Love a Conqueror —OR— WEDDED AT LAST.

CHAPTER XLV.

"There is nothing the matter with me which would prevent my fulfilling them," was the slow pleading answer. "I have been exact and punctual, and have neglected none of them since—since—"

Her voice failed, and her head sank forward on her breast.

"I am complaining of no neglect Mrs. Grant. I have never had greater reason to be satisfied than at present, which makes me regret all the more bitterly being obliged to dismiss you."

"To dismiss me!" She looked up in sudden terror as she uttered the words; then, after a moment's pause she said brokenly and tremulously—"Oh, Lady Oliphant, you do not mean to do that!"

"It is with great—the greatest reluctance that I am forced to do so; but I have no alternative."

"No alternative!" she repeated melancholy, looking at Lady Oliphant with dazed, bewildered, fright end eyes, which seemed to see an executioner in the gentle lady in velvet and furs.

"None."
A silence followed—a silence so complete that it seemed to have some effect on Mrs. Grant's nerves. She glanced around her fearfully, as if she was afraid of hearing some sound in the house or seeing some apparition; but she could not force her parched and trembling lips to speak; and Lady Oliphant went on gently—

"Mrs. Grant," she said, a little unsteadily, "I do not think I need explain to you my reasons for doing this. It costs me so much, and it will give my daughter so much pain, that I should not have done it without being forced to do so."

"But I do not understand, Lady Oliphant!" Mrs. Grant faltered tremulously. "Why should you send me away?"

"Your ignorance must be feigned Mrs. Grant—there was a little sternness now in the lady's voice. "You cannot conscientiously tell me that you are ignorant of my reasons for dismissing you."

"I am quite ignorant," the schoolmistress answered more steadily and her manner vexed Lady Oliphant.

"You are a young woman, Mrs. Grant; but you are not so unversed in the ways of the world as to imagine that such conduct as yours has not been noticed in the village."

"My conduct!" echoed Mrs. Grant, biting her head with a momentary flash of haughty resentment. "Yes, your conduct in allowing Mr. Litton to visit you so frequently, and any hour which suited his convenience. Do you deny that he has been seen leaving the cottage at night, and that you have been seen walking with him at hours when an action at other times harmless becomes a perfect impropriety? He comes here, it would appear, three or four times in the course of the day and night, and his visits have given rise to a great deal of talk in the village."

"He is a doctor," the schoolmistress said, faltering.

"Yes; but you are not in such need of his professional services; and there can be only one construction put upon his visits here."

"And what is that?" Mrs. Grant said vaguely.

Radway's Ready Relief

Frank Main, 409 4th St., New York, writes: "My wife suddenly fell very sick with influenza. I called in the doctor, but he failed to help her. We have no time to be sick. So I bought my own bottle of Radway's Ready Relief and Pills. I gave her according to Radway's directions, and she went back to work two days later."

GOLDS AND COUGHS

Apply the Balm to the throat and chest until the surface smart and redens. Give Radway's Pills in such doses as will freely move the bowels. For a sudden cold take a large dose Radway's Pills and a teaspoonful of Relief with a teaspoonful of molasses, in a tumbler of hot water. Retire at once to bed, in the morning the cold will be gone.

RADWAY & CO., Montreal, Can. 6

A Happy Child In Just A Few Hours

When cross, constipated or if feverish give "California Syrup of Figs" then don't worry.

Mother can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, and they become tightly packed, liver gets sluggish and stomach disordered.

When cross, feverish, restless, see if tongue is coated, then give this delicious "fruit laxative." Children love it, and it cannot cause injury. No difference what ails your little one—if full of cold, or a sore throat, diarrhoea, stomach-ache, bad breath, remember, a gentle "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs" then look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." We make no smaller size, and back with contempt any other fig syrup.

"That he is your lover."
A peal of shrill hysterical laughter broke from Mrs. Grant's white lips, laughter which was terrible to hear, and which rang through the quiet room, startling Lady Oliphant out of her calm self-possession.

"My lover," Mrs. Grant repeated in a moment—"my lover!"

"Yes," Lady Oliphant answered gravely. "The supposition is a very natural one; and if Mr. Litton's intentions toward you were honorable, no one could oppose your reception of him; but he himself has told Dr. Joyd that he has no thought of marriage, and—"

Again the shrill bitter laughter broke forth.

"Of marriage with me?" the schoolmistress said, with a strange expression on the lovely little white face. "No, he certainly has not!"

"Then why does he come here?"

"He comes here professionally," as the almost sullen answer.

"That is absurd! And this is a very serious discussion," said her ladyship, angry now, and incensed. "We will end it. As soon as you can make convenient to do so, Mrs. Grant, you will leave—"

"As soon as," Mrs. Grant began, when her voice failed her for a moment; the next she went on huskily—Lady Oliphant, I entreat you, do not send me away. Indeed—indeed I have done nothing wrong! Oh, will you trust me a little longer?"

"How can I trust you, Mrs. Grant? you have already abused my confidence; you cannot have forgotten now, without references, or any knowledge of you—"

"I have not abused your confidence—I have done nothing wrong. Lady Oliphant, if you have any pity, do not ask me to leave the cottage now. I cannot—I dare not face the winter—think—to be houseless and desolate in such weather!"

"Mrs. Grant, you are paining me terribly," Lady Oliphant said unsteadily. "I have no wish but to be just to you; but really Sir Frederic is exceedingly annoyed at the scandal which has troubled the village for some weeks. Do you know that Miss Venn, to whom Mr. Litton was paying attention, has been obliged to be sent away for a time, she fretted so much at Mr. Litton's visits here? Indeed, I cannot tell you how much has been said, nor is it necessary."

"But, Lady Oliphant," the sweet broken voice was husky and strained, and the little trembling hands were held out in passionate supplication—"do not send me away now. Oh, I cannot go! It is impossible—oh, be pitiful!—trust me a little while. I may only have to ask your forbearance for a very little while; but in mercy, grant it to me."

Lady Oliphant shook her head sadly; Sir Frederic's injunctions had been imperative, and she could not disobey them; but her heart ached for the agony and despair on the pleading face.

"What can I do, Mrs. Grant? You do not justify yourself. You cannot refute the accusations, and I cannot let them pass unnoticed."

Mrs. Grant fell upon her knees, and caught at Lady Oliphant's dress entreatingly.

"For the love of Heaven, do not leave me thus!" she implored, with anguished gestures and wild miserable eyes. "Oh, for the love of Heaven, take back your decision! If it were only I who had to suffer, but—oh, if you have one grain of charity, of compassion in your heart, have pity upon me now! I have done nothing wrong. I—oh, Heaven have mercy upon me!"

Her head sank forward in a voiceless agony of supplication; the little hands still clung desperately to the velvet and fur of Lady Oliphant's cloak, which that lady was trying to disengage from her grasp.

"No, no. I will not rise. You shall not go until you tell me that I need not go," cried the schoolmistress wildly. "Oh, if you knew—if I could tell you—if I could trust you—oh, have pity, have pity!"

Her voice died away in a wail of pain—low, faint, despairing. Lady Oliphant lifted her to her feet; and she stood looking at her with dim eyes, panting and exhausted from her passionate excitement.

"My poor child," her ladyship said tremulously, "you are paining me beyond all words. Let this cease now I will see you again. You must try to think it over calmly. Believe me I am only doing what I conceive to be my duty, and I will do anything in my power to help you to another home."

"It is not for that; it is not for my sake," Shirley said pitifully; "but I would kill—What am I saying? she added, pressing her hands to her forehead with a troubled gesture. "What am I saying?"

"I am afraid so much excitement will make us both ill," Lady Oliphant said, nervously, now anxious only to end the interview. "I must leave you, and you must try not to distress yourself more than you can help. Do you not think you had better let me send you some assistance for your household work?" she added, glancing at the fireless grate.

"Oh, no—oh, no!" Mrs. Grant answered, trying to be calm. "I do not need it, and—I have a fire upstairs."

"Do you sleep upstairs then? Surely the next room is warmer!" "Yes," was the faltering answer; and as Lady Oliphant, with a little gesture of farewell, passed out of the cottage, the young schoolmistress sank on her knees by the table and covered her face in a silent agony of tearful sobs, which shook her slender frame like a reed shaken by the wind.

"What shall I do?" she moaned presently, rising and pacing to and fro in the little room. "It would kill him; and yet, if they insist, of course I cannot resist. Oh, Heaven, help us! What are we to do? Where can we go? Even Mr. Litton has suffered for his goodness to us. Ah, he was good indeed not to betray us, and rather to let himself be misunderstood by the girl he loves! I bring misery everywhere; but some day I will go to Miss Venn and tell her, and he will be happy. I must write to Jack—I must write to Jack."

She broke off restlessly, and stood silent for a moment; then she went into the inner room, bathed her face with cold water, and smoothed the soft chestnut hair.

"He must not see me so distressed," she said, with a pitiful little smile. "And I am never safe from interruption. Oh, I am so tired!" she added, with a long heavy sigh. "My limbs ache with fatigue, and yet I must not be ill—I dare not be ill."

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES DIS-TEMPER.

Nurse's Years of Experience

Proves Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills Best Treatment for Kidney and Stomach Troubles.

The trained nurse has even greater opportunities than the doctor himself to watch the action of medicine in specific cases.

For years the writer of this letter has been recommending the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills among her patients, and is firmly convinced that no treatment is so prompt and effective.

This is the most valuable evidence obtainable, and we believe that all who know Mrs. Duffy will appreciate it to the full, knowing that she would not recommend anything in which she had not the fullest confidence.

Mrs. Duffy, nurse, 35 Lewis street, Toronto, writes: "I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for years and recommend them to my patients for all disorders of the kidneys, liver and stomach. In all my professional experience I have found nothing better." Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills fill a dose, 25 cent a box, at dealers or Edman, Bates & Co. Limited, Toronto.

It was pitiful to see how she tried to be cheerful and to efface the marks of weariness and sleeplessness which were so evident on her face.

He went slowly back to the sitting-room, and, even as she had done on Christmas Day, she took out writing materials to address her brother when now the letter would have to be sent to Etendale Hall. Drawing up a chair to the table, she sat down at the heart-weariness overcame her, and her head sank forward on her arms in an agony of low, pitiful weeping, which although it exhausted her, eased the burning brain to which the relief of tears was a mercurial one.

How long she lay there she did not know; she felt no chill, although the room was cold; nor did she hear the sound of heavy firm footsteps on the little brick-paved path at her door.

When the door opened quietly, and when a gentle touch upon her bowed head made her start up in alarm, she met the earnest, pitying, compassionate gray eyes which had once made all her sunshine, but which now she would have died rather than meet.

"Guy!" The white lips parted to utter his name, yet no sound came from them; but he guessed the word. "Yes," he said very gently. "Shirley, it is Guy!"

THE HOUSEHOLD EFFICIENCY CLUB.

By RUTH CAMERON.

I have always held that one of the peculiar little psychological differences between the male and female mind is that men like to read directions, prefaces, foot-notes, etc., while women usually skip such things. A man has just joined our Efficiency Club by sending in his contribution, and this is what it is.

"I take it even mere man may give you a hint for your 'short cut' in housekeeping. Years ago I took time to read one of the little ads that each package of soda contains, and since then have been putting a tablespoon of baking soda in the dishpan and washing the silver in that without any soap in hot water. Consequently we do very little scouring of silver in our kitchen. Try it and see. Of course egg stains need the scouring compound."

Mere man is more than welcome in our club. Also any of his brothers who have a contribution to offer. By the by, I think it may interest some of my readers to know that he is not a man who stays at home and does the housework, while his wife is a wage-earner, but the president of a large and successful coal company.

"Nothing is more trying to a busy housewife," writes a feminine reader-friend, "than to ruin a bit of nice ironing by scorching it. The next time you do this, instead of washing the garment all over again, try scrubbing the spot with a damp cloth and if the scorch is not too deep it can be removed in this way."

Another reader tells about a pet motion saver used by a woman who has to get up lunches for several in her family. It is a device which she calls "the lunch cart," a small washstand or commode which stands in front of her pantry window and not far from the kitchen table. In the large top drawer, wrapping paper, paraffine paper and paper napkins are kept; above the "lunch wagon" hangs a ball of cord and a pair of scissors; in one of the small drawers, cookies, wafers, etc. are kept; in the other, little jars of sandwich fillings, also pickles, relishes, etc., and in the remaining compartment are kept empty boxes of convenient size for lunches.

The possessor of this unique contrivance can put up a dainty and attractive lunch in ten minutes without moving three feet from the "lunch wagon."

Fads and Fashions.

Check and plaid cotton ratines are in high demand. Black and white china frocks are seen in the shops.

Both high and low collures are in fashion at present.

There is a revival of cross-stitch in artistic needlework.

Beads in flaming yellow pink color are called tango beads.

Rice cloth is a sheer cotton, with an inwoven knotted yarn.

Multi-colored stripes are seen even in wash silks and crepes.

Even Turkish towels nowadays are embroidered on their ends.

White crystal beads and jet beads are much used together.

Taffeta two and three piece suits are coming in for spring wear.

An immense tulle scarf to match the dress is pretty for evening.

The newest of the high hats have their crowns altogether of tulle.

Albatross wrappers have trimmings of black and white stripes.

Colors in silk petticoats are either very vivid or very delicate.

Accordion-pleated negligees are among the most satisfactory of any.

Silk kimono's in pale colors are heavily embroidered with silk roses.

The most noticeable thing in millinery is the tremendous vogue for jet.

Beaded girdles in Oriental coloring are another fad of the present day.

Very attractive rainy day hats are made of velvet and satin, reversible.

The lovely changeable dove colors are noticeable in the new supple taffetas.

Pastel plaids are much seen among the soft wool fabrics for spring.

We shall soon see the fashionable toque shaped in all sorts of straws.

Cherry red or jade green are lovely colors to use with white and silver brocade.

A novel crepe is promised considerable vogue—a crepe with panelled satin surface.

One of the prettiest styles among new neck fixings is the Medi collar with fichu attached.

CHILDHOOD.

I'm sick of school and sick of home. An' so I've started out Across the western plains to roam And be a noble scout. Home ain't a bit ad-vent-u-rus. You can't have any fun. An' my! there'd be a fearful fuss, If I should get a gun.

An' so I've packed my haversack As skilful as I can, An' I ain't never comin' back 'Till I'm a famous man; 'Till I have slayed a Injun chief An' shot a grizzly bear, An' maybe chased a cattle thief An' ketch'd him in his lair.

I guess I'm far away all right. An' I ain't no fun to hang, too. It's awful dark outside to-night; I'm kinda scared, ain't you? I want my mamma and my dad— It ain't no fun to roam. I'm just a tired little lad, Please, Mister, take me home! —Berton Braley, in Woman's World for February.

How He Saw the President.

When the French President travels it is more difficult for the ordinary mortal to approach him than it is for the average Briton to get within a short distance of the King.

Mr. Poincare recently visited Marseilles, where he is deservedly popular, but the number of invitations issued for the banquet given in his honour was strictly limited. A notable tradesman of the town was bemusing the fact that he had not received one, when he suddenly hit on a brilliant idea.

Having found out how the waiters were to be dressed for the great occasion, he got himself up in the same style, and obtained admission to the banquet hall without difficulty. Walking up and down among the guests with a bottle of champagne in his hand, he was able to contemplate his beloved President to his heart's content.

At last, however, he attracted the attention of the detectives who were guarding the President, and he was requested to follow them into a private room. He explained that he had disguised himself as a waiter in order to feast his eyes on the President.

He was granted his liberty after a few hours' detention.

The Latest Freak Fashion.

As Worn by Woman in Streets of London.

London, Feb. 10.—A woman wearing trowsers of a masculine cut with an overskirt slit in front which allowed the freest movements of the legs, appeared in Hyde Park yesterday and drew the surprised gaze of a few pedestrians, who noticed that the garments were perfectly creased and turned up at the bottoms, displaying colored stockings. The woman refrained from going into the streets where she would doubtless have been mobbed.

Little Brain Waves.

The boat rocker on the sea of matrimony drowns his fate. There's nothing so short as a long skirt—properly managed.

If marriage is a lottery, why don't they arrest the minister? The only way a woman can really manage a man is by obeying him.

One way to avoid being disappointed in love is to marry for money.

No woman can afford to wear pink unless she is eighteen and looks it.

The all black hat continues fashionable, and does away with a multitude of sins in colors.

COMPETITION.

By GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good Old Slawash."

Competition is a mysterious force which enables men to perform impossible feats.

It is supplied by some other fellow, who is trying to do things a little better. When a man runs a mile by himself, he seldom does it in less than six minutes unless he is pursuing a train. But when some other chap is running, too, men have been known to run a mile in a little over four minutes and to live happily ever afterward, not because they caught anything by running so fast, but because the other fellow didn't catch them.

When a man has no competition in business, he sells as cheaply as he possibly can and looks ruin in the face with a quiver of fear. When he has competition he cuts the price in two and the next year he buys an automobile.

It is quite easy to distinguish competition by becoming a customer. When a railroad agent smiles blandly and says that the company will take your freight as a favor, but that you should not let it occur again, there is no competition in the vicinity. When a gas company installs a run-away meter in your home and its only answer, when you complain about being charged for 11,000 feet of gas during the month in which you were away, is to ask you to close the door as you go out, competition in the neighbourhood is scarcer than cash.

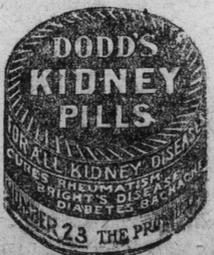

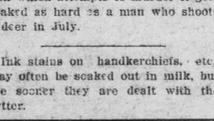

When an ice company suddenly begins to raise its prices 100 per cent at a jump, because of the increased price of hay and bulk pearls, it is a sure sign that some one has come out with a gun and shot competition in a vital spot.

A few years ago express companies charged more to carry articles than manufacturers charged to make them, and had no money left for delivery except within shouting distance of the office. They were doing the very best they could, considering the high rate of dividends, but one day the government unheeded a fresh barrel of competition and established the parcel post. To-day when a man takes an express parcel into an office, the manager weeps because he wasn't allowed to send for it, and rates have dropped to such a ruinous depth that the companies are making a little more money than ever.

Competition does many curious things like this and is a great blessing to the rude, unlettered customer. But great financiers have always displaced it and up to a few years ago, a trust magnate liked nothing better than to grab competition by the neck when he met it in a quiet place, and choke it to death with a few deft movements.

However, a closed season on competition of twelve months in every year has been established and the corporation which attempts to murder it gets soaked as hard as a man who shoots a deer in July.

Ink stains on handkerchiefs, etc., may often be soaked out in milk, but the sooner they are dealt with the better.

WEDNESDAY, Feb. 25, 1914. More Loans.

The Minister of Finance, Hon. M. P. Cashin, introduced into the House of Assembly yesterday two sets of resolutions relating to loans. The first set provides for the raising of Three hundred and sixty thousand dollars. One hundred and forty thousand dollars is to be applied to the extension of the telegraph system of the Colony; forty-five thousand to the erection of light-houses and fog-alarms; and one hundred and sixty thousand dollars to be devoted to the construction and improvement of public buildings.

Slight Blaze Last Night.

A slight fire of unknown origin occurred at Edens' stables shortly after 7 p.m. yesterday. The alarm was sent in by Const. Peachy, who was the first to see the blaze, and the Central and Eastern companies responded. The flames were quickly extinguished and very little damage was done. Two horses were in the stables at the time, but these were rescued just after the alarm was sent in.

YOUR WHOLE BUSINESS.

You simply cannot carry, even the most important, details of your business in your mind. But, as you are a good business man, you will insist on these details being always immediately available so as to compare them with those of yesterday, last month, last year. The famous "Safe Guard" method, originated by the Globe-Wernicke Co., makes your file a live index of your business and keeps every record quickly and surely accessible. Are you not interested in this more efficient, more economical system? MR. PERCIB JOHNSTON will be pleased to show you this equipment will be of inestimable usefulness by arranging the record of your whole business right at your hand.

Good Entertainment

The entertainment held at the Auld Maxima, of St. Bonaventure's College, yesterday afternoon, under the auspices of the Ladies' Association, was largely attended, and was very successful both from a social and financial standpoint. A very enjoyable musical programme was given, the principal performers being Mrs. C. Stranger, Misses Herder, Strang, Deane, Doyle, Sica and Wood; Messrs. H. Cowan, Fox, Halley, Joy and Summers. The several items were well received and the several performers were enthusiastically applauded. After the concert teas were served by the ladies, and a particularly interesting feature of the evening was the ring, button and coin competition. The winners were Miss Mollie Ellis, Mrs. Justice Johnson and Mrs. J. H. Ferrell, all of whom received suitable prizes. The receipts were in the vicinity of $70, and will be devoted to the funds of the Association.

HALIFAX, Feb. 24. Michael Young, aged 30, of St. John's, was killed to-night while working in the hold of the s.s. Manchester Trade. He was struck by a bag of slag. Deceased leaves a widow and two children. BREMEN, Feb. 24. A wireless received here from the German steamer Wildenfels, reports that she rescued a passenger, the second engineer, eight men and a boy from the Dutch steamer Eklipika, when she sank yesterday in the Bay of Biscay. The message stated that the captain perished, but does not mention the rest of her complement, who, it is assumed, went down with the ship.

GRAVESEND, Feb. 24. Nine of the ten labor leaders, deported from South Africa, on board the s.s. Ungeni, on January 27th, declared their intention to refuse to leave the vessel when she arrived here to-day. They said they would remain on board the steamer until the returned to South Africa. The General Secretary of the Federation of South Africa, acting as spokesman said: "We were pressed on this vessel against our consent. We do not intend to leave it until we land again in South Africa." A big welcome awaited by labor leaders here had to be called off.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24. A cabinet meeting to-day afforded President Wilson an opportunity to talk over with his official advisers the latest information at hand as to the execution of William S. Benton. One direct effect will be a manifestation of some kind by the United States to the Constitutionalists that Congress must be given ample protection. It is suggested that Washington may seek to reach an understanding with Villa through consular officers whereby the constitutionists agree not to take summary action with respect to any foreigners; all they have previously notified Washington officials.

EL PASO, Feb. 24. Efforts of Consul Edwards at Juarez to induce Villa to turn over to us without the loss of Benton, continued to-day. So far there is no response. Villa insists Benton attempt to kill him, and that he had turned the Scotchman over to the guard for execution. He asserts that it is now nothing of the whereabouts of Gustav Bauch, the German-American accused of being a spy for the United States, is regarded as a move intended to relieve the American Government of some of its financial protection of foreigners in Northern Mexico.

LONDON, Feb. 21. The Manchester Guardian says: "Either Sir Edward Grey's statement that the United States has no responsibility for the killing of Benton, or mere playing with words. If it were so, it says, the Monroe doctrine would be a mere instrument of international anarchy, whereas President Wilson's whole policy has been a view to make it a force for order and good government. If it is not responsible then the States certainly do not wish to drive a States into intervention, but must deny the other Powers the right of defending their own interests at the same time refuse them the right to defend themselves."

LONDON, Feb. 24. In the Commons, Roland McNeved the Premier if he was aware at an attempt was being made to give the Channel Tunnel project, if so, whether it differed in any respect from the proposed "condemnation" military opinion many years ago and consequently vetoed by the Government. Mr. Asquith replied that the investigation, now being conducted on behalf of the Government, was completed, it was not at all safe to give a detailed reply.

NORFOLK, W. Virginia, Feb. 24. With a severe snow and wind storm on the coast, the British steamers Sackem and Riverside at shore here. They were today in a more dangerous position than any time since they struck last week. The crew of the Sackem are still on board that vessel. The crew of the Riverside of lumber is being thrown on board and salvaged in the beach. He new is ashore.

LONDON, Feb. 24. In the Commons to-day the Opposition tried to obtain from Premier Asquith a disclosure of the conditions to be offered Ulster in the Home Rule Bill, by supporting the resolution introduced by Falls, Unionist member for Portsmouth. "That the House considers it imperative in the interests of public peace, that the Premier should submit his proposals without delay." The Premier refused to divulge the proposals, saying that the Government was prepared to put forward its suggestions at the earliest moment they could be considered by the House, which would be before the week. He declared he had no reason to supplicants for a truce, still less to hoist the flag of surrender. To his followers, he would say that the Government was not going to betray the great cause at the eleventh hour. The Opposition should understand the Government would not be browbeaten or hustled into a course which its judgment would not promote at all. He declared he had no reason to suppose that the Government would be embarrassed by the proposal. The matter of all parties should keep this in mind. Bonar Law asserted the country was fast drifting towards civil war and if the Premier had any proposals to make, it was criminal to delay them so long. The Government should be driven to drive the Government to make it impossible for the Government to force the Bill through the House, unless supported by the verdict of the people at the polls. Otherwise, he declared, its passage would be considered by Ulster as a declaration of war. The motion was defeated by a vote of 311 to 238.

Petitions were presented by Mr. Higgins, from Torbay, asking for a sum of money to repair a road; by Mr. Downry, from St. George's, asking for a sum of money to repair a bridge; by N. Stone, from New Melbourne, asking for the building of a telegraph of five miles; by Mr. Winsor, from Bunyan's Cove, asking for $40 to repair a road; also a petition presented by Mr. Higgins and endorsed by Messrs. Ken and Lloyd, asking that a retiring allowance be given Mr. Robert Pittman who for 50 years was an official in the Legislature and also a capable servant in other branches of the civil service. The House then went into Committee to consider the raising of a loan of $200,000 asked for in the Resolutions submitted by the Finance Minister and made up as follows: For the extension of the telegraph system of the Colony, $140,000; for the erection of light-houses and fog alarms, $45,000 for the construction and improvement of public bridges, $15,000.

Mr. Kent asked for some information. The Resolutions required careful consideration and he was not prepared to endorse them until he had seen the House went into Committee. Yet it seemed to him that the statement of the Finance Minister was another instance of the kind of thing which had been brought into the House. Messrs. Clark and Lloyd spoke briefly in a similar strain and refrained from comment until the Bill reached the Committee stage. Both gentlemen asked for particulars regarding the expenditure of the two previous loans amounting to $770,000. Mr. Kent asked, that in view of the Telegraph Extension Bill, it would be possible for the Finance Minister to refund to the District of Twillingate the amount that had been transferred from his credit to the Postal Telegraph Account.

The House then went into Committee on the new Railway Loan, the sum of $400,000 sterling, or $2,000,000, being asked to complete the five branch railways. The Finance Minister in a lengthy speech said that the amount asked for was necessary to meet unforeseen expenses to complete the roads. He stated that it was entirely to the credit of the Government that the Resolutions until we got fuller information. He said that the amount asked for was not more than was necessary to complete the roads. He stated that it was entirely to the credit of the Government that the Resolutions until we got fuller information. He said that the amount asked for was not more than was necessary to complete the roads. He stated that it was entirely to the credit of the Government that the Resolutions until we got fuller information.

Mr. Lloyd referred to the suggestion of the Loan Bill which says "A branch commencing at a point between Cape and Northern light on the H. N. Co's railway and extending to a point to be agreed upon in Fortune Bay." Four years has elapsed and no time has been agreed upon for the Fortune Bay Branch. Mr. Kent asked the Government for the way they spent the money on the way building. He could not see how a Premier with thirty years of official experience could make such a mistake as to estimate that five branch railways would be completed for four million dollars; already the lines cost six millions and more and he believed two millions more were asked for and then that is spent the branches will be half finished. He said that the former Government will go down in history as political bunglers and inexperienced apprentices. He claimed for the Government were "skinning" the A. N. D. Co. which was bringing so much labour in the country by charging them such high tariff on their "wretched goods imported." Mr. Coaker stated that the Morris Administration will bring financial ruin upon the country by their recklessness and he said that we will have to go back into Confederation. In conclusion he asked the Finance Minister to tell how much pickings the arbitrators got, such as Mr. Speaker, Mr. Emerson and all the other ministers.

The Prime Minister—He said he had read the Confederation cry for thirty years and never came and he believed it never would. He told that the nearest undertaking that this country ever engaged in was the building of the five branch railways. The Resolutions were then passed and further discussion was deferred until the bill stage. The Pension Bill was read a first time. The Bills respecting the Prosecution of the Seal Fishery; Representation in the House of Assembly; the Investigation of Combines and Monopolies; and the Suppression of the White Slave Traffic passed the third reading and ordered to be sent to the Legislative Council for concurrence. The Bills relating to the Workmen's Compensation Act, and the Employment of men engaged in Logging were deferred till the next sitting.

The Bill "An Act in Amendment of the Crown Lands Act respecting Saw Mills" was read a second time. Notices of questions were given by Messrs. Kent, Coaker, Hickman, Stone, Alfyard, Jenkins, Tarett and Abbott after which the House adjourned until three o'clock this afternoon.

THE ROYAL VISIT TO FRANCE.

A correspondent who has some intimation with the matter has furnished some interesting details of a Royal visit such as the King and Queen are, despite previous semi-official denials, going to pay to France. No one who has not some knowledge of what a state visit means (the writer) can form any idea of the intricacy and fuss of its preparation. Diplomatic negotiations have gone forward for months, possibly longer, and as soon as a date has been settled for the State visit the first preparations begin. The expenses are astonishing. It is said that it costs even the French President, who travels in comparative simplicity, "at least" £10 an hour. The question of clothes in itself is a gigantic one, the German Emperor taking with him, for instance, fifteen large trunks of clothes only. When he goes on a military tour of inspection, say, in Siam, he is said to need seventeen uniforms. Then a Sovereign on a visit of state travels with an enormous supply of decorations, as well as the official "present" which King George and Queen Mary will have to take to France. Usually these gifts are chosen as much as possible from home products; for instance, dinner services of our Milland china might be taken, Crown Derby, Minton, or Colclough, Wedgwood vases, or some of the resuscitated English or Irish lines of very fine designs. These gifts are, of course, packed in separate cases, and travel under the personal supervision of an official. On one occasion one of the mistakes occurred that the utmost care cannot always obviate, and such a case of presents was found being despatched abroad by slow goods train. Between the 22nd and April next, when the state visit to France takes place, there is plenty of work to be got through—and a great many people to do it.

SHUFFLING THE CARDS.

This year will witness some notable changes in the positions of the Governor-Generals of the Empire Dominions. Next to Canada the office of the King's representative at the Commonwealth is considered the most enviable of these lofty posts, because

For twenty years he worked in conjunction with this first and greatest of our politico-financial builders of Empire. He is still only in his fifty-fourth year, and a decade hence his name may be as much in everyone's mouth as that of Rhodes was at the time of the Jameson raid. Until the agreement appears one cannot write positively on anything but one may hazard the opinion that it will prove fatal to Rhodes' dream of a Cape-to-Cairo railway, at least from the economic point of view.

NORTH ATLANTIC SITUATION.

Shipping people in touch with the different companies involved by the North Atlantic dispute are I believe of opinion that the struggle will neither be very keen or of long duration. Ten years ago the rate war lasted five months and so bitter was the antagonism aroused that before it ended the chairman of one of the companies announced that rather than give way he could take passengers from or to New York at ten shillings a head, and allow each of them a pint of beer a day as well. At that time and also in 1908, the Cunard and the White Star Lines were in opposite camps, so that British interests were seriously affected. To-day, however, they are united, and it is not considered likely that reduced fares will come into operation on this side of the North Sea.

A FAMOUS FRENCHMAN.

The death of M. Paul Deroulede was not unexpected, as his state of health had for some time excited apprehension. By the French, however, he will be deeply regretted. There have been many men in France who have written better poetry than M. Deroulede although his "Chants du Soldat" enjoyed a rare vogue. There have been many men more eloquent as orators, more practical as politicians, and of greater ability in all respects. No Frenchman has, however, been a more ardent patriot than this picturesque royalist and friend of General Boulenger who has now passed away. Even when guilty of his worst mistake, there could be no doubt of M. Paul Deroulede's consuming passion for France. He idolized his native land, and Frenchmen knew it, and forgave him much. At the same time, the little attempt of his in 1899 to persuade General Roget to lead his troops against the Elysee and to effect a coup d'etat might have had very mischievous consequences. Patriotism, even ardent patriotism, is an excellent thing, but patriotism of the most strenuous and ebullient kind is often bad for the patrie. If not also for the patriot.

THE ANGLO-GERMAN AGREEMENT AND AFRICA.

The text of the long-expected Anglo-German Agreement will be published some time next week. The negotiations must therefore be nearly over. It will be found, I imagine, that as far as Africa is concerned they have concentrated very largely upon the personality of one Englishman, rather Scotsman, Mr. Robert Williams. The keystone of the Anglo-German edifice is Katanga, the southern portion of the Belgian Congo that separates German East Africa from Portuguese Angola, which is to become an exclusively German sphere of influence. Katanga is one of the treasure houses of the world, its mineral wealth, and consequently its future, is said to be incalculably great. Now, it is not an exaggeration to say that Mr. Williams (or rather the Tanganyika Concessions Company, of which he was founder with Cecil Rhodes) is managing Director, holds Katanga and Angola, in the hollow of his hand. The Tanganyika Company even controls the Beuguela Railway upon which the Germans will have to depend for tapping the great wealth of Katanga. Thus the negotiations of the last year must have been principally taken up in arrangements with Mr. Williams for the admission of a certain proportion of German capital to the great and beneficial work of exploitation of which he is the pioneer. Mr. Williams is virtually unknown to the man in the street. Yet he has carried Rhodes' work into the heart of Africa, and has, if anything, enlarged Rhodes' scale of Empire building.

OUR FUTURE NAVAL OFFICERS.

It is not surprising that the wisdom of insisting upon Osborne cadets being mere children is once more under question. High educational standards may be claimed for 13½ years, the present age of entry, and to a much less extent for the exceedingly stiff entrance examination—so stiff that the standard of nine has to be made very elastic. Yet educational tenacity is against this early forcing, and we find the Osborne system severely criticized in the press by so high an authority in educational matters as Dr. Herbert Gray, former head master at Bradfield, who has had experience of the system as examiner, and by Admiral Higderson, the founder of the Australian navy. Dr. Gray advocates raising the age of entry to at least 16. That, of course, is the age at which in civil life most middle-class boys enter offices or technical schools. But the prejudice in the navy is for "catching them young" and in the discussion we have the sermons of past centuries quoted in support of the prejudice—as, for example, Collingwood's dictum, that "15 is too old to begin, for few take to the sea at that age." Many navy traditions are at least a century old, and are ineradicable. A still more serious objection to the Osborne system is its expensiveness, which shuts out any but rich men's sons from a naval career. Yet one has only to read Smollett, Marryat, or Jane Austen to perceive that the naval officer in those days of the navy was typically a poor man, and socially almost despised.

An Old Fisherman in Distress

Editor The Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—Would you oblige me through the columns of your valuable paper space in reference to an old fisherman, William Root, and his wife, who live in a hut at the head of Mundy's Pond, are in dire distress they have neither coal, food or clothing and are in a wretched state. It would be a great charity for the kindly disposed public to help this poor family. The poor man is a cripple himself and in a dying condition. The papers said Mr. Ell Whiteway gave him assistance; such is not the case and some charitable person or persons who will visit this poor family can see the way they are situated.
Yours truly,

Thick, Glossy Hair No More Dandruff

Girls! Beautify your hair! Make it soft, fluffy and luxuriant—Try the moist cloth.

Try as you will, after an application of Danderine, you cannot find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most, will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is immediate and amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance, the beauty and shimmer of true hair health.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all.

Woman Journalist Suddenly Called.

Mrs. Alfred Denison ("Lady Gay") Succumbs to Attack of Appendicitis.

Many will be shocked to learn of the death after a brief illness of Mrs. Grace E. Denison, "Lady Gay," for many years one of the staff writers of Toronto Saturday Night and one of the best known women journalists of Canada. During the early part of last week she was about attending to her duties as social editor of that journal and in apparent good health and spirits. On Tuesday night after returning from a social function she was taken ill, but imagined that she was merely suffering from an attack of acute indigestion. On Wednesday finding herself no better, she summoned Dr. F. P. Doolittle, who found her suffering from an acute attack of appendicitis, and rushed her off at once to Victoria Memorial Hospital, where she was operated on on Wednesday evening. The operation showed a very serious condition, but she rallied so well that no thought of her demise was entertained.

The late Mrs. Denison was a daughter of the late Archdeacon Sandys, of Chatham, Ont., and widow of the late Alfred Denison, who predeceased her three months ago. Though in her 61st year, her good health and high spirits were characteristic of a much younger woman. From girlhood she showed literary tastes and was the author of many short stories and sketches contributed to American and Canadian publications. Early in 1891 Mr. E. E. Sheppard induced her to take the position of society editor of Saturday Night, a position she held for nearly twenty-three years. In addition, she contributed a weekly causerie on current events of interest to women to which was attached her familiar pen name of "Lady Gay." She had travelled extensively not only throughout Canada, but in Great Britain and Europe. Few Canadians of either sex had so wide an acquaintanceship or were so generally popular. Some of her travel sketches she embodied in a book entitled "A Happy Holiday," which at the time of its publication, had a wide sale. The late W. Sandys, editor of Outlook Magazine, New York, and a writer of considerable note, was a brother, and she is survived by her mother and an unmarried sister, both of whom reside at Chatham, Ont. Mrs. Denison also leaves an adopted son, A. A. Monk, employed in the New York office of the George H. Hees Company, of Toronto. Mr. Monk is away on his honeymoon, and efforts to locate him had proved fruitless.

McMurdo's Store News.

WEDNESDAY, Feb. 25, 1914.
We have just opened a full stock of the famous Farnia (Wicker) Cologne. This cologne is made by the best manufacturer of this celebrated toilet perfume, and is from the original recipe possessed by the family since the middle ages. Three sizes price 30c., $1.50 and $2.50 a bottle.
Peroxide of Hydrogen is always a handy thing to have in the house. As a potent yet non-poisonous, and in every sense harmless antiseptic and germicide, as a healing lotion for sore gums and mouth, as a styptic for scratches and slight cuts, and in cases of deafness caused by hardening of wax in the ear it is the most convenient thing to have by you. A four ounce bottle (full germicidal strength) for 15 cents.

Mr. J. A. W. McNelly Solicitor, will be away from town for about three weeks. During his absence his practice will be attended to by Mr. Jas. I. Blackwood, Solicitor, Temple Building, Duckworth St.—Feb 14, 1914.

Marshall Bros.

Mr. William Marshall

DEAD AT MANCHESTER.
To-day we chronicle with much regret, the sad and unexpected death of Mr. William Marshall, of Marshall Bros., who died at Manchester at six o'clock this morning. Heart trouble was the cause of his early demise as he had been ailing only a fortnight. Only five weeks ago he left St. John's on a visit to the English markets to purchase a spring stock of goods for his firm. It appears that while on the other side he was stricken with a severe attack of the heart ailment. Last night, Mr. Chas. Marshall, brother of the deceased, had a cablegram to the effect that his brother was dangerously ill, and at nine this morning received a message that he had passed away. Deceased was 42 years of age, a partner of the firm of Marshall Bros., and a splendid type of man. The Rev. Mr. Whitmarsh broke the sad news to the wife of the deceased. The corpse will be embalmed at Manchester and forwarded to St. John's for interment. Deceased was the son of the late Alexander Marshall. Besides a widow and two children, he is survived by a mother, three brothers, Charles, Alexander and George, and two sisters, Mrs. John Pierson, of Toronto, and Mrs. John Bryden, of Seranton, Pa. To the bereaved family the Telegram expresses its deepest sympathy.

Races at Parade Rink.

The championship and all-comers races came off at the Parade Rink last night and created more than ordinary interest. In the former event Squires and Hackett competed. Both men changed position for several rounds but Squires reached the tape first. The distance covered was three miles in 11 mins. 41 secs.
In the all-comers race six competitors took part—Bishop, Lidstone, Marshall, O'Toole, Chaney and Evans. Chaney came in first with Evans a close second and Lidstone third. Three miles was the distance covered and the time was 12 mins. 8 secs.
The prizes presented were: for the championship race, a belt; and for the all-comers race, gold and silver medals to first and second places.

Action of Firemen.

The monthly meeting of the Firemen's Union, held last night was largely attended.
It was decided that Union members will not sell with non-union members at the sealshery the coming spring. As it is now too late for the non-union members on the ships to join the Union, and the members of the organization will have to be employed to replace them, in order to avoid further trouble.

NO NEWS OF BLANCHE CURRY.
No word of the Blanche Curry, which was driven off by the storm of the 7th inst., has yet been received. If the vessel ran for Barbadoes she should soon be heard from. Since she is now 85 days out on the passage from Brazil, it is expected that her provisions must be running short.

Wedding at St. Mary's.

A pretty wedding was solemnized at Riverhead, St. Mary's, on the 14th inst., when Mr. Michael Lee was united to Miss Norah Lee, daughter of George Lee. The ceremony was attended by a large number of friends of the contracting parties. Rev. Father O'Driscoll officiated. Before the ceremony the rev. gentleman delivered an eloquent sermon on matrimonial duties. The bride was charmingly attired in a dress of white satin. The groom was supported by his brother, J. J. Lee, and E. Lee, brother of the bride. After the ceremony refreshments were served at the residence of the bride's father; a large number attending. The wedding party drove to the groom's home on the north side where a wedding feast was in order to which some sixty people were invited and did ample justice to the good things provided. Both the bride and groom are very popular and received a large number of presents from their numerous friends. Wishing Mr. and Mrs. Lee many years of wedded life. WEL WISHER. Riverhead St. Mary's, Feb. 18th, 1914.

Where They Test Shells.

About the Secret Experiment at Woolwich Arsenal.

Boom! If, by chance, you live within a five miles' radius of Woolwich, you will hear that music throughout the day and you will find the windows of your residence reverberating to the crashing of artillery. No; it is not the arrival of the German fleet in the Thames. It only means that guns and shells are being experimented with in the testing ground at the far end of Woolwich Arsenal.

Not only is the Arsenal itself protected by an enormously high wall and by armed guards at every point, but the testing ground is still further inclosed from outside view by another high wall. To reach the ground involves a trip on the R.A. private railway, on which His Majesty the King and the Royal Family travelled on their visit to Woolwich some time back.

Toy Railway Takes the New Guns.
It is but a toy railway; yet it keeps busy a large staff of workers on its mass of lines, signals, shunting points, and funicular cabins, and, though so small, it has a grim record in the fatalities for which it has been responsible. It runs the entire length and circumference of the Arsenal; and, as the shells and newly cast guns are finally completed, they are shunted on to the rails and dispatched to the testing station.

Here, ceremony and solemn secrecy have, recently, a newcomer was sent with a message to an official at the testing station. On showing his message and his number he was admitted through the gates, and was proceeding towards the man he was seeking, when he was seen by two or three of the gunners.

They, not recognizing him, shouted the news of his approach. Thereupon the superintendent ordered them to remove him. They at once ran in his direction, and he, bewildered, took to his heels and bolted out of the testing station. A man in full flight, in the Arsenal, suggests all manner of possibilities, and in a moment a couple of dozen workers were after him. That unfortunate youngster was chased half-way round the place by nearly fifty men and boys before he collapsed and was able to stammer out explanations.

GOSPEL SERVICES.

AT GOWER STREET CHURCH.
The series of united services which are to be held on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings under the auspices of the four city Epworth Leagues, were begun last night and were largely attended. Mr. A. Soper was in charge, and in a very judicious manner, conducted the meeting to a successful issue. He was assisted by several members of the League, and also had a nice choir ground him on the platform, and all the arrangements were harmonious and well chosen. Among the special features of the meeting was a choir song, rendered by Mrs. Cochran, of George St. League, and also a duet by the Misses Kendall; and inspiring songs planned by Mr. Soper, formerly of London, Eng., but now of our city. The cornet playing was a great acquisition to the singing assembly, and it is hoped that Mr. Soper will be able to contribute his talent at all the services to be held. The entire spirit of the service last night was both helpful and encouraging, and the addresses by the leader and Mr. L. C. Morris were specially applauded. GOSPEL SERVICES. In all there was a spirit of unity, and everybody seemed to find their right place. All the people sang, and the result was that all felt "it was good to be there." We feel certain that the promises of these services must be greatly encouraged by the attendance and interest so manifested in their evening meetings; and if last night may be taken as a criterion of the series, then we have no doubt whatever, and no reason to shrink, that the great work which will be accomplished, and lasting results will follow.

"THE EAGLE'S NEST."
The production of the thrilling melo-drama, "The Eagle's Nest," at the Casino Theatre last night was attended by a large and appreciative audience. The play was excellently staged, the scenery very effective, and the players quite at home in their different roles. The whole matter is filled with thrilling situations and climaxes, and from the murder of Mrs. Silbee and abduction of Rose Milford by the villain, Robert Blason, up to the latter's defeat by Jack Trail in the great knife fight, the excitement is intense. Mr. J. J. O'Grady as Jack Trail won new laurels by his clever acting. Mr. I. Spearns played a difficult role with great success; Mr. J. P. Prosser was very realistic as Geoffrey Milford, and the comedy was supplied by Daniel Blissey, who was cleverly impersonated by Mr. C. Fitzgibbon. Miss M. Jackson as Rose Milford was very pleasing, and Miss J. Carroll in the dual role of Mrs. Silbee and Sister Suze was very natural and displayed rare histrionic ability. The other characters were ably sustained by Messrs. Sullivan, Burnstein, Parsons and Fagan. During the intervals some excellent selections were discoursed by the C. C. C. band, which were enthusiastically received and added greatly to the enjoyment of the evening. The proceeds will go towards the funds of the C. C. C. Corps.

By Fire and Faggot.

Seathing indictment of Duke's Misdeeds.

Of all the dark deeds perpetrated in the Highlands of Scotland, none has left behind memories more shameful than the "Sutherland clearances." The Sutherland estates have been much before the public in connection with the present Duke's offer to sell to the State in connection with the land policy of the Government. A fierce indictment of the first Duke of Sutherland, the author of the famous "clearances," appears in the London Times. The writer is Mr. Peter Ross, of Eyre-crescent, Edinburgh, his letter being by way of reply to Mr. Chaplin, whose point of view was a different one. "As a descendant," he writes, "of one of the thousands who suffered so seriously at the hands of the first Duke of Sutherland, I resent Mr. Chaplin's letter. From that letter one would think that the first Duke was a philanthropist of the first order, who used his great wealth for the benefit of a people who before his time were sunk in poverty and misery. What are the facts? It was under this man that that appalling series of crimes known as the Sutherland clearances took place. In 1814 he cleared out by fire and faggot 2,000 souls from the prairies of Kilmoran. In 1819 the beautiful valley of Strathnaver were turned aside to die on the seashore. Not a building was left standing—houses, barns, mills, church, and manse were burned to the ground. Altogether between the years 1807 and 1819, over 15,000 persons were turned out of their comfortable homes in which they had lived from time to time immemorial. The land which they had broken in from the wild by generations of toil and industry was at one fell swoop confiscated without any thought of compensation. This is the secret source of a large part of the wealth of this Sutherland family. There is abundant evidence proving that the Sutherland clearances constituted a catalogue of crimes unequalled in the annals of human folly. General David Stewart, of Garth, himself a Highland landlord, who had led our Highland regiments in all parts of the British Empire, published his "Sketches of the Highlanders" in 1852. In this book, which is more entrancing than any novel I ever read, Mr. Chaplin will find charges made against this first Duke of Sutherland which have never been answered. The Rev. Donald Sage, in his charming book, "Memorabilia Domestica," gives the harrowing details of an eye-witness. Donald McLeod, also an eye-witness, tells in full detail the story of these clearances in the "Gloomy Memories." The Marquis of Tullibardine, speaking at Alloa on Oct. 6th, 1913, said that these clearances had left an indelible stain on the good name of the first Duke of Sutherland. Mr. Chaplin says the people were living in a state of chronic poverty bordering on famine. No one ever suggested that the Highland people lived in luxury before the clearances. But this is an undoubted fact—that the circumstances were such that they produced...

The Finest Soldery in Europe. Thousands of the men of Sutherland were in every battle of the Peninsular war, and hundreds of them were standing in the squares of Waterloo at the very moment that the Duke of Sutherland was hounding out their wives and children as if they were wild beasts. The Mackays or Strathnaver possess the proudest name in the military annals of Great Britain, and were always among the bravest of the brave on every battlefield until their military valour was extinguished for ever in 1819 by a Sassenach duke armed with all the terrors of the law. . . . Does Mr. Chaplin know about the famines of 1836 and 1846? The evicted Highlanders were starving in 1836, but the duke refused to allow help to be given in Sutherlandshire from the publicly-subscribed funds. He promised relief himself, and after much delay he did send a few bolts of oatmeal and some seed cats and seed potatoes. But what was the aftermath? Next term day each one who had participated in the relief was presented with a bill for three times the market price of this free ducal gift, and this bill had to be paid before the rent. The reason is obvious. Does Mr. Chaplin know how the roads of Sutherlandshire were really built? The famine of 1846 was every bit as bad in the Highlands of Scotland as it was in Ireland. Over £300,000 was collected to save the Gael from extinction, the Duke of Sutherland contributed £2,000 to the fund among other Highland landlords. Finally, the committee in charge of the funds divided the money among the Highland landlords in proportion as they had contributed to the funds. These gentlemen, knowing the condition of the people best, would provide work for them, and so the money would be well spent. The Duke of Sutherland got £6,000 for his £2,000. He built a road right through the county for the convenience of his English sheep-farmers, and, incidentally, he paid the poor devils who worked for him at the rate of 1 lb. of stoned oatmeal for 10 hours' hard labor.

ART.

I want to see the painless artist to have some brand new photos made; he's celebrated as the smartest and slickest workman in his trade. "And now," I said, in accents haughty, "I want to look just like myself, and not like some old fogey dotty imported image on a shelf. You need not fuss around and bustle to beautify me, as it were; I am not Colonel Lillian Russell, and do not wish to look like her. Just picture me as I am looking each day, upon the busy mart; I'll have you know I am not brooking your high experiments in art. Let actresses and kindred friskers do posing stunts with mouth ajar; just photograph my ears and whiskers, my nose and larynx, as they are." Just sit down here," he said, with feeling, "and place your chin within your hand, and glue your eyes upon the ceiling, and look magnetic, weird and grand." I saw it was no use to tarry; he simply could not play my game, and make a picture I could carry around without a blush of shame. In all my pictures I resemble some folks I never came across the 1st to lamented Fanny Kemble, or else the long lost Charlie Ross!

Healthy and U-healthful lighting

Gas, it may be said, vitiate the atmosphere. True. But it also helps to purify it. Its purifying power is greater than its vitiating power. Electricity does not vitate, nor does it purify. Hear what three eminent men have said:—

Much evidence has lately been adduced to show that gas is more useful than the electric light in promoting decent ventilation of air. It is for this amongst other reasons, that gas is being frequently substituted for the electric light. The latest example is, perhaps, the Society of Medical Officers of Health which has recently installed in its premises, after experience in the electric light.—Dr. Jamieson Murray

It would merely add that no member who had experience of their room under the old conditions would deny the improvement that had been since gas had been substituted for the electric light and the system of heating and ventilation has been installed.—Dr. Reginald Dudgeon, before the Society of Medical Officers of Health

I have in my mind's eye at the moment a hall which in the old days was lighted by gas and in which a large audience could with comfort sit through an hour's lecture or with ease through a three-act drama. But which, with the march of civilization had its illumination changed from gas to electricity the latter being employed with all the latest refinements to effect the lighting under the best conditions with the result that any large gathering within a hall leads to a state of little or no asphyxiation.—Vivian B. Lewis, Professor of Chemistry at the Royal Naval College Greenwich.—1908

As the Seed Flies

A hard and often a heart-breaking crisis in a woman's life is that which comes when she feels that her child is slipping away from her.

During infancy he has no real individuality. He is a part of his environment. He is still enfolded in the personality of his family, thinking their thoughts, even as he imitates their speech and gestures. This period is full of sweetness to the mother. It is the reward of her travail, the joy and light that redeems her constant self-sacrifice.

But the law of nature is that this shall come to an end. In time the child develops his own opinions, ambitions and tastes. And right here, unless the mother be wise and self-controlled, is the occasion of bitterness if not tragedy.

Little by little she sees that her boy has notions "of his own." He begins to question the things that heretofore he has always accepted. He asserts himself in strange and sometimes rebellious ways. He wants to be "left alone." He selects companions of which his parents do not approve. Gradually he adopts an attitude of half-defiance toward the family precedents, habits and doctrines.—Dr. Frank Crane, in Women's World for February.

John Wende of Westham is generally believed to have been the father of fox hunting. He was master of the hounds for more than half a century, and then he sold his pack for the record price of 2,000 guineas. "This mighty hunter," writes Gibbon Thompson, "died in 1838 at the ripe old age of 86 years at his house Charles Street, Berkeley Square. On the portraits of him at Squerricourt, that by James Green, is in the dining-room. His favorite hounds were two, Glory and Beauty; the picture shows him with but one and he supposed to be soliloquizing. My beauty hath departed, but my Glory remains."—London Chronicle.

STREET CHURCH.
of united services which held on Tuesday, Wednesday evenings, under the auspices of the four city Epworth Societies, were begun last night, and will be continued until the 27th inst. Mr. A. Soper was the soloist, and in a very judicious manner conducted the meeting to a successful issue. He was assisted by members of the League, and a nice choir around him. The arrangements were harmonious and well thought out, and the special features were a choice solo, rendered by Mrs. C. Soper, and also a duet by the soloist and Miss M. Soper. Inspiring and encouraging music was sung, and the singing was a great asset to the service. Mr. Soper's talent at all times to be held. The entire service last night was a most successful one, and was especially adapted to the occasion. In all these things, and everybody had their right place. All in all, and the result was "it was good to be there." It is to be hoped that the promoters of these services must feel greatly benefited by the attendance and interest manifested in their opening. If last night may be taken as a criterion of the service, then doubt whatever and no one stating that great good was accomplished, and lasting results.

Molassine Meal!

FOR HORSES

Suggestions for Feeding.

BEGIN by feeding 1 lb. of Molassine Meal per day to each horse as an extra during the first week, and mix thoroughly.

SECOND WEEK: Feed 2 lbs. of Molassine Meal to each horse per day and knock off 1 lb. of Oats.

THIRD WEEK and onwards: Feed 3 lbs. to each horse in place of 3 lbs. of other food.

In this way the horses are brought on to the food gradually and soon show an improvement. Hard flesh will be put on rapidly and the weight will improve.

50 PER CENT. SAVED ON YOUR TAILOR'S BILLS.

The success of Ungar's Dry Cleansing Process is such that any man can reasonably expect to save 50 per cent. on his tailor's bill by allowing us to smarten up his clothes, which, altho worn out, have become too soiled to be used.

The people of St. John's who have tried our processes of cleaning and dyeing have been more than delighted with the results. In two weeks' time your garments are returned in perfect condition, having every appearance of new.

Enquire of our local agents, Messrs. Nicholle, Inkpen & Chafe, Ltd., for full particulars.
