NAPOLEON AS AN ACTOR.

(Shared Heart Review.)

Taking as his text the words of Antonio to Gratiano in the "Merchant of Venice."

"I hold the world but as the world, Gratiano, A stage where every man must play a part." Richard Mansfield, the foremost actor on the American stage, advances the opinion in the great Atlantic Monthly, that the stage can not be held in contempt by mankind, because all mankind is acting, and every human being is playing a part. "The better a man plays the better he succeeds," says Mr. Mansfield. "The more a man knows of the art of acting, the greater the man; for, from the king on the throne to the beggar in the street, every man is acting. There is no greater comedian or tragedian in the world than a great king." As illustrations of this interesting view, Mr. Mansfield cites Napoleon and Alexander, who, he says, were both great actors—Napoleon perhaps the greatest actor the world has ever seen. Whether on the bridge of Lodi, or in his camp at Tiliat; whether addressing his soldiers on the plains of Egypt; whether throwing open his old gray coat and saying, "Children will you fire on your general?" whether bidding farewell to them at Fontenoy; whether standing on the deck of the "Bellerophon," or on the rocks of St. Helena—he was always an actor. "Napoleon," says Mr. Mansfield, "had studied the art of acting and knew its value. If the power of the eye, the power of the voice, the power of that all commanding gesture of the hand had failed him when he faced the regiment of veterans on his return from Elba, he was lost. But he had proved and compelled his audience too often for his art to fail then. The leveled guns fall. The audience was his. Another crown had fallen! By what? A trick of the stage? Was he willing to die then? To be shot by his old guard? Not he! Did he doubt for one moment his ability as actor? Not he! If he had he would have been lost!"

A French Archbishop—The "Father of his People."

So false and misleading are the pictures, presented to the readers of secular journals and magazines, of Catholic priests and bishops in France that it is a great relief to find an article in the London Fortnightly Review which depicts in the most impressive and attractive colors a certain French Archbishop whom the writer does not name, but whom those who are familiar with the personnel of the French hierarchy will, we are sure, be at no loss to recognize. "In town and country, obsequious, obsequious, and marketplace," says the writer, "wherever we went, we heard of the Pere du Peuple [The "Father of his people"] Every one had some personal experience to relate of the goodness of Monseigneur. His heart and his door, like that of the old Cathedral close by, stand ever open to admit those who come. And though he puts aside a day or two a week to receive his people, they come at all hours and on all days, and every one desires to be baptized, married, and buried, by him. . . . He has lived always in France, belongs to her heart and soul, has served her all his life, even following her armies through the Franco-German war as military chaplain." We have no doubt that there are many such bishops in France—men who are far more truly the lovers and saviors of their country than the noisy so-called patriots who are at present in power.

Simplicity and Sincerity the True Secrets of Success.

This is a very interesting view that Mr. Mansfield presents, but while we are willing to concede that, in the case of Napoleon, the greatness of the man was dependent on the art of acting, we are not convinced when Mr. Mansfield tries to make a general rule that all great men have been playing a part in the sense that they have been deceiving their fellows, that they have been pretending to be what they were not. It is indeed true that, as Shakespeare says, every man must "play" a part, but this does not mean that every man must "act" a part. Play in this quotation does not connote acting, simulating. It means performing, fulfilling. Every man must perform a part on the world's stage, but the greatest of great men have succeeded not by theatrical tricks of behaviour, though these have a certain weight, but by sincerity and simplicity. You can not fool all the people all the time, though you may fool some of the people all of the time, and all the people some of the time. And this is a truth which the history of the world attests.

Froude's Unfitness for the Task of Historian.

Goldin Smith in the same magazine has an article in review of Herbert Paul's recently published "Life of Froude," which contains some unpalatable truths as to Froude's unfitness for dealing fairly with matters of history. "That Froude set out to write his history with a polemical purpose is frankly admitted by his biographer," says Mr. Smith, "and history written with a polemical purpose is apt not to be history, as Mr. Paul, himself an eminent historian, will admit. Froude was so far qualified for the part of the advocate, as contrasted with that of the historian proper, that he could assume the independence of the Tudor parliament, and take the preamble of their statutes for trust worthy evidence on the side of the king, call the debasement of the currency a loan from the mint, believe that there was nothing wrong in repudiation,—nothing practically objectionable in putting people to death without trial."

Froude and Henry VIII.

Froude made a hero of Henry VIII, but the character of the burly monarch presents nothing very admirable to Mr. Smith, and, however Froude may juggle with words in the matter of Henry's divorce from Catherine, it is presented in all its unredeemed ugliness by Mr. Smith as follows: "The story of the divorce is well known. The king was tired of his wife, who was his senior, though good, was not charming; and had failed to give him a male heir. He had fallen in love with another woman. He had suddenly struck with a consciousness scruple about his marriage to his deceased brother's widow. He solemnly declared to his people, whose heart was warmly with Catherine, that he loved her well, and that conscience alone constrained him to part with her. He nevertheless openly installed the other woman as a rival at Catherine's side, and when parting from her in alarm at the plague, wrote her in language of the greatest love. To relieve his troubled conscience by obtaining a divorce he used obsequious, intrigue, bribery, and intimidation, twice tried to steal important documents; formed a plan of luring Catherine into a monastery, by getting her to take the monastic vow with him, then slipping out of the noose himself and leaving her bound. Through all this his admirer [Froude] has to carry him, and the result, combined with what follows, is about the most curious of all sophistications of history."

A French Archbishop—The "Father of his People."

The Cardinal begins by saying that "it is almost a definition of a gentleman to say that he is one who never injures his pair." This description, he continues, "is both refined, and as far as it goes, accurate." The gentleman is mainly occupied in merely removing the obstacles which hinder the free and unembarrassed action of those about him; and he conceals with their movements rather than take the initiative himself. The benefits may be considered as parallel to what are called comforts or conveniences in arrangements of a personal nature: like an easy chair or a good fire, which do their part in dispelling cold or fatigue, though nature provides both means of rest and animal heat without them. The true gentleman in like manner carefully avoids whatever may cause a jar or a jolt in the minds of those with whom he is cast,—all clashing of opinion or collision of feeling, all restraint or suspicion or gloom or resentment,—his great concern being to make every one at their ease or at home. He has his eyes on all the company; he is tender towards the bashful, gentle towards the distant, and merciful towards the absurd; he can recollect to whom he is speaking; he guards against unreasonable allusions or topics which may irritate; he is seldom prominent in conversation, and never wearisome. He makes light of favors which he does them, and seems to be receiving when he is conferring. He never speaks of himself except when compelled, never defends himself by a mere retort; he has no ears for slander or gossip, is scrupulous in impugning motives to those who interfere with him, and interprets everything for the best. He is never mean or little in his disputes, never takes unfair advantage, never mistakes personalities or sharp sayings for arguments, or insinuates evil which he dare not say out. From a long-sighted prudence he observes the maxim of the ancient sage, that "we should ever conduct ourselves towards our enemy as if he were one day to be our friend."

England and Germany.

A writer in the London Nineteenth Century and after has a rather frightened article on the possibility of England's total defeat by Germany in case of war; and he intimates plainly that Germany is seeking to bring on a war with Great Britain. He shows how easy it would be for a German invading force to evade the British fleet and land in England. "As the troops landed," he says, "they would find plenty of guns and ammunition in our arsenals near the coast, and as plenty of horses, carts, etc., could be commandeered, the lightest equipment and a few guns would suffice, and a rush for London could be made. With London the British Empire would fall. I do not think that I betray a secret if I mention that the German General Staff has made a most careful study of England, and that the country has to such an extent been traveled over and surveyed by German officers that a German invading force would feel as much to home in our winding lanes as in the straight chateaus of Germany."

What Makes a Gentleman.

FROM "A GENTLEMAN."

The Christian gentleman is the highest type; he may be a hero as well as a gentleman. Culture produces another type, and Cardinal Newman thus describes him. The Items of Interest.

The daily papers, which are ever eager to say unpleasant things of Catholics and things Catholic, omitted to inform their readers that the funeral of Cardinal Caspari, Archbishop of Padua, assumed the proportions of a great demonstration. All the shops and cafes were closed. The Prefects of Venice, Treviso, Verona, Vicenza and Padua, the military and civil officials, the heads of the university were present, besides all the Archbishops, Bishops, abbots, etc., of Venetia. The procession took over an hour to pass any given spot, and the whole town was decorated with mourning emblems and flags flying at half-mast. Pedrochi's famous cafe, which has never been closed day or night for four hundred years, shut its doors during the two hours the function in the Cathedral lasted. The King and Queen of Italy were represented in the procession, as was, needless to say, His Holiness the Pope.

On May 20, will take place the beatification of the Dominican martyrs of Tongain; on May 27, that of the Carmelite martyrs of Compiègne; on June 10, that of the Venérable Bonaventura of Barcelona, O. F. M.

England and Germany.

A grand manifestation of faith and reparation has taken place at the Church of St Vincent, Caracassonne, France. Some Catholics had got up a subscription to offer to their parish church in memory of the resistance made there to the taking of the inventory, a very handsome ex voto. This was a large frame of sculptured and gilded wood, enclosing a groundwork of green velvet, in which was set a panel of the obituary of the official in which was broken out by the official brackets. A cross made of broken fragments of the door was also offered. Great enthusiasm was shown, and it is estimated that four thousand persons were present at the blessing of these offerings and at the subsequent procession of the Blessed Sacrament. In very many parishes throughout France pieces of the broken doors have been hung up in the churches or kept as relics by the faithful.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A bright but inexperienced young woman consented to take charge of the boy infant class. She found them jumping from the tops of the steam radiators. Fifteen minutes later the superintendent found fourteen meek masculine "infants" seated sedately in a tightly squeezed row before the teacher, every eye fixed inquiringly on the lady's bright countenance. "How in the world did you accomplish this?" demanded the astonished superintendent. "Oh," she replied, "I just piled all I couldn't get my arms around in a heap on the bench, and sat on them until I got them interested in a bear story."—Youth's Companion.

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS CURED HIM.

Read the words of praise, Mr. M. A. McLaughlin, Marston Bridge, N.S., has for Doan's Kidney Pills. (He writes us): "For the past three years I have suffered terrible agony from pain across my kidneys. I was so bad I could not stoop or bend. I consulted and had several doctors treat me, but could get no relief. On the advice of a friend, I procured a box of your valuable, life-giving remedy (Doan's Kidney Pills), and to my surprise and delight, I immediately got better. THURSDAY last, Victoria Day, was generally observed as a public holiday, so far as this city is concerned at least.

The day was fine but by no means warm; indeed it was exceedingly cold for the season.

The train for Summerside made its run in due time, without mishap. It was crowded at the start; but each station along the line claimed its quota of pleasure seekers and by the time Summerside was reached, there was quite a thinning out.

Close connections are made at Point du Chene, with the Intercolonial Railway, for St. John and other points.

Winter Navigation of the Straits.

When the motion to go into supply was made in the House of Commons on Wednesday last Mr. Alexander Martin, M. P., for Queen's, raised the question of a winter steamship service for Northumberland Straits.

Mr. Brodeur said the Montcalm was a better ship than Mr. Martin supposed. She was all right and had done good service breaking ice on the St. Lawrence.

Mr. Martin—Then why not keep her there? Mr. Brodeur—The Montcalm is the best boat there is in America.

Mr. Lefurgey said the indicated horse power of the Montcalm was 3,400 or only 1,000 more than the boats formerly on the route.

Mr. Brodeur protested against the reflections on the Montcalm. She was not an old ship.

Mr. Martin—Will the minister say that the Montcalm was built for a service such as that of the Straits of Northumberland? Does he not know that the conditions there are altogether different from those of the St. Lawrence?

S. S. MONTCALM BE HELPLESS.

Mr. Lefurgey—If the minister knew the conditions on the Island he would not think that the Montcalm would be suitable. It was quite certain that the Montcalm would be helpless in the conditions that prevailed the winter before last.

Mr. MacDonald, Pictou, interrupted to ask Mr. McLean if he had this information from his friend Lord of the government office in Charlottetown?

Mr. McLean said he did not. This colloquy led Mr. McLean to refer to an attempt, when the facts came to light, to have the names struck out.

Mr. MacDonald said that the applications of the men on the Minto were withdrawn at his request, his brother being the commissioner.

The committee rose and the house adjourned until Monday, next week.

OTTAWA MAY 26th, 1906.

This was budget week. Mr. Fielding presented a financial statement containing little not already known from the blue books. He explained that the expenditure for the fiscal year 1904-05 was some $2,000,000 more than he had estimated in his last budget.

Mr. Fielding presented a financial statement containing little not already known from the blue books. He explained that the expenditure for the fiscal year 1904-05 was some $2,000,000 more than he had estimated in his last budget.

A GROWING DEBT.

We are now within a few weeks of the end of another fiscal year. Mr. Fielding expects to collect from the people $7,800,000 more than he did in 1905. Even then there will be no decrease in the debt.

LIVING TOO FAST.

The fact is that the government is living beyond its income and has done so in seven out of ten years since Sir Wilfrid Laurier became Premier. This is the more remarkable since Mr. Fielding has collected from the people $370,000,000 in nine years, which, as Mr. Foster shows, is $110,000,000 more than the revenue of the previous time.

WIDE OPEN.

Mr. Foster made it his business to consider how this change has occurred. The government has completed no great public work outside the ordinary services. Making allowance for development, the country must be paying much more than it did for the same services.

THE SCANDAL OF THE YUKON.

There is the Yukon. The government of that district cost last year $1,647,000 while the revenues from gold royalties, customs, excise and all other sources was $879,000. More than three quarters of a million a year is sent from outside to pay for the government of the 8,000 people remaining in the Yukon.

EXPOSING EACH OTHER.

But while not much progress was made in solving the mystery of the immigration contract a good deal has come to light about the methods and character of the officials whom the Government has appointed for its immigration work on the other side of the water.

100 in gold, whereas now it produces only $8,000,000. The population of the Yukon is now that of a fair sized town, yet its government cost enough to run a populous province.

HIGH LIFE AT DAWSON.

The Interior department looks after gold mines and collects royalties and dues of all sorts. It cost last year $476,000 for that department alone in the Yukon, which was $68,000 more than it collected. This department maintains the ridiculous number of seventy officials to look after the 8,000 people.

WHEN CERTAIN PEOPLE FALL OUT.

This led up to another scandal. Mr. Alfred Jurr was an active Liberal and labor man in politics before he was made government immigration officer at Liverpool. In this comfortable berth he did not agree with his superior, Mr. Preston.

THE LAND STEALS.

That is the Yukon story, and it is a sample of what goes on everywhere. Mr. Foster mentioned some matters in British Columbia and the west, speaking particularly of the theft of prairie land. One company, in which members of parliament were concerned, got 250,000 acres in 1902 for $1.00 an acre, which they at once began to sell at $6 to $10.

EASILY EXPLAINED.

Mr. Foster's review covered the case of the Arctic, which has cost $300,000, and has accomplished nothing at all, since she never got beyond a port near the entrance of Hudson Bay. He spoke also of the Intercolonial deficit of $1,700,000, contrasting it with Mr. Blair's prediction of large profits from the extension of the railway from Montreal.

TARIFF CRITICISM.

Mr. Cocksfoot, who followed the Minister of Customs in the debate, does not find that the government has been more successful in opening up new markets, than in reducing the expenditure. During these ten years no country in the world has reduced its tariff against the Canadian goods, while many markets have been made more difficult of access.

A Noted Criminal.

New York, May 25.—Police headquarters in this city have received notification from Scotland Yard that Edward Geavin, one of the best-known and most notorious of the great international crooks who have conducted their operations on both sides of the Atlantic, is in the toils again.

THE IMMIGRATION SCANDAL.

By the appearance of W. T. R. Preston, commissioner of immigration as a witness, the inquiry into the North Atlantic Trading Company scandal has become a sensation. Mr. Preston's former connection with the Government machine in Ontario election campaigns is not forgotten and it was expected that he would be a clever witness.

Skirts and Skirt Waists.

We have been saying nothing to you lately about our stock of Ready-made Skirts and Shirt Waists—not because they are not here in abundance and of the best—but because we had not a chance to get a word in edgewise about them.

In skirts we show you every stylish color and material including a nice line of light and medium greys, which will be so fashionable during the coming summer with white or light shirt waists.

Of the latter we have a very lovely display, dainty and stylish and withal cheap, commencing with dainty white waists at 49 cents each, on up through the various grades in lawn, embroidered linen, swiss muslin and white silk.

We have also all fashionable colors in waists, which you should certainly see before you decide on anything, as they are as trim and dressy as you could wish for at a much smaller price than you could have the same goods made up for.

A line of beautiful high class black silk underskirts, is also worthy of your attention and is a luxury you will be tempted to possess once you see them.

Only a few left of those elegant silk coats for ladies, which came to hand this week. Come quickly if you want one.

The editor of the HERALD is absent this week.

The Nova Scotia Legislature has been dissolved. General Provincial election on the 20th June.

News has been received at Halifax that Rev. J. D. B. Murphy, late Anglican chaplain to the forces here, was killed in England by a fall from a horse.

Mail orders promptly and carefully attended to. Stanley Bros.

Sir Wilfrid may tell it to the Mariner that $54 is a fair payment by the Government for two sugar bowls, or $68 a reasonable price for the Government to pay for four cream jugs; other people, and particularly our farmers, won't believe him.

It was a "slit" or "slim" piece of business—that of Sir Wilfrid Laurier whose resolution provided for an investigation covering a time at which the costly supplies for the Arctic were not obtained! Fortunately Mr. A. A. McLean detected the little game in time.

The Fourth Regiment held their first review of the season last Friday night. The parade was in charge of Colonel Devision and the course covered was about three miles. The men presented a fine soldierly appearance as they gayly stepped to the entraining music of the Regimental Band.

In the House of Commons, on Wednesday, May 23rd, Mr. Martin again brought up the Water Service question and criticized the Government's proposal to send the Montreal race track to the province for a breaker of 5,000 horse power. He was vigorously supported by Messrs. Lafargey and McLean.

Curtains, and curtain materials is one of the best departments in the store—we have positively the largest and most up-to-date stock ever shown here. Stanley Bros.

Before leaving England, the Princess Esna attended a good-by dinner at Buckingham Palace given by King Edward in her honor. It was an entirely private family gathering. All the Princess's relatives now in England were present. In addition to the King and Queen and the Prince and Princess of Wales, a score of princes and princesses joined in felicitations and well-wishes to the bride elect. Upon her arrival in Spain she was accorded a great popular reception.

Early last Saturday morning a terrible tragedy was enacted near Ralston Village, about fourteen miles north of Kingston, Ont. John Joyce committed suicide by cutting his throat with a razor and was found by his wife and her father Cornelius Wood, who were brought to the General Hospital. When the news of the shooting spread the people started to the scene, but were driven back by Joyce who with the loaded gun still in his hand threatened to shoot the first person who came within range. A warrant for his arrest was sworn out at Sydneyham; but before it could be executed the murderer cut his throat from ear to ear with a knife.

Many citizens were given a good idea last Friday evening of how Sherring captured the Marathon race, when two of the city policemen started on a swift sprint down Richmond street. They were not practising for the mere fun of the thing but had a certain object in view. The object was a man they were after. One policeman took a course down Richmond street around the jail, and the other circled the same institution by way of Sydney street. They both met at the south-west corner, but somehow their man had escaped in the general excitement of the moment.

Berlin, May 23.—German writers, in commenting on the failure of German athletes to carry off signal honors in the Olympic games at Athens, assert emphatically that the chief cause of their low standard of their physical achievements is the beer-drinking habit which is greatly sapping the national vigor. Several writers agree that the habit prevents the Germans from acquiring that tautness of muscle which distinguishes the American and English athletes, and not only causes superfluous fat, but seriously affects the heart, which is the sport organ par excellence.

The splendid farm residence of Mr. Thomas Hecker, North Bedford, was totally destroyed by fire last Thursday evening. The fire is said to have caught from the fire and when discovered had gained such headway that it was found impossible to save the house which was one of the finest in the Province. Most of the furniture was saved, however, and also the outbuildings. The fire started between six and seven o'clock and could be plainly seen from Summerside. The house was insured for $2,000, but this will not cover the loss sustained. Mr. Hecker and family are at present absent from the Island.

The death took place at Antigonish on Friday last of Alexander McKee, of Goldenville. He deceased, in company with his brother, was on his way home from New Glasgow, and it is reported that he was considerably under the influence of liquor. About two miles from the town they entered the house of Samuel Chisholm, where Alexander grew faint. Dr. Gillis was called, but the man died before the doctor arrived. At the inquest Dr. Gillis said, without knowing anything of the general health of deceased, he thought that the direct cause of his death was alcoholic poisoning.

The Charlottetown Dramatic Club returned last Friday night from New Glasgow where they were greeted by a crowded house in their presentation of the drama, "King's Evidence." It is estimated that 1400 people witnessed the performance. The club received every attention from the manager, Mr. Mason, and much kindness from the people of New Glasgow for all of which they are deeply grateful. A pleasing feature of the evening was the presentation of gold watches to the New Glasgow hockey team, Maritime champions. These watches were valued at $50 each and the monogram of each recipient was engraved upon them. They were presented by the citizens, the money having been collected through a subscription opened for the purpose. It is interesting to note that four of the lucky seven were Islanders, viz: Gregory, Williams, Murphy and Munn.

She was ready to sail again yesterday morning but decided to remain in port until tonight when she will leave for Boston. The Island passengers were sent to their destination by rail.

Six hundred rebel Zulus surrounded Lonsdale's force yesterday afternoon near Buffalo River, Durban, Natal. Under cover of the bush the natives got within fifty yards of the British, but the latter opened a heavy rifle fire upon the rebels and after two hours fighting the Zulus fled, leaving several killed. The British loss was one man killed and three wounded.

Mr. Joyce, who was shot through the body at Ralston, Kingston, Ont., on Saturday morning by his jealous husband, who later on his throat, died twenty-four hours later. Corneilus Wood is now in Kingston Hospital and resting fairly easy. Before the deed, Mrs. Joyce declared that she had been generally known, and that during the night members of the band were all awakened by the violent shock which might or might not have been associated with the earthquake in some way. But that there had been a terrific convulsion of nature of some sort there could be no doubt as the morning it was found that a spring had broken out in the bottom of the Conlee nearby and thrown water fully thirty feet to the air. The Conlee rapidly filled as did the adjoining depression, and a fair sized lake now exists where there was no water before. The new lake is twenty miles south of Swift current.

The steel bridge that is being constructed at Bellefleur, near Revelstoke, B. C., collapsed Tuesday evening, 22nd, and the locomotive and two freight cars dropped into the river. A fireman named Corbett, of Mission Junction, was killed. The bridge is being constructed by the Dominion Bridge Company of Montreal, to replace a wooden one. Engineer Purvis who fell with the locomotive had a miraculous escape. By using the air brake the crew were able to save the rest of the train.

John W. Austen, a retired merchant of Halifax, was found dead in the basement of his residence, Robie Street, last Sunday morning, his death having ensued under tragic conditions. Dr. Finn was called, and after viewing the body gave certificate of suicide by hanging while insane. Austen for many years conducted a hardware business on Gottington Street, and was most successful, amassing it is stated, considerable wealth. A few years ago he retired in favor of his son, and since then he has devoted himself to the supervision of his extensive real estate holdings. He was fifty-nine years of age, and is survived by a widow and one daughter, Dr. May Finn, and one son, Arthur S. Austen.

If you want anything at any time, and cannot come yourself; just drop us a postal, and we shall be pleased to send you samples and give you any information of any line of goods offered in a first class store like ours. Stanley Bros.

Thomas Southworth, Provincial Director of Colonization, is investigating the serious complaints made to his department by immigrants who arrived in Toronto on Monday morning, having availed themselves of Liverpool to Halifax on the Dominion Line steamer Norseman. It is charged that on the boat the immigrants were treated in a shameful and disgusting manner. They were herded together like sheep. There was no division of sexes and no sanitary arrangements made. It is also charged that the food provided was not only unclean but unfit to eat, and that there was no accommodation whatever for sleeping. 23 meals of questionable stew, fitly provided, are charged. There were 1,800 immigrants on the Norseman, and it is claimed that they all suffered in the wretched conditions.

A quiet wedding was solemnized at the Notre Dame Convent, Charlottetown yesterday, when the Catholic G. Marisey, only daughter of the late Edward Morrissey, J. P., Collector of Customs, Orwell, became by the wife of Captain F. J. Craig of the City of London. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Morrison. The bride was attired in a travelling suit of grey wool trimmed with pink and gold braid with touches of pinks and green and hat to match, and was given away by her brother Daniel W. Morrissey of Georgetown. The bride was attended by her cousin Miss May Dorsey of this city. She wore a Princess dress of pink and gold trimmed with white insertion and lace with hat of Koru lace. Mr. Ed. F. Ryan, barrister, Georgetown, supported the groom. After the ceremony a sumptuous breakfast was partaken of at the Convent, after which the happy couple took the western train for a short honeymoon trip through the New England States. The Herald wishes with many friends wishing the gallant captain and his bride a happy and prosperous voyage over life's wide extending sea.

S. S. Virginian Breaks Record.

Montreal May 23. Three days and twenty-two hours after leaving Montreal, the S. S. Virginian was in communication with Cape Race, this beating her own and all other records from land to land. Her average speed was 13 knots and the best day's run for hundred and forty seven knots. Two hundred passengers were employed by the Dominion Transport Co., who do cartage work in Montreal for the C. P. R., went on strike to-day for an increase in wages. The men have been getting $1.50 a day but now want $1.75. There is also a dispute between the men and the management over a question of pay for overtime. The police have been detailed to guard the Company's stables in different parts of the city.

Empire Day Celebrated.

Boston, May 25.—The British residents of Boston celebrated Empire Day with a banquet at the Twentieth Century Club last night. The Canadian Contingent which held its banquet at the same place counted among its guests Governor Curtis Guild, Governor John McLean, of New Hampshire, and Charles Marcell, of the Canadian House of Commons. The British and Scottish societies met at the Somerset. Captain Ryan, the British Naval Attaché at Washington, Admiral Coghlan, of the United States navy, and Captain Benham, of the English Army were among the guests.

A Lake Formed.

Medicine Hat, May 25.—Corporal Bettley, of R. N. W. M. P., who had been sent on patrol duty for several weeks, turned up at Swift Current the other day with a strange story, smacking of the improbable, but backed up by such facts that it has put the disbelief out of the question. It seems that on the first night of the San Francisco earthquake, a band of Indians were encamped at a point near Peppers Lake or Eagle Quill Lake, as it is more generally known, and that during the night members of the band were all awakened by the violent shock which might or might not have been associated with the earthquake in some way. But that there had been a terrific convulsion of nature of some sort there could be no doubt as the morning it was found that a spring had broken out in the bottom of the Conlee nearby and thrown water fully thirty feet to the air. The Conlee rapidly filled as did the adjoining depression, and a fair sized lake now exists where there was no water before. The new lake is twenty miles south of Swift current.

Why the Tower Tumbled Down.

Ottawa, May 29. The report of the inspecting architects on the fallen tower of the West Block was laid on the table and says the supervision of the work by the Department up to the level of the first floor was of a most formal character. Practically there was no supervision from the time the work reached the ground floor until the tower collapsed. The walls were not built according to specifications and the bad quality of the work was a sufficient cause for the collapse. The plans and specifications were not clear. There was no proper and efficient supervision of the work. The main building, owing to the use of block stones in lacking is safe. It was inadvisable to proceed with the erection of the upper portion of tower in winter. The contractor must be held responsible for the collapse of the tower, but the Department of Public Works is also responsible, as it did not properly supervise the work and detect and correct the faults of construction as the work progressed.

Get the Most Out of Your Food

You don't eat and can't if your stomach is weak. A weak stomach does not digest all that is ordinarily taken into it. It gets tired easily, and what is left to digest is wasted.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Strengthens and tones the stomach and the whole digestive system. "I have been troubled with dyspepsia for years, and tried every remedy I heard of, but never got anything that gave me relief until I took Hood's Sarsaparilla. I cannot praise this medicine too highly for the good it has done me. I always take it in the spring and fall and would not be without it." W. A. Brown, Belleville, Ont.
