The demand from the continent for gold virtually ceased, and it was thought that the United States may find the necessary gold without applying to Europe. Silver prices were steadied by the prospect of an import duty in India. The inquiry for silver was moderate. The Stock Exchange was extremely inactive, although prices were fairly steady. Perturbed Sicily.

Rome, Jan. 14.—Socialists met in Leghorn last evening to debate recent events in Sicily. They protested against the sending of troops to the island, called the dead Sicilian rioters "martyrs" and appealed to Italian workingmen to declare on Monday general strike as a demonstration of their brotherhood with the Sicilian workingmen. A riot was caused in Massi di Carrara, near the Gulf of Genoa, yesterday afternoon, by the attempt of Anarchists to cut the cables. London, Jan. 14 .- Dispatches which left Uganda on August and arrived here this evening, report fighting between Protestant and Mohammedan natives at Toro. The Protestants were trying to drive the Mohammedans from the country and pushed them te a river, where the fugitives were obliged to turn and fight. The Protestants were victorious, killing more than 30 and capturing 1,500 men, women and children. Four Protestants were killed and many others were wounded. Major Owen of the British force afterward offered his meditation and restored peace. Mr. Gladstone replied that the question was one of great importance. He added: "I am not sure whether the House is aware that when the Earl of Clarendon was Foreign Secretary he made an attempt in this direction. I do not know that it was done in a strictly official sense, and it was therefore not made the subject of a document communicating the fact to Parliament. The Earl of Clarendon received an encouraging answer from one great European Government. He was unable to carry he matter further. Lawrence raised £10,000 for the purpose of meeting the expenses of establishing his claim. Col. Jacques employed Sclicitor Thomas to push the case. Mr. Thomas brought an action in chancery, but without result. He said he had expended £12,000 in costs. This was doubted and an order was issued in chambers, calling upon him to furnish his accounts in the High Court of Justice which affirmed the order and directed the law surety to examine all the documents. The court said it was of opinion that it was a remarkable case and that it ought to be further investi-

They Died Hard.

CAPE TOWN, Jan. 14 .- A full account of the massacre of Capt. Wilson's force says: According to Buluwayo advices some natives who arrived there in order to surrender their arms and make terms with the British commander admit that they were present when the Wilson detachment was destroyed. These natives say that Capt. Wilson, who was in pursuit of King Lobengula, suddenly came upon a strong detachment of Matabeles, headed by the king himself. The latter was able to mount a horse and fly before the British advance. But when the information was conveyed to the king that the Wilson party was few in number, some reports placing the detachment as only 40 British troopers and 100 or so auxiliaries, the king managed to get the Matabeles to make a stand and prepare to take the small British force in a trap, instructing the center the British troopers who were pressing their horses onward through the Matabele ranks in the hopes of capturing the king. The right and left flanks of the Matabele impis were instructed to deploy to the right and to the left and then to gradually converge inward so as to take the British force on both flanks and in the rear. The British troopers, under the impression that the Matabele power was entirely broken, pressed onward after the king, keeping up running fire upon the retreating Matabeles, which distracted the attention of Capt. Wilson from the maneuver which the king had planned.

In the meantime the mounted portion of Capt. Wilson's force had become separated from the navy auxiliaries, who on foot formed the rear guard of the small force. When King Lobengula saw that the British were surrounded on either side, he made a stand upon some high ground and at the same time the Matabeles on the flanks began moving inwards and the fate of the British detachment was sealed.

When it was too late Capt. Wilson saw the trap into which he had fallen, owing to his over-confidence and to the impressive desire of the troopers to capture King Loben- Thursday she visited the Court of Appeal to gula. Then began a gallant fight to the death. From behind their dead horses the British troopers kept up a continual fire with their earbines upon the steadily advancing Matabeles, and when the carbines were no longer of use, owing to the proximity of the savage enemy, they drew their revolvers and awaited the last rush of the natives. It was not long delayed, and then followed a deadly hand-to-hand conflict, during which sword and revolver met assegai and club, only to be swept down beneath the onward rush of overwhelming numbers, and thus, beneath a shower of assegais, the troopers, fighting gallantly to the last, and firing even when upon their

Wilson's force, outside of a few natives, is now said to have numbered only 34 British troopers, and the number of natives which surrounded them is variously estimated at from 1,000 to 4,000. The Wilson party included Capts. Fitzgerald, Judd, Greenfield, Kirton and Barrow, and Lieuts. Hughes and Hoffmeyer. Among the troopers under the command of these officers were a lot of youngsters belonging to some of the best families in England, who enlisted as troopers in order to get their first taste of campaigning. These young men included among their number the son of Sir Julius Vogel, formerly the agent-general for New Zealand in London. All reports confirm the statements that the young troopers made the most gallant defense, keeping the savages at bay for a comparatively long time, owing to their excellent marksmanship and the gallant manner in which they faced the enemy, though wounded time and again. The reports add that every man among them had one or more wounds and that the Matabeles were unable to sweep over them until nearly every cartridge was exhausted and

London, Jan. 15 .- London society was exasperated last week by a series of articles in the St. James' Gazette detailing the experiences of an American young could introduce her into court and other servant problem, assumed the role of the American heiress. The mass of replies which were received from more or less impecunious persons of title, although printed without the names of the writers, has made a genuine sensation. Two chapters have been devoted to tentative offers of marriage from scions of British nobility. The expose may be accepted as conclusive proof both of the hard times in Great Britain and of the venality of the British Thackeray's Widow. The death of Thackeray's widow was the breaking of a link with the past which few people, even in England, knew existed. For more than half a century she lived a of his force to continue retreating before clouded existence under the closest care. She retained till the last, in spite of her mental affliction, the capacity to enjoy her only source of happiness-music. She was buried by the side of her husband, who was hastened to a premature grave by grief over her blighted life. It is a modest spot. The sepulture was in Kensal Green Cemetery. Close to the path a plain, flat stone bears a simple inscription giving the dates of the birth and death of the author of "Vanity Fair." The grave is surrounded by a low iron railing, around which a luxuriant growth of ivy has twined. In summer a few simple flowers bloom in the narrow beds that skirt the turf.

A Woman Captures the Court. The English High Temple of Justice witnessed the other day the edifying spectacle of the judges of the Court of Appeal driven from the bench by the tongue of an angry woman. The court house had been haunted for months by a Mrs. Thompson, a half crank, who has a real or imaginary grievance. It was a weekly occurrence for her to be ejected from one court or another. On lodge an informal personal protest. A Queer Miser. A queer miser died this week in Berlin. She was the widow of a builder named Weiss. The old woman lived for years on alms received from neighbors, for she was and not ashamed to beg her daily bread. She was taken ill. The doctor, who called four times, charged her 8 marks, but could not get his money. After she died her belongings were collected. A bag containing bank notes and State bonds worth $50,000 was found hidden in her bedstead. A mechanic in Dresden inherits this wealth, which will be considerably reduced, however, by the income tax office, which will deduct an income tax for many years.

Bismarck received over 3,000 congratulations on New Year's Day, an increase of about 500 over last year. About 1,500 were from Germans living abroad, of which 1,000 were from Germans in America. One of the first telegrams received came from the Prince Regent of Bavaria. Most of the other German federal princes sent congratulatory telegrams. The Emperor sent none. As is his custom every year, Prince Bismarck addressed a long letter of congratulation to the Emperor, for which the latter thanked him through his Cabinet.

A correspondent says: "His face is beginning to show the beauty of old age. His features are more interesting now than formerly, and everybody who has had the privilege lately of gazing upon them has carried away with him an indelible impression. The Prince's eyes retain their oft. admired brightness, although at times they betray the solemn tranquility of old age. His mental faculties and physical activity are unimpaired; his marvelous memory is not dimmed."

Preparing for War.

At no time in this generation has the English press used such extraordinary language on the subject of a threatened war as filled their columns last week. In newspaper offices elaborate preparations are being pushed forward for covering the campaign. Not only are war correspondents being engaged, but certain London journals are arranging for press steamers under the Red Cross or American flags, in the English Channel and Mediterranean, and for correspondents on battle ships. It is strongly believed in Fleet street, as I intimated last week, that Lord Rosebery shares the darkest forebodings. In fact, the war panic, in certain circles, has reached a more acute stage than at any time since England last sheathed her sword.

The French Blunder. The collision between French and English troops in West Africa thres.tened at the beginning of the week to cause trouble. It was, however, so obviously the fault of woman who advertised for a chaperon who the French commander that the most Anglophobist papers in Paris perceived no exclusive circles. El zabeth L. The English press, moreover, discussed it who recently started a lively controversy with a fairness and moderation which ought by her investigations of the domestic to be, but will not be, a lesson to the French press. Further accounts are awaited, but there is no reason to doubt that the whole matter will be settled amicably between the French and English foreign offices.

Wily Russia.

Every day brings a fresh story of plots by aggressive continental powers. It is again asserted that Russis has practically accomplished her purpose to get possession of Mount Athos and its harbors and roadstead, in the Turkish peninsula, with the design to make it the headquarters of its Mediterranean fleet.

The Pall Mall Gazette asserts that Russia has purchased all the monasteries on Mount Athos, formerly occupied by Greek orthodox monks, and the district has been converted into Russian territory. The locality is in the hands of Russian soldiers, under cover of monastic robes, who are now performing three years special military service there.

The Employes of a Tied-Up Railway in the West Hard Up.

DENVER, Col., Jan. 15 .- A committee of employes of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway Company called on Gov. Waite Saturday and stated that the engineers, conductors, brakemen, switchmen and trackmen have received no salary since October, and many of the men and their families are on the verge of starvation. Gov. Waite and Judge Hallet held a take immediate action.

-Both William Bryan and Dennis Mulaly were committed for trial in the Police Court this morning on a charge of stealing an overcoat from the Tecumseh House. Bryan admitted that he sold the coat, but denied any complicity in the theft. Mullaly was discreetly silent. John Loughnane, the bartender whose evidence was lacking on Saturday, gave a satisfactory statement. Mr. John Moore said that the windows in his pigeon house, which were broken by three boys-Howard Ensign, Benjamin Snider and Lorenzo Lake-had been repaired, but in, he added, "an unsatisfactory manner." The magistrate presumed that the thing was satisfactory, though, and dismissed the case.

The Appointment of Standing Committees Cut and Dried.

Ex-Ald. Moule Made Police Court Clerk -The Board of Health and School Trustees-Walker Prepared to Assume the L, and P. S. R. Next Month.

The council of 1894 met at 11 o'clock this morning. Ald. Coo and Ald. John Heaman were absent as the proceedings opened, but Mr. Coo, who was on the striking committee, arrived in time to take his position. The members seated around the circle were: Ald. Taylor, Ald. Pritchard, Ald. O'Meara. Ald. J. W. Jones, Ald. Thos. Jones, Ald. Carrothers, Ald. Wm. Heaman, Ald. Scarrow, Ald. J. Garratt, Ald. James Fitzgerald, Ald. Dreaney, Ald. Nutkins, Ald. F. J. Fitzgerald, Ald. Judd, Ald. Shaw and Ald, Parnell. Mayor Essery was present, with City Clerk Kingston and Sergeant-at-Arms Merrit. Rev. Evans Davis also occupied a seat in the chamber. There was a large attendance of spectators in the body of the hall, and several members of the School Board sat within the

THE OPENING PRAYER. After City Clerk Kingston had announced that a quorum was present the mayor called upon Rev. Evans Davis to open the proceedings of the council of 1894 with prayer. The latter said-O God, forasmuch as without thee we are not able to please thee, mercifully grant that thy holy spirit may in all things direct and rule our hearts. And, O God, as thou hast said in thy holy word that righteousness exalteth a nation, so we pray thee that thou wilt guide this council with thine own unerring wisdom, that in all their deliberations they may be governed by that which is right in the sight of God; seeking thine honor and the well-being of the citizens of this community over whom they are called upon to rule with that wisdom and prudence that is essential to the proper carrying out of that work. Guide them who are to sit about this council chamber and co-operate with them, that, all their work glory and the good of those in whose interest they deliberate and sit, that all may bewell. Bless them individually in the labors before them. May it prove rich in blessingf, full of deep interests and work forth well and profitably for the well-being of all concerned. Bless them in this deliberative board, bless the citizens in whose interests they assemble, and O, God, may they have the co-operation and the assistance and the good-will of those whom they endeavor to serve. May their hands be strenghtened and may they be upheld and act from principle, doing that which is right. God bless the work before them this day. Guide them with thy wisdom, sustain them by thy grace and bless them abundantly, and if spared to see the close of the year may they be able to look back upon their action with satisfaction and pleasure, knowing at least they have done their best, and having the gratitude of those in whose interests they labor.

In conclusion, Mr. Davis prayed for the morality of the city, for the prevalence of brotherly love and good-will towards men around the council board. As the minister closed with the Lord's Prayer the members of the board, who were standing, repeated the words after him.

The Mayor's Inaugural. The inaugural address this year was short. The mayor returned thanks for his re-election, welcomed back the old members and then welcomed the new. After referring briefly to the old council and extolling their work and anticipating the same earnest labor from the members before him, he said that there were just two or three things of importance to come before them that they knew of as yet. One of them was to endeavor to carry out to a consummation the bringing of the G. T. R. car shops to the city. There was no question about it; the citizens had placed them in such a position conference on the matter. Judge Hallet that they could now ask the Grand decided to ask the receiver at Topeka to Trunk to carry out their promise and concentrate the whole of their shops west of Toronto within the borders of London. Then they would also have to see that the lease of the L. and P. S. R. to the L. E. and D. R. R. was fully carried out so far as they were concerned. But the latter matter lay in their own hands. All that they had to do was to attend the meeting with the directors, and the result of the meeting would be final. There would be terminals to look after for the L. and P. S. road during the present year, and that, with the car shops question, would be the most important matter coming before them. After stating that it was not necessary to talk about what the future would develop-they had been ready for it last year and would be ready for it again-the mayor sat down. A vote of thanks was then tendered to

Rev. Evans Davis, who replied and then retired. The minutes of 1893 were confirmed as printed. Was It Cut and Dried?

The next business was the formation of a triking committee to strike the different committees for the year. Ald. Pritchard moved, seconded by Ald.

James Fitzgerald, that the striking Committee be composed of Ald. Taylor, Coo, T. Jones, Garratt, Dreaney and Shaw. Ald. Parnell took objection to the mode of procedure. It had been customary in former years, with only one exception that he knew of, that the aldermen polling the highest vote in each ward should form that committee. Therefore he moved in amendment that the committee be composed of the members polling the highest vote in their respective wards.

Ald. O'Meara seconded and spoke in favor of Ald. Parnell's amendment. To the honor and credit of the council this rule should be carried out. He did not see why Ald. Pritchard should have brought in a list cut and dried. He understood that the thing had been settled for over a week. Ald. Thos. Jones said that Ald. Parnell had originated in 1892 the idea of having

The mob was one of the quietest and most determined that ever came together. It was a fiercely earnest and heartless mob, also, for the victims were not given even time to pray until they were dropped into eternity. The victims were J. G. Burton, Wm. Gay and the latter's son, John Gay, who had lived to-gether on Burton's farm. The men were

Nerviline deserves such a commendation, for it is a most powerful, penetrating and certain remedy for pain of all kinds. Take no

SPIRITUALISTS ON THE WARPATH.

Excitement in Battle Creek Over the Case of Joseph King.

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Jan. 14 .- The excitement over the Joseph King (medium) case does not subside. He has gone to his home in Benton Harbor, and will return next week. He made a unique proposition. He will e Justice Henry and Presecuting Attorney Clark a private seance and convince them that he can materialize spirit forms. He will show them spooks enough to make them shake in their boots. This is certainly a havel way to present testimony and is new aw practice.

There are quite a number of wealthy spiritualists here, and they are very indignant over the treatment of King. According to the testimony of the witnesses at the examination they made up a plot to visit King and expose him. His friends say that they will prosecute the men for conspiracy. They will also prosecute the men for breakng up a religious meeting. The spiritualists are right on the war path and say that they will fight to the bitter end.

HARRISON, Me., Jan 14.-The public adninistrator, in looking over the premises occupied by Miss Sarah Holden, of this town, who died last week, after a life of privation, found $600 in bills sewed into an old skirt, which she wore.

The skirt was patched in many places, and under each patch was one or more greenbacks. The woman's death was astened by lack of food.

THE A. P. A. EAGLE

Screamed Too Loud, and the Editor Has Been Arrested.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Jan. 14.—The American Eagle, the organ of the A. P. A. in this city, contained an article Saturday, charging that a young lady inmate of the Catholic Orphan Asylum here was locked in a dungeon because she refused the advances of a priest. A few hours after the issue of the paper a warrant was issued for Editor Bidwell's arrest on charge of criminal libel. The clergy and prominent members of the church here are nighly indignant. They mean to compel Bidwell to tell the name of his informant. The story is that the young lady attracted the attention of a young man on the street and told him her story, but this seems improbable, as according to the same story she could not communicate with the outer world. There is no dungeon connected with the asylum, and Father Borg has filed an affidavit that no occurrence of the kind ever happened.

INCOME TAX IN GREAT BRITAIN.

(New York World.)

It is true that Great Britain is not a republic in form, but its people through their representatives in the House of Commons help to make the laws and are especially influential in determining the taxes. So far as these are concerned the people of Great Britain have and exercise as much power as the people of the United States. If they had found the income tax burdensome they would have demanded its repeal, and the demand would have been obeyed by Parliament. But instead of discontent with the tax the people are so thoroughly satisfied of its equity that when Mr. Gladstone offered to repeal it in 1874 the suggestion was not acted on.

An income tax was established in Great Britain in 1798. The first tax fell upon incomes in proportion to their amounts, but this was changed by the second act, passed in 1799, and thereafter the tax fell upon the entire income, £60 being exempt, and reduced rates being charged on incomes ranging from £60 to £200.

The tax was repealed in 1816, but was revived in 1842 by Sir Robert Feel to meet a deficiency and to enable the Government to make some needed reforms. The situation in Great Britain then was not unlike that which now confronts this country, but Sir Robert Peel's proposal to provide the Government with funds by an income tax was not met by the intimation that its revivers were Communists, as the like proposition is received here by persons who care more for escaping taxation than for the justice or fairness of the tax, and who are opposed to all "class legislation" except such as discriminates against the poor. For more than 50 years this tax has been levied without serious opposition from the people. In 1874, as has been stated, Mr. Gladstone thought that the Government could get on without it, but the Commons did not urge its repeal and the matter was dropped. In the same year the Govern-ment was changed and Sir Stafford North-cote reduced the rate to 2 pence in the pound. One great virtue of the tax is that the rate may be varied with the needs of the Government without disturbing business. Since 1876 it was advanced to 7 pence, which is the rate for this year. In 1881 and in 1885 it was down to 1 penny.

In 1876 the exemptions were increased, This was also the work of Sir Stafford Northcote, who, being a conservative financier, may be assumed to have faithfully represented the large property interests whose burdens were increased by diminishing the burdens upon small incomes. Under existing law incomes to £150 are exempt, and an allowance of £120 is made on incomes between £150 and £400. The incidence of the tax is at the source of the income—that is, the tax on the income derived from shares, for example, is paid by the corporation and deducted from the shareholders' dividends.

The experience of Great Britain with the ncome tax has been such as to reccommend a return to it by this country. There is little complaint there of the inquisitorial nature of the tax. And it is the belief of the tax authorities that few people try to escape its burdens. The yield of the tax in 1893 was £13,

A Sign of Promise

for 1894

Every good business man is now studying the signs of the times. General business, although dull, did not prove exceptionally so in 1893 for those who persistently sought it in legitimate ways by judicious newspaper advertising. However dull it may be at any time, it will always be dullest with those who fail to advertise their wares.

Business is not dead, but there is not enough of it at present to satisfy every one. Many get less than they need. Some get enough. The latter are always the liberal advertisers. As in the past, so in the future—they will get the lion's share. Now is the time to plan out a vigorous campaign for 1894. We are ready to assist.

Everywhere throughout Western Ontario-in the homes, on the news-stands street cars, depots, railway trains; in fact, whenever and wherever people have time to read, they have the people's favorite paper, The LONDON ADVERTISER, with them. Its motto is-"First of all, the news." The AD-VERTISER is bright and clean, and will always be found sustaining its position abreast of all that is best in legitimate iournalism.

THE IMPINDING GENERAL ELEC-TION.

Some people professedly wonder what will happen when Sir Oliver Mowat appeals to the country after next session of be Legislature.

Would they be very much surprised, at th close of polling day, that the Grand OloMan of Ontario had swept the country, and was guaranteed a majority greater than hat now sitting by his side in the Assemly ?

But i may be said the opponents of Sir Oliver M wat are asserting that he will be couted. That is nothing. They screeched themselve hoarse prior to the elections of 1886 and 1890. They were sure that "Mowat mist go!" and that "His hour has come !" But the populace replied with an emphatic "No!"

THE UNIVERSAL ELEVATOR. The London Free Press devotes its days sorts of statements, including those penned effects of the efforts to restrict the traffic in intoxicants in Iowa.

We care little for Mr. Preston's figures. which apply to a state of affairs totally different from those that prevail in this lawabiding, well-governed, progressive Province of Ontario.

Our contemporary professes to obtain much consolation from the reply of Mr. Justice Rose to the grand jurors' presentment at the recent Middlesex Assizes. The grand jurors unanimously offered their congratulations on the outcome of the plebiscite on prohibition, which, they pointed out, resulted in a magnificent majority against the manufacture and sale of intoxicating drinks, and they further expressed the view that "when the wishes of the people is passed into the statutes of the Dominion, that the effect will be to lessen the criminal list and to empty our jails." Judge Rose, in reply, expressed an opinion adverse to the Scott Act and adverse to any attempt to make men moral by act of Parliament.

The grand jury were in the right, not Mr. Justice Rose.

Judge Rose is only one individual, and his opinions count for no more than those of any other citizen of like position in life. For one judge that can be found to say a word in favor of the liquor traffic, ten judges can be adduced who attribute to it a very large proportion of the crime and poverty that prevail in the land. Justice Rose is a Methodist. In his own body his opinion is contradicted by ninety-nine out of every hundred of the preachers and

As to the Scott Act, which our contemporary advances as an evidence of the failure of prohibition, the temperance people do not look upon it as an effective prohibition measure and never did. From time to time, it was emasculated by the Dominion Government for political purposes. The Dominion officials stipulated in the act as prosecutors declined to prosecute, and there was constant friction between the Local and Dominion authorities as to the carrying out of the measure. In this advanced age the temperance people are glad to find the newspaper defender of the traffic in intoxicants pitching into the Scott Act, for the reasons here stated, and also because a prohibition that breaks out in spots-that is prevalent in one town and not in the neighboring burgh, that is in force in one township and not in the municipalities touching its borders on all sides, could never be effective, No such half-way measure can be properly carried out, and all the objections that can be urged to it but strengthen the claims of the wider, completer enactment now sustained by a large majority in Ontario, in Manitoba and in Prince Edward Island. However, it is next to useless to continue discussions of this sort with a contemporary starting out on the premises asumed by the Free Press. That journal evidently believes that the great regenerating force of the present day is whisky.

If you want greater natural prosperity, If you want to reduce crime and empty the jails, more whisky !

If you want to advance the interests of religion, more whisky!

If you want to reduce the number of ruined men and heart-broken women, more

If you want your boys to avoid temptation, and to grow up good citizens, more

If you want to elevate the moral tone of the community, shut up a few churches and license a corresponding number of

CALL PARLIAMENT AND REDUCE THE TAXES.

Business is very adversely affected by the failure of the Dominion Government to call Parliament together to immediately consider the proposed tariff changes, as promised some time since. Even so strong a Conservative newspaper as the Montreal Gazette voices the common complaint in "The general complaint in the wholesale trade of the city is that business is being injuriously affected by the uncertainty that recent talk has created in regard to the tariff. Two months ago, at the Bank of Ottawa meeting, the president, Mr. Magee, referred to the same feeling, and time has only made it more evident. Retailers decline to order except for a hand to mouth business, and wholesalers are left in uncertainty as to what their posi-tion will be in a month or two, after Parliament has dealt with the Government's proposals. A definite statement that Parliament would be called at an early date would be gladly welcomed where merchants most do congregate, and its early action on the tariff issue would add to the feeling of satisfaction." The answer to this earnest solicitation of action is the formal prorogation of Parliament till February, 26th and the statement by Mr. Cockburn, M. P. for Center Toronto, that the House will not meet till March. as the Conservative leaders were waiting to see what will be done at Washington.

It begins to look as if the present Administration were controlled by United States | genuine Augostura, manufactured by Dr. Congress. It should have more self-respect.

Congress is legislating with sole regard for the interests of the people of the United and nights to the advocacy of the liquor States. The sooner the Government at traffic. To suit its purpose it revamps all Ottawa begins to legislate with a single eye to the advancement of Canadian interests by Mr. Preston, of Toronto, on the alleged | the better. It does not need to wait one day for United States action. The country demands and will have a thorough reduction of the tariff. The greater the emancipation from payment of taxes and from ring rule the better.

THE MASSACRE IN AFRICA.

There seems to be no longer any reason for disbelieving the report that Captain Wilson and his little army were massacred while pursuing King Lobengula and his men in South Africa. The sadly graphic cablegram published in another column confirms previous dispatches, and leaves scarcely a ray of hope for contradiction in the future. On Dec. 4, Wilson was sent forward by Major Forbes with twenty men to cross the Shangani River. Before daylight Capt. Wilson had to send back for assistance. Forbes sent him Borrow and fifteen men of "B" Troop of the Salisbury column, being unable to spare more, as he himself was seriously threatened by the Matabeles. These cavalrymen were picked men, the finest and fittest in the column. Borrow joined Wilson and at daylight they made an attack on Lobengula, but had to retire with a loss of four horses. On Major Forbes being cut off by the sudden rise of the river. Wilson resolved to again assume the defensive, and being led on by the crafty stratagem of Lobengula, until a suitable spot was reached, he and his force were surrounded, and despite a desperate resistance were massacred. It is believed that not one man of the little army escaped.

While the British pluck of Forbes and Wilson can be recognized, no one can denv that the pursuit of Lobengula and his thousands of warriors beyond a river liable to be swollen by flood at any moment was foolhardy in the extreme. Even though Wilson had succeeded in capturing Lobengula, he would still have been compelled to fight his way to Fort Salisbury or Fort Chater, about 230 miles to the northeast, and that with not more than 50 rounds of ammunition to each man, and with horses disabled and little or no available food. The early successes of the Chartered Company's forces seems to have turned the heads of the leaders, and the melancholy result is now substantiated.

THE FIRE LOSS. Over $150,000,000 worth of property is reported by the insurance companies to the United States during the past year. This is more than in any other year except those of the great fires in Chicago and Boston, and over $20,000,000 more than the average for the past five years. The loss has been so great, falling as it does not upon the insurance companies, who are merely agents of the public, but upon the entire people, whether they are owners or tenants, that it is incumbent upon us all to exercise the utmost vigilance to combat the increasing destruction of property. As Gov. Flower, of New York, in his annual message to the Legislature lately put it, losses by fire diminish the amount of taxable property, they throw men out of employment, they cripple business, they destroy capital, they wipe out profits, they sacrifice human lives and they impose extra burdens on all propertyowners by increasing the rates of insurance -for if insurance companies must take greater fire risks the insured will be compelled to pay greater premiums. It is a somewhat difficult problem to devise the best means of reaching this evil. More stringent building laws have been suggested, as has also the compulsory investigation of fires by properly constituted local officers. Gov. Flower says that part of the recent increase in fire losses is attributed to the improper wiring of buildings where electricity is to be used for light or power, and the suggestion has been made that persons installing electric equipments in buildings should be compelled to show licenses certifying to their fitness for the work and issued by a comnetent board of control, very much in the same manner that steam boiler inspection and certification are now required. Gov. Flower suggests that suitable legislation to effect these reforms should be passed. In Canada we have been wonderfully free from fire waste in the larger cities, but if new dangers are arising, it is well to prepare to meet them in an effective manner. It is notorious that a large proportion of all the fires in town and country comes from carelessness, and it is strongly suspected that not a few-are willfully kindled. The

An Intensely Interesting Game of Billiards,

Schaefer Defeating Ives and Making the Series a Tie-General Sporting News.

BILLIARDS.

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 14.—The final game of the triangular billiard tournament last evening attracted one of the largest audiences of the week to Central Music Hall. The game was between Shaefer and Ives. The latter had won three games without losing any, while Shaefer's score stood two to one. Victory for Ives therefore meant the stake of $1,500 and one-half of the net receipts, while in the event of Schaefer's success the two stars would be compelled to play again for first and second money. The game was excit-ing in the extreme, but by far the pluckiest and best shot of the game was made on the fourteenth count by Schaefer in the nineteenth inning. He sent his own ball around four cushions with heavy reverse twist, and in counting obtained an excellent position.

The game was now at an intensely exciting stage, as Schaefer passed to his last string, the crowd, hanging upon every shot with breathless interest, and at every good stroke burst into applause. He was playing like a man whose life was at stake and making everything dead right. At 100 the balls were badly spread, but he went after them in every conceivable shape, and made them, too, while the crowd yelled itself hoarse. At 112 he was kissed out of a count on a round table shot, but he had passed Ives' 585 to 584. Now, indeed, the strain was something terrific upon players and spectators. With but 16 to go, Ives went to bat amid perfect silence, and when at 2 points he missed easily, there were groans and cheers in equal proportion. He left the balls hard for Schaefer, whose miss seemed to settle the game, for the leave for Ives was good. He needed only 14. When the marker had called 13 the bails were on the rail, nearly, but not quite in line. The shot was not a hard one for any player. Ives took the bridge and played a cushion shot to the end ball. He missed by a hair.

Now the two object balls were left frozen to the side rail over two feet apart and Schaefer's ball out in the middle of the table. It was a tremendously hard shot, almost impossible, but he drew from white to red and counted. Two thousand people were standing on their feet and shouting. The next shot was also a long and very difficult draw, but there was position in it and Jake went out after it. He made it exactly right, and while the spectators held their breath he went on like a man of iron and won the most remarkable game of billiards on record. His run was 15, and he had beaten Ives just one point in 600. Then the crowd went all to pieces and Schaefer's feet did not touch the floor for the next five minutes. Score: Schaefer-0, 0, 16, 30, 1, 0, 89, 24, 2, 4, 86, 32, 26, 1, 134, 2, 13, 0, 13, 112, 0, 15

Ives—5, 1, 32, 18, 16, 10, 28, 61, 0, 12, 23, 203, 75, 7, 0, 3, 81, 2, 0, 7, 2, 13— Average-Schaefer, 27 6-22; Ives, 27 5-22. High runs-Shaefer, 134, 112; Ives, 203.

THE TOURNEY ENDED. CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 14.-Ives and Schaefer will not play off their tie in the threecornered billiard match. The percentage of receipts in the tourney will probably not exceed $2,800. This will leave about $2,400 to be divided equally between Ives and Schaefer, beside the stake money, and will allow Slosson about his own money

The three-cornered trourney at Cincinpati is also off.

WOMEN AS INVENTORS.

A Wonderful Spurt in Patent Seeking of Parliament. Developed in the Past

Twenty Years. As inventors women thus far have produced fewer important results than in other fields of thought and exertion. This doubtless is due to their environment, their hitherto inferior educational advantages and their limited opportunities to compete with men for the world's emoluments and prizes. All these conditions, however, which have acted as a blight upon the mental productivity of women are rapidly changing in their favor, and the Chautauquan thinks there is a reasonable basis for the belief that within the next half century women will go well to the front in the most intricate and profound achievements. A woman is said to have obtained a patent in 1790, the year of the establishment of the United States patent office, but information as to her name or the nature of her invention is not at hand. A device for straw weaving with silk and thread was patented by Mary Kies, May 5, 1809. This eries. Subscriptions are being taken up is the first invention by a woman mentioned in the patent office reports. The next patent granted to a woman was taken out by Mary Brush for a corset, July 21, 1815. Numerically, articles of wearing apparel, particularly the corset, take the lead among the inventions of women up to date. Within the past twenty years in this country then they were in all the burned. preceding years of the century. Nearly 400 applications for patents were made by
Montreal, who assigned, amount to $100,women last year. It goes without saying that no reliable estimate can be made of Nationale, $15,000; Molsons Bank, $11,. granted. From the founding of our patent office to Oct. 1, 1892, inventions 3,458 in number were patented by women, of whom about 100 were foreigners or those residing Bishop & Co., $10,000. in foreign countries.

A New York banker's wife some years ago derived a great idea while engaged in the simple occupation of twisting some worsted yarn. The suggestion led to a result. She finally perfected a machine for twisting wire rope, the patent of which she sold for $50,000 in cash and a royalty upon future sales. This lady was not in need of these substantial receipts, but she sensibly turned her invention to practical account. In the invention of baby carriages, baby jumpers, trundle beds, juvenile toys and games, churns, dish-washing appliances, washing machines and other similar domestic devices women naturally have been prolific. A simple attachment for a sewing machine was invented by Miss Helen Blanchard, and out of it she has made a fortune. A Philadelphia woman is responsible for an invention by means of which hundreds of readymade barrels are turned out every day, which she furnishes to the sugar and oil refineries at a comfortable profit. Miss Montgomery, of New York, has made an enviable reputation as an inventor. As far back as 1864 she introduced an improvement in locomotive wheels, and subsequently a patent was granted her for an improved war vessel. The claim is made that from one barrel of Lima oil 10,000 feet of illuminating gas can be extracted through a process patented by a young woman of Lima, Ohio. Not long ago a patent typewriter attachment was invented by Mrs. Emma D. Mills, of New York, who is closely identified with the movement for the advancement of women in the industrial occupations. Recently a device has been patened by Mrs. Harriet Plumb for supplying railroad cars with fresh air. This ventilator excludes the usual attendant dust and cinders. Already it is in practical use in California. Catherine Booss, of New York, lately patented a machine for sewing fur which is said to be winning its way rapidly among all the manufacturers in that line. An ingenious flexible wire chain washboard is the recent invention of Mary C. Burke, of Montpelier, Idaho.

A cooking clock, invented by a woman, is likely to be welcomed with delight by those units of the fair sex who possess small means and live in cramped apartments. A workingman's dinner pail brought a considerable sum to the Michigan woman who invented it. A prominent society woman of Brooklyn, Mrs. Lena Sittig, has invented a new waterproof garment called the "duck's back." Its special claim to women's favor is the protection it anords to the bottom of their skirts and to their woman who has made her mark as an inventor. She has patented an improved dump cart, which has been practically tested and works like a charm. It may also be used in coaling vessels and the like. The "Coston signals" are and the like. The "Coston signals" are the invention of Mrs. Martha J. Coston. She derived the idea, however, from her husband, who, before his death, had made some preliminary experiments in the production of signals to be used at night. Mrs. Coston by dint of patient labor finally perfected a code containing well-defined combinations of the three colored lightswhite, red and green-indicating the numerals, and by this method a great number of messages may be conveyed. During the civil war these signals were employed to great advantage and since then they have been adopted by various European governments. They have been notably valuable in the life-saving service.

A Terrific Snowslide in an Idaho Town Saturday.

SPOKANE, Wash., Jan. 15 .- With a mighty roar, as of thunder, a terrific snowslide came down the mountains at Mullane, Id., Saturday, carrying everything before it. Several miners' cabins in its path were crushed and buried. Cornelius McCrevy and John Bollen were eating dinner in their cabins at the time, and before they realized their danger, the slide was upon them, crushing the life out of them in a twinkling. It is feared others were buried under the immense slide of snow. Not until spring comes will it be known how many perished. The town of Mullane narrowly escaped being carried -An order has gone out on the London division of the Grand Trunk announcing that hereafter section hands living outside the city will have their working hours reduced from nine to eight hours per day and their wages from $1 to 90 cents. Foremen will receive $1 35 instead of $1 50.

Two summonses have been issued against John McCall, of Poplar Hill, and Mrs. Cordeal Trippin, Komoka. They are charged with selling liquor without a license, the complainant being Inspector Shoff. -The Detroit News of a recent date says: 'A few months ago Fanny Pendergast brought her husband, John Pendergast (formerly of London), into the police court on a charge of non-support and won the case. Pendergast then repudiated the marriage, claiming that he took the vows under duress. His wife filed a bill in the Wayne Circuit Court asking for confirmation of the marriage. Pendergast had a change of heart, and in his answer admits that the marriage was legal and binding." The statement was published a few days ago that in the alleged case of "Navin vs. Pendergast" the former had withdrawn the action. This is incorrect. Pendergast was sentenced to 30 days for non-support of his wife, who was Miss Fanny Navin. After serving nine days he appealed against the judgment. But he thought better of it, admitted his marriage was legal and binding, and dropped his intended action. Both parties are former residents of London.

Two Distinguished Visitors.

At a meeting of the Ministerial Association this morning it was decided to extend an invitation to Dr. Pierson, Philadelphia, and Dr. Gordon, Boston, to visit this city on Feb. 26 and 27. These gentlemen are upon a tour for the purpose of awakening, deepening and expanding the missionary spirit in the Protestant Church. A committee composed of Revs. Ira Smith, Walter Rigsby, W. J. Clark, M. P. Tailing and J. R. Gundy was appointed to perfect arrangements. Rev. T. W. Charlesworth, the new pastor of the Grosvenor Street Baptist Church, was elected a member of the association. Rev Ira Smith's paper on "The Revival of Universalism" was deferred until a future meeting.

The Committees. When the striking committee returned Ald. Coo, as chairman, reported as follows: No. 1 committe-Ald. Pritchard, J. W. Iones, Carrothers, James Fitzgerald, F. J. Fitzgerald and Judd. No. 2 committee-Ald. Taylor, Coo, Thomas Jones, Garratt, Dreany and Shaw. No. 3 committee—Ald. John Heaman, O'Meara, Wm. Heaman, Scarrow, Nutkins and Parnell.

Ald. Coo moved, and Ald Shaw seconded, that the report be adopted. Ald, Parnell-I think that this thing has been prepared for a purpose and that purpose is political. Therefore I would move in amendment that Ald. O'Meara take the place of Ald. Coo on No. 2 committee and Ald. Coo be placed on No. 3 committee. Ald. Scarrow seconded the motion.

Before the motion was put Ald. O'Meara said that he had been on No. 2 committee for eleven years, and last year there had been $6,500 appropriated to that committee, and of that he did not think that over $2,000 had been spent in No. 2 ward. Aid. Coo-Your brother did not get as big a share of it as usual.

The Mayor-Order. Ald. O'Meara-And I intend to investigate the matter, and if it is not true then

I am willing to apologize. The amendment was then put and lost on the following division: Yeas-Ald. John Heaman, O'Meara, J. W. Jones, F. J. Fitz-gerald and Parnell. Nays-Ald. Taylor, Pritchard, Coo, Carrothers, Thos. Jones, James Fitzgerald, Garratt, Dreaney, Nutkins, Judd and Shaw.

The motion was then carried. Bylaws. For the appointment of two Collegiate Institute trustee in the place of Messrs. Love and Powell. Messrs. Wm. Anderson, A. B. Powell and E. N. Hunt were nominated, and the latter two elected on the second reading. Ald. Thos. Jones then moved in amendment that the name of Mr. Hunt be struck out and the name of Mr. Anderson inserted. Carried. For the appointment of two auditors for the year 1894-the names of Messrs. Geo. F. Jewell and Allan Dale were inserted and the bylaw read and passed. For the appointment of a manager on the

Free Library Board, Mr. Joseph T. Marks was the unanimous choice of the council

THE POLICE COURT CLERK. When the bylaw for the appointment of Mr. John Moule as police court clerk came up for its third reading, Ald. J. W. Jones moved, and Ald. Jas. Fitzgerald seconded. that it be read and passed.

Ald. O'Meara-I will move in amend ment that the bylaw be not read but be read six months hence. The reason I do so is because some six months ago the office was declared vacant and it was then understood that the work could be performed by one of the sergeants. Ald. Parnell also opposed the reading of the bylaw on the ground that economy should be practiced. The ameudment was then put, Ald. charge of trespass. They were given eight O'Meara, Parnell and Wm. Heaman being

Ald. Parnell then moved that the charge of entering a freight car at Dundas matter be left over till the opinion of the commissioners could be secured. Lost. Ald. James Fitzgerald then moved in amendment that the name of Wesley Webb be inserted in place of Mr. Moule.

A seconder could not be secured, and the third reading of the bylaw was passed and John Moule appointed. The next bylaw was for the appointment of a court of revision for 1894. Ald. Shaw moved, seconded by Ald. Nutkins, that Ald. J. W. Jones, John Heaman, James Fitzgerald, Carrothers and Judd be appointed. Carried. A bylaw for the appointment of five members of the council on the Western Fair Association resulted in the choice of Ald. Pritchard, J. W. Jones, Thos. Jones, Garratt and Nutkins. A bylaw for the appointment of members of the Board of Health-Ald. Carrothers moved that Ald. O'Meara, Wm. Heaman, M. Scarrow, F. J. Fitzgerald, Parnell, Dr. Gardiner, Dr. English and Wm. Skinner comprise the Board of Health for 1894.

Several of the nominees objected, but the bylaw was read and passed. L, AND P. S. R. DIRECTORS. The last by law was for the appointment of a board of directors for the London and Port Stanley Railway. Ald. Thos. Jones moved that the board of last year-Ald. Taylor, Coo, Carrothers, James Fitzgerald, Dreaney, Shaw, Judd and Messrs. F. E. Leonard and F. A. Fitz. gerald-be again appointed.

In amendment Ald. J. W. Jones moved that No. 1 committee with Ald. Coo, Thos. Jones and Scarrow comprise the board. The motion carried.

Notices of Motion. By Ald. Coo and Carrothers-That the mayor, the chairmen of Nos. 1, 2 and 3 committees, the school board, hospital trust, and police commissioners, co-operate with the object of keeping the rate of taxes down to 18 mills, and that two representatives of the Board of Trade and Real Estate Owners' Association be requested to assist. A Railway Horror Occurs in New Jersey. Two Passenger Trains Collide While

Crossing a Bridge. Fifteen Said to Be Killed and Many Terribly Injured-The Fog Hid

the Signals.

Roseville, N. J., Jan. 15.-The Delaware, Lackawanna and Western train which leaves Roseville at 8:09, crashed into the rear of the Dover express, telescoping two cars, this morning. Fifteen passengers in these two cars are known to have been killed and at least 25 are terribly injured.

The Dover express passed through Roscville without stopping this morning. Because of the flag it slowed, and fully 50 residents of Roseville, who are in business in this city, boarded the train. Many of them are killed or injured. The train, which ran into the express, is the regular morning commutation train. It pulled out of Roseville four minutes after the express had disappeared in the fog in the direction of New York. On approaching the bridge over the Hackensack, the express slowed up, for what reason is unknown, but it is thought that the engineer

COULD NOT SEE THE SIGNALS because of the dense fog, and that he slowed his train to avail danger. The commutation train following did not halt at the bridge. It came along at its usual rate of speed. The engineer saw the express when less than 200 feet from it. Although he reversed his engine he could not prevent the collision. The ponderous locomotive crashed into the rear car, throwing it from the track and pushing it along the westbound track for quite a distance. This car and the one ahead of it were completely wrecked. Both cars were full of passengers who were CRUSHED TO DEATH or terribly mangied as they sat in their seats, all unconscious of impending danger. The cries of the wounded could be heard for a long distance, and the greatest excitement prevailed in the neighborhood. The engineer of the commutation train is missing. He is said to be dead.

THE OFFICIAL REPORT. NEW YORK, Jan. 15 .- President Sloan of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad has been officially notified that twelve persons were killed and twenty injured in the accident on that road at Hackensack this morning. FURTHER PARTICULARS.

According to the best reports no one was killed on the South Orange train. The brakeman on the rear car of the Dover express was getting ready to signal the rear train when he saw the headlight of the engine looming through the fog and at once saw he was too late. He rushed into the baggage car and into the passenger compartment of the combination car and was just giving the alarm Alex. Brown et al-Re single tax privi- of danger when the crash came. The dead and wounded were taken to Hoboken, where medical attendance from the hospitals had been asked for. The bodies of the dead were most badly mutilated. A great many of the passengers on both trains were New York business men residing in the suburban towns of New Jersey on the line of the Morris and Essex division of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad. About ten trains were delayed

THE GREAT MOSQUE GONE.

A Grand Relic of Antiquity in Damascus Burned-A Glorious Old Structure. WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 14.-Private

letters received here this week from American travelers in Asia whose names formerly stood out prominently in official and diplomatic circles in Washington, make mention of the curious fact that the Turkish authorities seem to have suppressed all extended mention of the destruction of one of the most noted edifices in Europethe great Mosque of Damascus-though that event occurred many weeks ago. No particulars have been given, though the destruction of property in connection with the burning of the mosque must have been great. The fire removed one of the most noted buildings in the world, whose site is the center of associations extending back into the mists of antiquity, and which was one of the principal points of interest in a city full of historical attractions. The great mosque stood near the castle occupying a quadrangle 163 yards long by 108 wide. Along the north side was an open court, surrounded by cloisters resting on pillars of granite, marble and limestone. The mosque itself extended along the whole southern side, and its interior dimensions were 431x125 feet. In the center was a dome resting on four massive piers. Underneath was a cave in which the head of John the Baptist was said to be preserved in a golden casket. The mosque had three minarets, one of which was 250 feet high, and upon it, according to Moslem traditions, Jesus was to have descended on the day of judg. ment. Round the mosque were traces of a court 1,100 feet long by 800 feet wide. encompassed by colonnades similar to those of the temple of Herod in Jerusalem, and that of the Temple of the Sun at Palmyra.

Authorities have thought it highly probable that this was the site of the Temple of Rimmon mentioned in II. Kings, v., 18, and that it became in after time the seat of the worship of Jupiter. In the fourth century it was converted into a church and dedicated to John the Baptist. and in the beginning of the eighth century it was seized by the followers of Mohammed.

"It would be useless !" he said. "Forgive me, Zenobia; but if we must speak at all, we must speak plainly. Your future, which is worth so much; mine, which is worth nothing, lie trembling in the balance. Zenbia, I have no heart to give you! I cannot go the altar and swear to a lie! With sorrow no words can describe I surrender, I give back to you the promise you gave me. I give back into your hands the priceless boon of your love, with the prayer that it may pass to one more worthy the treasure than my unhappy self!"

In an instant she threw off the mask. With a gesture of contempt she stepped be-

"Bah!" she cried, in a low voice that rang nevertheless like a discordant note. "Spare your fine phrases, Lord Neville. Let us speak plainly, if we speak at all! In plain words, you wish to draw back from your engagement to me.

He stared at her as if he could scarcely believe his eyes and ears. Was this the Rentle, sweet faced woman—Zenobia de Norvan, the woman he had loved there in Lucerne, this woman, with blazing eyes, and bard, sneering mouth?

"You are tired of me, are weary of your plaything of the hour! Is that so? And you wish me to release you. You think that I am like the simple country girl whom You cast off at a moment's notice. His face flushed, then went deadly pale.

She laughed. "Lord Cecil Neville, you are mistaken. I refuse to release you; I hold you to your word! I am the woman you promised to marry, and as surely as we stand here, you

He stood, silent, speechless. What could She laughed again, and a cruel light gleamed in her eyes,

"Plain words between us! So be it!
Then hear mine! You speak of love—that you cannot love me! Do you think that I are for your love? Do you think—or have I fooled you so completely to the top of your bent !- that I am dying for love of you? Bah, my lord! It was your title, your rank, your wealth, the position that you, Lord Cecil Neville, could give the woman you made your wife that I was in love with. And I love them still. Do you think, then, that it is likely that at your bidding, at the mere force of your whim, I will relinquish them? Look in my face and read the

He did look, with shame and self-loathing that he could ever have loved so base a being as this beautiful woman with the face of an angel and the heart of a tigress. "Zenobia," he said, hoarsely, "now indeed all is over between us. Let no more be said! If life itself depended on it, I would take my freedom."

"You will not marry me?" she panted.

He put up his hands with an emphatic "Then listen, Lord Neville. Before a week has passed I will make your name a byword in men's mouths. I will publish your cowardly, heartless treachery from one end of the earth to the other. If there is justice to be had in the land I will have it, cost what it may I will drag you from cost what it may! I will drag you from court to court until you shall hate the sound of your own name-till you become the social outcast you deserve to be. I shall rest neither night nor day until 1 have avenged myself. Think well before you decide to desert me! I am not one to be jilted twice, my lord! Think well! Choose between me and the infamy I can and will cover you with!"

'Be warned in time!" she cried. "Keep our promise to me and I will make your life happy; break it, and I will not rest un-"No!" she almost shouted, seeing her coronet falling out of her sight, all that she had toiled and schemed and dared for van-ishing forever. "You shall not. By Heaven! I will follow you. I will not leave you, and you dare not send me away. I am your promised wife, and who shall come between us?"

"I," said a voice. She started and swung round as Gerald Moore pushed the bushes aside and took her arm in his strong hand. She had forgotten him in her mad passion.

"Gerald Moore!" said Lord Cecil, not amazed, for he was past that, but with a dull, heavy kind of acceptance of the fact.
"Yes, Cecil Neville; it is Gerald Moore.
Why I am here this lady can explain. No?" for she remained silent, glaring at him. Was he going to betray her? Was he mad? "Then permit me, Lord Cecil. This lady's threats are as worthless as the engagement between you. And that for the best of all reasons—she is my wife."

White and cold he stood and made the confession, still holding her by the warm

"Your wife!" said Lord Cecil, staring at im. "Are you mad, Moore?" Gerald Moore shook his head. "If you disbelieve me, look at her face!"

he said, pitilessly.

With a gesture of miserable rage she dashed her hand before it. "Great Heaven!" exclaimed Lord Cecil.

"A fortnight after you left us at Lucerne. The ceremony took place at the little church, at Altfau; you can send there and get a copy of the registry. If you ask me why we parted, remember that you have just discovered the nature of the woman I married; I learnt it within a week! and he smiled grimly. "For the rest, Neville, I will ask you—no, I will not!—you will keep her secret and mine for your own sake. Will you leave us now?"

Lord Cecil stood for a moment longer to realize all that this discovery meant for him, then, with an inclination of the head and a last glance at Zenobia, turned and left them.

Gerald Moore took his hand from her arm, but still she did not move or speak; he waited a moment, then he said calmly—

"You will want some explanation, Zen obia, of my changed plans? A word will suffice. The woman I loved and had nearly ruined was—Carrie Harrington!"

She raised her head and her teeth clicked.

"I learnt for the first time to-day that it was between her and Lord Cecil that you had stepped. Zenobia, the play is ended. It might have been a tragedy;"—listlessly—"it is only a farce! Will you please give me your attention? I start to-night for—the other end of the earth," with a grim smile, "and I intend to remain there. In smile, "and I intend to remain there. In this letter you will find a sum of money which I think you will admit is a large one. Take it and spend it, and when it is gone I will send you more, and still more, on one condition, that you do not approach Lord

Cecil Neville or—his wife!"
She started, looked at the letter and held It in her hand. Then she looked at him. "You—are—going on a voyage, Gerald?"
"I am," curtly.

A smile significant and pregnant with matice. "I am glad. It will just suit me, Gerald.

I am going with you."

He started and shook his head.

She laughed. "Pardon, monsieur. A man may not desert his wife without cause. I might have given you plenty, but you prevented me. You fool! If you had held your tongue I would have won the game still, and you might have gone where you chose, alone, or with whom you pleased. But as you have chosen, so let it be. I am your wife. You yourself have claimed me. Good, I go with you. For better or for worse, dear Gerald, I cleave to you still."

His face grew grave. "Are you resolved?" he said.
"Fully," she retorted, with a mocking

He bowed his head. "Be at the harbor in an hour," he said. "I will await you there."

CHAPTER XXXII.

With folded arms and head dropping on his breast, Gerald Moore stood upon the harbor landing. Zenobia could not have desired a deeper, more malicious revenge than that which she was about to take. Her presence would be a curse to him. As far as it was possible for a man not utterly wicked he hated her; he had penetrated the mask of her beauty long since, and had discovered the cruel, heartless, mercenary nature that lay beneath, and to have her near him, continually by his side, chained to him, would be well nigh intolerable. In the old days, when they sent men to the galleys, they chained them to the oars in couples, and it would happen sometimes that one of the miserable wretches would die at his post. and for hours, days perchance, his yoke-fellow was compelled to toil and eat and sleep chained to his dead companion, a man whom he had learned in all probability to hate.

Gerald Moore, as he stood waiting for Zenobia, felt as the living galley-slave chained to the corpse of his fellow criminal might feel.

"Remarkable Cure of Dropsy and Dyspepsia."-Mr. Samuel T. Casey, Belleville, writes: "In the spring of 1884 I began to be troubled with dyspepsia, which gradually became more and more distressing. I used various domestic remedies and applied to my family physician, but received no benefit. By this time my trouble assumed the form of dropsy. I was unable to use any food whatever except boiled milk and bread; my limbs were swollen to twice their natural size; all hopes of my recovery were given up, and I quite expected death within a few weeks. Northrop & Lyman's VEGETABLE DISCOVERY having been recommended to me, I tried a bottle with but little hope of relief; and now, after using eight bottles, my Dyspepsia and Dropsy are cured. Although now 79 years of age I can enjoy my meals as well as ever, and have chosen," he said, in a low voice. my general health is good. Leading Citizens of Alaska Booked for Jail-Very Few Legally Married.

PORT TOWNSEND, Wash., Jan. 13 .-United States Marshal Orville T. Porter, of the Alaska district, has several communities of that district by the ears. The number of white men lawfully married to women of their own race in Alaska is confined principally to a handful of Government officials and naval men stationed there. Nearly all of the balance of the male population have purchased native wives, their union with whom is not recognized in law.

Nearly every grand jury which convenes in Alaska is instructed from the bench to inquire into this alleged evil and indict all violators of the law. This charge, however, is generally a dead letter, as the average Alaskan grand juryman is averse to bringing in a true bill against himself.

The steamer Topeka, which arrived from the north, brings information that Marshal Porter has just instructed his several deputies throughout the territory to at once arrest every white man violating this law, as a result of which official order nearly every man on board the United States steamer Pinta is in jail at Sitka. Hundreds of other arrests are expected. The jail will not be large enough to hold the leading citizens who are amenable under Marshal Porter's official order.

A Young Chicago Bride Prebably Fatally Burned by Gasoline,

CHICAGO, Jan. 14 .- Nellie Colleson, a young bride of a short period, was perhaps atally burned by the explosion of a gasoline stove in her home. Mrs. Colleson was about to prepare dinner for herself and husband. She applied a match to the stove and an explosion followed. The flames caught her dress and in an instant enveloped her. Crazed with pain and blinded by the fire, she was unable to find the door leading to the street, and, failing, she rushed to the window and thrust her hands through the glass. The crash and screams attracted the attention of S. W. Whitevem. He saw Mrs. Colleson standing at the window, the draft making the fire burn even more fiercely, and he called to her to jump. She hesitated only a moment and then jumped. Whitevem tried to catch her, but failed, and she struck the ground

Every effort was made to alleviate her agony. The physician could not find a spot in which to place a hypodermic injection that had not been touched by fire. She will probably die.

They were shown several, and one of the young men was about to slide one into his pocket when he was noticed and put it back. After one had been purchased two remained on the showcase. While the clerk was about to hand some change to one of the youths, the other two walked off with the pipes. The theft was noticed before they reached the dcor. It was too late, however, as the thieves made a bolt and disappeared among a crowd on the market.

An Impressive Funeral Service. The funeral of the late Mrs. Thomas James, of the Gore of London, was held yesterday afternoon from the family residence to the old country cemetery just outside of the city limits-the Gore burying ground. For a number of years Mrs.

James had been a member of Lodge Princess of Wales, Daughters of England, and through her kindly disposition had won the love and esteem of the members of the lodge. In response to a request from the president about 50 sister members attended and marched at the head of the cortege to the cemetery, there to see the remains of their respected sister laid in their last resting place. The pall-bearers (all members of Princess of Wales Lodge) were: Mrs. A.

Death's Doings. After a prolonged illness, borne with fortitude and resignation, May, wife of Mr. J. Griffin, died yesterday at the family residence, No. 652 Waterloo street, in the 24th year of her age. The deceased lady, who was born in this city, was the eldest daughter of Mr. Geo. Saunby, and had been married but little over a year. She was a member of the London West Methodist Church, and as long as her health would permit she took an active part in Sunday school work. She was respected and esteemed by all who enjoyed the privilege of her acquaintance, and her loss will be deeply felt. The stricken husband and bereaved parents have the sympathy of the community in their deep affliction. The funeral takes place to-morrow afternoon. The death is announced at her home John street, city, of Mrs. Chas. W. Norman, wife of Mr. Norman, night clerk in the Free Press. The deceased was taken ill about two weeks ago with the grip. She gradually grew worse, the malady developing into blood-poisoning, which resulted fatally yesterday. Mrs. Norman had reached the age of 31 years, was beloved by all with whom she was acquainted, and leaves

The congregation of the Park Avenue pastor of the Queen's Street Church, To- Presbyterian Church worshiped for the last time in Victoria Hall yesterday, prior to entering the new edifice next Sunday. During the morning service Rev. W. J. Clark, the pastor, took occasion to give his parishioners some wholesome and useful advice, which, if acted upon, will enable Harold Jarvis, of Detroit, will sing, assisted | the congregation to grow rapidly and prosper greatly. Rev. Dr. Caven, principal of Knox College, Toronto, will preach the opening sermon next Sunday morning, and will also occupy the same pulpit in the evening. In making this announcement Mr. Clark said that the arrangement was a peculiarly fitting one, owing to the fact that Dr. Caven, who is probably the foremost figure of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, had secured his early theological training in London under Rev. Mr. Proudfoot, the founder and first paster of the congregation, and father of the Dr. Proudfoot, who succeeded him in ministration to the same flock. On Monday evening next a platform meeting will be held, when addresses are expected from representative ministers of other denominations in the city. On the following Sunday, Rev. Dr. Grant, of Orillia, who has achieved a wide celebrity through his contributions to the Canada Presbyterian, under the nom de plume of "Knoxonian," will preach at both ser-

> MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC. The Irish Statesman" To-Night-The

Great Wilson Barrett. CARROLL JOHNSON TO-NIGHT. "The Irish Statesman," a type of play better than the average which wears the shamrock, will be produced at the Grand to-night by Carroll Johnson, a comedian who has been highly praised by leading papers. A good Irish drama is popular with local pleasure-goers, who will doubtless turn out in good numbers. Mr. Johnson is supported by a competent company, and is said to carry some fine scenery, which includes a night view of the American capitol and of the Lakes of Killarney.

"OTHELLO" AND "CLAUDIAN." London is highly favored in securing for two nights the great English actor, Wilson Barrett, in two magnificent, though widely different, plays. To-morrow (Tuesday) evening he will present "Othello," which has not been seen in this city for some years, and ought to prove a feast for those who hunger after something intellectual. The Iago of Franklin McLeay, the young Canadian, has been pronounced brilliant by English and American critics. Wednesday night's performance, "Claudian," is also one of the best in Mr. Barrett's extensive repertoire. Its scenic effects are grand, the earthquake being a marvel of stagecraft. Mr. Barrett has the best company traveling to-day.

West Elgin Farmers' Institute. DUTTON, Jan. 14.—The West Elgin Farmers' Institute meeting here was both in point of members and interest one of the most successful in this district. At 10 o'clock yesterday when President A. McGuagan called the meeting to order, the hall was crowded to the doors, many going away for want of room. Addresses were delivered by Mr. S. Fraser, of Bradford, Prof. Shuttleworth, of the Ontario Model Farm, and Prof. Hutt. The meeting was closed with Scotch songs by A. C. Gordon. Several selections were played by the Dutton brass band.
