Entertainment at Memramook.

A grand dramatic and musical entertainment was given at St. Joseph's College, by the students of that institution, on Monday.

The day was very favorable, and early in the afternoon people from a distance were noticed arriving in large numbers. Amongst the strangers were noticed the Revs. Messrs. Richard Bradley, Ouellette, Michael, Meahan, the Hon. P. A. Landry, P. S. Poirer, &c.

The doors were opened at 7 1/2 p. m., and the hall was soon over-crowded—the audience consisting of about 800 persons—and many could not get admittance. The performance opened with "Brisé du Soir," by the College Band, and was admirably rendered.

"Les Enfants de Baguere," chorus, well received by the general audience. "The Procession of Our Criminel," a trial in court over the hanging of a cat, was a laughable piece, and was well received by young boys. A violin duet, "Norms," by Prof. Bourque and Mr. D. Gagnon, rounded in the series of the entertainment. The next part on the programme, "Edouard le Confesseur," King of England, a tragedy in five acts, represented as taking place in the royal palace, at Winchester. This piece occupied about one hour and a half, and was executed in a commanding manner. Although rendered in a rather tragical sense to be admired by everybody, it was one of the best rendered and most touching scene that was ever represented by the students of the college. The correct diction, "Pot Pourri," by Prof. Bourque, was, in every sense, the best piece we have ever heard here performed on a concert. Next came "Tribulations de Dessepoir d'un Madelin," a laughable farce, which was highly received, and caused many good laughs amongst the audience. "Evangeline et la Canadienne," by the College Band, was a very creditable piece. After the performance, eloquent addresses were delivered by Messrs. Richard Bradley, Michael, Lefebvre, and Hon. P. A. Landry, which were all enthusiastically received by the audience. Our space does not permit us to reproduce the addresses. The audience dispersed at about 12.30, and everybody seemed to have enjoyed the evening, and a majority seemed willing to remain a few hours longer (especially some of the boys who had their "boys" with them). The distribution of prizes took place Tuesday forenoon, and the happy students have gone home once more on a vacation.
