AGRICULTURE. Notes and Suggestions of Practical Hints FOR THE FARM, FIELD, GARDEN AND DAIRY. Cleanliness of Interest for our Country Readers. Feed according to need. Keep your barnyard dry. If you want good stock, raise it. There is no profit in breed alone. Good goods make a good market. What are you doing for the girl? Keep the mice out of your beehive. The demand for serms is not lively. Adopt a system of rotation of crops. Give your cows a good bed to lie on. Disinfect is the beginning of progress. Contaminated in any form is bad for swine. It is all wrong to make a scavenger of the hog. Whatever is lost in fish is so much dead loss. To many fruit trees are started to death. A lath will cover a crack and stop a draft. Keep dry first where your hens can get at it. Your pigs should be kept not only warm but dry. Don't worry yourself to death about cholera. The barn owl is death on rats. Give him a roost. There are no heavier milkers than the Friesians. Much that passes for dignity is only stupidity. Sometimes silence gives the best instruction. The three-legged is the best form of milking stool. The poorest butter fat is that which separates fast. You must be judge of the quality of your feed stuffs. Ventilate your cellar into your kitchen stove. The Belgian appears to be the coming draft horse. There is no better beef breed than the Shorthorns. Which is the best breed of swine? The one you prefer. Defects are often in the engineer instead of the boiler. Straw is better than leaves for covering strawberies. Every fly destroyed now reduces the next summer crop. The truth strikes some people as a red flag does a mad bull. Uniform conditions are necessary to secure uniform results. When cows have access to salt they will not eat too much. If you burn wool, cut it this winter for the spring. A good beef breed is a great help in producing good beef. Apples are good for milch cows. Begin to feed moderately. There is no more hardy and active breed than the Ayrshires. Much nonsense is written about the economy of creameries. There are no richer milkers than the Jerseys and Guernseys. A good pedigree is valuable when a good animal is attached to it. What does the man amount to when the dollar stands in the way? Pork as much as milk is affected by the quality of the feed. Good animals command the best prices and are the first in demand. The back of the seat of the buggy is not the place for hens to roost. If there anything you can do for your wife to make her work easier? Weeds are natural; the good and useful come only by cultivation. The larger the herd, the less is likely to be the average yield per cow. Fresh air penetrates a warm room more freely in winter than in summer. Where dairy goods are the main objects, beef and veal must be incidental. It isn't much of a bicycle rider who can't sit on a one-legged milking stool. THE DAIRY. An Article to the Wives Who Know All About It. To the man who thinks he knows it all and refuses to attend dairy conferences and the meetings of dairy associations, because look and newspaper men who read papers at these gatherings are not "practical," The American Dairyman says: "We will now suppose you do think you know it all, suppose you go there and point out the mistakes. We guarantee you will not be able to do so. You are just the man the instructors want to reason with. We have stood by them and heard men poke questions at them that were evidently intended to show them up; but the answers are always respectful and the butter made of such a quality that it commands the respect of the old lady who is the sixth or seventh in the line of a family of better makers. Perhaps the butter made does not suit your taste, but it looks fine and sells high, and if money is what you are after then by all means evaluate your produce and learn a little bit about how to get more money for the better you make, even if you have to admit that the milk is not so good as you thought it was. If you are asking to teach them there is a great opportunity at these conferences to add to your stock of information. These instructors do not as a rule make long speeches; they simply talk right along about the matter in hand and in the most entertaining way possible, besides they work the churn and the butter churn, and show you how the whole thing is done from start to finish. It is an object lesson, while they will explain the principles of any part of the work that you may wish to enquire about." Those men who are so knowing that they refuse to attend dairy gatherings do not seem to be aware of what a great opportunity they miss in not attending and showing up the false and impracticable teachings of the professors and theorists and thereby enlightening their fellows.

Yield of the Dairy. A dairy census of the town of Bovina, in Delaware county, by the New York state dairyman's association, showed 117 farms, principally devoted to dairying. It showed wonderfully high average yield of the dairies in the town. Here is a sample: J. D. Mitchell, 105 registered Jersey. Acres in farm, 100; assessed at $12,700. Acre in meadow 55, pasture 60; value of hay and roughage per cow, $15. Value of calves, $840, viz. 8 at $100 each, 4 at $200 each, 1 at $250 each. Value of grain bought per cow, $15; fed 10 months. Ration nearly 5 lbs. per day of corn meal, cuttressed meal and wheat bran. Butter sold, 4,492 lbs. at 25 cents. Deep setting for creaming milk with water at 90° Cost of keep exclusive of pasture per cow, $94. Total earnings per cow, $101.14. The net yearly earnings, per cow, varies from $100 to $120. The average yield of the town is of remarkably uniform excellence. This uniformity is due to uniformity in breed, and similarity in conditions and management. Domestic Measurements. Soft butter the size of an egg weighs one ounce. Four teaspoonsful are equal to one tablespoon. One pint of coffee "A" sugar weighs twelve ounces. One pint of best brown sugar weighs thirteen ounces. One quart of sifted flour (well heaped) weighs one pound. Two teaspoonfuls (level) of granulated sugar weigh one pound. Two teaspoonfuls of soft butter (well packed) weigh one pound. One and one-third pints of powdered sugar weigh one pound. One pint (heaped) granulated sugar weighs fourteen ounces. Two tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar or flour weigh one ounce. Two teaspoonfuls (well heaped) of coffee "A" sugar weigh one pound. Two and one-half teaspoonfuls (level) of the best brown sugar weigh one pound.

PARAGRAPHS. On All Subjects of Current Note at Home and Abroad. ACQUAINTANCE, HAPPENINGS AND GENERAL COMMENTS. Clipped and Condensed for the Readers of The Globe. There were 25 cases of cholera in Hamilton last week and two deaths. A Connecticut advertisement paints posters on cows in fields near the railroad. Post William Watson's insanity is attributed to cholera used to cure insomnia. Cornelius Vanderbilt has given $5,000 to the Police Bureau fund in New York city. Eugene Clampton, the murderer of two men, was publicly executed by guillotine in Paris. Kittle L. Sprague, see Potter, sued her husband for divorce in Denver, won and then remarried the man. The cold air, being heavier, is constantly pressing out the warm air in your room and taking its place. The balanced ration is a delusion unless the quality of every article of food of which it is composed is known. All milk sold in Copenhagen Denmark, has to be first filtered through layers of sand, gravel and fine cloth. There are no better cheese cows than the Friesian. She is also good for better and her male offspring for beef. It may be well to buy a hand separator if you are after it in your dairy. Accumulator during the churning at the same time, would be better.

THE QUEEN'S CAREFULNESS. Queen Victoria rarely sends any telegram to any member of the royal family, or to Her Majesty's intimate friends, otherwise than in cipher, a system of figure ciphers having been carefully arranged for her and their use. The last pages of the life of Sir Richard Burton are being written by Lady Burton, and the work will soon be given to the publisher. Mrs. Maybrick is reported well out of danger and the government withdrew the permit for her mother, Baroness De Rouses, to visit her. To verify the bills of dogs slaughtered by him, Kansas City's poundmaster must hereafter present the dogs' tails to the city clerk. For $800,000 Dressel, Morgan & Co., probably setting for the Vanderbilts, have bought 100,000 acres of West Virginia land rich in coal and timber. The Queen's Carefulness. AN ENGLISH FIGHTER. The Light-Weight Pugilistic Champion in America. Dick Burge, the English light-weight champion, recently arrived in New York, accompanied by his trainer and manager, George McDonald and S. Haggerty, the professional short-distance runner of England, who holds the record of 10.33 for 100 yards. Burge's appearance was the subject of much favorable comment by those who saw him. He is a likely looking fellow, of a very gentlemanly and modest bearing. To the casual observer he looks more like a successful business man than a fighter. He stands 5 feet 7 1/2 inches tall, and weighs at present 154 pounds. His shoulder development is very marked, and his limbs are well formed. His face is cleanly shaven and has a ruddy glow of health. He has sandy brown hair, and altogether has a very intelligent look. His combative career includes marks of many battles he has engaged in. His last fight was with Ike Thompson, whom he defeated. In more than one respect he is a counterpart of Jack McCalliff, the ex-champion middle weight. Burge is 29 years of age, and has been fighting eight years. George McDonald, Burge's trainer and manager is well known here. He had Sam Blacklock under his wing while the latter was in this country. Burge said in reply to a question, "I have come to this country to fight McCalliff. He is the acknowledged champion of America. I want to win the championship of the world. I can do that only by whipping McCalliff."

DEATH FROM FRIGHT. Instances in which Persons Have Lost Reason in a Moment. "I have interested myself somewhat in unusual cases of death," said Dr. Elder, "and have met several well authenticated instances where fright was the cause. The English surgeon general, Francis, tells of a drummer in India across whose legs a harmless lizard crawled while he was half asleep. He was much startled and awoke, and it was too much for his nerves and he died. Frederick the First of Prussia was killed by fear. His wife was insane one day she escaped from her keepers, and dabbling her clothes in blood, rushed upon her husband while he was doing in his chair. King Frederick imagined her to be the white lady whose ghost was believed to invariably appear whenever the death of a member of the royal family was to occur, and he was thrown into a fever and died in six weeks. But perhaps the most remarkable death from fear was that of the Dutch painter, Pontman, who lived in the seventeenth century. One day he went into a room full of anatomical subjects to sketch some death's heads and skeletons for a picture he intended to paint. The weather was very stormy, and while sketching he fell asleep. He was aroused by bones clanking around him and the skeletons suspended from the ceiling clashing together. In a fit of terror he threw himself from the window, and, though he sustained no serious injury, and was informed that many other cases where the shock to the nervous system which we know as fright has produced death.—Washington Post.

JINGLES OF HUMOR. A Little Yachting Gathers for Leisure Barding. The Princeton boys put up a very, very "yellow game. They put orange and blues and bruiser not a few; And 'tis rumored that their college colors they are going to change; How-hey they'll be—yellow, black and blue." Why did you stop buying milk of me? asked a dealer of an old customer. Because I'm a man who never takes water. Judge—What is this man charged with? Officer—Electricity. Your Honor. He stole a battery. Shower—Why do you drink that fiery whiskey? It don't quench your thirst does it? Hennessy—Quench it? Well I hope not! Money has some human characteristics it talks and gets tight. Hopkins is a fool. He took out an accident insurance policy before going on a railroad journey. Well, that's right. But this was a Southern railroad, four miles an hour. Well, but confound it, the cows keep clabbing into the rear car and knocking people down, don't they? Confused Stranger—What is the name of this street? Citizen—Well, on this side it is called Tremont Row; on the other side is Court street; and in the middle of the street it is Scollay square. You can take your choice. The harness manufacturer is the only successful rain maker. I am not a scientist, said the shoemaker, but I do try to keep track of the sole-a-system. You are charged, sir, said the police magistrate, with attempting to kiss this woman on the street. Do you plead guilty or not guilty? Your Honor, replied the bear-eyed prisoner, taking a good look at the proceeeded witness, I plead insanity. I understand that you think your wife made a mistake in marrying you, said Brownly to Yellowbelly the other day. Who said that said Yellowbelly bawling up. Why, somebody told me that you said she was a splendid woman, one of the kind of women who deserve good husbands. Watta—What's the matter with Bragg? He walks around with his nose away up in the air and won't look at any one. Potts—He sprained his neck looking for the comet. The first question a lawyer asks about a case is whether it is a loss-lose.

OFFICE, SHARKEY'S BLOCK, QUEEN ST.

Fredericton Globe

A. J. HARRIS, Publisher and Proprietor.
FREDERICTON, N. B., DEC. 31, 1892.

A HAPPY NEW YEAR.

To all its readers and friends the Globe wishes a bright, prosperous and Happy New Year.

Eighteen Hundred and Ninety Two has almost passed away. The accumulated thoughts and actions of three hundred and sixty five days, are about being rolled into the interminable maelstrom of futurity.

The infinite variety of the moments, the silent, secret, unerring thoughts of the old year, with all their committal accompaniments, are fast hurrying to a termination; and before another day shall have poured its flood of light upon our world, the offspring of ninety-three shall have begun its successful career.

What of evil, and what of good, have transpired within the compass of the last twelve months? What advances in religion, science, literature, and art? Has the political state of society, been advancing or retrograding throughout the world? These are questions of startling import! But space will not admit of our entering into detail, for should we isolate our thoughts, their very magnitude would be illimitable indeed.

The theme is fearfully stupendous. What could we not say of the ocean, whose proud waves, lashed into fury by the storm winds, make shipwreck of the starkest specimens of human ingenuity and skill? What myriads of beings sleep the sleep of death, beneath the agonous boom of the mighty deep? The winds could speak their tale of woe; and the floods, the lightning, and the earthquake, unfold their acts of dread and wonder to a weeping universe.

But we cease to speculate. Each beating pulse we give is but the knell of a departed one to the bar of the Eternal; and more swiftly than passes the weaver's shuttle, our lives are passing away! Since the commencement of the year, allowing the world's population to recede, one to a second of time, how fearful has been the mortality among its people! For more than thirty-one millions shall have closed their eyes in death, with the last expiring gasp! Truly the world is full of the habitations of cruelty and wretchedness, and at each step we take in the ladder of human existence, the messengers of death are treading at our heels. And thus the poet truthfully says:

"For Youth with all its bloom and pride
Has Death still lingering at its side."
And even among ourselves, what sad and melancholy changes have transpired within the year. The lovely infant smiling in its innocence, has shared the fate of the beautiful maiden; and the stalwart robust youth, has fallen in the embrace of death, with the man in the full vigour of his strength. Old age in its feebleness, has sunk back, and fallen into the forgetfulness of the grave. Even so has it been. Beauty and talent and virtue have alike shared the same treatment from the hands of death, verifying the words of the Scripture, "that in the midst of life we are in death."

To-morrow eaders in the New Year, and it is our most earnest desire and hope, that all our readers may enjoy many years for serious reflection, mental improvement, prosperity in all their varied avocations, and experience the blessedness of being happy in themselves, and improving the condition of those around them; and when each one comes to say farewell, to time and the things of perishing humanity, may relinquish his hold of earthly claims, without a struggle and without a sigh!

SIR JOHN THOMPSON.
Rev. Dr. Douglas, President of the Methodist Montreal College, and at one time President of the Methodist Conference, a very able man and shining light among the Methodists everywhere, as if unable to constrain himself any longer, is out in the Montreal Witness with a tremendous tirade against the new Premier, Sir John Thompson. The chief grievance seems to be that he is a renegade Protestant and joined the Roman Catholic church for political and selfish reasons. From a good Methodist he bounded in one leap over the arms of the Roman Hierarchy in Nova Scotia, and thus by so doing gained his seat in the Nova Scotia, and afterwards the Dominion Parliament, as representative of Antigonish, a sort of pocket-borough of the Catholic Bishop—and since his perversion has become a most bigoted supporter of his new found faith and a pliant tool in the hands of what is called "the church." Dr. Douglas does not object to a man changing his religion whether from Rome to Protestantism, or vice versa, so long as the change is made for conscientious scruples and in a prayerful spirit. But in Thompson he sees only enough to arouse his ire, taking into consideration his past record as a meek and lowly Methodist, but now an upholder of the Jesuit, a creed of bitterness and gall to all Methodists, as though it were a part of their religion to feel that way. Not only so with Thompson, but his legislative conduct, as pointed out by Dr. Douglas, has been and now is chiefly in the direction of Rome and her enthrallments.

In fact he is as firmly entrenched in the hands of the bishops as the men of Ulster believe will come to Protestantism in Ireland in case of the passage of the Home Rule reform bill. That such a man should become Prime Minister of Canada, is the tidal wave which has swept all the fears and apprehensions into the Methodist breast of Dr. Douglas, and after all there may be some prose as well as poetry in the Doctor's forebodings. The Cabinet contains half a dozen good Roman Catholics—perhaps more—so that the governing powers have great resources at their command for keeping the Catholic grass all over Canada green and flourishing; besides this they have "the church" united behind them, whose spiritual backbone edicts or may edict from the Vatican. But that stalwart body of Protestants, the Orangemen, have also a representative in the same Cabinet; but when Pilot and Herod once turned the hatches, they embraced, but no good came out of the meeting. So with the Catholic and Orange elements meeting in conclave—the positive and negative poles of the battery being out of place—a dynamite shock will be no comparison to the concussion we may look for ere long. But, after all, the perturbation appears to be among the Tories themselves, and perhaps Dr. Douglas himself may be with them, and kindling the fire so fiercely warming up the Protestant heart for a spring. It is from the Tories then may come the first shock of battle. They can stand a high tariff and monopolist grinders; but when they feel or think they feel that the Pope of Rome is coming ever to usurp the rights of Queen Victoria and threaten "the old flag," it is too much for their loyalty—and it is only a question of time when Sir John Thompson must step down and out and another good for nothing Tory step in and take his place. They are a sweet set up there, from Quebec and all beyond.

NAMES OF PLACES.
There is nothing in the world more remarkable than the practice which it certainly is, of naming places after others, often in such an aggravating form that persons get bewildered and sometimes lost. As examples—we have in this province two towns called Kingston—two towns called Newcastle—the reader can continue the enquiry further by calling upon his memory, as regards the names of ships of towns. Every here and there, in this and all the provinces, and throughout the United States, there is a continual repetition of names.

How many Washingtons are there—how many Madisons—Jeffersons—Monroes—dozens we may say. St. John may do well enough, as the river was discovered on St. John's day. Then there is St. John, N.B.—upon what does this rest, perhaps the name; but one St. John is enough in proximate colonies; suppose the latter has an S. And so names are repeated, as if nothing original in the way of giving them is considered for a moment. When the railway was built from St. John to Sussex, the directors of the company struck out a new line of action in the fixing and christening of towns. Instead of "the Lakes," as they called it was changed to Quispamis—and so all along the stations—they did away with the old familiar local names and substituted the Indian vocabulary—such as Apohqui etc. The change at the time was denounced as barbarous—the people could never remember the names. Now everybody approves of the change and the names are familiar and pronounceable as the old names—90 mile house for instance, now called Redoubt Toronto was once called "Little York." How much better the name sounds today. And so on instances innumerable might be given to show the bad taste of naming towns or cities, even streets, after others, when our language is copious enough from which to choose or manufacture original names for all time to come.

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF.
We clip the following from a St. John paper "The Rev. Harry Adams, Rector of the Church of the Redeemer, New York, has proved the sincerity of certain views which he holds in regard to socialism.

NOTES AND NOTIONS

Running Comments on Passing Events
Sundry Ebulitions in Prose and Rhyme.

How the Domestic, Social and Literary World is Wagging.

His Letter.
"Dear Father: Please excuse," he wrote, "the hurried shorthand of this note. But studies so demand attention that I have barely time to mention that I am well and add that I lack funds please send me some, God-bye."
Your loving son,
He signed his name
And hastened to the football game.

She Begun Yea.
Mrs. Barnett has been a story writer ever since her eight year, or about thirty-five years.

About Plaid.
Plaid silk bodices are liked with black skirts; the full belt should be of velvet the color most predominant in the plaid, and the high, turned-over collar, and the deep cuffs should also be of the velvet. These bodices are particularly becoming to slender figures. Women with extremely broad shoulders or large busts should not attempt to wear them.

Amusement.
The new explosive, ammonite, by the use of electric firing and capped lighting, does away with flames, and is, in consequence being introduced in mines where the gases exist in explosive proportion.

What Might Happen.
If the earth were to revolve on its axis with seven times its present rapidity, the pendulum would not vibrate at all and we would weigh nothing at the equator for the centrifugal force would be so great as to throw us off.

How Do Women Kill Time.
The pulchritude man who asked this foolish question got his answer from a woman who, with her husband, two children and two servants, lived in a house with nine rooms. Having kept a statistical account for one year, she gave the results as follows: Number of inches put up, 1157; meals ordered, 963; stories read, 204; games played, 327; church service attended, 115; articles mended, 1296; articles of clothing made, 120; fancy articles made, 56; letters written, 429; hours in music, 294; hours in Sunday school work, 208; hours in gardening, 49; sick days, 44; amusements attended, 10. Besides the above I nursed two children through the measles, twice cleaned every room and corner of my house, put up 73 jars of preserves, made seven trips to the dentist, dyed Easter eggs, polished silver and spent seven days in helping to nurse a sick friend, besides the thousand and one duties too long to mention, yet taking time to perform.

Pretty Hard.
In the matter of picturesque expression there is no one to excel a Irishman. A judge was questioning an Irishman, says an exchange.

He took you by the throat and choked you, did he? asked the judge.
He did sir, said Pat. Sure, sir, he squeezed me throat till I thought he would make elder out of me Adam's apple.

The Earth's Pole.
Dr. S. P. Chandler, of Cambridge, discovered last winter that, instead of being stationary, the earth's pole moves through a circle with a radius of 45 feet during a period of 427 days. This circle is not an exact one, however, but is subject to a perturbation of about 5 feet. He has lately discovered that the pole has another motion during a year's time through a circle with a diameter of 10 feet.

Pretty Quick Traveller.
Whether at the poles or the equator, the world's people are really travelling around the sun with the earth itself at the rate of about 65,000 miles an hour. The earth's motion is one of comparative slow rotation, yet of swift progression on its orbit. This motion is not perceptible, any more than a passenger at sea, who is shut up in his state room below, knows how fast he is going.

Charging a 110-Ton Gun.
There are nine 110-ton guns in the British navy at the present time. The projectile fired from these guns when attacking ships or forts weighs exactly 1800 pounds and leaves the muzzle with a velocity of 2100 feet per second, and has a destructive energy equal to 55,305 foot tons. When these monster engines of death are to be turned upon an army of men or a flotilla of ships they are loaded with cylinders of steel, each of which is filled with 2300 4-ounce bullets. The amount of powder used behind such projectiles is something enormous—360 pounds to each charge.

He Retires from his position as rector of the parish, elevates his assistant to the pastorate and becomes assistant himself.
Both "new" and "old" salaries and then divid.

When Trinity Church in St. John was a want of a rector about 1824 the vestry applied to the Rev. J. W. L. Grey, then a minister in a Nova Scotia parish, to come over and accept the position. Dr. Grey was quite a young man and able orator. He would be willing to accept the curacy of Trinity, he said provided his father, Rev. Benjamin Grey, then rector of St. George, Halifax, was made rector of Trinity, he himself serving in the lumber capacity—to which the vestry agreed, for they well knew that by whatever name called they would have the services of the young man they were after. How they "pooled" the salaries as indicated in the extract, we did not stop to inquire.

A Floral Hint.
If your geranium plants are infested with insects, try kerosene emulsion made from the following formula: Kerosene, two parts; slightly sour milk, one part. Churn together until the two liquids unite. When small quantities are prepared, use a syringe. If a larger amount is desired, use a small brass syringe, which may be inserted in the liquid and used like a pump. Much agitation is needed to make the liquids unite. Use one part of the "butter" to twelve parts water. Spray the plants with this emulsion. The geranium requires a soil of loam, made light with sand and well enriched with manure.

All Alumina.
The ruby, sapphire, the oriental emerald, the oriental topaz, the oriental amethyst, the oriental aquamarine, the oriental chrysolite, the iolite and other precious stones are all alumina, the varieties of color being caused by insuperable qualities of metallic oxides.

WHERE TO BUY CHRISTMAS DRY GOODS?

Well that enquiry is easily answered, for there seems to be but one general opinion on that point among shopping people who say that

EDGECOMBE

Keeps by far the largest and best assorted stock of Staple and Fancy Dry Goods to select from in the trade, and at the same time sells them at the lowest prices, while his large double store on first floor, with the roomy flats above, so easy of access, afford everybody perfect comfort and convenience in getting around and transacting their business. So much for where to buy. Now the enquiry

WHAT TO BUY.

Will depend a good deal upon circumstances. There certainly is at Edgcombe's almost unlimited choice for you, whether you want Ladies' Dress Gowns, Jackets, Furs, Gentlemen's Wearing Apparel, Boys' Wear, or Handsome Articles for the adornment of your house. We might enumerate hundreds of nice things, but the best way is to come and make your own selection, for the
