Remedial Legislation

In our last issue we published the statement presented to Parliament, by the Federal Government regarding the course to be pursued by it on the question of remedial legislation for the minority in Manitoba, and our parliament...

As is always the case when any very important question comes before the public, all kinds of opinions are expressed, by all kinds of persons, regarding remedial legislation, the duty of the Dominion Government and Parliament, Provincial rights, etc.

As will be seen by our Parliamentary report, the three French Ministers, representing the Province of Quebec, Sir Adolphe Caron, Hon. Messrs Oulmet and Angers, seemed at first to be unable to agree to all the details of the plan adopted by their colleagues in the Cabinet, and one of them Hon. Mr. Angers, has withdrawn from the Government.

disinterested motives. Mr. Angers is a man of strong convictions, and sterling integrity, against whose public or private character no one can have anything to say. We must all admit that those ministers, coming, as they do, from a Province where toleration and justice to minorities find their highest realization would naturally have strong feelings and strong convictions on a question of this kind; consequently, we should be slow to impute to them any but the highest and purest of motives.

The course pursued by the opposition on this question cannot be regarded as anything short of contemptible. Having enunciated no policy on the matter, the leader of the opposition leaves nothing undone to embarrass the Government, in consequence of the declaration they have made. The question of remedial legislation should be above party, and should be treated from the point of view of justice and equity. We are strongly of opinion that in the way it would be treated in the Imperial Parliament. The Opposition would join with the Government in bringing about such legislation as would seem to meet the requirements of the case. That would be a statesmanlike course to pursue; but Mr. Laurier pursues a course altogether different, a course peculiar to himself and to the party which he leads. Without having the courage to express his own convictions without daring to show his hand, he introduces a motion calculated to embarrass the Government for enacting the course they think best to be pursued in the settlement of this much vexed question. And what is the motion? Would it be believed, nothing more or less than a motion to adjourn. Supporting, for argument sake, that one of these motions should carry and the Government were to resign in consequence, would Mr. Laurier appeal to the cleavage of the Dominion on the policy of adjournment? A rather vague policy, it must be confessed.

In this connection, we can scarcely refrain from referring to some remarks of the Examiner, on the question under review. In its issue of the 9th inst., containing the first telegraphic account of the Government's decision, and before any explanation had been made to Parliament regarding the reported resignation of the French Ministers above referred to, our contemporary feigned "a crisis in the Government of Canada," and threw all the blame on the French ministers. Indeed the "impetuosity" manifested by our contemporary, to use its own expression, would almost induce one to believe that it rejoiced at the opportunity of having a fling at the French Ministers. In the course of its article it says: "The Government of Manitoba together with influential representatives of Manitoba not in the Government, have publicly expressed a desire to remedy the grievance which has been admitted and asked for a fuller investigation into the facts." We must say that we have watched this matter pretty carefully since the last decision of the Imperial Privy Council was published, and we are free to confess that we have not seen the declaration wherein the "Manitoba Government publicly expressed a desire to remedy the grievance." As to the facts, no one knows them better than the members of the Manitoba Government, and if they desire to remedy the grievance of which they are the authors, we feel sure no member of the Federal Government will place any obstacles in their way. We sincerely hope that the Manitoba Government may yet make some advances towards righting the wrong they have perpetrated; but very far they have not given any very strong evidence of such a desire. Another somewhat extraordinary remark of the EXAMINER, in the article in question is that "the French members will at all events, learn they cannot successfully dictate to the Government and people of the whole Dominion." What evidence has the EXAMINER that the French members have any such desire? The strongest refutation of the assumption of our contemporary, that the "French members" are actuated by any such motive is found in the genuine toleration, the justice and "equal rights" enjoyed by the minority in the Province of Quebec. In view of such facts as these, we cannot help believing that the EXAMINER was carried away by its "impetuosity."

Dominion Parliament.

When the orders of the day were called in the House of Commons, on Tuesday the 9th, Mr. Laurier rose and said: "I now renew the question which I put last evening to my hon. friend with regard to the resignation of certain members of the administration." Hon. Mr. Foster—Mr. Speaker—all that I can say to my hon. friend and to the house is that I have not any authority from His Excellency, the Governor-General, to make a statement other than that, that no resignations have as yet been received by him. This statement did not satisfy Mr. Laurier and he made a speech of some length, attacking the Government, winding up by moving the adjournment of the House.

Mr. Foster was received with loud cheers by supporters of the government. He said: "The hon. gentleman who had just taken his seat, if he did not start with this, closely followed his opening remarks with the statement that today witnessed a proceeding unprecedented, or at least things unprecedented in the history of the government of this country. I am quite willing to admit with him that this phrase was well chosen, although I would apply it in a different way from the application which he evidently meant it should be made. I say it is a thing unprecedented in the parliamentary history of this country that an hon. gentleman leading her majesty's opposition should, on the strength of mere rumor, (despite the laughter from opposition benches) newspaper or common rumor, should come to the conclusion that in the first place any part of this country, any one of its provinces, was unrepresented in the government, and that even if it were unrepresented, that so long as there was a government that held the confidence of the house and had its majority that therefore it could not carry on the affairs of the government. Sir, my hon. friend, as I stated, has nothing better than rumor on which to go. He asked me for authentic information. He received the whole modicum of authentic information that I could give, and he should have rested satisfied with that. He should have restrained his ardent impetuosity to force the position. He could have waited in a statesmanlike and calm manner (opposition laughter) until we learn the truth from authoritative sources in a full and explicit statement of the house, and then have taken whatever action seemed to him in the premises. But, Sir, he chose another position and in doing that he made a brave charge and followed that up by a serious motion. On mere rumor he has put himself in the position of taking a stand which is certainly unprecedented in the parliamentary history of Canada. Sir, he leaped to a conclusion from a newspaper rumor that because there were vacant seats in the ministerial benches, that therefore the members who formerly were in those seats, and whom he would like to see there now, were no longer members of the government; no longer in union or harmony with the government. And he leaped from that conclusion to a still broader conclusion, that one of the provinces of the Dominion was totally unrepresented and that therefore the house could not proceed with its business. He was wrong in both. He should have called, Mr. Gironard of Jacques Cartier, rose and said: "I wish to put the following question to the leader of the House: Will the negotiations to be entered into with Manitoba relating to the schools, unless they bring in an agreement in the line of the remedial order and the terms of the judgment of the privy council of the 29th January, 1895, preclude or postpone the introduction of the remedial legislation announced in your statement of Monday last? Hon. Mr. Foster—My answer simply is, they will not. Mr. Laurier—I will answer this question in one more in the atmosphere of the cabinet. (Cheers and laughter.) Perhaps the hon. gentleman will be able to give us information as to the non-existing crisis which was supposed to exist. Mr. Foster—I am glad that my hon. friend shows such skill in reading political weather predictions, if it may so describe them. I have but very few remarks to make in reply to the questions which have been put by my hon. friend on previous occasions and repeated today. Some differences arose between members of the cabinet with reference to the question of remedial legislation. The statement which I made the other day to the house gave the position of the government on that matter. The difference in the cabinet arose chiefly on two lines. Some of our colleagues were of the opinion that it was useless and consequently unnecessary to prolong negotiations with the Manitoba government with a view to a settlement of the question by that government themselves. The other question of difference arose consequently from that. They believe that remedial legislation should be introduced at once, starting from the premise that there was nothing to be hoped for from the action of the Manitoba government and legislature itself. I need not reiterate the position of the government. It was shown in the statement I made the other day in this house. Both those positions were taken in that statement. The one that we would grant to Manitoba a certain amount of time in the hope that negotiations would be entered into and an amicable settlement of this question arrived at. The other was that in so intricate and important a question the greatest deliberation was necessary in the perfecting of legislation in the matter and that no all this session should be introduced. Those differences of opinion were canvassed by the different members of the government. I regret to say that one of our colleagues who has not a seat in this house finds it impossible to accede to the view of the majority of the government, while still holding very high and strongly to his view that remedial legislation should be undertaken and pressed to a conclusion since yesterday. After observations from Mr. Mills (Bothwell), Sir Hector Langevin said: "I agree with the statement made by the leader of the opposition in Canada. I agree that the large provinces such as Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick should be represented properly in the government, and that is what we have seen for the last twenty years and more. At this moment we see two seats on the treasury benches vacant. The question has been put to the leader of the house, what is the reason of these seats not being occupied. The leader of the house says he is in a position to give an answer to that question now. Those seats have been vacant since yesterday. This is the

at once. As he finds it impossible to accede to the view of the majority in that respect, his resignation has not only been sent in, but accepted, and he is now no longer a member of this government. I regret to say. With reference to our two colleagues from the province of Quebec who had seats in this house, I trust that they showed a disposition to canvass and discuss and look thoroughly into the grounds of difference between their own views and the views of the majority of their colleagues, as expressed in the statement I made the other day to this house, and in the end these differences proved to be rather a misunderstanding than a real divergence of opinion. (Frontal laughter from the opposition.) As regards the principles that were involved. At the most it was simply a question of disagreement as to details. As to the question of principle that remedial legislation was necessary and that it would be introduced by this government at the next session of parliament to be called before the 31st of January, in the event of the province of Manitoba not making a reasonable and satisfactory settlement of the question, it was a matter of divergence upon details and not upon principles. On the principle all were agreed. All members of the cabinet stood side by side with my two hon. friends upon my left, and patriotically, I believe, acted in that line. It was a misunderstanding or a disagreement simply upon details, and they have been able to come to the conclusion that in the statement which was made on Monday last by me, remedial legislation was actually and positively promised, and that there is no variability of shade of meaning so far (frontal laughter from the opposition) — that quotation is from the special benefit of my hon. friend from Norfolk (Mr. Charlton). That there is no intention at all of going one single jot out of perfect good faith the statement of the government on Monday last, having come to that conclusion, my two hon. friends, the postmaster general and the minister of public works, have believed it to be their duty which they owe to their party, their country and to the cause which they themselves have deeply at heart, to work in harmony with their former and present colleagues, and that we should stand together and carry out the policy of the government in this way. I do not know that it is necessary for me to make any further remarks at present and my hon. friend I know is anxious to take the floor and make sundry and various observations. (Cheers.)

and to my mind satisfactory assurance from the premier and from my colleagues, I consider that these assurances by refusing to help the government in carrying out remedial legislation upon the lines of the judgment of the privy council and of the remedial order in council, I would have been sacrificing the interests of the minority and jeopardizing the settlement of the question. (Hear, hear, and opposition laughter.) This induces me to continue to act with the government to secure, as I believe, remedial legislation in accordance with the pledges given by the premier and by the leader of the house. (Loud cheers. Opposition cries of, Next, next.)

Hon. Mr. Oulmet was greeted with loud cheers and counter cheers in rising. Speaking in French he said: "I do not think I need add much to what has been said by my colleagues. I must say, nevertheless, that if I am at this moment occupying the seat which I formerly held, it is solely due to my sense of the duty which I owe to my country, to my party and especially to the cause, the success of which I have so much at heart. If I am here it is because I have become convinced after the repeated assurances which my colleagues have given us, and the warm sympathy which has been shown us by all our friends, that in delaying the settlement of this question we are thereby rendering the more sure its settlement in a definite manner, and in a manner perfectly satisfactory to the country and to all those who desire to see justice done, who love peace and who are devoted to the well being of their compatriots. I can assure you, Mr. Speaker, that if I have ever had a duty to fulfill, the importance of which and also the painful character of which I feel and understand, it is that which I am fulfilling today and in which I am appearing, perhaps, in the eyes of the public as sacrificing for our own personal interests something of the interests of my country. However, Mr. Speaker, I am above all that. I am above the accusations which will be levelled against me in the province of Quebec and elsewhere. I am prepared to endure those attacks in the hope that we will have our reply in six months. In the session which will be held on the 31st of January next. If in the course of those six months I should be covered with opprobrium and insult instead of being greeted with flowers and greeted as a hero, I console myself with the hope that this question will then be settled and that I will not only have the consolation, but the happiness of being able to say to my compatriots that I today have yielded a little in what regards my personal dignity, I have done so in the interests of my country and of those represented in this house. (Cheers.)"

Mr. Laurier followed, and made another attack on the Government, and again moved the adjournment of the House. He was answered in a powerful speech by Sir C. H. Tupper, who showed up the inconsistency and inconsistency of the opposition. While they thought proper to attack the Government's policy on the question of remedial legislation they did not dare to declare themselves on the same question. Several other speakers followed, and the debate was continued till about 10:30 p.m., when a division was taken on Laurier's motion to adjourn, which negatived by 116 to 82. Messrs. Lapin, Jones, Dugas, Turcotte, Jeanotte, Dupont and Belle, Conservatives, together with Messrs. McCarthy and O'Brien, voted with the opposition. The result was announced amid loud ministerial cheers.

In the Senate Premier Bowell made an announcement somewhat similar to Hon. Mr. Foster in the Commons. He said he looked forward with interest and anxiety to the future of this country, with having exhausted every possible means to obtain from the legislature and the Government of Manitoba a redress for the grievances of the minority in that province, to the effect that a policy which would force on an almost independent province, so far as local matters are concerned, a law which would have to be carried out in all its details, should they refuse to do it, by any dominion government or any dominion parliament. He asked every well wisher of his country to reflect well upon that point. There are certain provincial rights which which present themselves to my mind in attempting to force upon an unwilling people any kind of legislation will render whatever that may be useless to those whom it is the intention of parliament to aid if it possibly can. My other two colleagues, I am very much pleased to say, that is the Minister of Public Works and the Postmaster general, after much reflection, and having considered the representations which have been made to them from the standpoint which I have given to the house, and with a distinct and positive understanding that this government will proceed with legislation should it be demanded by the people of Manitoba, consented to place their portfolios and remain in the government until the time arrives when it will be an imperative duty on the government to answer this matter.

Hon. Mr. Angers followed the premier. He quoted from Manitoba's answer to the remedial order to show that there was no reasonable hope that the statement in Monday's announcement that Manitoba would either accept or accept a compromise would be realized. The answer of Manitoba, he contended, showed that the provincial government was opposed to separate schools on principle and that they would never willingly re-establish them. He declared that it was impossible for him to subscribe to the first paragraph of the declaration made by the government on Monday that in Manitoba's reply was to be found the hope of an amicable settlement of the school question, on the basis of possible action by the Manitoba government or legislature. Therefore, upon that very important point which was not supported by evidence, he had to refuse to take responsibility. Dealing with the other paragraphs of the announcement he pointed out that the answer of the Manitoba government, assented to by the legislature, precluded any possibility of separate schools being restored to the minority. What was the sense, when in every paragraph of the answer of the Manitoba government, assented to by the legislature, there was a distinct refusal to restore these schools, of appealing to the Greenway government for a satisfactory compromise. He pointed out the fact that it was upon a promise that separate schools would be continued forever by Mr. Greenway that the schools were abolished. Was it now upon a promise of Mr. Greenway unauthorized, and in the face of the legislature, which is in honor bound not to restore these schools, that a fair compromise was expected. This was the reason why he was again under the painful necessity of not being able to subscribe to that portion of the declaration. He had made a request of the government that the announcement given on Monday should be postponed until he had received the permission of the governor general to make his statement at the same time. He did not get that permission, through no fault of the government, but he contended that it was incumbent on the government not to make the statement on Monday under the circumstances. The discussion was continued till a late hour, Sir Frank Smith and Premier Bowell, following Mr. Angers.

Dreadful Railway Accident

In our last issue we mentioned the fact of a terrible accident on the Grand Trunk Railway, on Tuesday morning the 9th inst. Since then full particulars have come to hand, and they disclose the sad intelligence that thirteen were killed and twenty-nine seriously wounded, some of them fatally. Among the victims were two priests, Rev. J. L. Mercier of Richmond and Rev. F. P. Dignan of Windsor Mills, who were killed outright, and Rev. Father Desrosiers of Broughton who was being carried home broken. They all belonged to the diocese of Sherbrooke. The accident occurred at Craigs Road Station some twenty miles west of Levis. The two trains, which were due at Levis at 3:45 a.m., were special excursion trains. The first train, which had a party of three to four hundred pilgrims from Norton Mills and vicinity for La Ronde Ste. Anne, was standing on the main line waiting for the Quebec mixed freight to pass up, when the second train, which was also conveying about an equal number of pilgrims from Sherbrooke, Magog, Danville, Richmond, Coaticook, etc., dashed into the rear end of the first train, demolishing its own engine, its own Pullman and three first class cars of the first train, smashing them almost into splinters and carrying death and destruction before it. The engineer, H. McLeod, and the fireman, R. L. Perkins, were killed at their post, but the conductor, McCabe, escaped. The dead fireman and driver both came from Richmond. McLeod entered the employ of the company in 1885 and became a driver in 1891. Perkins started work as a railway man in 1882, and has only held his present position for a year. Mr. Wainwright is of the opinion that the driver of the second train must have fallen asleep, as both driver and fireman were aware that to pass a danger signal means dismissal without as much as a signal.

SIR MACKENZIE BOWELL has received a notice from Mr. J. G. Ward, announcing his arrival in New Zealand, and referring in the highest terms to the character of the steamship service of the Canadian-Australian line. A peculiarity of this message was the fact that it was sent from New Zealand on the 7th, and received at Ottawa on the 9th, which illustrates the great difference in time.

A FEW days ago, Mr. Alexander McInnis, of Traveller's Rest, lost his house by fire. Mrs. McInnis and all the children were away picking berries, and he himself was working in the field. Before leaving home he had kindled a fire in the stove, and on returning was amazed to find the inside all afire. When the doors were opened the fire got draught, and so rapidly did it spread that he was able to save but little of the furniture. The house was insured in the P. E. Island Agricultural Mutual Fire Insurance Co., for $300, and the furniture for $50. Enough of the furniture was saved to amount to more than the furniture insurance.

SCALDS and Burns are soothed at once with Perry Davis' PAIN KILLER.

A Beautiful Legend. BY MARY E. MANNIX.

Softly fell the touch of twilight on Jude's silent hills; Slowly crept the peace of moonlight on Jude's trembling hills.

In the temple's court conversing, seven elders sat apart; Seven great and hoary sages, wise of heart and pure of heart.

"What is rest?" said Rabbi Judah, he of stern and steadfast gaze, "Answer ye whose toils have burthened through the march of many days."

"To have gained," said Rabbi Ezra, "decent wealth and goodly store, Without sin, by honest labor—nothing less and nothing more."

"To have found," said Rabbi Joseph, meekness in his gentle eyes; "A forerunner of heaven's sweetness in home's blessed paradise."

"To have wealth, and power, and glory, crowned and brightened by the pride Of uprising children's children," Rabbi Benjamin replied.

"To have won the praise of nations, to have won the crown of fame," Rabbi Solomon responded loyal to his kingly name.

"To sit throned the lord of millions, first and noblest in the land," Answered haughty Rabbi Asher, youngest of the reverend band.

"All is vain," said Rabbi Jarus, "if not faith and hope have traced In the soul mosaic precepts, by sin's contact uneffaced."

Then uprose wise Rabbi Judah, tallest, gravest of them all; "From the heights of fame and honor even valiant souls may fall;

"Love may fall us, Virtue's sapling grow a dry, thorny rod, If we bear not to our bosoms the unselfish love of God."

In the outer court sat playing a sad-featured fair-haired child; His young eyes seemed wells of sorrow—they were gored like when he smiled.

One by one he dropped the lilies, softly plucked with childish hand; One by one he viewed the sages of that grave and hoary band.

Step by step he neared them closer, till encircled by the seven, Thus he said in tones untroubled with a smile that seemed of heaven:

"Nay, my fathers! Only he within the measure of whose breast Dwells the human love with God-love can have found life's truest rest;

For where one is not the other must grow stagnant at its spring, Changing good deeds into phantoms—an unmeaning soulless thing.

"Whose holds this precept, truly owns a jewel brighter far Than the joys of home and children—within wealth, fame, and glory are."

"Fainter than old age, thrice honored, far above traditions live, Pure as any radiant vision ever ancient prophet saw."

"Only he, within the measure—faith appointed—of whose breast Throbs this brother-love with God-love, knows the depth of perfect rest."

small extent, but with concessions over 400 acres below ground (and water), and it is expected that several other collieries will be started, for which there is said to be room. There is nothing extraordinary in mining under water, as implied in the statements.

This has been done on the Cornish coast, and in the copper and iron mines of Michigan at Silver Lake, Lake Superior, but the opening of great collieries in a large shipping port, with a delivery from the shaft mouth direct into vessels alongside, is something which only the mines of West-England and British Columbia can rival.

It is also proposed to utilize the smaller coal, screened from the bunker coal, for a large electric installation and also to make coke and establish local smelting works.—Philadelphia Record.

London's Cathedral. Cardinal Vaughan, on June 20th, laid the foundation stone of the new Catholic Cathedral at Westminster. The site of the building, which is to cost £1,500,000, is in the rear of Ashley Gardens. Cardinal Vaughan headed the procession from his house in Carlton Place to the Cathedral.

CURES DYSPEPSIA, BAD BLOOD, CONSTIPATION, KIDNEY TROUBLES, HEADACHE, BILIOUSNESS.

BURDOCK PILLS act gently yet thoroughly on the Stomach, Liver and Bowels condition of the Catholic Church in England. Mr. Bentley's plan covers 400 acres below ground (and water), and it is expected that several other collieries will be started, for which there is said to be room.

Poor of Paris at Mass. My Angel Guardian directed my steps this morning to the Basilica of the Sacred Heart at Montmartre, says a Paris correspondent writing under date of April 29. Many were moving in the same direction, but never did I see gathering into a Parisian church such a set of worshippers.

The site of the new Cathedral has been lying vacant for nearly twelve years. Its situation is unique. Standing about a mile from Hyde Park corner, close to Victoria Street, in a circumstance which embraces the Houses of Parliament, the Government Office, the Royal Palaces and the ancient Minister in which the sovereigns are crowned, it is the very heart and centre of the Empire.

Among the reasons given by Cardinal Vaughan for starting the great work are the following: "1. Because the canon law, for wise and far-reaching reasons, orders that there be a cathedral in every diocese. Because the metropolitan see in a country like England ought not to be left without a mother church. Because in the capital of the British Empire should be heard the daily cathedral chant of the liturgy rendered by Benedictine monks as of old in Canterbury. Because a Cathedral would provide the ample space needed for synods, gatherings of the whole hierarchy and of the clergy and for large congregations, with lectures, conferences, instructions and popular devotions, open to all and free of charge."

During the last forty-five years the first place has been given to the service of the poor, and it is on this account that the metropolitan see is still without a cathedral. The late Cardinal was proposed to exercise his full legitimate influence and to take its proper place in the religious movement and awakening which are at present passing over the English people.

DR. FOWLER'S EXT. OF WILD STRAWBERRY

CURES GOUT, CRAMPS, CHOLERA, DIARRHOEA, DYSENTERY, GHOLEA MORBUS, GHOLEA INFANTUM.

It has been greatly edited by the conduct of the poor men who had been attending a retreat in the previous week, and that three hundred of the retreatants had made their pastoral Communion. It was the First Communion of a certain number!

Times have changed, indeed, since the days of St. Agnes, St. Agatha and St. Cecilia—since the children of the Church worshipped in the Catacombs—but the holy law of Charity and its practices have not changed, and the Spirit of our Lord, who animates such hearts, is as fresh as ever.

Affection of Wild Animals. Wild animals naturally limit both their affection and regrets to each other's society. In the social life of most animals there is so little difference between the individuals that the loss of one is easily replaced.

A Wide Range. A preparation which enriches and purifies the blood and assists nature in repairing wasted tissue must have a wide range of usefulness. Such a preparation is Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil with Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda.

all who co-operate with you will reap rich blessings. Archbishop Corrigan, in a letter to the Rev. Father William Smith, says: "The attraction offered to intending pilgrims is very great, and I trust that many Catholics will be able to take part in these religious exercises."

The Holy See has decreed that the degree prohibiting Catholics from belonging to the Knights of Pythias, the Odd Fellows, or the Sons of Temperance, shall be promulgated and enforced in every diocese throughout the country.

The American Ecclesiastical Review, which has been an ornament to the Church in the United States because of the erudition, sound doctrine and timeliness of its articles, is to be raised to even a higher plane. While the editor was lately abroad he engaged some new writers in theology, archaeology and ecclesiastical history, in order to emphasize the scientific character of the periodical, and so it is to become more than ever indispensable to the reverend clergy.

Why Was It. That Ayer's Sarsaparilla, out of the great number of similar preparations manufactured throughout the world, was the only medicine of the kind admitted at the World's Fair, Chicago? And why was it that, in spite of the united efforts of the manufacturers of other preparations, the decision of the World's Fair Directors was not reversed?

Because. Because it is in any way dangerous or offensive, also because its ingredients are concealed, will not be admitted to the Exposition, and, therefore—Because Ayer's Sarsaparilla is not a patent medicine, not a nostrum, and not a secret preparation.
