

How she had arranged things, how she had managed to satisfy the questionings of those about her, he did not know, nor had he inquired into the matter. It was enough for him that she obeyed his every command, and that when the had laid down the lines of their life she had accepted these lines without a word. When he told her that he was ruined, that he must take what work he could, Elizabeth had accepted this quietly. He himself had no realized what this would mean till now, and now the knowlege of his abasement stung him sharply.

CHERTER PROPERTY IN CONTROL OF CO

PHONE 522

"I shall not stay here" he said himself, grimly, "No doubt the work would suit me, and the money is good, but the life would cramp me I must take her abroad," was his next thought "away from all those veins. "It is hard enough to serve any man, but it would be bitter as -there was tenderness in his voice There can be no room in my wife's life for friends like this! He has everything to attract her! What an I? Only a rough workingman! Though the blood that runs in my veins may be as good as his, she will go to him naturally, while she turns away from me with a shudder." le stopped his pacing to and fro, and tood looking again at Elizabeth. Consciousness was returning. Her prisonment. hands moved feebly. There seemed a touch of color in her lips. by the window.

He had desired the housekeeper to give orders that their; few posses sions should be brought to them. The nly thing that Elizabeth had carriled away from the farm was her dressing bag.

When this was brought to the room Barostan unstrapped it and placed i on a table near and laid it open to her hand.

"Perhaps I had better go and see what is expeected of me to-night!' he said to himself. But his resolve o abandon the work strengthened. Each moment that he was in the astle he resented his situation the

Reduced in Flesh

Sleepless Nights

(Idney Disease and Gravel Caused

Keenest Suffering-Gured by

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver

Mr. W. Smith.

That diseases of the kidneys cause

rgans to health. Mr. W. Smith, Port Dalhousie, Ont.

nor ser cruar f erri

He had not expected anything but a humble life in the post which. he had undertaken. The man who him to accept work-a prother of the one who had spoke to Lord Ottershaw-had been a friend of Barostan's for some time past, and who know her," and then his blood knew better than most how necessary rushed hotly and wildly through his it was that the young man should realize what little could be realize from his property, and take up a small death to call this particular man my but sure source of income. Therefore master! He called her by her name the suggestion of this post, coming just when it did, fitted in exactly with Barostan's plans. It had been necesary to have some place to which t take Elizabeth, and to isolate he from all who knew her; throwing he entirely upon him for companionship ven for sympathy. When he went out of the room h turned the key in the lock, and Elizabeth's first conscious sound wa that clinking noise that signified im

She lay thoughtful for some time not attemping to move. She was ex-He withdrew and seated himsel, hausted in brain and body. Then, lit tle by little, she looked about her, and as she saw the bag, the only familia; object in the room, she gave a grea start, for this recalled her to what was happening. Almost like the sigh of some faithful friend was that wellworn bag. She put her hand out and touched it, as though the mere fee of it could give her comfort. The she lay and looked out through the window at the exquisite landscape that stretched in the slowly fading sunlight before her eves.

> "What have I done?" she said herself, dully; "what awful thing have done? I must have been mad. have gone too far!"

Indeed, she was awake, as it were for the first time. The days that had gone since this blow had fallen upor her had been like so many days in an awful dream. Nothing had been real except the certain knowledge of David Barostan's determined hate on one side, and Lil's persisten clamoring for protection on the other Lady Garland had satisfied with Elizabeth's solemn pro mise. She had written, and she had telegraphed, and she had even paid flying visit to the farm one evening late, just to keep Elizabeth's nerve well screwed up. And she had been so clever, she had cried "mea culpa" in such a pretty, piteous fashion; sh had seemed so young, and childlike and feeble, and her talk had been o Henry's goodness to her, of the bril liant place that Henry had given her and the wounderful life that had comto her. And they she had been full o pretty touches of gratitude. Agair and again she had spoken to Elizabeth as though this girl-who was really only a year or two older than hersel -had been indeed her mother.

"I am so safe in your love, Beth she had said; "If I had not this grea faith in you I really don't know how should live."

There had been Mr. W. Smith, Port Dalhousie, Ont, rrites :-- "For some years I was afflicted with kidney disease and gravel is most severe form, having often is most severe form, having often is topparte of water. accompanied by he most dreadful arony. As the distase wore on me I became reduced in lesh and passel sleepless nights. No loctor was able to do much for me, und I usel many medicines without obtaining more than temporary relief. My attention was directed to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. and by radicated from mv system in tess han six months. I have gained in weight, sleen well, and feel better han I have for twenty vears."
Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one vill a dose, 25c a box. all dealers, or Edmanson. Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

OOPING COUGHS

ly signified.

had swept her brain clear. She was not only married to David

They could not understand what had ome to pass with Miss Beth. It was not natural, they said, one to another, that Miss Lil's marriage could have changed her so complete-

HET TITE IS SOFET REND. PUR

all the brid netty frient

to Legis Lind rrn

1 1 2 3 20.

ery.

was about to do.

Barostan.

The old servant, Mary, did not chat er with the others, neither did she uestion Beth, but she gave extra atention to her young mistress, and she had watched Elizabeh with an anxiety that grew greater every day. Elizabeth was thinking of her as she lay in this strange place, lost in mis-

Mary was the only one to whom she had written; she had left a note on her able for the maid when she had crept away in the dawn, and in that note she told the maid to write and ask Mrs Griffin to come to the farm and take the management of things for a time, and after this she had simply added the announcement of what she

"When you read this." she had writ en, "I shall be a long way from Heathcote, Mary, I am going to the north of England with him."

And now she was in the north of

They had not exchanged a word al only know that he had left Glen Farm and that circumstances had driven him to earn his living, and with that wonderful pity that was so strongly knit in to her beautiful nature. Elizabeth had felt grieved for this man.

For generations past the Barostans had been known as master of much property around about Warminster; they had been associated with the Gler Farm for years. Elizabeth knew what t was to love an old-fashioned home to feel that her whole being was kni into the busy, yet simple life lived within its precincts; and it had given her a pang to realize that the Glen must pass away from Barostan and ecome he property of srtangers This, however, was the only soft feeling that this man aroused.

His rough, hard manner, his almos orutal determination to exact obedi nce to his will, his bitterness and the sense of power that surrounded him were things that made Elizabeth hate

Had she been less agitated, had Lil been differently placed; had not Lil herself shown such absolute fear of this man, Elizabeth would certainly never have drifted into this strange position. This was the first moment of calmness that she had had during he past week. A kind of fever had arried her through everything up to this moment; but now the fever was gone, and she had to face the truth and know what her loyalty to Lil real

She arose from the couch with lifficulty, and stood looking out at the mist. The evening was closing in hough the sky was clear and the moor vould rise shortly. The beauty of th scene upon which she gazed came bu vaguely to Elizabeth's comprehension Her mind was revoling so rapidly.. She still felt dazed and weak, but the ex haustion that had ended in that swool

Barostan, married to one whom she had always regarded as an enemy, and from whom her every instinct shrank not only cut hercelf adrift from the places she had held, sep arated herself from all who knew and cared for her, but, by the most bitter fates, she had been brought into im ediate contact with the one creature on earth she had prayed she might never see again.

Had she known more of David Barstan's prospects, had she been in a fit condition to question, this at least night have been avoided; and then worse than this, there came to Elizabeth's comprehension by slow degrees the certainty that Ottershaw had either not accepted what she had written, or else by same mischance had been in ignorance of her decision with regard to themselves.

As she stood pressing one cold hand to her brow and feeling her heart beat with heavy thuds, there came England. She was married to David timid knock at the door.

She arose, and, with difficuty, found her voice to answer that summons through this long day of traveling. She then she flushed hotly as she realized that she was imprisoned, and that the woman who spoke to her from without could not enter.

Almost immediately, however, Mrs. Winter was heard knocking at an- in other door, one that led through the bed-room.

She entered nervously. It was . pain and yet a comfort to Elizabeth to find herself in the presence of an other woman.

"I hope you are feeling better, ma'am," said the housekeeper. "I have come to learn what I can do for you. I am sure vot must be very tired nd that you must want some food. Elizabeth stretched out her hand and Mrs. Winter took it.

Tears rushed to her eyes as she elt how eagerly that cold, delicate hand clung to hers, and realized with woman's intuition that this beautiful young creature was terribly unhappy. She put Beth gently into her chair and stood holding her hand. "Is there anything. I can do for you?" she asked. (To be continued.)

ORGANS. - The famous Needham Organ-sold in tens of thousands of nomes. Eight styles to select from CHESLEY Call and see them. CHESLEY WOODS, Sold Agent for Nfld.—june25

High-Class

The Celebrated JOHN COT-

The World Renowned GAR-

Tobacco Store,

TON Mixture.

RICK Mixture.

Mixture.

Mixture.

kport, N.Y.

lobacco

A

tern Cuts. These will be found very aseful to refer to from time to time. 9395-LADIES DRESS WITH VEST AND CHEMISETTE

9395

The Home Dressmaker should keep

. Catalogue Scrap Book of our Pat.

1. TIT -- Ar Ex

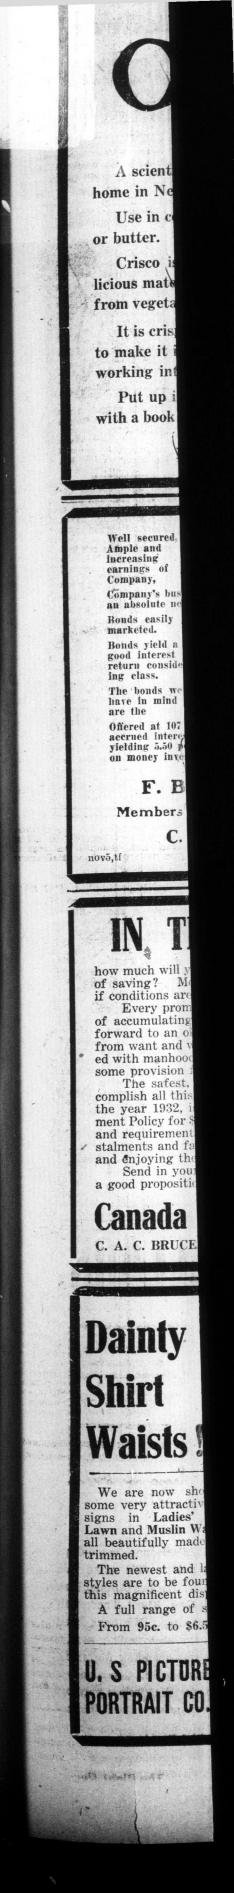

Girl's Box Coat. This style is simple made, and very becomi girls. It is slightly o throat, and finished w collar, cut in points The sleeve in "mannis! deep square cuff. The be omitted. The pattern sizes: 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10 quires 234 yards of 44 for the 10 year size. A p illustration mailed to any receipt of 10 cts. in silver or stamp

PATTERN COUPON. Please send the above-mentioned attern as per directions given below.

Size Wills' CAPSTAN Mixture. Name

N.B.-Be sure to tration and send with the coupor. carefully filled out. The patters cannot reach you in less than 15 days Price 10c. each, in cash, postal note or stamps. Address: Telegram Pat Water Street. tern Department.

Stafford's Liniment, Prescription "A" and Phoratone Cough Cure for sale at Know ress Syndicat: F1713, Cough Cure for Department.

A Simple Stylish Model.

well, in silk, cl

The vest is one of the sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40 and

This design developed in perc

or other wash fabrics will make suitable house or home dress. It w est style features. The Pattern is inches bust measure. It requi

51/4 yards of 44 inch material for

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on recept of 10 cts.

Suitable materials for an, of these patterns can be procured from AYRS & SONS, Ltd. Samples on request.

Mention pattern number. Mail orders

9087-A NATTY LITTLE TOP GAR.

MENT.

velvet. The lines are simple also develop

36 inch size.

silver or stamps.

promptly attended to.

pleasing.

ews.

is rushing the Bay Line. He construction

an extensive

n filed against

ld, making the

ates and police

certain persons

.--Mr. William

ove, who is 76 ad his arm am-

ago, is now for his recovery

10.30 last night hurchill found a from alcohol on e was conveyed ght have smothcers picked him

RATION. - Mr

Portugal Cove, old, will shortly

red an accident

o years ago, a ne foot recently

aving set in im-

ake off the foot saving his lfe.

riend who spent

nd money in or-wal of tips. He bjection against ould not shave

once that, ac-

clusion, he had

el considerably

in one year to where his un-

he tip question

e spent rather

and cab fares in

aving exhausted

ondon and most

d to give up the

beard.-London

n the 12th inst., nd Mrs. James short illness, vears; leaving a nd 3 sisters to funeral from

e accept this.

Boston and after a long

urn their sad

hn Aspell, aged

fe. one son and

Cabot Street, at Juesday; friends

D. Richardson

rison for the nmer.

IPEG. To-day

ORDERS

mm

ECIALTY.

nce some days Ve make this r Annual End There will We have been retting ready. ing nights in Goods scoop. inless you are

DEVINE, Right House,

Read Thurs-

ins

no:

cks

nges.

sages.

EARS.

. Eggs.

atoes.

h St.

