LIBERALS ARE KEEN TO DISCUSS BANK ACT, SESSION'S BIG ISSUE

Deliberately Obstructed to Defer Further Discussion of Naval Question-Foster, Frosty, Yet Kindly, Lets Opposition Do All the Talking on West Indies Trade Treaty.

By Tom King.

OTTAWA, Jan. 25.—Just now it looks as the the government and Opposition alike were marking time. The government has made no headway during the week with the naval debate and Hon. Mr. White when questioned yesterday in the house was unable to say when he would proceed with his bill to revise the Bank Act.

The Opposition deliberately obstructed on Thursday and Friday of this week, evidently preferring to postpone any further discussion of the naval question. They are more keen just now to discuss the Bank Act which promises to be the big issue of the session. There is some talk again about an election this year. Many Liberals take the view that the government will be stronger a year or two from now when well in the saddle and more accustomed to rule. Then, too, they deem it important to have another campaign will Sir Wilfrid Larrier is strong and well and easer for the fray

Laurier is strong and well and eager for the fray.

Curiously enough no supply has yet been asked and the government is liable to find itself short of money after March 31. However, this has happened to many governments before now without any ser-

WEST INDIES TRADE TREATY. Hon. George E. Foster was frosty, but kindly, in dealing with the well organized effort to obstruct his bill confirming the reciprocity treaty between Canada and the British West Indies. The treaty itself was the outgrowth of the royal commission appointed in 1909 by the Imperial Government which included among its members Hon. W. S. Fleiding and Hon. Wm. Paterson. These ill-fated plenipoten-tiaries, who in death were not divided, recall another reciprocity agreement which went out of existence on September 21, 1911. More for-tunate were they in sowing the seed for the agreement between Canada and the West Indies now brought to fruition by Mr. Foster. The Liberals who stood by reciprocity with the United States could not openly assail the principle of reciprocal trade with His Majesty's possessions

APPROVED IN ADVANCE. Thus Mr. Poster's bill was approved in advance by every mem-ber of parliament. The Opposition, however, desired to obstruct, partly with the idea of getting a rise out of their old antagonist, who successfully obstructed the Laurier Government a hundred times, and partly with a desire to stave off the naval debate. The plan, of course, was to delay the passage of the bill by getting up a discussion on some other subject more or less relevant. Mr. A. K. Maclean opened the ball by recalling and denouncing a speech which Mr. Foster had made last summer in England. In this speech the minister of trade and commerce observed that the Canadian-West Indian agreement would never have come into being had the Laurier Government been returned to power. This statement Mr. Maclean denounced as "untrue, unfounded and unworthy of a minister of the crown." He also took oc-casion to lambast Rt. Hon. Walter Long, to the consternation, or perhaps to the amusement, of Mr. Long's brother and son, who occupied front seats in the speaker's gallery.

The Salvation Army Needs A Training Institution

General Booth's Dying Wish

The last unfulfilled wish of the late General Booth was for the establishment of departments for training social workers, as they are now trained only in London, England, and in Stockholm.

It is fitting that the Salvation Army should build an institution in Toronto as a memorial to their late General, including these departments.

Who sends officers every day to the Police Court in Toronto?

Who successfully pushes anti-suicide work? Who saves the women of the street and actually takes them from a vicious life to a self-respecting one?

Who straightens out hundreds of drink-ridden homes?

Who meets the released prisoners at jail and prison, and helps them to work, to friends, and to another chance to make good?

Who aids the poor, the sick, the homeless, the discouraged in a practical, nonpauperizing way, that has excited the admiration of the world?

Who finds sons and daughters for distracted parents?

The Salvation Army!

IN THE NAME OF CIVILIZATION-OF GOOD CITIZENSHIP-OF HUMAN-ITY-is this good work, is it sane work, or is it hysterical fanaticism?

No thinking man or woman who sees our terrible social problems will fail to see the need of trained people for this work when training actually means 22 per cent. greater success.

They Ask of Toronto $100,000 of the $200,000 Actually Needed.

PRESS IS THE WORLD'S PULPIT

C. Walsh of Montreal Gives Address St. Joseph's College,

On Saturday afternoon Mr. J. Walsh of Montreal lectured before the members of St. Joseph's College Alumnac, the students and staff of the nouse being also gathered in the beautiful auditorium of the institution. That the press is the world's pulpit might be taken as the text of the lecturer. In a most illuminating manner Mr. Walsh traced the evolution of the newspaper from the days of Addison and Steele to the time of the tracts of Newman, the days when the personal prestige of the editor impressed itself upon the things he wrote, and eventually the amonymous wrating and news system of the present day.

Advertising, too, was defly touched upon. At first the advertiser was master of the situation; now the newspaper is in the position of independence, the importance of the advertising med um being now well established with the many who use it.

The Gicbe was regarded as the pulpit of George Brown in the early days; Saturday Night was called into being by the remarkable personality which went about under Mr. Sheppard's broad-brimmer hat, and Devoir of today is the reflex of Henri Bourassa.

What a paper really is depends upon its readers, because every editor now tries for what he believes is pleasing to those who read his pagers. The men who make the newspaper are the most interesting part of it, declared Mr. Walsh. There is no finer set of men anywhere.

Miss Gentrude Lawler, M.A., introduced the speaker, and a vote of thanks was moved by Mr. Wm. Prendergast, seconded by Miss M. L. Hart. An exquisite musical program was given by Paul Hahn, Miss Grace Smith and Mr. Thelle, for which the appreciation of the audience was volced by Mrs. Ambrose Small, seconded by Mrs. Ambrose Small, seconded by Mrs. Weir. members of St. Joseph's College Alum-

That the price of gasoline will in the near future rise to 30 cents and perhaps as high as 35 cents a gallon is the opinion expressed by the proprietors of Toronto garages. The present price of gasoline is 25 cents a gallon to the outside purchaser, the garage obtaining it for 23 cents.

The reason given for the expected rise in the price is the big demand and uncertain supply. This year oil companies are refusing to renew contracts for the supply of gasoline. Last year it was not unusual for them to give contracts for fifty thousand galange is again to its present price in ten price and it has proved quite practical.

Gasoline has risen from nine cents agailon, againent to its present price in ten price was 17 cents a gallon. Last year the price was 21 cents a gallon. Last year the price was 21 cents.

Gray hair is believed by most people to be evidence of weakening in physical and mental power, and those who must rely upon looking young and vigorous are often compelled to fight this prejudice.

Prejudice Against Gray Hair.

The gray-haired person soon realizes that younger-appearing men are chosen for positions, although he may know some thus selected who are realized to be a more than a selected who are realized to be a more than a selected who are realized to be a more than a selected who are realized to be a more than a selected who are realized to be a more than a selected who are realized to be a select Mothers, Wives, Sisters

While drifting from bad to worse as all slaves of King Alcohol do, I unexpectedly found a true cure. It was (and is) genuine. It saved my life, My health was quickly restored. I became and am a respectable man, enjoying benefit of freedom from the accursed alcohol. I speedily and naturally lost all desire for drink. I took less and less. I began to prefer teast coffee and other non-alcoholic liquids; the craving for liquor ceased. I could sleep perfectly: my stomach became well and I recovered from other allments which I now know were due to my indulgence in strong drink. I was cured in only three days. By fortunate circumstances I learned the True Method for overcoming liquor habit with or without the drinker's knowledge. My remedy is indorated by physicians and in legions of testimonials. I will send you ample proof.

Where It Shows

Most women suffer much humiliation because of great quantities of fat, so located that, no metter how they dress, everybody sees that they are abnormal. This is the day of the slender figure, and fat women are simply not tolerated either in business or social affairs. Women may not know it, but men when they see a fat woman pass them on the street or in public places make all manner of sympathetic remarks about her. They do not mean to be unkind or to seem unmanly, but it is natural for a man to dislike fat on a woman. Where fat shows the most there is where it must be removed, and as quickly as possible. This season's dresses seem to be made for the fat woman's misery, and the slender woman's delight. They expose all the charms of woman and her ugliness as well. Exercise and diet will not remove fat. This has been proved. The famous Marmola prescription which has met with such thenomenal success and has so many of our society women as its sponsors, is now being sold in tablet form to meet the demand of the public for this style of treatment. These little food. They stop the stomach and digestive apparatus from producing fat and reduce the fat upon the body at the rate of about 12 to 15 ounces a day. They are harmless and can be carried in your purse and taken even after you have indulged in a hearty meal away from home. They are sold at all drug stores at 75 cents a case, or if you prefer you may write the Marmola Company. Farines Bidg., Detroit, Mich.

Perhaps, after all, there is a cure, and still one person in the world to live for, one who will love you in spite of the catarrh, your mother.

Gauss Catarrh Treatment is the sim-plest and surest in the world. It cures catarrh on a common-sense plan, and Gauss proves it. Cut out the coupon below and mail it today and get a free treatment of the Gauss treatment and prove to your own satisfaction that it will cure you. Whether you have will cure you. Whether you have catarrh slightly or seriously it may be the means of brightening your life, now overshadowed by catarrh. Sent coupon to C. E. Gauss, 4491 Main street, Marshall, Mich.

Eminent Doctor Says Blindness Due to Catarrh

(Associated Press Report.)

London, Aug. 6.—Dr. H. Manning Fish of Joliet. Ill., declared at the medical congress that most of the blindness in the world is the result of catarrh in the apper nasal cavities or the bony cells composing the roof of the nostrils. Dr. Fish described his experience in 36 cases, covering a period of several years, claiming that in each of these immediate improvement of the vision followed the effective treatment of the diseased nasal cavities, and advised that in cases of loss of vision following grip, mossles scarlet fever and kindred ailments, relief be sought through treatment of the noses of the patients.

Catarrh is caused by a germ which must be destroyed before the catarrh itself can be cured. If not cured, blind-ness may result. An extended history of the many etxraordinary cures effect-ed by the Gauss treatment will probably have succumbed to resulting consumptio and partial idlocy. Women of strong vi tality have become nervous wrecks an victims of bronchitis. Your good health is not always a preventive against the catarrh germs.

The more you feel sure there is ease more serious, the more danger there is, simply because you will neglect your-self. This happens in hundreds of cases and we see it recorded almost daily in the letters we receive. "If I had only started the cure earlier" is a very fre-quent expression, showing that our warn-

Some of the frequent results of atarrh are bronchitis, pneumonia, death, catarrh are bronchitis, pneumonia, death, and decay of the bones, loss of thinking and reasoning power, death of ambition and energy, loss of appetite, indigestion, dyspepsia, ulceration, bad breath, raw throat, raw sores in the nose, general debility, and sometimes idiocy and insanity.

This is why in the death list you do not find a mention of fatal catarrh; the death is caused not directly by the catarrh itself, but by a disease which was caused by catarrh. Medical books and encyclopedias will tell you even more serious news than we tell you here probably after reading them you will have a full realisation of what it is to have catarrh—a common disease, it is for years, if not death.

Cure is Certain.

You can cure that catarrh, slight or serious, once and forever by means of the only common sense sure cure for catarrh, Gauss' Combined Treatment. We don't ask you to believe it before proving it yourself. Therefore we send you a treatment at our own expense, absolutely free to you. When you get it, you can prove it to your own satisfaction. It is without cuestion the greatest catarrh cure on earth. Cut out the coupon and send for the free treatment today to C. E. Gauss, 4491 Main street, Marshall, Mich. When you see your catarrh begins to leave you, you will appreciate what it is to have real, genuine cure for catarrh that can be relied upon. Send the coupon.

HOW TO JUDGE A MAN'S HONESTY

Men, as a rule, are first discovered by their enemies. Their antagonists turn on the searchlight, and the proof of merit will depend on being able to stand the gleam. There are always men who aim to tear down every good thing, and there have been men who set about to ridicule the Gauss' Catarrh Treatment, and figuratively tear it into shreds. They turned on the gleam and dissected it. They expected to find mere dross, and found gold. So Gauss has been discovered by his enemies.

But regardless of all this, if a man will "show the goods" he has, willingly and openly, and let his patients prove first to themselves by their own senses the value of what he offers them, instead of expecting them to take his word for it—there must be something of value to his "goods," and it must show his intentions to be honest.

Bivery catarrh victim should make a test of the great Gauss' Catarrh Treatment. It is free. All you have to do is to spend a minute or two outting out the coupon below, filling in with your name and address, and send it on to C. E. Gauss, 4491 Main street, Marshall, Mich. You will get back a package of the Gauss Catarrh Treatment in plain wrapper and under seal, with full information and instructions. Agreement Between England and Egypt.

ROME. Jan. 25.—The Corriere d'Italia publishes a remarkable story, said to have been obtained from both Turkish and British sources, which, in a way, confirms the London despatch printed a few months ago, to the effect that the British Government was tak-that the British Government was taking steps to have British rule in Egypt made de jure as it had for many years been de facto.

The Italian paper in question asserts that as the result of long interviews which Lord Kitchener has recently had with the ministers of the khedive, a scheme has boon formulated, according to which, as soon as peace is concluded in the Balkans, the sultan of Turkey will issue an irade, similar to that which he issued in the case- of Libya, after the Italo-Turkish war, according full autonomy to Egypt, the payment of annual tribute to him being redeemed by purchase. ng redeemed by purchase.
The Corriere continues: "England,

The Results Will Be Astounding to All
Who Are Thin.

The Cerriere continues: "England, who has never proclaimed her sover-eighty in Egypt, while accepting the irade, will make a communication to the powers reaffirming her military and economic occupation. In order to take away from the occupation any appearance of hostility, England will consent to the enlargement and transconsent to the enlargement and transformation of the present legislative council into a law-making assembly, and will negotiate immediately with the powers in regard to the capitulations and mixed tribunals.

"Thus, by having known how to wait, England will have conquered Egypt with Egyptian money. Especially by liberating the country from Turkish rassalage, England hopes to gain the sympathies of the native classes, which still remain hostile."

Never has anything produced such wonderful results as the new flesh builder, Protone. Thin, anaemic, palefaced, thin-lipped, tired ,aching, bony men and women take on a most remarkable new lease of life.

The hollow places fill out, the nerves are sheathed with healthy covering, the muscles plump up with natural flesh, the eyes lose that hungry pleading expression, and you feel better and stronger in every part of the body. The secret is in the fact that Protone corrects the failts of assimilation. Your food is converted into the kind of blood that makes solid flesh, Your entire system becomes greedy for

TIDE OF RETAIL TRADE FLOWS UP YONGE FINE BUILDINGS CHANGE LOOK OF STREET

Many New Five and Six-Storev Lofts For Stores and Offices Have Gone Up Lately - Ryrie's Big Structure Will Be Influential Factor-Many Significant Changes.

While Toronto is talking of new prosstown centres and of northward trade movements, the gradual outspreading of the big retail "district is simest overlooked. Today we have the King street merchants moving westward, forced by the advance of the financial district \ We find the sverage store in the three blocks above King on Yonge street gradualby getting smaller, with business more concentrated than ever. The busiest point in the shopping disstrict, Queen and Yonge, is daily taking on new trength and added intensity. Most marked move of all, is the up Yonge move; the movement that must be the inspiration of any great revul-the inspiration of any great revulson of retail position.

Two years ago Albert street was the north boundary of business.
Today it is difficult, almost impossible, to say what is the north limit. The big shops, with their varied and valued stocks, their heavy advettising fallis, went up as far as Shuter, then top to Wilton, and still blocks further morth. The new stores close the corners first, and then they started to fill up the inside lots with their handsome structures and their brilliant display windows. Their heavy advertising brought new custom, in addition to the regular traffic that has greatly increased in resent months. This new movement,

BUILDING PROGRAM

Announcement of Big Skyscrapers to Be Started Soon is Decided Stimulus to Downtown Trading.

For a long while The World has been predicting great new office buildings and hotels for Toronto. Some of the announcements may have been a little premature, but they are fully justified by incidents of the past month. Few people were able to realize that our downtown structures were not large enough to cope with the needs of the city. The few who could see that we were struggling along, handicapped by insufficient facilities for handling our growing financial and commercial business, and by small accommodation for visitors, went ahead on their plans, looked up good sites, with the result that this year is going to be a building year of marvellous dimensions.

The King Edward is going to run up to fourteen storeys; E. G. McConkey will put up a seventeen-storeyed house, both starting this spring. There are at least three other capable hotel projects in the air. One of them may come down any day now and alight on a spectacular site. The others, the Royal Bank Building, twenty storeys, and the Dominion Bank, almost as high, the only half the floors will be commenced this summer. Three other banks will begin new houses in 1913, may be four others.

It may seem strange, but last year—and our building total exceeded by a big margin other years—Toronto spent only $629,220 on offices. Actually, but new banks and theatres last vear.

What an opportunity for this year to exceed last, when not a downtown permit of consequence was applied for.
The announcements made so far of new buildings has greatly stimulated the market. Naturally, when the big men are putting their money into costly improvements and property, the smaller investor does not hang back. Real estate agents report, all along the line, that business was never so good at this time of year. House sales, usu-

A most marked feature of the market is the heavy sales of building land.

The speculator does not seem to be doing very much, most of the purchases being made by builders and people preparing to erect homes for their own use in the spring. The warm weather that prevailed during the week seemed to generate the belief that spring would open early this year, and buyers acted accordingly.

BIG UNION STATION AT EDMONTON, ALTA

A big union station, built on a similar scale to the joint Canadian North-ern and Grand Trunk Pacific station at Winnipeg, the second largest in the Dominion, is to be erected by these two railways at Edmonton, Alta. Official information to this effect was given The World by the executive of given The World by the executive of the Canadian Northern. In addition to the above, The World learned officially that the Canadian Pacific Railway is also to erect a big station at Edmon-ton. Construction on the C. P. R. Ed-monton station is to commence this spring. This is to be erected on Ninth street, and will also have an entrance on Jasper avenue. The joint C. N. R. on Jasper avenue. The joint C. N. R. and G. T. P. R. station is to be erected on First street, adjoining the site of the present station.

It has not yet been decided whether the joint G. T. P. and Canadian North-ern station will be built for trains to come in on the level or whether it will provide for a viaduct across the city. The latter is the most probable. If the latter is not done it will be necessary to depress the streets crossing the tracks, as the City of Edmonton has given the railways to understand that they will not permit level crossings. As soon as an agreement on this question is arrived at the plans for the new union station are to be pre-pared. The drilling for this structure is to be commenced so as to allow for completion of the building simultaneously with the completion of the Canadian Northern Transcontinental.

A prominent official of the Canadian Northern, who is taking an active part in the negotiations between the two railways, in connection with the station project, stated to The World yesterday that the present station used by these two roads at Edmonton was not now adequate to meet the demands placed upon it, and that the building of the new joint station would be the result.

The Canadian Pacific Railway, whose line will reach Edmonton in a few months' time, are to obtain an entrance to the new station by elevated tracks. The station building itself is to be of concrete with stone facings. The marques at the main entrance will be of cast and wrought iron, with a grass roof, and supported on columns which will stand out to the edge of the sidewalk. When completed this station, will rival in appearance any now on the C. P. R. system.

A Bolt From the Blue-The revolt of the Young Turks, and the overthrow of the ministry, which had practically voiced acceptance of the peace terms of the allies, came I ke a bolt from the blue. On Wednesda and Thursday financial interests could see the most aggravating problem which had confronted the chancellories of Europe in many years, and which had given the stock exchange many a bad half hour, fast drawing peaceable settlement. The news broadcast on Friday morning that new hands were at the plow, and that all the bickering of the ambassa dors might be for naught, d srupted sentiment to a considerable extent and for a time threatened to throw stock market of Europe into a veritable panic.
Our Market Held Well.

Considering the extent of the shake-out in the European bourses and in Wall street, it must be said that the Canadian markets held their own very well. In the Toronto exchange the only issue to show any very material weakness was Brazilian, and the fact that these shares dropped only two points, after having made an appreciation of nearly six in a little over a week, plainly evidenced that holders were not to be scared out of the stock in a wholesale manner. Considering and the downturn, when it came, did not amount to very much more than only a bear can see. The money situation shows signs of easing, and, as soon as the Balkan disturbance is amicably adjusted, there will be plenty of funde to meet all ordinary requirements. There are many big loans overhanging the London market, and the demands on capital may be so great that they will occasion some apprehension, but this is not likely to bother us much on this side the Atlantic. Mention must also be made of the unrest across the border over the change of government and the prospects for drastic tariff reductions. These adverse factors will be offset by the ending of the trouble in Turkey and all that it involves, however for the war in the Balkans has been a powder magazine, which threatened to blow up the house of cards, which has preserved the peace of Europe for decades. The passing of the crisis in the storm centre will therefore, prove a stock market factor of much importance, and the sign-ing of peace, if it can be brought about, will be followed by a revived specu-lative movement, which should usher a period of higher prices for all

A QUESTION OF BRAINS.

A lawyer and a broker of the Wall street district were dining together when an argument arose over their respective callings. The lawyer held that in his profession of law luck was largely eliminated and that a lawyer of prominence would have to have the brains to justify his position. "Now in the case of you brokers" he remarked "it's largely a matter of good fortune or good connections. Look at Smith for example, he does more business on the exchange than any other three men and ten to twenty times as much as the average commission broker. He smiled, and then moved the adoption of section one of the bill relating to the importation of lime juice and cocoa. LET LIBERALS DO TALKING.

Somewhat nettled, the opposition leaders looked at one another, and then Dr. Clark, of Red Deer, threw hims if into the breach. Dr. Clark is an English free trader, well read in political economy, and keenly appreciative of Mr. Foster's ability. Ho deftly shifted his ground so as to engage the attention of the Finance Minister, and by the time he concluded his defence of the Taft-Laurier reciprocity agreement, Mr. White was ready to reply. Indeed, Mr. White rose to make what promised to be an excellent speech. But an excellent speech, or any other kind of speech, was not what Mr. Foster wanted. The erafty Ulysses of the government, by a wink or a nod, made his more impetuous colleague understand that he was playing into the hands of the opposition. Mr. White accordingly brought his speech to a sudden conclusion, and the government forces realized that Mr. Foster's plan was to make the Liberals do all the talking.

From this time on it was up-hill work for the Opposition: Mr. E. M. Macdonald, shortly before the house recessed for dinner, tried his best to draw Mr. Foster out on the subthe Minister of Trade and Commerce.
Mr. Macdonald may be excused for the delusion which he entertained at the moment, that Mr. Foster would rise to the bait so temptingly held our to him. Others thought so at the time, for the minister gravely suggested that the subject was so imanswer the questions propounded to him until he had time to "cogitate" over them during the dinner hour. Indeed, there was quite a crowd in the house at 8 o'clock, the report having gone around that Mr. Foster would be en hand with an epochmaking speech.

The Magic Figures NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—With the denominator .983383 as a basis fortunes were made on the street last year. When the Standard Oil Co. announced these figures as the basis of deciding the fractions pro rata for holdings of old Standard Oil shares, there was a loud wall from everybody who owned small amounts of the shares and from those who decided they would make the subsidiaries theiraspecialty. A few brokers got down to business, became mathematicians and found great possibilities in trading on the magic .983383 It was soon discovered that computing machines were necessary to trade accurately and the companies selling these valuable machines are biessing the stars that the Standard Oil Co. was dissolved. Those brokers who decided to conquer the fraction and its meaning have reaped a goodly reward and the end of the first year found at least a couple of dozen brokers and firms who have made comfortable fortunes.

ANOTHER SELECTION

After a careful examination of the Great Northern Mining Company's affairs, we have come to the conclusion that the shares of the company have good speculative prospects. The industrial holdings of the company are sufficient to keep it in funds, and among its several mining claims we hear that one of the Cobalt properties is quite likely to make good. The market closed on Saturday with 9% bid for the shares and none on immediate offer. At present prices we regard the shares as the best speculation in the low-priced Cobalts, and this is the stock we promised to make public. Our opinion of PETERSON LAKE has not changed.

Game Ended in Tie and No Score Resulted in First Overtime Period-Teams Wen t at Full Steam the Whole Way-The Details.

ARENA GARDENS, Jan. 25 .- (Staff Correspondence.)-Varsity and McGill

The Intercollegiate rules are practically the same as the professional, the teams being allowed to change players, and the off-side rule is the same. McGill won the championship last year by playing an absolutely unknown style hereabouts, and they used it to good advantage against the fuser's Park boys. The main feature is a three-man defence, leaving the furgard lime to make individual rushes. McGill's players were very fast on their skates. The game practically developed into a game of combination against an individual rushing game with a strong defence. The line-up: Varsity—Goal, Laird; point, Hanley; over, German; rover, Clarkson; centre, Frith; right, Knight; left, Aird.

The most significant change in the Gient line-up for the coming season made by Manager McGraw thus far is the put ting of Arthur Shafer in the place of Fletcher at short. The baseball experts who have been watching Shafer say that he will prove to be one of the season's stars. The picture on the left shows the budding star just after he had swung at the ball. The Windsors and Simcoes are now tie for first place in the Athenaeum A League, with the College only two games down, and it looks like a close finish between those three for the second series, as the other three are practically out of the running, altho Eatons have still a chance to be dangerous. Last week the Windsors, even in the absence of Captain George Perry, rolled up the big total of 2888, and took three games from the Aberdeens easily, while the Simcoes, after starting off with the big count of 1011, and coming back with another close to the 1000 mark, fell down and dropped the third, with a 829 game, to Estons.

Some grand individual rolling was put in during the week in the A League, the best of which was Percy Canfield's 724 count and Jack Wallace's 668 and 640 The Harrisburg, Pa., Motorcycle

The College B by winning another six straight games this week in the B League look like repeating in the second series, as Yolles and Eatons are about the only teams within striking distance and the former are three behind, while the latter are four down. The leaders have been a hard team to beat all season, for they have pulled out many games by two or three of their members striking out in the last frame, when they seemed sure to be beaten.

The Crescents and Sellers-Gough and Riverdales are all tie in the C League with the next five all close up. The Crescents have been strengthening up lately while the other teams are depending on the same line-up that has carried them along all season, as there is only two series in the C League, every team is making a great effort to beat out the Sellers-Gough, who won the first series and a lively time is expected before they finish the series.

Manager Ed. Therefore, with two more series yet to be decided in this hard fighting little five-pin affair before, the final roll-off, if such is necessary at the end of the season every team other than the present winner is afforded the opportunity of commencing all ever again, and dt's a good bet this opportunity will be well taken care of by the remaining five teams who made it a fight all the way, as the final standing will show.

In the Utilities League, Toronto Type still retain the lead by winning all three games during the week, with two of the runners up, Wales Adding Machine and City Engineer also holding their own by making clean-ups with their respective opponents. Therefore, the above pair, with T. Eaton Company, The World and Acton Publishing Company are still very much in the running, and from now until the finish of the first series the race should be of the neck-and-neck order between the above-mentioned teams.

Hughey Jennings' "Pep" First Made Him Attractive to Tiger President

Manager Hugh Jennings, of the Tigers, often called the best paid manager in the baseball world, and without doubt one of the best in ability and salary, was plucking grass and "we-ahing" and kicking for the Baltimore club down in Newark, N. J. when President Frank Navin, of the Tigers saw him in 1906 and hered him the salary was placed in the salary was placed for the after warrants had been issued for the arrest of Jack Redmond and Joe Well-rights saw him in 1906 and hered him. kicked his way to three pennants in succession.

Jennings went from Brooklyn to Philadelphia in 1991, and played first base for the Phillies. In 1993 he went to Baltimore, and was there for four years when Navin found him.

Navin says that he had been tipped off to Hughie, and made a trip himelf to Newark with the sole mission of watching the man whom he had heard of. He watched his stunts, so well known all over the baseball world, noted the abundant supply of pepper he exhibited, and concluded right then and there that he was the man the T gers needed.

The Tigers had been lacking in spirit and vim up to the time Jennings took hold of them. The three pennants in a row tell the story of riughie's immedia e success. His signing of a new long term contract last fall tells the story of how he is thought of by President Navin now.

Last year was Hughie's worst in Detroit. Three first and two seconds have been his records up to 1912.

Jennings was just as unique as now, Mr. Navin says, when he was in the minors; but the shots fired there are not heard around the world, as are those fired in the major leagues. There is little doubt that every one interested in baseball has heard of Jennings and his strange antics now.

that some plan be incorporated in the bill that would provide for decisions. I informed him that the "no-decision" contest was unsatisfactory to boxers and patrons alike, as a thore test of it in New York State has demonstrated. The plan to appoint the inspectors is Mr. Keevin's, and in view of the fact that it was pointed out that the bill would likely be defeated, if it called for ringside decisions, I approved the scheme, when my opinion was asked in the matter.

Mistake in New York.

My stand on the decision question is too well known to call for further comment here. I have commissioners made a mistake in ruling that decisions should not be given, and be-lieve that the matter.

weight champion, easily outpointed and decidedly outclassed both Johnny Dundse and Eddie O'Keefe in this city last fall, he failed to earn the good opinion of local critics. Those young men were practically unanimous in denouncing him as an imitation of what a title holder should be. Apparently, taking their cue from the "experts," Gotham promoters have side-stepped Kilbane ever since.

If the truth were known, however, it would be found that the real reason of his long absence from New York is not due to a lack of appreciation of Johnny's fighting skill, but to a reluctance of the promoters to "come thru" with the amount of money the champion demands and considers in keeping with his dignity as, and the drawing powers of, a feather-weight title holder.

Attendance Falling Off.

Local fight handlers complain of noor paironage, but fail to realize that the falling off in attendance is due to their own failing to provide attractive matches. All winter long here has been a dearth of good bouts. Many of the cards offered for the entraliment of New York fans would shame a "tank-town" promoter.

But, to get back to Kilbane. Although the Gotham clubs can't see him as an attractive card, the promoters across the bridge think differently. When the fact became known that Johnny would consider a proposition to box in New York, the living Atherial guarantee, which the champon has accented by the new young powers, as they have offered a substantial guarantee, which the champon has accented by the new young powers, as they have offered a substantial guarantee, which the champon has accented by the new young have faith in his drawing powers, as they have offered a substantial guarantee, which the champon has accented by the new young have faith in his drawing powers, as they have offered a substantial guarantee, which the champon has accented by the new young have faith in his drawing powers, as they have offered a substantial guarantee, which the champon have first the faith of the faith of the faith of the faith of the fait ing powers, as they have offered a substantial guarantee, which the cham o'on has accepted, by the way, to bo Young Driscoll, a promising local feather-weight, next Tuesday night With all due respect for the opinion of the "wise" Manhattan promoters, I would like to go on record right here that Kilbane breaks the Irving Club's records for receipts.

ers made a mistake in ruling that decisions should not be given, and believe that the members of the board will come to the same conclusion before very long. However, should the bill now pending in the Massachusetts legislature become a law, it will be interesting to watch how Keevin's plan will work out.

Altho Johnny Kilbane, the featherweight champion, easily outpointed and decidedly outclassed both Johnny Dundee and Eddie O'Keefe in this city last fall, he failed to earn the coming McFarland-Britton match, but Nolan refused to sign the papers. It is said by those who know Willie intimately that he does not fear the outcome of a meeting with either of those clever boys, but is bound in black and white to be guided by the shrewd Nolan in making matches for the future. Of course, that is a mighty poor excuse for a champion to offer, but it will have to suffice. If Ritchie retains the title until Nolan make a bad match for him, he will be champion for many a year.

This means that "Jack" Lelivelt will get a regular berth in the outfield, and discloses the fact that the new manager intends to develop the batting of the cleb for a starter. He has decided that the offensive organization of the team is more important now than the defense, which can be developed gradually and make the strength uniform, the leading essential of a championship combination.

We Can't Do Better for $15 No Other Tailor Can do as Well

The Scotland Woolen Mills is the best systematized retail tailoring establishment in America. It is run on a system that produces a great many suits of clothes in a year, giving each customer individual attention.

The price of a suit of clothes, or overcoat, at the Scotland Woolen Mills is Fifteen Dollars. That is the price and we never vary it. We give the very best value we can afford for fifteen dollars. We can do no better for fifteen dollars and no other tailor can do as well for the same money.

The Scotland Woolen Mills is a very great success. In Toronto the number of imitators who have come along with the "square deal" idea on men's clothing is good enough evidence that the Scotland Woolen Mills is popular. But there are some features about the Scotland Woolen Mills that no other tailors can get. They cannot get any of the woolens made at our own mills in Scotland-and they cannot duplicate our system of measuring and making clothes for men. They can sell a ten dollar suit for eleven seventy-five, but they cannot give Scotland Woolen Mills value for $15.

When you go out to buy a suit of clothes do not go direct to your usual tailor, no matter who he is. If you can save ten dollars in the price of the suit—and it will only take you an hour or so to find where the bargain may be had—then it is time well spent. The Scotland Woolen Mills is the freest place in all Toronto to visit and get an idea of values. Any quantity of cloth—enough to stock a wholesale house -is displayed around you and it is all the same price for a suit or overcoat.

. The best judges of cloth values are our most enthusiastic customers.

YOUR CHOICE OF ANY IMPORTED MATERIAL FOR SUIT OR OVERCOAT

WARNING TO THE PUBLIC: There is only one retail Scotland Woolen Mills store in Toronto. Do not be confused by misleading references. We are the only retail tailors controlling and operating their own mills in Scotl and and we are strictly a one price house-$15, no more, no less. Bearing these points in mind will prevent any of our patrons from being misled.

How Advertising Reduces the Cost of Production

Some persons, when they see our advertising, ask us: "Does advertising pay? Isn't it very expensive to advertise?" The Scotland Woolen Mills Company believe in advertising and find it pays. I will tell you how and why advertising pays in any stance. Soemthing you want to do, buy,, or sell, and you are not just sure how you will come out in the end if you go into the deal, or do what you intend. Not being quite sure, you would ask somebody's advice. Now, that is one of the things a merchant does in advertising. He asks the advice of the public about his goods and his methods of busithe paper and the people come up to his store and look his bargains over. He gets the advice of every customer who comes into his store; not in words, but in the fact whether they make a purchase or go away without buying. If the people that the ad-vertising brings in don't buy, the public advice to the merchant is: "You're in wrong." If they do buy, then their advice is: "You have a good thing. We like it. Stay with the game." The word that the public gives a merchant in response to his advertising is gospel true ever time as far as his proposition is concerned. Then advertising will establish a new business in a few months just as solidly as if it had been going for years and had become known to people generally through the slow process of one person teling another about it. Life is too short to get a business started by waiting for peo-ple to tell each other about your bar-gains. If, by advertising for one year, I can bring as much trade to store as the man who does not advertise controls after being twenty years in business, then I may figure my one year's advertising as an offset to his nineteen years' rent. Now do you see where advertising pays? Also, advertising keeps your employes busy and happy. It brings along the trade and your salespeople have to hustle to attend to customers. Your space in the daily newspaper is an engine like a concrete mixer. You will see one of these mixers on the roadside, pounding away and turning out the material that goes into the road bed. The men have to be right there with their barrows to catch the mixture as it comes from the hopper. If they stop, it chokes up, and there is a muss. Everybody has to hustle or the machine will swamp them. Advertising is the same kind of an engine. It makes a big, exciting noise and keeps eevrybody busy looking after what it produces. Some people think that the mer-chant who advertises has to charge more for his goods than the man who does not advertise. They look on advertising as so much extra over-head expense. But in business your real overhead is for idle hands and idle money. What it costs to advertise Scotland Woolen Mills clothes is really only a few cents on every suit or overcoat sold. We regard advertising not as an overhead expense, but as against overhead. Advertising relieves us having to carry a heavy overhead expense, and it thus reduces the cost of production.

From Producer to Consumer-Parcel Post and the Middleman

FTER an agitation lasting, it is said, over forty years, the United States on January 1 inaugurated a system of parcel post.

Under the system just started it is now possible to mail a parcel weighing as much as II pounds, whereas under the old conditions a parcel exceeding 4 pounds had to be sent thru one of the express companies whose rates were undoubtedly excessive compared with those at present in force and it is therefore easy to understand why there was such strong opposition on the part of these express companies against this reform, for reform it undoubtedly is.

Considerable difficulty was experienced in framing the rates, etc., for the new postal law, owing to the vast extent of the country, as it was argued as being unjust that people sending parcels short distances should have to pay part of the cost of sending to a greater distance, as would have been the case had a uniform rate, irrespective of distance, been arranged. To overcome this difficulty the country has been divided into eight "zones" the rate varying from 5c for the first pound in zone I to 12c in zone 8 and ic to 12c for each additional pound.

The packages must not be greater than 72 inches in length and girth combined. Books, magazines, and other printed matter are not permissible, but the old rates for these were already comparatively low.

The following is a list showing a comparison between the old express companies' rates and the new postal rates on a parcel sent from New York, where the express companies' rates were considered to be the lowest in the country:-

	fed the appropriate	1-1b.	5-1b.	11-lb
Zone 1 50 miles	Express rate	.25	.30	.35
Zone 2 150 miles	(Express rate	.06	.40	.45
Zone 3	(Express rate		.45	.60
Zone 4 . 600 miles	(Express rate		.55	.75
Zone 5	Express rate		.70	1.00
tone 6 1800 miles	(Express rate		.80	1.60
Zone 7 2500 miles	Express rate		.80	1.60
Zone 8 3300 miles	Express rate	.80	.80	1.60

It will therefore be seen from the above that in most cases a considerable saving will be ef-

The parcel post has been in force for a considerable number of years in many other countries, and in Europe, Spain is the only nation without this service. In such cases as Germany, Belgium, etc., where the countries control their lown railway system, it is found the rates are much cheaper than in other countries. For instance the Russian postal authorities will carry a parcel weighing 12 lbs. from St. Petersburg. across Siberia to the furthest corner of the island of Saghalien, or a distance of 4,500 miles at & cost to the sender of less than a dollar. Turkey will accept parcels weighing as much as 80 lbs. for transmission. Germany will take as heavy as 100 pounds. Even China and Japan have the parcel post. In Austria it is possible to send almost anything, even furniture, by parcel post.

In England the system is carried on to a very large extent and it is possible to send a parcel from London to any part of the United Kingdom at the same rate. The British postmaster-general has, however, recently augmented their system so that it is now possible to send a parcel "Cash on Delivery." This extension has proved a great factor to the business people and saves considerable delay in cases where people are desirous of doing business together, but are yet unknown to one another.

The system has also had a marked effect on the cost of living. Under the conditions prevailing in this country the housekeeper has to purchase her requirements from the stores, which buy from the wholesale houses, and they in their turn have to get their supplies from the producer, and each of these require a certain profit for their part of the transaction and in some cases a broker's profit also has to be added. Under the new United States system it is now possible to buy direct from the producer, thus saving considerably. Take as an example butter. The wholesale dealer pays the producer 25c per 1b. He will require say 15 per cent. profit so that the storekeeper will have to pay 29c. He on his part will require a profit so that the very lowest he could sell the butter to the actual consumer would be 35c a pound. Under the parcel post system, owing to the fact that the shipper can now send small quantities, the consumer could purchase say 5 lbs. of butter for $1.25, plus postage, 17c, bringing the price down to under 29c a pound, or even buying only the single pound it would only cost 30c, against the 35c which has to be paid thru the stores.

This system of shopping is now practiced to a very great extent in England and it is no uncommon thing for people to purchase nearly all their supplies direct from the actual producers. In almost every newspaper advertisements are inserted offering to send eggs, butter, fish, cigars, wines, etc., by post. During the recent Christmas holiday rush a treacle tart escaped from its cardboard box while in transit thru the post at the Mount Pleasant General Postoffice and did a good deal of damage. In consequence all sorts of pretty sowenirs became glued together and had to be rescued by the officials. Among other articles which went by post were turkeys, Christmas puddings, a jam roll and a large number of other perishable

The Electoral Process

UST the point at which the governor of New Jersey becomes president-elect of United States it not easy to determine. It is a progressive process. Certain it is that between the choice of the electors by the people in November and the voting of the electors, which occurred in 48 states recently, he was not entitled to be so considered. He might never have been chosen, had any event intervened to remove him from being the accepted object of their votes. Even now it is to be determined by a congressional inquiry how the electors voted.

Section 4 of the electoral act of 1887 provides that the senate and house shall meet on the second Wednesday of February, that the president of the senate shall preside, that two tellers chosen by each house shall open the certificates and that if a dispute appears the two houses shall act concurrently to decide which set of papers shall be accepted. If they disagree each bouse takes up the question separately and decides which are the "lawful votes of the legally appointed college." Their disagreement has within it the possibility of disfranchising a state, the defeat of the spopular will and the prevention of a president's inauguration. Senator Sherman once pointed out the possibility of a complete negation of the popular and the electoral choice by this process. The human equation appears in the most carefully contrived process of determining the choice for president, but happily there is dependence upon the faithfulness of the members of the two houses. The contest of 1877 between Mr. Hayes and Mr. Tilden, when the electoral machinery was put to its severest strain, proved the readiness of the people to yield to a decision reached under difficulty. With more than its usual emphasis there is demand for a change in the election system by which the shoice of the people shall be more

CHANGED tone is apparent in the general attitude of the press and of public men as to the exemption of the American vessels engaged in coastwise trade from toll in the Panama Canal. The possibility of an issue with Great Britain, which President Taft has recognized so far as to discuss the desirability of arbitration upon it, is not welcome and there is a tendency to avoid it by making no distinction in the tolls. Defense of the discrimination is made on the ground that it does not involve a breach of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, inasmuch as it is not a discrimination against Great Britain, being applied to trade into which she does not enter as a competitor, but there is fuller re-

Woodrow Wilson's Policies

EASURE of Woodrow Wilson's policies and intentions is furnished in a degree by his speech at Chicago; his comment on the way his speech was received, hone too cordial, and his message to the New Jersey legislature. To an audience of men of big business at the Chicago Commercial Club dinner he declared that "We must see to it that business is set free of every feature of monopoly," and added that as matters stand, "perfectly honest, upright men whom anybody could pick out are at a dis-

Panama Canal Tolls

cognition that it is in effect a subsidy and runs against the sentiment adverse to that form of bounty. More widely there is an unmistakable assertion of the view that there is an element of national dishonor in the strain upon the treaty which explicitly forbids fayor to the home commerce in the use of the canal. President Tait has not shown a disposition to press his view of the policy of favor to American shipping and the opposition of his own secretary of war and of leaders in the senate of his own party is assumed to indicate that the easy way of escape from complication will be taken in the removal of the exemption from tolls of any class of shipping.

advantage because business conditions are not trusted by the people as a whole."

General comment on the speech shows that it is taken as a strong declaration of his progressive ideas and this is supported by the intimation that has come that he would select his advisers entirely from the progressive element in the party. Cabinet speculation has broadened in consequence to include the possibility of the appointment of Governor Hadley of Missouri to a seat in it, despite the fact that he was a supporter of President Taft, after the Chicago convention, where he was a Roosevelt leader.

Mr. Wilson's address to the New Jersey lawmakers was closely observed as somewhat prophetic and his vigorous declaration that supervision of corporations must be rigid is applied to his national policy. His manner at Chicago was described as austere and his comment on the unpleasant way his speech was received showed that he was not disturbed that he was taken as lecturing the men of large affairs on their obligation to give freer opportunity to the smaller men of business. On the authority of the chairman of the house committee on insular affairs in congress it is stated that he is favorable to early independence for the Philippines and will sign the bill that it is predicted will pass congress, granting it with a guaranty of neutrality and the reservation of a naval station,

Banking Reform

All who concern themselves, however slightly, with the progress of Canada on proper lines and desire to have the Dominion developed in the way that will best serve the mass of the people, should support the proposal made by Mr. W. F. Maclean, M. P. for South York, in the house of commons on Tuesday last, for the appointment of a strong commission to investigate and report upon the banking conditions of Canada. In the framing of the bank law hitherto too much has been yielded to the professional element which naturally places the interest of the banks above the interest of the public. No doubt bankers contend that in order to do a successful business they must serve the public, but precisely the same argument is presented by the railroad companies, the express companies and all other service companies. But it is evident enough that there are different ways of serving the public dependent on the point of view whence it is regarded. Most public service corporations charge all that the traffic will bear, and have no hesitation in piling up profits and distributing them by the devious methods devised by high financiers. So it may very well be that bankers, while meeting the monetary needs of the public, have taken the opportunity to charge more for the necessary credits that the state of the money market justified. Nor should it be forgotten, as Mr. Maclean emphatically showed, that out of the resources of the Canadian banks, totalling $1,462,000,000, only $114,000,000, representing the paid-up capital, was contributed by the banks themselves, with in addition such fraction of their reserves derived from bonuses on new stock issues. That is to say, more than ninety per cent. of the funds with which they trade, and for which they pay a trifling interest, comes from the public. And, when a member of that public has occasion to borrow money he is charged 6 or 8 per cent. for the accommodation.....

To hear some bankers talk one would imagine that banks are institutions provided by wealthy and charitably disposed benefactors, and that to utter a word of dispraise or adverse criticism is biting the hand that feeds. But the real truth is that banks exist for the public convenience and protection, and while none would oppose a fair and just return on the original capital invested, and liberal payment to the officials who conduct them, there is very good reason to require that the balance shall be held justly. The public, which is simply the state, is in point of fact the principal partner in the way of finding the money that sustains the business. Here in Canada the public provides more than 90 per cent. of the resources, and the banks take that money, paying for it on the average about 1 1-2 per cent. and lend it out to the Canadian people at not less than 6, and some times even 8 per cent., while they earn in some cases up to 18 per cent. on their original capital. Canada's Banking Act remains substantially as it was first passed more than forty years ago, and look ing to the vast expansion of the country, and the certainty that i will be still greater and more rapid in the immediate future, the time has arrived for an examination of the system in the light of twentieth century knowledge and experience. To stereotype the methods of forty years ago for another ten years would, in Mr. Maclean's words, be a wrong-a crime against the best interests of the country. In this view he was supported by the speakers who tollowed him in the debate, and the proposal is one which should be accepted by the gov

As summarized by Mr. Maclean, the defects of the existing lav

(1) The insufficient protection of depositors. (2) The facility with which banks are merged and amalga-

(3) The partial surrender by government to the banks of the function of emitting currency. The powers of the banks in this respect are increased in the new bill. (4) The insufficiency of circulation for business purposes; and this is, I take it, the paramount evil of our banking system.

(5) The sterilization of the postoffice savings bank system and the government savings bank system, both of which were created in the public interests by special acts, and whose usefulness is largely being destroyed by active or secret opposition of the chartered banks, and perhaps by silent neglect of the gov-

(6) The tendency of the present law to set apart the savings of the people in the banks for the purposes of business, rather than the use of any of it for building purposes, as is prevalent in the United States. In that country the savings of the people on deposit with the savings banks are devoted to investment in mortgages on real estate and building improvements.

That these objections are serious cannot be denied. They mean in effect, that the present law admits of too great concentration o money powers; that there is too little protection for public money and too little control of its employment; that the public interest i not sufficiently considered; that the government is not developing the state savings banks in accordance with the public need, and that the savings of the people ought to be used for all purposes of benefit to the people, and not for the benefit of particular kinds of business Surely the substantive principles on which these objections are found ed are right and reasonable in themselves, and for the advantage o the Dominion as a whole.

Canal Builders on Mars

In 1877 the Italian astronomer, Schiaparelli announced that h had detected on the surface of the planet Mars an intricate series of lines which he believed to be canals. Their existence was not universally admitted and it was strongly contended that they were of optical production. Public attention and interest were greatly aroused when Professor Percival Lowell, director of the Flagstaff Conservatory in Arizona issued a bulletin, No. 21, containing photos graphs of the ruddy planet which he claimed as corroborating the objective existence of the canals and further insisted that it was the abode of a race of reasonable beings. Since then there has been considerable controversy about the canals and in an effort to arrive at a final decision investigations were started on an elaborate scale at Flagstaff under the direction of astronomers and astro-physicists than moralizing over domestic infelicity. It who employed all the most recent methods of research.

An authorized report recently appeared in Science Progress of London, Eng., contributed by Dr. James H. Worthington, the well known astro-physicist. He declared, as summarized in the January number of Current Opinion, "that the explorers of the planet from the standpoint of Flagstaff find abundant reason to believe in the existence of a highly developed and intelligent race, making a last stand against the increasing deserts of its world. The famous canalsare evidence of tremendous and united efforts to eke out the decreasing water supply to the last drop. In this struggle we see in some sense a forecast of what the earth must also become in the fulness of time." This conclusion is supported in the article by a description of the observations and by much technical reasoning and even yet may not be accepted. But Dr. Worthington inserts that there remains no rational doubt of the existence of a race of canalbuilders on the planet Mars.

Labor and Public Health

In his Kingston speech, Mr. Rowell, leader of the Opposition in the legislature, promised that when the Liberals are returned to power, a labor and public health portfolio will be created. We do not know of a more important portfolio. must, however, be conceded that the present government has vastly improved the conditions in this regard. The appointment of a separate department to control health matters has been a subject for discussion ever since the advent of the present administration, but instead of a health minister we have had the control of that work in the hands of the provincial secretary, who has done much to provide improved facilities for the care of the unfortunate. The Provincial Board of Health has competent officials and legislation has been devised to carry out their suggestions. There is a labor department also in connection with the office of public works. Mr. Rowell's idea is to bring the two together and he believes that there is enough work to keep one responsible minister busy. The suggestion is certainly worthy of earnest consideration.

Woman and Her Sphere

It is no unusual thing in these days to read of married women and mothers who are success fully engaged in outside activities that divide their time without in the least preventing then from recognizing and fulfilling their domestic obligations. How this can be possible will appear simple enough when it is considered that no more attention need be given to some useful vocation than is frequently bestowed upon some useless pastime. If household duties are systematized, surplus hours wilf be found, and if these be employed the housewife will discover that she has at her disposal ample time for some congenial and profitable occupation. As a rule, the duties of the household do not now require more than a fraction of a woman's time. Assuming her to be progressive enough to make use of modern appliances for the saving of labor, she is far more free than were her mother and her grandmother to seek employment that will take her out of domestic environment long enough daily to make home life on its resumption a greater joy than it

Wives and mothers have taken to certain of the professions and to certain of the industrial callings without the slightest impairment of wifely or motherly interest and responsibility, but rather to the decided advantage of the family. Nothing is much easier or much more common usually indulged in by people who do not, or who cannot, take a comprehensive view of the modern social situation. A preponderating majority of homes are happy in the main. Marriage and married life are not failures. There are millions of good parents and millions of obedient children still in the world. But domestic contentment would be still more general and complete if the idle and useless hours that many women are compelled by foolish custom to pass might be put

The relief we should give in the spirit of true re-ligion we use as a bait for a Gospel their fellowmen. They cannot be so far away from the truth after all. That these people are not all ptofessing Christians is also the fault of the hook, often, too, for the unworthy Christians is also the fault of the purpose of swelling annual reports or church. If the church were doing that It is the common argument against Christianity that its followers do not practise its principles. The same contention might well be used against the church itself. The test of true religion work they would, in the large ma-jority of cases, be enlisted within its ranks and under its authority. But

Take, for instance, the City of To-ronto. In it there are nearly five hundred churches. Ten years ago social settlements were unknown within its service, whether public or private. To-day there are five real social centres the times that a few are awakening to the duty of the church as a social

But it is a striking testimony to the blindness of the others also that they do not see that the churches which are making the greatest head-way are those which are giving an intelligent consideration to the social problems by which they are sur-rounded, and who are striving to at-tract to their memberships the work-ers of their cities. There can be no question of the fact that the church which caters to the plutocracy is the dead church. And there can be no doubt, unless the church of today modifies its viewpoint of its social responsibilities, that the workers of the world will one day form a church of their own which will attract to it the strongest of the others.

Church Membership Not a Passport. Men are coming to recognize more and more each day that church mem-bership is not necessarily a passport into Heaven. And it is coming to be seen that men do have responsibilities to their fellows during the week. The day must come when it will no longer avail a church member to avail bimself of the excuse that he works girls in his factory only according to the law. If our laws are faulty then the true Christian must make laws according to his own conscience. Because, in certain sections of the Do-minion there is no maximum working law that is not any justification for the man who makes girls of tender years work late into the night in order that his orders may be filled. He owes a duty to the world to see to it that those in his employ shall so conserve their health that they shall be fit to become the mothers of the world. He is just as much responsible for this as he is that his own daugh-ters shall be fed and clothed and educated and preserved from immoral in-

If a man is paying his employed less than a living wage it will not justify him to plead that he could not afford more. If his business is such that he must underpay his help in order to make both ends meet it will be far better for him in the Judgment Day that he get out of it. Church membership has been the excuse for many things in the past. Because it has been so used it has kept many out of the church who might otherwise have come within its influence. Example is one of the things that God is going to take into account in the final reckoning. It will play an infinitely more important part in the question of our final disposition than either the things done or left, undone.

"My Dear Fellow, Let Common Sense be Your Physician"

"All this time you have been going the wrong way to get rid of your biliousness. I am not going to give you any medicines, I am going to let you cure yourself in a natural and simple way."

THIS is the advice now being given hundreds of tortured men and women by enlightened physicians everywhere for the cure of Constipation, Biliousness and Afflictions of the Intestines, and Blood. This prescription consists simply in the Internal Bath as applied by Dr. Charles A. Tyrrell's J. B. L. Cascade.

Doctors realize that drugs do not bring permanent cure for Constipation Drugs have to be taken in constantly increasing doses to be effective and gradually make people slaves to the drug habit. The terrible poisonous waste that collects in the lower intestines permeates the system, poisons the blood and brings on the more serious illnesses of Typhoid Fever, Appendicitis, etc. All this is removed with Dr. Tyrrell's treatment by the simple use of pure

You who wish to banish Constipation, the greatest cause of human ills—you who wish to rid yourself of unsightly complexions—you who wish to revitalize your germ-laden blood, in plain justice to yourself write to Dr. Charles A. Tyrrell about his remarkable treatment. He will be glad to send you free his book "Why Man of To-day is Only 50% Efficient." Know again the keen pleasure of perfect staiwart health. Boost yourself to 100% efficiency—

Write to Charles A. Tyrrell, M.D., Room 451-8 College St., Toronto, or get full information from any one of the Owl Drug Stores: .770 Queen East, 491 Parliament St., 282 College St., 1631 Dundas St., 990 Bathurst St., 1210 Bloor West, 732 Yonge St., or at Rotherford's Drug Store, corner of King and Yonge See.

Mr. T. Babin, proprietor of the Alexandra Hotel, Ottawa, writes: "I cannot find words explicit enough to praise your Cascade. It has made a new man of me. I feel as though I would not sell it for all the money in the world if I could not buy another. For people troubled with constipation I say it is a God-

Reverend M. M. Decarie, St. Henry of Mentreal, writes: "I am so well since using the Cascade that I may say you saved my life. I was doomed to die soon, as I was suffering so much with my liver and kidneys. Now every friend I meet tells me I am growing youngera I could name you fifteen persons that suffered from extremely grave sicknesses that chant your thanks and honors."

Horace T. Dodge, M.D., Professor of Materia Medica and Pharmacology Homocopathic College, Denver, Col., writes: "Your J. B. L. Cascade is excellent, magnificent! I can truthfully say that I have had the very best results in my experience with the Cascade. I treat a great many cases of wasting diseases, and I find 90% of them the result of impated faccal matter. Since I received the Cascade I have cheated the surgeons out of a good operation for appendicitis. You certainly have struck the keynote of many diseases."

Anthony Baker, Professor of Physical Culture, New York City, writes: "I find the J. B. L. Cascade of immense benefit. I look upon it as an absolute necessity to the attainment of perfect physical development. One of my pupils who had been troubled with constipation and gas for many years was quickly relieved by it, which enabled me to make a strong, healthy man of him in less than four weeks."

A Winnipeg Clergyman writes (name application): "For years my wife had been a great sufferer through constipation. A friend who had been helped by the J. B. I. Cascade recommended it to my wife. Today site is a stronger and healthier woman in every way because of its regular use. It has really given her a new lease of life."

As an example, the average daily estimated cost of operating a two-ton truck is $10.$0, taking into the reckoning every known item of expense such as gasolene and oil, interest on the investment, depreciation, garage, labor, and so on. By comparison, for a two-ton truck has the capacity to replace easily two, three or four teams, while larger trucks may replace more horses, larger trucks may replace more horses, so it is a simple matter to see what the saving may be by motor trucks.

A motor truck that supersedes three teams further effects a saving in labor expense. It also covers a wider area, thereby increasing the radius of delivery, and enables the business house to reach out and get business beyond the horse one. In short, it provides a flexible system of delivery

Winter Work

Consider further the limitations on horses in the winter; in the summer and in rush seasons, periods when gasolene motor trucks run along as usual, unaffected by the strain of long hours, the sizaling heat or the cold.

Horses slip down on ice coated streets and get stuck in the smow. Gasolene trucks perform as consistently in the face of these conditions as at other times. They do not lose in efficiency or tire at the end of the day.

On Sundays or holidays, when motor crucks may be idle, they are of almost no expense, but horses eat their heads off, consuming feed without giving a return in service.

All these are pertinent factors in the dollars and cents consideration of smoot rucks and horses. The evidence today is against the horse. The horse is too slow, too expensive, and virtually a drawback in the transportation department of the progressive business house.

Little swonder is it, therefore, that the leaders in the business world are adopting the motor truck as the successor to the horse. It has got to the point where department stores, coal dealers, movers and grocers, for example, are advertising motorized defining the motor trucks as one of the progressive business house.

By H. S. Houpt, "Alco." There are two things that guide a business house in the purchase of a motor truck. They may be called the cardinal principles in motor truck thuying. Briefly stated, these are: "Can we use motor trucks to advantage?" and "Which truck should we buy?"

In order to employ motor trucks to advantage the truck must be a means of saving money. One way of saving money over horses is by lower cost of operation and upkeep. As an example, the average daily estimated cost of operating a two-ton truck is $10.80, taking into the reckoning every known item of expense such as gasolene and oil, interest on the investment, depreciation, garage, labor, and

What Limit Is There to The Life of a Motor Truck?

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Visitors to the thirteenth National Automobile Show are amazed at the advance that has been made during the last season in pleasure car construction. This does not mean that many radical changes have been made in mechanical construction, but refers more particularly to the very complete equipment that is being offered. Editors of the various automobile trade journals refer to 1913 as "an equipment year" and the visitor at the show will find that fully ninety per cent. of the car. This year about 30 per cent. of the cars have left hand drive have adopted the centre control levers. Such an arrangement allows access to the front seats from either side of the car. Devices which make for greater safety and ease of operation as well as comfort of the passengers, are more in evidence than ever before and more than was dreamed of only four years ago. OPERATING AN AUTO ON SMALL INCOME

A man in the suburbs who has an income of $30 a week and pays $20 a month rent can afford a car. He will need to buy it carefully and with forethought as to its weight on the tires, an important consideration in running expenses, and he must handle it himself, drive, clean and make all small repairs, but he can own one without pinching, especially in other directions and without getting into debt. Of course he must have his own garagethat is, he must have a little building alongside his house for the machine. A portable structure costing $100 or so will do. There will have to be some close calculating, but it can be done, and the owner of the car will be able to have an infinite amount of pleasure without its costing him very much money.

What most people do not realize in carkeeping is this: The man of very moderate means who is the owner of a machine seldom has much time to use it. Hence the wear and tear is relatively small and the There's more soft soap used in the building of an automobile than there cost of fuel is little. The rich man's cars are in constant commission. They cover many miles each day for the owner electric motor is designed to be placed either on the transmission housing or at the front of the engine. The small electric motor, which weighs only twenty-four pounds and is rated at one-third horse-power, has a flywheel at one end and at the other a worm which meshes with a worm gear, driving the motor shaft or the transmission shaft.

Many drivers, remembering their experience with balky and backfiring engines, ask what happens to the starter mentioned above the back kick is taken care of by an ingentious arrangement. The worm gear is slipped in the shaft and held in position of a spider spring. The tension is sufficient to transmit the power, but in case of a violent backfire from the engine allows the shaft to rotate backward without doing any damage.

Another electric motor, which weighs only twenty-four pounds and is rated at a logical presentation of the selling points of his car does more to make a sale than all the "soft soap" ever put to oratorical use. To the average person it is news that both the evening for a short spin, but not by any means every remember soft soap as that home may go out now and again in the evening for a short spin, but not by any means every night. "The Merry Countess" At Alexandra Theatre

Companion of "The Passing Show f 1912" to Be Presented This Week.

Next Monday night at the Alexandra "The Merry Countess" will begin its revel of song and dance and halcidoscopic tunefulness. This is the Broad way show for which Cornellus Vanderbilt paid the Messrs. Shubert a fabulous sum to have presented at his gala country fete at Newport last summer. It is also the companion production to The Passing Show of 1912." which created such havoc with Torontonians' purses a few weeks ago. Surely such facts warrant the assumption that "The Merry Countess" is deserving of all the fame, prestige and popularity which has been heaped upon it since its triumphant invasion of New York from London, where it ran for one solid year at the Lyric Theatre. And besides the foregoing it is further guaranteed by the assurance that the entire New York company which included many of the London favorites—will present the piece at the Alexandra thruout the forthcoming week. The affectant cast includes, Miss Jose Collins, whose faultless rendition of the famous "Czardas" song made, her a star over night. Mr. Maurice Farkoa, the inimitable charteur discur, Mr. A. W. Baskcomb. the famous "comic warder." Mr. Forrest Huil, whose impersonation of the lovable Choociste purses a few weeks ago. Surely such warder." Mr. Forrest Huff, whose impersonation of the lovable Choosiste Soldier, made him a lasting favorite in Toronto: Miss Fritzie von Busing, whose fame in Toronto rests upon the same spiendid production: Mr. Martin Brown, the famous Delly Trins, and Lysa Graham, terpsichorean artists extraordinarie; Messix, Tom A. Shale, Claude Flemming and Miss Mabel Burnege of the original London cast, and Frank Farrington, Rex Fuehfer, Frank Ross, George Lyman and others besides, which there is a large and fashionable chorus of stage beauties from Broadway and Piccadilly.

The story of "The Merry Countess" is a whimsical affair and has to do with a powerful love story, it is bound to appeal to the highest intellects.

Themas Lowry, a wealthy ranch owner, makes his will in favor of his adopted daughter. Jane. "The Silent One," a sheep herder of powerful personality, loves Jane, and Lowry approves the match. Robert Sinclair, a nephew of the old man, comes from the east, and falls in love with the girl, and "The Silent One" looks on without words. The easterner, with his polished manners, fascinates the girl, and he tells her of the wonders of his country. Old Lowry dies suddenly, and Sinclair tries to steal the will, but is caught in the act by "The Silent One." He then persuades Jane to go with him, and "The Silent One" tells her that if she really loves the man to go; but he also advises Sinclair that if harm ever comes to the girl, he had better take his own life. Jane goes east with the city man, and dies broken hearted. Sinclair having dissipated all of the girl's money, returns west to sell the sheep. "The Silent One" traps him, and by force of will power leads him to his cave in the cliffs. A desperate struggle takes place, and the two men plich over the cliff to death below. Thus ending the career of good and evil.

A complete regeneration is the remedy required and the manager has elected himself as chief reformer for the needed change. He has broken the bands of his boodle barrel, and with a lavish hand made a production for the Galety Girls that will equal any musical comedy ever presented in the highclass theatres.

Everything new is the watchword of the Galety Girls, a general clean up.
There is a singing stunt at the opening that, will keep the vocal critics busy searching for sour notes, a cast

When the husband is brought up sharp against this new tide of affairs in his home he knows not what to do. First he threatens to kick out the two modern thinkers, a shrew and a lazy philosopher, but the wife retorts that if they go, she goes with them.

At this point the husband's sister comes to the rescue. She is a practical creature and sees that she must fight the situation with the same weapons that are being used by his opponents. Why not introduce into the home circle a beautiful girl who the home circle a beautiful girl who has been in his employ, and pretending that he has been won over to their way of thinking, go a step further and say that she needs converting also?

The plan meets with his approval and as a prelude to introducing the lovely intruder, would it not be a good light to read all the books and papers. idea to read all the books and papers the new thought sages? In a reby the new thought sages? In a remarkably short time the husband seems as modern as either of the two fanatics, who welcome him gladly into the fold. Then he brings into the home circle the beautiful girl with a Greek soul, caring for naught but the beautiful and harmonious, and wearing gowns that are soon the envy of the other two women. The situations and complications hat ensue are of a diverting nature.

The dialog is brilliant and delightful and never has Mr. Drew had a more pleasing opportunity to display the fine polish and natural light comedy manner that wins him the admiration of his public. In the company, headed by Mary Boland, are such well-known players as Hubert Druce, Margaret Watson, Alice John, Nina Sevening, and others.

On Saturday afternoon pupils of the Coronto Conservatory of Music gave delightful recital in the music hall. The program comprised numbers by Scharwenka. Merkel, Mendelssohn, Meyer-Helmind, Lack, Bachmann, Durand, Gibert, Quigley, Gottschalk, Adams, Paderewski. Those taking part were junior students of the pianoforte and singing departments, and were the Misses Eileen Sims, Pansy Ellis, Ethel Glichrist, Isobel Howes, Doris Field, Marion Hughes, Queenie Houston, Hazel Ellis, Florence Charlebois, Louise Cholwill, Marion Thompson and Mr. C. W. Dengate.

A Devoted Wife Helps Her Husband to a Cure Through Samaria Prescription.

Mrs. S., of Trenton, was in despair.

A loving father and a careful provider when sober—her husband had gradu-ally fallen into drinking habits, which were ruining his home, health and Drink had inflamed his stomach and nerves and created that unnatural craving that kills conscience, love, honor and breaks all

But read her letter:
"I feel it my duty to say a few words about your Tablets. As you are aware, I sent and got a bottle, thinking I would try them in secret. My husband had only taken them a week when he told me he was going to Port Arthur for the summer, so I had to tell him all about the Tablets. He said he would take them just the same, so I sent and got the second bottle for fear one would not be enough. He writes me saying he has taken the contents of both bottles, and he feels splendid, does not care for drink. In fact, he has not taken any liquor from the first of my giving it to But read her letter:

POWELL-JOLIFFE.

St. Anne's Church was the scene of a wedding at 7.30 Tuesday evening, when the marriage was solemnized of Edythe Fortescue Graham (Deda), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Joliffe, and granddaughter of Capt. Percival Graham, R. N., of Woodstock, Ont., to the Rev. Percy G. Powell, of Pilot Mound, Man. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. J. James, rector of the Church of the Redeemer, in the absence of Rev. Lawrence Skey. The church was decorated with white flowers and palms, and Mr. Lye presided at the organ. The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. Percy Joliffe, her father, who met with an accident recently, being unable to be present. She looked very sweet in her wedding gown of ivory satin draped with old family Brussels lace and tulle veil with wreath of orange blossoms. She carried instead of the usual shower bouquet a white prayer book, and wore the groom's gift, a sunburst of pearls. Her sister, Miss Dorothy Graham Joliffe, attended as maid of honor, and Miss Betty Holgate as bridesmaid. Both attendants carried Killarney roses. Mr. Cyril R. Currie, M. A., was best man, and the ushers were Dr. Sidney Woollatt, and Mr. Beverly roses. Mr. Cyril R. Currie, M. A., was best man, and the ushers were Dr Sidney Woollatt, and Mr. Beverly Kemp, B. Sc. After the ceremon a reception was held at 39 Delawar palms and white carnations. Later on Rev. and Mrs. Powell left for Winnipeg, en route to their home in Manitoba, the bride traveling in navy blue cheviot and small velvet hat with gray shaded feather and lynx furs.

gerous as reminiscences in literature or conversation; there is a tremen-dous lot that is beautiful in the past: but the tendency of the world is to slide a little ahead of the present, even to steal into the future, if there is a possibility of a mentality getting around that corner today.

It is to the credit of the Messrs.

Shubert and William A. Brady, how-ever, who had the piquant courage, no only to revive "Pinafore," "The Mi-kado," "The Pirates of Penzance," and "Patience," but who also had the wisdom to put away the cerements of the dead past that surrounded them in the pigeon-hole caskets, where they reposed these many years, and to vest them in all the gorgeous richness of modern stage settings, and to cast them with an array of artists that are big enough to impart all the de-lightful flavor of mingled satirical fun and luring melodies that filled the souls of father and mother with joy twenty-five years ago.

One glance at the wonderful cast employed in these productions instanty reveals its great importance and marks it as being, without question, he greatest organization presenting ine greatest organization presenting light opera today. Among its leading stars will be found the names of De Wolf Hopper, George MacFarlane, Blanche Duffield, Eugene Cowles, Arthur Aldridge, Kate Condon, Viola Gillette, Arthur Cunningham, and Louise Barthel. It is easy and convenient to "break" Engineer Fellowes for what are alleged to be his shortcomings in the matter of the Water Works Department. But the men who are attempting to "break" him were the principals, were officially responsible for what Mr. Fellowes was ordered or was allowed to do, and it seems very much as if in condemning him they simply seek a "whipping-boy" to receive the punishment properly due to their own rather obvious failures.

Bartley Campbell's The White Slave

Grand Revival of the Famous Southern Romance Coming to the Grand Next Week.

Robert Campbell's sumptuous reviv al of Bartley Campbell's fascinating story of plantation days, "The White story of plantation days, "The White Slave," comes to the Grand Opera House during the week commencing, Monday, February 3. This will be the first presentation of this beautiful southern idyl at popular prices, the play never having been produced here except at the standard prices prevailing in the higher-priced theatres. Cowan is confident in offering "The White Slave" to his patrons, that he has secured an offering which will be enthusiastically received by them for it is doubtful if any other American play, written within the past fifty years, has the combined appeal to the Uncle Walt is pretty good at the prose pome style of literary architecture, but he has got to sit up and take laid in the blue grass region of Kenquite a bit of path of path and take Decoration for Tea Apron.

Make the embroidery first before fashioning the apron. Use a good grade of handkerchief linen as sheer as possible.

Use ball floss, a soft variety with a silken sheen. If a coarse material is used you will be surprised at the excellent work which can be done with a heavy grade of cotton O. N. T. handthread. This softens in the wash, spreads smoothly and fasts eternally. It does excellent work on cotton fabrics.

Outline the pansies with satim stitch, or if you care to devote the time you can outline the wide portions with a pretty crochet stitch made with linenthread. This is not really a crochet stitch but a series of buttonhole stitches used to cover the wide portion, giving a lace-like appearance when finished. The cross lines can be finished in outline, "seeded" with French knots. Inset with lace not or work with the Battenberg net stitch.

Should a color be desired, then use the real pansy tints. The pale tavender used with the deep purple for the outside lines. "stipulated" with French knots of palest lavender on the inside would be very pretty. No touch of green is needed.

Put a cake of soap in a pint of hot water, stir vigorously; remove soap, Saturate the design with the mixture, then remove the excess moisture. Place the fabric to which the design is to be transferred on a hard, flat surface and lay the design face down on the material. Cover with a dry sheet of thick paper and with the bowl of a table-spoon rub hard till the design is transferred being careful to rub from rather than toward you. Do not wet the material or rub the face of the design with damp fingers. To remove the design after the article is completed wash in warm water with soap. Mr. Kennerley Rumford on February 6th, to be assisted in their concert by the Toronto Symphony Orchestra, will be an event of rare enjoyment. It has been planned to have a complete change of program, with the principal numbers by Mme. Clara Butt to be English songs, and such passages from the oratorios as will be particularly interesting in conjunction with the orchestra. Mme. Butt's greatest successes have been in the "Messiah" and "Elijah." Her singing of "O, Rest in the Lord," and "He Shall Feed His Flock," have won for her many plaudits, and the people of Toronto will welcome the opportunity of making her further acquaintance of the design after the article is completed wash in warm water with soap.

Since their recent visit Mme. Butt and her husband have been meeting with enormous success, no less than four capacity audiences having greeted them in Boston and New York.

Benjamin Staff, an American playwright, while writing a play in London, is suddenly seized with a desire to go home. While booking his passage to New York he makes the acquaintance of Mr. William Howard Iff, a diminutive person of rather mysterious manner, who is bargaining for the same cabin accommodation as himself, and they agree to travel together. As they are leaving the booking office, a motor-cab, with an unusually large and ornate bandbox on its roof approaches; but the occupant of the cab, a very beautiful young woman, on percelving the two men immediately orders the driver to move on. Iff, who has observed this peculiar happening, awaits the return of the cab, while Staff, who has noticed nothing unusual, returns to his apartments. Later, while preparing for the journey a large and brightly-colored bandbox is delivered to him, much to his surprise and disgust. On learning from the millinery establishment that the bandbox has been sent to him by a young lady who promises to communicate with him later, he decides to take it with him. On board ship he tries to take possession of another bandbox exactly like his own but which he discovers belongs to Miss Ellaano's Searle, a fellow passenger. He finds Mr. Iff already occupying their cabin and full of curlosity about the box, which Staff turns over to the steward for the balance of the trip. Staff becomes better acquainted with Miss Searle and learns that she knows the sender of the bandbox but, will not spoil the 'joke' by telling. His bewilderment is increased by the coming aboard at Roche's Point of his fiances Miss Alison Landis, a beautiful actress, for whom he is writing a play, and who is supposed to be in America. Meeting Arkroyd, a wealthy American, and a rival for the affections of Miss Landis, does not tend to help things. The steward informs him that the bandbox to the care of the steward informs him that the cadogan Collar, a very valuable pearl necklace, and write she has hidden the Cadagon Collar in the hat; but examin our fathers were brothers. They married the same day; Ismay and I were born in the same month. We look just enough alike to be mistaken for one another when we're not together. That's been a great help to gether. That's been a great help to him, he's made me more trouble than I've time to tell you. The last time, I was pinched in his place and escaped a penitentiary sentence, by the narrowest kind of a shave. That got my mad up, and I served notice on him to quit his foolishness or I'd get after him. He replied by cooking up a fine little scheme that almost laid me by the heels again. So I declared war and have been camping on his trail ever since."

"Nothing like that; I'm doing this thing on my own."
"How about that forged paper you showed the captain?"
"Wasn't forged—genuine."

"Wasn't forged—genuine."

"Chapter Two," observed Staff, leasing back. "It is a dark and stormy night; we are all seated about the camp fire. The captain says: 'Antonio, go to it."

"You are certainly one swell, appreciative audience," commented iff morbsely, "Let's see if I can't get a laugh with this one: One of the best little things my dear little cousin does being to pass himself off as me, he got himself hired by the treasury department some years ago undar the name of William Howard iff. That helped him a lot in his particular line of business. But after a while he felt that it cramped his story about how you happened to have it."

Then — while I was in Paris last week—he thought it would be a grand joke to send me that document with his compliments and the suggestion that it might be some help to me in my campaign for his scalp. That's how I happened to have it."

"That's going some," Staff admitted admiringly. "Tell me another one. If you're Iff and not Ismay, what brought you over on the Autocratic?"

"Business of keeping an eye on my dearly beloved cousin," said Iff promptly.

"You mean Ismay was on board. "'Member that undergrown waster with the red-and-grey Vandyke and the horn-rimmed pince nez, who was always mooning round with a book under his arm?"

"That was Cousin Arbuthnot dis-guised in his own hair."
"If that was so, why didn't you denounce him when you were ac-cused of stealing the Cadogan col-

"How did you know?"

"At least I was pretty positive about it. You'll have to be patient—and intelligent—if you want to understand and follow me back to Paris. The three of us were there: Ismay, Miss Landis, myself. Miss Landis was dickering with Cottler's for the necklace, Ismay sticking round and not losing sight of her much of the time. I was looking after Ismay, Miss Landis buys the collar and a ticket for London; I trail, Then Miss, Landis makes another purchase—a razor, in a skop near the hotel where I happen to be loafing."

smuggle as quick as the average man will take a drink; and I'm Jeremiah Wise, Esquire."

"That's the best yet." Staff applauded. "But—see here—why didn't you tell what you knew, if you knew so much, when you were accused?"

Iff grimaced sourly. "Get ready to laugh. This is one you won't fail for—not in a thousand years."

"Shoot." said Staff.

"I like you," said Iff simply. "You are foolish in the head sometimes, but in the main you mean well."

"That's nice of you—but what has it to do with my question?"

"Everything. You're sweet on the girl, and I don't wish to put a crimp in your young romance by showing her up in her true colors. Furthermore, you may be hep to her little scheme; I don't believe it, but I know that, if you are, you won't let me suffer for it. And finally, in the senility of my dotage I couned myself into believing I could bluff it out; at the worst, I could prove my innocence easily enough. But what I didn't take into consideration was that I was laying myself open to arrest for impersonating an agent of the government. When I woke up to that fact, the only thing I could see to do was to duck in out of the blizzard."

Staff said sententiously: "Hmmm.."

"Pretty thin—what?"

"In spots," Staff agreed. "Still, I've got to admit you've managed to cover the canvas, even if your supply of paint was a bit stingy. One thing still bothers me: how did you find out I knew about the smuggling game?"

Iff nodded toward the bedroom. "I him!"

"What did I tell you?" Iff helped himself to a cigaret. "By now the dirty dog's probably raising heaven and hell to find out where Miss Searle has hidden herself."

Staff began to pace nervously to and fro. "I wish," he cried, "I knew where to find her!"

"Please," Iff begged carnestly, "don't let your sense of the obligations of a host interfere with your amusements; but if you'll stop that Marathon long enough to find me a blanket, I'll shed these rags and, by your leave, curl up cunningly on yon divan."

Staff paused, stared at the little man's bland and guileless face, and shook his head helplessly, laughing.

"There's no resisting your colossal gall," he said, passing into the adjoining room to get bed clothing for his guest.

"What the deuce now?" he mur-mured.
"The quickest way to an answer to that," suggested Iff blandly, "is there." He indicated the telephone

He started violently, recognizing the olce that answered: "Mr Staff?"

"Yes—"
"This is Miss Searle."
"I know," he stammered; "I—I knew your voice."
"Really?" The query was perfunctory, "Mr. Staff—I couldn't wait to tell you—I've just got in from a theatre and supper party with some friends."
"Yes," he said. "Where are you?"
Disregarding his question, the girl's voice continued quickly: "I wanted to see my hat and opened the bandbox. It wasn't my hat—It's the one you described—the one that—"
"I know," he interrupted; "I know all about that now."
"Yes," she went on hurriedly, unheeding his words. "I admired and examined it. It— there's something else."

"I know," he said again; "the Cad-

"But," Iff remonstrated, "you can't receive a lady in here with me asleep on your divan."

"I don't intend to," Staff told him bluntly. I'm going to meet the taxi at the door, get into it with her, and take that infernal necklace directly to Miss Landis, at her hotel."

"The more I see of you," said Mr. Iff, removing his coat, "the more qualities I discover in you to excite my admiration and liking. As in this instance, when with thoughtfulness for my comfort"—he tore from his neck the water-soaked rag that had one of its drawers a small revolver of efficient aspect, unloaded and reloaded it to satisfy himself it was in good working order — and of a sudden looked round suspiciously at Mr.

The latter, divested of his clothing and swathed in a dressing gown several sizes too large for him, fulfilled his host's expectations by laughing openly at these warlike preparations. "I infer," he said, "that you would not be surprised to meet up with Cousin Arbuthnot before sunrise." "I'm taking no chances," Staff announced with dignity.

"I'm taking no chances," Staff announced with dignity.

"Well, if you should meet him, and if you mean what you act like, and if that gun's any good, and if you know how to use it," yawned Mr. Iff, "you'll do me a favor and save me a heap of trouble into the bargain. Good night."

preathing with the sweet and steady eguiarity of a perfectly sound and regularity of a perfectly saund and sincere sleeper.

To make his rest the more comfortable, Staff turned off all the lights save that on his desk. Then he filled a pipe and sat down to envy the little man. The very name of sleep was music in his hearing, just then.

The minutes lagged on leaden wings. There was a great hush in the old house, and the street itself was quiet. Once or twice Staff caught himself nodding; then he would straighten up, steel his will and spur his senses to attention, waiting.

waters breaking away from the flanks of the Autocratic . . . and then, finally, like a foesin, the sonorous, musical chiming of the grandfather's clock in the corner.

He found himself on his feet, rubbing his eyes, with a mouth dry as paper, a thumping heart, and a vague sense of emptiness in his middle.

Had he napped — slept? How long?
... He stared, bewildered, groping blindly after his wandering wits.
The windows, that had been black bliongs in the illuminated walls, were oblions in the lituminated walls, were filled with a cool and shapeless tone of gray. He reeled (rather than walk-ed) to one of them and looked out. The street below was vacant, deso-The street below was vacant, deso-late and uncannily silent, showing a harsh, unlovely countenance like the jaded mask of some sodden reveller, with bleary street lamps for eyes—all mean and garish in the chilly dusk that foreruns dawn.

"And since my Lady Judge has taken up suffrage will she be 'La Belle Dame Sans Merci' to this 'Old Offender'?—and will the jury be as kind to him now that they are so very clever?"

The Girl Who Works

The question of what wage a girl

Hamilton is the squarest city in Canada. She is now occupying herself with this problem of the working girl. My dearest wish is that she will be the leader in settling this most important question satisfactorily. Of important question satisfactorily. Of course, you—if you are not a Hamiltonian—may say—"It is your home town, Kit, and naturally you are exploiting it." Not a bit of it. I disliked Hamilton when I first came, but (thank the gods—we are pliable), I have learned to care for it and to take have learned to care for it, and to take pride in the famous and striving city inder the shoulder of the mountain:

THE CHILD WHO FORGOT TO WASH HIS FACE

The child forgot, very often, to wash his face. There were a number of children at his house, all younger than he, who had to have their faces washed for them, so the mother could not always attend to his. He had a fine little wash cloth of his own that his grandmother had knitted, but he often forgot to use it, which made his grandmother sad.

This meetal marriage the child steep of the garden, where the ducks lived.

This special morning the child ate jam on his toast for breakfast. Oh, he was very untidy, indeed, for there was jam on his blouse and on the tip of his nose and on his mouth when he finished breakfast! But he never remembered to use his washoloth, and he jumped down from the table and ran outdoors to play.

Just outside the door, on a tree in the garden, hung the child's yellow canary in a pretty gilt cage. The bird was very tame. When the child whistled and put his finger in the cage, the yellow canary would light on it and sing. But this morning it paid not the slightest attention when the child called. The yellow canary was taking a bath. It had a white saucer full of crystal water, and it dipped its little body down in and lifted up its head with the drops shining on its feathers like diamonds in a gold setting.

To see their breakfasts. Away cross at the other end of the pond they were dipping their green selves down in the water, until all the child could see was the tips of their pointed tails. Then they lifted themselves out of the water and shook a shower of drops from their green feathers. The ducks were taking their morning baths.

"I wonder why no one will play with me," thought the child.

Then he looked down in the mirror of the pend, and he saw that he had not washed his face.

"Why, perhaps it is because I am dirty," he said.

About Skating

An old old trick is skating. A Danlish historian mentions the sport in 1134. At that time they used bone skates which were fastened to the feet by straps passed thru holes made in the bones. These bone skates were also the kind first used in England. When we think of how infrequent teles in the British isles, we might wonder what they wanted with skates at all there—But Mr. Pickwick reminds us!

Holland is the home and birtipiace of skating. In a country of lakes and canals the necessity of walking and change for skaters to fasten the legic bones of animals under the soles of

She is a continual source of amazement to me. She is always neat in her dress, and as modish and elegant in her attire as it is possible to be. How she does it on the wages paid in shop, and office, and factory is a mystery. For I believe in her purity and honesty. More, I know that she is "square" and "all right." But she should not be obliged to suffer and should not be obliged to suffer and pinch and squeeze in order to safe-guard her honor and decency. A wake-ful creature, I often arise, and sit in ing the workers going to work. I see women, head bent against the wind, hurrying in the bleak dawn to shop or office; I see girls running thru the slush and snow with the bells and whistles crowing "Seven o'Clock." When you, Sir, or Madam, or happy home girl-are asleep in your warm rooms, these little women are on their way to the long day's toil. When some new method appears in | we come to the study of higher matheeducational world, the natural matics or dead classics or the like.

The real education, the training of the question to ask is, "Is it a fad or is it mind, begins even before the very nereally something not only new but cessary fundamentals of an academic education—reading, writing and arithbeing said and written just now about the Montessori method of teaching, which is in vogue to some extent in Italy and is bidding for adoption in Some measure into the school systems.

But there

However, let us try to get a clear conception of just what this wonderful method is. Mrs. Dorothy Canfield Fisher, United States novelist, who paid a prolonged visit to Rome and the child how to begin. Fisher, United States novelist, who paid a prolonged visit to Rome and saw a great deal of Dr. Montessori, has written a really fascinating and illuminating book on this subject. At the back of every movement, as the basis of every method there is always some theory, some big idea of one person's mind. The person, in this case, is, of course, Dr. Mana Montessori system, and it would be folly to adopt it without an adesori. The idea is explained by Mrs. Fisher thus:

Fisher thus:
"The central idea of the Montessori cribe what is being done in the Montessori schools, in apparent contradicapparatus, every detail of technic rests solidly, is a full recognition of the fact that no huran being can be educated by ANY ONE ELSE. He must do it himself or it is never done. And this is as true at the age of three as at the age of thirty; even truer, for the man of thirty is at least as physically strong as any self-proposed mentor is apt to be, and can fight for age (let alone little tots of three to his own right to chew and digest his intellectual food."

New View Point. But you may say, "Pooh! this is no-thing new; we know that every person must learn things for himself. you have taken a course of pedagogical training you will then recall one of the old watch-words, "learn to do by and think that this is, perhaps, the same thing.

As a theory, I grant you, this resembles generally accepted pedagogi-cal dogmas, but in developing a working method from the theory the idea is enlarged by a very important detail, resulting from the special view-point of the originator of the method.

Mrs. Fisher takes us to a Casa del Bambini (House of Childhood) and shows us there how the children are occupied; she describes the atmosphere, the surroundings, the appara tus, and pictures clearly and vividly what the children are doing. One in cident in particular will Illustrate the point of self-education. At one of the schools conducted by the Franciscan numnery, the children come early in the morning and remain all day. Altho their ages range as low as three years and not above six, they set the tables and serve their own luncheon, waiting upon one another and upon them-

On this particular occasion one little lad could not manage to arrange his napkin. After wrestling with it, he brought it to his teacher. Now, instead of fixing it for him, or even going to the length of doing it for him which could be "learning to do by doing"-she held it up in her hands, showed the child how to take hold of a larger part of the corner than he had en grasping, and illustrated by an object lesson how she would do this for herself. The boy's first attempt was unsuccessful so the teacher on more went thru all the necessary movements very slowly. This time he seized the napkin with an air of de

Guide Replaces Taskmaster You may ask, "What has such a tri-vial incident to do with the principles of education, or the foundation of a system?" Well, it illustrates just wherein the Montessori method differs even from our "learn to do by doing" as we interpret it. Most teachers and most mothers would perform the service of arranging the little lad's naphim time and time again, instead of letting him wrestle the problem out for himself right at the beginning. The essence of the incident lies in the fact that he performed the little task himself.

The expansion of this idea leads to vastly different conception of the plan of education. You will notice that the teacher did not go to the child and stand over him until he was ready in every detail for his luncheon. He knew that he was not fully prepared to begin his luncheon unti his napkin was adjusted the same as the other children's. He knew also that his teacher was ready to instructhim. This reverses entirely the relationship of teacher and pupil. frequently the teacher is regarded as a taskmaster (even a modern slave-driver) instead of a guide,

Simplicity of Devices. Some of the apparatus used in the Montessori schools is so simple that you may be inclined to interject impatiently, "What has this to do with education?" The trouble is that many of us make the mistake of thinking that we cannot train our minds until we will speak our own minds." Charles Dickens' Originals

Among Others the Story of the Real Fagin.

Edwin Pugh's book on "The Charles Dickens' Originals' is said to conain much which will be absolutely new to the overage well-grounded Dickensian, and much more that has been so long forgotten that it is quite ample, the reader, as a general rule, will recall that hie story of "David will recal! that hie story of "David Copperfield" was to a large extent the story of certain years of Dickens' own life, that Mrs. Nickleby was drawn from Dickens' mother, and Micawber from Dickens' father, that the Cheeryble brothers in real life were the Grant brothers, and that Leigh Hunt and Walter Savage Landor served as the models from which Dickens drew Harold Skimpole and Lawrence Boythorne in "Bleak House." But how many of us remember that the real Sam Weller was Sam Vale, and the real Fagin of "Oliver Twist" was a certain notorious lkey Solomons. To begin with the last-named character, Mr. Pugh quotes from the story of Major Arthur Griffiths, sometime governor of Newgate prison. Ikey Solomons was a notorious fence, or receiver of stolen goods, who passed thru Newgate in 1831, some six years before Dickens began the story of "Oliver Twist." Solomons had begun life as an itineral street vender at eight, at ten he passed bad money, at fourteen he was a pickpocket and a seller of sham goods. While still in his 'teens he was sentenced to transportation, but did not get beyond the hulks at Chatham. After his release he worked honestly for two years, but having saved 150 pounds, he returned to London and set up as a fence. Among his other activities he established a system of provincial agency, by which stolen goods were passed on from London to the seaports, and thence abroad. Copperfield" was to a large extent the earlier stage than is usual in public school training, the fundamentals of reading and writing.

London to the seaports, and thence

The care with which Solomons removed all marks by which stolen articles might be identified won him prolonged immunity from arrest. On one occasion the whole of the pro-ceeds of a robbery from a boot shop was traced to him; the owner came vinced that it was his property, but could not positively identify it, and the fence defied them to remove a single shoe. In the end, the injured One would say off-hand that it class of twenty-five children of any otmaker was forced to buy back bootmaker was forced to buy back his stolen stock. As a general rule, Solomons confined his purposes to small articles, mostly of jewelry and plate, which he kept concealed in a hiding place with a trapdoor just under his bed. He lived in Rosemary vation, without a set plan of study, without any organized discipline, and under his bed. He lived in Rosemary lane, and sometimes had as much as 20,000 pounds' worth of goods secreted on the premises. When his trade was busiest he set up a second establishment, at the head of which, althohe was married, he put another lady. This naturally led to disaster; the real Mrs. Solomons found it out, lkey was implicated as a receiver, and dewith their teachers acting chiefly on consultation and not as directors. This attitude of the teacher may be made clearer by a quotation from Mrs. Fisher's book. She had been watching the children at an exercise with rods: was implicated as a receiver, and decided to try his fortunes in another land. He was about to emigrate to New South Wales when he was arrested and committed to Newgate. By a clever trick he escaped from prison, crossed the North Sea to Copenhagen, and thence sailed for America. Here he devoted himself to the circulation of forged notes. His wife in London could not resist the temptation to carry on her husband's sentence of 14 years' transportation, and was sent to Van Diemen's Land. Solomons joined her there, and they set up a general shop and began to prosper. He was, however, recognized, taken back to England and and compelling the learning of tasks would be saved if we could but to a A monument is to be erected to the and a prison breaker. Memorial to Hawthorne.

Very often we are surprised at the scant regard given by the people of some community to the noted writer who may have owned it as his birthplace. And when we remember that Nathaniel Hawthorne was not only born in Salem, Massachusetts, but that he dwelt there the greater part of his life, we may wonder that it is not till now, nearly fifty years after his death, that arrangements have been made to set up a memorial, as a tribute to his memory. Like many another writer, Hawthorne, was of a reserved disposition. He did not mingle much with the society of Salem in his time. Thus, there was none of that love for the man's personality which may often overcome the resentment which is felt by people who think that the author's writings have held them up to be stared at by the world. In his famous "Scarlet Letter," some Salem families of the time saw only a slander on the memories of their ancestors. A Boston writer, who knows Salem and its people say: "Even when the literary circles of two continents were ringing with his praises and read his books with delight, Salem looked on coldly, indifferently. Its people did not buy his books nor did they read them. They were not to be found on the bookshelves of its libraries until after they had become familiar to the patrons of nearly every New England village library. The writer remembers well that within twenty-five years he has heard Hawthorne sneered at by educated Salem people, who boasted of never having read his books."

But, in spite of the fact that there is even yet some opposition to any public recognition of Hawthorne by citizens of Salem, the memorial project is well under way. The sculptor indicates his conception of the author thus:

Little Talks on Poetry

Whitman in Europe.

Walt Whitman is reported as having a marked influence on the young writers of Europe. Mr. Scott Mourer, writing from Paris to The Poetry Magazine, is responsible for this statement. In discussing the matter, he remarks:

"What is it about Whitman that Europe finds so inspiring? First, his acceptance of the universe as he found it. his magnificently shouted comfadesnip with all nature and all men. Such a doctrine makes an instant tho hardly logical appeal in nations where Socialism is the political order of the day. And next, his disregard of literary fraditions. Out of books more books, and out of them still more, with the fectundity of generations. But in this process of literary propagation thought, unfortunately, instead of arising like a child ever fresh and vigorous as in the beginning, grows more and more attentuated, paler, more sickly. The acclaim of Whitman is nothing less than the inevitable revolt against the modern flood of book-inspired books. Write from nature directly, from the people and the hay-field, and the factory—that is what the august American seems to his young disciples across the seas to be crying to them.

"Perhaps' it is because America already holds as commonplaces these fundamentals seeming so new to Europe that the Whitman schools have sprung up stronger on the eastern side of the Atlantic than on the western."

in contemporaneous literature and those who see none whatever, which has been glowing more brightly than ever recently, owing to the firm stand of a number of well-known literary critics in favor of the new books, Henry L. Mencken of The Baltimore Sun, and one of the best known literary critics in the United States has taken up the cudgels for the present-day writers. Kipling, Joseph Conrad, George Ade, Frank Norris, H. G. Wells, Arnold Bennett, Theodore Dreiser, Mark Twain and others are favorably compared with Thackeray, Dickens, Scott, and some of the other greatly revered masters. In a recent literary article in The Sun, Mr. Mencken took issue with a brother journalist, who deplored the sad degeneracy of the times in literature.

"The great Victorians," he sald, "English and French had the inestimable advantage of being pioneers: they gained in comparative stature by the mere lack of connection and fixed standards.

"Would they seem so great if they were put into direct competition with the great moderns in our schools and not worshiped unthinkingly as unique and incomparable?"

"Thackeray wrote many indubitable"

Last week "Pelleas and Melisande" was given its first performance of the season at Boston. Mme. Louise Edvina, the Canadian soprano, sang the role of Melisande Critics say that other sopranos have displayed more finesse in the role, yet the freshness and charm of her impersonation, and her self-effacement deserved and received the highest appreciation. The part is an exceedingly difficult one, and her portrayal of the character was a modest and harmonious achievement. Mme. Edvina also appeared as Louise, when she was supported by Mr. Zenatello as Julien; Mme. Gay, The mother; Marcoux, the father. A notable concordance, and one which has placed Charpentier's opera high in the estimation of the Boston public.

Let us consider now how the poet wife in London could not resist the temptation to carry on her husband's business, and as a result received a many pictures to visualize, to call up in the mind's eye. "'Only, my dear boy, we must set the scene in another period,' he said, 'Just imagine how much better your "Louise" would be with a cast dress-ed up in Louise XV. style. And then we will bring some gorgeous women in that dressmaking establishment. A nice little chorus.'

"'Not on your life,' Charpentier in-terrupted, and as he did not have the car fare he footed it back to Mont-

"'I read Carvalho's pencil notes,' Charpenter told the writer, 'and among the things the dear old man had edited out were the scaffolding. the old ragpicker's lamentation and the street cries of Paris.'
For six years Charpentier peddle his score, giving music lessons and copying orchestra parts for a living. Poor and obscure, broken in health, ie was at forty a member of the tatered army of geniuses who cannot nake good. His radical associations afforded him no help.
"One day the famous journalist

Huret, angered at what he considered an injustice, took the score of 'Louise' to Albert Carre, director of the Opera Comique, and begged him to read it-Carre had already turned it down with a thousand unsolicited offerings of unknown composers. Yielding to Huret's entreaties, he read it and accepted it on the spot. Two months af-ter, on Feb. 1, 1901, the first per formance took place. Within a year and twenty days it had reached its hun-dredth performance."

Benoit's Great Work By Children's Choir

Mr. Davies and His Choristers Promise Musical Treat at Metropolitan Concert.

A most interesting program is promised by the Metropolitan Church Choir for its annual concert on Thursday evening, January 30. The adult choir of 75 voices will sing works by Randegger, Gounod, Noble and Men-delssohn. The children's choir of 125 voices will sing Benoit's beautiful work, "Into the World," and the charmingly dainty three-part song, "How Merrity We Live," by Michael Est. Added interest to the program will be the assistance of Miss Ada Twohy, pianist, and Mr. George Bruce, 'cellist Miss Twohy will play a movement from a Greig's concerto,; Mr. Wheel-don, the brilliant organist of the church, playing the orchestral accom-paniment on the organ. Schubert Choir in Important Program covers almost the entire range of choral music.

The works of prime importance, which may be regarded as thorouly representative of their respective schools, have been studied in their entirety, viz.: Mendelssohn's beautiful and brilliant opera, for two choirs, male chorus, ladies' chorus, chimes, and full orchestra, with soprano solos; then such histronic compositions as "God in the Tempest," by Schubert, for eight-part chorus and orchestra (probably one of the greatest of all choruses); "Die Almacht," Schubert, for sopranol solo, double choir and orchestra; and the "Spinning Chorus," from "The Flying Dutchman," Wagner, for women's voices and orchestra. In a capella music (in which this excellent organization has made a splendid record) a wide selection will be given embracing such representative composers as Tschalkowski. Patenowski. "No, Harold," said Percy firmly; "you've already done quite enough for her!"—Saturday Evening Post. That Obliging Guard!

The train was about to depart, when stout old lady ran on to the platform n haste. The obliging guard pounced pon her, fairly lifted her into the cartage, and, as he slammed the door, the train steamed out of the station.

The first stopping-place was thirty niles up the line, and when the train arrived the guard observed the old lady stepping out of the compartment in a state of boiling indignation. "You very nearly missed it, mum,"

"Missed it! You silly fool!" fumed the old lady. "I didn't want to come by it at all. I simply wanted to post a letter in the late-fee box on the train. And now, perhaps, you'll tell me who is going to pay my fare back. Talk bout the intelligence of man! I'd rather have a donkey to deal with!'

ASTERPIECES of AMERICAN SHORT FICTION & RICHARD HARDING

The servants of the Hotel Salis-ury, which is so called because it is nucted on Broadway and conducted in the American plan by a man named situated on Brosdway and conducted on the American pian by a man named Riggs, had agreed upon a date for their annual ball and volunteer concert, and wall announced "that it would eclipse every other annual ball in the history of the hotel. As the Hotel Salisbury had been only two years in existence, this was not an idle boast, and it had the effect of inducing many people to buy the tickets, which sold at a dollar apiece, and were good for "one gent and lady," and entitled the bearer to a hat-check without extra charge.

In the flutter of preparation all ranks were temporarily levelled, and social barriers taken down with the mutual consent of those separated by them; the night-clerk so far unbent as to personally request the colored hall-boy, Number Eight, to play a banjo solo at the concert, which was to fill in the pauses between the dances, and the champermaids timidly consulted with the lady telegraph operator and the lady in charge of the telephone, as to whether or not they intended to wear hats.

And so every employe on every floor of the hotel was working individually for the success of the ball, from the engineers in charge of the electric transfer in the regime to the regime of the electric transfer in the regime to the night. The mirror who had given him up

THE EDISON! THE GENUINE EDISON!---Thos. A. superb new style instrument shipped free on this remarkable offer

MR. EDISON SAYS:

"I WANT TO SEE A PHONOGRAPH IN EVERY CANADIAN HOME"

For the Phonograph is Mr. Edison's pet and hobby. He has worked for years to make this Phonograph excel all others, and now you may obtain any of these wonderful new style outfits on an ULTRA LIBERAL offer.

THE EDISON OFFER

We will send you a New Model Edison Phonograph and your choice of all the Amberol Records on an absolutely free loan. We want you to have all the waltzes, two-steps, vaudevilles, minstrels, grand operas, also the sacred music, etc., by the world's greatest artists. Entertain your family and your friends. Give plays and concerts right in your own parlor. Hear the songs, solos, duets and quartettes, the pealing organ, the brass bands, the symphony orchestras, the choirs of Europe's great cathedrals, the piano and violin virtuoso concerts -all these we want you to hear free as reproduced on the Edison Phonograph. Then-when you are through with the outfit-send it back to us.

OUR REASON

Why should we make such an ultra-liberal offer? Why should we go to all this expense and trouble just so you can have these free concerts? Well, we'll tell you. We are tremendously proud of this new instrument. When you get it in your town we know everybody will say that nothing like it has ever been heard-so wonderful, so beautiful, such a king of entertainers—so we are sure that at least some one-if not you, then somebody else, will want to buy one of the new style Edisons (especially as they are being offered now at the most astounding rock-bottom price-and on easy terms, as low as $2.00 a month). Perhaps you yourself will be glad to keep this outfit. But even if nobody buys, we'll be glad anyway that we sent you the new Edison on the free loan-for that is our way of advertising quickly its wonderful superiority.

Such a variety of entertainment f Hear the latest up-to-date song hits of the big cities. Laugh until the tears stream down your face and your sides ache from laughing at the funniest of funny minstrel shows. Hear the majestic choirs sing the famous anthems just as they sing them in the cathedrals of Europe. Hear the pealing organs, the crashing brass bands, the waltzes, the twosteps, the solos, duets and quartettes. Yes-an endless variety of entertainment. You will sit awe-stricken at the wonderful grand operas as sung by the world's greatest singers. You will be moved by the tender, sweet harmony of the quartettes singing those dear old melodies that you liave heard all your life. Take your choice of any kind of entertainment. All will be yours with the Edison in your home. Send Coupon today.

this must be Cowan's"

THERE is no mistaking the Cowan flavor. It is not only its delicious taste, however—there is a vigor-producing quality and a nerve-toning, muscle - strengthening virtue to Cowan's that win it first place among Canada's beverages.

The pure product of the Cocoa bean goes into Cowan's—nothing else.

But the Cowan excellence is obtained by expert selection and blending of the beans, and the roasting, too, which is accurately timed to give the richest flavor.

Every operation is performed by modern machinery under expert control.

Cleanliness is a watch-word in the Cowar factory.

From the scouring of the Cocoa bean to the labelling of the tin, each step in the Cowan process is a step towards perfection—the proud title of a great cocoa. COWAN'S PERFECTION COCOA.

AL. H. WILSON

SKI RIDER AND PASSENGER A RISKY TPIP DOWN HIGH PARK SLIDES.

AL. H. WILSON.

The following review of the celebrated German dialect singer's new play is taken from Fort Worth Record during his southern tour. "It Hiappened in Potsdam." is a bright comedy with more body than anything Wilson has played in the last few years. Its humor is more evident, and the play for a while as it did last more than acceptable. An Al Wilson song is distinctive ever. It has lilt and tenderness, and a simple fragrance as true as the color of a rose, and the rendition of his ballads, new or old, mearly always stops the progress of the play for a while as it did last night, while the audience demands respection of the thing it loves.

BLEACHING OF IVORY

how to portray a heroine with a sense of humor as well as an ability to wear smart gowns and hats. Sartorially speaking, the play is full of dilightful surprises, beginning the minute Metz himself appears with canal boat shoes and a calico turban; "My Lady Fair," and "She Loves Me, She Loves Me, Not," are two charming new songs by Wilson. The tenor sings with all how to portray a heroine with a sense

his old abandonment and purity of voice betition of the thing it loves.

The absurd complications revolving about a letter written in the youthful folly stage by the Countess Viola to Metz manage to fill three acts pretty full. The letter is captured finally by Phoebe, a Virginia girl, and a cousin of the countess. But she captures the heart of Metz as well and gives him her own in return in order to round out the charming love story and complete the record for Metz as an international heart smasher. He must know more ways of winning a woman than George Domerci. Metz must.

The company has a number of new faces and a lot of familiar ones. Miss Laura Lemmers being the most notably valuable addition. She knows how to portray a heroine with a sense.
