Priests in France.

"American priests in France express astonishment at the gulf between the clergy and the 'outrage class,' according to a recent view in Le Correspondant. And of course, in a matter of this nature, there is little agreement of opinion.

"They do not believe in the 'outrage class,' cynical observers of things in France, and more than that, there are no roots for hatred; in persecutions or support of a political party, on the one hand, or the demands of the 'outrage class' on the other. Perhaps things might not be so simple in France, or in England, if the last half century had seen the death of three Archbishops of Canterbury; the French clergy must perceive the political ideas of the 'outrage class'.

A SCHEMATIC PRIEST LABORING AMONG THE POOR.

And yet there is far more mutual knowledge between priests and the 'outrage class' than one might think. There is not practical reason for want of better knowledge in the existence of parish churches with 50,000 or 60,000 people, as known by a Cure and his vicars? The life in the slums, such as was led by a curate like M. L'Abbe Martin, who died last year, is not so common as we think. It is not so common in the churches with vicars, with marriages and baptisms, first time to visit the 'outrage class' and his family in the garrets of high houses, the dearest of the 'outrage class' for the very poor, M. L'Abbe Martin, before becoming a priest, had thus served a poor parish, and at the same time gained his extraordinary salary, cutting his hours of sleep down to about four hours, and, indeed, his health, as we know, was ruined. He, by the way, was known for years ago to the 'outrage class' as a public writer of articles in the Nineteenth Century on 'Baptism.'

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.

And now, at the present moment in Paris, there is a successor in M. L'Abbe Lacroix, a priest still young, who has recently gained a brilliant success for his degree at the Sorbonne, and who has been preaching domestic sermons on Jesus Christ in the light of history. But not to speak of many others at the present moment, when Paris churches have many preachers to sermons than London ones, and sermons which have for subjects social questions and many interesting subjects of the day.

One of the best of these sermons was preached at the Sorbonne, and was a masterpiece of eloquence. It was a masterpiece of eloquence, and was a masterpiece of eloquence.

Workmen's Rest.

The French clergy are not all so full of thoughts of the aristocratic past, as their general, perhaps invariable, attitude has led Americans to think. And are not recent events paving the way for a possible great change, a change which may affect not only France, but many other countries in their relation to her? France at one within herself, or at least as Cardinal Laviger proposes—without the great Catholic majority no longer disputing within itself about the form of the country's government, would be a different France, a France with different aims and occupations, as well as at home among the masses as abroad with other nations where the influence of her ideas and temper has been so often felt.—W. F. Stockley, in Boston Pilot.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Pastor.

OF HIS LORDSHIP THE BISHOP OF CHARLOTTETOWN, READ IN THE CHURCHES OF THIS DIOCESE ON TRINITY SUNDAY, MAY 14, 1891.

James Charles McDonald, by the Grace of God, and favor of the Apostolic See, Bishop of Charlottetown.

To the Clergy and Laity of the Diocese, Health and Benediction in the Lord.

DEARLY BELOVED:

We doubt not it was with the most profound and heartfelt sorrow that you heard of the sudden and unexpected death of the late illustrious and revered Bishop of this Diocese, James Charles McDonald, by the Grace of God, and favor of the Apostolic See, Bishop of Charlottetown.

Persons of all classes and creeds in this island deplore the loss of so good a prelate. The people of the neighboring Provinces, and even those of more distant parts, with whom he had any relations, could not but feel sensible of the great loss we have sustained. But how much more affecting must it be to you, the faithful members of his spiritual flock, who have had the great advantage and blessing of living over thirty years under his Episcopal rule. During this long period of time he fulfilled with the greatest possible zeal the duties of a most vigilant and most charitable pastor. His paternal tenderness towards his flock, his love for the members of the Diocese, his devotion to the discharge of his pastoral duties, his extensive works begun and finished in the Diocese for the good of religion—all these give him a title to our highest respect and esteem, and most sincere regret and sorrow for his loss.

We shall not here recount all the praises of our illustrious predecessor. But time, which destroys all things else, shall not erase from your grateful remembrance his inexhaustible charity, his ardent zeal, his sweet and courteous manners. He has left behind him a reputation which will live as long as the world endures. His prayers, his untiring labors, of a long life, both as Priest and Bishop, will be remembered by all who were his flock.

We shall not speak of his obsequies rendered more solemn by your sorrow and your tears, than by the imposing ceremonies by which they were accompanied. They are engraved in indelible characters on your hearts, and shall serve to keep the memory of your venerable predecessor fresh in your most grateful regards.

Obedience, Dear Beloved, to the Visitation of Jesus Christ, makes it a duty incumbent on us to ascend the Episcopal Throne of Charlottetown, rendered illustrious by the zeal, the prudence and the manifold virtues of our predecessors. God is our witness that we have neither sought nor desired this onerous position, the dangers and responsibilities of which we understand to-day more than ever. In meditating on the judgments of God, we have had frequent occasion to exclaim with Holy Job: "What shall I do when God shall rise to judge? and when he shall examine, what shall I answer him?" (Job XXXI. 1-14). But now that the most numerous and most important duties are imposed upon us, the anticipation of this judgment, which will scrutinize our souls, and weigh them in the scales of the Sanctuary, fills us with fear and makes us forget without pain the judgments, the reproaches, the flatteries of men.

One single thought alone consoles us. It is that God is often pleased to manifest His power by the most feeble instruments, and to confound the great and strong through the ministry of the weak. In order that the glory may be rendered to His infinite majesty, and that "no flesh" as the great apostle says "may glory in His sight." (1 Cor. I. 29). On the other hand, this God, who is infinitely rich in mercy, has promised to hear and grant the prayers and supplications of those who invoke Him. We hope, therefore, Dear Beloved, that you will obtain for us by fervent application the assistance of which we stand so much in need.

ASK THE ETERNAL PRICE OF PASTORS

That He may grant us the grace to walk in all purity and good conscience in the footsteps of our predecessors, that being inheritors of their office, we may also inherit their spirit and zeal, and continue to encourage and foster the different diocesan works in which they took such lively interest.

And you, Dear Co-operators in the government of souls, who whom the Lord has chosen to be with us the dispensers of His Mysteries. We charge you before God the Father and Jesus Christ, who shall judge the living and the dead (1 Tim. IV. 1-2), to continue under our Episcopate those traditions of faith and zeal which have constituted your strength in the past. Let us be of one heart and one soul to fulfil more efficaciously the sublime and sacred mission which the Divine Pastor has confided to you over the souls which He recommended with His Most Precious Blood.

Think frequently on the terrible account which they must one day render, who have been placed by God to govern His people. Think, moreover of the immortal Gospels entrusted by Him.

CANADA'S PREMIER DYING

During all last week Sir John Macdonald had been ailing. On Thursday morning Dr. Powell, his medical attendant called in Dr. Ross and Dr. Spence, and after a consultation issued a return to the effect that he had had a relapse of his attack of pleurisy and nervous prostration. On Friday evening he took a relapse and became unconscious and was not expected to live many hours. This was the message announced to the Hon. Mr. Macdonald on Friday night by Sir Hector Langevin, when with much emotion he announced the announcement of the death of the late Premier.

SIR JOHN MACDONALD

A GLOAMING came over Canada, and from the heights of the Dominion, a wave of sympathy went out for the veteran who lies sick and dying in his home at Ottawa. His physical constitution, loaded with the weight of his years, has succumbed; his body is racked with pain, and his mind is in a state of delirium. His last hours have been most terrible and deadly anxious, his extraordinary vitality and indomitable will-power surmount his medical attendants.

When the history of the great men of this country comes to be written Sir John Macdonald will be found to hold a most prominent place among them. The political history of Canada for the past fifty years will be incomplete if he is not mentioned. He was the first to see the need of a strong central government, and he was the first to see the need of a strong central government.

At his advent to public life he found a country in a state of anarchy, and he was the first to see the need of a strong central government. He was the first to see the need of a strong central government, and he was the first to see the need of a strong central government.

Under his guidance Canada has been developed into a great nation. He was the first to see the need of a strong central government, and he was the first to see the need of a strong central government.

His own life was a model of public service. He was the first to see the need of a strong central government, and he was the first to see the need of a strong central government.

His death is a great loss to the country. He was the first to see the need of a strong central government, and he was the first to see the need of a strong central government.

His death is a great loss to the country. He was the first to see the need of a strong central government, and he was the first to see the need of a strong central government.

Ma. BLAINE has not succeeded, after all the agitation over the matter, in securing a commercial reciprocity with Spain; his proposed treaty with Brazil has proved a failure, and his negotiations with Newfoundland have been broken off. It looks now as if he will have to depend on Canada if he really wants to negotiate a satisfactory reciprocity treaty at all; and, consequently, we may find him in an amiable frame of mind in October. Let us hope so.

In Somers County, Cal., near the coast, is to be found a wonderful feat of engineering. In a place where the road crosses a deep ravine, the trees tops have been cut off level with the hills, and the ties and railroad on the stump, forming a most substantial trestle. In the center of the ravine are two big red wood trees sawed off at a distance of seventy feet from the ground. It is said that this is a much safer bridge than one constructed in the most scientific manner.

Miss JULIA REDMAN of Dubuque, Ia., has not been half a block from her home in the last twelve years. During that time Miss Redman, who is a pretty and accomplished young woman, has been in perfect health. Her apparent strange conduct is due to the fact that she has been a constant attendant on an invalid mother, who died recently. Miss Redman recently visited the business part of the city for the first time in twelve years. It had grown into a city of reconstruction. She is now 32 years of age. Here is a rare example of a daughter's devotion.

NEWFOUNDLAND appears to have other troubles besides the French question, for her finances are in a bad way, and she has to start an annual deficit in the face, just as Ontario has to do in Quebec. The statement of revenue and expenditure for 1899 shows that the province was $1,454,453 and the latter for '00 was $1,491,729, a deficit for the year of $37,274, which is doing about $1,291,453 in proportion to population. As Sir Richard Cartwright used to say when he was Dominion Finance Minister, the debt of the colony is over five million dollars, or about $250 per head of population; and the interest on the debt amounts to $1 per head, or about $100 per head of population. It looks very much as if a little good government would do Newfoundland as harm.

The Dominion fishery returns for the total value of this year's catch was seventeen and three quarters million dollars, being a slight increase over 1899. By province, Nova Scotia's catch was worth $6,026,000, or $280,000 more than the previous year. New Brunswick's $2,700,000, a falling off of $306,000 British Columbia, $3,500,000, Ontario, $2,000,000, Quebec, $1,600,000, P. E. I. $1,000,000. Nova Scotia's increase was in cod, herring, halibut, squid and mackerel. New Brunswick's decrease was mainly due to the failure in the large herring fishery. Prince Edward Island fisheries increased $154,000. The value of fur seals taken in British Columbia was $495,000 compared with $335,000 in 1899.

At the present time when Canadian questions are attracting unusual attention in other countries, the publication of Dr. Burinot's "Canadian Studies in Comparative Politics," cannot fail to be of much value. These studies, some of which were first delivered as lectures at Harvard, John Hopkins and Trinity (Toronto) Universities, appear in full in the Transactions of the Royal Society, and a special edition has been issued for sale abroad. The papers of Great Britain come favourably on a work which is in fact a concise history of political development in the Dominion. One of the most influential journals of the United Kingdom, the Glasgow Herald, at the end of a long review, says that Dr. Burinot, "whose name is known here as that of an accomplished writer on political topics and on American institutions, has presented us with a work marked by knowledge, reason, sound judgment and intelligent criticism. It is a model, in its way, of what a political essay ought to be."

THE MONTH'S MIND. The anniversary Mass known as the Month's Mind for the late Bishop Murray took place in St. Dunstan's Cathedral today. The altar and choir were suitably draped in mourning, and a catafalque, surrounded by lighted tapers, stood in front of the high altar. Pontifical high Mass was celebrated at ten o'clock. The celebrant of the mass was Rev. J. C. McDonald, Bishop of Charlottetown with Rev. James Phelan as Archbishop. The deacons of honor were Rev. D. F. McDonald and G. De Finimmo. Rev. A. J. McDonald and E. Dingle were deacon and sub-deacon of office respectively. The masters of ceremonies were Rev. J. C. McMillan, D. D., and A. McLean. Rev. E. J. Gillis was Thurifer and Father McLean and D. J. A. McDonald were Acolytes. His Grace Archbishop O'Brien and His Lordship Bishop Rogers occupied thrones in the Sanctuary. The former was assisted by Father Murphy of Halifax and the latter by Father Walsh, Canon of the Diocese of St. John. After mass an absolution was pronounced by His Lordship Bishop McDonald. Nearly all the priests of the diocese were present, and the priests from abroad in addition to those already named. Very Rev. Canon Carmichael of Halifax and Rev. Father Bernard of the diocese of Portland Maine.

EDITORIAL NOTES. The Rev. C. B. Dawson, of Exeter College, Oxford, curate of All Hallows' Church, Southwark, has been received into the Catholic Church by the Rev. Lake Rivington. The Movimiento Catolico of Madrid says that the Scottish engineer engaged in the construction of iron rails on Bilbao has received the approval of the Catholic Church, receiving the Sacrament of Baptism in a church at Denon.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT. When the house went into committee on the estimate yesterday week, the opposition in the House of Commons was led by the hon. Mr. Cartwright. The hon. Mr. Cartwright, in his speech, pointed out the fact that the estimate for the year 1901-2 was $1,454,453, and that the estimate for the year 1900-1 was $1,491,729, a deficit for the year of $37,274, which is doing about $1,291,453 in proportion to population. As Sir Richard Cartwright used to say when he was Dominion Finance Minister, the debt of the colony is over five million dollars, or about $250 per head of population; and the interest on the debt amounts to $1 per head, or about $100 per head of population. It looks very much as if a little good government would do Newfoundland as harm.
