A GRAPHIC DESCRIPTION OF WEEK-LONG BATTLE WITH TURK AND BULGAR

Nearly Half a Million Men Engaged in Life and Death Struggle That Is Still in Progress.

LONDON AND BERLIN DISPATCHES SAY BULGARS STEADILY WINNING

Turks Resisting Desperately at Several Points, But Bulgarians May Get Between the Enemy's Lines and Constantinople.

[Canadian Press.] London, Nov. 2.—Graphic descriptions of the week-long battle between the Turkish and Bulgarian armies in the southeastern corner of the Balkan Peninsula are now reaching London. It would appear that nearly 400,000 men have been engaged in the life and death struggle which, according to some accounts, is still in progress.

DESPERATE FIGHTING. The fighting on the left wing of the Turkish army, according to one correspondent, was terribly severe. In their attack on Lule Burgas, the Bulgarians found Torgut Shekhet Pasha with his troops in position on the slopes behind the town. The Bulgarians brought up six batteries and shelled the position on Monday evening. They then carried out an infantry attack, which was unsuccessful.

ARTILLERY DUEL. On Tuesday, the Bulgarian artillery settled down to a methodical preparatory bombardment to which the Turkish artillery replied vigorously. In the artillery duel no superiority was shown by either side. Nevertheless on Tuesday afternoon it became clear to the Turkish commander that the Bulgarians were pushing up masses of reinforcements into the firing line.

RETIRE IN GOOD ORDER. This meant that the position at Lule Burgas was becoming untenable. The Turkish advance line fell back in admirable order to Torgut Shekhet Pasha's main position on the left of the iron railway bridge across the River Irkine. The town itself remained unoccupied by either side during Tuesday night, and throughout Wednesday, when it was set on fire by the explosion of Bulgarian shells.

Close battle was joined between the opposing forces at dawn Wednesday, and raged with equal fierceness along the whole front for a distance of 20 miles.

BULGARIANS REPULSED. The Bulgarians began by a determined effort to take the railway bridge, but the Turkish troops entrenched near the head of the bridge, drove them back with a sweeping fire. Toward noon the Bulgarian artillery concentrated its fire on the centre of the Turkish position as a preliminary to an assault. The shrapnel fire was perfectly timed, and the Turkish infantry suffered heavily. Nevertheless here, as elsewhere, on the field the losses were only what was to be expected from the severity of the battle.

Long columns of wounded were passed to the rear after receiving first aid on the field. No description of the later stages of the battle has yet come through, but the reports from Sofia assert that the Bulgarians carried everything before them.

ASKED TO DEFINE DIVINE PLEASURE IN KENT MOTION

Mr. Justice R. M. Meredith Hears Arguments in Litigation Over Will.

CHURCH CLAIMS THAT MISSIONS ARE CHARITY

Array of Legal Talent in High Court Puts Questions to the Court.

Mr. Justice R. M. Meredith presided over the session of the weekly high court at the court house this morning, and heard the argument of counsel for the different parties interested in the motion for construction of the will of the late Thomas Kent, founder of the London Loan Company, who died some months ago, leaving his property in a manner as to provoke litigation. The lawyers present and those they represent were: Hamilton Cassella, of Toronto, for the Board of Missions of the Presbyterian Church in Canada; T. G. Meredith, K.C., and A. G. Greenlees and F. H. Greenlees, for the executor of the will. Notice was served upon the British and Foreign Bible Society, of London, Eng., to which was bequeathed the proceeds of the sale of the Kent residence on Central Avenue, which was purchased at auction by Bishop Fallon, of the R. C. Diocese of London, but no solicitor appeared for that society.

Adjournment Till Nov. 23. The causes of litigation were briefly outlined to Justice Meredith, and the argument will possibly be completed at an adjourned session of the court on Nov. 23. It is probable that judgment will be reserved at that time.

It was explained that the chief cause of dispute was the residuary bequest of $70,000 or $75,000 to the moderator of the session of New St. James' Church. If the intention of the testator is not made clear in the clause of the will which disposes of this question, then the English language does not contain sufficient words to emphasize the point, was the opinion offered by Mr. T. G. Meredith.

The will states that all dividends from the residue of his estate shall be paid to the moderator of the session of New St. James' Church of the corner of Wellington and Oxford streets, London, for purposes of home and foreign mission work, "such disposition to continue during the divine pleasure."

The extent of "divine pleasure" may be. This is irrelevant to the content of the next of kin of Mr. Kent, who declare that amount specified in the residuary bequest is an intestacy, and accordingly, for distribution amongst them. The law relating to perpetuities provides that no man shall tie up his estate for a time exceeding for charitable purposes.

MANY CITIZENS REGARD $890,000 AS STAGGERING SUM TO ASSUME

HON. LOUIS CODERRE, the new secretary of state in the Dominion Cabinet.

Mayor and Aldermen Maintain Silence Until Mr. Beck's Proposal Has Been Digested—Some Sharp Comments Made.

CHAIRMAN POCOCK WITH MR. BECK IN SCHEME TO ELECTRIFY LINE

The proposal of Hon. Adam Beck to have the people of London spend $890,000 on his pet scheme for the electrification of the London and Port Stanley Railway, is quite the topic of conversation on the streets today, and few could be found who would endorse the findings at all. A score of men at random were picked out on the street, and asked what they thought of it.

"Better spend some money in bringing radial lines from other directions," said one man. "Port Stanley is well looked after. Why not spend some money on the London and Northwestern, and on the other lines to the south and west. That would do much more for the city than the electrification of the line to Port Stanley."

"A wild dream, that will cost us more money than we can afford," said one. "It is too big for this city at this time," concluded another citizen. And so the comments continued. Chairman Pocock, of the water commission, declared that it could be made a paying proposition without any difficulty whatever. There were few who held the same opinion.

ALDERMEN DIGESTING IT. Members of the council were interviewed, but none of them would venture an opinion until they had fully digested the report.

"We have not read it fully," said Ald. Spittal. "When we have gone through it, we will say what we think of it."

"I have not had time to look into the matter," said Ald. Coles.

Ald. Richter was busily engaged in going through the books of the electrical department with Mr. Harry Angus, the electrical expert from Toronto, on the street lighting proposition, and had no time to discuss the latest development.

MAYOR HAS NOT SEEN IT. Mayor Graham was interviewed regarding the Beck report, and stated that he had not seen it at all.

"I have just returned from Ottawa, and have not even seen the document," he stated. "I am in no position to make a statement regarding it. When I have read it I will tell better what I think of it. I have not seen the aldermen, and cannot say what they will do regarding it."

Bylaw Asking Citizens to Spend $890,000 Is Prepared

Aldermen Likely To Allow Scheme To Be Voted Upon—Some Differences in Figures Shown By the Year Book.

A bylaw to set aside $890,000 for the electrification of the London and Port Stanley Railway will be submitted to the ratepayers in January.

That is the opinion of a majority of aldermen, and from present indications a campaign will be waged on behalf of the bylaw by Hon. Adam Beck. It is not thought that the aldermen would seek to prevent a bylaw being submitted.

It is possible that a slate, including a candidate for the mayorality and a number of aldermen, will be placed in nomination to run on this scheme. Whether or not any of the present aldermen will adopt the platform remains to be seen. None of them would express an opinion this morning, saying that they had not given the report sufficient consideration to warrant a statement. Copies of it are being prepared at the city hall and they will be handed to each member of the council.

Coal Company Offer Held Up. This means that the proposition of the Lake Erie Coal Company to lease and electrify the line, or take it over and operate it as a steam road, will be laid over until the verdict of the ratepayers is pronounced in January.

It will be remembered that in March last the coal company made a proposition to electrify the line, and lease it for a term of years, at the present rate—approximately $20,000 a year. The figures they had placed as the cost of electrification were $400,000. At the expiration of the 25-year lease the city could purchase the rolling stock at a valuation to be agreed upon.

It is stated that in view of the probable action of the council to submit a bylaw, the Lake Erie Coal Company will make other arrangements for hauling coal.

Coal for Grand Trunk. The Grand Trunk have started a line from Port Burwell to London, and it is rumored, in fact it is stated on the best authority, that the Grand Trunk will handle the coal either at Port Burwell or Port Dover, where they will have slip-docks capable of handling the traffic with little trouble.

The loss of this business would sadly cripple the earning power of the Chairman Pocock, of the water commission, is an ardent advocate of the scheme, and will assist in the campaign, it is understood.

The report is the work of a number of engineers, the majority of whom are employed by the hydro-electric commission. Engineer Schorer, of Syracuse, a traction expert, revised the findings of the others, and the final tremendous storm last night, the Cecilia, a little steamer which plies between Montreal and Valleyfield, sank at Isle Perrot, in Lake St. Louis, ten miles west of here. As far as could be learned at least sixteen people have been drowned, the dead comprising men, women and children. Only four passengers were saved, all men.

THE SURVIVORS.

Lionel Leduc, son of Captain Jean Leduc, Valleyfield.
A. Gosselin, Valleyfield.
E. H. Baillagoon, Valleyfield.
Felix Cousineau, Ste. Cle.

After leaving the Lachine Canal and entering the lake, the storm caught the frail little craft, which only weighed 125 tons, and tossed it about at random. Captain Leduc made valiant attempts to keep the craft under control, and in the hulls in the storm made a little headway. About 7 o'clock the violence of the storm increased, and the Cecilia then got out of control completely. With the force of the 55-miles-an-hour gale behind her, she rushed towards the south shore and struck the rocks.

SMASHED TO FRAGMENTS.

The thin wooden hull was smashed to fragments, and the force threw passengers and crew into the water without the slightest preparation.

The shrieks and shouts of the people in the water attracted the attention of a farmer named Alexander Leonard, who heroically put out in a boat to the scene of the disaster. He found the four men clinging to the wreckage, which was everywhere visible. These he took safely to shore, but though he searched all night he could recover no more.

What You Save and Bank Is All Right--

BUT—

What You Save and Put Into Real Estate Will Make Big Money

$100 deposited in a bank at 3 per cent would take fourteen years to make you a profit of $50

$100 invested in a lot in Western Canada might give you untold wealth in fourteen years.

FOR EXAMPLE:

When Vancouver had but 1,000 population 25 years ago and no railroad, lots were sold for $700 that in less than fourteen years were worth $20,000. Today they bring $150,000.

Prince Rupert was but a wilderness four years ago, and lots that were bought for $100 have sold this year for as high as $25,000. No lot sold for less than $1,000, and taking that minimum, you will see that the profit works out this way:

Present selling value. . . $1,000
Original cost 100

Profit in four years. . . $900

How does this compare with bank interest? Figure it out yourself:

With interest at 3% compounded annually, $100 at the end of 4 years would be $112.56
Original deposit 100.00

Profit in 4 years. . . $ 12.56

Important to Out-of-Town Customers

Having received inquiry from mail order customers, if goods ordered from our advertisements in the daily papers would be delivered free the same as merchandise ordered from our catalogue, would say that our WORLD-WIDE FREE DELIVERY covers all goods advertised in the daily papers, whether at sale or regular prices, the same as catalogue goods, or even if you come to the store and make your purchases in person, all express or freight charges on goods shipped will be prepaid by us. There are no restrictions whatever on our "WORLD-WIDE FREE DELIVERY." Customers out of town shop on equal terms with those living in the city, and enjoy the same privilege of returning unneeded goods at our expense.

If our Fall and Winter Catalogue is not in your home, write today. A postcard with your address will bring it by return mail.

Fashion in Umbrellas

Even in Rain Umbrellas the influence of fashion is felt, and the latest prediction is that we are going back to the early ages when gay colors were the vogue.

We are now showing a complete stock of Colored Umbrellas in silk serge, with wide two-inch ribbon edge, also with narrow selvedge edge, close-rolling paragon frames, in neat silk cases to match. Navy, brown, green, also black with plain or neat silver-trimmed directorio handles. Prices. $4.50, $5.00

Christmas Shipment of Men's Umbrellas

These will interest the ladies just now more than the men. Get your pick of these new handsome handles, scarcely two alike. Excellent choice now. Have your selection laid away. We mention two popular priced lines, each $2.00 and $3.00

Suitcase Umbrellas, $3.00

Men's or women's handles. Can be packed in 24-inch suitcase. Also club bag umbrella, will fold into an 18-inch bag. These travelling Umbrellas have extra fine tape edge, silk-mixed covers with trimmed mission wood handles. Price $3.00

ALLIES TO SECURE SLICE OF TURKEY

But Other Powers Must Keep Their Hands Away From the Prize.

FAREWELL "STATUS QUO"

"Territorial Disinterestedness" To Be Basis of Action by the Powers.

Paris, Nov. 1. — A policy of "territorial disinterestedness" in the Balkans is, if France, Russia and Great Britain have their way, to replace the now discredited shibboleth of "status quo" as a basis of collective action by the great powers should the time arrive for a redistribution of sovereignty in Turkey through the success at arms of the allied Balkan States over the Turks. This self-sacrificing ordinance, of course, would apply only to the nations constituting the concert of Europe, as there no longer is any suggestion of opposing the aspirations of the Bulgars, Greeks and Serbs, for a national unity.

It is recognized that they must have their respective slices of territory should the Mussulmans finally acknowledge defeat, but it is acutely feared here that any attempt by outsiders to put their hands in the grab-bag almost assuredly would lead to the European conflagration which the chancelleries aver they are so anxious to avoid.

A full agreement as to the new formula which is to cement the accord of the powers has not yet been reached. France, Russia and Great Britain are ready to subscribe to it, but the powers of the Triple Alliance — Germany, Austria and Italy — under the leadership of Austria, still hesitate. The alleged understanding between Austria and Serbia on the subject of the status of Novi Bazar and Salonica, which it had been hoped here meant that Austria finally had decided that Salonica was not worth a war, and which would have cleared the way for the new program, was officially denied tonight by the Serbian minister in Paris.

M. Poincaré, the French premier, who is working untiringly for peace, does not despair, however, of eventually rallying all the powers under the banner of "disinterestedness" which he believes the surest and perhaps the only means of averting a general war.

COLLISION DAMAGES LOCKS AT ST. KITS

Four Gates Carried Away by Steamer on Rampage.

St. Catharines, Ont., Nov. 1. — The small wooden steamer, Samuel Marshall, owned by the Central Canada Coal Company, Brockville, carried away four gates at Lock 13 this afternoon, and also crashed into a swing-bridge just below, unshipping the turning gear, putting the bridge out of commission, shutting off travel on the St. David's road and blocking navigation.

A high wind prevailed when the Marshall was endeavoring to enter the lock, which was largely responsible for the wreck. It is expected that the channel will be open again for navigation tomorrow. The steamer was light, bound up for a cargo of coal. A number of boats are tied up at both ends of the canal.

FIGHT AT HAMILTON TO CUT LICENSES

[Canadian Press.]
Hamilton, Nov. 1. — The temperance people today turned in the petitions asking for the submission of a bylaw to cut twenty-seven hotel licenses. There were over 3,000 names on the petitions. Only 2,200 were required. Both sides are well organized, and a hot fight is looked for.

LAVERGNE CHALLENGES POSTMASTER GENERAL

Wants a Chance to Publicly Repudiate
Hon. Mr. Pelletier.

[Canadian Press.]
Quebec, Nov. 1. — Great excitement prevails in Quebec over the political meeting at Lorette, which takes place today. Armand Lavergne, the Nationalist, has invited the Hon. L. P. Pelletier, whose conduct as a minister he wants to repudiate, to attend the meeting. Mr. Pelletier has acknowledged the receipt of Mr. Lavergne's invitation, but he did not say in his letter whether or not he would attend the meeting.

JUDICIAL CHANGES

Mr. Frank E. Hodgins Becomes Justice of Court of Appeals.

Ottawa, Nov. 1. — The official statement of the judicial changes in Ontario high court, issued today, shows that they are as follows:
Chief Justice Sir William R. Meredith, of the court of common pleas, becomes chief justice of the court of appeal.

Justice R. M. Meredith, of the court of appeal, becomes chief justice of the court of common pleas.

Frank E. Hodgins, K.C., becomes justice of the court of appeal in place of Justice R. M. Meredith.

James Leitch, K.C., becomes unattached judge under the recent provincial legislation.

RAN INTO OPEN SWITCH

Engine Crew on Train Between Montreal and Quebec Crushed to Death.

Montreal, Nov. 1. — C. P. R. train No. 353, running between Montreal and Quebec, was wrecked, the engineer and fireman killed and the conductor and a brakeman slightly injured by running into an open switch leading to a branch line at Lanoraie at 3:01 this afternoon.

The train was running at high speed, and continued for about 200 or 300 feet, where a sharp curve was struck, and the engine and baggage car turned over on their sides. None of the passengers were hurt. Engineer Juneau and Fireman Ruellard were buried under the engine and instantly killed. Conductor McClary and Baggage-master Fréchette, in the baggage car, were only slightly injured.

TAFT CONFIDENT

Washington, Nov. 2. — At the White House Friday a letter from President Taft to Crawford Hill, of Denver, dealing with issues of the campaign, was made public. It follows:
I am sure that every man whose judgment is not controlled by his prejudice now realizes that this is a campaign between the Republican and Democratic parties. It is apparent that the third party movement has not gained headway as a national force, and that again the alternative is presented to the American people either to support the protective policy of the party in power or to turn over the Government to those who are committed to repeat the experiments which resulted in a commercial explosion when last it was tried.

WELL-DRESSED WOMAN DEAD BY THE TRACK

Hamilton Police Have a New Mystery on Their Hands—May Be a Case of Suicide.

Hamilton, Nov. 1. — The dead body of an unknown woman was found lying beside the tracks in the Grand Trunk station yards at Stuart street here this evening. It was frightfully mangled, and from the appearance of the body and the position in which it was found the police are inclined to the belief that it was a case of suicide. No one seems to know what time the fatality occurred. Freight trains were shunted in that vicinity all evening.

DREADFUL MASSACRE OF GREEKS BY FLEEING TURK SOLDIERS

Kill All Those Who Refuse to Follow Them in Retreat.

Athens, Nov. 1. — Accounts are published here of a massacre of Greeks by Turks in the town of Servia, just across the Greek frontier in Turkey. They say that the fleeing Turkish troops in passing through the village of Metassa ordered the Greek inhabitants to follow them on peril of being massacred by Turkish cavalry. On refusing 52 of the Greeks were

NEW YORK POLICEMAN KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE

Member of Central Park Squad
Was Found Dead By Roadside.

[Canadian Press.]
New York, Nov. 1. — The body of Policeman Peter Fitzsimmons, of the Central Park squad, was found early today lying across a cement sidewalk near the Seventy-fourth street entrance of the park. It was evident from the bits of broken glass scattered about that it had been struck and killed by a speeding automobile. The automobilists had apparently stopped their car, and thrown the body of Fitzsimmons to the side of the road before resuming their ride.

TWO GUILTY OF MURDER

Mother Took Sides With Paramour
Against Her Son.

[Canadian Press.]
Baltimore, Nov. 1. — Albert J. Patterson and Mrs. Emma Bamberger, were today found guilty of the murder of James Bamberger, the convicted woman's 25-year-old son, who was stabbed to death by Patterson at the Bamberger home here last July. The slain man had objected to Patterson's attention to his mother, whose husband is alive and finding Patterson at his mother's home on July 6 fought with him until Bamberger fell dying in the street from knife wounds. Witnesses for the prosecution testified that Mrs. Bamberger upbraided and cursed her son while he lay dying on the pavement.

The penalty for first degree murder is death or life imprisonment. Sentence was deferred.

LETTERS AS EVIDENCE

Seven Hundred of Ironworkers to Appear in Dynamite Case.

[Canadian Press.]
Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 1. — Seven hundred letters were brought before the jury in the dynamite conspiracy trial today to be read as evidence against the 45 defendants.

They were the correspondence taken from the office of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers after J. J. McNamara's arrest. It is charged by the Government that the letters, selected from thirty thousand others show that for five years Frank M. Ryan, president of the union, and the other defendants, conspired to "job" that were to be blown up. Many of the letters which the Government asserts, tend to show a conspiracy to transport explosives in passenger trains, were included in the indictment and already have been made public. District Attorney Miller said he expected to read all the letters before Otis E. McNamara, the Government's chief witness, testifies.

LAKE STORM ABATES

Boats Held Up on Superior for 72
Hours Beginning to Arrive.

[Canadian Press.]
Fort William, Ont., Nov. 1. — A storm has been raging on Lake Superior for 72 hours, but has now abated, and boats which had been held up, are now commencing to arrive. Those outboard, which had shelter behind Welcome Island, have departed for the east. The storm will be rather a severe blow to Western Canada. The steamship companies have lost thousands of dollars, as their boats will be operated one trip less than figured on, necessitating a big decrease in the shipment of grain, and the freight receipts on that freight, as well as on coal, steel and other commodities.

ANOTHER TRIUMPH FOR ROUGH-RIDER

Grand Ovation During Second
Meeting at Madison Square Garden.

CHEERED 25 MINUTES

Says to Carry New York State Necessary to Progressive Success
Throughout Nation.

New York, Nov. 1. — Col. Theodore Roosevelt for the second time in three days, tonight addressed an audience of thousands in Madison Square Garden. There had preceded him to the Garden, through the medium of Comptroller William A. Prendergast, chairman of the meeting, a request that no effort be made by the crowd to cheer him beyond the limit of time accorded last night in the same hall to Governor Wilson.

When Col. Roosevelt raised his left hand, said Mr. Prendergast, "he asks you to let him proceed with his speech, because he desires a record next Tuesday in the voting, rather than a record tonight in the duration of the cheers."

Oscar S. Straus, candidate for governor, and other state speakers had held the stage until 9:40 before cheers from outside signaled the approach of the presidential candidate. The applause from within swelled to a roar as Col. Roosevelt forced his way to the front of the platform a minute later. He was smiling broadly, and he waved a welcome to all parts of the hall. It was 25 minutes before his up-lifted hand brought the cheering to an end.

"Watch that you vote the way you shout," he said, "and I will be satisfied. The presidential candidate, declaring that he spoke in behalf of the progressive state and local tickets of New York, talked for over an hour, his voice strong and his strength apparently unimpaired by the effort. Success in the state, he declared, was essential to progressive success throughout the nation.

MABEL BARRISON DEAD AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Clever Canadian Actress Becomes a Victim of the White Plague.

Toronto, Nov. 1. — Miss Mabel Barrison, the clever Toronto actress who won fame by her work in musical comedy and farce, died of consumption tonight at 7:45 o'clock, after a long illness.

She had spent the major portion of the past two years with relatives in Toronto, with the exception of trips to California and Saranac Lake, taken in the hope of improving her health. She returned to Toronto last summer, accompanied by her husband, Joseph Howard, the actor and song writer, and has since been living with her aunt, Mrs. Gliven, Bostead avenue. Thursday of last week the physicians pronounced her case hopeless, and gave her only a few hours to live. Mr. Howard left his theatrical company in Lincoln, Neb., and came to Toronto, remaining until last night, when he was obliged to leave to rejoin the company in Indiana.

Although her condition was such all the time, the death was momentarily expected. Miss Barrison made a courageous fight for life, and on Wednesday morning expressed a desire to get up and dress. She took no nourishment from Tuesday until Thursday, but did not lose consciousness. A message has been sent recalling Mr. Howard, and on his arrival arrangements will be made for the funeral.

A premature report of her death, circulated in the United States and Canada, resulted in a flood of telegrams of inquiry and condolence from leading stage people being received today at the house where Miss Barrison lay.

Commander of Craft Describes Daring Exploit in the Gulf of Saloniki.

Athens, Nov. 1. — Lieut. Vothis, commander of the torpedo boat which last night sank the Turkish battleship Feth-i-Bulend at Saloniki, today sent the following report of the incident to the Government:

"The forts of Karahun were flashing their searchlights unceasingly between the estuary of the Karavofano and the mouth of the Vardar River, but I passed safely in. Making full steam for Saloniki, I arrived at 11:20 o'clock in the evening.

"I discovered a Turkish cruiser at the left extremity of a pier. At the right extremity were other vessels, including a Russian warship. I manoeuvred cautiously and escaped detection and launched a torpedo at a distance of 150 metres from the starboard side of my vessel. Then turning slightly to the left, I launched another from the port side. Then I steamed away at full speed to a safe distance and again turning, I dis-

Loud Explosion.
"Then such an explosion was heard that we thought a cannon had been fired on land. After the first explosion we noticed lights moving about on the cruiser and heard whistles being blown. The officers' quarters were lit up by the explosion, which occurred at a spot a little forward of the right funnel.

"Dense volumes of smoke poured from the funnel and the vessel lurched forward by the bows. I then departed at full speed, passing in front of Karahun, which certainly had been apprised of the event from Saloniki, as the fortress blazed all of its searchlights.

"As we passed, unnoticed, I carried out a promise previously made — my gunners and fired a shot at the fortress from a range of 2,600 metres."

"MUTT AND JEFF" ARE AS FUNNY AS USUAL
Ross Snow and "Shorty" Dewitt Provide a Continuous Performance of Laughs.

"Mutt and Jeff," as funny as they are in the cartoons of "Bud" Fisher, originated a good sized house at the Grand Opera House Friday evening for over two hours. These impossible characters are absolutely the last word in the vocabulary of the ridiculous, as a result their efforts to please result in a simple riot of mirth.

The play differs little from last season, although the cast has been strengthened somewhat. Ross Snow, as Mutt, is a decided improvement. Snow is funny in any role, but as Mutt he certainly is the funniest mutt that ever enacted the part. "Shorty" Dewitt is the Little Jeff of old, and is certain to create a laugh every time he turns around.

The other roles are in capable hands. Miss Frankie Stewart as Jessie May is as lively and vivacious as ever. She is a very clever dancer, and sings well. Miss Norma Bell has some good songs, which she sings cleverly. Miss Bertha Del Monte, as the South American beauty, looked the part, as well as showing ability as an actress. This piece is simply a laugh producer, with good songs, pretty girls, and plenty of snap and fire. There will be a matinee and evening performance today.

COURT HESITATES TO DECLARE MAN DEAD

Has Been Missing Since 1904 and His Wife Claims Insurance.

[Canadian Press.]
Toronto, Nov. 1. — Bearing in mind the man who was declared dead by the courts and who turned up after an absence of 26 years, Mr. Justice Latchford hesitated to grant an order declaring Benjamin O'Gee to be dead, though he has not been heard from since 1904. His sister, Mrs. Margaret Gunn, of Houghton Centre, applied for an order which would permit her to recover life insurance in the Canadian Order of Home Circles. She thought her brother might have been lost in a wreck on the great lakes, where he was a sailor.

Mr. Justice Latchford directed that further evidence be collected. The order is willing to abide by any order the court may see fit to make.

This Dear Old Lady

Was a nurse to the sick and wounded during the Civil War. Twenty-three years ago, at a time when her doctor thought she could not recover from her illness, and when he thought other medicines would be useless, he advised her to take Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey.

Look at her photograph. What a pleasing picture of health and content she makes now, in her advancing years! —her brain alert, eyes bright and memory clear. It is within your power to maintain your faculties, your activity and willing, pleased friendships if you will but make an effort to do so.

If you are not aging gracefully, if you suffer from ills which you should not, if your faculties are becoming impaired, if the attention and interest of your friends are lessening, perhaps you can benefit from the experience of Mrs. Kane. Advice is as good as it turns out to be. The advice of Mrs. Kane's doctor to her was pretty good, she thinks. See if you agree with her. Read her letter, which follows:

"I am 72 years old and have used Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for the past 23 years. When I first took it my doctor said it was only a question of a few months before I would die from that dreaded disease, consumption. The doctor said it was no use to take any other medicine, but advised me to take lots of eggs and milk, and use about a half wineglass of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey in each glass of eggs and milk, and to eat as much food as possible.

"At the expiration of ten months my cold disappeared and I gained in weight steadily, and today I weigh 195 pounds. My memory is so very good that I can remember things that happened as far back as the battle of Hampton Roads, between the Monitor and Merrimack, on March 9, 1862. I was then nursing the sick and wounded of the Union, which I did till the war was over.

"I went to Canton, China, as a missionary nurse, in 1875 to 1880, and can recall many of the disastrous events, such as famine and plague, during this period in China. Hoping that Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey will do for others what it has done for me, I remain, Yours very truly, Mrs. E. Kane, 2043 Palmetto Street, Brooklyn, N. Y."

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

does more toward restoring and maintaining good health, unimpaired memory and faculties in men and women than all other medicines combined. It is nature's true tonic-stimulant. Note that Mrs. Kane gained in weight steadily, and her cold disappeared. Her doctor believed she would die of consumption. He prescribed Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. She recovered, and today, 23 years after her serious illness, for which she took Duffy's, at the age of 72 she is alive and well and weighs 195 pounds.

Determine today to regain your own health and strength. Make up your mind to use Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. See that you get Duffy's. Write our doctors for advice. They will give it absolutely free and in confidence. You will also receive a valuable illustrated medical booklet.

PURE WATER FIGHT IS ON IN ERNEST

Every Effort Will Be Made to Secure the Best Supply.

SARNIA BRANCH OFFICE, 209 Front Street. Office hours, 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Sarnia, Nov. 2.—Next Wednesday will decide the fate of the waterworks by-law. As the day draws closer, the fight for pure water increases in strength, and no pains or money are being spared by those in favor of the by-law to put it through. The daily paper and the weekly paper, which has been turned into a daily during the campaign, are at each other, hammer and tongs. Monday evening a big public mass meeting will be held, and the Hon. Mr. Hanna, F. F. Pardee, and other well-known public men will address the citizens in the interests of pure water.

GREEKS ANXIOUS TO FIGHT TURKS

Carloads Are Hurrying Homeward From All Over the States.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Sarnia, Nov. 2.—Greeks are still passing through the Sarnia Tunnel on their way to the east, where they will embark for the homeland to repel the Turkish invader. At a very conservative estimate over a thousand of the Grecians have passed through here so far, and yesterday a carload was passed by the immigration inspectors.

HOUSES NEEDED

Many People Unable to Secure Dwellings at the Tunnel.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Sarnia, Nov. 2.—There has been some talk of organizing a home builders' association here to construct houses for the families who are arriving here daily. Sarnia is facing a very serious house shortage, and Port Huron, across the river on the American side, is in the same condition. The businessmen in the latter city have got together on a proposition to erect houses for the steadily growing population, and it is hoped that something on similar lines can be started in Sarnia.

ADMITS STEALING MAY BE DEPORTED

Sidney Jones Took $25 From Farmer Near Thamesford.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Ingersoll, Nov. 2.—Sidney Jones, an Englishman, aged 18, was remanded to Woodstock jail today for a week in connection with a charge of theft that has been laid against him by George Matheson, a farmer, residing near Thamesford. He was arrested in Barrie by Chief Marshall and was brought here by Chief Fysh.

Last July, Jones, who had been employed as a laborer at Mr. Matheson's place, suddenly disappeared, and at the same time $25 was missing. A description was furnished the police and yesterday word was received from Barrie that Jones had been arrested.

Jones will likely be deported. He was working when arrested for J. R. Cook, a Caledon farmer near here.

Jones is the lad who about six weeks ago told a lurid story of having been gagged and tied to a self-blinder on Mr. Alex. Huston's farm. He worked on the Huston place until last Saturday, going from there to Mr. Cook's. He has admitted his guilt.

THE FIRST SNOW

Fall at the Tunnel Did Not Last Very Long.

[Canadian Press.] Sarnia, Nov. 2.—The first snow of the season fell here last night. It was only a flurry, however, and did not last over five minutes. Nevertheless it aroused very unpleasant anticipations of what might come, and those who were on the street did not appear at all pleased at the little surprise the weatherman played upon them. One man who remarked that it was about time to buy a snow-shovel was nearly mobbed by his indignant friends.

CORROBORATES EXPLORER.

San Francisco, Nov. 2.—Corroborating in every essential detail the story of the discovery of the blond Eskimo tribes recently announced by Vilhjalmr Stefansson, Dr. Rudolph Martin Anderson, of Forest City, Ia., his partner in Arctic explorations, arrived here yesterday on the whaler Belvedere after four and a half years in the far north. He was accompanied by Prof. E. Dekoven Leffingwell, of Pasadena, California, who has spent three and a half years, making observations in the vicinity of the Flaxman Islands and surveying and mapping about 150 miles of the coast line.

Dr. Anderson brings back hundreds of specimens of mammals, birds, fishes and minerals that will be divided between the Dominion Geological Survey at Ottawa and the American Museum of Natural History in New York. He has 35 specimens of caribou.

THE PROFESSIONAL RAT-CATCHER.

[BY A PHYSICIAN.]

With the plague, knocking on many sides for admittance to the country, the ancient, if not especially honored profession of the rat-catcher may come into vogue, at least until science and invention have solved the problem of eliminating the rat altogether. In the congested and insanitary cities of centuries ago, it is easy to imagine the utility of such a functionary.

The profession still exists in most of our larger cities, its representatives—a sort of non-criminal member of the underworld—claiming special skill or mysterious professional secrets in his way of working.

It is not to be doubted that such individuals are better acquainted than the rest of the community with the ways of the pestilent rodents, and the

DUST AND FLIES NOT SERIOUS MENACES

Dr. Hill Says the Sources of Infection Should Be Given All Attention.

That there is little danger or infectious diseases being carried by dust germs, and less danger from the common house-fly than is generally supposed, was definitely asserted Friday night by Dr. Hill, of the London Institute of Public Health, in addressing a meeting of the Princess Avenue Mothers' Club.

The nature of dust was defined by Dr. Hill, who stated that while there were many bacteria found in dirt, by the time it became dry enough to blow about in the form of dust, the germs were dead, and so practically harmless. In regard to infection through the house-fly, Dr. Hill said that the danger arose from open toilets. The fly often flew from these to the table, perhaps falling into the milk, and so spreading the disease. "We should use every means to get rid of the open toilet," urged Dr. Hill, "if we would prevent epidemics of these diseases."

It was further pointed out that the real danger of infection lay in uncooked foods, especially milk, which should be pasteurized or at least scalded. Mouth-spray is one of the most frequent methods by which throat affections are spread, and Dr. Hill warned his hearers to avoid contact with a tubercular person or diphtheria patient.

"The medical inspection of school children today is an excellent thing," said Dr. Hill, "and what we would like to see is an inspection of adults, say, every three months. Then we could hope to really banish these infectious diseases."

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Dr. Hill at the conclusion of his address, the motion being put by Mr. U. A. Buchner, and seconded by Dr. Bryant.

Dr. Ziegler favored the meeting with a couple of excellent solos and at the close of the program the members of the club served refreshments.

$450 TAKEN AT BAZAAR BY SANATORIUM AID

Three Hours' Selling Realizes a Large Sum, Despite Bad Weather.

Despite the inclemency of the weather, the ladies of London responded cheerfully on Friday afternoon to the appeal made by the Sanatorium Aid Society, and the bazaar held in the Y. M. C. A. building by that organization was accordingly an unequalled success, over $450 being taken in within three hours. Many of the ladies attended in motor cars, and the enjoyment of the affair, coupled with the cause for which they were rendering assistance in the work against the white plague, added to the pleasure of all.

The room was prettily decorated in yellow and white, and proved to be one of the most attractive departments of the bazaar. Mrs. John Stevely, Mrs. Adam Beck, and Mrs. S. J. Radcliffe were the hostesses, and were assisted by a number of young ladies. The Misses Topping, of Tamblings Corner, furnished a delightful musical program.

Home-made cakes and pastry of unusual excellence were vended by Mrs. (Dr.) Belton, Mrs. Rechinizer, Mrs. Mills and Mrs. Arnett. Purdon, with success of some has passed into tradition as little short of marvelous. The usefulness of the profession should make it more respectable at this time than it has been considered in the past.

"Boards of health and sanitary authorities might utilize the ideas of workers as a temporary means of warding off a threatening crisis like the impending epidemics of plague," says the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Catching the rat to be sure, like swatting the fly, is a lame and unsatisfactory expedient, compared with building and starving both out of existence.

But so long as such an anachronism as the rat exists there is no inconsistency in fighting it with a medieval institution like the rat-catcher.

The Man of Discretion Observes an Average

FINE STRAWBERRIES PICKED AT REBECCA

Splendid Second-Growth Fruit Brought in By Mr. C. L. Robertson.

Mr. C. L. Robertson, of Rebecca, brought to The Advertiser office today a box of splendid second-growth strawberries which his wife picked in her garden on the "Dundell Fruit Farm" in West Nisour. Three boxes were picked in all. Mr. Robertson only started fruit growing a year ago last spring, and has under cultivation now eighteen acres of small fruits and several hundred pear, plum and cherry trees. Mr. Robertson is strong for the "Stay in Ontario" campaign, and is one of the men who is going to help make Middlesex the banner fruit growing county of the province.

MENOCAL PLEASED WITH ELECTIONS

[Canadian Press.] New York, Nov. 2.—Gen. Menocal, who was elected to the presidency of Cuba yesterday, on the Conservative ticket, cabled the following statement to the people of the United States today through the New York World: "My own success is nothing in comparison to Cuba's demonstration of her ability to hold law-abiding elections in which her disapproval of corrupt government was thoroughly established. We feel and will soon prove that we are worthy of that confidence which the people of the United States and the outside world once placed in us."—Mario Menocal.

Packey McFarland.

Chicago, Nov. 1.—"Packey" McFarland, a Chicago boy who is a boxer, and who would like to get into a ring with Battling Nelson just to give him a whipping.

"I have made about $200,000 in the last five years, and that is why I am ready to quit. My best winning was with Matt Wells, the Englishman. I drew down $10,000 for that fight. My battle with Jimmy Britt in San Francisco brought me $5,000. I have had a number of smaller fights right along and cleaned up nearly $50,000 a year.

"I never bet on myself, but have made a little betting on others. I never have been a paying proposition to bet, though, and I quit it."

Football Error Nets
Peculiar Touchdown

Boston, Nov. 1.—One of the most remarkable errors ever made in a football game is reported from Lowell, where Dean Academy this week played the Lowell Technical School. In the course of the contest Kowall of the academy eleven blocked a kick from the Lowell eleven. He picked up the ball and ran 60 yards toward his own goal line. He was in full flight when he discovered his mistake. He turned and ran back 65 yards in the right direction and made a touchdown.

[Canadian Press.]

New York, Nov. 2.—Princeton and Harvard met in the most important football match of the eastern gridiron today at Cambridge, Mass. The clash between Princeton and Harvard was regarded by many as the leading game of the season. The Princeton team, which was led by a halfback, and Annapolis, left only a handful of other games worthy of note on eastern grids. These contests include: Pennsylvania vs. Penn State at Philadelphia; Cornell vs. Williams at Ithaca; Carlisle vs. Lehigh at South Bethlehem; Brown vs. Vermont at Providence; Dartmouth vs. Amherst at Hanover; Syracuse vs. Rochester at Syracuse; Lafayette vs. Bucknell at Easton. The teams of West Point and Annapolis did not play today on account of the death of Vice-President Sherman, while the Yale game was called off on account of the death of one of the players.

"AL PALZER, NEW CHAMPION, IS GREATEST HEAVYWEIGHT OF ALL TIME"—
TOM O'ROURKE.

BY TOM O'ROURKE.

Famous Ring Promoter and Now Manager of Al Palzer.

Al Palzer is rushing up the pugilistic horizon today, as the REAL and ONLY successor to Jack Johnson. He is a physical marvel and needs only a little more experience to round into the greatest fighting machine the world has ever seen.

I long tried to get a match for Palzer with Johnson, but the negro always evaded it. Now, in view of the notoriety attached to Johnson, I do not expect any club would stage him.

I shall not claim the title for Palzer (as I suppose a lot of pugilists and their manager will do), but I will match him against all of the best men in the world in the elimination battles and I KNOW Al will come home the winner.

I have handled scores of fighters in my time, but none of them have had all the qualities Palzer possesses. His 240 pounds of bone and muscle are well distributed over his six feet three inches of frame. He has a punch even more powerful than a mule's kick, and he can stand up under punishment, and comes back stronger than any man that ever stepped inside the ropes.

This is evidenced by the history of Palzer's 10 last fights. He won every one of them—eight by knockouts. He was pitted against some of the leaders of the "heavy" class, too.

Palzer's defence is almost impregnable and the few weak spots in his armor will soon be covered up. A little more practice and experience will turn the trick beautifully.

When I discovered Palzer I felt at once that he had a wonderful future. Events happening since have borne out my opinion. The last is only 23, and he has actually fighting but 18 months. In another year he will have reached his prime, but he is of such magnificent caliber that it will be many years before his star is dimmed, according to my deductions—all this, of course, providing he continues to live a clean life.

It will always be a battle between the most skeptical, beyond the shield of a doubt, that Palzer was Johnson's superior.

I am confident that within a year Palzer by his showing against other heavyweights, will demonstrate quite as well that he is the greatest fighting machine history has yet seen—not only the champion battler of now, but of all other time.

JOHNSON'S SALOON
CLOSED BY POLICESquad of Bluecoats Escorted Patrons to Street and Locked the Doors of Negro's Cafe in Chicago.

Chicago, Nov. 1.—The Cafe de Champion, Jack Johnson's saloon, on Thirty-first street, was closed this afternoon by the police. A squad of police went there at 2 o'clock, escorted the patrons to the street, and locked the doors. The notorious growling and barking of the charges against the pugilist caused the refusal of his license.

City Collector Cohen ruled that Johnson was an undesirable person within the meaning of 101 law. The fighter will have to leave for Russia as soon as his affairs are settled here. A series of fights have been arranged for him there.

Mayor Harrison commended the action of Collector Cohen for refusing the pugilist his license. "We would have to change our mind very much before we would be convinced as to his good moral character," said the mayor. "Mr. Cohen has done right in refusing the license."

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 1.—Today's races resulted as follows:

First race for all ages, 5½ furlongs—Yorkshire Boy, 98; Inspector Pandorina, 101; 2, Time, 1:03 2-5.

Second race, 2-year-olds, 5½ furlongs—Ten Point, 107; 1; Tarts, 104; 2; Flying Fairy, 107; 3, Time, 1:03.

Third race, selling, 3-year-olds and up, 6 furlongs—Buckeye, 105; 1; Miss Moments, 110; 2; The Busybody, 110; 3, Time, 1:15 1-5.

Fourth race, Inaugural steeplechase, 4-year-olds and up, 2 miles—Shannon River, 132; 3, Time, 4:06 2-5.

Fifth race, maidens, all ages, 1 mile—Star Gaze, 95; 1; Bryndown, 92; 2; Monaghan, 114; 3, Time, 1:42 2-5.

Sixth race, 3-year-olds and up, 1-1½ miles—Yorkshire Boy, 98; 1; Inspector Pandorina, 101; 2; Amelia Jenks, 103; 3, Time, 2:01 2-5.

Seventh race, 2-year-olds and up, selling, 6 furlongs—Patrick S., 103; 1; Coming Con, 111; 2; Lawton Wiggins, 105; 3, Time, 1:15 1-5.

Adding insult to injury and then piling on more: Murphy says he may decide to hold Frank Chance as utility infielder. Murphy, of the Athletics, was presented with a $150 watch by admiring friends of his home town, White Mills, Pa.

Spokane has signed two likely California semi-pros for next season. The two are, Harry Davis, pitcher, and a left-hander.

In the talk of a possible sale of the Chicago Cubs, it is stated that the price put on the property was $75,000.

Report comes from the Pacific Coast that Denton T. Young has been offered the management of the Portland team of the Coast League, a cousin of Dutch Lewis, of the Boston Red Sox.

Bill Powell, who was with Kansas City this year, and was drafted by the Chicago Cubs, is going to play basketball this winter to keep in condition.

The initial fee of the Players' Fraternity will be $5, and nearly 300 players in the majors will come across with their five dollars. Next year, the dues will be $10.

According to report, Charles Connors, a Boston merchant and friend of Fred Pitman, has been interested financially in the Syracuse Club, of the New York State League.

Released Pitcher "King" Cole, secured in the trade with Chicago last summer, to the Cubs in the deal for Dan Tipple, the St. Louis pitcher. Tipple was given as part payment for Lefty Cooper.

Walsh was given a bonus of $1,000 over and above his share as a player for shutting out the Cubs in the deciding game of the Chicago series.

The New York Americans announce the sale back to Brooklyn of Shortstop John O'Dowd. He was given a brief trial last summer and allowed to finish the season with Brooklyn. Now he will remain there.

A. W. Wagner has purchased the interest of his partner, Wade Duncan, in the Terre Haute Club of the Central League and is now the sole owner. Wagner is a native of Terre Haute.

The Live Oak Hall

THE DAVID HARUM OF BASEBALL

THAT'S MICHAEL J. KELLY.

When It Comes to Swapping Players, There Are Mighty
Few Managers Who Can Put Anything Over on Mike.

Michael J. Kelly, manager of the St. Paul American Association team, is the David Harum of the game, and the stormy petrel of the association.

He has more friends who are "for him," than any other man in baseball, unless it is Charlie Murphy, of the Cubs.

Kelly has managed St. Paul from the start, save when he was blackballed by the league, as the result of umpire "Brick" Owens being mobbed by a St. Paul crowd, followed by some caustic remarks by Mike to the effect that Owens was against his team. During his absence Kelly was in the Eastern League, and St. Paul went along like a spavined horse.

St. Paul was a winner under Kelly, and demanded that Owner George Lennon secure his reinstatement. So insistent were they that $5,000 fans signed a "We Want Kelly" petition, and it was sent to the A. A. magnates. The result was the return of Kelly.

Kelly made baseball in St. Paul, despite the drawing power of Minneapolis. He made money for the stockholders, and he made money for the fans. He was a regular in selling young players for fancy prices. Now he is said to be slated to manage the Indianapolis club.

Kelly developed Marty O'Toole and sold him to Pittsburgh for $22,500. He sold him on regular or stage money is a matter of opinion—and then induced Pittsburgh to take Catcher Billy Kelly for $5,500.

This was pulled off in 1911. This year Kelly lived up to his reputation by sending Shortstop Artie Butler to Pittsburgh in exchange for infielders McKechnie and Behr. Pitcher Harry Gardner and two players to be delivered this winter.

The St. Paul manager has the faculty of developing youngsters no one else can see anything in. He looks them over as a buyer would a bit of horseflesh, examining them with a keen eye, and if he finds one he is looking for, he proceeds to develop the youngster into an asset which sooner or later commands a high price and lands the boy in a major league.

Kelly purchased Harry Steinfield from the Cubs, Harry having supposedly outlived his usefulness. Steinfield went to the Saints for the proverbial "song," but did not like the scenery and Kelly didn't like his playing. He was traded to the Boston Nationals for Outfielder Josh Clarke, and Artie Butler was traded to the Indians for good measure.

Later Clarke was sold to Kansas City for more than Steinfield cost St. Paul, and Butler developed into a star. Scarcely had the season opened before Butler's playing attracted half a dozen major league scouts.

Pittsburgh got Butler because Dreyfuss offered the best deal in players. It was said Kelly received $1,000 in cash for making the deal. What he received for "putting over" the O'Toole-Kelly thing only he and Lennon know.

Kelly's contract calls for him to remain in St. Paul for another year. George Lennon has told him he can go to Indianapolis if he can better himself. Whether he will do so probably depends upon the sort of contract he can make with Levy, Charles Watkins, Jimmy Burke and Charley O'Leary could not stand for the interference they encountered there. Kelly will go forward, and those who know him say he will stand no foolish interference from stockholders who own four or five shares of stock.

MR. WILLIAM MOORE ELECTED
PRESIDENT OF HORTICULTURISTS

Planned to Distribute Free Seed
Among School Children
Next Year.

The members of the London Horticultural Society concluded a successful year Friday evening, when their annual meeting was conducted in the board of trade rooms.

New officers were elected for the ensuing term, Mr. Wm. Moore being chosen to succeed Mr. W. W. Gammon, who has presided over the association in a most satisfactory manner during the 1912 term. Those chosen were: President, Wm. Moore; first vice-president, W. E. Saunders; second vice-president, J. W. Metherall; directors, W. W. Gammon, J. H. Bowman, W. A. Pring, J. Paine, A. J. Morgan, J. Kirkpatrick, W. H. Bartlett, C. F. Jeffrey, W. Hayden, auditors, C. F. Butler and W. H. Hamilton; representatives to the Western Fair board, Jeffrey and J. H. Bowman; representatives to the Ontario Horticultural Association, J. W. Metherall, Wm. Moore, W. A. Pring and Dr. Jeffrey.

Parks Superintendent Dilger was in attendance and congratulated the members of the society upon the good work they have performed in London. The organization, he declared, should be encouraged by the city to persist in their endeavors.

The feature of the program was an address by Dr. F. E. Bennett, a dentist, of St. Thomas, who related an interesting story of the progress made in the Railroad City. The society of which he is a member expects to enroll one thousand names before the end of 1913.

Dr. Bennett suggested that London and St. Thomas horticulturists exchange letters.

Casey Hagerman, it is said, will ask the National Council to order him a share in the seed series from the Boston Red Sox. Hagerman got in bad last summer when he refused to return to Denver because of a cut in salary. He claims he was ready to give the Red Sox his services and should be considered a member of the team. The Commission is not likely to pay much attention to his plea.

St. Louis City, of the Western and Spokane of the Northwestern, have made a deal by which ten million goes to Spokane and Chick Hartley goes to St. Louis. Hartley was secured by Spokane late in the season from San Francisco. He hit .338 in the 45 games he played in the Northwestern league, but did not have the speed that President Cohen desires. Million is strong on speed, but weak on hitting.

Marty Krug, member of the new world's champions, finds his dark past bobbing up to bother him. Dayton, of the Central League, claims he is still on his suspended list for jumping the team, but it is a little late with its complaint. Krug played the name of Craig with Dayton and then went to the South Atlantic, taking the name of Krug. He was allowed to continue in the game by Dayton without protest.

THE BEST WE HAVE IS YOURS

P., L. and O. Hot Water Bottles

We searched a long time before we found a bottle that we'd be willing to name "P., L. and O.," but we have it now.

Every bottle goes to you with a guarantee for two years. If any defect appears in that time, we'll make it good in any way you ask—exchange or "money-back."

The price—for the two-quart size—is Two Dollars.

Fountain Syringes—same quality—same price.

Hazoma Cream

Mr. Percival, who manufactures this preparation, has produced an article of very superior merit.

For chapped hands, rough skin, sunburn, or redness from exposure to the wind, it is unequalled.

Like all the P., L. and O. preparations, it is sold on the "money-back" basis.

Twenty-five cents.

Lister's Corn Cure

This is just what you want to relieve you from these troublesome companions.

Mr. Lister, after a lot of experimenting and careful study of the "corn problem," has produced what we believe to be quite the best "remover" that it is possible to make.

It is for sale at all three of our stores.

Twenty-five cents.

Ommond's 468 Cough Cure

No matter what causes your cough, or what kind of a cough it is, "468" will give you speedy relief, and in most cases, cure it.

Mr. Ommond has combined those well-known remedies—White Pine and Wild Cherry Barks, Pine Tar, Chloride of Ammonium, and Squills, in just the right proportion to cure your cough.

There's no fuss nor worry about preparing—it's ready for use—just take it.

Twenty-five and Fifty cents.

THE PROGRESSIVE DRUGGISTS

The Silent Barrier

(BY LOUIS TRACY.)

George's intelligence might be superficial, but he knew a lady when he met one, and Helen had attracted him powerfully. He was thinking of her as the good fortune that numbered him among the earliest of her acquaintances in the hotel, and it was too bad that this baring, edit should have been issued against her so unexpectedly. But he was not of a fighting breed, and he quailed before the threat of Mrs. Vavasour's displeasure.

Helen, after a delightful ramble past the chateau and along the picturesque turns and twists of the Coline des Artistes, returned in time for tea, which was served on the veranda, the common rendezvous of the hotel during daylight. No one spoke to her. She went out again and walked by the lake till the shadows fell and the mountains glittered in purple and gold. She dressed herself in a simple white evening frock, dined in solitary state, and ventured into the ballroom after dinner.

George was dancing with Mrs. de la Vere, a languid-looking woman, who seemed to be plining for admiration. At the conclusion of the waltz that was going on when Helen entered, Vavasour brought his partner a whiskey and soda and a cigarette. He passed Helen twice, but ignored her, and whirled one of the Vavasour girls off into a polka. Again he failed to see her when parties were being formed for a quadrille. Even to herself she did not attempt to deny a feeling of annoyance, though she extracted a bitter amusement from the knowledge that she had been slighted by such a vapour creature.

She was under no misconception as to what had happened. The women were making a dead set against her. If she had been plain or dowdy, they might have been friendly enough. It was an unparadiseable offense that she should be good-looking, unchaperoned, and not one of the queerly assorted mixture they deemed their woe. For a few minutes Helen was seely angry. She realized that her only crime was poverty. Given a little share of the wealth held by these women, she would be a reigning star among them, and could act and talk as she pleased, without shyness and reserve would have been her best credentials to any society that was constituted on a sounder basis than the gathering of snobs. Among really well-born people she would certainly have been received on an equal footing until some valid reason for ostracism was forthcoming. The imported limps on this Swiss rock of gentility were not sure of their own grip. Hence they strenuously refused to make room for a newcomer until they were shoved aside.

Poor, disillusioned Helen! When she went to church she prayed to the good Lord to deliver her and everybody else from envy, hatred and malice, and all uncharitableness. She felt now that there might well be added to the Litany a fresh petition which should include British communities on the Continent in the list of avoidable evils.

At that instant the plangent face and figure of Millicent Jacques rose before her mind's eye. She pictured to herself the cool efficiency with which the actress would crush these waspish women by creating a court of every eligible man in the place. It was not a healthy thought, but it was the offspring of sheer vexation, and Helen experienced her second temptation that day when she saw the irrepressible "Reginald" of Mrs. Vavasour's sketches. Reminiscences came and asked her to dance.

She recognized him at once. He sat with Mrs. de la Vere at table, and never spoke to her, unless it was strictly necessary. He had distinguished manners, a pleasant voice and a charming smile, and he seemed to be the devoted slave of every pretty woman in the hotel except his wife.

"Please pardon the informality," he said, with an affability that cloaked the impertinence. "We are quite a family party at Melrose. I hear you are staying here some weeks, and we are bound to get to know each other sooner or later."

Helen could dance well. She was so mortified by the injustice meted out to her that she almost accepted de la Vere's partnership on the spur of the moment. But her cool rebellion against the man's covert insolence, and she said quietly: "No, thank you. I do not care to dance."

"May I sit here and talk?" he persisted.

"I am just going," she said, "and I think Mrs. de la Vere is looking for you." By happy chance the womanly question was standing alone in the centre of the ballroom, obviously in quest of some man who would take her to the foyer for a cigarette. Helen retreated with the honors of war, but the irresistible one only laughed.

SLOCUM PILOT DEAD.

New York, Nov. 1.—Captain Edward Van Wart, who was pilot on board the steamboat General Slocum when that vessel took fire in Hell Gate on June 15, 1904, and more than one thousand lives were lost, is dead at his home in Brooklyn, aged 78 years.

On the day of the Slocum disaster Captain Van Wart was at the wheel when the cry of "fire" was given. He turned the steamboat's nose for North Brother Island, where he beached her. He was exonerated of all blame for the disaster.

SCHOOL QUESTION ACUTE IN LONDON

Accommodation Is Needed as Quickly as It Can Be Secured.

PREPARING A REPORT

From Which General Recommendations Covering Most Urgent Needs Will Be Dealt With.

The report of No. 1 committee of the board of education on school boundaries is being prepared, and will be presented to the board within another week.

A long list of questions has been sent to school principals and others, asking their opinion on the matter, while Inspector Edwards has been engaged in preparing a report from his viewpoint.

It is probable that the board will recommend the erection of a new school to replace the present Aberdeen school. This was agreed upon by the board earlier in the year, but inability to obtain the money forced the trustees to forego the construction of the building.

The location of this school will not likely be changed, as it is practically in the centre of the district.

It was not quite so easy to explain matters in the curt language of a wire, he found, and it savored of absurdity to amaze the beer-drinking Scot with a long message. So he compromised between desire and expediency by a letter.

"Dear Mr. Mackenzie," he wrote, "life is not rapid at this terminus. It might take on some new features if I had the privilege of saying 'how de do' to Miss Wynnton. Will you oblige me by telling her that one of your best and nearest friends here now is the same hotel as her charming self, and that if she gets him to sparkle, he (which is I) will help her to sparkle. Advise me by same post, and the rest of the situation is up to yours faithfully."

The letter was posted, and Spencer waited five tireless days. He saw little or nothing of Helen, and he was met by a woman on a footpath that runs through a wood by the side of the lake to the little hamlet of Isola, and he was minded to raise his hat, as he would have done to any other woman in the hotel whom he encountered under similar circumstances; but she deliberately looked away, and his intended courtesy must have passed unheeded.

As he sedulously avoided any semblance of dogging her footsteps, he could not know how she was being persecuted by de la Vere, Vavasour and one or two other men of like habit. That knowledge was yet to come. The complete absence of her altogether too prudish, and was so out of patience with her that he and Steamship for two days' delay by way of the Mureto Pass to Chiareggio and back to Sile Maria over the Fex Glacier.

Footsore and tired, but thoroughly converted to the marvels of the high Alps, he reached the Mureto Pass by side with the postman who brought the English mail about six o'clock each evening.

He waited with an eager crowd of residents while the hall porter sorted the letters. There were some for him from America and one from London in which writing that was strange to him. But he had quick eyes, and he saw that a letter addressed to Miss Helen Wynnton, in the flamboyant envelope of The Firefly, bore the same script.

BALLOON MISSING.

Berlin, Nov. 1.—The balloon Dusseldorf, with John Wamsaid on board, has not yet returned. The complete absence of news in regard to her movements since she started on Sunday last from Stuttgart in the race for the international balloon trophy, is causing considerable disquiet. Inquiries have been telegraphed in all directions, but without result.

It is thought in aeronautical circles that the Dusseldorf may have landed in a remote part of Russia, and it is pointed out that in the case of the French balloon, Ile de France, the news of the landing was not received for 80 hours after it occurred.

BELL COMPANY MUST REPAIR TORN STREETS

City Engineer Says Unsightly Slashes Will Be Put in a Good Condition.

The action of the Bell Telephone Company in tearing up some of the pavements of the city, and a number of streets, particularly after they had just been put in good order, is being met with a great deal of criticism by the citizens generally. Some months ago, the city council gave the company permission to put down a large number of conduits. As a result, Talbot street, Adelaide street, and other well-paved thoroughfares have been cut up. The trenches make them rather difficult to travel over, and the sight is no credit to the city.

Complaints have been numerous, and the attention of City Engineer Brazier has been called to them. He stated today that the Bell Company had promised to put the streets in as good repair as when they commenced work.

"The Bell Company undertook a great deal of work," explained Mr. Brazier. "They were instructed, and have promised, to put the streets in as good a state of repair as when they first opened them. The roads ready to be repaired have been repaired and are in better condition than they were before. In many cases the company are putting down a concrete base where formerly it was broken stone. We will see that the roads are properly built."

BLAMES THE DOCTOR.

Mather, Man, Nov. 1.—Dr. Erskine, of Sarnia, North Dakota, was held criminally responsible for the death of Mrs. W. McLeod, of this place, by a jury of twelve men.

Years of Suffering

A Desperate Case of Catarrh in the Head.

"My father had catarrh in the head for a long time. It was such a desperate case that he didn't know what to do, but one of his friends recommended Hood's Sarsaparilla. He got a bottle immediately, and as soon as he commenced taking it he felt relief and after the use of two other bottles he was completely cured. He was so well pleased with the result that he recommended Hood's Sarsaparilla." Dele Allis Begis, Lewis, P. Q.

"Missionary Work" of the Dynamiters Told by Letters Produced at Trial.

Indianapolis, Nov. 1.—Going back to the coming of the strike by the Ironworkers' Union against bridge constructors in 1905, the Government at the "dynamite conspiracy" trial today read letters purporting to show that violence was the beginning of the "campaign of explosions" later carried on by the Ironworkers. All of the 45 men now on trial, the Government charges, are implicated by the letters.

The Ironworkers' strike was written by Frank Buchanan, then president of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Ironworkers, to J. J. McNamara, saying: "If a majority of the executive board approves, a strike should be ordered." A strike was ordered against a bridge company which had sublet a contract to a Boston contractor who employed McNamara.

In connection with this it was pointed out that an explosion occurred at Miller's Falls, Mass., in December, 1906.

Mr. Buchanan's letters were devoted to the union's business in directing the strike. A letter from McNamara to Frank M. Ryan, who succeeded Buchanan, was read, referring to the conditions in Toledo, Ohio. McNamara said Buchanan had authorized a member named McElroy to "do some missionary work in Toledo," and that McElroy was in connection with this it was pointed out that an explosion occurred at Miller's Falls, Mass., in December, 1906.

Suicide Verdict In Death of Young Girl at Lakeside

Five Jurymen Refuse to Sign Verdict Because No Analysis Was Made of Contents of Stomach—No New Evidence to Throw Light on Causes.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Lakeside, Nov. 1.—The jury which under Coroner Dr. McLaughlin, gazed the death of Agnes McKissock, brought in the following verdict this afternoon: "That Agnes McKissock came to her death by poison taken by herself, but that the evidence is not sufficient for the jury to say what kind of poison, or whether taken with suicidal intent."

A number of the jurymen thought that the contents of the stomach should have been analyzed, and a disagreement resulted in five refusing to sign the verdict. The jury was out for two hours.

The evidence of three witnesses was taken today, throwing no new light on the case. A letter read from W. Ireland, of Toronto, stating that the girl worked for him for two days, and then left one morning at six o'clock, to come to the Lakeside, where she had been told of her visit to Hamilton, and of subsequently escaping from a woman in Toronto, as the girl was only absent two days from Lakeside.

Lighting they have passed through their casualties must have been very heavy. Over 12,000 Turkish wounded soldiers arrived at Constantinople already.

From all the capitals of Europe come reports of the efforts of the powers to reach agreement in regard to the form of intervention, but nothing has been definitely decided beyond a general approval of the French Premier's proposals.

In the meantime, the war vessels of the powers are hurrying to the east to protect Christians among the population, and the southwest, according to the reports of the correspondents there, is very real.

Somewhere between Adrianople and the Ottoman capital along the line of the turn up railroad is what is left of the army of Nazim Pasha, the Turkish commander and war minister, who was yesterday reported to have been captured.

Turks Claim Success.—Smoke from the Ottoman cannon is hanging over the Oriental railroad at Tebriz. Twenty-five miles down the valley, through which that railroad twists are the minarets of Constantinople.

Far behind to the northwest of the victorious Bulgarians their artillery is hammering at the forts of Adrianople, and to the southwest of the besieged and the Bulgarians troops are tramping through the streets of Demotika.

LOCAL OPTION PETITION PRESENTED AT ST. MARYS

Temperance People Want Vote Taken at the January Elections.

[Special to The Advertiser.] St. Marys, Nov. 2.—A local option petition, with 360 signatures attached, was handed to the town clerk Thursday for the purpose of having the council submit a bylaw next January.

The matter will be taken under consideration by the town council at its regular meeting next Monday evening, when the St. Marys football club will hold a banquet at the Windsor Hotel last evening. The season's business was wound up by a presentation of medals by Manager Provost, who presented Dr. M. Steele, a local option president of the town.

A Very Close Call. St. Marys was visited by a sheet-ice storm yesterday afternoon and evening, which threatened to sweep the town away.

Several instances have been reported of the careless handling of firearms by boys. Mrs. R. Gunning, Jones street, east ward, had a narrow escape through the storm sash and window of her kitchen recently. It sent splinters of glass flying on to the kitchen, and she was attending to her household duties.

John Routley, jun., of Chatham, a former resident of the town, has returned and accepted a position with his old employer, Weir & Weir, where he is now engaged in electric grain chipping and rolling mill.

LUCAN PEOPLE AID THE NEW SEMINARY

Bishop Fallon Met With a Liberal Response From St. Patrick's.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Lucan, Nov. 2.—Bishop Fallon spent Friday afternoon at St. Patrick's, where he met with a liberal response from the parishioners. The people of the parish responded generously to the fund for the building of the new seminary in London.

The first Literary Society was held Thursday night at the High School, where a great success. The features of the evening were the singing of the Glees and Charles Reid's address as the new chairman of the society.

HIGHLY HONORED

Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Potts Are Leaving To Reside in Tara.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Pottsville, Nov. 2.—Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Potts, who have been residents of Ebenezer, Arran Township, for 48 years, and their daughter, on the eve of their removal from Tara, were presented by the members and adherents of Ebenezer Church with addresses and gifts.

Rev. Mr. Nixon, of the Methodist Church, acted as chairman. The addresses were read by Mr. W. C. McKelvey, who presented with a very handsome leather Morris chair. Mrs. Potts, with a china tea set, Miss Potts an ebony toilet set and alligator handbag, and Miss Dolly Potts a gold necklace set with pearls and rubies.

BURNED MORTGAGE

Methodist Parsonage at Brussels Is Now Free of Debt.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Brussels, Nov. 1.—The mortgage on the Methodist parsonage was burned at the entertainment held in the church recently. A musical and literary program was rendered and congratulatory addresses given by Messrs. B. Gerry, W. H. Kerr, and Rev. Dr. Oatin. Messieurs Plum and Paul had the pleasant task of setting fire to the mortgage. The church property is now free from debt.

JOHNSON—CONGDON.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Dutton, Nov. 1.—The Methodist parsonage was burned at the entertainment held in the church recently. A musical and literary program was rendered and congratulatory addresses given by Messrs. B. Gerry, W. H. Kerr, and Rev. Dr. Oatin. Messieurs Plum and Paul had the pleasant task of setting fire to the mortgage. The church property is now free from debt.

TAKING FORWARD ADVANCE

Turkish Commander Claims To Have Rallied His Forces.

Constantinople, Nov. 1.—The Turkish army has recaptured the town of Danubiarhar, in Thrace, from the Bulgarians, and also has defeated the Bulgarians in the vicinity of Viza, according to dispatches received here this afternoon from Nazim Pasha, commander-in-chief of the Turkish forces. This disposes of the report that the War Minister had been shot and his headquarters captured. The Bulgarian losses were heavy, and say that all the Turkish army corps have now been ordered to advance.

The dispatch announcing the recapture of Danubiarhar, the capture of Nazim Pasha at 4:45 o'clock this afternoon. It said also that the Bulgarian column had been cut off.

A telegram from Nazim sent at 2 o'clock this afternoon said: "Our right wing has been advancing since yesterday from Viza. Mahmoud Mukhtar Pasha's army has vanquished the Bulgarian column, and now all of our army corps have been ordered to advance."

Being Gradually Hemmed In.

A communication sent by Nazim Pasha to the Sultan during the morning hours stated that the Bulgarian forces gradually were being hemmed in on four sides. It especially commended the conduct of his troops at Viza, who were said to be fighting with splendid devotion and courage.

It is alleged that, realizing the gravity of the situation, the Bulgarian commanders have withdrawn the army at Kustendje and their forces before Adrianople, and that these troops are being hurried to support the main Bulgarian army's centre.

5,000 Wounded Arrive.

Some idea of the desperate nature of the fighting is gathered from the fact that over 5,000 wounded soldiers arrived in Constantinople tonight from the front. Fortunately a majority of the bullets drilled clean holes in their victims, and there will be no deaths from the wounds.

The movement of troops to the front continues. A battalion of Kurds and Albanian volunteers marched through the streets of Pera this evening on the way to the railway station. They were frequently cheered, and appeared to be in the best of spirits.

DROPPED DEAD AFTER FINISHING DINNER

John McIlhargie Was Stricken Very Suddenly at His Home in Elginfield.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Lucan, Nov. 2.—John McIlhargie, aged 68, a lifelong resident of this district, dropped dead at his home near Elginfield, just after eating his dinner yesterday.

He had been in his usual health just before. Besides his wife, he leaves eight children. A funeral will be held on Monday morning at St. Patrick's Church, Elginfield, where Father Arnold will conduct services. Interment will be made at St. Patrick's Cemetery.

LANTERN UPSET AND BIG BARN BURNED

Dog Chased Cat and Caused Very Heavy Loss Near Palmerston.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Palmerston Nov. 1.—Alexander Wilkie, farmer, com. 4, Minto, had his barn, implements and grain totally destroyed at his place this morning. While at work, it is supposed, the cat, being chased by the dog, upset the lantern, and before Mr. Wilkie arrived at the spot the flames were burning. The barn was a large one, and contained a great deal of grain. The loss will be considerable as only the ordinary insurance was carried on the barn and a small percentage on contents.

SUPPOSED MAD DOG IN FIGHT AT DASHWOOD

The Animal Was Shot at But Made Its Escape Unhurt.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Zurich, Nov. 1.—A dog supposed to be mad, visited the Dashwood estate, after engaging in a scuffle with another dog, it was shot at but missed. The animal made its escape. After the mad-dog scare of last summer, most of the dogs in Dashwood were muzzled.

Zurich is likely to have a new industry. The Jackson Manufacturing Company officials, with headquarters at Clinton, were here recently looking over the ground, and the company will give employment to 50 hands.

A Monster Turnip.

The large turnips displayed in the windows of Mr. J. J. Ross, of Elginfield, were replaced by a monster turnip furnished by a nearby farmer. It weighs 25 pounds 11 ounces. It has four long roots, and as it stands it looks like a small piano.

The ground has been plentiful this fall by the farmers of the district, and good prices and good security given.

The outsiders lately have been watching their stock here, and have sold them to advantage. Recently a carload of cows, steers and heifers were sold in the Johnston yards that came from Belmont.

COOPER—BAIRD

Pretty Wedding Was Solemnized at the Manse in Wiarion.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Wiarion, Nov. 2.—Mr. G. H. Cooper, of Eastport, and Mrs. Elizabeth Baird, of Kempt, were united in marriage recently by Rev. J. M. Nichol. The bride was married in her traveling suit, and the ceremony was attended by Mr. Nichol, of the West.

Lochie McLean is rapidly improving in health, and expects shortly to be able to return home.

CHURCHES LOSING HALF THE CHILDREN

Sheriff Cameron Says Rational, Supervised Amusement Is Needed.

FIND FUN ON STREETS

Problem of Factory Girl One That Presses Upon the Municipality.

Sheriff D. M. Cameron addressed a meeting of the Men's Club of the Church of St. John the Evangelist Friday night on "The Social Conditions Among the Young People of the City." During his address the sheriff brought out the significant fact that in the year 1911 there were 58 delinquents in the juvenile court of the city charged with offenses that varied from breaches of bylaws to theft and shop-breaking. He stated that he believed that nearly 50 per cent. of the young people of the city between the ages of 12 and 20 years did not attend church with any degree of regularity. While no one could tell these young people that they could attend church, the sheriff was certain that a large number of them could be persuaded to attend the Sabbath services if the proper influences were brought to bear upon them.

Speaking from the economic point of view, the speaker said that the pressure on manufacturing industries employing young labor could be measured by the fact that the parents of the young people had a better assurance that the children would be working under safe moral conditions. The best method to adopt in fighting these evils was the establishment of healthy, rational and properly supervised amusements.

Ambulance Association Opens Active Campaign For "First Aid."

To promote further growth in their organization, which they had come to realize had been somewhat stagnant in their case in comparison to similarly organized bodies in other Ontario cities, the London branch of the St. John Ambulance Association have decided their membership into two parts, and though the separate organizations will be known in the future as the association and the brigade, the brigade membership will constitute those who will continue the work of the society during the first year of the course of action was decided upon at a meeting of the St. John's Association held in the Y. M. C. A. parlors on Friday evening, and which was presided over by the president, Lieut.-Col. W. M. Garthshore. In the election of officers, Colonel Garthshore was re-elected president of the association for another year, while Mr. W. B. Clark, who has been a member for eight years, was elected to the position of secretary. Mr. W. B. Clark was also elected secretary-treasurer of the brigade, while Mr. W. M. Lovelady will act in a similar position in the association.

The other officers and executive were not appointed at last night's meeting. This matter was left with the president and secretary, who will consult with the last year's officers on Friday evening, and which was presided over by the president, Lieut.-Col. W. M. Garthshore. He was met by a delegation of Shriners, among them being Dr. G. A. Routledge, Dr. A. Roy Routledge, A. E. Somerville, C. W. McGuire, W. H. Abbott, J. M. McEvoy and others, and entertained. He left this morning for St. Thomas. He is making an inspection for the commission.

VALUE OF COLLEGE GOES TO SANATORIUM

Offer of Medical Authorities to Sell For $25,871 Is Refused.

At a meeting of the board of governors of the Western University Friday afternoon the offer of the Western Medical College directors to sell their holdings to the university for the sum of $25,871 was refused, and a proposition made to the Medical School to submit the matter to arbitration, both sides agreeing to abide by the decision arrived at.

This conclusion was arrived at after a long debate. The governors were unanimous in favoring the purchase of the Medical School. The question was simply as to the price. In discussing the question, practically all the members of the board took the position that from their viewpoint the offer was too high. They were not in any position to judge as to the value of the property to be received, or to form any conclusion as to the correctness of the figure. Until such a time it would be impossible for the governors to do other than submit the matter to arbitration.

The letter from the directors of the Medical School was lengthy, and pointed out that it would be impossible for them to accept anything less than the price agreed on. Reference was made to the amount paid the estate of a former stockholder as a reason for so

HALLOWEEN PRANKS WERE BEYOND A JOKE

Police Are Working on Several Cases in Vicinity of Ingersoll.

[Special to The Advertiser.]
Ingersoll, Nov. 2.—Many of the Halloween depredations were beyond what could be considered in the light of the usual pranks, a very destructive spirit being shown by some of those who celebrated the occasion. On the north side of the river, in the vicinity where the barn belonging to Mr. Christopher was burned, several fences were pulled down and seriously damaged. In some instances where the fences were comparatively new and very substantial much force was used to bring their collapse, and considerable damage resulted, pickets being torn off and other boards split and wrenched to pieces. In this locality many of the residents are very indignant, and it is altogether probable that efforts will be put forth by the police to ascertain the identity of the guilty parties that they may be punished.

WYOMING MEETING

J. E. Anderson Was Elected as President of the Bible Society.

[Special to The Advertiser.]
Wyoming, Nov. 2.—The annual meeting of the local branch of the Bible Society was held in the school-room of St. John's Church, and the agent, R. J. Bowen, gave an interesting address. The report for the past year showed that very good work has been done. Mr. John B. Dale was the retiring president.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mr. J. E. Anderson; secretary-treasurer, Mr. E. C. Rice; executive committee, John Richardson, J. E. Bailey, F. Rice, and the resident ministers.

Mr. E. Peacock, of Toronto, has purchased the Hall property in the south end of the town. The new purchaser is a brother-in-law of Mr. John B. Dale and will take possession on Jan. 1st.

Reeve Wilson has returned from a trip west, where he has a farm near Fort Francis, given him for services rendered in 1886.

BOARD OF CONTROL PLAN IS APPROVED

Committee Undecided as to Method of Electing New Form of Government.

2-YEAR TERM DECIDED

Proposal Made That Four Aldermen Running Highest Should Secure Offices.

At a meeting of the special committee of the city council named to consider the advisability of submitting a bylaw to the ratepayers in January to have a board of control handle the municipal affairs of the city, held on Friday evening, it was decided to recommend to the council that the city be governed by a board of control, and that the bylaw be prepared.

The aldermen were not quite clear as to the form the board should take. The members of the committee were unanimous in favor of that method of government, but the method of election created the difficulty.

The new board, as outlined by the committee, would consist of four members, elected by the ratepayers. The council should consist of eight members, elected by the ratepayers. The council should consist of eight members, elected by the ratepayers. The council should consist of eight members, elected by the ratepayers.

Some suggested that the four aldermen standing highest on the ballot in January be chosen ipso facto controllers. That was not decided upon, but was left over until another meeting, when Mr. Meredith's opinion will be given.

Ald. Murphy and Ald. Wright moved that the principle be approved of; and this carried.

Who Will Next Be Elected President of the United States?

WILL ANYBODY BE ELECTED PRESIDENT NEXT TUESDAY? WILL THERE BE A DEADLOCK UP TO MARCH 4? POSSIBILITIES OF A TREMENDOUS SITUATION AS A RESULT OF THE THREE-CORNERED FIGHT.

By W. H. Alburn.

Never before in the history of the United States have so many political complications been possible as may result from Tuesday's election.

There have been three-cornered contests for the presidency, as in 1860; there have been "no elections," as in 1800 and 1824, and there was the troublesome problem of the Hayes-Tilden contest in 1876, but Tuesday's possibilities make those affairs look like simple addition and subtraction compared with a problem in calculus.

The first big element of uncertainty lies in the election itself. Never since Lincoln's election have there been more than two serious candidates for the presidency, each of whom was considered to have a chance of winning.

The two-party calculations, on which political wisacres for a generation have based their prophecies, are all upset. Republican estimates, based on past elections, are made worthless by defections to the Bull Moose party. The Moose itself offers absolutely no data on which to base a forecast.

The Democratic party has been least shaken by recent events; its leaders declare that it is united as it has never been since Cleveland's second election, and they seem sure of victory, and yet—nobody knows.

All that can be said today is this: Wilson is admitted by nearly everybody to be the best bet; Taft is admitted by most persons to have the least chance, and, IF THERE IS A LANDSLIDE FOR ANYBODY, IT WILL GO TO ROOSEVELT.

Such a landslide, and there have been some signs of it since Roosevelt was shot at Milwaukee, might elect the colonel, or it might prevent the election of anybody by swinging enough Democratic votes to keep Wilson from getting a majority in the electoral college.

Such a possibility—"no election," after all the noise and fury of the past year—is the big fact that looms up as 15,000,000 voters go to the polls. Failure of the people to elect an executive would be but the beginning of "confusion worse confounded." For the election would then be thrown into Congress, and there the present situation promises a deadlock such as has never yet occurred.

The choice of a president would devolve upon the House of Representatives, and of a vice-president upon the Senate.

The present House would have a hard time electing anybody. For the House is required in such cases to vote by states, each state having one vote. There are 22 Republican delegations and 22 Democratic, with the other four equally divided. It takes 26 states to elect. Either party, therefore, if it holds its own, has to gain three more states to give its candidate the 25 votes needed for a majority.

If both Democrats and Republicans stand fast, there will be a deadlock. If the Taft Republicans lose some delegations to the Progressives, as they probably will, there may still be a deadlock. An election would depend apparently on Republicans going over to Wilson, or Progressives getting enough votes from Democrats and Republicans to elect Roosevelt.

If the House is deadlocked March

SECRETARY OF STATE PHILANDER KNOX, WHO MAY BECOME PRESIDENT MARCH 4, AND MRS. KNOX

4, the vice-president chosen by the Senate will become president just as if the president had died. But the Senate may be deadlocked.

The senators in such an election vote individually, and a majority of 49 is needed to elect. There is a Republican majority in the present Senate, but that majority is not very dependable. Over and over again Progressive senators have voted with the Democrats, leaving the Republicans in the minority. They may do so in this case.

The Democrats have 42 senators. The Republicans have 51. There are three vacancies. It is uncertain how those vacancies will be filled. The Republicans, at any rate, are liable to lose the votes of La. Follette, Gurnea, and Works, all Progressives, thus lacking one of a majority. They may lose many more. Progressives—Roosevelt men and others—will hold the balance of power. Again—nobody knows.

If the Senate fails to elect one of the two vice-presidential candidates having the highest popular vote—choosing between Marshall and Johnson or Sherman—then on March 4 Secretary Knox will become acting president, establishing a new precedent in American political history.

He will be obliged to call a special session of Congress for the purpose of authorizing another popular election for president and vice-president.

Such an election would probably involve a repetition of the 1912 campaign, with presidential primaries playing a bigger part, and the election would probably be held next November, and the successful candidate take office on March 4, 1913.

Moreover, Congress would probably take steps to abolish the ridiculous system which makes such confusion possible and establish some form of direct election instead of the present electoral college plan.

How Any One of Seven Men Might Become President on March 4.

Here is the surprising list of presidential possibilities as a result of the failure of the country to elect a President on Nov. 5:

President Taft may be re-elected. His success depends on his ability to hold the 22 state delegations in the House of Representatives, which have a Republican majority, and also gain three of the four state delegations which are half Republican and half Democratic.

Woodrow Wilson will be elected if he can hold the 22 state delegations in the House of Representatives, which have a Democratic majority, and also gain three of the four state delegations, which are half Republican and half Democratic.

Theodore Roosevelt may be elected by breaking the natural deadlock between Taft and Wilson in the House.

The late Vice-President Sherman might have become President by being re-elected as Vice-President by the Senate and succeeding to the Presidency through the failure of the House of Representatives to elect a President. The Republican National Committee will choose a man to take his place, who will thus become eligible for the Presidency.

Governor Marshall, of Indiana, may become President in the same way, by winning the Vice-Presidency through a Senate vote and succeeding to the Presidency.

Hiram Johnson, the Bull Moose candidate, may win by the same method.

Philander C. Knox, present secretary of state, may become President through a deadlock in both House and Senate, whereby both the Presidency and Vice-Presidency would go by default. He would thus automatically become acting President, serving until a new Congress should order another election and a President be chosen in the regular way.

A Character Study of King Nicholas The Most Primitive Sovereign in Europe

Like a Figure Out of the Book of Kings—Rules as the Father of a Family Or the Head of a Tribe—The True Expression of His People—His Last Fight.

A. G. Gardiner, editor of the London Daily News, writes in that journal: When Lord Newton visited Prince Nicholas of Montenegro at Cetinje in 1892 the talk turned on Gladstone. That great man had been the hero of the prince. There was no one like him. It was he who had hurled the lightning of his speech against the Turk; it was he who, in 1890, had established Montenegro's claim to Dulcigno and secured the little mountain kingdom its seaboard. Now, however, his confidence in Gladstone was gone. He was not the mighty ruler he had believed him to be. He was a fallen and shattered idol. What was the meaning of the change? Lord Newton found that it was all because of "Jack-the-Ripper." "Why hasn't Gladstone caught the villain?" he asked. The prince, who had fallen upon that mighty arm that it could not slay a mere assassin? And he shook his head sadly over the eclipse of so much splendor.

The incident tells us much of the King and his kingdom. Nicholas is the most primitive sovereign in Europe. He is like a figure out of the "Book of Kings"—a living memory of the antique world that has become a legend. He is the patriarch of a shepherd people, less numerous than the inhabitants of Bradford or Nottingham, living scattered among the mountain fastnesses of a country half the size of Wales. He rules them not as a king, but as the father of a family or the head of a tribe, giving them laws and songs and dealing out to them justice like an Oriental caidi. In spite of his early education in Trieste and Paris, his modern movement has never touched him. He remains a peasant among peasants. Pork and plum brandy furnish his table, and if he is alone he is indifferent about a tablecloth. He often sleeps in his boots, and when he rides about on his donkey with his fur cap on his head and his feet and legs swathed in rough cloth he is indistinguishable from the least of his subjects. His palace at Cetinje is a modest two-storied house, only distinguished from the houses around it by a flagstaff and a sentinel at the door. Cetinje itself is less a town than a village perched among the mountains—a village with two or three taverns, a chemist's shop, a photographer or two, a saddle-maker, and a sufficiency of tailors.

His People.

In all this archaic simplicity he is the true expression of his people. There is nothing in Europe comparable to this little clan of mountaineers. The Swiss have long since been tamed by the tourist into the ways of civilization and the commonplace. William Tell has become an idle tale. Centuries have passed since the Welshmen used to sweep down from their crags and lay waste the outposts of the hated Saxon. They have found more profitable ways with the Saxon than raiding and burning. They have sent a dictator to tax him and to teach him to "lick stamps." But here in the mountains the dark ages still linger. Outside the enemy still prowls around. All the memories and legends of the past live in the people in their undying conflict with the Turk. That little band of crepe that you see around the cap they wear is a symbol of mourning—a symbol

Of old unhappy, far-off things
And battles long ago.

It is five hundred years since that tragic day when the Servian Kingdom was destroyed by the triumphant Turk, and that black band on the cap carries into the Twentieth Century the bitter memory of that day. From the fatal field of Grahovo, Balsha fled with his remnant to the Black Mountain and there for five centuries they have been entrenched, the embattled shepherds of the hills, wasting and being wasted, every man a warrior, counting his honors by the triumphs of his clan, his sorrows by the triumphs of his foe—his life an adventure, his very religion charged with the passions of a battle that never ends. There is no epic in our modern world like it. It has been a race also—a race of giants, primitive, almost barbaric, fearless, like men to whom the atmosphere of danger is habitual; a simple, pastoral people, essentially masculine, belonging to the fourteenth rather than the twentieth century. The currents of our feverish modern world do not touch them.

They would not, for example, know what the suffragist movement meant. Women to them are what his wife was to Charles XI. of Sweden. "Madam, I married you to give me children, not to give me advice." They are the toll in the field—the heavers of wood and drawers of water for man the magnificent. The Montenegrin never goes out with his wife. The darling husband who showed himself in such company would expose himself to humiliation and ridicule. If he takes her rather than the will avoid a look or a salutation. He himself goes in glittering apparel—red waistcoat and gold braid, and fine girdle for his pistols, for all are armed. But the woman goes sadly in black. Give her a vote—how the mountains would shake with laughter at the thought. In Praise of Women.

It is to the credit of Nicholas that he stands ahead of his people in this regard. He is proud of his daughters. "No exports from Montenegro," he says indignantly, "how about my daughters? One is married to the King of Italy, two to Russian grand dukes, he could buy up my country and not feel any poorer, and the fourth is the Queen of Serbia. If these are not exports, I don't know what you call them." And he is proud, too, of the Montenegrin women and has done much to lift them out of their servile state. To them, on the morrow of the terrible war with the Turks in 1876, he dedicated his most popular drama, "The Maiden of the Balkans," from the prologue to which I give, from a French translation, these examples of his poetic eloquence:

"O Montenegrin women! I bless you! You who keep so deep in your hearts the love of the fatherland, who have loved us on all the fields of battle, and who mourn only at the end of the fight for those who have perished.

In your touching complaints you celebrate the death of heroes, and you encourage us to further exploits.

"Harassed, starved, your feet torn by the hard rocks, your clothes in shreds, you steal towards us, on the frontiers of the menaced land, bringing us arms and food.

"In the midst of the thick smoke of powder and fire, hard by the cross, the symbol of our liberty, have seen your angel faces shine, our sisters! And giving way to my emotion (to the glow in my heart), I would fain have sung of your virtues, your sacrifices, your efforts, your ardent love for the world." he admires—"not even the largest in the Balkans. But I would not exchange it for any other land under heaven." And he loves his people, too, so long as they let him have his own way. For he is an autocrat and a statesman.

He has a love for his country which only the perils it has passed could give. "It is not the largest country in the world," he admits—"not even the largest in the Balkans. But I would not exchange it for any other land under heaven." And he loves his people, too, so long as they let him have his own way. For he is an autocrat and a statesman.

It was his enthusiasm for Russia that led him to Russia's protector and his paymaster. When the Duma was established he plunged into constitutionalism, too. And he did it thoroughly, manhood suffrage, all questions to be discussed, and so on. When he saw what it all meant, however, he clapped the troublesome leaders in prison with shaven heads and fettered limbs, then went "on strike" to his country house, and told the Skupstina he would have nothing to do with it. The Skupstina found that in the absence of such a vitally important part of the Government machinery as Prince Nicholas the business of the state could not be transacted. They had, for instance, occasion to refer to foreign powers on certain questions. What is Prince Nicholas' view? said the foreign minister. "What is your opinion?" said the Skupstina to the prince. "I have

British Liberals Called Upon to Force Govt. to Seek Better Understanding With Germany

Sir John Brunner, President National Liberal Federation, Issues Striking Appeal—Critiques Conduct of Foreign Office—Demands That Britain Indorse Policy of Exempting Peaceful Shipping From Capture.

Sir John Brunner, president of the National Liberal Federation of Great Britain, has addressed a letter on foreign policy to the chairmen of the Liberal associations throughout the country. The text of the letter is as follows:

Dear Sir,—I am impelled to write this letter to you by a strong feeling of responsibility. The Liberal party has been engaged during six years of an arduous struggle with the mightiest forces of privilege, monopoly, and protection. In this short period three great general elections have been fought and won. The budget, the national insurance bill, old-age pensions, national insurance, home rule, and Welsh disestablishment have absorbed all our energies. Foreign policy has not received the attention they deserve. But the Moroccan crisis of last year and the warlike concentration of fleets in the North Sea, which excited so much apprehension, have opened the eyes of the sleepiest politicians to a new and pressing danger. Everyone now sees that prosperity and progress at home are bound up with the cause of peace. Armaments and war spell poverty and ruin. The great Liberal victory of 1906 was won on a program of peace, retrenchment, and reform. Conciliation in South Africa seemed to us the policy of friendliness and goodwill which would be followed by a wide extension of international arbitration, large improvements of international law, and a general happy reduction in the burden of armaments. We can still say with thankfulness that Great Britain has remained at peace during the whole period of Liberal rule—a peace which has been maintained by the previous ten years of Unionist administration, which promoted a dozen wars in different parts of the Empire. Moreover, while Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman lived there was some relaxation in the growth of military and naval expenditure, though by no means in proportion to the legitimate expectations of the party.

Mr. Asquith as Chancellor of the Exchequer, put a severe check on the wasteful system of borrowing for naval and military works, but the false and shameful naval panic of 1909 swept away the spirit of prudence and economy. Since then no less than 13 millions have been added to the naval estimates, while the cost of the German navy has increased by only four. Our foreign office and admiralty have yielded to the clamor of the jingo press in its campaign of mendacity and provocation. Parliament has been misled, and estimates have been founded upon false forecasts of German expenditure. No head has been paid to the protests of the National Liberal Federation or to the constant criticisms of Liberal economists in Parliament and the press. The inaction and advertisement of the Dreadnought by our admiralty have proved a course to mankind, and not least to our own people, and our German neighbors, for both sorely need the money thus wasted to remove slums, to improve housing in town and country, and to multiply gardens. If this destructive rivalry of naval armaments goes on unchecked it threatens to submerge civilization and to destroy society. There is no limit to the taxation which armaments can impose on rich and poor alike, as we see by the case of Japan, which now has a high tariff and an income tax rising to 5s in the pound in order to pay for a conscript army and a large fleet.

To my mind it is the plain duty of the British Government, which forced modern battleships upon the world, to make amends. It is the plain duty of the Liberal party, the inheritor of Gladstone's teachings, to express itself now in language which the Prime Minister and his colleagues cannot mistake. There has been a lamentable failure to devise remedies for a situation the misery, folly, and wickedness of which have been emphasized over and over again by Mr. Asquith and Sir Edward Grey. Perhaps the central mischief is that diplomacy by secret treaties and dubious understandings has twisted and perverted the welcome friendship with France into a dangerous entanglement which has spoiled our relations with Germany. The result is that the military party is in the saddle.

RIGHT ACROSS CANADA IN AN AUTOMOBILE

Mr. Wilby Describes His Famous Feat—Reaches Victoria in 49 Days From Halifax—Roads Good, Bad and Middling.

(By Thomas W. Wilby, Canada's First Ocean-to-Ocean Motorist.)

The Canadian highway is a fact! Out of the haze of dreams, out of the realm of visions, the Canadian highway emerges, proved feasible on the first attempt at a transcontinental journey.

The tour officially ended at Victoria on Oct. 18, on the return from the west coast of Vancouver Island, when the banquet was given to Mr. Wilby by the president of the Automobile Association, Mr. A. E. Todd, and at which Mayor Beckett, W. W. Foster, deputy minister of works, and other leading citizens were present.

The actual tour from coast to coast occupied 49 days, elapsed time, the start having been made from Halifax about 4 o'clock, in dull, cold weather, and the arrival at Vancouver, by a coast and under the same weather conditions. The actual running time was 41 days, and the mileage was 3,900 miles, which gives an average of 55.13 miles per day.

Road conditions were bad, owing to the immense rainfall in every part of the country. Many parts of the country, especially Manitoba, were turned into swamps and quagmires. This reduced the daily average considerably.

No Road for 700 Miles.

In addition to the 3,900 miles, 700 miles were covered under other than the car's own power, owing to the absence of trail or road. This applies particularly to New Ontario. As far as North Bay no shipping had to be undertaken, although this was the first car that had ever come through all the way from Halifax to that point.

At first, it was not difficult to keep up an average of 120 miles a day, but from the prairie provinces on this was reduced to as low as 60 miles. The highest daily run was made in Alberta—148 miles, between Maple Creek and Lethbridge; the lowest in Manitoba—14 miles, from Winnipeg to Headingley, owing to the wretched state of the gumbo roads. The car was running on an average of ten miles to the gallon, sometimes as much as fifteen miles was made to the gallon, but in some parts of British Columbia five miles to the gallon was good going. The number of broken links in the chain of broken links in the transcontinental running on the ties in some places; taking a steamer on Kootenay Lake on another, and running for a few miles through the United States in another place.

Cost Five Dollars a Day.

The cost of crossing from Halifax to Vancouver averaged about $2.50 a day per person. The expenses of the car were about $5 per day exclusive of repairs. On two occasions the trip was delayed owing to injury to the car on bad grades, the driving-shaft having been twisted.

The gumbo roads of Manitoba were in such bad condition that the drivers went on strike in Winnipeg, causing a three days' delay. Owing to the absence of roads many detours had to be made, amounting to 500 miles altogether, of which 300 were in Ontario, and 200 in British Columbia.

The enthusiasm for the Canadian highway all along the route was marked. Towns and cities did their best to welcome the pathfinder, and besides presenting pennants of their town and entertaining the motorist, passed resolutions pledging unqualified co-operation in any scheme for the Canadian highway from coast to coast.

Chains were seldom used. Block and tackle were often in requisition. On one occasion a bridge had to be built to get the car over, and teams were necessary to pull the car out of bad spots.

The motorists, however, were always able to get shelter for the night and never lacked food or gasoline.

Scarcely any macadam roads were found on the journey; the majority were earth, and the rest gravel. The best roads were in British Columbia, and in Ontario; the worst in Manitoba and Lethbridge; the lowest in Manitoba—14 miles, from Winnipeg to Headingley, owing to the wretched state of the gumbo roads. The car was run-

FORTUNE IS MEAN TO GREAT MEDICAL MEN

Lord Lister Did Not Even Get a Nobel Prize—Great Benefactors of Humanity Almost Unknown to Fame.

"Take one single name from your profession," said Lord Rosebery as chancellor of London University to the graduates of that institution, "take the name of Lister and balance against it the names of all those great historical figures which have devoted their lives and their energies to conquest and bloodshed. Does any intelligent human being hesitate as to which the universal gratitude of mankind is due? Yet this great benefactor of mankind passed away without receiving that most coveted of all rewards, the Nobel prize. It is not surprising, therefore, that medical men regard the bestowal of this well deserved prize upon Dr. Alexis Cabel as a miracle.

For the first time in the history of the world the life-saving labors of a physician have won recognition worthy of the man and his work while he was still living to enjoy the fruit of his endeavor. A few rare instances are on record of rulers who glorified their subjects by conferring titles upon physicians who happened to be their subjects, as that of Sir James Y. Simpson, the pioneer of chloroform anaesthesia. But this is the first instance in which an unprincipled committee regardless of nationality has deemed a physician worthy of distinction and substantial reward.

It is an inexplicable psychological phenomenon that the world does not honor the life-saver, as it does the life-destroyer. Even the tyro in history has read of Alexander the Great. How many otherwise well-informed persons know aught of Hippocrates, the father of medicine, who is more entitled to the appellation of "great"? Alexander carried death and destruction wherever his conquering legions swept; where are the benefits he has conferred on the human race? Hippocrates scattered health and life wherever he went; his discovery of the "healing power of nature" is today the guide of every intelligent physician. To the great power of a medicine, he said that after a complete desuetude for 2,000 years this beneficent doctrine was rescued from oblivion by Dr. Jacob Bigelow in his work, "Nature in Disease."

William T. G. Morton, the discoverer of anaesthesia, which has delivered millions from pain and fear; is honored by a modest shaft erected over his grave by his colleagues, while his military contemporary, Winfield Scott, is every schoolboy's hero.

Oliver Wendell Holmes, the discoverer of prevention of disease, who has merited carried thousands of mothers to an early grave, is only known as a writer; his life-saving achievement is unknown even to physicians who practice it.

Carl Koller, the discoverer of cocaine anaesthesia, which robs the most frequently dreaded operations of pain, is living in this city, modestly pursuing his practice as an oculist.

The achievements of such men have saved more lives than all the military heroes of and since their time; the former have brought joy and hope to vast numbers of households than the latter have plunged into sorrow and despair.

Manhattan boasts of many monuments to celebrate the deeds of soldiers and sailors; there is but one monument to a physician—the beloved Martin Sims, and this was erected by his admiring colleagues.

It is indeed a refreshing sign of the time to note the adequate reward of a man whose victory is for life, an achievement for peace and goodwill to man.

A Million Newcomers a Year

And What This Will Mean to Western Canada

We quoted in a previous advertisement some statements made respecting Western Canada by Mr. Vere C. Brown, Superintendent of Western Agencies of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. Mr. Brown's interview was given right after a recent journey throughout Western Canada. In it he stated that the incoming stream of population to Canada would soon reach a total of 1,000,000 per year.

He added: "The bearing of these figures can be better appreciated when it is remembered that the United States had a population of over 80,000,000 before their immigration reached the million mark. It means that the number of our Western cities will grow with extraordinary rapidity."

Putting the matter briefly, a million newcomers per year means a yearly additional population equal to the official census figures for June, 1911, of the following cities:

Victoria	31,648	Saskatoon	18,096
Vancouver	123,902	Moose Jaw	20,623
Winnipeg	135,430	Brandon	13,837
Calgary	43,736	Toronto	425,407
Edmonton	24,855	Hamilton	81,879
Regina	30,210
London	46,177		995,800

Estimate for yourself what this enormous influx of population yearly will mean to Canada, and especially to Western Canada, which will attract a large percentage of it. How many new cities and towns that population will create! How much increase in the production of Canada it will effect! What increase in the country's trade it will create!

It is a well-defined and indisputable fact that the huge yearly augmentation of population must cause a steady upward trend in realty values. It is frequently said that great opportunities for investment in Canadian urban properties existed seven or ten years ago. They exist just as surely today.

Anyone who has thoroughly read the statements presented and quoted in this series of announcements must realize that the years right ahead will witness a wonderful development in Western Canada. The opportunity is here now to make investments which will prove immensely profitable just as those wisely made ten years ago have proved immensely profitable.

American Writer Foretells Coming Uplift

JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD, THE WELL-KNOWN NEWSPAPERMAN, HAS PERSONALLY INVESTIGATED WESTERN CANADA, AND SAYS:

"I am an American, but I believe in being fair.

"Today a good business location in a 10,000 population Western Canada town will bring in ten times the business revenue of a similar location in most American towns of the same population.

"Then, why shouldn't that business location honestly have a greater value?

"As an illustration, take North Battleford—open prairie only seven years ago.

"Today North Battleford has 5,000 people, is the best lighted little city in the West, has nine miles of water mains, eight miles of sewers, electric light, telephones, wholesale houses, four banks representing a capital of $44,000,000, four modern hotels and a new $100,000 hotel under way, a collegiate institute, high schools, exhibition grounds, and many other things that go to make the beginning of a progressive city.

"I find that North Battleford is typical of other Canadian towns that have grown into small cities.

"Its history of the next few years will be almost identically that of Saskatoon, and conditions are such that I am confident it will have 20,000 people by 1914."

Mr. Curwood has been a student of Western conditions for ten years past, and is recognized as one of the sanest and most careful magazine writers in the United States.

Immigration and Investment Values

WHY CITIES MUST GROW, KEEPING PACE WITH NEW POPULATION.

Note carefully the following statements of well-known and competent authorities regarding the present unprecedented immigration movement that is pouring into Western Canada, peopling the prairies and causing new towns and cities to spring into existence almost over night.

The NEW YORK TIMES says: "There is no mystery why Canada is the good thing the United States used to be. The process of railway stimulation is the same which we used to practice, and which raised the values of our farm lands from ten billions in 1880 to forty-one billions in 1910."

The SATURDAY SUNSET, of Vancouver, says: "In all the annals of world history there has been nothing to parallel the present settlement of the prairies and park lands of Western Canada. The Atlantic seaboard of America was peopled slowly; its growth has been a matter of centuries. The Western States have filled more rapidly, while the thin streams of immigration flowed westward. Today from both the East and the South a concentrated river of humanity is pouring into the Canadian West and building up the country with phenomenal rapidity. The slow-moving and conservative East has hardly awakened to the immensity of this movement."

Modern transportation facilities, traction plowing and reaping, scientific agricultural methods, soil fertility and individual and corporate enterprise—all are uniting as in no previous period to produce an assured and long-continued uplift in real estate values.

In a word, the era of city building in Canada has only just begun.

From all sides the evidence is pouring in that the facts stated in the present series of announcements regarding conditions in Western Canada are arousing keen and widespread attention. Our purpose has been to set forth facts only—and those that are substantiated by the expressed opinions of men of standing and sound judgment. These plain facts we have submitted to the judgment of the people of Canada, asking the public to study and investigate them—and then to act accordingly in view of the present opportunity open for safe and profitable investment in Western Canada.

Yorkton Lots Double in Value.

Cheapside, Ont., Oct. 9, 1912.
International Securities Co., Ltd.,
Winnipeg.

Dear Sirs,—As you know, I own lots 6 to 10, block 24, Southview Park, Yorkton, Sask., which I purchased from your company.

I visited the West recently, and I find my Yorkton lots have more than doubled in value. I purchased these lots in January of this year. I have had several offers from parties wishing to buy them at an advance in price. In visiting the property, I find several houses already built on this subdivision, and sewers and electric lights are being extended through the property this fall.

I intend to hold these lots for higher prices, which I am certain I will secure. Yours very truly, (Signed) GEORGE M. MOWAT.

Wonderful Progress of Weyburn.

Weyburn, Sask., Oct. 15, 1912.
International Securities Co., Ltd.,
Winnipeg.

Dear Sirs,—When I left Winnipeg three weeks ago to inspect the lots purchased from your company in Weyburn, I had no expectation of finding such a city as Weyburn has grown to be. After a few days of impartial observation, I must say that never before have I found a people so hopeful and so proud of their town; that the people of Weyburn, every one, seem so satisfied and so enthusiastic, that I am obliged to join the crowd. The only complaint that can be heard is about the scarcity of labor, although a large force of men work twelve to fifteen hours every day laying sidewalks, water pipes, sewers, etc., and all these works are done in a very good manner without regard to the expense.

Concerning Evanston, this subdivision is very well placed in the way of the immediate expansion of the city; the residences of Mr. Moffet, W. Leroux and a few others representing an expense already above the one hundred thousand, will be followed shortly by numerous handsome residences erected on three or four blocks from Evanston. This has been for me a revelation, and I am thinking now that the literature and pamphlets about things in the Golden West are often too conservative and far below the reality. I am going to stay in Weyburn and am building up a home here.

Property Exactly as Represented.

St. Thomas, Ont., Oct. 2, 1912.
International Securities Co., Ltd.,
Winnipeg.

Gentlemen,—I purchased some lots from the International Securities Company, and after doing so I inquired from some friends who had been West and over the ground and had seen the location of the property in question. I found that the statements made by the International Securities Company were correct, and that the property was just what it was recommended to be when I purchased it.

Property Trebles in Value in One Year.

Fraser Mills, B. C., Sept. 29, 1912.
International Securities Co., Ltd.,
Winnipeg.

Dear Sirs,—As your records will show, I have purchased lots from your company in the following different towns: Entwistle, Alta.; North Battleford, Sask.; Biggar, Sask.; Melville, Sask., and Canora, Sask.

I find that some of these lots have trebled in value since I bought them twelve months ago, while some of them have doubled in value. I have had several offers already, but do not care to sell for some time yet. My only regret is that I cannot buy more property at this time.

I may further say that I have made several inquiries from independent sources concerning your company, and find that your reputation for square dealing is of the best. Yours truly, (Signed) CHARLES A. MARTIN.

Well Pleased With Moose Jaw Property.

Winnipeg, Oct. 17, 1912.
International Securities Co., Ltd.,
Winnipeg.

Gentlemen,—Last March I purchased from your company lots 14 to 18, block 22, and lots 29 to 34, block 5; also lots 3 to 7, block 22, "The Highlands," Moose Jaw, Sask. I recently had occasion to visit Moose Jaw, and while there made a personal inspection of "The Highlands" and the lots that I purchased there. I am pleased to say that Moose Jaw is all and everything that I expected; its development has been remarkable, and I believe that its future development will be even greater than its past development. I found your property, "The Highlands," all that you represented it to be, and am pleased with my purchase there.

I have had considerable dealings with your company, and have always found you reliable in every way, and do not hesitate in recommending and endorsing your company to anyone desiring to make real estate investments.

Winnipeg.

Gentlemen,—It is very gratifying to receive reports of progress made in the properties which I have purchased from your company. These reports are deeply appreciated by me, and must be by your numerous other clients throughout this country and elsewhere. I am very pleased with all the dealings I have had with the International Securities Co., Ltd. I have found them very reliable and willing to serve their clients.

Regards Canora Investment Very Highly.

Portage la Prairie, Man., Oct. 17, 1912.
International Securities Co., Ltd.,
Winnipeg.

Dear Sirs,—Last November I bought from your company lots 7 and 8, block 22, in the town of Canora, Sask. Owing to my condition as a poor man, I was very much afraid to buy the lots on terms of $50 a month. At three different times I was not able to make payment when due, and had expected to lose the lots, also what I had paid on them. I wrote the company telling them my circumstances, and received a reply telling me I must not get discouraged, and that the lots would be held for me until I could make my payment. I just made the last payment today, and I want you to accept my sincerest thanks. I cannot give enough praise for the square deal given me by the International Securities Company. I would not take $2,000 for my two lots today, which would not have been mine had your company not given me the treatment and chance they did.
(Signed) FRED E. VAILLANCOURT.

Pleased With Dealings With This Company.

Baddeck, N. S., Oct. 7, 1912.
International Securities Co., Ltd.,
Winnipeg.

Dear Sirs,—Last January I purchased from you, partly on my own selection and partly on your advice, several townsite lots in different Western towns. I have not been able personally to see these lots, but have been fortunate during this summer to have come in contact with men who were familiar with real estate in different parts of the West, and from all accounts I must say that I am entirely satisfied with my investments. Also, that my business dealings with you have been very satisfactory. I have been particularly pleased with the prompt and cheerful manner in which you have at all times given advice in detail when asked for, which is of the utmost importance to all, more especially to clients at a distance. I am sure clients all over will find you the right party to deal with.

A Good Samaritan In Cog.

(Written for The Advertiser by "Olive.")

Caroline had been married just two happy months. Did I say happy? She wrestled constantly with the culinary arts and the new gas stove, and had occasionally come out victorious with a lemon pie, burned just a trifle, and biscuits that were rather sad. Some, alas! were hopeless failures, but then Caroline was inexperienced, and, with a little practice, she would be all right, as Jack said.

But Caroline's bright face and laughing brown eyes were a worried look. She had just received a brisk little note from her great aunt, saying that the latter was about to make her a visit for a few days, and would arrive tomorrow in time for dinner. Caroline read the message twice before she realized its import, and then in dismay, threw herself down and cried. It was a pathetic little figure that met Jack when he came home. Her eyes were tear-swollen, and her small nose was suspiciously red. When he fully understood the circumstances, he patted her on the head, and as a man is wont to do, offered various suggestions, such as, "Send a telegram saying we're going away from home," and "Don't worry; we'll buy pies and cakes at the store. She'll never know the difference."

Caroline shook her head dubiously. "Why, Jack," she cried, "she is the most old-fashioned woman! I've only seen her picture, but she's sure to wear mitts and curls; she'll eat with her knife, and if we've company she'll be sure to drink the water in her finger bowl, besides. I just know she'll make fun of my cooking." After this woe-begone outburst, of course, there was nothing left for Jack to do but play the part of the comforter. And being but two months married and very much in love, he succeeded admirably.

The next day Caroline did her best to make ready for the visitor, and could only hope that her handiwork would not elicit too harsh a criticism from that supposedly austere lady. It was just 6 o'clock when the doorbell rang, and with a tremulous, beating heart, Caroline opened the door. There stood a little woman in a stylish fitting coat and hat, but it was the face under the hat that made Caroline suddenly feel good. Aunt Mary possessed the rosiest, pleasantest face, with silver hair nestling around it—a face that one would instinctively love and trust. Instead of the conventional "peck" at her aunt's cheek, which Caroline had promised herself to give as "duty bound," her greeting was a genuine welcome, and as she afterwards said, she had a curious sensation of a lump in her throat.

Jack, prepared for the worst, stood by the grate, with an anxious look on his face. It vanished instantly, however, as Aunt Mary, having "tidied up a bit," as she expressed it, came softly in. "So this is my new nephew," she said, smiling up at him with a motherly air. "I've looked forward to meeting you with pleasure, and I'm so glad to be with you. What a cosy little home you have."

It was a different meal to the one Caroline had anticipated. She had imagined that Aunt Mary would sit straight and prim on her chair and criticize the dinner, but instead in her place sat the little lady, chatting merrily, and, if she did notice that the biscuits lacked salt, or the steak was too dry, she passed no comment.

"By the way," she said, "I have a jar of jelly for you, my dear. Have you made any yet? No? Then why not get the fruit and I can help you tomorrow?"

And this was but the beginning of Caroline's instruction in domestic science under Aunt Mary's loving eye. Before her visit was ended Caroline's cupboard was filled with jars of jelly, and preserves of the most delicious flavor. Better still, Caroline's pies were perfect, thanks to Aunt Mary's superintendence, and her biscuits marvels of lightness. "You foolish little girl!" Aunt Mary remarked, as she kissed Caroline good-bye. "Why didn't you tell me you were having such a hard time of it?" and she whisked a tear from her eyes. "If you ever have any more difficulty just write to Aunt Mary."

Caroline and Jack have sent a special invitation for Aunt Mary to spend Christmas with them. "Just to see how nice she can make things now," Caroline wrote enthusiastically, and Jack added a postscript in red ink, "Bring along plenty of clothes, we want you to stay m-o-n-i-h-s. You are the best little Samaritan on earth."

by accepting every invitation showered on you.

A Utility Bag

The gift of a utility bag is sure to be appreciated by any woman, especially if she strives to keep her possessions in order, having a place for everything, and everything in its place.

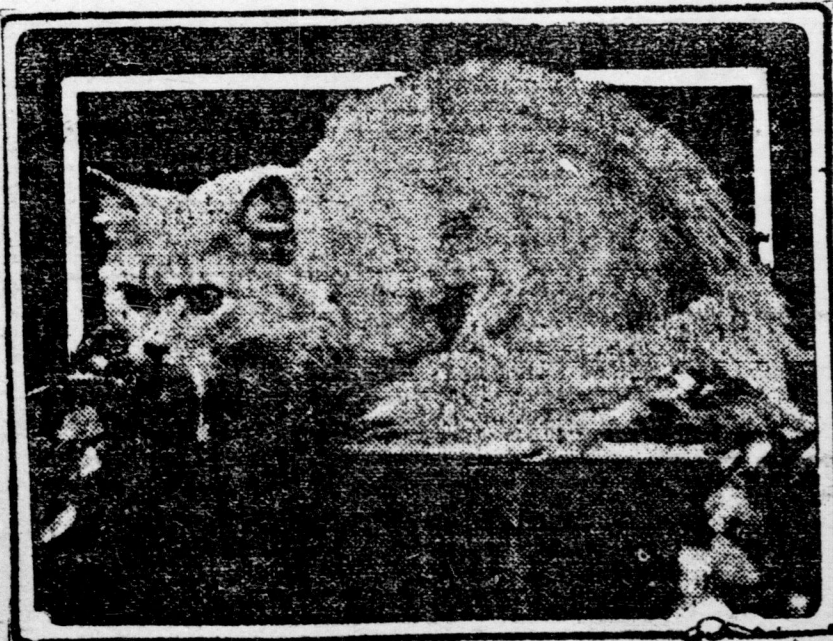

When constructing a bag that is to have general usefulness, be sure to make it of some material that will not easily soil, and one that when soiled can be sent to the laundry without fear of injury.

Denim, cretonne, linen and heavy unbleached muslin are all suitable materials; they wear well, wash well and are easy to work upon.

For sewing embroidery or knitting a bag made of flowered cretonne showing dark red and green tones on a ecru ground is good. It is fashioned from a straight piece 27 inches long and 12 inches wide. This is lined with green silkoline several shades lighter in tone than the green on the cretonne.

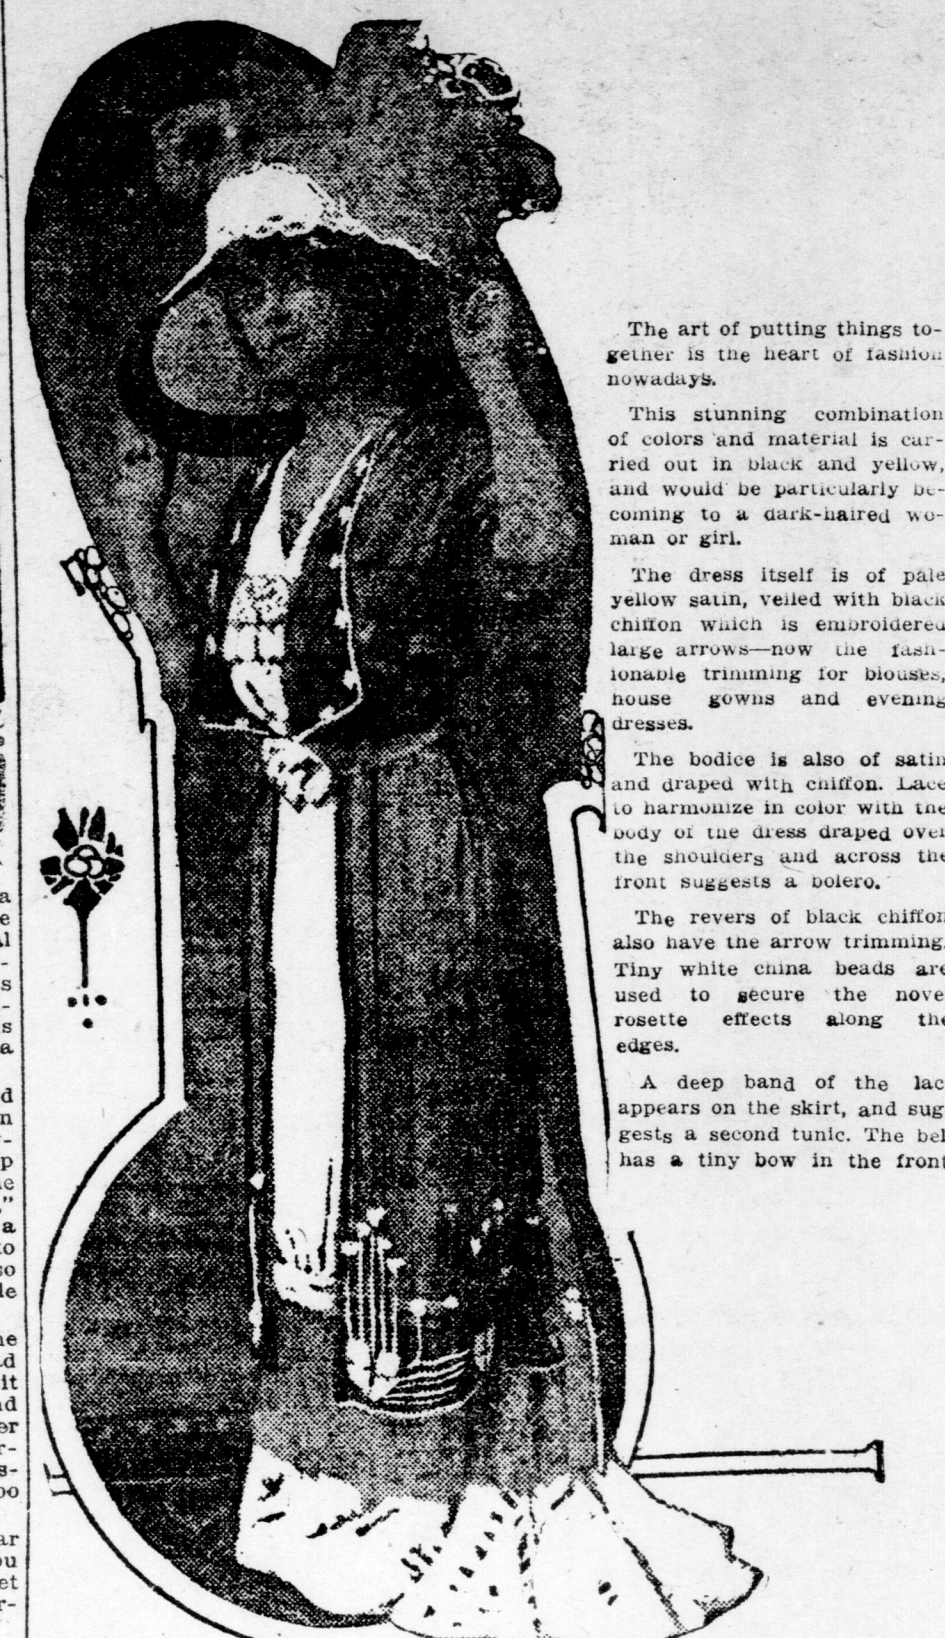

At each end the material is fastened to an oval embroidery hoop by turning the edge over and hemming it down or slipstitching it underneath. This forms an opening and two handles, by which the bag is carried conveniently. The sides are either slipstitched together or finished with the buttonhole stitch done with heavy mercerized cotton.

JUST CATS

If dogs delight to bark and bite, & Then cats delight to screech And knock their silly eyes half out When ever they are in reach. Is indeed a sorry sight. To see them in a bloody fight. For they can be so kind and nice And catch the naughty little mice. Some kiddies, too, will scrap like cats, Scratch their faces and tear their hair; It is a pity this should be so, For children are just to love, you know.

CLEVER COMBINATION OF COLORS IN THIS HANDSOME DRESS-UP GOWN

The art of putting things together is the heart of fashion nowadays.

This stunning combination of colors and material is carried out in black and yellow, and would be particularly becoming to a dark-haired woman or girl.

The dress itself is of pale yellow satin, veiled with black chiffon which is embroidered large arrows—now the fashionable trimming for blouses, house gowns and evening dresses.

The bodice is also of satin and draped with chiffon. Lace to harmonize in color with the body of the dress draped over the shoulders and across the front suggests a bolero.

The revers of black chiffon also have the arrow trimming. Tiny white china beads are used to secure the novel rosette effects along the edges.

A deep band of the lace appears on the skirt, and suggests a second tunic. The belt has a tiny bow in the front.

Problems of the Fair Sex Solved by Cynthia Grey

Heaps of Help for "Tig."

Dear Miss Grey—For several months I have read your correspondence column, and I now come to you for advice, which I believe will be of great service to me. I am a young man 20 years old, and with but one exception have never had any particular liking for the girls. I always try to be as reserved as possible, and just speak to them all in merely a friendly way. Two years ago I fell in love with a sweet little girl two years my junior. Our friendship, however, only lasted two months. This summer, now she is living next door to me, and I often feel I would like to continue going with her, and I believe she is just waiting for me to say the word. At present she is going with another fellow, one of the kind, who spends a fortune on her, and I believe this is the only reason why they are so friendly. The more you like you, the better they like you. I don't you eventually, but so contented as you believe yourself to be, or you would not be asking yourself (and me) these vexing questions? My advice is to make up again with the young lady, but best perhaps do it gradually, for she may not be ready to accept of a man to get married?

2. What kind of a fellow do the girls like? (a) One who always tries to be so gentlemanly, and unnatural in the presence of females, and tries to get all the girls attracted by him; or (b) one who is fond of all healthful sports, associates only with other fellows, and never lets the thought of girls enter his head? I don't you, but I realize this is the best of my life, and I have lots of time to think of love.

3. I wear my hair pompadour. Do you like it better than parted? I am a proper age for a man to get married?

4. Hoping to see the answers in print soon, and thanking you kindly in advance.

Answer—So you seek my advice, "Tig"? Well, you are quite welcome to it, such as it is. In the first place, I find you a rather contradictory fellow. You say, "I would like to continue going with her," and then again that "I feel perfectly contented the way I am."

You do not evidently see the contented as you believe yourself to be, or you would not be asking yourself (and me) these vexing questions? My advice is to make up again with the young lady, but best perhaps do it gradually, for she may not be ready to accept of a man to get married?

2. We have had some letters from the girls themselves on this page recently, which I think answered your questions better than I can do, and as you say that you will read this column daily, no doubt you would see what the girls told "Blue Bill." You have drawn the two extremes in your word-picture. Do you not think it possible to be fond of sports, a favorite with other boys, and still be nice to the girls? I do. A fellow need not be "sissy" to have a number of girl friends.

3. Yes, this is the best time of your life, but believe me, when you really get in love you will not ask me or anyone else whether you are too young or too old. In fact, wild horses would not be able to stop you.

4. It is very nice of you to consult my preference. "Tig," but really, I am quite indifferent as to how you wear your hair. Have it whichever way you like best yourself.

5. That, my young friend, depends on many things. On the man himself, for instance; on the money he is earning; on his tastes; but certainly, I am to play the wedding march. Will you please tell me: 1. How I should dress? 2. At what time should I start and play the march? Should I play the piece through without stopping? When I get done, should I leave the stool at once or is there anything else I should do? By telling me you will be doing me a great favor. Hoping I am not troubling you too much, Am I to answer the invitation, and what time after we get the invitation should I answer it?

FROM MAE.
A.—1. If you have a pretty white

A Lengthy Letter.

Dear Miss Grey—Will you please give me some advice on these questions?

1. How often should a couple who are going to be married in a couple of months be together; is four times a week too often? How late should he stay?

2. Please tell me what would be nice for an evening dress for a girl 18 years old.

3. What kind of trimming to use on it.

4. How many towels, pillow cases, quilts, should a bride-to-be have as a rule?

5. I wish to make a visit to my sister who is married in another town. Would it be right for me to take the gentleman who I am engaged to with me?

6. Is it all right for a girl to receive presents from her lover, valuable ones, after they are engaged?

7. After going into a warm room, after putting on face cream, my face looks greasy. I put a little talcum on after the cream, but this does not help me. Can you tell me what to do?

8. Should a girl of 18 wear kid or silk gloves with an evening dress to the opera?

9. I have a white serge suit and white beaver hat. Is it all right to wear white buck shoes, or is it too late in the season for them?

10. Would a three-quarter length fur cloth coat be nice, when I have a new heavy cloth coat, and how could I have it made? I cannot afford a long one, but there is enough to have a three-quarter length?

Hoping to see your answers soon, and thanks for the help we have received in the past.

BRIDE-TO-BE AND SHORTY.
A.—1. It is not. As a rule 11 o'clock is considered late enough.

2. Marquise, and light, weight soft silk.

3. Crystal or pearl beading, and cream lace.

4. It is difficult to give a definite answer to this question. A girl should be guided by what her future needs are likely to be. Most bride-elects will agree with me when I say that it is almost impossible to have too many. Two dozen bath towels, one dozen guests towels, one dozen roller towels, and numerous dish towels, would provide a nice towel supply. The bedding would, of course, depend upon the number of beds the bride wished to furnish. One dozen pairs of pillow cases, eight to twelve quilts and two pairs of various weights, two pairs of blankets, two pairs flannel sheet, and one-half dozen pairs white sheets would probably be ample.

5. Yes.

6. The cream should be put on only before going to bed, or immediately before driving, when a little talcum should also be used. In the daytime or evening, use the talcum alone.

7. Kid gloves are considered the more correct, but because of their cost the silk gloves are substituted by many.

8. Some wear white shoes all winter, but to me they look a little out of place. I should prefer patent kid, or some other nicely dressed leather in black.

9. I am not just quite sure what you mean by "fur cloth." If you refer to a fur coat, the three-quarter length would look very nice.

The Birthday Calendar

IF THIS IS YOUR BIRTHDAY

Do not give offence to those in power, and if in disagreement be careful in speech, and even in thought, for you will win by cleverness rather than by strength. If in employ, be careful, and do not let new friendships influence you too much.

Those born today will be generally fortunate and capable of managing for themselves early in life. Their great fault will be hasty temper, which will often cause them trouble.

IF THIS IS YOUR BIRTHDAY

Keep your health in order and your mind alert, for you will need strength and wit against difficulties which will assail you. Your star is the sun, which means you will rule—yourself first, and then what you will.

Those born today will be emotional rather than practical, and caprices will sway them. They will have power, though, and in certain professions their emotional gifts will help them to succeed.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

Mount Brydges Branch Hold an Instructive Meeting.

The October meeting of the Mount Brydges branch of the Woman's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Van Natter with an attendance of 25. Mrs. S. Waters had the charge of the question drawer. The program consisted of an excellent paper on the preparing and cooking of meats by Mrs. Mason, recitation by Mrs. Cay, graphophone selections by Mrs. Willson, Mrs. Snelgrove's paper on soups was very instructive.

A dainty lunch was served by the hostess and a very pleasant meeting was brought to a close by singing "God Save the King."

YELLOW FURNITURE FOR BED-ROOMS.

White enamel furniture has a rival in the yellow furniture either enamel or full finish, which is quite the thing for bedrooms. The furniture is of old Italian style, of painted wood, and in a beautiful shade of yellow. Some of the furniture is decorated with simple gold lines; other sets are decorated in little bouquets of flowers in soft, old-fashioned tones. A clever woman might enamel old furniture in this beautiful yellow herself. The wall coverings used with this furniture are of ivory, pale rose or gray, or a chintz wall paper in tones of rose, violet or ivory. Yellow and white or gray and white paper is also used. One set of the furniture was upholstered in deep rose. In regard to the hangings, flowered chintz in the tones mentioned was used where the walls were plain, and plain hangings were most effective where the wall paper shows designs. Violet and lavender in soft shades make a charming color scheme used with yellow furniture.

Outside the walls of a temple in Puri, India, says the Christian Herald, lie the remains of this year's car of Juggernaut. A new car is built every year. "The British Government," says the Herald, "now prevents the sacrifice of life under the car."

Mrs. Janet Ross is one of the few living persons who ever had the temerity to rebuke Thomas Carlyle. When Mrs. Ross was a child of six she was present at a somewhat animated conversation between her mother and Mr. Carlyle. She became indignant at the blustering tone of the philosopher, and burst out with the exclamation, "My papa says men should be civil to women."

THE CHILDREN'S HOUR

Gripus and the Ape

A miser, named Gripus, once kept a monkey, whom he called Grimace. Gripus had no other companion in his house, but kept the monkey both for company, and because he could not talk to him.

One Sunday, the bell having chimed for church where the miser would often go to pray for an increase in wealth, Gripus forgot, in his hurry, to lock up his desk where the ape had often heard him clinking his guineas.

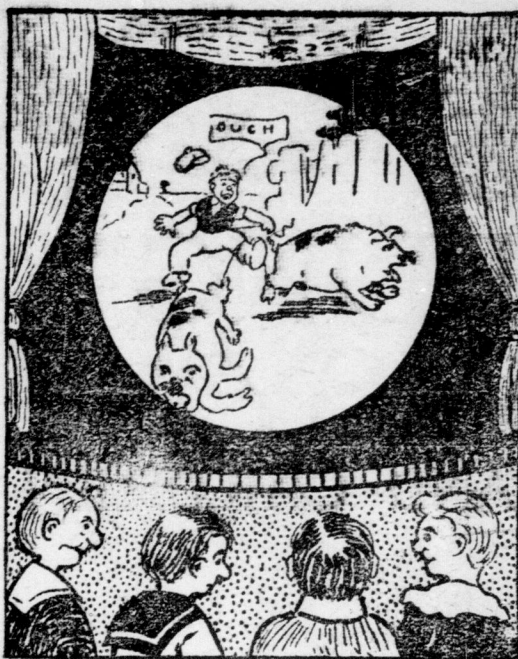

The ape, who was tired of being idle, no sooner saw the gold than he thought of a pleasant pastime for himself. He took up the pieces of gold, and going to the window, continued to throw guineas and half-guineas out onto the street. Soon a mob collected, each man scrambling for his share. As old Gripus returned from church and saw the crowd assembled before his house, he hastened on, crying: "Alas, what misfortune is here?" But no sooner did he perceive the business the ape was engaged in than he shouted: "You villain, you shall pay for this with your blood!"

An old man standing by, who knew his miserly habits, rebuked him, saying, "Sir, moderate your anger. The money is no more service to you than the monkey. He throws it away, and you heard it up. Which, pray, does the most good with it?"

The lesson was brought home so forcibly to the old miser that he returned over a new leaf, and instead of saving up his wealth, spent it freely in helping others.

Professor Brander Matthews On Simplified Spelling

Celebrated Scholar Describes Progress of the Cause in Past Seven Years — Simplified Spelling Creeping Into General Use.

It is now seven years since the Simplified Spelling Board was organized, and the question may well be asked: "What has it achieved?" The answer to this is that it has accomplished more than its most sanguine members dared to hope for when the work began. Of course, the victory is not won in this seven years' war with well-meaning ignorance and aggressive prejudice. The public has not accepted all or most of the orthographic simplifications recommended; but this acceptance was not expected by any member of the board. We had taken to heart Lord Morley's shrewd remark (in his "Voltaire") that "nearly all lovers of improvement are apt in the heat of a generous enthusiasm to forget that if all the world were ready to embrace their cause their improvement could hardly be needed."

As a matter of fact, many of the simpler spellings we have urged have been adopted by more publications than we had anticipated—far more than can be known to anybody who has not taken the trouble to investigate. Certain of our briefer orthographies are stealthily creeping into more general use, especially in business correspondence, in essays, and in advertisements. As they become less strange, they become less abhorrent; familiarity breeds toleration, to say the least. In fact, the old violence of opposition to any and all change in spelling seems to be dying down. Many of those who still object strenuously to our specific simplifications are ready to admit that orthography is not all that it should be, and that it will profit by some sort of improvement which will better fit English for its future use as a world-language.

We are told that in seven years men change their bodies; and the efforts of the Simplified Spelling Board in its seven years of activity have led many men to change their minds. As Prof. Lounsbury put it pithily, one of our main purposes is "the gradual diffusion of intelligence among the educated classes." We have pretty well broken down the superstition that the dictionary is divinely inspired; and we have shown that the English language is not a fixed and unchangeable thing, but that there is now and has always been a fix and final standard of English spelling to depart from which is to sin against light. A more general knowledge now exists that our orthography has never been uniform, and that it has always been changing, either for the better or for the worse, ever since the language first began to be written. No more do we listen to the shrill cry that our simplifications will "destroy the language." Very rarely do we hear the outworn argument that any attempt to better spelling will bring confusion and conceal etymology. Indeed, the best of our opponents have relinquished argument. They take refuge now in a frank declaration of prejudice in favor of the spellings they happen individually to prefer. And, of course, this makes our task only the harder; but we can overcome argument—but prejudice will yield only to enlightenment, and inertia can be conquered only by time. But we cannot fail to feel encouraged when we note how quickly the atmosphere of arrogant hostility has been dissipated and how much more open-minded the discussion has become. And we are still more encouraged when we call the roll of the prominent educators who have been won over and who are seeing to it that the rising generation shall not harden into the prejudices which may have possessed their parents. It is in the schools that we have done our best work; and it is among the teachers that we have our strongest allies. This might have been expected, since the cumbersome and illogical spelling taught in our schools is responsible for an immense waste of time—and also for the pupil's injurious reliance on rule and rote rather than on observation and deduction. The City Superintendent of New York, Dr. Maxwell, personally abhors "thru" for "through" and dislikes "past" for "passed"; but he is broad-minded enough to sink individual prejudices "to advocate that which is for the welfare of all." He holds that the loss of time in teaching spelling is not the worst feature of the accepted orthography. "The result of falling into ridiculous mistakes by depending upon reasoning or analogy in spelling is to make the child timorous about reasoning in arithmetic, geography, history, and grammar"; and "the habit of depending upon memory exclusively in spelling engenders the habit of depending upon memory in every other study, and so retards progress in teaching children to think for themselves."

This, then, is what the Simplified Spelling Board has accomplished: It has brought us again the necessity for considering the urgent need of making our spelling at least as simple as the spelling of French and of German.

AMERICAN SCIENTIST PRODUCES FROG WHOSE FATHER IS A CHEMICAL SOLUTION.

One of the most startling developments in the way of creating life artificially is the production of a "fatherless frog" by Prof. Jacques Loeb, at the Rockefeller Institute. Prof. Loeb told of his experiment the other day at the international congress of hygiene and demography, at Washington. He took an unfertilized frog's egg and by treating it with a certain chemical solution, was able to hatch the egg and produce a mature frog.

The life of this frog would have made a fascinating study; but, unfortunately for science, the learned professor forgot that frogs cannot live entirely in water, and the poor creature drowned. This achievement, while it is but half the act of creation, is marvellous, none the less, and it opens up limitless possibilities in the way of producing life independently of sex.

CANADIAN HISTORIC SCENES FOR THE MOVING PICTURES

Famous Event Rehearsed at Johnson's Point—The Gallant Defence of Dollard Des Armeaux and the Noble Sixteen.

The stirring times, which occurred between the early French settlers on the Island of Montreal and the warlike Iroquois, who were settled on the island, were vividly rehearsed at Johnson's Point this week by the British-American Film Company of Canada, which has taken up camping quarters on this ancient Indian reserve, for the purpose of reproducing the historical scenes of two hundred years ago, when Montreal was but a little village, defended by a few Frenchmen against the constant onslaught of the blood-thirsty Indians of the Iroquois tribe, who looked upon the French settlers as usurpers, and were determined to wipe them out if it were at all possible.

It was the story of the gallant defence of Dollard des Armeaux, and his sixteen heroes retold in realistic form at Johnson's Point, only a short distance from the actual spot where this thrilling episode took place in 1660. The hundreds of real Indians, relics of the Iroquois tribe, were present in full war-paint, armed with ancient weapons of various kinds, particularly the arrows, some poisoned.

The announcement of the approach of the Indians in the thousands was quickly taken up by Dollard, who asked for volunteers to set forth on their death journey to intercede the attacking tribe, and repulsing them until each one of them was dead.

Sixteen volunteered, and the signing of the register was a pathetic scene before the little church at Montreal, demonstrating that they were ready to sacrifice their lives to save the village.

Thus they set out and twenty miles from Montreal erected a small stockade, awaiting the coming of the Indians. They were joined by 43 Algonquians, who were a friendly tribe to the Frenchmen, and together they defended the stockade to the death.

The approach of the Indians was realistic, and made spectators feel creepy, but were happy to know that it was a civilized country. The war cry of the attackers sounded and resounded like a death knell on the little defending band. Once, maybe pulsed, with little loss to the defenders, but the friendly Indians lost courage and deserted their comrades and joined the attacking force. Flaming arrows and spears and poisoned arrows were flying in many directions towards the stockade, and it was a real wonder how everybody escaped injury in such a realistic performance. The last stand was great, but disastrous to the heroes. The defenders prepared a gun for discharge on the attackers, and it was rammed tight with powder. When hoisting it to the top of the stockade it fell back and exploded with terrific force, killing most of the little band.

In the meantime the stockade caught fire, and it was a most thrilling sight. The burning of the stockade, the falling of the gate, and a great onrush of hundreds of Indians, to finish those surviving, was a repetition almost like to what actually occurred, and the sculpting was a completion of a scene which was heartrending, but fine from a stage point of view. The Indians danced round in great jubilation at the destruction of the French.

But this is only one of the stirring incidents that will be depicted for the moving picture patrons by this company. The pictures will be unloaded very shortly, and theatregoers will have an opportunity of realising to the full the defence of the early settlers of Canada and the stand they made against the bloodthirsty Indians.

GASLESS GASPIPE FOR CAMP FIRE.

There are few hunters who include a piece of gas pipe in their kits, and yet such an article, with a few pieces of heavy iron wire, is most useful. If the gas pipe is driven into the ground where the camp fire is built, and the wire is bent, it is apparent to anyone who has camped that there will be ample compensation for the extra weight they make in the pack.

It should be remembered that only the heaviest sort of wire should be used for this purpose, however, as the ordinary wire will not bear the weight. The end that is inserted in the gas pipe should be long enough to reach all the way to the ground.

THE CUCKOO CLOCK THREATENED.

What is to become of the cuckoo clock is a question now in France, in the railway service, and must needs be adopted by the hotels and inns. What is to be done with the bells? Are they to strike along in the twenties in the morning, when the traveller will not enjoy his forty winks of sleep, the very cream of slumber? It is feared by Swiss clock-makers that the innovation will mean death to the cuckoo. "Does any one suppose," inquires an anxious Swiss, "that this bird, so long a feature of the cozy chamber of the inn, will be allowed to launch 21, 22, or 23 consecutive cuckoo calls? Surely the traveller will not suffer such a thing. He will hurt not anatomically alone, but his boots, at the offender, and the cuckoo clock will be a thing of the past."—London Chronicle.

BELL RINGS POISON WARNING.

Sometimes in the still dark night, somebody, the wife, the baby or yourself may get suddenly ill, and somebody will hurry to the medicine case, or the pantry shelf or wherever the medicine bottles are kept.

In the darkness a poison bottle may be grasped and carried to the sickroom, and in the hurry incidental to such illness a dose may be administered and a funeral held later on.

Or there may be medicines that must never be given to children. Bell bottles—that's by way of warning. Get a number of tiny bells, and fasten a bell to each bottle containing poison or any medicine which may have a serious effect if taken unintentionally. Possibly a good way would be to tie two bells to the poison bottles to distinguish the very dangerous ones from the others, the taking of which wouldn't be quite so serious. The ringing of the bell will then prevent you from making a fatal mistake.

HOW THE EARTH DRIED.

When water is decomposed by radium or by ultra-violet rays, it produces hydrogen and peroxide of hydrogen, and it does not form oxygen. Electrolytic decomposition forms oxygen.

A German investigator bases a new theory relating to the drying of the earth on the fact that one form of decomposition produces oxygen, while the other form does not. Part of the water vapor emitted by the seas is decomposed by the ultra-violet rays of the sun; the hydrogen formed rises toward the high atmospheric strata, and all the water does not return to the surface. Therefore, the quantity of water on the face of the globe is always diminishing, and the earth is incessantly, if gradually, drying. To cite one example: On the north side of the Alps there is a continual falling off in the depth of the lakes and a gradual formation of swamps. Two hundred and fifty years ago there were 149 lakes in the canton of Zurich; today there are 76. The destruction of the forests and the cultivation of the land partially explain this, but the loss of hydrogen is an important factor. The hydrogen accumulated in the higher atmosphere is diffused in interstellar space.—Harper's Weekly.

THE SCHOOL PROBLEM

The Autumn brings a new school problem into thousands of Canadian homes—a problem that must be settled in the interest of mental, moral and physical culture. Education at the sacrifice of health is a costly luxury.

The best food to study on, to play on, to work on, is

SHREDDED WHEAT

It is the favorite cereal food in Canadian schools as well as Canadian homes because it contains all the muscle-making, brain-building material in the whole wheat grain prepared in its most digestible form. Nothing so deliciously warming and nourishing these chilly mornings as a Shredded Wheat Biscuit with hot milk or cream and a little fruit. Good for grown-ups as well as children. Supplies all the nourishment needed for a half day's work or play. The cleanest, purest, best of all the cereal foods.

DR. CLIFFORD'S BIRTHDAY.
Thousands of people outside the ranks of the Free Churchmen of England, who claim him as leader, tendered Dr. Clifford hearty congratulations on his 76th birthday on Oct. 14. Dr. Clifford is, fortunately, in the best of health, and said only a few days ago to a Daily News and Leader representative: "There never was a more interesting time to be alive than today. I am an incorrigible optimist, and great as the blessings are which we are now enjoying, I believe the best is yet to be." Dr. Clifford recalls how he was a "jacker-off" in a lace factory before he was eleven years old. A short interlude as an assistant to a nurseryman followed his time in the factory, and then came his yearning to enter the ministry, which culminated in his joining the band of local preachers. From 1858 to the present Dr. Clifford has filled his one and only pastorate—a truly remarkable record.

HE'S A DANDY LITTLE DIPLOMAT, BUT COULDN'T STOP THE WAR

Shepherd Tells About M. Sazanoff, Posing From King to King, and Tips Off the Fact That Russia Opposed Balkan War Because She Herself Is Afraid to Fight!

BY WILLIAM SHEPHERD.

[Special to The Advertiser.]
Paris, Oct. 23.—Out of this Balkan mess rises the figure of a worried little man, with pointed whiskers, and small, fishy eyes.

He is M. Sazanoff, the minister of foreign affairs of Russia.

For weeks he has been running about Europe, from one capital to another, to arrange for Balkan peace, pleading in one place, promising in another, arguing in Paris, planning in Balmoral Castle with the King of England, scheming with the Emperor of Berlin.

It was at the very beginning of his peacemaking that I pushed by his guards, at Calais, France, while he was rushing to Paris, and asked him to tell an American reporter what the Balkan future looked like.

"Oh, the United States?" he exclaimed. "You do not worry about the Balkans, huh?"

"We want all the news."

"Well, the situation is very grave."

"Can you stop the war?"

"We are trying to do so. Now is a time for much work."

"But can you stop it?"

"I must not talk about what can be done. The thing to do is to do our best. Now is no time for speech."

Whereupon he took off his hat, in a polite bow, and the interview was ended.

That night he arrived in Paris.

In Sophia, 600 miles away, the crowds were marching in the streets, crying for a chance to fight Turkey.

In Belgrade the scenes were similar.

Four battleships were leaving Greece to go to Philadelphia for ammunition.

Balkan soldiers were marching toward Turkey from the north. Grecian soldiers were advancing on Turkey from the south. There is only water on the east and west of Turkey, or soldiers would have been pressing her from those directions.

Turkey was sandwiched with a vengeance.

But that night Sazanoff was the most hopeful man in Europe. He was M. Poincaré, the French minister of foreign affairs. They called the Bulgarian, the Serbian, the Montenegrin and the Grecian ambassadors to France into their meeting.

Within two days Sazanoff had brought about an agreement between the leading nations of Europe that they would request Turkey to permit the Balkan Christians in Macedonia to govern themselves. This was all the Balkan Governments were demanding.

Then Sazanoff dashed off to Berlin, to talk to Emperor Bill.

He didn't ride in private cars or on private boats, in his European sortie. Regular trains, ordinary staterooms and taxicabs served his purpose just as well.

Sazanoff was unsuccessful—but if it hadn't been for him the war would have started weeks before.

And why was Sazanoff so interested in Balkan peace? That's easy.

A Balkan victory may throw Russia into war with Austria. And Russia isn't ready to fight. Her army is soaked in Socialism. Her battleship crews have mutinied, one after the other. There isn't a Russian captain who, when he says "Fire" in war times, can be sure that his men won't fire at him instead of at the enemy.

So Sazanoff fights Russia's wars on the field of diplomacy.

member of a Nonconforming Church. Queen Victoria, who disliked Gladstone, liked and trusted Sazanoff. She had a good eye for staunchness in a man.

"We know," says the Post, "that Queen Victoria sought his advice on her private affairs, and we have in this book many letters to show that his colleagues were in the habit of coming to him when they were in difficulties."

"It was not until 1894 that Fowler got his great chance as secretary of state for India in the Rosebery Administration. And brief as his time was, he took it. When he took over the portfolio the party was threatened with destruction on the cotton duties, and here Fowler steered his way through with a skill and boldness which marked him as a statesman. In the great debate in the House of Commons when the block of twenty Lancashire votes on which the Government depended seemed to hang in the balance, he turned the scale by the greatest speech of his life, the speech in which he said: 'Every member of this House is a member for India.'"

How He Missed the Leadership.

This book explains why a man with such undoubted gifts of exposition failed of the Liberal leadership. Like Mr. Asquith, he owned nothing to chance, but everything to his own forceful personality.

An illustration of her father's over-cautiousness is mentioned by Mrs. Hamilton in connection with the retirement of Sir William Harcourt in 1898, when the necessity arose to elect another Liberal leader in the House of Commons.

"Henry Fowler's name was freely mentioned, and he was approached on the matter. Then it was that his intense caution proved a clog upon his career. Not only did it lead him to distrust his own powers, his physical strength, his political wisdom, his general ability to undertake so onerous and so momentous a task, but it also led others of the more advanced sections of the party to distrust his quiet, moderate statesmanship, and to imagine that, because he lacked the enthusiasm for extremes, he lacked the essential characteristics of a popular Liberal leader."

Liberal and Methodist Peer.

"He began life as a Liberal and a Methodist. He ended it as both," says his daughter. "The same note rings through all his speeches—the same direction drew all his footsteps. Continuity of purpose, consistency of preaching and practice, stamp every page of his life's history, and it is impossible to find a single contradiction therein. I never knew a man who was always so exactly like himself, and whose attitude on every question could be more accurately foretold. His absolute stability was indeed a sure strength."

A peerage was bestowed upon him in 1908, and he was the first Wesleyan to be called to the Upper House.

"And though, of course," says his daughter, "it would be the height of snobish absurdity to imagine that any church could be honored by the rank of its members, yet my father and his contemporaries were old enough to remember the days when to be a Nonconformist was a clog on any man's career—indeed, an actual disability to him in many of the avenues of advancement."

Only pure grain alcohol will do the work, however—wood alcohol and the denatured product being unfit.

And it might further be said that the only safe way to thaw out a HOT water pipe is to have a plumber do it, else there might be an explosion of the water back of the stove that will do some damage.

There are several devices for thawing out frozen pipes, but none of them has the attractions of a scheme adopted by a chemist, who worked the thing out in his laboratory. He poured a bottle of grain alcohol, turned the spigot so that its mouth pointed upward, turned the spigot on and poured in the alcohol. He kept pouring until the water began to flow. A chemical action was set up in the pipe by the alcohol which caused the ice to disappear. Only pure grain alcohol will do the work, however—wood alcohol and the denatured product being unfit.

Better Dinners

"Is dinner ready, Mary?"

"Yes, Madam—it is ready, and, I think, a great success."

"Your cooking is improving."

"Well perhaps it is, and I hope so, but really Mrs. Housewife, I think our new Gurney-Oxford is partly responsible for the success I have had lately. I was never able to cook roasts and fowl so well on our old stove, and as for bread and biscuits, I used to tremble when I went to take them from the oven—they were so often soggy and heavy. Now they are always light and beautifully brown, and, if I do say it myself, something to be proud of."

"That's true, Mary, my husband has said almost the same thing. I'm awfully glad you approve of my choice of a Gurney-Oxford. He approves because of the saving in coal since we got it, also because of the better meals he is getting."

"Indeed he's right Madam—and it requires so little attention."

"That's fine. Will you serve dinner in a few minutes please."

Mark Twain was naturally, according to his own confession as related in his recently published biography, of an indolent disposition. In an old volume of Suetonius, adjoining a reference to "Plautius Clemens" as a man distinguished "for his want of energy," the later Clemens made this annotation: "Yet, as printer, pilot, reporter, lecturer, traveller, and author, fate contrived to get a great deal of work out of Mark Twain."

SOME QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[BY A PHYSICIAN.]

"What causes a part of the body, as for instance the foot or the hand, to fall asleep?" asks I. J.

The nerve is being pressed upon. A change of position commonly remedies the condition. If it persists, however, the advice of a physician should be secured to determine the cause. In the ordinary course it is not a matter to worry over.

M. N. wants to know if it is injurious for a child to sleep with a grown person.

A grown person may lie on a very small child and suffocate it. A child is very likely to take a cold from a grown person with whom he sleeps. In general the health of every person better if he or she sleeps alone, because there is more air for him to breathe.

I have sciatica in my hip. What will ease the pain?—F. C. N.

Sweating, or Turkish baths may help temporarily. But by all means see an up-to-date physician. Rheumatism is a poison, caused by infection somewhere in the body, perhaps the tonsils or teeth. Infection and pain are sometimes far apart.

The modern physician looks for and treats the cause. There are now available three separate anti-toxins, one of them being for sciatic rheumatism. They are said to be giving good results, although any candid physician will admit that there is still a great deal to learn about rheumatism.

Voters are called upon to examine the voters' lists on or before Nov. 14, 1912, and, if incorrect, to make application to the City Clerk to have corrections made. Voters are reminded that changes cannot be made on election day. The 14th of November is the last day for receiving appeals. All persons who have changed their residence during the year are particularly requested to see that they are not omitted. Ratepayers moving into Ward 4 after the 1st of April, Ward 3 after May 1, Ward 2 after June 1, and Ward 1 after Aug. 1, are most probably omitted from the list unless the assessors were notified of the change. All men, spinners and widows assessed as tenants or freeholders of property of $400 assessed value or $400 or more income are entitled to vote for Mayor, Aldermen, Water Commissioners, Hospital Trustees and Board of Education. Only freeholders vote on money bylaws and are entitled to one vote in each ward in which they have property. For School Trustees, all men, spinners, widows and married women whose names appear on the assessment roll for any sum as tenant, owners or freeholders are entitled to the ballot.

There will be a special list for school voters prepared by the Clerk. This list is not printed, but may be seen at the Clerk's Office, or at the office of the Secretary of the Board of Education. It is the duty of each ratepayer to examine the list, and, if necessary, to make application for correction before the 14th day of November next.

HE KEEPS HEARTS ALIVE IN TEST TUBE AND WINS $39,000 NOBEL PRIZE.

DR. ALEXIS CARREL.

By doing "the impossible," Dr. Alexis Carrel has brought to America its first Nobel prize of $39,000 for research in medicine.

He has kept alive for months pieces of heart tissue taken from baby chicks. Early in May last Dr. Carrel announced his discovery of prolonging heart life after removal from the body to which the heart belonged. Immediately there was great speculation in scientific circles as to whether "permanent life" might not be possible.

Other successful experiments were made with sections taken from the spleens, hearts and livers of chickens and skins of frogs. The reason for these experiments is explained by Dr. Carrel.

"I wish to find a method by which to store tissues during the period which elapses between their extirpation and their transplantation on the patient. It would be very convenient for surgeons to keep in store pieces of skin, bone, cartilage, blood vessels, peritoneum and fat ready to be used. I have attempted to preserve the tissue outside of the organism in a condition of latent or active life."

Dr. Carrel has a remarkable list of surgical achievements. He has taken kidneys from two cats and exchanged them. Both cats lived. The transplanted organs performing their proper functions in their new homes.

ARNOLD BENNETT FINDS MERIT IN AMERICAN ART

English Novelist Rebukes Americans Who Disparage Their Own Achievements—Praise for Winslow Homer.

Probably Mr. Arnold Bennett is not the first foreigner who has fallen in with the "elegant Europeanized American woman" who would softly coo: "There is no art in the United States. I feel like an exile." Mr. Bennett found the experience "exacerbating," and he relieves his wounded feelings against "these exiles, each believing himself or herself to be a solitary lamp in the awful darkness." There are many of them, he claims, and the redeeming fact is that "they bitterly despise one another." The popular English novelist shows up these kindred insincerities in Harper's under the caption, "Your United States," an engaging way of owning no responsibility for what he found here. As an analyst he is interesting.

In the first place, these people, like nearly all dilettanti of art, are extremely unreliable judges of racial characteristics. Their mentality is allied to that of the praisers of time past, who, having read "Tom Jones" and "Clarissa," are incapable of comprehending that the immense majority of novels produced in the nineteenth century were nevertheless terrible rubbish. They go to a foreign land, deliberately confine their attention to the artistic manifestations of that country, and then exclaim in ecstasy: "What an artistic country this is! How different from my own!" To the same class belong certain artistic visitors to the United States, who, having in their own country deliberately cut themselves off from intercourse with ordinary inartistic persons, visit America, and meeting there the average man and woman in bulk, from superiority and exclaim: "This Philistine race thinks of nothing but dollars!" They cannot see the yet quite evident truth that the rank and file of every land is about equally inartistic. Modern Italy may in the mass be more lyrical than America, but in either architecture or painting Italy is simply not to be named with America.

that moment being done by a group of Boston artists in Boston. But as I had no opportunity to see their work I cannot offer an opinion on the proud claim. My gloom was becoming permanent, when one wet day I invaded, not easily, the Macdowell Club, and, while listening to a chorus rehearsal of Liszt's "St. Elizabeth," made the acquaintance of really interesting pictures by artists such as Irving R. Wiles, Jonas Lie, Henri, Mrs. Johansson, and Brinley, of whom previously I had known nothing. From that moment I progressed. I met the work of James Preston and of other men who can truly paint.

"All these, however, with all their piquant merits, were Parisianized. They could have put up a good show in Paris and emerged from French criticism with dignity. Whereas there is one American painter who has achieved a reputation on the tongues of men in Europe without (it is said) having been influenced by Europe or even having exhibited there. I mean Winslow Homer. I had often heard of Winslow Homer from connoisseurs who had earned my respect, and assuredly one of my reasons for coming to America was to see Winslow Homer's pictures. My first introduction to his oil-paintings was a shock. I did not like them, and I kept on not liking them. I found them theatrical and violent in conception, rather conventional in design, and repellent in color. I thought the painter's attitude toward sea and rock and sky decidedly sentimental beneath its wilful harshness. And I should have left America with broken hopes of Winslow Homer if an enthusiast for state-patronized art had not insisted on taking me to the State Museum at Indianapolis. In this agreeable and interesting museum there happened to be a temporary loan exhibit of water-colors by Winslow Homer. Which water-colors were clearly the productions of a master. They forced me to reconsider my views of Homer's work in general. They were beautiful; they thrilled; they were genuine American; there is nothing else like them. I shall never forget the pleasure I felt in unexpectedly encountering these summary and highly distinguished sketches in the quietude of Indianapolis. I would have liked to collect a trailful of New York, Chicago, and Boston dilettanti, and led them by the ears to the unpretentious museum at Indianapolis, and force them to regard fixedly these striking creations."

Lord Rosebery On Reading And Forming Character

Places Nature Above Books—Lord Acton's Hundred Books—Scottish Character

"I have spent my life in opening libraries. My stock of remarks on that subject has long been exhausted," said Lord Rosebery, in opening another Carnegie library, at Peebles, Scotland. "I am wearied to death of libraries. I live in them, and when I come out of them to talk about them, I feel the subject is so hackneyed there is really more to be said. But I will say a few words to young people on libraries."

"It is no use speaking to old people, their ideas and habits, and would not be changed in them, even if a man spoke with the tongue of men or of angels. But there are a few things a veteran in life may say not uselessly to the young about books and their use and misuse. I think you have the best library the world can offer for the formation of character, and after all the object of all libraries and all such appliances must be in the long run the formation of character—in the natural beauty of your country."

"For the formation of character the glories of nature are better than any books. I know these beauties, because I have had the privilege of walking through them with the late Professor Veitch, still, I am glad to see, a hold name in Peebles, who was so imbued with the poetry and glory of these localities. I am one of these—though I suppose philosophers or statisticians could bring hundreds of arguments to prove me wrong—who do believe in the influence of natural beauty and scenery upon character. I have always thought—it may be a fancy—that there is more actual art potentiality in a Scottish shepherd in these localities, than there is, perhaps, in any other class. He walks these solitudes untroubled by any consideration except his flock. He is per se, and unaccompanied by the glories of nature from sunrise to sunset, and even in the night he sees features of nature at times that other men do not see. He lives embosomed in the atmosphere of nature, and when I see these men walking along your solitudes, I believe there is in them an actuality, or potentiality of poetry which exists in no other class of men."

"If that be so, may not we who live in these districts have some particle of the elevation of mind which a shepherd receives from the contemplation of the glories of nature? I am not saying that this is a sufficient education in itself. It is to be born and to live in beautiful scenery—but I do say this: The elevation of mind produced by such contemplation must raise humanity nearer to God, and though, after all, that is not all—nature cannot give all, nature cannot give anything—yet at any rate she must, in my conscience, I believe, be able to contribute a nobler and a high inspiration in the formation of character. "I view books" from a threefold point of view. In the first place they furnish the tools that you require for your various professions—law, theology, engineering, whatever it may be. As to those tools I can say nothing, because they each relate to a separate faculty, if I may use the expression, and to deal with them would be much too technical a subject for my discourse today. Then they furnish to you literature, and they furnish to you recreation. What about literature? I suppose literature means the standard books—that is, the highest form of literature. What are the standard books? That is a question that I am quite ready to ask, but which I do not propose to answer. I suppose some people would say that the standard books are those lists of the hundred best books that competent gentlemen are ready to furnish on the slightest possible occasion."

Reading Masterpieces. "Lord Acton, who was perhaps the most learned man of our time, and one of the most genial and intellectual, furnished a list of a hundred books that he wished his son to read, and we, knowing his great reputation, all rushed to this list, and we found that it consisted of a hundred books, mostly German, and which Lord Acton bequeathed to us. But at any rate I may say this in regard to all these lists of the hundred best books which we are supposed to read—the standard works in literature. I firmly believe this: that if a man in his honesty and conscience proceeded to read the hundred best books in any list right through, he would never wish to read anything again. I believe that the best literature for everybody is the literature that they can assimilate, that they can digest. No intellectual stomach will digest everything. I believe it to be an enormous mistake for people to toll through masterpieces of literature, without caring for them or understanding them, and feel that they have done a virtuous act when they have completed them. I believe that is as great a mistake as anybody can make. On the other hand, remember this: To understand and appreciate masterpieces, we have to educate ourselves, we have to be educated into the appreciation of what is supremely good. That holds

ENGLISH AUTOMOBILISTS FURNISH "RED LIGHT" FOR FELLOWS AHEAD.

The policy of letting "George do it" seems to have struck Europe with unusual force and just now "George," in the person of the automobilist, is actually being compelled to carry out his part on all sorts of obstructions in the road that might bar and endanger his swift journey. It might sound very foolish to state that all people who obstruct the road do is to furnish the red color for the light and that the automobilist is compelled to provide the light himself. This is true nevertheless, and in spite of the fact that the red color is not to be furnished every ray of light, it is nevertheless possible for him to do it while going at the rate of 60 miles an hour and to light up the obstruction with a red brilliance while he is yet 100 yards away. This puzzling condition of things is so simple that the explanation sounds almost absurd. The principle is easily understood in the description given of a new rear "light" for motor cycles, which has become rather popular in England.

good, especially, I think, in regard to pictures. How many of us could go through a great gallery of pictures from which the names of the painters were all removed, and pick out a Raphael among them? In the same way we cannot hope to proceed direct from the teaching of the three R's to appreciate all the beauties of a great author.

Unread Men. "Some of the best men and most successful men I know have had no pleasure in reading at all, but they have had to replace it—the have chosen to replace it—with the society of the best men and women they could find, and am not at all that not a better and more successful education than books themselves. But, at any rate, a combination of the two is the ideal. "Remember this, that books are good friends and good servants, but bad masters. The bookworm who embeds himself in his books on his lonely mulberry leaf for all eternity, without producing any silk at all, I would earnestly warn those most enthusiastic readers, lest they allow their besetting delight to become something like a besetting sin. Man was not meant to live by books alone, but the opportunity of reading such as is given by this admirable institution, opportunity of reading, of plucking and culling, of selecting a literature for yourself, is one of the greatest boons which poor humanity can receive.

Scottish Character. "My chatter is nearly come to an end," concluded Lord Rosebery. "I would ask you, however, to remember this, that books and libraries, and nature, and the conversation of good and wise men are only really valuable and good as far as they conduce to the formation of character. What we have to prize most in Scotland is the character of our race. It has fought its way through all the difficulties of climate and soil, and of oppressive enemies in the south. It has fought its way through all the dark dominions outside these islands—where Scottish character, Scottish industry, Scottish thrift, Scottish energy have developed into being the most brilliant provinces of the crown. It will, I do not doubt, in long days to come, days which for some of us may look dark and doubtful, but of which no one should despair as long as the character of the nation remains undisturbed and unpolluted, it will continue to maintain in the long days to come this ancient Kingdom of Scotland in the primacy of the civilized world."

The report of this speech is taken from the Morning Post.

FOR GALL STONES

[BY A PHYSICIAN.]

Nature often has a remedy for diseases if people but knew. One of the simplest and most harmless cures of gall stones is OLIVE OIL. It has been tried many times successfully. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. In a short time, the oil softens the parts so that the stones will pass away.

There is another excellent method which is a real nature remedy. This merely consists of the habit of eating carrots freely and drinking the water in which they are cooked at intervals throughout the day. In cases where this plan was followed the gall stones were dissolved. Any remedy, to be effective, must be given a fair trial. The beauty of both these is that they are harmless and can be doing no ill to any other organ of the body while being taken as an aid to some particular one.

Music and Drama

THE GRAND'S ATTRACTIONS

Twice today, "Mutt and Jeff," Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Nov. 4, 5, 6, "Everywoman," Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Nov. 7, 8, 9, "Ben-Hur."

"Everywoman," the dramatic spectacle, which has been transplanted upon English soil, and is now the play of the hour at the Drury Lane Theatre, London, will be offered by Henry W. Savage with the original New York production and many members of the original New York cast at the Grand three nights, beginning Monday. In this attractive novelty there is not only spectacle, music and drama, but a suggestion of the ancient form known as a morality. That form was eloquently made known on the American stage a few years ago, when Ben Greut and a company of English artists, among them Edith Wynne Matthison, presented "Everyman." Upon "Everyman," Walter Browne, an Englishman, at the time a New York writer, founded "Everywoman."

In the twentieth century ordering of the moralist's pageant, its central figure, "Everywoman," young and beautiful, sets out from her home in quest of love. Truth warns her of her danger, but she gives no heed, and, inflamed by the representations of Flattery, with Youth, Beauty and Modesty, as her companions, she begins her pilgrimage, which is told in five acts. She adopts the stage, mounts to stardom, besieges the hearts and money-bags of men, goes a wild pace, and ultimately pays the toll in the loss of the attributes she holds most dear. She is deserted by Modesty upon the stage; at a midnight ory Beauty dies, and finally in the carnival of New Year's Eve, on Broadway, New York, Youth leaves her. Poverty and misery assail her, but Truth comes timely to her salvation and guides her back to the deserted house of her earlier days, where, humble and contrite, she falls into the arms of Love, who has kept the hearth warm for her during her absence. The production is an enormous one, and includes a dramatic ensemble of over 150 people. A symphony orchestra is carried by the organization. The company includes H. Cooper Cliffe, a distinguished English actor, who is seen in the singular role of Nobody. Seats on sale.

of the drama from a spectacular and theatrical standpoint. It is in this scene that fortune is tested by the two most valiantly wrought into the fabric of the play's plot, Ben-Hur and Messala, his false friend. The moment for which both have been waiting has arrived, and valiantly do they set themselves to find which of the two shall live to honor, love and riches. The hate brewed between the two is so terrible that nothing less than disgrace and beggary will satisfy either, and as their chariots, to each of which are harnessed four very horses, fly around the amphitheatre, the spectators, yielding to the magic realism of the drama, sit with bated breath and tense nerves awaiting the outcome of the contest. And when it comes, and Ben-Hur, triumphing over his enemy, receives the plaudits and the victor's crown, audiences go wild with delight, and ten to twenty calls are not enough to calm the enthusiasm evoked by the scene.

It is well to remember the fact that the curtain rises on an evening performance of "Ben-Hur" promptly at 8 o'clock, and at 2 o'clock on Tuesday and that no one will be seated during the prelude, which shows the appearance of the Star of Bethlehem to the Three Wise Men, and which should be seen by all who would thoroughly enjoy the performance of "Ben-Hur."

Superb Nordica.

One of the world's greatest singers, Mme. Lillian Nordica, a queen of the operatic stage, and the greatest Wagnerian singer in the world, will be heard in concert here at the Grand Opera House on Tuesday, Nov. 12, assisted by William Morse Rummel, violinist, and Romayne Simmons, pianist. According to the critics, Mme. Nordica was never in finer voice than this season, and her present tour bids fair to become a triumphal progress. Henry T. Finck, the eminent New York critic, in reviewing her concert at Carnegie Hall a few months ago, says: "Mme. Nordica was in superb voice—there is only one voice of equal beauty at the Metropolitan today, and that is Caruso's—and her singing aroused the greatest enthusiasm." She sang the love music in the first act of the "Walkure," followed by the parting scene from the introduction to "Gotterdammerung," and in conclusion she delivered the immortal music at the close of that drama with a tragic grandeur of utterance which no artist except Lilli Lehmann has ever equalled. The choir of the First Methodist Church, under whose auspices the concert is being given, is privileged to hear these great artists, reports a most encouraging sale of tickets, although there are still some good seats left. Rush tickets may be obtained from the members of the choir, and will admit by the door of opera house from 7 till 7:30, when the general sale will open.

Socialism and Christianity

Mr. Herbert Shaw, the secretary of the Newcastle, Eng., Chamber of Commerce, spoke at the recent church congress in England, and took as his part in civic work. The growth of Socialism, Syndicalism and other issues was due, he said, to the laxity of those who ought to have led, but had not led. What the country wanted was religion in action. It was not the strong Christian character in its Parliament, its county councils and its city and borough councils. There could be no truck between Christianity and Socialism. Socialism had not the same aims nor the same methods as Christianity. Socialism was materialistic. It rejected the spiritual food of Christianity and denied the way of the cross. Socialism was eager to exploit the powerful organizations of Christianity, but derided its fundamental tenets and traditions.

The Bishop of Hull said he was glad to hear Mr. Shaw's appeal for civic services, but that the religion which he wished to utter a mild protest. He was not a Socialist in the ordinary sense of the word, but they all wanted to be fair to those with whom they did not agree. He was sure it was not true that the ordinary religion in itself was anti-Christian. There was, of course, a kind of Socialism which was predatory, revolutionary, materialistic, and anti-Christian. But he did not think that the ordinary religion was found in England was of that order. The definition of Socialism given by Bishop Westcott was: "A scheme in which we work one with another for the common good, rather than that in which we work one against another for private profit." If that definition was correct there were a good many churchmen who were Socialists. But the ordinary definition of Socialism was a system of the collective ownership of land and capital. It was a purely economic matter. Personally he did not believe that such a system would work. But a Christian could perfectly well hold that theory if he chose. It was quite as stupid to say that all Socialists were anti-Christian as to say that you could not be a Christian without being a Socialist.

A CARPET TALK.

[BY A PHYSICIAN.]

A weak solution of oxalic acid applied very carefully to inkstains on carpets will remove them. If this changes the color it may be restored with ammonia.

Always follow the weave of the pile when sweeping thick carpets. The carpet will wear longer and look better.

Carpets should be lifted from the floor at least once a year and thoroughly cleaned. The dirt which collects beneath grinds and cuts the threads.

Wait until the floor has thoroughly dried before relaying a carpet. The tackers are apt to rust otherwise and injure the carpet.

Stair carpets should be heavily padded if you desire them to wear well.

A new home-making machine promises to bring renewed prosperity to certain districts of the south. In slavery days hemp-raising was a great industry. Kentucky, for instance, devoted 30,000 of its acres to the crop, while barely scarcely a tenth of its acreage has been employed in this way for breaking hemp by manual labor is extremely hard work and the laborers grew scarce. Now the machine is said to have produced excellent results and a large extension of hemp raising is looked for.

DEATH OF PRINCESS LOUISE LAST OF THE STUARTS

English Jacobites Called Her Queen Mary IV. of England, But She Never Claimed the Title—
A Plain Home-Loving Woman.

(By Richard Fairchild.)

There died at Sorrento, Italy, Thursday, Princess Louise, of Bavaria, beloved in three kingdoms, mother of ten children, housewife, contented woman. With her passing went the hopes, not entirely abandoned, of thousands of the subjects of His Majesty King George of Great Britain, of seeing on the imperial English throne her whom they hailed as "Queen Mary IV. of Great Britain and Ireland."

Princess Louise before marriage was the Archduchess Marie Therese of Austria, d'Este of the formerly sovereign Modena line. The fact that she was less remotely descended from the Stuarts than is King George V., had been regarded by English legitimists and by the so-called White Rose league as prima facie proof that she should have been the lawful sovereign of the British Empire. King George, they have unceasingly argued, is only descended from a daughter of James I.

These enthusiasts had been bitter at times and the cause of embarrassment to the various English rulers who during the many years of Princess Louise's quiet Bavarian life, one of their little tricks was to place "Queen Mary" postage stamps on English packets and letters, well knowing that the small stickers represented nothing but sentiment. These stamps bore the effigy of Princess Louise, or Louise, as queen and were, perforce, accompanied by a bona fide stamp carrying the picture of King George. The latter was unceremoniously treated—his head was turned down by the ardent legitimists, who doubtless added a sound thump of a fist as they stuck the post-office fast.

Another demonstration of feeling also came with the proclaimed recognition of Princess Louise's eldest son, Prince Rupert, as the actual Prince of Wales. The young prince at various times has traveled about the world and necessary ways found him out and gave him public acclamation, which was extremely distasteful to him. The prince had been the picture of King George, Prince Leopold, regent of Bavaria, had represented that ancient kingdom at the dimond jubilee of the late Queen Victoria; also at the coronation of King Edward, and, later, the king's funeral. On these occasions Prince Rupert was hailed loudly as Prince of Wales and some English subjects bent their knees to him, much to his displeasure. He is reported to have ignored these well-meaning friends, just as his royal mother always had politely waved aside the entreaties and procreations of those who hailed her as Queen Mary.

Princess Louise, or, as he English knew her, Princess Louise, was born July 5, 1848, and was the oldest daughter of the late Duke Ferdinand of Austria-Este-Modena, who in turn had married the Archduchess Elizabeth of Austria. Princess Louise of Bavaria in her nineteenth year was joined in wedlock to Prince Ludwig, oldest son of the Bavarian regent. The marriage ceremony was at Vienna. The date Feb. 20, 1868. There was feasting and rejoicing, the Austrians and Bavarians for centuries having been on most cordial terms. In the years which followed and up to 1891, when Princess Louise was born in Munich there came ten little ones to lighten the home of the "last of the Stuarts."

During the reign of the English subscribers to the view that the house of Stuart must away the royal scepter made many representations to the princess, whom they addressed as "queen." In innumerable ways they reached her ear with tempting suggestions that she should assert her kinship to Charles I. and crave from the English subjects the throne, which she, thus, said was rightfully hers. There is nothing on record to indicate that Princess Louise ever treated such a communication or messenger with anything but courtesy.

But the princess made it plain that she was contented to be the wife of Ludwig of Bavaria; that her throne was raised in the nursery of her babies, her scepter the warning forefinger which directed the little princess and princesses into the right and safe paths of Stuart royalists in their desire to do English homage to the royal legitimist, Louise, received mild but decisive proof from this busy mother and happy wife.

BALKAN WAR RECALLS ERROR OF 30 YEARS AGO

Harold Spender Finds Almost Sacred Documents—
Gladstone's Significant Underlining—Treaty of Berlin a Mistake.

A very dramatic article, which goes to the very heart and cause of the present Balkan crisis, was written by Mr. Harold Spender in the Daily News.

He examines copies of the Treaties of San Stefano and Berlin which belonged to Gladstone.

Treaties Scored by Gladstone's Pen. "I have before me two documents that are almost sacred," writes Mr. Spender. "They are the copies of the Treaties of San Stefano and Berlin, marked with the name of W. E. Gladstone, and scored with the ink from his pen. The vehemence of the mighty sympathy of that great heart is shown on these documents, not merely by underlinings and corrections, but even by absolute blots of ink that fall on the pages from his pen like tears of sympathy."

"Let me take the passage which Mr. Gladstone, with a sure instinct, underlined most heavily. It is a portion of the notable dispatch in which Lord Salisbury defended the treaty of Berlin against the criticisms of the extreme Jingos party in his own country. This is what Lord Salisbury said in defence of the Berlin Treaty and in incidentally summing up of the famous policy of 'Peace With Honor.'"

It (the Berlin Treaty) has radically changed the disposition of the vast region to which, in the Treaty of San Stefano, the name of Bulgaria is given. Nearly two-thirds of it have been replaced under the direct political and military rule of the Sultan, and in this retransfer are included Thrace and Macedonia.

"The underlinings are Mr. Gladstone's and of those underlined sentences you have the clue to the tragedy of today.

Confession of Error by Lord Salisbury

"Lord Salisbury many years after made his famous confession of error when he stated jauntily that Great Britain 'had put her money on the wrong horse.' The expression was curiously inadequate. The language of the race course seems strangely insufficient to describe a mistake of policy which has probably cost already some 30,000 human lives, and which will be responsible for all the lives shed in the coming weeks on the battlefields of the Balkans.

How Britain Undid the Work of Russia.

"Let us recall what happened in 1878-1880.

"The Treaty of San Stefano, wrung from Turkey by Russia after a long and bloody war, practically freed the Christians of European Turkey. Then came Great Britain's intervention and the Berlin conference. The Treaty of Berlin, the direct result of those events, gave back to Turkey that coun-

"PAIN COMPLETELY LEFT ME"

So Says Thomas Stephenson After Taking GIN PILLS

O those who have suffered, year in and year out, from the dragging misery of Kidney Disease, anything that will relieve the pain is a blessing indeed. That is just what a well-known resident of Lachute Mills, Que., and his wife both found in GIN PILLS.

"I was troubled for many years with Kidney Disease, and a friend told me to take GIN PILLS. After taking a few boxes, I was greatly relieved, and after finishing the twelfth box, the pain completely left me."

My wife is now using GIN PILLS and finds that she has been greatly relieved of the pain over her Kidneys.

I can safely recommend anyone suffering from Kidney Trouble to give a fair trial to GIN PILLS. Would you welcome such a relief? Then take GIN PILLS. They go right to the spot—make the pain almost at once—neutralize the Uric Acid which is causing all the trouble, strengthen the kidneys so that they will be able to keep the blood pure—and quickly take away that weakness and tenderness of the back which undermine the energy and vigor of manhood and womanhood.

Don't pass GIN PILLS without a trial. Every box is sold on the positive guarantee that if six boxes, used according to directions, will be clinically refused, the money will be refunded. Free sample if you write National Drug and Chemical Company of Canada, Limited, Toronto.

try of Macedonia which has since become the cockpit of murder and rapine. Mr. Disraeli did not—by origin, at any rate—belong to the faith professed by the people whom he handed over to destruction. But Lord Salisbury did; and there is a passage in his dispatch which seems to show that Lord Salisbury had some compunction in his work. That passage has today an ominous ring. Here are the words with which that famous dispatch of 1878 came to a conclusion:

Whether use will be made of this—probably the last—opportunity which has thus been obtained for Turkey by the interference of the powers of Europe, and of England in particular, or whether it is to be thrown away, will depend upon the sincerity with which Turkish statesmen now address themselves to the duties of good government and the task of reform.

"That passage has today a tremendous importance for us. It is an admission by the chief actor in that policy of 1877 that Great Britain took a particular and special part in the policy which has brought us to the present pass. Does not that fact throw upon us here a special responsibility in facing the present situation? asks Mr. Spender.

Q. M. Gen. Edwin A. Taylor, of the United Sons of Confederate Veterans, told a story at a banquet in Memphis. "A southerner," he said, "sat in the lobby of a New York hotel, discussing certain campaigns with a northerner. 'Well,' the northerner ended, with a laugh, 'we licked you, anyhow.' 'Yes, you did,' the southerner admitted, 'but by thunder, it's plain, from the size of your pension list, that before we gave in we crippled every blessed one of you!'"

SALT RHEUM CAME OUT ON HANDS

Formed Watery Pimples. Itchy and Had Horrible Burning Sensation. Lost Some of Finger Nails. Could Not Open Hands; Cured by Cuticura Soap and Ointment.

235 N. Lisgar St., Toronto, Ontario.—"For seven years I have been troubled with salt-rheum. It came out on my hands and formed kind of watery pimples all over them which became very itchy and it had a horrible burning sensation which caused me a good deal of pain. It came out on my hands in the fall and remained there till after spring. I might mention that I lost some of my finger-nails by the disease. During this length of time I was utterly useless, as I could not open my hands. I tried several other patent medicines without a bit of relief. Some of my friends advised me to try Cuticura Remedies so I sent for samples and by using them there was a great improvement. Then I went to the druggist and bought one cake of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment; after using them I am glad to say I am completely cured. I had given up all hope of being cured. I can say to all those who have suffered as I have, not to lose courage but to give Cuticura Remedies a fair trial."

TWENTY-TWO

THE SERBS OF SERVIA HAVE FUNNY CUSTOMS AND CLOTHES, BUT THEY'RE THE MOST CONTENTED FOLKS ALIVE.

When a Serbian widow wants a new husband she hangs a doll in her window. The doll gives fair warning to any bachelor who may chance to pass by.

If a widow or a maiden is very anxious to marry, she also hangs a wreath of corn up on the outside of the house. If the wreath is stolen she will be married soon.

If she is very, very anxious to wed she hangs the wreath down quite low so it can be more easily reached.

Serbia is the only country where parents are not anxious to marry off their daughters, and want their sons to mate early. The reason is, all the women work in the fields along with the men. When a son marries he brings another helper home; if the daughter marries she goes to her father-in-law's fields to work.

Women in Serbia work long and hard. The men regard them as inferior beings and treat them so. At the table women are served last, after the men have all the food they wish.

There are no rich folk in Serbia, and outside the king's family, no titles. Domestic servants are unknown except in hotels, where Germans are employed, for the Serb regards it beneath him or her to be an "employee."

That's why most of them farm, or raise pigs, which is the chief source of the small fortunes some of them have. The Serb is not very religious, and many go to church only when a picnic is held.

Every grown man has the use of five acres of land, which cannot be taken from him. He may buy other land, but these five acres are "loaned" to him by the Government for life, and the products of those acres can't be taken for debt.

Belgrade, the capital, is the only city; and it is becoming western in style, while the citizens are slowly moving toward European customs.

Men wear loose trousers or knickerbockers of white flannel, and cardigan waistcoats with sleeves lavishly embroidered. Women wear zouzave jackets with loose sleeves, linen skirts, and two highly colored aprons, one in front and the other behind. The aprons look something like small rugs.

The peasant married women dress in 1877, Serbia took the field against Turkey, and was made an independent nation by the Berlin congress in '78.

unmarried girl wears a colored handkerchief over her head. The more "fashionable" women wear little red fezzes.

Where the Bulgars are sullen and quiet, the Montenegrins quarrelsome and noisy, the Serbs are merry, light-hearted, contented with very little.

King Peter, a widower with three children, has been ruler of Serbia since Alexander I. and his consort, Queen Draga, were murdered in 1903. The crown prince, Alexander, is the second son, the first having renounced his right to the throne.

Serbia is about half as large as Indiana in area; and has a population equal to New Jersey. It is a mountainous country, and the Serbs in 636 A. D., and struggled through various degrees of independence until it fell in the hands of the Moslem sultan in 1389.

During the Russo-Turkish war in 1877, Serbia took the field against Turkey, and was made an independent nation by the Berlin congress in '78.

Now in his old age he has gone out to his last struggle with the foe of five centuries. Like Charlemagne he might cry, "What a marching life!"

It is said that he hastened to the war in order to celebrate his birthday, but that is to do this wise old man of the mountains an injustice. He has never played the part of the irresponsible egotist. When he was prince of Serbia, he was a man of letters, and his chief hobby was converting his principality into a kingdom. It was not vanity that inspired him, as it had inspired Prince Ferdinand of Bulgaria. It was love of his little land.

He would not have his subjects to his neighbors. If Bulgaria was to be a kingdom, Montenegro should be a kingdom, too. It was the kingdom, not the kingship that he sought.

He is the last of the heroes of an ancient tradition. When he goes, modernism will come among the mountains. On some sunny day you may see the clash of the old and the new in his palace grounds.

no opinion," said the prince. "I don't even exist." His victory was complete. The Skuptschina surrendered and implored him to return to the prince and his Parliament was bridged over by the Austrian annexation of Bosnia-Herzegovina, which roused the Montenegrins to fury. They clamored for war, but the old warrior would not let them. For with all his military ardor and genius—and in the war against the Turks in 1878 he revealed brilliant strategic qualities—his chief hobby was converting his principality into a kingdom.

He would not have his subjects to his neighbors. If Bulgaria was to be a kingdom, Montenegro should be a kingdom, too. It was the kingdom, not the kingship that he sought.

something wrong in a policy which has increased the cost of armaments by thirteen millions in four years. Our National Liberal Federation is the accredited organ of Liberalism. It has now a duty to perform to the Government and to the country. It has to ask for a change of policy which will remove the friction and suspicious by which war is generated, and thus lead to a reduction in armaments. Let us, at any rate, of the National Liberal Federation, make known that we wish to live in terms of friendship and mutual confidence with our German neighbors. We ask that the British Government shall frankly adopt the policy of exempting from capture all peaceful shipping and all peaceful property on sea in time of war. This is the American proposal which was supported at the last Hague conference by Germany and a majority of the powers. If this policy is adopted the main reason, the reason which has been accepted and endorsed by the German people, for the expansion of the German fleet will be removed, and the one great danger to our food supply in time of war will disappear. Let it go forth from the National Liberal Federation that we demand and require a clear understanding—that English Liberalism at any rate shall have no part or lot in military and naval projects for an attack on Germany. This is a sane and simple policy. In pressing it forward we are advocating an enlightened patriotism, and we are merely asking that the British Government should be maintained abroad as well as at home. This is a personal and not an official letter, but I take this opportunity of strongly recommending to you the adoption by your association of the two appended resolutions. Believe me, yours etc., JOHN BRUNNER.

RESOLUTIONS.

FEARED HE HAD CONSUMPTION

"Fruit-a-lives" Cured Him

HUGH McKENNA, ESQ.

St. Stephen, N. B., Jan. 17th, 1911. "I wish to tell you of the great good 'Fruit-a-lives' have done for me. For years I was a martyr to chronic constipation, and I was greatly run down and my friends feared I had Consumption. I tried numerous doctors and all kinds of medicines, but received no relief until advised to try 'Fruit-a-lives' by Mr. McKenna, of St. Stephen, and am pleased to say that I now enjoy excellent health. 'Fruit-a-lives' are the best medicine made, and I strongly advise my friends to use them."

HUGH McKENNA.

"Fruit-a-lives" is the only medicine that will positively and completely cure Constipation. This wonderful compound of fruit juices acts directly on the liver, causing this organ to extract more bile from the blood, and to give up more bile to move the bowels regularly and naturally.

"My daughter allus said she wouldn't marry any ordinary man," said Farmer Cornsloss. "Well, there isn't anything extraordinary about the fellow she married," commented his neighbor. "That's where you're wrong. He's the most brilliant and accomplished work-dodger in the entire county."
