EASY TO GUESS IT.

What Do You Think Is the Answer to

This Puzzle Question? With the rent six weeks in arrears Scribbler sat trembling lest the landlady should hear the beating of his heart and call for a reckoning. Presently there reached his ears the sound of flerce words, as of two striving together in deadly argument. Scribbler became aware that Mr. and Mrs. Slumpkins were engaged in unraveling one of their domestic tangles. At length there came a light tap on the door. Scribbler looked toward the window as a possible avenue of escape. However, before he could make up his mind to try the rainspout route the door opened cautiously, and first Slumpkins' bald head appeared and then the rest of him crept slowly in. In a whisper he advised Scribbler not to pay Mrs. Slumpkins, insomuch as she was not the head of the house. Scribbler acquiesced and Slumpkins disappeared. A little later another rap on the door, this time more insistent, caused Scribbler to look up. It was Mrs. Slumpkins. "Say, don't pay my old man any money, Mr. Scribbler. He won't do nothing but drink it up. This morning I had to let him know who runs this house. We ain't speaking to each other now." Again Scribbler acquiesced. That was six months ago. They haven't spoken to each other yet, and Scribbler goes on his way rejoicing. Puzzle question: What will be the first question they ask when they start speaking again?-Satire.

TINY ELECTRIC IONS.

Science Says They Are the Smallest Units In the World.

We used to think that about the smallest thing in the world was an atom of hydrogen. In fact, it was taken as the unit by which the atomic weight of all metals was expressed. For instance, the smallest possible division of the metal lead was found to be 206 times that of hydrogen, gold 196 times, etc.

Hand in hand, however, with the modern conception of the nature of the electric current, has come a new conception of infinitude in small things. Now, they say, the smallest thing in the world divisable by the hand of man is the electric ion. This is the Individual unit of electricity, the moving part of a current when it passes through a wire. It is so small that it can run through a copper bar at a speed of 186,000 miles a second without turning corners. Electric ions trickle through a copper wire in much the same way as grains of sand through a sieve. Scientists, armed with instruments considerably finer than grocery store scales, have isolated and measured them and found that their relation to that lightest of all gases, hydrogen, is as one to the seventeenth power of ten, or, in other words, the fraction representing their relation to an atom of hydrogen is expressed by a millionmillion-millionth. - Chicago Record-Herald.

Generous Soul.

"Now, Jim." said the old lady to her son, who was about to leave the countryside to try his luck in London, "there's plenty of money in that big city, for the streets are said to be even paved with gold."

Jim "had his doots," but these were quickly removed, for he had barely got out of Euston station when, to his surperse, ne espied siyly reposing on the Pickels gerly he picked it up and walked a little farther on, when he came across a blind man who was begging.

At once his sympathetic heart went out to the unfortunate man, and as he put the sovereign into his hand he said: "Take this, my friend. I can see 'em, tha' can't!"-London Globe.

Scared Both of Them.

When Justice Maule was on the bench a bullying counsel was one day browbeating an elderly female witness in a case before him. Having badgered her into a state of utter speechlessness, the lawyer appealed to the judge to make her answer his questions. "Why do you not answer, madam?" asked the judge. "Because, my lord, he scares me so," replied the trembling woman. "So does he me, ma'am," said the judge. -Law Notes.

Of chairs themselves, perhaps the most interesting feature is the familiar crossbar-technically known as the stretcher-which joins the front legs. Nowadays its purpose is usually for ornamentation, sometimes strength, though often it is absent altogether.

It harks back to the days of the first chairs, when knights and dames wanted to keep their feet off the cold, drafty, rush littered floors; hence the stretcher. Originally the stretcher was only a few inches above the ground, but when, later on, rugs and carpets came into more general use and rooms became more comfortable, the stretcher gradually lost its impor-

It is curious to note that the cozy armchair was the last stage of all. Cushions and padding were the first additions to the plain seat. Then came painted chairs and afterward carved legs, and finally-a leisurely last -came backs and arms and with them the luxurious rocker. In point of fact the chair is easily the most important piece of furniture you have, historically speaking. To this next-will be the last day for intro-the head of affairs, reminiscent of the time when there was only one chair in a room, three legged stools at the most being provided for less important folk. Window curtains, again, have their little romance. Originally all windows were in the roof, but in time came open windows in the wall. In the middle ages some one brought from China the idea of using cloth to cover the windows, and there is the origin of your curtain, with its frills and loops. The glass chandelier, if you have one Hepplewhite, the famous furniture designer, began it. In his time there was a strong Tory party supporting George III., while the Whig party was headed by the Prince of Wales. Hepplewhite was an ardent Whig and accordingly introduced Prince of Wales' feathers into his furniture designs on every possible occasion. VILLAGE LIFE IN EGYPT.

Mud Houses, the Roofs o Which Are Garbage Dumps. Egyptian village life is quaint and in teresting, says the Wide World Magn zine. The houses are crude, one storied structures of sun baked mud, with possibly a couple of tiny square holes cut in the wall for ventilation.

Each home consists of a single room wo drinking jars and cooking utensile absolutely devoid of furniture, one or being usually the only articles to be seen. The roofs of these hovels are thatched with cornstalks, and for some unaccountable reason all the household rubbish is dumped on the root For this purpose a ladder may frequently be seen reclining against the side of the house. From a distance a village is apt to look like an immense rubbish heap. These primitive erec tions are inhabited solely by the fella hin, as Egyptian peasants are called. In some of the Arab villages the ar rangements for sleeping are even more inconventional. Huge cuplike structures made of mud are built out in the open, away from the houses, and inte these the babies are frequently placed during the day, and often the entire family sleep in them at night. The idea s to escape the numerous snakes and scorpions which abound during the great heat of the summer.

POISON IN ITS AIR.

Java's Valley of Death, Where Life

The Valley of Death is on the island of Java. It is the most remarkable natural example of an atmospher loaded with carbonic acid gas in exstence. It has never been fully explored because of the danger of renaining more than a few moments in its poisonous atmosphere. Approached through an opening be ween the hills, it is seen to be an oval shaped valley about half a mile across. It is about thirty-five feet deep. The bot tom is hard and sandy, without vegetation and strewn with large stones. The surface is covered with the bones of animals, birds and human beings. Explorers seldom venture beyond the borders, though the deadly air does no immediately affect human beings. Thi is because the carbonic acid gas, being heavier than the atmosphere, settles the bottom of the valley. Dogs and fowls thrown into it fall senseless in stantly and die in a few minutes. No craters or fissures are visible on the foor of this valley, and it is though that the openings are near the base of the hills.—Exchange.

GORDON'S BLUNDER.

Grave Tactical Mistake of a Budding English General. When General Gordon was a lad school he was as mischievous as boys. When the boys had done thing wrong they were shut up large, barely furnished room and to write lines from a Latin author Gordon was one of the most quent prisoners in this room, and used to be annoyed by the boys were free coming to the door and jee ing at him through the keyhole. solving to get even, he procured large syringe, and, taking it with him the next time he went to write lines. he went round to the various desks and sucked up the ink into the syringe. By and by he heard stealthy footsteps coming down the passage. Nearer and nearer they came and at last halted outside the door. "They are peeping through the keyhole," whispered the future general, and, placing the syringe to the keyhole, he squirted the contents through with all the energy he could muster.

There was a smothered exclamation of disgust, and then some one fumbled with the handle of the door. It opened, and in stalked the head master, his face black with wrath and his once snowy shirt front black with ink. We must draw a veil over the painful scene which followed.-London Globe

HART'S EASY JOB.

Slept For a Week and Made Enough to Live on For a Year. To sleep for one's living, says the London Chronicle, may appeal to some as a more attractive alternative than to work for one's living. But the feat has been achieved. In the Daily Courant of Aug. 9, 1711, the following advertisement appears: "Nicholas Hart, who slept last year in St. Bartholomew's hospital, intends to sleep this year at the Cock and Bottle in Little Britain." Some further particulars of this professional somnolist are to be found in the Spectator for Oct 1 of that year. It appears that Hart was every year seized with a periodical fit of sleeping, which began on Aug. 5 and ended on the 11th. Its various stages are thus described:

"On the 1st of that month he grew dull; on the 2d, appeared drowsy; on the 3d, fell a-yawning; on the 4th, began to ned; on the 5th, dropped asleep; on the 6th, was heard to snore; on the 7th, turned himself in his bed; on the 8th, recovered his former posture; on the 9th, fell a-stretching; on the 10th, about midnight, awaked; on the 11th, in the morning, called for a little small eer." This performance, it is asserted, gained for Hart "enough to support himself for a twelvemonth."

Polished and Vigorous. Observing a passenger with the unlighted butt of a cigar in his finger the street car conductor requested bin to put it out the passenger.

"Pardon me," resumed the conductor "if I have failed to make myself clear. The condition to which I had reference was not one of mere temporary noncombustion, but of elimination, the eradication, I might say, of the physical presence of your nicotine laden rem nant, this process followed necessarily by cessation of the odor now permeating an atmosphere already somewhat ment of ozone. Running as Exercise. The fact that a person is capable of doing the best running and speed walking before the thirtieth year need not lead those who have passed the third decade to think that they are on the down grade of life, says an authority. These exercises call for elasticity of the arteries, and that lessens soon after the thirtieth year, but powers of endurance increase in the well preserved man or woman up to fifty or fifty-five or even later. Soldlers of fifty are like leather and can perform feats of endurance that would

MEREDITH AS A CHILD.

When Only Two Years of Age He Had an Air of Superiority. As is generally the case with an only child, brought up entirely in the so-ciety of his elders. George Meredith developed early and always had something of contempt for juveniles of his own age. He was a reserved and acutely sensitive boy, afraid of ghosts and being left alone in the dark, and was perhaps a trifle spoiled by his mother, a refined woman, whose love and care he lost before he reached his sixth birthday. There is still living a gentleman who well remembers

George Meredith at the age of two years. This was about 1830-1, and "I went up to the large front draw ing room, where I found the boy and a lady who must have been his mother.

The boy did not seem to care much about playing with me, and I was rather shy. He brought me his toys and picture books to see, and I was mightily pleased, I remember, with a horse and cart (not like the many cheap ones that I had seen), a beautiful, lifelike white horse, and the cart of superior make, and as George drew it along it made music as the wheels went round. What I remember of the child's appearance is somewhat hazy— a boy in white frock and blue ribbons tied up his sleeves, but he was certainly a pretty child. I spent the afternoon with him, but we did not get on much together, as he assumed a sort of superiority."—Fortnightly Review.

MAKING WATCHES.

Wonderful Feats That Are Performed

by Modern Machinery.

The rapidity with which watches are nowadays manufactured has been made possible by the ingenious machinery designed within recent years for the making of all parts of a watch.

The speed with which these various parts are turned out is little short of marvelous. Great sheets of brass and steel are cut and rolled into ribbons and punched out into wheels at the rate of 10,000 a day from each punching machine. Workers drill the thirty-one holes in the roof of the watch as

The Physietype.

This is an English invention for making pictures by impression of leaves, ferns, lace, feathers and various other objects. It depends upon the chemical action of a fine powder. The object of which a representation is to be made is placed upon white paper and pressed, either by the hand or by other means.

When the object is removed no impression is visible on the paper, but upon the picture at once appears, sharply defined, and remains permanent. Sections of wood and designs of coins and medals can thus be represented, and the prints can be transferred to lithegraphic stone, zinc or aluminium, thus producing records from which any

Wonderful Cures Reported in Germany.

The use of simple herbs as remedies instead of the more concentrated and usually more dangerous inorganic substances, has been revived very widely of late. In Germany a new school of physicians has arisen which throws out almost a whole of the pharmacopeia and relies on an adaptation of the method of wild animals in curing themselves. . . . N. Y. World.

It was Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute of Buffalo, N. Y., who first advocated the extended use of some of our native roots, such as: Golden seal and Oregon grape root, mandrake and queen's root, black cherrybark. These are the chief ingredients in Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which has been so well and favorably known for nearly half a century. A harmless cleanser and stomach tonic that nature has provided.

stomach tonic that nature has provided.

J. Donald Matheson of Ossining, N. Y. says: "I suffered for over five years with what the doctors told me was dilated condition of the stomach, associated with a catarrhal condition of same, and nervous heart. I had tried enough nux, bismuth, gentian, rhubarb, etc., to float a ship and naturally thought there was no cure for me, but after reading what eminent doctors said of the curative qualities of the ingredients of 'Golden Medical Discovery' I gave it a fair trial. Took the 'Discovery' and also the 'Pleasant Pellets,' and can truthfully say I am feeling better now than I have in years. I cheerfully give permission to print this testimonial, and if any 'doubting Thomas' writes me I will 'put him wise' to the best all-around medicine in the country to-day."
