

Shanghai Volunteers Ordered Out As Fighting of Rival Factions Nears City

CHINESE CIVIL WAR SPREADING

Manchurian War Lord's Forces Clash With Peking Governor's Troops.

VOLUNTEERS CALLED

Associated Press Despatch.
Shanghai, Sept. 17.—Renewed evidences of the spread in China of civil war to the Manchurian-Chilian front were contained in previous reports received here yesterday telling of a battle at Chaoyang, where the forces of General Chang Tso-Lin, Manchurian war lord, were said to have clashed with those of Wu-Tai, military head of the Peking government, as the contestants, while further preparations were taking place in the fighting between rival military governors for possession of Shanghai.

Military observers expected the opening of the hostilities would have a direct effect on the battling near here. For the past 36 hours rival Tiansu and Chekiang armies have waged a battle along a front approximately 100 miles long, west of Shanghai. Fighting continued throughout the night, and the Shanghai volunteer corps were called out when it was believed the firing line might be drawn closer to the city.

100-MILE BATTLEFRONT.
Associated Press Despatch.
Shanghai, Sept. 17.—Civil war continued to spread over China on Tuesday. In the north a clash between troops of Chi Hsi and Manchuria forces was reported near the border of the provinces, while further preparations pointed to fighting soon near Chang Hia Kan.

On the middle coast near the gateway port of Shanghai the continued night on all lines of the battleground, 100 miles from the city.

Only in the south were there no changes reported.

FIGHTING IS HEAVY.

Special to The Advertiser.
Shanghai, Sept. 17.—Artillery duels continued all along the eastern front of China's civil war all through last night, dawn finding the Chekiang and Kiangsu armies still fighting, the struggle for possession of Shanghai still unsettled.

Headquarters at the arsenal at Lungwha of the Chekiang forces, defending the city, issued a bulletin early today saying that the Kiangsu armies had attacked viciously on all fronts, Luho, Kiating, Hwangtu and Hing, but that no case case the Chekiang line had held.

The Shanghai volunteer corps was called out again late last night after fears had been expressed that the fighting would come close to the city and the international settlement. The city remained quiet, however, throughout the hours of darkness, and the volunteer corps is held ready for emergencies.

The Lungwha headquarters also made public a telegram from Chang Tso-Lin, commander-in-chief of the Manchurian forces, charging the Peking and an ally of the Chekiang leader, Lu Yung-Hsiang, saying that his first and second armies had moved 25 miles toward Shanghai.

The attitude of Chang's march chiefs was that they would fight closer, and that that conflict would prevent Wu from sending reinforcements to the Kiangsu forces, with which he has declared his sympathy.

MOTORIST ESCAPES BEING HIT ON TRACKS

Resident Threatens To Complain Against Plan of Lowering C. N. Gates.

Caught between the gates on the C. N. R. crossing at Ridout street in his sedan on Monday evening, a resident of London South narrowly escaped being struck by a westbound express train.

The man, who approached the crossing when the gates were open, slackened speed when he reached the slight elevation at the crossing. As his car was driven onto the tracks, the gates were lowered and he was compelled to bring his motor to a halt.

When he realized that the engine would be upon him in seconds, he started his car, intending to break through the gates, which were raised in time to permit him to slide beneath them.

The man, who lives on Ridout street, intends putting in a complaint to C. N. R. officials.

He stated today that it was not the first time he had been caught between the gates and that other motorists have had the same experience.

LEAVES HOSPITAL.

Lloyd Fluhrer, a fireman at the central station, who was taken to Victoria Hospital last Saturday suffering from a severe tendon of the wrist, was discharged from that institution this morning, his wound having healed satisfactorily.

Fluhrer received the injury when he cut his wrist on a broken bottle. He was playing baseball, and in an attempt to catch a ball, slipped and fell on the thick glass.

Mackinnon Stirs Audience With Brilliant Address

Moderator of Presbyterian Church Speaks at Public Meeting.

DR. ROBERT LAIRD

The address of Rev. Clarence Mackinnon, D.D., LL.D., principal of Pine Hill Presbyterian College, Halifax, and moderator of the ex-synod assembly of the Presbyterian Church of Canada, delivered at a public meeting in First Presbyterian Church last evening was described by Rev. Col. William Beattie, D.D., C.M.G., who presided, as "emotional, poetical and oratorical." It was all of that and more, in the opinion of all who availed themselves of the privilege of hearing Dr. Mackinnon, who is recognized all over the Dominion and by all denominations as one of the most brilliant speakers and most forceful preachers raised up by the church in this generation.

"Believe me the only thing that counts in this world is what we do for God. When we stand before the judgment bar it will not be the honors that we have won, nor our wealth, but what we have done for the good of our souls and for the good of the world that will count and that will be immortalized."

In such terms did Dr. Mackinnon conclude his eloquent address, which was prefaced by a reference to the fact of his "association" as Colonel Beattie had termed it, of the two men while overseas. Most of the audience, he told me, were there to hear and preach and I didn't do it I would be shot. Now, for a brief period, I happen to be his superior officer in religious affairs, but I find him just as efficient in obeying as I was powerful to command. Seriously, I believe that the Dominion of Canada owes a great debt to the fact which it is impossible to appreciate, for his services as chaplain of all the Canadian forces and one that I fear can never be repaid.

Dr. Mackinnon referred to the north of Ireland, the glens of Scotland, and the United Empire Loyalists as the three original sources of Canadian Presbyterianism. He commented in a mildly humorous vein upon the controversies which took place in the old land (Scotland) as between the Free Church and the United Presbyterians, known as the U. P.'s for short.

One day the Establishment astonished the village, he said, by putting up a sign: "Behold the church that has established." The Free Church was puzzled for a while, and then put up the sign: "We shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free."

Not to be outdone, however, the United Presbyterians put up the sign: "Whither the tribes go U. P. (up)."

Out of the controversies of the 18th century the Lord provided a band of teachers whose earnest preaching is felt even down to this present controversy (church union) God will bring men who will conquer nothing else than His Kingdom, and the result of it all will be gain and advancement to His cause and not loss. We are standing today at the parting of the ways. We are challenged by the greatest task the world has ever known, that of the racial problem of bringing the yellow, black and white races to live peacefully together on this planet.

Declaring it to be impossible that Canada should remain so sparsely settled as to have only two people to every square mile of territory, Dr. Mackinnon asserted that he refused to be considered a political economist, since he held all such to be pessimists, who too readily became imbued with the idea that they had reached an impasse. He stated his belief in the paradox that the more people brought out to Canada, the more jobs there would be for all.

"It is for us Christians to see," said Dr. Mackinnon, "that the future of the Dominion is built on the basis of righteousness and to his home."

SCHOOL AUDITORIUMS TO RENT FOR $10 NIGHT

Board of Education Committee Decides to Leave Price As Last Year.

At the meeting of No. 2 committee of the board of education yesterday the decision was arrived at to rent the combined auditorium-gymnasium rooms at Victoria and Victoria public schools on the same basis as last year, which was $10 per night, for entertainments not of an educational, patriotic or charitable character. When mentioned come under any of the above-mentioned classifications the charge will be, as formerly, merely to cover minor expenses of $2 for the first hour and 50c for each hour thereafter.

No. 3 committee will deal with the rental to be charged this year for the auditorium at Central Collegiate at its meeting tomorrow afternoon.

Last year the gymnasium-auditorium of Victoria School was used for 12 evenings for entertainments of a patriotic, Anglican and Presbyterian church organizations of South London. Already Secretary Tanner of the board of education has a number of applications for use of the two public school auditoriums for symposium purposes.

When the new Empress School is completed early next year the board will have a third auditorium at its disposal.

FINE PROGRESS MADE ON EMPRESS SCHOOL

$180,000 Structure Expected To Be Completed by First of the Year.

The John Petherborough Construction Company is making fine progress with the Empress avenue public school. The work has arrived at the stage of trimming and putting in the woodwork. The plastering is nearly complete. The boilers have been installed and the radiators are now being put in. The original contract called for the completion of the building by March 15, but such excellent progress has been made with the work by the contractor that it is fully expected the school will be ready for occupation by the first of the year.

The new school, which has eleven classrooms, nursery room, kindergarten and auditorium, will cost in the neighborhood of $180,000.

FICTION IS WARNED AGAINST IN INCOME TAX NOTICES

"Even the strongest champion of the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth will find himself unconsciously trailing off into fiction when he is asked to make a statement for a few hours with his income tax blank."

This reads a chiding notice, to those of elastic conscience, where all may see it is they enter the office of the assessment commissioner. According to the assessors, there is as much truth as wit in the notice.

ELEMENTARY ENGLISH CLASS IS SUGGESTED

M. Lerner's Plan Will Be Talked at Meeting of the Education Board.

The board of education is today in receipt of a communication from M. Lerner, of the Lerner Coal Company, requesting the formation of night classes in elementary English for foreigners in the city anxious to learn something of the morals and ethics of Canadian citizenship.

Mr. Lerner's request will not come before the board until its next regular meeting, which will be held on Oct. 3. Then, should the board decide to accede to the request, the matter will probably be referred to No. 3 committee of the board to make the necessary arrangements for the classes to be held at the technical school or else at central college.

SCHOOL BEING CHANGED INTO NURSES' HOME

When the major alterations are being effected, including temporary partitions and additional plumbing. The trust has been given the privilege of removing all temporary equipment at the expiration of the lease.

The board of education could not see its way clear to enter into the arrangement with the trust with regard to the lease being extended beyond a period of two years. Possession of the building was given to the hospital trust on September 1, since which date the alterations have been proceeding with marked rapidity.

It is understood that accommodation is being provided for 35 night nurses in the renovated building.

EIGHT HUNDRED ARE ENROLLED AT "TECH"

Accommodation Problem Arises as Figures Jump Over Previous Year.

Principal H. B. Beal, of the London technical school, reports that the school has reached full term with an enrollment reaching fully 800 students. Such an enrollment exceeds by 200 pupils all past attendance figures.

Principal Beal further intimates that he and his staff are busily engaged in organizing the various classes and in getting the new timetable in smooth running order.

While the principal is, of course, greatly pleased with the record attendance, his staff is not so sure, where they are going to put them all, gives a glimpse into the accommodation problem already arising at the technical school.

ENTERTAINERS FIND "Y" POOR PLACE FOR ACT

The latest stunt to be staged at the Y. M. C. A. was a versatile musical act put on by two travelling artists yesterday afternoon. The musicians were somewhat under the influence of hop and man, and were getting down in the basement of the "Y" and there produced a flute. The secretary in charge decided that the players and their music were not welcome and they were asked to leave.

Their adventures were not at an end for they indulged in a friendly little scrap outside the public library and a good-natured policeman happened to entertain them with funny stories until the wagon arrived. This morning they were said to be progressing favorably toward the end of a ten-day sentence.

Dr. Juno C. Johnston Arrested in New York by Secret Service Agents.

ELABORATE PLOT

Canadian Veteran and X-Ray Expert Was Decorated by King George.

New York, Sept. 17.—In arresting two members of what United States secret service agents termed the biggest plot in years to flood the country with counterfeit $20 federal reserve bank notes, the authorities believe they have rounded up the last of a criminal gang which really has a master mind, they say, is Dr. Juno C. Johnston, of 4 Belmont street, New Haven, Conn., who, with his brother-in-law, Otto Elster, was arrested Monday evening at the Pennsylvania station, Manhattan, as they were about to leave for Miami, Florida.

Dr. Johnston, according to federal agents, was not only the head of this extraordinary band of counterfeiters, but he had distinguished himself unusually in the honest walks of life. During the world war he had served with distinction in the famous "Princess Pat" regiment of the Canadian army. For meritorious service he was decorated three times, once by King George. He specialized as an X-ray expert. Surviving in the war he was placed in charge of the X-ray department of a hospital, and diagnosed more than 5,000 cases brought from the fields of battle.

Dr. Johnston is described by Joseph A. Palma, principal operative in charge of the secret service here, as the organizer of the band, $1 bills and then having them raised to $20 denominations. It is alleged he used his knowledge of chemistry in this process.

Dr. Johnston was held in $10,000 bail, and Elster in $5,000 for hearing October 1 by United States Commissioner Rasmussen in Brooklyn today. They are charged with conspiring to make counterfeit $20 bills.

It was also established, according to the federal authorities, that Dr. Johnston was the owner of the converted submarine chaser Madeline, long sought for alleged rum running. The boat was recently captured at Freeport, L. I., by prohibition agents.

The recommendation was made to the board to have metal-cased doors placed on the outside of the new Empress School in order to protect the doors specified in the contract, since information to hand indicated that the oaken doors failed to prove satisfactory when subjected to the tests of the higher grades of fire.

Inspector Greer introduced the question of purchasing for the new Empress School for ten or eleven classrooms, household science and manual training rooms, kindergarten, nurses' room and chairs for the auditorium, the cost of which would approximate $10,000. Some discussion followed as to whether or not it would be necessary to purchase new seats for all the rooms, but old seats might be repaired from amongst the large number of seats on hand for the junior grades, making necessary only the purchase of chairs for the auditorium. Inspector Greer is to consult with other officials along this line and report back to the committee, along with the report from the different types of furniture to be purchased.

No. 2 Committee of Board of Education Recommends Buying Land.

LEASE BUILDING

Little else than routine business occupied the attention of No. 2 committee of the board of education yesterday afternoon. In the absence of the chairman, S. F. Lawerson, who returns within the next few days from a trip to Europe, Trustee A. N. Udy presided. Mrs. J. I. A. Hunt and Rev. R. D. Mess were the other trustees present to make up the required number for a quorum before business could be transacted.

The request of Professor Morrow on behalf of the University of Western Ontario, for a classroom in one of the schools in which to conduct evening classes in advertising and commercial law, was granted, the committee deciding that the necessary accommodation be provided in Central Collegiate. The question of the rental to be asked the university authorities was referred to No. 3 committee of the board.

The committee decided to recommend to the board the purchase from the city of certain lots on Tecumseh avenue necessary to round out property at present owned by the board adjoining Tecumseh avenue school in South London. The price asked for the city was $2,000, amounting to approximately $2.50 per foot frontage.

The secretary was instructed to have the board's solicitor draw up an agreement with the hospital trust in connection with the renting of the Colborne street school building for a period of two years for use as a nurses' home. The trust is given the privilege of removing any equipment now installed at the time of removing from the building.

The letter from R. O. Davis, offering to sell the board property owned by him adjoining the Simcoe street school, was ordered filed, the committee being of the opinion that sufficient playground area had already been secured for that particular school.

Council's Sanction Awaited In Proposed Baseball Diamond At Queen's Park

OFFICIALS SURVEY PARK PROSPECT

Baseball Diamond Proposal Only Awaits Sanction of Council.

MAYOR ENTHUSED

Work on a new baseball diamond at Queen's Park may be commenced immediately, if sanction of the city council is forthcoming at Monday's session. Mayor Wenize Chairman Ald. Jack Greer of No. 2 committee, and City Engineer Near this morning visited the park and made a survey of the prospects.

"Much of the work can be done this fall," the city engineer said at the inspection, "filling and leveling the field within the driving ring will be most of the work. The drainage is naturally good, as there are four or five feet of fine loose sand. It makes a bad surface for an athletic field, but it can be coated by heavy earth."

"We found that the ground now inside and outside the diamond, and the track, could be moved without a great deal of difficulty. I would propose moving the diamond property at the north end of the enclosure. They could be placed there permanently, and would not interfere in any way with the baseball field."

It is suggested that the diamond be built straight east from the center of the track. Though accurate measurements are not available, it is believed that the field will be found to be much larger than the enclosure at Tecumseh Park. The city engineer said that the field will be found to be much larger than the enclosure at Tecumseh Park. The city engineer said that the field will be found to be much larger than the enclosure at Tecumseh Park.

If work is started immediately there is a possibility that the seeding of the field can be completed so as to permit some growth before the frost sets in. Usually seeding is done during the first two weeks of September, but seeding even now might prove successful. With the infilled field, the seeding could be done in the fall, and the field would be in good shape when another playing season rolls round.

The delegation at Queen's Park this morning clambered over the seats in the grandstand and noticed the visibility at different points. They declared that the stand was well suited to watch baseball events, as all the spectators would be looking down on the play all the time. "It isn't going to be a million-dollar job," Mayor Wenize commented at noon. "The work can be done quite economically and much of it can be finished up this fall."

ANGLERS FROM LONDON MAKE RECORD CATCH

Fifty-Six Black Bass Taken From Long Point Bay For New Mark.

It was left to a party of Londoners, headed by the co-partner of Scotty MacPherson, to grab the best catch of black bass made off Long Point Bay this year.

The fishing experts left London at 2 o'clock Monday morning, and by 5 o'clock they were tearing away from the port of St. Williams in the launch of Skipper Bayley of Port Rowan.

The full quota of bass allowed by law, was yanked from the water, and 55 bass weighing for two to three pounds, rewarded the party. The fish were taken from the water, and 55 bass weighing for two to three pounds, rewarded the party. "I saw a fish in the water and thought it was a grasper and needed protection," he said. "I threw my net," explained Mr. Smith.

The fishermen, one by one, reported at Scotty MacPherson's barber shop to sell the marvelous catch, and that Scotty MacPherson who acted as convener of the party, was at the fisherman's picnic, in emerald green, with envy, according to members of the gang.

Those who took in the party were Ernie Maudsley, Bill Paynter, Harry Tozer, Thomas White, Alf Murdoch, Albert Pingley and just, but not least, Mr. Smith from Arkona.

GOVERNMENT PRESSES BOYS' WELFARE WORK

Premier Ferguson Explains Plans To Guelph Rotarians.

Special to The Advertiser. Guelph, Sept. 16.—Speaking before a gathering of 200 Rotarians at a dinner in the O.A.C. dining hall tonight following a big inter-city sports meet, Premier G. Howard Ferguson outlined the government's plan regarding the erection of a new institute in connection with the government farm at Bowmanville, for the promotion of boys' welfare work. The premier made a strong appeal to the Rotarians to co-operate in this worthy undertaking.

"Ontario spends $10,000,000 a year on the education of her children," stated the premier, "and don't you think that the handicapped fellows are entitled to have their share?" This is the view taken by the government, according to Mr. Ferguson. Plans for the institute were already prepared, tenders had been called for, and it is expected the work will be commenced almost immediately in order that the construction operations will assist in relieving the present unemployment situation, he asserted.

Freak Animal Leaps As Rabbit Resembles Cat

Special to The Advertiser. Guelph, Sept. 16.—In an animal with means of locomotion like a rabbit and a taste for milk like an ordinary house cat, George Greenaway, 32 Snodgrass street, has one of the greatest freaks that has ever come to light in this vicinity. His tabby cat, which differs from all the cats he has ever owned, gave birth to the freak last July. It lived and thrived despite its freakish anatomy. It has hind legs like an ordinary rabbit, and it hops over the ground in the same manner, but the front part of the animal is plain cat, jet black all over. It even has the short button tail of the hare.

COUNTY ROADS WELL GRAVELLED

Trucks Have Dumped 1,424 Cords in Past Six Months.

County trucks have dumped no less than 1,424 cords of gravel on Middlesex County roads from May 5 to September 16, according to Charles Talbot, county engineer.

"Each of the four trucks have been driven 3,518 miles," Mr. Talbot stated. "They have each made 506 trips, averaging 17.62 miles, and hauled 90 cubic feet of gravel to a load."

Mr. Talbot explained that five times that amount of gravel had been laid on county roads this year, the balance being placed by teamsters who hauled gravel by horse.

Questioned as to the cheapest method of laying gravel, the county engineer replied that trucks were allowing truck depreciation at 20 per cent, the cost by teams was 10 per cent more. Cost by team was 28 cents a cord, while by truck it was 26 cents.

"We have had two of our trucks for five years and they are as serviceable as ever," said the engineer. "This means that we pay off our entire depreciation this year, and the cost of laying gravel from those two trucks will now figure at about 13 cents a yard mile, which is just half of that by teams."

"It is impossible to lay all gravel by trucks, as there are a number of pits that the trucks could not work in."

CO-OPERATION SUGGESTED IN TAXES

Official Recognition Shown First Europeans To Visit Lake Erie.

HISTORY IS GIVEN

Quebec Senator Pays Tribute of Gratitude To Great Britain.

Special to The Advertiser. Simcoe, Sept. 16.—"It is a pleasure duty to unveil this memorial, the Canadian government official recognition of the wintering site of the French priests, Dollier, Decasson and Galline on their famous expedition in 1669-1670," were the concluding words of an interesting address by Dr. J. H. Coyne of St. Thomas, an illustrious, before more than 200 people, who had gathered on the banks of the river Lynn near Port Dover this afternoon.

The occasion was the unveiling of the memorial cairn erected by the Historic Sites and Monuments Board of Canada, the inscription plate on which reads: "In 1669-1670, wintered Dollier and Galline with seven other Frenchmen, the first Europeans known to have ascended the Great Lakes to Sault Ste. Marie. The eastern mounds are remains of their hut which was at one time residence, chapel and fort. Site was donated by O. C. and Bessie Ansley."

Relations History. "In the vicinity of the cairn are preserved distinct traces of the walls of the hut referred to by the inscription plate. The definite discovery of this historic site Dr. Coyne traced for the benefit of his audience."

In 1890, Dr. Coyne was able to state definitely that the place was at Port Dover, and in 1895, after a careful study of the time-worn records in maps, he decided that the junction of the River Lynn and Black Creek was the proper site. In 1898 the late H. B. Stringer of Port Dover furnished what was accepted as authentic proof that the spot where the cairn now stands was the location of the site.

In 1900 the legitimacy of this site was established beyond doubt. In 1909, Francis Stringer of Port Dover supplied convincing evidence of a fireplace that had stood within the walls of that pioneer hut. Thomas Jackson found one of the axes used by the pioneers.

As the large Union Jack was removed from the face of the stone, "O, Canada," was sung.

The only other speaker was Senator Beaubien of Montreal, who was introduced by his friend, Senator Alex McCall of Simcoe. In eloquence he pictured this part of Ontario as the earthly paradise of Canada. He paid glowing tribute to the men of bronze and steel who laid the foundation of civilization here.

Solemn Moment. "To me," he asserted, "this is a solemn moment. One more milestone has been erected in the pathway followed by the nation. I stand with two horizons in view, one behind us, of sacrifice unto death, and the second, the horizon of the future. Behind us are the footsteps of men of valor."

"Should we not now," demanded Senator Beaubien, "be chartered the milestones of the past to reach Canada's glorious destiny? Our forefathers have thrown down the gauntlet to all posterity to come, and the only way to win in a broader way in the form of schools, colleges and hospitals which have been built."

The speaker was filled with a sense of gratitude to Great Britain for the full share of liberty and justice she had granted Canada, and was equally proud of the fact that twice in Canadian history the French-Canadian refused to entertain foreign proposals to abandon its British allegiance.

Cook, president of the Norfolk Historical Society, had charge of the gathering. Other notable present were James Mitchell, president of the Archives and W. H. Breithaupt, president of the Ontario Historical Society.

Material Saves Himself. Thomas F. McEue, mate, saved himself by diving into a hatch. He thought the ship was sinking, and he was sure all hands were lost. Richard Godard, Carnegie Institute scientist, at the wheel of the ship, after the accident, saved himself by clinging to the wheel and binnacle. The gully was flooded and there was no chance to prepare for the accident. Capt. MacMillan, battered and drenched by the waves time and again, spent most of the night on deck, waiting for the ship to be hoisted. She had an eleven-ton cement overlay on the bottom, eight tons of crushed rock for ballast and a sharp bilge, so it is almost impossible to capsize her. This is believed to have saved her. MacMillan said it was by far the roughest experience of the trip.

Arrives at Sydney. Donald H. Mix, the young radio expert, found the Wiscasset Maine amateur station after him at two in the morning when the waves were standing high in his position. He continued to work Wiscasset. The wireless outfit is in the forecast where it gets the full pitch. Mix, who is a young sailor, is a member of the Canadian Red Cross, and he has been around the bunk for support and legs around the ship. MISSION CIRCLE PLANS BIG DRIVE

Annual Membership Crusade Arranged at Askin Street Church.

MRS. CHILDS PRESIDES

Plans for the annual membership crusade to be held on Tuesday, October 2, were made at last night's meeting of the Askin Street Mission Circle held in the junior schoolroom of the church. This crusade for new members and funds is held annually and is one of the biggest events of the year. Mrs. Ernest Moore will be convener of the refreshments, Miss Mabel Gregory of the decorations, while the members of the executive will have charge of the program.

At last night's meeting it was decided that the life members of the circle should undertake as their special work this year, the support of a child for a year in one of the mission homes in the Canadian west. Decision was also made to hold the meetings of the circle in the church schoolroom in future. Owing to the increased attendance it has become impossible to meet at the members' homes.

The president, Mrs. J. H. Childs, presided over a very interesting program which included the first of a series of lessons arranged by the president and given by Mrs. R. J. Garbutt. A letter from Miss Isabel Govenlock, Japan, was read, telling of her work there and the difficult conditions under which it was carried on at the present time. Mrs. Walter Biggs gave an interesting article on the life of Mr. Liu, who recently spoke in London. Miss Robertson told of the experience of a worker in one of the Canadian missions.

Miss Howson outlined the temperance situation, making special reference to conditions in Manitoba and urging the members of the circle to do their share in connection with the coming plebiscite campaign. Miss Carrie Fitchett gave a delightful vocal solo after which the vacation offering was taken. Refreshments were served with the girls on the program committee acting as hostesses.

COUNCIL TAKES FIRST MOVE TOWARD BUILDING DIAMOND IN TRACK OVAL AT PARK

Alderman Greer, Mayor Wenige and Engineer Near To Make Survey.

WILL COST $5,000

Paving of Wellington Street South Impossible This Year.

Representatives of No. 2 committee of the city council will today visit Queen's Park with a view to making an estimate of costs on a new baseball diamond there. Chairman Ald. Greer, Mayor Wenige and City Engineer W. P. Near have been named to visit the park and make an early investigation. The city fathers at last evening's session appeared to favor the work to alleviate unemployment and also to give baseball teams of the city more accommodation.

Mayor Wenige, who brought up the matter, suggested that $2,000 could cover the cost of the new diamond. Ald. Towse suggested $4,000, and Chairman Greer said that it might run anywhere from $5,000 to $7,000. Engineer Near was not prepared to estimate the cost, as it was found that the platform in front of the grandstand and a number of poles would have to be removed, if filling had to be purchased to level the field the cost would run up considerably, Mr. Near said.

Manager Jack Beatty of the London M.O. team had been looking over the field, the mayor pointed out. Mr. Beatty thought the ground could be used to good advantage and that the stand would be useful. Chairman Greer thought that if the new diamond was going to cost from five to seven thousand dollars, then that money might just as well be handed over to the playgrounds committee and let that body develop the park. There was no decision made as to how the park would be operated by the board of works developed the diamond, with the playgrounds committee and the Fair Board still having certain jurisdiction.

Mayor Wenige laughed at Ald. Towse's suggestion that it would take 20 men three months to put the park in shape. His worship wanted to put workmen on park renovations right away, doing the work as day labor, and securing an estimate of the cost later.

City fathers wrestled for a few moments with the matter of non-resident employees of the works department. It was reported that three employees out of 500 did not live within the city limits. On motion by the mayor it was decided to recommend to the council that these be given six months to move into the city or stand in peril of surrendering their positions to local residents.

"Why, if a man's efficient, let's go to Vancouver for him," pleaded Ald. Towse. "What does it matter where they live?"

"Well, if you do that you can go to Lucan next year for a mayor," came the threat of Mr. Wenige. "We'd get a better mayor if we did," chided Ald. Towse.

"That would keep you 'Lucan' punned the chief magistrate, most painfully.

Delegates from Wellington road, Charles K. Edwards and A. Simms, were present to petition for an early start on payment of a half-mile section from the river south. The city engineer was confident that no further preparation for the payment could be accomplished this year. He realized that the thoroughfare was badly in need of paving, but work started now would have to wait all over again in the spring.

This was due to the fact partly that 114 cross trenches for drainage had not yet had time to settle. Members of the committee upheld the engineer's advice, though they too expressed regret that the work could

Nothing was done concerning a portion of Wellington street citizens for a cross street at the middle of the block where a boulevard is situated between Grey and Simcoe streets.

Ald. Bottill urged that work be started on a breakwater between Oxford street and the C.P.R. bridge. The engineer will get a report on the work.

Engineer Near will also secure a price on the paving of the market square and will take up the matter with business houses fronting on the square.

HISTORY OF FORD SHOWN ON SCREEN

Large Crowd Sees Picture On Market Square—Educational Features.

Interspersed with several reels of pictures of current interest, the film giving the history of the Ford Motor Company was screened by the Mid-dlesex Motors Company before a delighted audience on the Market Square last night.

The night was ideal, and the big crowd of motor enthusiasts and movie fans sat in closely-packed cars or stood in a mass before the screen. The crowd cheered the great "Henry" as he brought out his first "livver," which was to make him one of the world's most-talked men and his product a truly universal machine.

The show started with a reel showing intrepid naturalists collecting alligator eggs in a tropic stream. There were thrills when the hunters grappled with huge alligators in the water, and they cheered their appreciation.

Other features were horse-racing, cowboy stunts and whaling expeditions. The pictures were remarkably clear, and the movie enjoyed by the many youngsters, who voiced their approval.

The story of the Ford Motor Company was told in several sections. The amount of money invested in Canada, $20,000,000, was flashed on the screen. Then the amount of money which went into the big plant to turn out the popular car.

Everywhere there was action the younger folks cheered. When the Ford cars were shown being assembled in the matter of seconds, and scooted away to the testing grounds, the children cheered. When the cars were driven over bumps and walls for testing it touched their funny-bones.

Every department in the huge automobile plant was shown: the casting of parts; the woodworking; the shipping, in short everything in connection with the making of another Ford ready for the road.

CONCILIATION BOARD GRANTED BY OTTAWA

Canadian Press Representative Named, But Telegraphers Fail To Act.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, Sept. 16.—A well-attended meeting of the Ontario Daily Newspaper Publishers, members of the Canadian Press, was held here this afternoon to consider the situation created last week by the strike of the company's telegraph operators throughout the country.

The president, E. Norman Smith, of the Ottawa Journal, explained that the company had applied for a board of conciliation, naming its representative thereon, and that the department of labor at Ottawa had authorized such a board and was awaiting the nomination by the telegraphers' union of a representative before completing it.

The meeting unanimously endorsed the policy hitherto adopted by the management, and listened to an explanation of the plan developed for carrying on the important work of the company. A similar meeting of Quebec members will be held in Montreal tomorrow, and the Western Canada members in Winnipeg next Sunday.

DOMINION MAY FLOAT BIG LOAN IN NEW YORK

Will Place Half of $200,000,000 Issue On American Market.

New York, Sept. 16.—Negotiations between the Canadian government and New York bankers for placing a portion of the Canadian loan in this market were reported under way today to meet requirements, $200,000,000 for maturing Victory bonds and treasury bills. It was indicated that Canada would follow the advice of New York bankers in floating a long-term internal loan of $100,000,000 and selling an equal amount of short-term securities on this market.

Spirited financing was said to have developed between two banking groups, one headed by J. P. Morgan & Company and the other by the Chase Securities Corporation. The Morgan firm was understood to have advised the Dominion representative on the general set-up of the loan, recommending certain provisions to insure the stability of the exchange.

The $100,000,000 Canadian loan sold here in 1922 was underwritten by a banking syndicate headed by J. P. Morgan & Co. When the Dominion government issued its $50,000,000 re-funding bond issue last year, however, the sale was handled through Dillon, Read & Co.

NEW C. N. MOGUL LARGER THAN THE FAMOUS "6000"

Toronto, Sept. 15.—The first of the new Santa Fe type engines, which are to be used in freight transfer work in the Toronto terminals, has been delivered to the C. N. R. and is on exhibition here. The engines of this type are the largest in Canada, being some three feet longer than the monsters of the "6000" class recently put into passenger service on the Ontario line of the C. N. R.

Whereas, however, the latter were built with an eye to speed as well as power, the new freight locomotives are designed with the power factor predominant, and they are credited with the ability to move 150 loaded freight cars on a level track. They will be used mainly in transfer work between the Mimico and Danforth yards in Toronto.

RAIL RATES FIGHT WILL OPEN TODAY

Complaints From All Parts of Canada Will Be Considered.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, Sept. 16.—What may develop into a lengthy battle over railway freight rates will open here tomorrow, when complaints of discrimination resulting from the restoration of the Crow's Nest Pass agreement are presented before a board of railway commissioners of Canada from east and west, as well as from parts of Ontario, charges of discrimination growing out of the agreement which came into existence 27 years ago.

The Crow's Nest Pass agreement was entered into by the Canadian government and the Canadian Pacific Railway in 1897. It provided for the payment of a subsidy to the railway in return for which the latter undertook to grant rate reduction on certain classes of freight moving from east to west.

BANK PROSECUTOR ADDS TO EVIDENCE

Special Witness Called As Case Against O. G. Smith Continues.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, Sept. 16.—D. L. McCarthy, K.C., special prosecutor in the trial of officials and directors of the Home Bank on charges of making false returns to the government, continued today, the piling up of evidence bearing on methods alleged to be improper, in vogue in the bank, when the case against Ocean G. Smith, first of the eight accused, was continued before Judge Coatsworth.

Gordon M. Shaver, counsel for Smith, endeavored to stem the flow of detail by objecting to the calling of Albert R. Nash of the firm of Clarkson, Gordon & Dilworth, who had made an examination of the bank's books. Mr. McCarthy intimated that he wanted Mr. Nash's opinion as to whether statements concerning the exchange department of the bank were true.

Mr. Shaver argued that this would be opinion evidence, but the court took the view that Mr. Nash would deal entirely with facts.

In reply to Mr. Shaver's further protest, Judge Coatsworth said: "The crown says Mr. Smith, being an accountant of the bank at head office, had certain duties and responsibilities resting upon him with regard to these statements and otherwise, that these statements signed by him are false in certain particulars. They have to prove, first, his duty; second, that false statements have been put in, and third, they have to connect him with these statements and show him responsible. Mr. Nash is here to lay before the court what he has found. If I don't get the evidence I cannot decide whether the statements are false or true."

Mr. Nash next gave evidence showing that the exchange department had suffered losses in certain transactions. He was still on the stand when the supreme court adjourned.

START CASTING
FOR CAMEO GIRL

Many of London's Society Set Will Appear on Grand Opera House Stage.

When "The Cameo Girl," a clever musical comedy, is presented at the Grand Theatre on October 6, 7 and 8, under the auspices of the Municipal Chapter, I. O. D. E., by no means all of London's society set will be found in the boxes and in the orchestra seats. When the curtain rises, a large number will be discovered in dance and song numbers on the stage itself. For although the decision to produce "The Cameo Girl" was not finally decided until Monday of this week, the talent committee, of which Mrs. Gordon Hunt is convener, has been busy, and already a number of those who will take part have been chosen. Mrs. E. H. Johnston, the general convener of the production, has also been working energetically in this direction, and it will not be long before the huge cast of two hundred people will have been selected.

A Few Already Chosen.

Among those who have already consented to take part in the production, which begins rehearsals on Monday next, are Miss Marion Beck, daughter of Sir Adam Beck; her guest, Lady Bridget King Tennison of Ireland; Mrs. Eric Reid, wife of Col. Eric Reid; Miss Shirley Johnston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Johnston; Miss Louise and Miss Agnes Duffield; Mrs. James Baxter; Miss Babbie Moore, daughter of the late Dr. Moore; Miss Doris Belton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Belton; Mrs. Stewart V. Cook, wife of Captain S. V. Cook, and Miss Eula White, daughter of Mr. Arthur White.

For Soldiers' Memorial.

"The Cameo Girl" is being given in order to raise money towards the I. O. D. E. National Educational War Memorial Fund, a fund instituted by the National Chapter of the I. O. D. E. to give deceased soldiers' children an opportunity of attending school and college. Many of these boys and girls would have received the best that educational institutions could offer had their fathers not been killed overseas. And it is that which the I. O. D. E. is trying to make up to them. With this fund established, at least some of these boys and girls will receive an education. And the united London chapters want to do their share in helping raise the money.

"The Cameo Girl" is to be one of the biggest and most difficult productions of its kind ever undertaken in London. A special director is being brought to the city, and the best talent possible secured. The opening night, October 6, will probably be a military night. The committee in charge will ask permission of the commanding officer of the district to make it such. And if such permission is granted, the uniforms will be seen throughout the theatre.

That was the beginning of a friendship between Sir Oliver and this man, whose name was Yusuf-ben-Moktar. The Moslem conceived that in Sir Oliver he saw one upon whom the grace of Allah had descended, one who was ripe to receive the Prophet's message. Yusuf was devout, and he applied himself to the conversion of his fellow-slave. Sir Oliver listened to him, however, with indifference. Having discarded one creed, he would need a deal of satisfying on the score of another before he adopted it, and it seemed to him that all the glorious things urged by Yusuf in praise of Islam he had heard before in praise of Christianity. But he kept his counsel on that score, and meanwhile his intercourse with the Moslem, who had shown such teaching him the lingua franca, so that at the end of six months he found himself speaking it like a Mauretanian. The Moslem, on the other hand, was more than the ordinary seasoning of Arabic.

It was toward the end of that six months that the event took place which was to restore Sir Oliver to liberty. In the meanwhile those limbs of his which had ever been vigorous beyond the common wont had acquired an elephantine strength. It was ever thus at the oar. Either you died under the strain, or your sinews and sinews grew to be equal to their relentless task. Sir Oliver, in those six months, was become a man of steel and iron, impervious to fatigue, superhuman almost in his endurance.

They were returning home from a trip to Genoa when, as they were standing off Minorca in the Balearic Isles, they were surprised by a fleet of four Moslem galleys which came shooting around a promontory to surround and engage them.

Aboard the Spanish vessel there broke a terrible cry of "Asad-ed-Din," the name of the most redoubtable Moslem corsair since the Italian renegade Ochoali—the Ali Pasha who had died at Lepanto. Trumpets blared and drums beat on the poop, and the Spaniards in motion and corsair, armed with calivers and pikes, stood to defend their liberty. The gunners sprang to the culverins.

But fire had to be kindled and kindled in the confusion much time was lost—so much that not a single cannon shot was fired before the grapping irons of the first galley clanked upon the Spaniard's bulwarks. The shock of the impact was terrific. The armored prow of the Moslem galley—Asad-ed-Din's—struck the Spaniard's bulwark, and the latter was smashed fifteen of the oars as if they had been so many withered twigs.

There was a terrific crash, followed by such piteous groans as the damned in hell may emit. Fully two score of them had been struck by the shaft of their oars as these whirled back against them. Some had been killed outright; others lay limp and crushed, some with broken backs, others with shattered limbs and ribs.

Sir Oliver would assuredly have been of these but for the warning, advice, and example of Yusuf, who was well versed in the tactics of the sea, and who foresaw clearly what must happen. He thrust the oar upward and forward as far as it would go, compelling the others at his elbow to accompany his movement. Then he slipped down upon his knees, released his hold of the timber, and crouched down until his shoulders were on a level with the bench.

He had shouted to Sir Oliver to follow his example, and Sir Oliver, without even knowing what the maneuver should portend, but gauging its importance from the other's urgency of tone, promptly obeyed. The oar was struck an instant later, and ere it snapped off it had been back, braining one of the slaves at the bench and mortally injuring the others, but passing clean over the heads of Sir Oliver and Yusuf. A moment later the bodies of the oarsmen of the bench immediately in front were flung back atop of them with yells and curses.

When Sir Oliver staggered to his feet he found the battle joined. The Spaniards had fired a volley from their calivers and a dense cloud of smoke hung above the bows. Through this surged now the corsairs, led by a tall, lean, elderly man with a flowing white beard and a swarthy eagle face. A crescent of emerald flashed from his snowy turban; above it rose the peak of a steel cap, and his body was cased in chain mail. He swung a great scimitar, before which the Spaniards' armor was like wheat to the reaper's sickle. He fought like ten men, and to support him poured a never-ending stream of Moslems to the cry of "Din! Allah, Y'Allah!"

Back and yet back went the Spaniards before that irresistible onslaught. Sir Oliver found Yusuf struggling in vain to rid himself of his chain, and went to his assistance. He stooped, seized it in both hands, set his feet against the bench, gave it all his strength, and tore the staple from the wood. Yusuf was free, save, of course, that a length of heavy chain was dangling from his left ankle. In his turn he did like service to Sir Oliver, though not quite as speedily, for strong man though he was, either his strength was not equal to the Cornishman's or else the latter's staple had been driven into sounder timber. In the end, however, it yielded, and Sir Oliver, too, was free. Then he set the foot that was hampered by the chain upon the bench, and with the staple that still hung from the end of it prised open the link that attached it to his ankle.

That done, he took his revenge, crying "Din!" as loudly as any of the Moslem boarders, he flung himself upon the rear of the Spaniards brandishing his chain. In his hands it became a terrific weapon. He used it as a scourge, lashing it to right and left of him, splitting a head and crushing there a face, until he had backed a way clear through the chain press, which, bewildered by his sudden rear attack, made but little attempt to retaliate upon the escaped galley slave.

After him, whirling the remaining ten feet of the broken oar, came Yusuf. Sir Oliver confessed afterward to knowing very little of what happened in those moments. He came to a full possession of his senses to find the fight at an end, a cloud of turbaned corsairs standing guard over a huddle of Spaniards, others breaking open the cabin and dragging thence the chests that it contained, others again armed with chisels and mallets passing along the benches liberating the surviving slaves, of whom the great majority were children of Islam.

Sir Oliver found himself face to face with the white-bearded leader of the corsairs, who was leaning upon his scimitar and regarding him with eyes at once amused and amazed. Full possession of his senses to find he was splashed from head to foot with blood, and in his right hand he still clutched that yard of iron links with which him and Yusuf, such ghastly execution Yusuf was standing at the corsair leader's elbow speaking rapidly.

"By Allah, was ever such a lusty fighter seen!" cried the latter. "The strength of the Prophet is within him thus to smite the unbelieving pigs!"

Oliver grinned savagely. "I was returning them some of their whip lashes—with interest," said he.

And those were the circumstances under which he came to meet the formidable Asad-ed-Din, Basha of Algiers; those the first words that passed between them.

Anton, when aboard Asad's own galley he was being carried to Barbary, he was washed and his head shaved all but the forelock, by which the Prophet should lift him up to Heaven when his earthly destiny should come to be fulfilled. He made no protest. They washed and fed him and gave him a seat; and so that he did these things to him they might do what else they pleased. At last, arrayed in flowing garments that were strange to him, and with turban wound around his head, he was conducted to the poop, where Asad sat with Yusuf under an awning, and he came to understand that it was in compliance with the orders of Yusuf that he had been treated as if he were a True Believer.

Yusuf-ben-Moktar was discovered as a person of great consequence, the nephew of Asad-ed-Din, and a favorite with that Exalted of Allah the Sublime Portal himself, a man whose capture by Christians had been a thing of profound regret. Accordingly his delivery from the thralldom was a matter for rejoicing. Being delivered, he bestowed him of his own accord the greatest courtesy, for in all this world there was nothing the old corsair loved so much as a fighter, and in all his days, he vowed, never had he seen the like of that stalwart galley slave, never the like of his performance with that murderous chain. Yusuf had informed him that the man was ripe for the Prophet's plucking, that the grace of Allah was upon him, and in spirit already he must be accounted a saint.

When Sir Oliver, washed, perfumed, and arrayed in white caftan and turban, which gave him the air of being even taller than he was, came into the presence of Asad-ed-Din, he was conveyed to him that if he would enter the ranks of the Faithful, of the Prophet's House, and devote the strength and courage with which Allah the One had endowed him to the upholding of the True Faith and to the chastening of the enemies of Islam, great honor, wealth and dignity were in store for him.

WORTLEY ROAD CLUB
OPENS SEASON'S WORK

Make Arrangements For Bazaar and Candy Shower in Near Future.

An enthusiastic meeting of the Wortley Road Mothers' Club, held last evening, opened the club work for this season. Dr. E. G. Davis was an interesting speaker, giving a talk on golf, and during the business session, Mrs. E. Rogers was appointed second vice-president.

Arrangements were made for a bazaar to be held later in the fall, and a candy shower in aid of the affair will take place at the home of Mrs. C. W. Bright, Ridout street, Sept. 24. A towel shower will also be held Oct. 1 at the home of Mrs. F. W. Chambers, Tecumseh avenue. Plans were discussed for a rummage sale, to be held later in the season.

Regret was expressed by the club on learning of the illness of the honorary president, Mrs. W. F. Lowe. An enjoyable program was presented, including solos by Miss Mary Wildgust, accompanied by Mr. C. E. Percy; piano selections by Miss Olive Eggett, and readings by Miss Verna Dobbyn. The meeting, which was concluded by a social half-hour, was presided over by Mrs. R. W. Wray.

The members of the tuning department added greatly to the enjoyment of the evening by their witty numbers. Mr. Brown, who recently came to the city from Toronto, gave a hearty vote of thanks to the members of the staff for their co-operation. A vote of thanks was also given by Mr. A. F. Mackenzie to his assistants at the Fair, Messrs. W. McKinnon and W. Riddell, and the entire staff. Mr. Gorley, assistant manager, thanked the hostess and her assistant, Mrs. A. W. Wellman, at the close of the evening.

The Wise Business Man Is the Modern Husband Dorothy Dix Shows How He Checks His Brains at the Office

If Men Would Give One-Tenth of the Gumption and Intelligence to Managing Their Wives That They Put Into Running Their Offices, They Would Soon Become Millionaires in Happiness.

Why do so many intelligent men take leave of all of their good, hard horse sense when they come to dealing with their wives?

Why does the man who controls an army, or thousands of horny-handed workmen, find himself helpless to manage one small woman?

Why can't the efficiency expert who can bring a factory up to its highest point of production, ever get a meal on time in his own house?

Why do men, who bring reason and philosophy to the solution of every other problem, just throw up their hands and quit without ever making any honest effort to find their way out of their domestic muddle?

This is the conundrum of the ages whose riddle nobody has unriddled. Nobody has ever been able to explain how a man can be a Solomon abroad and a fool at home; how he can be far-seeing in the business or professional world, and blind to everything in the family circle. But so it is.

If the average husband displayed as little gumption in store or office as he does in his own home, he would never get above being an errand boy. If he used as little tact and diplomacy in handling other people as he does in handling his wife, he wouldn't have a single customer or client left. If he bungled his business affairs as he does his domestic affairs, he would land in the bankruptcy court.

The chief reason that marriage is a failure is because there is seldom more than one lobe of a man's brain married. He gives his heart to his wife. He bestows his name upon her, and endows her with all his worldly goods, except his gray matter. Yet that is the thing that is most needed in dealing with a woman, and in making marriage a success.

When a man makes a mistake in business he doesn't chuck the whole thing into the discard. He sets to work to correct his error. When a man makes a bad bargain he doesn't quit cold. He sharpens his wits and tries to turn what looks like a loss into a profit.

But when a man makes a mistake in matrimony he throws up his hands and says, "Oh, damn," or "Kismet," or whatever phrase for the hopeless and inevitable is, and he either beats it to Reno or shuts his teeth, and bows his head and settles down to endure his misery.

It does not seem to occur to him that there are very few situations so bad that they cannot be changed by a little deft manipulation, and that practically any bride can be taught to be a good wife if her husband will spend as much time and trouble in training her as he would in training a green salesman.

The difficulty with men is that they are too optimistic before marriage, and too pessimistic afterward. When one marries he thinks he is getting a wife who will not only have the disposition of an angel, but the culinary ability of a chef and the financial sagacity of a money lender.

And when he finds out that what he has married is a petted and pampered child who has never been taught to control herself, or how to do anything useful, he proceeds to make a bad matter worse by visiting his chagrin and disappointment on his wife.

He doesn't say: "This girl has got good qualities in her, or else I wouldn't have fallen in love with her, so I will help her develop them." He doesn't say: "She's young, and fond of me, and anxious to please me, so I will teach her how to be the sort of a wife I need." No. He berates her faults, and is forever throwing her mistakes and weaknesses in her face, which naturally makes her get her back up, and fight back like a cat.

Every man wants to come home at night to a comfortable home and a well-cooked dinner, but did you ever hear of a man who married a girl who didn't know how to cook sending her to a domestic science school, or studying cookbooks with her and encouraging her in every way to learn how to cook? Never. Instead a man will growl over his food and say so many mean and insulting things to his wife about what a lousy housekeeper she is that she not only doesn't care whether the food is good or bad, but nothing but the grace of God keeps her from putting Rough on Rats in the coffee.

Yet that very same man, who never goes intelligently about educating his wife in the fine art of cooking, would send a bright clerk to a commercial school to take an additional course in stenography or bookkeeping. And he would appreciate that the way to get better service out of employees is to encourage them, not discourage them.

Every man knows that his financial success depends largely on his wife's wisdom in spending money, yet how many men teach their brides how to budget their household expenses? How many men talk to their wives about their business and make them their real financial partners, and impress upon them that they really decide the family fortune?

Not many men do this, and those that do have thrifty wives. The balance row over the bills and work themselves to death paying for extravagances that they could have prevented.

If men would give one-tenth of the intelligence to managing their wives that they do to their business, they would become millionaires in happiness. But they don't do it. They think any fool can get along with a woman, and some of them are so dull and stupid that they never even find out that the salt spreader is mightier than the hammer in the family circle.

Helpful Advice to Overworked Women

MRS. C. E. CHAPMAN
3820 ELM ST., NEW ALBANY, IND.

DAY in and day out, week in and week out the tired, over-worked housewife and mother toils on, sweeping, dusting, cooking, cleaning and mending. Is it any wonder that after a time a weakness, such as Mrs. Chapman had, develops and the wife and mother pays a toll in physical weakness and pain for her efforts of love, the natural result of overwork?

Women who find themselves afflicted with weakness, pain, headaches, backache, nervousness, irritability and melancholia will be interested in Mrs. Chapman's letter, and should realize that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is especially adapted to overcome such conditions.

Mrs. Chapman's Letter Reads as Follows:

New Albany, Ind.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a weakness which many women have from over work, and from which I suffered for quite a while. I wasn't fit to do my work and my sister advised me to take this medicine. After the first few days the pains were not so severe as they had been and after taking a few bottles I am not bothered any more. I am doing my housework every day and highly recommend the Vegetable Compound to any woman suffering from female trouble. Only yesterday a friend called me on the phone and knowing what it did for me, she wanted to know what to ask for at the drug store, as she meant to give it a trial."—Mrs. C. E. CHAPMAN, 3820 Elm Street, New Albany, Indiana.

Another Case of Nervous Breakdown

Maisonneuve, Montreal.—"I was always feeling tired and heavy, with a weakness of the back and pains in my right side, and I had a nervous breakdown. A friend was taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she gave me half a bottle to try. It did me so much good that I have been taking it ever since whenever I feel the need. I often go a month or so without taking it, but when I feel the least headache, or any other bad feeling, I just make for that bottle. I recommend it for any female trouble, and very few of my friends are without it in their homes."—Mrs. J. CARTMILL, 301 Third Avenue, Maisonneuve, Montreal, Quebec.

Browser and Farmer Brown's Boy Hunt Bobby Coon, Who Is Very Worried

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Now it wasn't a great while before Farmer Brown discovered that some one was stealing, tender, young ears of corn in his cornfield and doing a lot of damage. He didn't begrudge a few ears of corn, but the thief wasn't satisfied with a few ears. He was up to a great many by taking a bite or two from an ear and then leaving it. Then, too, he had broken down many stalks.

One good look at the damage satisfied Farmer Brown that he knew who the thief was. "A Coon has done this," he declared. "We can't let this go on. That fellow will have to be taught a lesson."

Now Farmer Brown's boy didn't doubt at all that his father was right. He knew Bobby Coon's love of corn in the milk. Every year Bobby had visited the cornfield and had been in mischief in just the same way. He didn't want to harm Bobby, but he decided that Bobby would have to be given a good fright so that he would keep away from that cornfield.

So that very night after supper Farmer Brown's boy took Bowser the Hound to the edge of the cornfield nearest the Green Forest and set him to hunting for the scent of Bobby Coon. Back and forth, this way and that way Bowser ran with his nose to the ground, while Farmer Brown's boy followed. Not once did Bowser yelp.

"It must be that Bobby comes over late at night," said Farmer Brown's boy to Bowser. "We'll go over to the Green Forest and see if we can find any signs of him there."

By and by Bowser's great voice rang out. He had found Bobby Coon's tracks. Farmer Brown's boy smiled. "We'll give Bobby a run now," said he, "and perhaps it will remind him that he has no business over in that cornfield." He started on after Bowser.

Now, strange to say, Bobby Coon had not once visited the cornfield. He hadn't forgotten lessons he had learned there from previous years, and he had resolved that this year he would keep out of trouble by keeping away from that cornfield. Of course, the instant Bowser's great voice went ringing through the Green Forest Bobby heard it. "Hello!" he exclaimed, "Bowser must be out after Reddy Fox." He sat down and listened. A worried look crept over his face. Bowser wasn't barking in the way he barks when following Reddy Fox. What was more, Bowser's voice was sounding nearer and nearer. Like a flash it came to Bobby that he was the one Bowser was following. Bobby promptly took to his heels.

He ran now as fast as he could make his legs go.

Bobby looks clumsy. He doesn't look as if he can run fast. But Bobby is much more spry than he looks. For a short distance he can get over the ground at a lively rate. He cannot keep it up for a long distance because he is too heavy.

He ran now as fast as he could make his legs go until he began to grow tired and to puff. Then he picked out a big tree and climbed it. Way up to the top too he went, and there he flattened himself against the trunk. Then he waited and as he waited he was frightened and very sore at heart. It wasn't the hunting season yet, and he couldn't understand why he was being hunted now. Perhaps it was only Bowser himself hunting on his own. In that case there would be nothing to worry about.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 17, 1924.

A Crime Worse Than Murder.

The vicious attack on two old people, Samuel Palmer, aged 84, and his sister, 81, near Aylmer, was of a nature that runs riot with every impulse of red-blooded manhood. The person making the attack was an able-bodied man; he gained entrance to their lonely home by stating that his motor was in trouble and he needed a lantern. The aged people, even at a late hour at night, were willing to do what they could by lighting the lantern and handing it to the intruder.

In return for this kindness they were in turn beaten with a hickory club—beaten to the point of death, until they agreed to hand over all the money they possessed, the sum of two dollars.

The attack was all the more revolting because it defied every law of the universe. One of the first instincts of a man is the protection of those weaker than himself. He would not injure a child; he would do all in his power to prevent injury. He shows deference to old age always—it is not even necessary for him to stop to consider such action; it is spontaneous, the thing that a man does almost by instinct.

The crime near Aylmer is worse than murder, if such an anti-climax in the category of crime is possible. It is the most damnable charge on which a human being could be indicted. Men have walked to the gallows for crimes in which criminal intent was far less in evidence than in the case of this scoundrel.

Every ounce of energy that our forces of detection possess should be loosed on this case. A murderer is at large.

Condition of Civic Finances.

London can hardly hope to escape payment on the bill sent it some time ago for its share of 20 per cent of the highways leading to this city. It was contended at the time that the city had had no voice in determining the amount it should be taxed, and if other places took the same stand there might be a chance for some change. This line of argument was based on the complaint of taxation without representation, but it has not accomplished anything, as it can be urged that the tax was put on by the elected representatives of the people in the provincial legislature. The law states that a city shall pay 20 per cent of the construction cost of highways up to seven miles outside the city limits, but the amount paid shall not exceed one-half mill on the tax rate.

London's bill, presented in 1923, amounted to $165,000, and no provision has yet been made to meet it. Twenty-year debentures are allowed, which would mean, on a 5 per cent charge for money, an annual payment of $13,000. That is for the road east of Dundas street, through Crumlin, and also for the highway out through Lambeth, both of them main arteries for trade coming to London, but all outside the city limits.

Then there will be the 20 per cent charged against the city for the work now completed on the road to Hyde Park, and that which is to be undertaken on the Proof Line road, or Richmond street north. The county is also billed 20 per cent on all this work, and the remaining 60 per cent is paid by the government. There is nothing yet to show what the cost to the city will be on these two last-named roads, but if it is equal to the first two, Dundas street east and Lambeth, it will mean that the annual levy on the city will be coming fairly close to the half-mill limit. On the present rate a half-mill means about $30,000, and these four roads will not be far from that amount.

Another matter for which provision has not yet been made is the $15,000 taxation on factories in the east end which the court has decided could not be collected. This amount was estimated in 1923 and again in 1924, but not collected. It had to be placed on the collector's roll, because in no other way could a bill have been legally forwarded.

These two amounts are the only outstanding items of any size for which provision must be made. There is no loss attached to the non-issuance of the road debentures, because money can be secured at a more favorable rate now than at the time the bill was presented. This development is the result of favorable circumstance rather than deliberate action.

City finances show, with the year entering on the last lap, that the treasury has not been raided. There is often a tendency in municipal government, once the tax rate has been struck, to forget the idea of economy and let the horses ride through where once the fence was six rails high. This year's council has been fairly consistent in this matter, with the result that civic finances for the year are in good shape.

Too High a Price For Thrills.

Jimmy Murphy, one of the speed kings of United States motor world, is being buried today. He was racing a machine at Syracuse—it skidded, turned around twice, ripped seventy feet of railing from the side of the track. Murphy landed against a post, and doctors in a nearby hospital pronounced him dead a few minutes after.

It is not more than a week ago since the life of Joe Boyer, millionaire driver of Detroit, was snuffed out on the race track at Altona, Pa. He was out to smash records, but he snapped that silver cord we call life.

The week previous it was Dario Resta, the Italian speed pilot, driving at Brooklands, England. His life was laid on the altar of speed, and offered up before the multitude that had gathered to see the performance.

We will not permit bull fighting in Canada because it is a cruel sport; we can see no real sport in torturing an animal. Can we find much more sport in events that kill men instead of torturing animals?

The best interests of the automobile industry have never been served by speed events. Builders of cars do not stress speed in offering their product to the public. They feature strength, riding comfort, brakes, endurance and devices for safety. You never noticed an automobile firm advertising that their car can travel 70 miles an hour.

If the public call for thrills, for which they are willing to pay at the box office, the ultimate price demanded is surely not a toll to be taken in human life.

Who Sets the Exchange Rate?

New York announced a few days ago that the Canadian dollar was at par and even a trifle over. Today it says that it shall be discounted from 3/4 to 5/32 of 1 per cent. Detroit speaks in plainer terms and warns Canadians that if they spend $100 there they must be prepared to pay a penalty of twelve cents. While all this chattering is going on the London postoffice is not particular about taking American money at par. It says so, and states its preference for Canadian money.

Where is the chap who sends out word daily that Canadian dollars shall be shaved by the fraction of one per cent? Has he an office in New York or Washington? Does he measure trade with a broom handle or has he a book of rules? Bankers say he does not exist; that he has no office; that there is no book lettering on his door such as "Exchange Setter."

The same bankers will admit that the custom is a nuisance, and the general public for once agrees with what the bankers say. But in the next breath they urge that it cannot be done away with. There is plenty of power behind the Canadian dollar, a whole country full of security; there is sufficient security to back the U. S. currency. Yet the thing wobbles, and one day we get a Yankee dollar feeling it is a trifle better than our own, while inside of three days we look with suspicion on the chap who tries to unload one on us.

If we buy much in United States and plant our currency over there at the rate of 60 bushels to the acre, our money is plentiful in New York, and they get their pruning hooks and gouge pieces from it. That is discount. In other words, if we become a good customer of United States, Uncle Sam penalizes us for so being, and we do the same thing when it comes our turn.

The average man would be content to let it go and come dollar for dollar, but the average man cannot come to clutches with the exchange rate. It moves in a circle above his head, but he can rest assured that about the only way he can get a swat at it is by spending his money at home, where his dollar is taken for 100 cents.

The Fallacy of Seven and Nine Tickets.

It has been urged on several occasions lately that opposition to forcing the London Street Railway Company to give seven and nine tickets for a quarter next March is opposition to cheap transportation for the working people of London.

It is not at all likely that the working people of London—and they are many—are desirous of having street car tickets at seven and nine for a quarter, knowing that such a fare would impose poor working conditions on every man employed by the street railway company.

The ability of the street railway company to earn money is the measure of its ability to pay its men a decent wage. It is also the measure of its ability to keep a sufficient number of cars in operation, and to keep an old transportation system in working order.

It would be false economy on the part of the city to force the issue along this line. Sooner or later the city will acquire the property. If it does so by the process of starvation it will come into possession of a much-dilapidated system that will call for the immediate spending of large amounts of money. If it takes over a property that has been able to earn enough to keep itself in fair shape, the city could go ahead and operate it, and make the improvements gradually.

Nor is it fair to pick out one set of employees in a city and seek to force them to work under conditions that are less fair than those enjoyed by others in the community.

Note and Comment.

French ministry is busy pruning the budget, and none of the ratepayers are going to object to being full of prunes.

The high cost of home furnishing reaches a climax when a seat on the New York Stock Exchange sells for $81,000.

The young man who got a job in a bank used to get all the attention. Now the chap who carries all the glory is he who robs the place.

No city has a monopoly on motor car accidents, although Chicago's record of 420 killed so far this year looks like an attempt in that direction.

The Home Bank trial has done everything so far except show how the investigators can stub their toe on a plank under which will be found some real sound assets.

Hamilton is arguing that only hucksters who are British subjects be allowed on the market. The question of race makes not nearly as much difference as insisting that a market be a place where producers and buyers can meet.

Rupert Davies, editor of the Renfrew Mercury, writes an illustrated story of his trip to Paris, pictures showing the Canadian editors dining in the most exclusive club in Paris. It will take those weekly newspapermen a few weeks to get down to earth. When an irate subscriber comes in and wants to know why his name was left out when he won first on pumpkins at the fall fair—well, the process of grounding will be well under way.

What Schools Cost

In 1922 in the rural schools of Ontario the men formed 11.04 per cent, and in the urban schools 12.28 per cent of the number of teachers employed. The school teaching profession has been invaded by the lady teacher to such an extent that the male teacher is not much more frequent than one in ten. According to the report of the department of education, teachers in urban schools have more experience than those in city or town schools, the average for rural schools being 5.2 years, against 12.7 for urban.

Ontario has 6,289 public schools, attended by 512,939 pupils, and the average attendance in 1923 was 70 per cent. The total number of teachers employed was 12,914, and of these 141 had a university degree. The average salary was $1,644 for male teachers and $1,117 for female teachers.

Taking five-year terms, the average cost in primary schools, per pupil, on the basis of average attendance, is shown as follows:

	1902.	1907.	1912.	1917.	1922.
Salaries	$12.23	$16.47	$20.98	$24.52	$39.27

Collegiate institutes and high schools show the following cost per pupil, the basis of enrollment, not average, attendance:

	1917.	1921.	1922.
Salaries	$58.41	$64.23	$66.39
Buildings	9.54	26.87	29.91
Other costs	20.18	30.46	24.78

Totals

$88.13	$121.56	$151.08
---------	----------	----------

It is interesting to note that, although there have been generous advances in the salaries paid to teachers, the largest increase comes in the amount expended on buildings.

The age at which a pupil can or should reach the senior fourth class in the public schools has always been a rare point of debate, and it must continue to be such, because the figures for the province do not settle the matter. Some reached the entrance class at the early age of 10; others arrived there as late as 18. The majority were of the ages 13 and 14. The figures are:

	Boys.	Girls.
Ten years	16	21
Eleven years	262	288
Twelve years	1,296	1,347
Thirteen years	2,323	2,432
Fourteen years	2,441	2,472
Fifteen years	1,241	1,179
Sixteen years	433	408
Seventeen years	67	100
Eighteen years	13	29

The total enrollment of all schools, primary and secondary, was 701,778, placing the stern business of education in the foremost position among our "industries."

Say, Mr. Landon!

I've just been readin' of the job Fred Landon's set about to do, it seemeth he'll be down and out before the time his work is through. He's movin' fifty thousand books and puttin' each one in its place, containin' most things that's been writ about this errin' human race.

Come, tell us now, professor, and have you read them all, and can you take each single one and park it in its proper stall?

And have you got a book out there about Columbus and his boat, and have you got a shelf apart for volumes that Nick Carter wrote? Is Bertha Clay upon the shelf, the books we purchased for a dime, wherein there was a villain black, a handsome sort of heroine?

I wish you'd look around some day when you're too tired to work some more, and see if you have got a book what tells which nation won the war. I read about the science books, about the volumes stacked out there—say, have you got a pamphlet now on how to rescue fallin' hair?

Another thing we want to know, for this our appetite's athirst, who was the man, where did he live, who started out to play golf first? And did he use when first he played the game upon the pasture lot, the words a golfer speaks today when he has fozzled up his shot?

Say, Mr. Landon, tell us now, have you a book, do tell us, please, on how to keep our Sunday pants from havin' grain bags at the knees?

Have you a volume on romance, ah, such a book I'd like to see, was Helen dear the maid of Troy, the vamp she's written up to be?

Did Shakespeare write what Shakespeare wrote, was Bacon on the job at all, did Nero really play a toon while Rome was ridin' to a fall?

And was Columbus sure the scout who got to this here country first, or was some other folks ahead, do tell us all, spare not the worst. About King John at Runnymede, surrounded by indignant men, say, when he writ his name that day, did he give back the fountain pen?

There's scores of things we want to know, about the famous men and crooks, so Mr. Landon, find these things when squintin' through ten thousand books.—ARK.

SANITY

What is sanity?

The question is not one of merely an amusing nature, but often is serious enough to turn a convict from execution to life imprisonment.

Bernard Shaw says:

"Am I mad? I really do not know. Doubtless I am clever in certain directions; my talent has enabled me to cut a figure in my profession in London."

"But a man may, like Don Quixote, be clever enough to cut a figure and yet be stark mad. A critic has described me, with deadly accuracy, as having a kindly dislike of my fellow creatures. Perhaps dread would have been nearer the mark than dislike; for man is the only animal of which I am thoroughly and cravenly afraid. I have never thought much of the courage of a lion tamer."

"Inside the cage he is at least safe from other men. There is not much harm in a lion. He has no ideals, no religion, no politics, no chivalry, no gentility, in short no reason for destroying anything that he does not want to eat."

"At least, if I am sane, the rest of the world ought not to be at large. We cannot both see things as they really are."

The question must have occurred to every man whether he is wholly sane or not. Doubtless if the acts and opinions of any one of us were set down accurately he would have hard work to explain his sanity.

This is, because no man is ever wholly consistent. In the first place, growth and advancement are fatal to consistency. Just where the line is to be drawn renders every man anti-social in his tendency, if so dangerous that he should be locked up it is hard to say. It will be a question that it will be impossible for statutes to define, but must always remain for the jury to determine.

Perhaps in the formation of its opinion the jury should not be allowed to receive the testimony of a man's intimates, particularly his wife. No man is sane to his valet; at least he is always peculiar.

A FRIEND OF THE BIRDS

By DR. B. H. COLGROVE.

The most wonderful hotel in the world is located on Jack Miner's farm at Kingsville, Ontario, about 35 miles southeast of Detroit. The guests come from as far north as the Arctic Circle and from as far south as the Gulf States. They carry no baggage, are not required to register, pay nothing for board or lodging, stay as long as they wish, and when they get ready to leave, they take the elevator for the sky parlor—the great blue vault above them—and off they go in beautiful winged flotillas, honking and quacking their happiness and gratitude that such a good man as Jack Miner should have provided a free half-way house and sanatorium for their benefit.

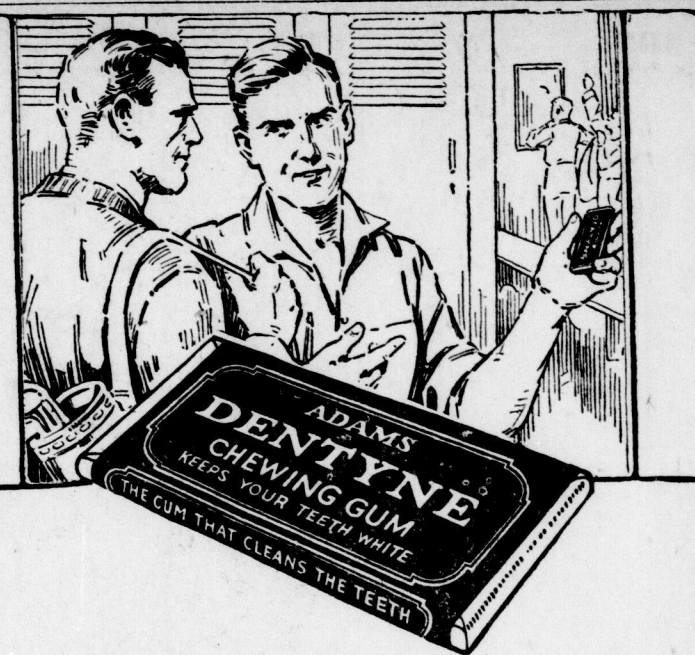

This is Jack Miner's wild goose and duck sanctuary, and it's one of the sights of Canada. The birds learned that he was a friend of theirs, communicated that fact to their acquaintances, and now thousands of them in their spring and autumn migrations visit his little watering resort for a few weeks' lay-off and recuperation. Jack's feed bill runs pretty high. It takes from 1,000 to 2,000 bushels of corn per year to satisfy his feathered visitors and not slight anybody. That's more feed than some people would buy for their distant relations who come to visit them. But he loves the birds and the birds love him; and where mutual affection exists, the matter of expense doesn't count. Lots of people wouldn't feed all this corn to wild birds. Instead of feeding it to birds, they'd use it to make corn whiskey.

The Language of Birds.

All these wild birds who come to visit Jack have gotten so they know him personally, and they're as tame as kittens when he's around. He has studied their vocalization, and he declares that he understands what many of their throat sounds mean. There is no doubt in his mind that they talk to one another just like people, only their vocabulary is more restricted and they have no dictionary to look into. If they had a dictionary, they might do better. Many of these birds return to him year after year in their biennial trips across the country, the tags on a birds' bodies showing this. Many, however, are shot or meet with other misfortunes and do not come back. So you see that Jack Miner exemplifies a high type of Christianity. He is protecting bird life and striving to preserve it for future generations. How wonderful! What an appealing story of devotion to these lowly creatures of the earth who are here to adorn it and make us happy! What an eloquent rebuke to the thoughtless and murderous who slaughter our beautiful and fast-diminishing game life, not from necessity but from pure wantonness.

Jack Miner is not only a naturalist but a humanitarian, philosopher, raconteur and fun-maker. Humor bubbles and foams from his conversation cup. Optimism and kindness ooze from his pores. He has no college diploma and was kicked out of school by old man Necessity at a very early age. But despite these literary handicaps, he's one of the best-informed men you ever met, and as a public speaker and entertainer he can make rings around many of our long-haired college professors and oratorical heavyweights. He doesn't wear a clawhammer coat when he lectures. He saves the money he'd have to pay for a clawhammer, and uses it to buy corn for his birds.

He is a forester and is planting trees all around his premises. When he dies, they will be living monuments to his memory, homes for his birds, and of great practical use to coming generations.

CAIRN TO PERPETUATE FOUNDING OF CANAL

St. Catharines Plans For Centenary To Be Held on Nov. 30.

Canadian Press Despatch.
St. Catharines, Sept. 15.—Plans for appropriately celebrating the centenary of the breaking of ground for the first Welland Canal were discussed here to-the centenary celebration will be held on Nov. 29 next in connection with the unveiling of the cairn erected by the Historical Sites and Monuments

Committee of Canada at Allenburg, near Thorold, where the ground for the canal was first broken.

The Deep Waterways Association is to be asked to hold its annual convention in St. Catharines during the week

St. Thomas Prepares For 10,000 Fans To See Terriers-Tom Cats Game Today

Fans Think Morden May Be Sent In Against Invaders

Manager Says Best Form Before Game Will Decide Choice.

TEAM CONFIDENT

St. Thomas, Sept. 16.—Wednesday, Sept. 17, is expected to be the biggest baseball day in the history of St. Thomas, and elaborate preparations are being made by the baseball club, parks committee and street railway system to care for a crowd of at least 10,000 people.

In an interview with President R. J. Cottrell, The Advertiser was informed that inquiries had been made for reservations on the grandstand from Toronto, Starnia, Chatham, Dresden, Stratford, London, as well as from Galt and small towns of this district. Every available seat in the grandstand was sold out two hours after the plan was opened Monday, and a large number of citizens are justly criticizing the ball club for not being able to secure grandstand seats.

Answers Criticism. R. J. Cottrell has explained the situation, pointing out that of the 1,061 seats available, 508 are classed as season reservations which could not be touched under any consideration. Through courtesy of the Galt Club in forwarding 175 seats for last Saturday's game, the local club felt it necessary to do the same for the Galt fans, while 39 tickets were turned over to the Galt club, who generously gave a portion to the Oriole Club at London in return for past favors. This left 278 seats for local sale.

Mr. Cottrell states, however, that the main gate will be open to the public at 1:15 and that accommodation for an additional 2,500 people has been provided with benches and tables on the bleachers. Some different parking plans had to be devised to accommodate the crowd, so the management have decided to keep the cars at least ten feet from the fence enclosing the diamond.

No cars will be allowed to park from the east corner of the grandstand to the foul line, as the natural condition of the ground at that point lends itself to a gentle slope and will be declared for standing room only. A similar space is to be roped off on the other end of the grandstand to accommodate the standing spectators.

At 9:30 the gates will be open for people wishing to park their cars, and at 12:30 the street cars will begin their direct service to the park, and at 2:30 the return of the cars will be resumed. A direct 15-minute service will be maintained throughout.

Special grandstand features are assured. At 2 o'clock the band will parade to the park and the festivities will begin. The world's champion Dumbells and the one and only gang of misfits in captivity will appear in a big league baseball duel. The picturesque rub from Dresden will be in the grandstand will be conspicuous in the proceedings. Inspector J. A. Taylor has been allotted space for his men in keeping order throughout the game. Mayor Sloggett will address the players before the game, and Dr. Bennett will administer to the needs of the players.

The consensus of opinion favors Morden for mound duties, but MacKenzie Nethercott said that he depended entirely on which of the pitchers showed up.

FRANK CHANCE DEAD. Frank Chance, manager of the Chicago White Sox, died in Los Angeles Monday evening after a long illness.

Beard's Return Helps Central

Coach Doolittle of the Central Collegiate staged the first official workout of the rugby squad last night. He had over twenty candidates out, and though the team has been hit by graduations there is still much experience left that should give the local school a better chance than ever of defeating their old St. Thomas rivals in either series of the "Wossie." The return of Reg. Beard to the Central C. I. is the most promising thing about the squad at this early date.

Two years ago the Central Collegiate turned out the greatest number of rugby players in the history of the school. Though many of them did not make the team that year they were valuable last, and the effect of these large turnouts will be carried over into this season.

The best on the field before the game. The boys had a work-out this afternoon and evening, and Coach Gadsby says that "they are going great." The line-up will be practically the same as used at Galt.

THE STAR is also the dominating choice of Retailers of Men's Furnishings

ANY advertiser who wants proof for this statement will find it in the fact that this aggressive group of advertisers placed almost as much newspaper advertising in The Daily Star as they placed in all other Toronto daily newspapers combined.

The Toronto Daily Star - 167,785 lines
Second Toronto Daily - - 82,525 "
Third Toronto Daily - - 50,610 "
Fourth Toronto Daily - - 42,555 "

That their judgment is sound is indicated by the fact that all leading classifications of retail business merchandising products to men show the same marked preference for The Star.

Men's tailors, retailers of men's hats, of sporting goods, of boots and shoes placed almost 44% of all their newspaper advertising in The Daily Star in 1923.

This preference is based upon the fact that The Star produces the greatest results. With a circulation daily of over 20,000 in excess of any other Toronto daily newspaper, The Star can be expected to produce greater results for any advertiser, regardless of whether he appeals to the liberal or careful buyer, so long as the merchandise is a sound value.

To the merchant or manufacturer who sells anything that men buy, The Star is the greatest sales force among all Toronto newspapers.

Mrs. Solomon.

By Wallace M. Baylis.

If we should start to talk of King Solomon's queen

Some smartly would pipe up, "Which do you mean?"

King Solomon, you see, had many wives.

A lot more than a Thomas cat has lives.

He had three thousand of them, ancient state;

Perhaps that was an off-hand estimate.

There's no denying that he had a lot, but was he happy with them. I'll say not.

To illustrate: One day Wife Eighty-Four

Got by the guards placed at the throne room door,

And said: "Say, Sol, I want a new spring hat."

Said Sol: "Ha, ha! Fat chance you have for that."

I like you, but if I get one for you I'll have to buy three thousand others, too.

I'm sorry, grille, but you'll have to wait.

A heavy note falls due ten days from date."

"Boo hoo!" she bawled, and as though signalled to,

Three thousand female voices wailed "Boo hoo!"

If you have to meet one wife's demands

Think you have got a tough job on your hands.

Give thanks that you are not King Solomon,

Three thousand times worse off than you, my son.

Overhead Charges.

A young man walking down the street saw a sign in a show window reading: "Umbrellas—Re-Covered."

He entered the store, and approaching the nearest salesman, said: "I understand that you re-cover umbrellas."

"Yes, we do. Do you want yours re-covered?"

"Yes, I will give $2 to the person that recovers the umbrella that I lost six months ago."

A Man of Parts.

Mistress: "Emma, what kind of work does your husband do?"

Cook: "He's in the movie business."

Mistress: "Movie business?"

Cook: "Yes, ma'am. He works for the General Transfer Company."

Evidence.

Pail: "How do you know that he's a bachelor?"

Mall: "I heard him boast that he was born to command."

Putting on the Dog.

Items From the Bogtown Enterprise.

(As reported by Griff Crawford.)

A show called "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was here in a tent Saturday night and the bloodhounds left Liza and freed Liza Spencer up a tent pole. It was found he had a rabbit's foot in his pocket was the reason. People should not carry rabbits' feet around bad dogs.

Elmer Beem, who is pretty slim, was standing in front of the Emporium Friday, and Ezra Frump, who is nearsighted, dove up, and tied his horse to him, thinking it was a post. It made Elmer pretty mad. Many laughed.

Only one inning of the ball game was played between the San Hill Giants and the Pig Run Invincibles Saturday as they lost the ball. The score was 12 to 14 when it occurred.

Isn't He Too Dear For Words?

Louis: "I gave two bucks for this tie."

Laban: "That's too dear."

Louis: "What's too dear?"

Laban: "Two bucks."

The Preacher Speaks.

The devil works all day, they say, and every day the same;

He makes the keeping from his sway. A mighty strenuous game.

Some days I keep ahead of him, some days I hold him level;

The struggle's arduous and grim—Working to beat the devil!

Hard Luck.

Howell: "What is it that makes people pessimists?"

Powell: "Well, I will give you an example. I recently went away on a business trip of about a month. By getting home a day earlier than I had planned, I thought I would be able to give my best girl a real surprise party. So I called at her house and—"

Howell: "Found that she was out?"

Powell: "No—found that she had been eating onions."

Wild Jimmie!

The fond mother had not permitted her little son, Jimmie, to eat any meat, but she gave him the bone to chew after the best part had been cut away.

One morning, when he was celebrating his fourth birthday, the following conversation took place:

"Come, Jimmie, here is a nice bone for you."

"Say, mother," said Jimmie, "I'm tired of being the Fido around here. I want some real meat."

"Don't try to tell me there ain't no such thing as luck," growled convict 1234567. "Didn't the first pocket I ever tried to pick belong to a ticklish man?"

ULSTER CREATES NEW IRISH CRISIS

Cabinet Again Refuses To Appoint Representative To Proposed Commission.

BRITAIN WORRIED

Associated Press Despatch.
London, Sept. 16.—Reiteration by the cabinet of Northern Ireland, which met today, of its previous decision not to appoint a representative on the boundary commission to settle the dispute between Ulster and the Irish Free State, undoubtedly means the precipitation of a new Irish crisis in the opinion of official observers.

Unless an entirely unexpected development takes place, parliament will reassemble at Westminster on September 30, in the atmosphere of utmost gravity to pass the legislation necessary to constitute the boundary commission.

LEADERS PLAN.

Associated Press Despatch.
London, Sept. 16.—The Irish question is coming back into British politics unless all indications fall and responsible leaders do not disguise their apprehension at the turn affairs have taken. In view of the probable meeting of parliament leaders of the House of Commons are returning to London to map out their programs.
Although a final effort is being made to arrange a new conference between the antagonistic Irish parties for the settlement of the boundary proposition by mutual agreement—Independent of British participation—the outlook for such a consummation is not considered hopeful.

Lord Londonderry, a member of the Ulster parliament, was quoted today as having said that there was no value in such a meeting, "as Ulster has nothing to give away."

The British statesmen are anxious to avoid taking over the problem and will continue their efforts for a solution of the difficulty by mutual negotiations among the Irishmen alone, even if parliament takes the step of passing legislation necessary to set up the boundary commission.

THE ADVERTISER'S CROP SURVEY—DISTRICT TEN.

MITCHELL-LISTOWEL AREA NOTED FOR CROP VARIETY

Mixed Farming in True Sense of Word Is Carried on Thorough-out District—Beekeeper Rubs Shoulder With Poultry Raiser and Cattleman.

YIELD OF CROPS SPLENDID AND UNIFORM

This is the tenth article surveying farming methods and crop conditions in southwestern Ontario. The survey is made for The Advertiser by C. G. Hyman, who has had O. C. A. training as well as thorough practical experience.

District ten takes in the Mitchell-Palmerston area, a country where mixed farming in a true sense of the word prevails.

In district 10, the last section of Western Ontario to be visited, a real difference was at once apparent, not in any specialization of crops, or in any marked difference in the mode of farming there to the manner in which the farming is conducted elsewhere.
The change was this, in that while other sections of the survey were spoken of as mixed farming districts, the statement implied that no real specialization featured the farming.
In the last district, however, mixed farming carried weight as being the only term which can describe the farming of the district.

It is truly mixed in every sense of the word. The land in the vicinity of Mitchell, Moncton, Listowel and Palmerston is good farm land which varies sufficiently to allow of almost any kind of farming which can be carried on elsewhere, and in this section one finds cattle raisers rubbing shoulders with dairymen, poultry plants in close proximity to general farms, and bee keepers here and there throughout the whole district.

In traversing this section of the country the district was entered near Mitchell and the route followed the trunk road from Mitchell to Moncton, Moncton to Listowel, from thence to Palmerston, and ended at Hariston. In addition to following this well defined route, several shortcuts were run from Listowel and Mitchell in order to see excellent crops and outstanding features that were spoken of by those interviewed along the original route.

In the Mitchell district, or rather through the country to the southwest of that point some splendid general farming land is seen. It lends itself readily to either stock farming or dairying, most of the farms having a nice percentage of natural pasture, which in many instances is well watered by flowing streams and creeks.
Springs are plentiful throughout the district and in such cases where these are not flowing, the water lies close enough to the surface to warrant the digging of pasture wells.

In the Mitchell district, as well as throughout the balance of District 10, each village and store center boasts either a cheese factory or a creamery, and at those points lacking these facilities, cream gathering centers are established and to these points the milk and cream is brought by motor truck.

In the matter of crops, the farms in the Mitchell district stand second to none, for while oats may be better in Kent, and corn heavier in Essex, no district visited in the survey showed better or more uniform yields, balancing one crop against another.

The oats throughout the district,
according to those who have already threshed their crop, should average 45 bushels, while fall wheat will run 35 bushels to the acre, taking poor farms and good ones.

Corn Crop Is Fair.
The corn in this section, as stated before, will not approach the yield looked for in Essex, but the crop is a very fair one, and there is no anxiety concerning the winter's feed for the large herds in the district.
Buckwheat here is excellent, and some of the fields which have been cut present a striking appearance of plenty.

On the farms of H. Greenwood, M.
Lieber and G. Grube, the crops appear to have been excellent, huge stacks of straw, bams filled to the limit of their capacity, and sleek cattle, telling a story of a year's farming which should go down in history as one of the best that has ever been experienced.

Before leaving the Mitchell district, it might be fitting to remark on the splendid woodlots which are found to the southwest of that town, some of which are composed almost entirely of first-growth timber. In addition to this, much of the pasture land is well-shaded by avenues of trees along the roadside, an item in farming which is often overlooked as a future source of fuel, and some saleable timber.

Leaving Mitchell and turning in the direction of Moncton, the scene changes, and the motorist finds himself travelling through a flat, level land, in which the loam of the farms is loaded with humus and some of the fields stand out for growing celery.

Fall Wheat Sown.
In the country between Mitchell and Moncton, the season is considerably more advanced than in the London district. Here the fall wheat has been sown for over a week, and in some fields the crop showed two inches of growth. Dairying in this section takes the place of beef cattle raising, and some excellent fields of corn stand ready to carry the herds through the coming winter.

On the purely dairy farms in this section, the Holstein is the popular breed, although some of the farmers cling to the dual-purpose grade Shorthorn. One farmer, when asked why the dairymen did not all favor the heavy-producing Holstein, stated that some of the farmers seem loath to go the whole distance in following one line, such as dairying, and feel that with cows that can be counted on for the production of fair type milk, as well as a moderate amount of milk, they have not put all their eggs in one basket.

Flax, in the Mitchell-Moncton district, is a small acreage, but the fields which are carrying this crop have produced a very fair yield.

From Moncton to Attwood the country is level and most of the land is fit for cultivation; few natural pastures are noticed, and the farmers are for the most part dairymen.

Excellent crops and some very fine farm buildings were noticed along this portion of the route, among them being those of William Simpson, James E. Nichols and Peter Ducklow.

In speaking of the season's harvest,
Mr. Simpson, who lives between Attwood and Listowel, stated that the small grains are the best in years and that roots are excellent. The potato crop in this district is unusually good, an average yield running 175 bushels of good potatoes to the acre.

Corn is the only crop which is below standard, and even the corn will be sufficient for winter needs, supplemented, as it is, with an abundant supply of good hay and lots of straw.
In the immediate vicinity of Listowel, some tendency to a more diverse method of farming is noticed,
but this is confined principally to a few good poultry plants and the production of small fruits and vegetables for the retail trade in the town.

The same condition exists in the Palmerston and Hariston districts.
In the triangle between Listowel, Palmerston and Hariston can be found some of the finest dairy countries in the world. The land is of a gently rolling nature, and splendid fields of easily-worked loam are seen. Like the balance of district 10, this section is a purely dairy one, although here, as elsewhere, will be found farms on which other types of farming are carried on,
though not to be expected from dairying alone.

Excellent Flocks of Sheep.
Throughout this section some excellent flocks of sheep can be seen, but they are not so numerous as in the country to the southwest of Mitchell.

In travelling district 10, this only crop of peas actually seen on the whole survey of Western Ontario was noticed between Mitchell and Moncton. The other districts visited have peas, of course, but the fact of only one field being noticed along the route followed in all the districts visiting the country to the southwest
by small importance of pea growing.

In commenting on the almost negligible quantity of pea growing at the present time, the farmers are at a loss to explain just why this crop has fallen from its large acreage of 20 years ago, when peameated bacon was a catchword in the marketing of the more expensive products of the packing house. One farmer in the Hariston district stated that the tendency in the last few years has all but the essential grains, wheat and oats, and that the time and labor spent in the production of corn silage for the dairy and cattle industry, several crops have been almost discarded.

Barley has shrunk greatly in acreage while rye is never grown on any farms used as a crop to supply green manure. Peas, as already stated, have become of so little importance that only one crop was seen in travelling district 10, and through some of the very best farming in Buckingham, on the other hand, seems to be largely devoted to such a crop this year, and the yield looked for should be a heavy one.

ONE CROSS ONLY TO MARK BALLOT

Attorney-General Makes Final
Announcement After Factions Reach Agreement.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Toronto, Sept. 16.—Official announcement of a change in the form
of the plebiscite from that originally intended was forthcoming from Attorney-General Nickle this evening.

The alteration effects simplification,
inasmuch as the voter will be required to put but one cross on his ballot, that to be opposite the question to which he desires to give his affirmative vote. Two crosses on the ballot will render it void.

Final approval of the form of ballot
came after further conferences at the parliamentary buildings yesterday between Mr. Nickle and the chief representatives of the various parties.
Mr. Nickle, both sides approved
the step towards simplification, a fact which prompted the attorney-general to declare this evening that
the ballot has the approval
of both sides. It is agreed among them that it is the simplest and most clear-cut form in which the issue
can be decided.

Mr. Nickle definitely stated in answer to a question that a voter marking a cross after both questions
nullifies his ballot.

The government, he said, desires to know each individual preference as between the two alternatives—O. T.
A. and universal control.

Announcement was also forthcoming today of an extension of time
during which appeals may be lodged
with the clerk of the election board.
Instead of notices of appeals all having to be in by September 18, the time is now extended until two days before the sitting of the revising officers.

CHARACTERS SELECTED FOR NORFOLK PAGEANT

Special to The Advertiser.
Simcoe, Sept. 16.—Miss E. Pauline Wilson, popular contralto soloist of Victoria, has been selected to represent "Miss Norfolk" in the pageant took the leading role in "Springtime" at the old home week celebration, will take the important role of "Spirit of Progress." The director, J. W. Judd, states that preparations for the pageant are proceeding rapidly. There are 328 young people taking part in the presentation.

tives of London women held in St. Andrews Hall yesterday afternoon, a women's auxiliary to the London temperance campaign committee was organized to work towards the preservation of the O. T. A. in connection with the coming plebiscite.

Mrs. Alex. Calder was elected president, with the following honorary presidents: Mrs. H. W. Paddell, Mrs. John Rose, Mrs. W. A. Tanner,
Mrs. Frank White, Mrs. F. W. Hughes,
Mrs. A. T. Edwards, Mrs. Gordon
Wright, Dominion secretary, W. T. T.
L. Mrs. Hubert Ashplant and Mrs.
J. W. Carson; the following vice-presidents, Mrs. J. M. McEvoy, Mrs.
W. G. Young, Mrs. Baldwin, Mrs. C. B.
Kink, Miss Charles and Mrs. McCam-mond; secretary, Mrs. Charles Turner; assistant secretary, Mrs. V.
K. Greer; treasurer, Mrs. T. A. Symington. The names were brought before the meeting by a nomination committee, of which Mrs. W. J. Carson was chairman.

Plan Organization.

Widespread organization will be effected over a few days, when the ward chairmen will be appointed, suggestions for whom were made at yesterday's meeting. Ward committees are also to be formed, with the possibility that ward meetings will be held.

E. E. Reid, chairman of the London temperance campaign committee, paid a brief visit to the meeting to explain the plans of the men's committee. Headquarters for the temperance campaign committee have been opened in the old Merchants Bank, and five telephone lines are to be installed today for the purpose of giving citizens information as to whether their names are on the voters' list, a campaign for funds will be commenced immediately.

"The men are going to be active this time," said Mr. Reid. "They are not going to be content with simply women do all the work. It is going to be a very difficult campaign, but we as businessmen are going to put it over. We are going to control the means the development of bootlegging on a scale not possible with the O.
T. A."

Devote Whole Time.

Mrs. Calder, who took over the chair after her election, urged the women to drop all their picking and canning for the coming five weeks and put their energy into the campaign. "I do, and her husband and boys were willing that she should do it. If they won their campaign it would be worth every effort."

Mrs. H. W. Paddell opened the meeting, which had been called under the auspices of the provincial women's committee.

ONE CROSS ONLY TO MARK BALLOT

Attorney-General Makes Final
Announcement After Factions Reach Agreement.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Toronto, Sept. 16.—Official announcement of a change in the form
of the plebiscite from that originally intended was forthcoming from Attorney-General Nickle this evening.

The alteration effects simplification,
inasmuch as the voter will be required to put but one cross on his
ballot, that to be opposite the question to which he desires to give his affirmative vote. Two crosses on the ballot will render it void.

Final approval of the form of ballot
came after further conferences at the
parliamentary buildings yesterday between Mr. Nickle and the chief representatives of the various parties.
Mr. Nickle, both sides approved
the step towards simplification, a
fact which prompted the attorney-general to declare this evening that
the ballot has the approval
of both sides. It is agreed among
them that it is the simplest and most
clear-cut form in which the issue
can be decided.

Mr. Nickle definitely stated in answer to a question that a voter
marking a cross after both questions
nullifies his ballot.

The government, he said, desires to know each individual preference as
between the two alternatives—O. T.
A. and universal control.

Announcement was also forthcoming today of an extension of time
during which appeals may be lodged
with the clerk of the election board.
Instead of notices of appeals all having to be in by September 18, the time is now extended until two days before the sitting of the revising officers.

THE WEARING OF A LACE MANTILLA

At a Ball In Paris—

Just a few short weeks ago created a new and immediate vogue for laces.

A noted society beauty wore the mantilla—and fashionable Parisian modistes were quick to interpret this new phase of a Spanish trend in styles.

And as a result winter fashions are to mean a striking and unprecedented use of lace for almost all occasions.

From France, best of all, come the laces to comply with this new mode. New French laces and malines only just arrived, bear out this contention. And newly-arranged show cases in the lace department on the main floor display their fragile, delicate beauty.
