As the last stroke of five died away, the door suddenly opened and a head popping in, told us that we were ordered to march. In about an hour's time we had all our traps together and were fairly on our way. The shades of night were now falling fast around us, and the dreadful silence was broken only by the measured tread of our men. The silence however was not to last long, for in about three hours from our starting we were startled by the awful howl of the wolf, who having scented its prey intended having a good evening meal. There in that lonely place, surrounded you may almost say by wolves, my blood ran cold in my veins. On they came nearer and nearer until within rifle shot then we fired and a terrible howl rent the air—we had killed them all with comparative ease, but those guns betrayed us. We had no idea we were so near the British lines. We were discovered, and already the pickets had exchanged shots. We at once changed our position to a more lofty eminence. Daylight at last dawned upon us, and I discovered that the scenery was beautiful, commanding a full view of the plain below where our enemy was encamped.

The battle began about nine o'clock in full earnest; and it was not long before many of our poor fellows bit the dust. In about an hour's time I received a wound in my leg, from which I fainted. How long I lay there I cannot say, but on recovering my senses it was well on in the day. I found that I could not move hand or foot, owing to the corpses piled upon me. After I became stronger I at once freed myself of my encumbering load, and began to view my position. Hearing no sound of guns I concluded that the battle must be over, which proved to be true as I soon began to hear men approaching, and by their speech I knew them to be enemies. Realizing at once the position in which I was placed I resolved on stratagem—that of feigning dead. On they came, turning one body over after another until at last it came my turn. They had the practice of banding a person's knee under his arm, if he was alive, he could not suppress a groan. This I hoped would not be done to me but I was not to escape. Suppressing a cry as long as I could I had at last to yield to human nature, and uttered a command to stop; but I was not to be obeyed, and was marched off a prisoner to a separate camp, guarded by two soldiers. After having eaten my scanty evening meal I lay down to sleep, and notwithstanding my position, I had a good night's rest. Early next morning an order came for me to be sent to the colosseum, and accordingly at 10 o'clock I was taken there by the two keepers. His tent was quite a distance from the field of battle, as was also the other officer's. As I entered the tent the colonel and his daughter were talking about his daughter who had died in England. Taking my seat on a trunk near the door I waited the progress of events. Both turned as I came in, and the colonel as if by a sudden impulse took my hand and turning me to the door said: "You are indeed my son-in-law, look child at this mark on his forehead." It was indeed so, after matters were explained, it was indeed found that I was his daughter's husband. Meeting her first in England; I at once decreed that she was the one woman heaven had marked for me, we were married and I found that she had ran away from home, she only lived a month after we were married, having died of typhoid fever. Knowing the French language I crossed to France and joined the army to drown my sorrow, and thus it was that I met with my father-in-law. The colonel being an old man retired with a handsome pension, and insisted upon me going and sharing it with him. It is now two years since my adventure happened, and I have never had cause to regret my joining the regiment.

WHICH IS MOST VALUABLE? A Duty to Children.

I am sadly conscious that thousands of mothers are so over-burdened that the actual demands of life, from day to day, consume all their time and strength. But "of two evils choose the least," and which would you call the least, an unpainted stove or an untainted boy? Dirty windows, or a child whose confidence you have failed to gain? Cobwebs in the corner, or a son over whose soul a crust has formed so strong that you despair of melting it with your hot tears and your fervent prayers?

I have seen a woman who was absolutely ignorant of her children's habits of thought, who never felt that she could spare a half hour to read or talk with them—I have seen this woman spend ten minutes in ironing a sheet—there were six in the washing—one hour in fluting the ruffles and arranging the puff of her little girl's "sweet white suit;" thirty minutes in polishing tins which were already bright and clean; forty minutes in frosting and decorating a cake for tea, because "company" was expected.

When the mother, a good orthodox Christian—hall apparatus for the Great White Throne, to be judged for "the deeds done in the body" and her report of the Mother's Mission placed in her ear—she will be in a position and answer like this:

"Where are the boys and girls I gave thee?"

"Lord, I was busied keeping my house clean and in order, and my children wand'ring away!"

"Where wert thou when thy sons and thy daughters were learning lessons of dishonesty, malice, and impurity?"

"Lord, I was polishing furniture, and mending dresses and making buttons!"

"What hast thou to show for thy life-work?"

"The tidiest house, Lord, and the best starching and ironing in all our neighborhood!"

"Oh! these children! these children! These restless, eager boys and girls whom we love more than our own lives! Shall we devote our time and strength to that which perisheth, while the rich garden of our child's soul is neglected, with four wheels chok'ng out all worthy and beautiful growths? Shall we waste the incidental of life to the rank of a purpose, to the shutting out of that work whose result reach beyond the stars?"

Praying on! mother, are the days of childhood; and the reckless, whining, snowy knees, and the consciousness that everything about the house is faultlessly bright and clean, will the poor comfort in that day when we shall discover that our poor boy's feet have chosen the path that shall take him out of the way to all eternity.

Harriet M. Morris in Woman's Journal.

Danger of Dodging.

Maggie Gallagher, of Gilmotata was sentenced in the police court to thirty days in prison and to pay a fine of $50 for drunkenness. When she heard she sent her she built a heavy inkstand at the judge's head. He dodged, and the ink flew through the window and fell to the pavement, the ink splashing over a lady's elegant silk dress and totally ruining it. The lady, in trying to shake the ink from her garment, frightened a team of spirited horses that ran away with a carriage containing two ladies and a child, upsetting a fruit stand and throwing the child was fastened in a bunch of telephone wires about ten feet above the sidewalk. The team could not be stopped, and continued on their flight, plunging through the flat glass windows of a confectionery shop. They ran the entire length of the street, splashing destruction and devastation on every hand; ran out the back door, leaped into a canal, and were drowned. Now they talk of calling on the judge for damages because he dodged the inkstand.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

We do not see why some one couldn't again start the mill on the wharf. It would have paid if our money grabbers had left it alone long enough. It is a splendid investment for some one with enough cash to be independent and stand on his own feet. It is all very fine to talk about American enterprise and how far the United States is ahead of us. It is no conundrum why our young men all leave as soon as they can get enough money to go with. It is too bad to have the bone and sinew of our country driven away just because a few people cannot stand a little bustle and stir here. If those nervous ones cannot stand it let them seek "some lone and pleasant dell some valley in the (far, far,) west" where free from 'hasty dirty mechanics' they can worship only their own sweet selves and feel regardless as to whether any one else subsists or not. Every one has not had the good fortune to be born with a silver spoon in their mouth. Come now Wolfville, do shake off this sleepiness and realize that this world is good for something besides to sleep in. Acadia College may be a great institution but it cannot possibly support us all nor is it capable of making or building up a town such as Wolfville could and should be.

Give your own place a chance and whenever you let any one fully persuade you that you can afford to put a certain amount into a silver mine, a cotton factory, a ship or some other equally uncertain stock in some other place then turn around and place it in some enterprise at home. Even should it fail you will be none the poorer your town will be that much better off and besides you will run a great risk of some day seeing Wolfville a prosperous and stirring town instead of a poor sleepy hamlet, which were it not for its educational institutions would be as unknown to the outside world as the most obscure wilds of Africa.

We are pleased to note that our visiting friends from outside the village have almost stopped the nuisance of hitching their teams across the side walks. We tender them the thanks of the community.

The Hfx. Herald made a big spread in its Xmas and New Year numbers. It deserves great credit for its enterprise.

Nothing has been done yet towards clearing our side walks, consequently they are so blockaded in places as to be almost impassable, and women and children have to take to the roads and run their chances of being run over by our fast teams. We see visions of broken limbs and sick beds in the future.

We are sorry to see the marked change for the worse between the Hants Journal and the Windsor Mail. As the Mail, this paper was fast taking its place in the foremost ranks of Provincial Journalism. As the Hants Journal it has lost much ground and we regret it exceedingly.

MUNICIPAL COUNCIL.

Jan. 8th. 1884.—Warden Charles Eaton Clerk L. DeV. Chipman Treas. T. L. Dodge re-elected.

The greater part of the day was taken up in passing road returns and receiving petitions for new roads appointing the different committees and routine work.

A Protest from rate payers of Ward 9 against the action of the Assessors of the other Wards of the County and charging them with making unjust and illegal assessments, was presented which protest was signed by some of the leading men in the ward and requesting the Council to readjust the assessment roll which was laid upon the table and resolution passed that it come up for argument on the following Thursday.

Report from the Justices appointed to prepare Statute labor returns received and read, Clerk suggesting that some action be taken against delinquent Surveyors (and there appeared to be many) to the end that all persons liable to perform statute labor should be compelled to do so if able. The matter was tabled for discussion to-morrow.

Jan. 10th.—The matter of road report came up this morning and after some discussion the reports were handed over to the Committee appointed for that purpose.

A number of reports from the Supervisor of Cornwallis received and acted upon account received from William Eaton for service in connection with preparing Statute Labor returns and reporting thereon.

Petition from rate payers of Ward 7 containing 113 signatures against cattle running at large in that Ward. Also three petitions containing 124 signatures asking for continuation of regulation permitting them to run. The three adverse petitions being challenged and names read, there appeared 79 signatures out of the 124 of persons residing outside of Section. Action was taken upon these petitions and the prayer of the former was adopted. Notice however was tabled that the matter would be reconsidered at next meeting.

Stopping a paper does not stop the paper.

Ever since papers have been published, certain individuals have attempted to squelch them by ordering their own particular copy discontinued. This has probably happened in the experience of every publisher at various times. Every editor who is manly and straightforward is apt to publish something in the course of every year which does not accord with the opinions of some of his readers, or, perhaps, a majority of them. Under our system of free thought and speech, this is expected and cheerfully tolerated by all reasonable people. But occasionally, some one considers himself personally aggrieved by something published in his paper and hastens to "stop" it, thinking he has thereby given a retaliating blow to the publisher. There he labors under a mistaken idea. If the editor is consistent and guided by principle, he will listen to the complaints of his subscriber and give him the benefit of a reply to the offensive article; and furthermore, he is pretty sure to secure the friendship of two others by his consistency while he is losing that of the offended party. At any rate, the support of any paper—from the largest city daily down to the smallest country paper—is not derived from its subscription list; a half-dozen subscribers more or less, are of little account to any publisher, as his support comes from the patronage of his advertising columns and job department. Of course, all editors desire as large a reading audience as possible, but their hearts are not broken by the loss of one or even half a dozen. Therefore if you have a grievance, go to the editor like a man and explain it to him. Ten times out of ten, you will feel better about it, and have your trouble much more satisfactorily settled than if you hasten to secure his ill-will—Woodstock Independent.

This is how an English parlor-maid corrected the pronunciation of a fellow-servant—a page—"Don't say 'ax', you vulgar boy; say 'harsk.'"

What about a Starch Factory?

Union Meetings this week in the churches.

Horton Academy and Acadia Seminary opened on Wednesday. Acadia College opened on Thursday.

Wolfville Division is changing its night of meeting for the winter to Tuesday.

A Telegraph line from Wolfville to Gasperon is now talked of. It is a good move and we hope it will be carried out. In view of the limited mail accommodation it should and will prove a great boon to both places. It will connect with the Acadia Rapid Telegraph Company's lines now in operation privately in this place.

The Fruit Growers' Association holds its annual meeting in Witter's Hall on the 15th inst at 2 o'clock P. M. The Association dinner will be provided at the Village House on the evening of that day, when it is expected His Honor the Lieut. Governor of Nova Scotia, Rev. Dr. Burnet, and other distinguished guests will be present. An interesting and instructive meeting is confidently anticipated.

S. OF T.—At a regular meeting of Wolfville Division No. 112 S. of T. on Tuesday evening Jan. 8th. 1884 the following officers were installed for the ensuing quarter:—

W. P.—G. V. Rand. W. A.—B. O. Davison. R. S.—A. K. deBois. A. R. S.—Miss Ella Patriquin. Treas.—Burpee Witter. F. S.—A. V. Rand. Chap.—Jas. E. Lock. Comd.—Kenneth Bishop. A. C.—Miss Florence Seabourne. I. S.—Lantz. O. S.—A. M. Hoare.

ACCIDENT.—Tuesday afternoon two ladies while driving in Kentville were in some mysterious way thrown out of the sleigh, and one of them received severe injuries, breaking her arm in two places.

WOLFVILLE PLANING AND MOULDING MILL.—Mouldings of any shape or size to 9 inches wide, and stair rails on hand or made to order. Also pine boards planed and matched. Dry pine lumber always on hand.

D. A. Munro. Wolfville, Oct. 12th. 1883.

Local and other Matters.

WEATHER.—Well yes the weather rather sticks us. To particularize would take columns, so we refrain.

CARNIVAL.—The Hantsport Rink will have their first Carnival on the 15th., Wednesday, evening.

An immense ball was given by Mr. and Mrs. Barclay Webster in Scotia Hall on Tuesday evening. About 100 couples were present and a very enjoyable evening was spent.

The Wolfville editor of the Western Chronicle has an article on fast driving in the streets this week. We entirely agree with him though the nuisance has largely abated in this place since the discussion last year.

The Opera of Patience was performed to crowded houses two nights last week in Windsor by an amateur company under the management of C. E. D. Wolf Esq. Judge of Probate. Several Halifax, Windsor, and Kentville amateurs took part.

SOCIABLE.—The Basket Sociable held by the Oddfellows Lodge in their hall last evening was a grand success. A goodly number attended and all had a good time. Good prizes were realized for the baskets. Some nice music, interspersed with literary matter made up the attraction.

RUNAWAY.—Two of these interesting events happened yesterday. First Mr. E. D. Bishop's horse started from the station, overturning a large express wagon and himself but no serious damage done. Then Mr. J. O. Harris's mare ran away from the station with sleigh. Result sleigh badly wrecked but no other damage. In addition Mr. Bishop's team upset in the morning spilling him out. Altogether it was a lively time.

All kinds of Job work, Posters, Magistrates Blanks, Lawyers' Blanks, Merchants Blanks, consisting of Bill Heads, Letter Heads Note Heads, etc. in every variety, done neatly and promptly at this office.

Wolfville, Oct 10th, 1883.

An anecdote of Davy Crockett: Young Davy Crockett was a member of Congress and had returned home at the close of the first session, several of his neighbors gathered around him one day and asked questions about Washington. "What time do they dine in the city?" asked one. "Com-mon people, such as we have here, dine at one. The big ones at three, the Representatives, at four; the aristocracy and Senators eat at five." "Well, when does the President fodder?" "Old Hickory?" exclaimed the Colonel. "Well, he don't dine till next day."

A New England lady was asking her cook the other day about a waitress she proposed to hire, and said: "Mary, is she Irish?" "No, Ma'am," said Mary, "she's American." "What is her name, Mary?" "Bridget O'Connor, ma'am." "Why then, of course she is Irish, Mary." "No, ma'am; she was born in Lynn." "Oh, that makes no difference, Mary; she is not an American." "Well, in faith, perhaps she isn't, ma'am. They tell me the real ones are red."
