Such a course would have been manly. Mr. Baldwin would have known upon whom he could depend, and to what extent, and he might have seen and felt the inecessity of moving with the current. Instead of throwings is the tries whate by appointing according to "English precedent" a Retrenctment committee, and assading Mr. stincks with all the influence of the guedament at his back to overturn its proceedings, he might have act himself to work in real samest to reduce the enormous expens; so of the Government to something like a reasonable scale. Instead of that, he relied upon the blind support of these gentlemon who now have the cool impudence to call themselves the "independent members," he ras sted all retrenchment—all attempts to liberalize our institutions had down the floctrine of "auffrance," and shut the doors of the House against the press asked parlament for increase of aver £200,000 to the yearly expenditure; these "independent" gentlemon voted for the whole, and then basely insult their leader by telling him that they lack confidence in him !! Such confuer is despicable had only worthy of the contempt of the Ministry and the people. We doubt not is will receive what if derivees from both.

Among these "independent" members, we understand are the following:—Norman, Thompson, Johnson, Perguson, Bell, McFarlant, and one or two certain of their connection with the compiracy. As their manifests is intended to mobilify their constituents, it will of course be published. We wait anxionally for the document.—North American August 12.
