Watford Defeats Alvinston, 6-4.

Watford Juniors added another victory to their list last Friday, when they defeat-ed the Alvinston O.H.A. team here, by a score of 6-4. Watford took the lead from the start, and showed Alvinston a few points about the game, although the play was almost entirely individual. Scarcely any combination was pulled off, Scarcely any combination was pulled cir, and the playing was very rough. A few brilliant rushes were made by men on both teams. Shaw, for Alvinston, and Thorner, for Watford, were the stars. If the Alvinston boys were doing their best, as we are sure they were, Messrs. Moore and Groome, of Alvinston, got a great setback. Watford was defeated in Alvinston by na gool as the witchen in Alvinston by one goal, so this victory leaves Watford the better team by one goal. The line-up :

Unprecedently High.

The Department of Labor's price record for January shows the gener-al price level the highest known probably within the present generation, certainly since the early eighties Since the middle of June last a pronounced and continuous upward movement has been in progress, and though there was a short breathing spell in December, January now shows the highest level of all.

27

The Department's index number which is based on the observations of fluctuations in 261 commodities selected for their representative character rose to 131.0 in January, that is, general prices were 31 per cent. higher in that month than was the average for the decade 1890-1900, which is taken by the Department as the standard of comparison in constructing its number. Compared with prices in 1897, the lowest year in the past quarter century, prices are now at least 45 per cent. higher.

The victim was found ny his brother Howard. Miscal was 27 years of age and had several times been a patient at the London Hospital for the Insane.

How much better is a plain, quiet Christian home where all is peace and cordiality, the neighbors heartily wel-come to come and go at will, and freed come to come and go at will, and freed from the pestering, senseless convention-alities of married life. ! Why should our earthly life, which at best cannot be con-tinued a hundred years, be fretted and burdened and worn out prematurely by vain efforts to ape the manuers of the idle, irreligious, self-seeking, rich devotee of pleasure?

A Toron'o man in company with a triend was driving a big car along a road in the interior of Hastings County, when they met an old-fashioned high carriage in which were an old-fashioned couple. The frightened country couple jumped to the ground and the motor car came to a halt.

Reasonable Prices. Pope Pius has issued an order that all cardinals and other church dignitaries must decline to attend social functions where women are permitted to gather in decolette gowns. The Pontiff has long been opposed to the prevailing fashions in evening dress, and he believes that his order will have a tendency to do away with low cut gowns in Catholic circles. IT'S COMING Wonderful Webs Are the Result of Evolution.

Evolution. One who is desirous of studying the architectural gifts of spiders may eas-ily do so by observing the labors of the little garden spider common to all localities. These beautiful webs, circular in outline, with radiating threads running from centre to cir-cumference and supporting a series of concentric lines, are regarded by naturalista as the highest achievement of the spider. How did the spider learn the art of making these webs? Their great ingenuity and perfection of geometric form are conceded. The naturalist is not satisfied with the reply that it is a matter of instinct. He learns that there are wide differences to be found among the webs of different spiders, and his observations lead him to think that he can discern a sort of actual that he can discern a sort of actual progress, which he calls evolution, in the art of web making among piders.

The common house spider spins a web quite different from that of the garden spider. The house spider's web consists of a silken tube hidden in a dark corner, with an irregular in a dark corner, with an irregular sheet of closely woven meshes spread before it. The tube is the spider's lurk-ing hole and place of refuge; the out-spread web is its snare. The wolf spider makes a tubular hole with a hinged door for a refuge, and spreads no snare, relying entirely on its own prowess to overcome the unsuspect-ing victim. Still another species of spider constructs a far simpler tube without any lid or door. In all this there may be discerned some resemblance to the progress or architecture among men. The earliest representatives of the human race were content to dwell in caves and rudely constructed huts. Then more elaborate dwelling places and build-elaborate dwelling places and build-ings intended for other purposes were constructed, until, by successive steps, advancing, as has the spider, we have arrived at the temples, palaces and houses of civilized life.

He Makes Vienna Gasp.

He Makes Vienna Gasp. Vienna can boast a curious eccen-tric who turns life upside down, a rich young Pole who lives in sump-tuous style, but always summons his servants by bugle call. His favorite pastime is driving, an omnibus, attired like an ordinary bus man, and, though he is said to spend a fortune each year in clothes, he wears no gar-ment until it has been worn by his valet. He has astonished guests at a ball by appearing in a costume of pure white, save for the shirt and tie, which was black. To complete his oddities, when dining, which he invariably does alone at a table d'hote, he re-verses the usual order, beginning his meal with the sweets and ending with the soup. the soup.

EDUCATION OF A PRINCESS. Elizabeth Stuart Played at Being Queen From Infancy.

Queen From Infancy. The home life of King James I. of England had much that was charm-ing about it. In his "Five Stuart Princesses" Robert S. Rait gives many pleasant glimpses of the up-bringing of the little daughter, the Princess Elizabeth, afterwards Queen of Bohemia, and ancestress of the present royal house of Great Britain. The child was but seven when her father was called from his Scottish throne to that of England. Two days after the installation at Windsor, writes Mr. Rait, the small Elizabeth watched a state dinner from a recess in St. George's Hall.

watched a state dinner from a recess in St. George's Hall. James took his daughter up in his arms and kissed her, jovially saying to Lord Southampton that his little Bessy was not an ill-faured wench, and might outshine her mother one of therefore.

cess' room looked over brilliant flower beds, across a green English lawn to an artificial river that disappered into the woods. "Nothing took the princess' fancy so much," wrote one of her ladies, "as a little wilderness at the end of the park, on the banks of a large brook which formed in one place a large ir-regular basin, or rather a small lake, in which there was an island covered with underwood and flowering trees and plants, so well mixed and dis-posed that for nine months in the year they formed a continual spring." This "wilderness" the princess took for her own, and here in an aviary, the black roof of which was formed of natural rock, she brought together birds of "every species and of every-country." In the wilderness and wooden buildings in all the different orders of architecture," and in these were placed "paintings of divers races, and stuffed skins of all sorts of animals, so that this was a kind of world in miniature. Adjoining the wood were some meadows, which were after-wards added to what the princess call-ed her 'farry farm,' from their being stocked with the smallest kind of cat-tile from the Islands of Jersey, Shet-land and Man."

"If a butterfly or a glow worm took her eye some account was given her of its nature and of the wonderful changes most of its kind go through." The children loved to look at these in-sects through the newly-discovered

J. T. Chetland, the well-known rall-way engineer of Hamilton, found the strain always resting upon men of his occupation vastly intensified by a tendency of the blood to rush to his head, and often at times when clear-ness of vision and great steadiness were demanded. Finding some diffi-culty in bending—a stiftness with pain having settled in his back, it oc-curred to him that his kidneys might be at fault. "This was a happy idea, for by it I not only got rid of the pain but many other troubles as well. I took a full dose of Dr. Hamilton's Pills and was glad to note that some ob-struction of the kidneys; which I had lately noticed, was at once relieved. The flushed appearance of my face gave way to a more rational color and there was a perceptible improvement there was a perceptible improvement in my appetite. Dr. Hamilton's Pills

In my appetite. Dr. Hamilton's Pills certainly act splendidly upon the blood, removing heat and fulness and that sort of dizziness that makes a man at the throttle wish when it slezes him that he were elsewhere." INSTANT DEATH IS ASSURED.

One Dexterous Thrust Through the Animal's Head by an Expert Work man Ends Consciousness-How the Carcass Is Skinned and Dressed.

The easiest way you could possibly think of is the way sheep are killed in the packing houses. Most persons mis-takenly imagine that they are treated horribly and see in their minds a bloodthirsty man, with shoulders like hams, standing over a poor, defense less sheep with a bludgeon in his hands ready to send the creature straight to the promised land. But there is where the sentimentalist goes completely wrong, for if there is an animal that is treated right—in speak ing of its death-it is the sheep. There is only one thing that doesn't look as though death was absolute pleasure for the sheep, and that is right at the very start of the killing operation. The sheep are driven from the yardup a long chute, and when they enter the pathway a leader sheep puts him self at their head to take them up into the killing room. These sheep are trained and are nearly always black so that there will be no mistake made and the leader sheep killed.

This leader takes the animals up the chute to a pen that will hold about fifty sheep. Here a man catches them. two at a time, and shackles them by their hind legs. This is the operation referred to as the only one painful to the sheep. The animal is then swung on to what is called the Ferris wheel. This wheel is constantly revolving, and as it reach es a certain spot the sheep are trans ferred to a track from which they hang head downward. At that point their suffering ceases, for the next workman is the man who kills them.

The killing process is one that is ab solutely painless to the sheep. workman is adept and never misses the mark at which he strikes. With a sharp knife in his hand, he moves down the row of hanging animals, and as he comes to each one he feels of the head just behind the ears and finds the point where the bones of the head leave an opening. In this the knife is thrust and goes through the head of the animal, completely severing on both sides a large artery. The sheep is killed instantly. Five hundred sheep can be handled every hour at this point. They are then "pated," an operation that consists of skinning the fore part of the head and the neck. The next workman cuts through the spot below the neck. The fore legs are then broken and cut off to be sent to the bone room. he fact that there

HACKNEY COACHES. Tradesmen Protested When They First

Appeared In London. In a letter dated April 1, 1639, Mr.

Garrard, writing to the Earl of Strafford, says: "Here is one Captain Bally. He hath been a sea captain, but now lives in London, where he tries experiments. He hath erected according to his ability some four hackney coaches, put his men in a livery and appointed them to stand at the Maypole in the Strand, giving them instructions at what rate to carry men into several parts of the town, where all day they may be had.

"Other hackney men seeing this way, they flocked to the same place and performed their journeys at the same rate, so that sometimes there are twenty of them together, which disperse up and down."

Citizen shopkeepers bitterly complained of this, saying:

"Formerly when ladies and gentlemen walked in the streets there was a chance of customers, but now they whisk past in the coaches before our apprentices have time to cry out, What d'ye lack?"

The word cab, a contraction of cabriolet, was not used until 1823.-London Standard.

1 1991 He Liked Scotchmen.

The late Meredith Townsend had an affection for Scotsmen as contributors to the Spectator, of which he was for so many years proprietor and coeditor. Mr. Townsend's liking for the Scots was based on an experience he had in Leith when a boy. He was on a holiday and had run short of money for his return to London. He boldly boarded a London passenger boat, intimated his desire to the captain to go south explained who he was and stated that he was without funds. Seemingly favorably impressed by the lad's tale and appearance, the captain, a Scot, said that would be all right and showed him to a cabin. "But," said young Townsend, "this is a saloon. As things are steerage would do all right." "Na, na, my mannie," said the captain. "If I trust ye at all I'll trust ye first class!" London Spectator.

-The First Henchmen. Skeat derives the word henchman from hengstman (Anglo-Saxon), horse man, groom. It is probable that henchmen were in the first instance young nobles who at state ceremonies attended on the king as mounted pages. History speaks of these henchmen in this capacity, for we read that Henry VI. had three and Edward IV. six of them. We find, too, that they were mentioned in the royal ceremonies as belong-ing "to the riding household" and took part in tournaments. The last time 'henchman" is mentioned in connection with the court is in the reign of Henry VIII., and gradually it came to mean an ordinary page. The word is used by Ben Jonson and Shakespeare in this sense.

erything and one man to do just his part and no more is emphasized in the sheep room when one sees just one hind leg skinned by one man and the other skinned in an entirely different operation. The sheep is then put on what is called the endless chain. This chain consists of hooks at intervals and is constantly moving, making the rounds of the room in about twenty minutes. Along this chain are the workmen, and as the sheep is passed on to them by the chain they do their work and wait for the next carcass. After the two hind legs have been skinned the back is partly skinned and the animal is passed on to the next man who is called a "pelter." He grasps the pelt just above the hind legs, and, with a few deft twists of it, it is pulled off and the sheep passed on to the next workman.

After being skinned the sheep are carefully washed and wiped, a new towel being used on every animal. An endless chain is in progress here also, for when a towel is used it is thrown into a vat of boiling water, washed and put into a drier to be used over and over again. After the animal has been washed the head is taken off and the neck washed in the same manner as the rest of the carcass. The government inspector then gets it, and it is subjected to a rigid examination, after which the stamp of approval of the United States is put on.

After the head is taken off it is sent to the floor below, where the tongue is taken out and the remainder of it sent to the bone room.

There are two ways of dressing the sheep. Some of the buyers insist on having the caul fat with the animal, while others do not care about it. If the fat is desired it is put on the hind part of the animal, covering about one-half of the body, and is then split, revealing the carcass shorn of the vis-

Salves Why Can't Cure Eczema.

Since the old-fashioned theory of curing eczema through the blood has been given up by scientists, many different salves have been tried for skin diseases. But it has been found that these salves only clog the pores and cannot penetrate to the inner skin below the epidermis where the eczema germs are lodged.

Women's Secrets

There is one man in the United States who has perhaps heard more women's secrets than any other man or woman in the country. These secrets are not secrets of guilt or shame, but the secrets of suffering, and they have been confided to Dr. R. V. Pierce in the hope and expectation of advice and help. That few of these women have been disappointed in their ex-That few of these women have been disappointed in their ex-pectations is proved by the fact that 98 per cent. of all women treated by Dr. Pierce or his able staff, have been absolutely and altogether cured. Such a record would be remarkable if the cases treated were numbered by hundreds only. But when that record applies to the treatment of more than half-a-mil-lion women, in a practice of over 40 years, it is phenomenal, and entitles Dr. Pierce to the gratitude accorded him by women, as the first of specialists in the treatment of women's diseases. THERE'S LITTLE NEW UNDER THE SUN AFTER ALL.

Our Labor-Saving Devices Like Safety Pins and Collar Studs and Paper Fasteners Were All Use by the Ancients-Hairpins and Fish Hooks and Bronze Razors Among the Antiquities Found.

Antiquittes Found. Every now and then it is discover-of that some extremely "modern" invention is in reality exceedingly old. For example, the safety pin, far from being a novelty, or even of re-cent origin, is decidedly ancient—a fact made certain by the finding of a great many such pins fashioned ex-actly like those of to-day, in old Roman and Etruscan tombs, dating back to a period a good deal earlier than the birth of Christ. The safety pin was an article of common use in Italy long before the Roman Empire attained the height of its glory. Some of them were exact-ly like those of to-day, utilizing the familiar principle of coiled spring and catch; but the material of which they were made seems always to have been bronze. They took on a development, however, far more remarkable than our modern safety pins, many of them being quite large affairs, ten inches or so in length, and holve as it do being quite large affairs, ten inches or so in length, and hollow, as if de-signed to be attached to the gown in front, and possibly to contain flowers. Not infrequently they were ornamentwith gems.

Another ancient invention was the collar stud. It is true that the an-cient Romans did not use buttons to back half and employed it vigorously. In the collection referred to is a number of fish hooks, no less than 3,000 years old, obtained from ancient Swiss lake dwellings. They are of bronze, and in shape are exactly like the most improved modern fish hooks. They have the same curves and the same barbs, with a similar expansion of the top of the shank for the attach-ment of the line. Barring the metal of which they are composed, they might have been made yesterday. Other curios from the old Etruscan tombs are strainers, ladles, spoons,

Other curios from the old Etruscan tombs are strainers, ladles, spoons, and knives of bronze. Such articles, as well as daggers and other weapons and utensils were east most common-ly in molds that were made of hard ly in molds that were made of hard stone, a pair of stones being required to produce the object, which was afterwards polished and otherwise elaborated. Among the most inter-esting of the contrivances for the toilet is a fine tooth comb of ivory, which in shape is precisely like the fine tooth combs of to-day. Of course the gentleman of ancient Rome was obliged to shave himself

Of course the gentleman of ancient Rome was obliged to shave himself unless he chose to wear a beard, and for this purpose he used a razor which must have made the operation decid-edly severe. It was not at all like modern razors, but was of bronze, and somewhat like a small sickle, wary broed in the moon-sharad hiede very broad in the moon-shaped blade, and with a handle rigidly attached. Naturally, the Roman damsel or matron had to have something in the way of a looking glass, and it is odd to find that her hand mirror was pre-cisely of the most fashionable modern type. It was of polished bronze, be-cause the art of silvering glass to make it serve as a reflector, was then unknown.

Every Roman gentleman had a latch key which fitted the door of his dwelling. It was attached to a finger ring so that it could not easily be lost, and would always be ready for
