Minards Liniment Cures Garget in Cows.

It was over at last. Dimple heard the dread sentence. She was standing up, her little hands pressed together, her eyes on the grave face of the judge. It seemed to her that ten thousand voices were screaming and yelling and hissing the one word "guilty" in her ears. The judge's voice sounded far away. With a low, awful cry she threw up her hands and fell to the floor.

The auditor was gone when she was well enough to go to the jail for the last sorrowful good-bye.

When she and her father were ready, Loys joined them quietly. Maurice was pale and haggard, but he met them bravely.

"I have tried to make amends to you, Loys. If Mr Drayton's daughter is not found you will be heiress of Wildmers."

"Thank you Maurice, but of course the girl will be found; they always are, and besides one would always be unsettled. Still I thank you, and I shall never forget you."

Her beautiful face was white as marble, but she spoke in her usual quiet way.

"The curse passes away, you know, when a fair young girl comes into the estate," Maurice said with a shadow of his old cheery smile.

"Don't! O, Mr Weldon how can I say good-bye to you?" Dimple exclaimed, pressing his hand to her lips.

"I can't give up. I am hoping still. Somehow you shall escape," she went on, her thin, tear-stained face twitching pitifully.

"All has been done, dear little friend, and all has failed. You have been the dearest, truest friend in all the world, Dimple," Maurice said gently.

The old Rector spoke a few low words. Men called the old man's life a failure, but he had learned how to die.

"You will come—" Maurice stopped, his voice breaking off with a sob.

"Yes, my boy, I will come," the old Rector said.

CHAPTER V.
RELIEF AT LAST.

Every moment of Dimple's waking hours was given to thoughts of the dreadful fate of Maurice Weldon. Something must be done. She studied and pondered over some means of help until she grew pale and haggard. In her utter misery and hopelessness, she went to Wildmers determined to see Vashli, who was still there with Mrs Westerman, the housekeeper, and the other servants. But on her arrival Vashli refused to see her, as she had done to all previous callers since the trouble had come and Dimple unwilling to go home without a second attempt, strolled about the rooms. The place had a strange fascination for her. The servants knew her well and unobtrusively went into the richly furnished but now deserted rooms. Unheeding which way she went she found herself in the turret chamber. It was a cheerless place, a great square room, lighted by large windows overhead. It was empty, with the exception of a heap of rubbish piled against the rough wall.

At some far, distant time an artist had used the chamber as a studio, though it had evidently been constructed with a view to a very different use. An easel or two, some queer, broken chairs, torn canvases and frames had been left by the long gone artist, and somehow they had come to be heaped against the wall.

As she peered among the rubbish she saw an opening in the floor, and leaning over looked down into the darkness.

An exclamation of surprise escaped her, as she saw a flight of steep steps leading down from the opening!

An awful horror seemed to freeze her very brain. Breaking loose from her she determined to see what was below.

It was dark down the opening and she was obliged to get a light.

Wild's door of lost maidens came to her, and she was weak and nervous but she went bravely on, down, down the almost perpendicular stairs.

While she stood wondering if she dare proceed further she heard a sound that struck terror to her heart. She listened, and again she heard it, a low moan.

Her hand trembled and the lamp fell and was extinguished in the deep, soft darkness, leaving her in awful darkness.

In the agony of fear she beat her hands against the wall in front of her; it gave way. With a cry she fell forward.

Stunned by the fall and half-strangled with dust she lay still for a moment and then struggled to her feet.

She was in a small room that was nearly dark, and at one side of it was a cot on which lay a man. He stared at her with great, wild eyes and she crouched back too horrified to speak or scream. The man raised himself on his elbow.

"In the name of mercy help me," he said in a feeble voice.

Dimple stood shivering against the wall. Her eyes were becoming accustomed to the dim light that struggled in at the one high window.

"Who are you and what are you doing in this unearthly place?" she asked. She bent forward, her eyes dark with fear.

"Mr Drayton!" she exclaimed.

"Only help me."

"But why are you here? We thought you dead. Have you been here since the day you were missed? That was May. It is November now. Who takes care of you?"

"Vashli. It is several days since she was here." His voice was low and weak.

"How did you come to be here at all?"

"It was the night after I made my will. She came to me and told me of this secure hiding place and offered to hide the paper but I could not let it leave my sight. She had found an old book that told of the door in my bedroom wall, and had found the key that opened it. I had never noticed the tiny slit in the panel.

"She gave me the key and I crawled along the narrow passage that leads to this room. She helped me. I was very tired. She offered to get me a glass of wine. It was many hours before she came with it. I knew then that I was shut in a living tomb. I was too weak to scream, even if that would have availed me anything. I knew nothing of the door you came through."

He closed his eyes wearily. His face was deadly pale. A thin stream of blood trickled from his lips.

"You have been talking too much. I will help you. Be patient for a little while," Dimple said, and then she flew up the steep stairs. She found Vashli in her room. Dr. Hastings was with her.

Without heeding him the excited girl threw herself on the floor beside Vashli.

"Give me the key, Vashli! Show me how to open the door. I have found him. Oh, come and let him out!" she cried.

"What is it, Miss Annesy? Miss Branton?" the doctor asked, looking from one excited face to the other.

"It is Mr Drayton. I have found him. Oh, come and let him out!" she cried.

"Miss Branton, what does this mean?"

"I wanted Wildmers for Maurice. I wanted to save him. And when he would not let me, I knew that death was better, kinder, warmer than Loys Annesy, and so I let him die. Yes, I did it for him. I took his key and locked the door so they would not miss my guardian so soon."

"Show us the secret door, Vashli. Give me the key to the panel!"

"The key? I throw it away the day he died. It was no longer of any use, was it? Mr Drayton didn't matter. Why have you disturbed me? I want—"

"Oh, sir, go quickly to the chamber in the turret above Mr Drayton's rooms. You will find the stairs behind the heap of rubbish. He is down there, dying!"

The doctor looked closely at her and then left the room.

"Vashli, how could you? But oh, thank heaven he is not dead! He is free. Mr Weldon is free!"

"What is it? He is dead, dead, and I have killed him! See my hands, my hands!"

they are red with blood! A thousand demons hiss at me day and night. My soul is black as the water of the lake. Black as the deep water where they dropped Fred Bates' body! Ah, he thought I didn't know, but I did. And she loves him. Loys loves him, I know it. What if I told her—"

She broke off with an awful laugh.

Dimple pulled the bell cord, and then seeing help so near, slipped away into a dead faint.

CHAPTER VI.
THE HEIRESS OF WILDMERE FOUND.

When she awoke aunt Lessie was bending over her. For once Dimple was glad to see the homely, honest face.

"Well, if we haven't had a time getting you to! Hero, take this. I never did approve of Vashli Brenton. Those eyes of hers were enough, I knew she'd go crazy, and I feel safer since she's done it and they've shut her up."

"You want to hear from the poor man? Why, he died, and Mr Dennis is up to his eyes in papers they have found. He'll feather his nest. I never approved of lawyers. I suppose they'll do Loys out of Wildmers at last with that new will they found packed in that hole with Mr Drayton. I never approved of such places. I don't know what they were made for. They think they've stirred up a mare's nest. Now the next thing is to find Mr Drayton's daughter. It is my opinion that he never had any. I never approved of mysteries."

Dimple felt herself growing drowsy. Tucking her hand under her cheek she fell asleep.

She was alone when she awoke. Sitting up in bed she tried to think of all that had happened. She felt almost strong and well. She got up and dressed herself and then went out into the corridor.

They had taken her to Mrs Westerman's room. She knew this part of the house well. She made her way to the library. She knew that Mr Drayton's body was there.

Uncle Jupiter sat like a bronze statue outside the door.

"It's him this time, miss, and no mistake," the old negro said, politely pulling his grey forelock.

"Yes. It is awful. I wanted him to live. Poor man!"

"Can you find Mr Dennis for me? I must see him."

"He's powerful busy, but I ken try, chile. You'd order seed dat gal Vashli fling herself about. She mighty nigh broke by us. No wonder she lost her mind. She gwinter lose her soul, too, dat gal is. I sees here, fur day haint no tellin' what moit she'll git out."

"Tell Mr Dennis that I will wait here."

Uncle Jupiter went slowly down the great hall.

Dimple waited. She felt afraid to enter the room in which the dead man lay.

The sunlight, stained with the rich purple of the fine old window, fell fully upon her, and the old lawyer held his breath as she turned her lovely little face to him.

"Why, my dear, you look like a being from the other world. One forgets how pretty you are. That's the misfortune of having a beautiful sister."

"Ah, poor Loys! Hasn't it all been so bad for her?"

"Very bad, very bad indeed. The disgrace and loss of her lover and this. You have heard of the papers that were found? Of the new will and all

How to Avoid Wasting Time and Money.

A word at this time to the ladies of Canada may be the means of putting them on their guard, so that time and money may not be wasted.

There are certain dealers and storekeepers whose life-object is the making of large profits on every article they sell. These dealers are now endeavoring to sell adulterated and imitation packages of dyes for the same price as the honest dealer asks for the reliable and never-failing Diamond Dyes.

Few ladies have the inclination to spend time or money to experiment with worthless and poisonous ingredients put up to outwardly imitate the marvellous Diamond Dyes. If you want good work you must use the best dyes. Years of thorough testing proclaim the fact that Diamond Dyes are the strongest, brightest and most economical; they are the only dyes in the world that are warranted. Each packet, when directions are followed, will give satisfactory and astonishing results.

Celebrated for its great leavening strength and healthfulness. Assures the food against alum and all forms of adulteration common to the cheap brands. ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

"Is there really a—daughter?"

"Undoubtedly. Or there was. Her mother was one Elsie Raymond. And in those days Drayton was known as Howard Wright. He never saw the child. There is a letter announcing its birth with the marriage certificate. I'm getting too old to bother with the tangles other people make. Maurice is not master of Wildmers now—not if the girl is living. He is a poor man."

"But he will be free and happy. How glad Loys will be. I must go home and tell her how glad I am."

"That purple light makes you look like a saint, my dear. What a heroine you are. Good-bye, little girl." She found Loys alone.

"I'm so glad that I could save him for you!"

"It was wonderfully brave, dear. I never heard of anything like it. But it seems to me that it might have been better for him to have died, now that he must be poor," Loys said.

"What do you mean?"

"He has lost Wildmers. You know I shall not have it. It will go to a stranger."

"But there is freedom and honor and you, Loys. He has so much to live for!"

"He would hardly expect me to keep the engagement, Dimple. I could not endure notoriety."

"Loys! I don't understand you."

"It is simple enough. I have lost a great deal. I must do the best I can. Father will not be able to let me visit anywhere, and I shall meet no one here. Mr Blair has just accepted a call to a city church. It is a good place. An excellent salary and fine society. He has asked me to go with him at the beginning of the new year and I have promised."

"To go with Mr Blair? What for?"

"I shall be his wife."

"You! Then I was right when I said that you never loved Mr Weldon!"

"You were. I have always loved Mr Blair."

As Loys finished speaking she picked up her book and calmly found her place.

Dimple threw herself upon the floor and gave herself up to such passionate grief as her sister had never seen manifested before.

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., JULY 2, 1897.

Editorial Chat.

Mr. Chauncey M. Depew is of the opinion that the arbitration treaty, which was recently defeated through a fear that England would extend her land-grabbing propensities to the American continent, will be ratified before the end of President McKinley's term of office.

Rev. D. O. Parker, of this town, is about to issue a little pamphlet to be entitled, "A Souvenir of Wolfville and Grand Pre, with local directory and historical notes." Mr. Parker has given a great deal of study to the history of this neighborhood, and the work will no doubt prove to be a most interesting one.

Parliament prorogued on Tuesday after a session of about three months. We are disappointed in not seeing any appropriation in the estimates for Wolfville, although grants are given to other parts of the county. Our representative or the government can hardly be blamed as no effort was made by our people. Wolfville has long been waiting for just such a chance as we have now allowed to pass without taking advantage of.

The Summer School of Science of the maritime provinces meets this year in Yarmouth, July 8th to 23rd inclusive. The students are to be entertained, free of charge, a sum of $200 being voted by the Town Council to recompense persons thus entertaining. This generous offer will no doubt be eagerly accepted by a large number of teachers, who can thus combine a cheap outing with modern methods of teaching science, under the instruction of competent teachers.

The cable correspondents of the American press were seemingly astonished at the magnificence and significance of the Diamond Jubilee procession in London. Great Britain's military power may be comparatively insignificant, but the British Empire's military power was clearly shown to be a stupendous factor. The manifestation of force amazed unfriendly as well as friendly onlookers. Statesmen may have recognized the fact, but the masses of the different countries needed an object lesson. Possibly the world will bear less for a while of Great Britain's isolation.

The jubilee has had the effect of drawing from the majority of American newspapers some pretty complimentary remarks about England. For example the "New York Voice" says: "Great Britain has her faults, but they are not faults of weakness and inefficiency. She has treated other people in a summary manner, but her flag has been in all lands a symbol of law and order. She has roused a world of enmities among other nations, but it is a very significant and creditable fact that, barring Ireland, none of this enmity is visible to any appreciable extent in her own colonial family. This is perhaps the crowning thing to be said of her upon this historic occasion."

Among the visitors to our town last week were Dr. R. W. Ellis, a native of this county, and Dr. Arni, both of Ottawa, and prominent members of the Geological Survey. On Friday in company with Prof. Caldwell, they visited Tremblin's Brook and Horton Bluff, for the purpose of inspecting the famous Horton formation and collecting data that will assist in the settlement of geological horizons. They also carefully inspected the geological collections of Acadia College and Dr. Arni expressed himself as highly pleased with the material and the orderly arrangement of the specimens.

The "Evangeline Journal" is a very neatly printed little paper just issued by Mr. F. P. Rockwell, the proprietor of the Acadia Seminary Hotel. Ten thousand copies have been printed and are being distributed where they will do the most good throughout the United States. The result will be an increased number of tourists and our town will become better known. The beauties and advantages as a summer resort are well set forth in the publication in well written and very readable articles, while well executed illustrations of the Seminary, Wolfville and the Grand Pre dike, and Evangeline Besch appear. Our town is to be congratulated in having a citizen of sufficient push to engage in an enterprise of this kind.

In a few days now we may expect the summer tourists down upon us with a rush. Well, we can this year give them ample and good accommodation anyway, unless they come in much greater numbers than ever before. The Hotel American, which has always been popular with the tourists, has since Mr. T. B. Messenger became proprietor, undergone many improvements, and a high standard of excellence is to be maintained throughout. The new Royal is now about completed and its handsome and commodious structure. The proprietor, Mr. J. W. Beckwith, understands well the art of taking care of guests, and tourists may be assured that they will be well looked after at his house. Then the magnificent Acadia Seminary building, which Mr. F. P. Rockwell has leased for the summer contains about seventy-five rooms, and with the beautiful grounds in connection, will make a most delightful place for a summer outing. The Hotel Central, Mr. J. W. Belbridge's property, is an up-to-date hostelry, conducted in first-class style, and tourists can be sure of always being well treated there.

Nova Scotia Sixty Years Ago.

The following reprint from an old issue of the Nova Scotian gives some idea of the condition of the province at that time:

"The population of the province of Nova Scotia, according to the census of 1827, (ten years before Victoria) amounts in the total, including the island of Cape Breton, to nearly 143,000, and is of a very mixed description. Four distinct classes present themselves—in the Indians or Aborigines; the Acadians or descendants of the French, who partially settled the country under the name of Acadia, previous to its conquest by the English; the free negroes who have been transferred or have fled hither at various periods; and the immigrants under British auspices from Europe and from the United States. The number of the Indians and Negroes may be stated to be about one-fifth of the population. The smallness of their number is a matter of political gratulation rather than of regret, neither party producing more than is sufficient for enabling them to maintain a scanty existence, and both being altogether nugatory when viewed as contributors to the internal defence of the state. The Acadians form upwards of one-twentieth of the whole, and are to all intents and purposes an efficient branch of the commonwealth. The remainder of the population, forming the main body of the population are the descendants of colonists from Germany, of refugee royalists from the United States of America, disbanded British soldiers, and immigrants from all parts of the United Kingdom, more especially from Scotland. The influx of immigration into the province has within the last few years been directed chiefly to Sydney in Cape Breton, to Pictou and to Halifax. The population had doubled during the previous fourteen years, and gave signs of still greater increase to come.

The public schools in town close for the summer holidays on Friday of next week.

Literary Matters.

McClure's Magazine for July opens with an interesting account of the actual daily life in a little "Republic" where the citizens and governors are young boys and girls from the poorest and most crowded districts of the city of New York. Private industry and public order are pursued precisely as by older people in larger republics, and neglect or abuse of either encounters the same pains and penalties as in life at large. The paper is fully illustrated from special photographs.

Facts and Fiction, "that sprightly western monthly," is building an enviable reputation as a leading western publication. Mechanically it is neat and dainty, being printed on a superior grade of paper and handsomely illustrated with some of the most interesting contents it is varied to afford both entertainment and instruction. A typical story in each number is a real literary feature. Leading articles on matters of world-wide interest appear as subject matter presents itself. The Chicago Daily News says of this publication: "Among the magazines that are full of interest and value is Facts and Fiction. Condensed learning is easy to take when presented in such attractive guise." A free sample copy may be had by addressing the publisher, The Dominion Company, 356 Dearborn St., Chicago. Fifty cents a year, five cents a copy.

The July number of the Delinator is called the summer number, and its resume of the latest styles of hot-weather attire, with special reference to the needs of sejoyners at seaside and inland resorts, is rendered graphically complete by glowing color plates and scores of accurate wood cuts. Various aspects of Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee are entered into, and the magazine is a most interestingly considered by Mrs. Alice Tweedie, whose books of travel have made her name familiar on both sides of the Atlantic. The season of canning and preserving is taken note of by an article describing the latest and best methods in these processes. The needlework pages include an illustrated paper on the famous old "Punto Ugareto," a Hungarian stitch, by Frances Leach, Emma Haywood's designs for an embroidered quilt, and photograph frame, and the regular departments devoted to crocheting, knitting, tatting, the work of Mrs. Witherspoon's "Tea-table Chat," two new entertainments, the children's page and notices of new books are among other features of this capital number.

Provincial Normal School. The Provincial Normal School closed a very satisfactory year on Friday, June 18th. There had been 152 students in attendance and only 5 failed to get diplomas. Kings county was well represented in the list as will be seen from the following:

- DIPLOMAS AWARDED. A.—ACADEMIC. Miss L. L. Marchant, Brooklyn St. Miss Ethelberta Marchant, do. Miss Mabel E. Caldwell, Cambridge. B.—FIRST CLASS. Miss Jennie M. White, Berwick. Miss Flora L. Capt. Delap, of Grandville, was in town for a day or two this week. Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Woodworth left on Saturday last for a few weeks' visit in Boston and other places in New England. Miss Hattie Pick has her niece Mrs. George F. Marshall and two children, Chester and Beatrice Marshall, from Malden, Mass., spending the summer with her.

The ACADIAN is sorry to learn of the severe affliction of Dr. J. N. Fitch, of Lakeside, he having completely lost his eyesight. Dr. Fitch is one of the best known physicians of Kings county. Mr. J. H. Tabor, the popular and bustling representative of White, Caldwell & Co., called upon his Wolfville customers this week. He has some choice lines of confectionery and reports orders tumbling in.

Mr. Fred A. Caldwell, B. A., who has been studying at McLean Hospital, Boston, for the past year, with a view to taking a regular medical course, came home last week, and is visiting his parents, Prof. and Mrs. Caldwell, of this town. He expects to return in about two months.

E. M. Bill, Esq., Judge of Probate, Shelburne, who is paying a visit to his father at Billtown, was in town this week, visiting old friends and relatives. Mr. Bill graduated at Acadia in 1889, and was greatly surprised and pleased with the progress that our town has made since then.

Mr. E. W. Porter, formerly of this town, but who has been in Chicago for the past two years, is now en route from the "Windy City" to Wolfville. He left Chicago on June 23rd on his bicycle and intends wheeling the whole distance. He will be the guest of his brother, Mr. E. J. Porter, for a few weeks.

Wedding.

A pretty wedding took place in the Methodist church on Wednesday afternoon, the contracting parties being Rev. Douglas Hemmon, and Miss Amanda, eldest daughter of J. W. Caldwell, Esq. The church was prettily trimmed for the occasion with daisies and other flowers and tastefully draped with the jubilee colors. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. B. Hemmon. The bride was accompanied by her sister, Miss Statira Caldwell, while Dr. Moran Hemmon supported the groom. The music was rendered by Miss Florence Seabourne. At the close of the ceremony the bridal party drove to Grand Pre, where Mr. and Mrs. Hemmon embarked on a short wedding tour, after which they will re-

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., JULY 2, 1897.

Local and Provincial.

Rev. and Mrs Douglas Hemmings have the thanks of the editor of the ACADIAN for wedding favors received.

Rev. W. V. Higgins occupied the pulpit of the Baptist church of this town, on Sunday morning and evening last.

The sacrament of the Lord's Supper is to be dispensed in St. Andrew's church next Sunday at the morning service, and at Chalmers' church, Lower Horton, in the afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Owing to the fact that the staff were dispersing yesterday, the ACADIAN appears a few hours later than usual. We hope, dear readers, that you will forgive us for keeping you in suspense as to what is going on in our little world.

We understand there is some prospect of a steamer excursion to Partridge Island from this place some time during the present month. Members of Court Blomidon, I. O. F., are interesting themselves in the undertaking. It will no doubt be well patronized.

$4.00 gets a gold watch at R. E. Harris. Ask for a card.

Mr. C. H. Borden, who alone handles the "Slater Shoe" in Wolfville, has had inscribed on one of his plate glass windows in neat enameled letters "The Slater Shoe" agency. Mr. Borden reports the demand for the "Slater" lines constantly on the increase.

Prize-letters for the Provincial Exhibition can be obtained in Kings county from Jas. Patterson, Jr., Aylesford; W. F. Newcombe, Esq., Brooklyns Corner; Dr. Henry Chipman, Grand Pre; W. Young, Esq., Coldbrook; J. Rufus Starr, Esq., Lower Church Street; and H. L. Chute, Esq., Somerset.

MONEY TO LEND ON MORTGAGE.—Apply to E. S. Crawley, Solicitor, Wolfville, N. S.

As will be seen by a report of the Kindergarten closing in connection with the Provincial Normal School, Miss Annie Fitch, of this town, who has been taking the course, has been awarded a diploma. We understand it is the intention of Miss Fitch to begin a class in Kindergarten in Wolfville. Such an institution will no doubt be found very useful here as it is in other towns.

FOR SALE.—A building lot, in a slightly and desirable location, near centre of town. Apply to C. E. STARR.

Dr. Bains, of this town, met with a mishap last Saturday evening. He was driving in the direction of his home, and when near Mud Bridge his horse stepped on a rolling stone and fell, throwing the occupants of the carriage, Dr. and Mrs. Bains, out. Fortunately, neither was injured, but the horse and trap did not escape so well, the former being cut about the legs, while one of the shafts of the cart were broken.

Ladies' White, Blouses and Shirt Waists at the Glasgow House. See adv.

On Saturday afternoon last the boys of the town who are on the sunny side of fifteen years of age, had a pentathlon contest in Aberdeen Park. Quite a number of spectators were present, and watched the struggles between the little athletes with great interest. The medal for the highest number of points was won by Walter Godfrey, and the ones for the second and third highest aggregate were captured by Frank Heales and Percy Pines, respectively.

Customers buying goods from me to the value of $5.00 will receive a fine Gold Watch, either ladies' or gentlemen's size on payment of $4.00 cash. Get a card. R. E. HARRIS.

Local and Provincial.

Superintendent Hardwick has placed a catch-basin in front of the store of Messrs. Starr, Son & Franklin this week. The expense of the work is being borne by Mayor Thomson.

Mr J. F. Herbin has displayed in his window a handsome collection of amethyst and other geological specimens from Blomidon, Partridge Island and other parts of the Province.

Mr E. B. Shaw had a fine display of trout this morning, the result of a few hours fishing yesterday. The largest measured 16 inches in length and weighed 1lb. 12 ounces. The editor was kindly remembered.

$4.00 gets a gold watch at R. E. Harris. Ask for a card.

The condition this morning of Main street in front of the office and the tenorial rooms of J. M. Shaw, is respectfully called to the attention of the Street Committee. Mr Shaw is responsible for the clean appearance.

Mr C. A. Patrician expects to have things in shape for visitors at Evangeline Beach in a few days. He is making some improvements and this delightful bathing resort will no doubt be thronged with people during the coming season.

How long, oh Street Commissioners! how long! are you going to let Main street remain in its present condition? Just now it more resembles a piece of burnt land before the stones and sticks have been picked off than the principal thoroughfare of a prosperous town. If the grass on the sidewalks and about the gutters were mowed we think it would improve the general appearance of the street.

Turnip Seed "the best that money can buy," 20c. a lb at the Drug Store.

The ladies of the Presbyterian Sewing Circle, Lower Horton, will hold another of their well known Strawberry Festival and Apron Sales in Evangeline Hall, Grand Pre, on Thursday, July 8th. We would bespeak a large attendance as there is always so good time, and these ladies are so ambitious to pay the debt of their church. Doors open at 4 p. m. Tea 25 cents. Strawberries 10 cents. Ice Cream 10 cents. Admission 10 cents. Should Thursday prove stormy will be held next day.

Fly Paper—sticky and poison. Tangle-foot by the sheet or box. Fresh stock. Drug Store.

The "Browning Club" held their annual picnic at Moore's Falls, on Tuesday afternoon last. Mr Balcom conveyed the party thither with a four-horse team. We understand that a most enjoyable afternoon was spent, during which Mr Browning's productions played a subordinate part to things of a more material nature, such as the tempting winds without which a picnic, no matter how beautiful the landscape, cannot be thoroughly enjoyable. Scenery makes a most aesthetic sauce, but alone it cannot satisfy the demands of our vulgar appetites.

The latest thing in Men's Caps. See window, Glasgow House.

Harry, the young son of Mr C. R. H. Starr, of this town, and "Bobby" Godfrey were driving along Main street last Wednesday afternoon, and were about opposite E. B. Shaw's shop when one of the wheels of the carriage came off, causing the mare to take fright. The little fellows seeing that it was useless to try to hold her, jumped and were not hurt in the least, but the frightened steed galloped on, colliding with a post in front of G. H. Wallace's grocery, where she was caught. The carriage was badly smashed and the mare slightly bruised about the heels.

Kindergarten Closes.

The kindergarten closing exercises were held yesterday morning, when a goodly number of parents and friends gathered at the school. The exercises consisted in little more than an ordinary day's work, and visitors had a fair idea of how the children's time was employed. The school opens with a "good morning" song and prayer, followed by work, play and song, each child taught to give individual attention to what is going on, and right heartily they entered into the spirit of each. The children had on "company manners," and with bright, important faces, vied with each other in the entertainment of the visitors. The marching was particularly good, each little tot changing its step at each change of the music. And then they came in, each with a flag held high above its head, marching round the room and forming into a square in the centre of the room, where they sang "God Save the Queen" in perfect tune, with a spirit and flourish that would have done credit to older children. The exercises were a most interesting exhibition, and it is wonderful what work the children do. The pupil teachers, Miss Schaffner, of Yarmouth, N. S.; Miss Stewart, of Hampton, N. B.; Miss Fitch, of Wolfville, and Miss Blomquist, of Yelverly Station, received their diplomas at the Normal School closing. They leave for their several homes to-day, to meet again at the Summer School of Science in Yarmouth, the first Tuesday in July.—Yarmouth Times-Gazette.

Lucy Wisdom, youngest daughter of the late Robert and Sarah Scott Pick of Wolfville, died at the residence of J. D. Somerville, Berwick, on last May 29th, in the 85th year of her age. Miss Pick was the last of the family of one of the pioneer settlers of this Province. Her father came to Nova Scotia in 1775. Her mother, Sarah Scott, was a United Empire Loyalist. The family was noted for hospitality, and of the deceased it would be truly said, "was an hungred and ye gave me meat, naked and ye clothed me, sick and ye visited me." In sickness or trouble there was no thought of self but a willing and cheerful service was always rendered and she will be kindly remembered by a multitude of friends and relatives throughout the Province and in the United States. During the last nine years Miss Pick made her home with her niece, Mrs Somerville. —From Berwick Register.

The contributions for Home and Foreign Missions last year in the Maritime Provinces in connection with the Presbyterian church were 20 per cent. greater than the previous year.

Teachers who would like, during the summer vacation to extend their knowledge of Book-keeping, or learn Shorthand or Typewriting, or both, are hereby notified that we will, beginning July 6th, give a six weeks' course covering these branches. The Starving Journalist.

Writers who feel that it is the reputation of the contributor that many times secures the acceptance of a manuscript, will appreciate the following practical joke once played upon Mr Labouchere by Bret Harle.

"Worth a pound! It is not worth the paper it is written on!" declared Mr Labouchere. "If you want charity, I can give you a few shillings; but it would be accompanied by advice to effect that a strong, able-bodied man like you might make more money and give less cause of offence by seeking employment at hop-picking or before the mast."

At Two Hospitals. Five years in the Tolls—Nothing but Dodd's Kidney Pills could touch the Spot.

Brussels (Special)—June 28—Mr W. P. Jackson, a telegraph operator of this place has had an experience which should be known, of value to every man in Canada. He says:—Without relief for five years, I had gone from bad to worse with kidney disease.

Dean Hall has re-written the second stanza of the national anthem and in the estimation of many has greatly improved it. Here is the stanza as it has stood for almost two hundred years:

O Lord our God arise, Scatter her enemies, And make them fall; Confound their policy, Frustrate their knavish trick, On Thee our hopes we fix; God save us all.

The objection of these lines is that they are rather uncharitable in sentiment. Here is the venerable dean's amended version:

O Lord our God arise, Scatter her enemies, Make war to cease; Keep us from plague and death, Turn thou our woes to mirth, And over all the earth, Let there be peace.

A ludicrous state of affairs obtains in Darlington, Indiana. Rev. A. N. Cave, a young minister of that place, was recently admitted to the Montgomery county bar and soon after announced to his fellow townsmen that he would tender his legal services free to all in need of them.

The Suffering and Crushed in Spirit Need Words of Cheer.

Their Only Avenue of Escape is Through Paines Celery Compound.

True words of encouragement, hope and cheer are generally welcomed by suffering humanity—at least by that part of it which is crushed and despondent heart.

To those who are martyrs from rheumatism and neuralgia we have a few words of honest advice, which, if followed, will certainly lead to that coveted goal—perfect health—that many are so earnestly praying to reach.

Up to the present you have failed to banish your rheumatism. The medicines you are using have not removed the festering acid poison from your joints and muscles. You are as bad to-day—perhaps worse—than when you commenced to doctor, and some of you are pronounced incurable.

Cheer up, and soul! There is hope, yes, more than hope! There is a new life for you and freedom from all pain and agony if you give that heaven-sent remedy, Paine's Celery Compound, a fair and honest trial. It has completely cured the worst forms of rheumatism, in the past, and its great and precious virtues will do the same good work for you to-day.

To those who suffer from that merciless tormenter, neuralgia, we say, with all candor, use Paine's Celery Compound, and your future will soon be happy and bright. This disease always indicates a low or depressed vitality, and is the most agonizing and exhausting that can afflict the nervous system. The ablest physicians now freely prescribe Paine's Celery Compound for neuralgia, and affirm that no other medicine can so completely eradicate the cause of this terrible disease.

One bottle of the great health-giving medicine will produce cheering results and will prove that our advice is golden. May heaven give you sufficient faith to make a trial.

Sir Richard Cartwright to the Prohibitionists.

Sir Richard Cartwright, Hon. L. H. Davies and Hon. Sidney A. Fisher, were the Ministers who received the delegation of the Montreal Conference of the Methodist Church last evening, who met them in Mr Laurier's room to tackle the government on the prohibition question.

Rev. A. C. Courtes, editor of the Christian Guardian, set forth the position of the conference upon the question in a terse and pointed address. In the past, he said, people had looked upon government dealings with prohibition as anxious to avenge the question. Even the Royal Commission had been so regarded by some.

Dean Hall has re-written the second stanza of the national anthem and in the estimation of many has greatly improved it. Here is the stanza as it has stood for almost two hundred years:

O Lord our God arise, Scatter her enemies, And make them fall; Confound their policy, Frustrate their knavish trick, On Thee our hopes we fix; God save us all.

The objection of these lines is that they are rather uncharitable in sentiment. Here is the venerable dean's amended version:

O Lord our God arise, Scatter her enemies, Make war to cease; Keep us from plague and death, Turn thou our woes to mirth, And over all the earth, Let there be peace.

A ludicrous state of affairs obtains in Darlington, Indiana. Rev. A. N. Cave, a young minister of that place, was recently admitted to the Montgomery county bar and soon after announced to his fellow townsmen that he would tender his legal services free to all in need of them.

To those who are martyrs from rheumatism and neuralgia we have a few words of honest advice, which, if followed, will certainly lead to that coveted goal—perfect health—that many are so earnestly praying to reach.

Up to the present you have failed to banish your rheumatism. The medicines you are using have not removed the festering acid poison from your joints and muscles. You are as bad to-day—perhaps worse—than when you commenced to doctor, and some of you are pronounced incurable.

Cheer up, and soul! There is hope, yes, more than hope! There is a new life for you and freedom from all pain and agony if you give that heaven-sent remedy, Paine's Celery Compound, a fair and honest trial. It has completely cured the worst forms of rheumatism, in the past, and its great and precious virtues will do the same good work for you to-day.

To those who suffer from that merciless tormenter, neuralgia, we say, with all candor, use Paine's Celery Compound, and your future will soon be happy and bright. This disease always indicates a low or depressed vitality, and is the most agonizing and exhausting that can afflict the nervous system. The ablest physicians now freely prescribe Paine's Celery Compound for neuralgia, and affirm that no other medicine can so completely eradicate the cause of this terrible disease.

One bottle of the great health-giving medicine will produce cheering results and will prove that our advice is golden. May heaven give you sufficient faith to make a trial.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

ALWAYS CURE

AFTER TEN YEARS SUFFERING

Two Box Cure

Minervon, 22nd July, 1895.

Gentlemen—For the last ten years I had been troubled with kidney disease, being bed-ridden at intervals that I could not get up.

I had tried all the remedies I could find without effect, but heard of Dodd's Kidney Pills and secured a box.

I am much happy to say that for my own sake as well as for others that I can positively cured after using four boxes.

Scraps for Odd Moments

Pleasure and pain spring not so much from the nature of things as from our manner of considering them.

The pleasantest things in the world are pleasant thoughts, and the gratest art in life is to have as many as possible.

Aunt Hannah—Silas, what be fillibustery? Silas—Why, they be the men what be in Phillydelphy, I guess.

Minards Liniment Cures Colds, etc. Teacher—Give an example of the use of the word "contagious." Pupil—Street cars are not contagious. They are awful hard to catch.

In all evils which admit a remedy, impatience should be avoided because it wastes that time and attention in complaints which, if properly applied, might remove the cause.

Minards Liniment Cures Diphtheria. "Mamma, what part of the body is the trombone?" "No part of the body, my dear." "Yes, it is; because it says in the paper here that last night, while turning from the symphony concert, Professor Griddell fell and broke his trombone!"

"Doctor, I have sent for you, certainly. Still, I must confess I have not the slightest faith in modern medical science." "You see, a mule has no faith in the veterinary surgeon, and yet he cures him all the same."

For a family medicine, Ayer's Sore Throat Pills are unrivalled. They eradicate disease.

It is the custom in Bulgaria for newly married couples to remain silent for a month after marriage, except when addressed by their husbands. When it is desired by the customary restriction to be permanently removed, he presents her with his heart, and she can chat to her heart's content.

The initials "O. K." were first used by the founder of an American family of millionaires, having parished some bills that were presented to him for approval of credit. He thought he was affixing the initials of "All Correct," but a neglected education led him to think of the words as "O. K. Correct."

Nearly all women have good hair, though many are gray and few are bald. Hall's Hair Restorer restores the natural color, and thickens the growth of the hair.

"Do you go to school little boy?" "Oh, yes, sir." "What do you study—reading, writing and arithmetic?" "All of those, sir." "And are you familiar with punctuation?" "Oh, yes, indeed, sir." "Teaching punctuated her fire last week and I'm sure for her in less than ten minutes, sir."

A Frenchman who was teacher in a large school had a reputation among the pupils for making some great mistakes. One day he was taking a class which was rather disorderly. What with the best and the troublesome boys, he became very impatient. Having parished several boys, and the rest both very ill, he said to the form, he at last shouted out in a passion, "Ze whole class go to ze bottom!"

Blood-purifiers, though gradual, are radical in their effect. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is intended as a medicine only and not a stimulant, excitant, or beverage. Immediate results may not always follow its use; but after a reasonable time, permanent benefit is certain to be realized.

A little girl in a Pennsylvania town, in saying her prayers the other night was told to pray for her father and mother, who were both very ill, and for one of the servants, who had lost her husband. She faithfully did as she was told, and then, impressed with the dreary condition of things, added on her own account "And now, O God, take good care of yourself, for if anything should happen to you we should all go to pieces."

A singular omission in the matter of legal formalities is the failure of the Federal laws of the United States to provide for notifying a President-elect of his election. The electoral votes are counted in the journals of both Houses of Congress; but it is left for the President elect to find out the result in what he may call his "private" office, and to present himself on the succeeding fourth day of March. As a matter of fact, the person elected to the highest office in the Republic gets his notification from the newspapers.

St. Martin, Que., May 10, 1895. C. C. RICHARDS & Co. GENTLEMEN—Last November my child struck a nail in his knee causing inflammation to ensue that I was advised to take him to Montreal and have the limb amputated to save his life.

A neighbor advised us to try MINARD'S LINIMENT, which we did, and within three days my child was all right and I feel so grateful that I send you this testimonial, that my experience may be of benefit to others.

St. Martin, Que., May 10, 1895. C. C. RICHARDS & Co. GENTLEMEN—Last November my
