New York, July 26.—A news agency despatch from Athens published here today says:

"For the second time since operations in the Dardanelles began, a British submarine has penetrated the harbor of Constantinople, sinking a Turkish transport, two gunboats and a steamer loaded with ammunition.

"Advices reaching here from Canstantinople said the submarine first torpedoed a Turkish transport in the Sea of Marmora. Proceeding to Constantinople, the British raider sank the gunboats and the ammunition steamer near the wharves.

"One of the submarine's shots damaged the wharf at Tophane, a suburb of Constantinople, where the Turkish soldiers fired several rifle shots at the submarine as she disappeared.

"British avaitors bombarded Smyrna yesterday, destroying the gas works and petrol depots, according to Mitylene despatches. A French aviator destroyed a Turkish convoy near the Asiatic Minor port of Aivali."

Washington, July 26.—The torpedo ing of the American steamer Leelanaw is a shock to American officials, who see in the incident further aggravation of the Leelanaw have been received here, but it is clear that the submarine gave the commander of the steamer ample warning, even permitting the crew to collect part of their infects before taking them aboard the inderwater craft, which then, through the combined use of shell fire and hombs sent the vessel to the bottom. The London evening papers, in telling of the incident, employ, in some cases, suggestive captions, such as "An Unfriendly Act." But because the American note laid so much stress on the demand that American lives in merchant ships should not be jeopardized without warning, it was difficult for the English mind to determine whether the suking of the ship after the crew were taken off constituted.

FRANCE AS IT LOOKS UNDER WAR CONDITIONS

CHILDREN IN FRANCE SING TIPPERARY AND CHEER THE SHIP FROM "L'ANGLETERRE"

Colin McKay Gives Impressions of a Visitor SOME FACTS to France-Everywhere is Evidenced the Sombre Shadow of War Resting Upon the Land.

Special Staff Correspondence of The Standard,
France, July 4.—One does not have to be in France very long to realize that the country is at war. The sombre shadow of a great and terrible tragedy rests upon the land. Along the Seine one passes willages and towns, and seldom sees an able-bodied man. Women stand steads and straight in the doorways of pretty cottages. Here and there an old man basks in the sun. Groups of children march and counter-march Hightheartily playing at soldiering. They stop to waye flags and cheer the ship from L'Angleterre, and sing the chorus of Tipperary. Infrequently an automobile bearing men in uniform shoots along the river banks; or a stray motor cycle also carrying a man in uniform whizzes by The picturesque villages and towns, the rich and beautiful countrysides. eem to lack the air of animation and activity they ought to have. In the towns many shops are shuttered; and in may of the fields grass is over-ripe and withering away. And in the cities there is also an apparent lack of able-bodied young men in civilian garb. Aged men are employed at occupations in which they would not be tolerated in normal times; on many of the tram cars girls are conductors. And widows are all too plen

In the cities there are lots of men in uniform—in motley you might say. Even after months of war the French soldiers are a study in colors and as their uniforms are usually the worse for wear the colors rather emphasize their shabbiness and give them a pathetic aspect. They do not look very martial, these multi-colored French soldiers. And they don't look theatrical in this atmosphere—though in peace times they would. Many of them have bandaged heads, arms in slings, or limp painfully along with the aid of crutch or cane. Some wear red cans, dark blue tunics, baggy red trousers and black top boots; others wear gray caps with red bands, light blue frock coats hanging. below their knees, and corduroy trousers, with gray puttees and tan boots. And these and various other combinations of color may be combined to form still other combinations on men bearing the same regimental number. But the effect is not enlivening. Something serious and grim in the aspect of the soldiers seems to give a sombre air to their fantastic raiment. Even the khaki of the British soldier seems cheerful by contrast. Some of the French soldiers are in khaki, a khaki of a more greenish color than that of the British, but most of the khaki clad soldiers I have seen in France were British, and there are many of them. One meets an occasional Canadian, and if he has not been to the front he looks as he does in England the neatest and best dressed of British soldiers, barring only the Australians. Whether it is the cut of the garment or the finish of the cloth, Canadian soldiers' uniforms generally look much better than those of the British, though not quite as good to my fancy as the uniforms of the Australians. But the wounded Canadian from the front looks as rumpled, and as much the worse for wear as any other British

The other day I saw a member of a Toronto regiment who was formerly paying teller in the St. John Branch of the Bank of Montreal. He had several flesh wounds, and was going to England for repairs. His uniform was rumpled and shabby—looked as if he had slept in it, for months. Gashes in it made by shrapnel had not been sewn up; string and safety pins were in the place of brass buttons. On his head he wore a gray tam o' shanter, and he had a carpet slipper on one foot and a cavalry boot on the other. Yet in spite of his bedraggled and motley array, his keen intellectual face, bright eyes, and cheerful smile gave him an air of distinction and efficiency that set him apart from the general ruck of Tommies, looking bewildered and much the worse for

And there are Turcos, too, dark important looking personages, mostly heavy men with grotesque headgear and flowing purnooses, many with their breasts decorated with ribbons and medals.

Sometimes you see French soldiers in baggy trousers, guarding a unconcerned. And almost everywhere you see widows, women in mourning, crippled men with stunned looks, girls with haunting, hope-it had been shown that something like $6,000 of a $50,000,000 war vote had been diverted from its proper channel, said that there were other contracts which he deemed wise to investigate.

Three weeks ago, before the Davidson Royal Commission, Mr. Fraser was asked, if we remember rightly, if he had found further evidence of wrong-doing, or anything that incited his criticism, suspicion or condemnation.

His reply was that he had found nothing wrong, but that there were some matters he desired to further probe. Yesterday Mr. Fraser was again asked by the Royal Commission counsel if he had discovered wrong-doing, and again the answer was in the negative; the auditor-general adding that many things that seemed suspicious a first were being explained in the 000 vote as well as to the vote of $50,000,000 last August.

The auditor-general's statement should be given the widest pos-sible publicity. Coming after a disgraceful period of reckless abuse and vilification of Canadian business and government by an ignorant or partisan press anxious to advertise its virtue by attacking the virtue of others, of denunciation by an hysterical and gu lible section of the pulpit, this testimonial to the honest, businesslike expenditure of scores of mil-lions of dollars is refreshing.

Despite all that has been said and done to make things look as black as possible the plain, un varnished fact stands out that not one-twentieth of one-quarter per cent. of war money has been lost. The newspapers that went off at half-cock and shouted "maggotry" hurled several shells at the Orduna from the house-tops should now crawl into a hole and pull the to thirty-eight shillings was the ruling price, the latter being considered rather high. And not only is this increase of two hundred and fifty per cent. insufficient to attract all the steam tonnage required, but shippers are able to secure enough for their immediate requirements only with considerable difficulty. It is not, therefore, a matter of price alone, but an actual shortage of vessels because of so many being withdrawn from gene al commerce for military purposes.

The time is approaching when shipments will be totally prohibited from reasons, high rates of freight and Sailing Vessels.

The complete list of machine gun curitbutions secured by G. S. Mayes sailing vessel space available, but lumbermen in this province are an oparticularly anxious to make charters of this nature. It is a last resort, and there are many, a majority of shippers in fact, who prefer in closing down altogether to using this class. A cargo of lumber means a lot of money. A sailing vessel may arrive to load anywhere within a month or soo of the new scination within a month or more of as gun load the expected time, and may reach its destination within a month or more of its due date. This means the ticup of cash representing the worth of a gun bard Dawson, E. L. Rising, ball, Chas. Medonada, Mr. Mayes said yesterday that they care to delay in time of loading, etc. Be sides this the insurance rate on lumber carried in sail is now three times that on steam tonnase, and this in its self means a whole lot. This statement is true as applied to the averages vessel, but of course some of the new er craft, those under ten years of age for example, though these are comparatively few, enjoy a somewhat lower rate.

This whole thing means, if present conditions are any indication that many of the important mills in the province will have to stop sawing in from a month to six weeks, and that they will spend the winter in idleness with half of last season's cut still on hand in the shape of logs. Indeed even with a sufficiency of tonnage this course may become necessary in the event of further depression in the English lumber market. Having these logs uncut, the natural policy will be to reduce next winter's operations to such an extent that there will be available by next spring only the normal number of of logs, a reduction of fifty per cent, in the winter operations. How this will affect the provincial revenues is easily seen, and as this conservations of containing the peak that those who have given held their checks to dayor Frink, by who the amount for site of they need to they have to clock to dayor Frink, by who the amount for leaf, and ask that those who have given held their checks to dayor Frink, by who the amount for clock Sergeant Caples with Patrolman Mcybre Frink, by whom the amount for clock Sergeant Caples with Patrolman Mcybre Sergeant Caples with Patrolman Mcybre services to the afternoon about five o'clock Mayor Frink, by whom the amount for all pill.

A young woman, giving her name as Rosa Maggio, was gathered in by the police some weeks ago for street walking. When first this woman came into the hands of the police she had the sum of $148 in her possession, which she claimed to have earned as a chorus girl. The next day she claimed that she was robbed, and shortly after she was arrested on the charge as stated above.

When the girl first made the acquintance of the police she claimed she was a Russian, but it was soon found out by the government interpreter that she was a German. Boxing promoters and fight followers of California take a very gloomy view of the future of the sport. Those men were great fighters because they fought for fighting's sake,
It is impossible to imagine Fitzsimmons being spoiled by the fact that safely stall through ten rounds with ing his title.

There is little about any of them that appeals to the imagination. Their conversation and thoughts are devoted to money matters exclusively. The sporting spirit is entirely absent. This is not so much the fault of the ghters themselves, who are gamblers by nature or they would not have entered the game in the first place. It is the men who control them who are respon-sible. Most of the stars are controlled by a few men who make a business of managing fighters. These fellows care nothing for the sporting side of boxing and they quickly discourage any ten-dency in their meal tickets to take a taught to hug and wrestle instead of to fight in the open and to steer clear of the money in sight when making a match is laugher at by the other members of the clique not immediately concerned in the affair and the fighter is told that he is a sicker to have such a Even Ketchel, with all his reckless ways that made him a public idol, would soon have his carefree spirit, subdued if he were alive today and a member of a modern manager's string. Young Ahearn's challenge to all the heavyweight contenders sounds like a real sporting offer. Ahearn has done some good work since he returned from England but the memory of his decisive defeats by Packey McFarland obtaining recognition. However, they happened when Ahearn was merely an undeveloped youngster and they should have no bearing on his present status.

Moonlight Excursion
Many people enjoyed a moonlight excursion on the river last evening in the steamer May Queen, held under the auspices of the Brotherhood of Railroad Employees. The City Cornet band accompanied the excursion and rendered several choice selections during the trip, besides furnishing music for dancing in the pavilion on the Crystal Beach picnic grounds. The excursion was greatly augmented by a special instrumental and vocal concert given on the steamer and on the grounds. The excursion was nevery way an enjoyable one and those who returned at 12.30. o'clock had a beautiful sail on the o'clock had a beautiful sail on the river.

Have the New Fall Suit Made Early

Advance Showing of Autumn Materials for Suits and Dresses in Ever Fashionable Black

It is the slack season now for ladies' tailors, and most of them are anxious to keep their hands employed in order to hold them for the later rush. You will therefore be able to have work done at less expense this early in the season, and you will get better results in fitting and finishing and

You will also be quite certain to get the material to better advantage now than if you wait until fall, as everyone knows the cloth market is uncertain because of the war, and there is only one way for prices to go and that is "higher." So that there are two very good reasons why it will pay to have suits and dresses made as early as you can. Look through our immense display of black materials for what you require.
