CHAPTER X.

This latest visitor was a middle-aged man, with a face that belonged to that of the laboring class. The mouth was coarsely cut, the brows heavy, the eyes evasive, half-cunning, half-timid. His thick-set figure was like his face, that of the lower middle class, and he was dressed in a respectable fashion enough, but quite unlike most of the fashionable men present. In short, the man might have been taken for a well-to-do tradesman from the provinces, or a pilot, who had exchanged his rough overalls and pea-jacket for his best suit. A commonplace man enough, so commonplace that, though several looked up at his entrance, no one gave him a second glance—not even Desmond March, who sardoniously kept his eyes on his cards.

The man stood for a moment looking round, as if he were renewing his familiarity with the scene; then he went, with the heavy step of the man who has known physical toil, to the counter for a drink, and, after drinking it slowly, loitered, exchanging a banter, as heavy as his gait with the woman at the bar; then seemed about to leave.

But he hesitated, and presently gravitated to the table where Desmond and the lad were playing.

As he did so, as his eyes fell on Desmond March, he started, his face paled, and he turned quickly, as if about to go.

But Desmond March, without taking his eyes off his cards, and without raising or changing the voice in which he had been speaking, said, slowly:

"No; don't go. I know you. Wait till I've done here. I want to speak to you."

The man stood, biting his thick lips, and looking, with a frown, at the handsome face, with its eyes still fixed on the cards, and seemed to hesitate, but once again the smooth voice said:

"I know you—knew you the moment you came in. Wait. Your play, Wally!"

The man hesitated a moment, then he went slowly to a chair, dropped into it, and sat staring uneasily at the door, as if he would have escaped even then, if he had dared.

CHAPTER XI.

Desmond March did not hurry his game, did not even glance at the thick-set, commonplace man, who leaned back in the chair, and, with a poor attempt at ease and nonchalance, waited Mr. March's pleasure.

Desmond March and his piece played until the latter could no longer see the cards; in fact, collapsed, and fell across the table; then March leisurely put the I.O.U.'s the lad had given him into a pocket-book, and, dragging Lord Wally to his feet, administered a big glass of soda-water and led him from the room. As they passed the man in the chair, March, without looking at him, said cheerfully:

"Back directly."

Having put the lad into a cab, and told the driver the address—"better take him for a little round first, cabby," he said pleasantly. "Here's a sovereign for your fare. Look after him!"—March went back to the room, and, beckoning to the man, signed to him to take the chair Wally had vacated.

"What will you drink?" he asked. "I'm not drinking anything," replied the man sullenly. "I've stayed because you asked me to; but I don't know you, sir, and I don't know what business you can have with me."

Desmond March nodded to one of the waiters.

"Bring some whiskey—out of Mr. Moss's own bottle, please!—and some soda-water," he said; then he handed his cigar-case to the man opposite him, and carefully lit a cigar for himself. There was in the action so plain an indication of conscious power, of superiority, that the man, as if hypnotized, lit a cigar, and took the drink the waiter placed before him.

"You don't know me?" said Desmond March, leaning forward, and eyeing his companion with a smile of sardonic enjoyment. "My name is March. Recall anything?"

The man shook his head. "Oh, come!" remonstrated March, with a shake of his head. "You knew me the moment you came up to the table, and you were going to bolt, if I hadn't stopped you. A bad memory is a great drawback; I've always felt that, and cultivated mine. For instance, I can go back twelve years—yes, it's twelve years ago—and recall a very pleasant visit I made to a friend who held an official position under government; in fact, he was the governor of Portland convict prison—"

The man had his glass half-way to his lips, but he arrested the action, and put the glass down. His ruddy face paled, his thick brows came down, and his lips drew together; but he said nothing, and kept his eyes fixed on the handsome, smiling face opposite him.

"A very interesting visit it was," Desmond March went on, in a ruminating fashion, as if he were pleasantly recalling the time. "Of course, I went over the prison, and saw a great deal of the convicts. There's always a peculiar, gruesome charm about prison life—to the spectator; just as there is about the morgue and the scaffold. Ever seen a man hanged? I have—got in with a press ticket. It's interesting. That cigar doesn't draw, I'm afraid. Take another!"

The man ignored the offer, and Desmond March resumed:

"One night the whole place was in a state of excitement; usual cause—a convict had escaped. All the warders—guards, do you call them?—were up in arms, the alarm bell was rung, and the hue and cry was out in hot pursuit. The man had stunned a warder, got into the yard, and skinned up a pole—they were repairing a roof, or something—to the outer wall. His name was Garling, and he was one of the model prisoners, and had earned ever so many good-conduct marks; but he had been playing the saint with an object, and was the last man likely to be suspected of attempting to escape. It looked as if he would get clear off, for the pursuit was at a loss for a couple of days; but on the third, if I remember rightly, they found him, half starved, behind a hayrick. Another drink?"

He ordered it, but the man took no notice of it when it was brought, and still kept his eyes fixed on March's smiling ones.

"I was present when the fellow was brought in. Poor devil! He had had a rough time of it! He was covered with mud and blood—one of the guards had been obliged to club him over the head, for, weak as he was, he had put up a fight for it. His clothes were torn, the skin hanging to the palms of his hands in shreds, and he was half dead with exhaustion and disappointment. I had a good look at him, of course, and I shouldn't be likely to forget him, even if my memory wasn't as good as it is. I can see him now. There he is beside you!" he added, with a sharp change of tone.

The man turned his head, and saw himself reflected in a dingy pier-glass.

Desmond March laughed.

"Besides, he had an identification mark—a scar on his left arm. Ex-

Vigorous Health Restored to Run-Down Women.

Made Wonderful Recovery When Dr. Hamilton's Pills Were Used.

"I was never actually sick," writes Mrs. Norman La Pierre, wife of a well known resident of Labeniene, "yet I never could get strong like other women. I ate well enough, but somehow rich and red blood I could never make. When I married I took a great pride in my housekeeping, but it kept me tired all the time. Mrs. Lechance, my neighbor, looked well—she told me her health had been made up by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I only thought of pills as a physic, but now I know that Dr. Hamilton's Pills are more, for they quickened my stomach, liver and bowels—made me stouter and stronger, gave me such color in my cheeks as I never had before. I sincerely believe Dr. Hamilton's Pills should be used by every woman—that's why I write this letter."

No medicine invigorates and renews health and spirits like Dr. Hamilton's Pills. 25c. per box, five for $1.00, at all druggists and storekeepers, or postpaid from the Cattaraugus Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Ont.

"Oh, come!" remonstrated March, with a shake of his head. "You knew me the moment you came up to the table, and you were going to bolt, if I hadn't stopped you. A bad memory is a great drawback; I've always felt that, and cultivated mine. For instance, I can go back twelve years—yes, it's twelve years ago—and recall a very pleasant visit I made to a friend who held an official position under government; in fact, he was the governor of Portland convict prison—"

The man had his glass half-way to his lips, but he arrested the action, and put the glass down. His ruddy face paled, his thick brows came down, and his lips drew together; but he said nothing, and kept his eyes fixed on the handsome, smiling face opposite him.

"Now we've cleared the way, let us be comfortable, Mr. Garling," Desmond March said pleasantly. "Take your drink, light up another cigar, and—enjoy yourself. What on earth did you come here for?"

With a shrug of his broad shoulders, and a jerk of his head, Garling drank some whiskey, and lit a fresh cigar; then he leaned his elbows on the table, and regarded his tormentor, as if he expected some more questions, and he was not disappointed.

"Twelve years ago," said Desmond March, as if he were calculating, "you had two years to serve when you made a bolt for it. I remember, because they were surprised at your not waiting, seeing that your time was so nearly out. Why didn't you?"

Garling cleared his throat, and smiled grimly.

"The last year, the last month, the last day, the worst to bear," he said. "And you had an extra term, or did they let you off easy?"

"They let me off—easy," said Garling, with dry irony.

"Let me see, what were you in for? Ah, yes, a little affair of a bank, and a safe. Why, of course! I remember. They used to call you the Ironmonger, because you were so good at negotiating safes and strong rooms. That was one of the interesting bits of information my friend the governor gave me. The Ironmonger. And it wasn't your first conviction. So they gave you your ticket, and you—now, pardon my curiosity, what did you do? Get into trouble again? Have you just come 'out'?"

He glanced at the man's thick, iron-gray hair, which was of the ordinary length. "Ah, no; I see that you have not been in the 'jug' lately. What has been your game, eh, Garling?"

Garling's lids dropped. Then he raised them, with a curious smile.

"If I was to tell you the truth, you wouldn't believe me," he said, and the smile broadened for a moment, then passed, and left his face grim again; but there was a strange, half-mocking expression in his eyes.

"I daresay not," said Desmond March. "That's the worst of having a bad name; you lose your credit, and may as well be hanged at once, with the proverbial dog. Been abroad?"

"Yes; I have been abroad," said

Garling musingly. Then, suddenly, he said:

"And now let me ask you a question or two, Mr. March. I drop in here, just like any other man might do, for a drink, the public being shut, and I run against a person that remembers me, and spots me at once. That person is a gentleman, a regular swell—though he does pass the time rooking a boy. No offense, sir—"

"None at all!" responded Desmond March cheerfully. "My young friend wanted to play, and you can't disoblige a friend, you know."

Garling nodded indifferently. "It's no business of mine; but, what I'm asking myself, and what I want to ask you, is—what is your game?? Why couldn't you have let me come and go without interfering with me? You're a gentleman, Mr. March, a swell, and far above a common man like me; why did you want to pounce on me, and throw up in my teeth that I was once a lag; in short, what is your game sir?"

Desmond March stroked his mustache, and looked at the man through half-closed lids.

"You wouldn't believe me, if I said I had none, eh, Garling?"

"I certainly should not!" was the prompt assent.

"And yet it's the truth," said Desmond March, with a smile. "When I saw you coming in, and looking like a respectable tradesman, or an engineer in a good way of business, I wondered who you were, why you'd chosen to come to Moss' little den—the last place for a respectable tradesman, you know. Then, when I recognized my old friend, the convict who had so nearly escaped. I thought it might be rather amusing to have a chat with you. You see, I'm a student of human nature, and you must admit that you are a quaint bit of character."

"I see," said Garling, with tightening lips. "It was sheer wanton devilry, eh, sir?"

Desmond March shrugged his shoulders.

"Call it what you like, my friend. But—who knows?—I may want you some day."

"Want me?" The man echoed the words resentfully.

"Yes. I'm a gentleman, as you say; but I'm a gentleman who lives by his wits—as you have seen. Now, to one of my profession, a man of yours is sometimes useful. Oh, don't look so black, my dear fellow; I'm not at all likely to ask you to exercise your well known skill on a bank, or any other safe; but there may be several other ways in which you can be of service and it is pleasant to know that you can't refuse to serve me, if I require you to do so, and that the service will cost me nothing, or next to nothing."

Garling scowled at him watchfully. "You're making a mistake," he said, at last. "You've got no hold on me."

"No? Let us see. Now, my good Garling, you have only just returned to England from abroad. How do I know? By your hands and face, of course. We don't get that peculiar tan in London town, or in any other part of England. It was got under a southern sky, Garling; and it hasn't had time to wear off."

Garling knawed at his lips.

"You've sharp eyes, Mr. March," he remarked.

"Didn't I tell you I lived by my wits?" retorted Desmond March. "Then, again, those clothes weren't made in England—they're foreign, or colonial. Right again? And now for one more guess. Shall I hazard the conjecture that you, though a 'ticket' man, haven't reported yourself to the police for a long, a very long time?"

Garling's lips twitched, and he glanced round the room apprehensively.

Lillian Gish in Wonderful Role

At Nickel Theatre, To-Day.

No better programme was ever given at the Nickel Theatre than will be seen this evening. There are six different pictures including a two-reel feature, all making a lengthy and highly interesting show. The two-part production is "The Green Eyed Devil," an elaborate dramatic piece which ranks among the best ever seen at the "movies." It is the work of the Reliance Co. which is now so popular all over North America. The beautiful actress Lillian Gish who lately came into prominence, and is now known over Europe and America, is in the leading roll. She is a wonderful woman and this evening is seen in a character which affords her every scope.

The Vitagraph Co. will give a beautiful Southern drama, entitled: "The Old Oak's Secret."

"The Celebrated Republic" is a pretty travogue showing charming photographs. Beside the foregoing there are three of the brightest comedies ever seen in St. John's. Arthur C. Huskins will repeat his de-look out for Friday's great feature, "The Octoroon"; everyone will be anxious to see it. The Vitagraph artists are staging it and all their star performers are in it.

"Pape's Diapepsin" ends Indigestion, Gas, Dyspepsia and Stomach Misery in five minutes.

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach headache, you can get blessed relief in five minutes.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula, plainly printed on these fifty-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will understand why dyspeptic troubles of all kinds must go, and why they relieve sour, out-of-order stomachs or indigestion in five minutes. "Pape's Diapepsin" is harmless; tastes like candy, though each dose will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but, what will please you most, is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for biliousness or constipation.

This city will have many "Pape's Diapepsin" cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be enthusiastic about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever take it for indigestion, gases, heartburn, sourness, dyspepsia, or any stomach misery.

Get some now, this minute, and rid yourself of stomach trouble and indigestion in five minutes.

Slight Fire.

Shortly after 6.30 last evening a slight fire broke out in the work room of Mr. W. Spurrell's tailoring business on Duckworth Street, caused by a stove igniting the floor. An alarm was sent in from box 15 and the Central and East End Companies responded, but their services were not needed as the fire was extinguished by buckets of water. Only slight damage was done and the all out signal was sent in at 7 p.m.

WHILE OUR SOLDIERS ARE DREAMING OF HOME.

(By Miss Margaret Evans, Hampton, N. B.)

Hush thee, O turbulent wind of the North!

Cease thy wild treacherous play;
Curb thy fleet steeds in their reckless career,
Flecked with the white ocean spray.

Rest thee, fierce pulse of the clamorous deep!

Calmd the mad pranks of thy wave,
Guard thou the vessel where, dreaming to-night,
Sleep the chosen of Canada's brave.

Shine o'er them tenderly, pale stars of night.

Though vallant soldiers they be;
Bless the young hearts that are dreaming of home,
Out on the lone-tossing sea.

Lead them, thou, glorious flag of the free,

To hasten an empire's joy;
Cheer the sad hearts that are waiting at home,
News of their brave soldier-boy.

Death of a Religious.

Yesterday morning, after a life of generous labour in the service of the Master, there passed away peacefully and resignedly at the Presentation Convent, Cathedral Square, the soul of Mother Bridget Kennedy.

For 48 years Mother Bridget wore worthily the religious garb of the daughters of Nans Nagle; always of an active disposition and filled with zeal for the salvation of souls, she, though delicate in constitution, did much for the betterment of those entrusted to her care, and to-day there are many Presentation girls anear and afar who often remember their motherly interest in them and her wise counsels and who will be saddened to hear that now she is no more.

Mother Bridget was Superioress of the Presentation Convent, St. Mary's, for eight years; here she "spent herself and was spent" for the sake of the Sisters, the children of the schools, and the people of the settlement, all of whom looked up to her as a mother, a friend and a prudent adviser. Having remained some years in Torbay continuing her generous work she returned to the Mother House in 1888. Two years later, she was appointed Mother Assistant, which position she held until her death. For the past few years Mother Bridget's health was gradually declining; still her great heart continued the same. Always pleased to hear good accounts from the schools, she loved the little ones until the end, and to-day the prayers of many pure souls are pleading for eternal rest for the gentle Nun who made their hours in class happy and bright.

In her community, Mother Bridget edited all her Sisters by her humility, her patience, her exaltitude to rule and her grand example of piety and all virtue will be missed sadly and long.

To-morrow (Thursday) morning at 8.30 there will be Solemn Requiem Mass in the Cathedral for the repose of Mother Bridget's soul, immediately after the funeral will take place; the deceased religious will be buried in the Convent Cemetery—there amid those other noble daughters of the Presentation Order who have fought the good fight and finished their course, she will await the Resurrection morn when with glorious and immortal body she will enter into the joy of the Lord.—R.I.P.

The following is a copy of the resolutions of condolence on the death of Archbishop Howley, passed at the regular monthly meeting of the T. A. & B. Society on Sunday last:

WHEREAS the Archdiocese of St. John's has suffered a grievous loss by the death of His Grace Archbishop Howley, who for twenty years directed its affairs so wisely and well;

AND WHEREAS the late Archbishop during all this period honoured this Society by being its Patron;

AND WHEREAS in that capacity he gave his whole hearted support to the Society, and especially by his self-sacrificing efforts at a time when the Society's whole future was jeopardized by causes from which it was a sufferer, though through no fault of his own, when by his unselfish support of the Institution in pledging valuable securities to assist it against what otherwise would be an inevitable disaster.

BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED that this Society deplores in the death of the Archbishop, a benefactor and a true friend in time of adversity, and one who always gave it his counsel and encouragement.

AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that this Society tenders to the relatives of the deceased Prelate, and to the Clergy and Laity of the Archdiocese, its heartfelt sympathy on this sad occasion, and joins with them in sincerely mourning the irreparable loss the Archdiocese has sustained by the demise of one who was not alone a great Churchman, but whose unselfish patriotism and life-long devotion to his native land, will ever keep his memory green.

Many children between the ages of 4 and 14 have worms. These parasites affect the general health of growing children more than is generally suspected. The symptoms of worms are well known—jumping in the sleep, itching of the nose, dark circles beneath the eyes, a peculiar odor on the breath, a variable appetite, and general peevishness. When these symptoms, or some of them, are present, it is well to treat the child for worms. We can help you here. We have Worm Syrup, Worm Lozenges, and Worm Powders. All these medicines are essentially alike, the form in which the remedy is put up alone differing. Whichever is most convenient, or easiest for the particular child to take, may be given. Price (Powders) 15c. a pkg.; Worm Syrup, 25c. a bottle; Worm Lozenges, 25c. a box.

Tradesman Suicides.

William Langmead, a well known wheelwright and carriage painter, of this city, committed suicide at his home, Pleasant Street last night. Shortly after ten o'clock while the attention of his family was occupied, the unfortunate man retired to his room, and slashed his throat with a razor, severing the jugular vein. When the other inmates of the house learned of the happening, the alarm was given, and Dr. O'Connell was summoned. The man, however, was past all medical aid as he had bled to death.

The deceased was in his 42nd year and leaves a wife and three children. He had been in failing health for some time past, and being out of employment it is thought his mind became affected. To his sorrowing widow and children the Telegram extends sincere sympathy.

Sulphate of Ammonia is less soluble than Nitrate of Soda, consequently it is a safer manure to use during a wet season.

A Fool's Paradise.

Last night, at the complimentary dinner tendered to Mr. F. J. Longley, of the firm of Hazen & Whipple, consulting engineers of New York, the Chairman, Mr. Gosling, disclosed the main features of Mr. Longley's report on the City's water supply. It was a revelation of the risks which we had for a long time been taking. We had, as the Hon. J. R. Bennett put it, been living in a fool's paradise. Mr. Longley pointed out that the usual wastage in the case of a city's water supply was about forty per cent. He had found that between midnight and the morning, before the domestic and industrial demands began to be made on the supply, 80 per cent. of the normal day supply was running out of Windsor Lake. This showed an abnormal waste, owing to defective pipes, couplings, &c., which he had been at much pains to locate. The distribution through the city was very defective and there was need of a great and ready supply near the city for emergency use to cope with conflagrations. The main feature of the suggested improvement was the bringing of another supply by a 20 inch main to Rawlins' Cross, down King's Road to Duckworth Street and on to George's Pond, which would become a large reservoir for an emergency supply, which would be distributed by a main beginning at 24 inches and diminishing gradually as it served the West End of the city. The cost of these improvements and the accessories in the shape of new connections would be about $168,000.

The statement caused much surprise to those who heard it for the first time, for when the improvements were made in the water supply some ten years ago, the city was given to understand that our water supply would be ample for all emergencies for the next fifty years. Mr. Longley illustrated the risks the city was running by stating that a similar state of affairs existed at Salem and their firm had reported on it to the city authorities, who had not taken the matter up, and a few months ago a big conflagration had broken out for which there was no sufficient water supply immediately at hand, and in spite of the advantage they had in coupling up their mains with neighbouring towns, Salem was in great part reduced to ashes. The situation was summed up concisely by Mr. J. M. Kent, who said the question was not whether the city could afford the improvements but whether the city could afford to do without them.

Spontaneous Combustion CAUSES FIRE.

This morning fire broke out on a barge, belonging to A. Harvey & Co., which is used for storage of Admiralty coal. Spontaneous combustion is supposed to be the exact cause. The barge, which was about three parts filled with coal, was lying in an anchor off Harvey's Southside premises. Some of the slack coal, which got wet on account of last night's rain storm, ignited. It was about 9 o'clock this morning before the blaze was discovered by a Southside resident who saw volumes of smoke issuing from the barge. The tug John Green along with a gang of men and a hose were quickly on the scene followed by a contingent of Naval Reservists in H.M.S. Calypso's launch. Great difficulty was experienced in getting at the blaze which was well underneath and a considerable quantity of coal had to be removed before the fire was reached. Though hampered in their efforts the volunteer fire-fighters worked assiduously for upwards of two hours before the fire was got under control and quenched soon after. The damage done was not great although the loss might have been extensive but for the prompt assistance rendered by the navy men.

Consulting Engineer Entertained.

Mr. Francis J. Longley, of the firm of Hazen and Whipple, Consulting Civil Engineers, of New York, who has been in the city for four weeks past enquiring into the water and sewerage problems, was tendered a complimentary dinner by the Civic Commission at Wood's West End Restaurant last night. Mr. W. G. Gosling, Chairman of the Commission, presided and those present were Messrs. Withers, Harris, Anderson, Bradshaw, Morris and McGrath, members of the Commission; Hon. J. R. Bennett, Messrs. J. M. Kent, M. J. Kennedy and W. J. Higgins, City Representatives; Hon. P. T. McGrath, Messrs. J. S. Currie and W. F. Lloyd, representing the city press; Mr. J. L. Slatery, City Secretary, Treasurer and Mr. J. Ryan, City Engineer. The Premier was invited but was unable to attend. Messrs. Mulhally, Jackman and Ayre, of the Commission, were also absent, Mr Mulhally as a result of family bereavement, and the others out of town.

The dinner was an informal affair, the only toast was that of the health of the guest of the evening, which was proposed by Mr. Gosling, the Chairman. In an interesting speech he referred to Mr. Longley's visit here, at the invitation of the Commission, whose attention had been directed to the need of improvement of the City's water supply since their appointment. The inefficiency of the existing system was only too apparent, and the City Engineer had continually showed the necessity and importance of doing this effectively it was necessary to secure the services of a consulting engineer to make a thorough examination of the water system and report on it. The Board was particularly fortunate in securing the services of Mr. Longley. His work had been done thoroughly, and the report of his investigation will be published in due course. The system outlined by Mr. Longley will meet every requirement of the city, including complete fire protection. The installation of the proposed system will entail an expenditure of $168,000, and will provide for a 20-inch main to Rawlins' Cross, down King's Road to Duckworth Street and on to George's Pond, which will act as a reservoir for any extra demand that may be made upon the water supply. The plan also provides for a 24-inch main along Duckworth St., and larger service pipes for Water Street.

The pipes in many parts of the city have become corroded, and there is little space for the water to flow through, hence the low pressure. Mr. Longley had also discovered that about 50 per cent. of the present supply is being wasted through defective pipes and other causes. The report has not yet received due consideration, but the chairman felt that the city would not hesitate to have the water service placed on a satisfactory basis. He also pointed out the possibility of the city working its own electrical system. It was thought that a system "can be introduced which will be profitable to the city. The question of sewerage was also dealt with, and many of the sewers in use to-day are a menace to the health of the city. In conclusion Mr. Gosling wished to express his appreciation of the thoroughness with which Mr. Longley had performed his work.

Mr. Longley, in replying, thanked the Commission for the many courtesies extended to him since his arrival. He pointed out the necessity of adequate fire protection for the city, and illustrated his remarks by referring to the great Salem fire, a few months ago. With regard to the electrical system, he thought that from what he had seen the city had a good proposition if they wished to take up the matter. Mr. J. M. Kent expressed his pleasure at being present, and said that the first essential in civic improvements was the rousing of citizens to a sense of their responsibilities. Since the new water supply would entail a large expenditure, and the money market was rather tight just now, he thought there might be some improvement by a conservation of the existing services. His attitude could be said to make these improvements, but could we afford to do without them. Hon. J. R. Bennett also expressed his pleasure at being present. He had been a member of the Council which had previously striven for an improvement of the water supply, and which had installed a service that was guaranteed to be adequate for fifty years. He felt that the time was ripe for the city to have a full charter of incorporation, and to be given the power to do its own financing. The report was an eye-opener. It showed the city had been living in a fool's paradise. Hon. P. T. McGrath assured the Commission of the support of the press in any move for the improvement of civic conditions. He also believed that the Legislature would also do its share in facilitating the work of these improvements. Mr. J. W. Withers thought the question of better water supply an absolute necessity, both from the standpoint of health and as a protection to property. He was keenly interested in the work, and thought that though the new system might mean more taxation, the cost would be offset in other ways. Mr. Higgins proposed the health of the Chairman, expressed appreciation of the work done, and assured the Commission of the support of citizens generally. The Chairman replied in suitable terms. During the evening Mr. J. L. Slatery contributed some choice vocal selections, while Mr. J. J. Slatery presided at the piano. Mr. Longley expects to finish his work to-day and will likely leave for home by this evening's express.

The Secretary is expected to make some reports on the situation in regard to alien enemies in England and the extent of the spy peril, but no additional legislation in this direction is expected. The most immediate business before the Commons will be to provide the sinews of war in men and money. The recruiting situation may lead to some steps towards compulsory service. The $500,000,000 granted in August having been practically spent, a further credit for a like amount will probably be proposed. One hundred and five Unionists were missing from their seats, being absent in various capacities in connection with the war, while 22 Ministerialists are actually at the front and many others are absent on Government business. In the Lords, the King's Speech will be moved by Lord Methuen, seconded by Viscount Bryce. In the Commons the speech will be moved by Sir Robert Price and seconded by William Middlebrook.

At the Crescent. The great two-reel feature presented to-day at the Crescent Picture Palace is a production of the Rex Photo Play Company, a story of two sisters of the middle classes, somewhat on the lines of the New Magdalen is finely acted by Lois Webber and Philip Smalley, the great Rex stars. "The Fallen Angel" is a striking drama of human nature which is certain to appeal with direct force to the sympathies of all who see it. "His Crazy Job" is a Nestor worth while film. The regular reporter falling to make good, the editor sends the sub (Eddie Lyons) to execute the assignment. How he does the work and gets a life job and a wife is worth seeing. "The Runaway Uncle" is an Eclair comedy introducing the great Sherlock trio. Mr. Walsh sings "As Long as the Shamrock Grows Green, I Will Love You" and Mr. McDonald sings that old but ever new Scotch ballad "Mary of Argyle". Prolonging the Vacation.

By RUTH CAMERON.

"It was a bully vacation," said the Cynic, reminiscently. "The sunsets were just wonderful!" added the Author-man's wife. "I never saw such beautiful ones before." "Yes, they were remarkable," agreed her husband. "Did anybody notice the sunset to-night?" asked Molly, the little stenographer-lady. "Everybody except the Lady—who-always-knows-somehow looked surprised. 'Why-er-no,' they all said at once. 'I don't know as I could call it the most beautiful I ever saw, because all sunsets are beautiful to me,' said Molly, slowly. 'But it was wonderful.' 'You don't say so,' said the Author-man's wife. 'I very seldom see the sunset when I am at home. One doesn't get the same effect it seems to me.' 'Why, from the hill in back of your house you can get a beautiful view and it must be particularly so at sunset,' said Molly, in evident surprise. 'Perhaps so—but I never got there just at sunset time.' The Cynic chuckled. 'You used to manage to climb the hill while we were away every afternoon in time to see the sunset,' he said, wickedly. 'Well, it doesn't seem the same at home,' maintained the Author-man's wife. 'It's well, sort of different,' she added, vaguely. 'That's—' began the Cynic. Then seeing that the Lady—who-always-knows-somehow had been about to speak he stopped. 'I'll withdraw,' he said, 'and give you a chance.'

"It was just a word on the vacation attitude," said she, apologetically. "It seems to me that so many of us go away from home feeling that there will be much to enjoy and that therefore they will enjoy themselves, and return home feeling that all the things they have enjoyed are no longer possible of enjoyment. 'Take the matter of sunsets. Away, being in the appreciative mood, we exclaim over the sunsets. But how many people really bother about sunsets when they are at home? The same people who will rave over a sunset while they are on a vacation will glance casually out of the window at a sky just as glorious and then pull down the curtains and light the lamps. To-night, as the train swung out of the yards, saw the sunset of which Molly spoke. It was, as she says, wonderful. Yet most everyone in the coach kept right on reading the evening papers. 'It is just as true about the other things on our vacations. We enjoy the long rambles in our old clothes. We are glad to get out into the open. Yet when we return home we shut ourselves in from all these joys. How many of us think, on Saturday afternoon or Sunday, to take a trip into the country and get a breath of what we eulogize, during our vacation, as 'real air.' Instead we pack all our vacation emotions away for fifty weeks every year. It seems to me that it is foolish to say that beauty, either in scenery or sunsets is confined to the place we spend our vacations. The same is true of the joys of outdoor life and recreations, of big appetites, solid sleep and healthy re-juvenation.' 'Bully for you,' said the Cynic. 'That's just what I think—although I didn't think to think so up to a minute ago.'

GERMANY ALARMED.

LONDON, To-day. A Rome despatch to the Morning Post says Germany, alarmed at the Russian success, has made preliminary offers of peace to the Russian Government which have been rejected.

MORE REBELS BEATEN.

LONDON, To-day. A despatch from Pretoria says it is officially announced there that on Nov. 8, Lieut. Col. Vand Venter met the rebels at Sandfontein, 64 miles North of Pretoria, killing or wounding 120 and capturing 25. The Union losses were twelve men killed, 11 wounded.

NORFOLK, Va., To-day. Virtually all of the 800 horses on board the British steamship Rembrandt, were burned to death when she took fire off Virginia Capes yesterday. The Rembrandt was bound from Baltimore to St. Nazaire, France. The animals were intended for the armies of the Allies.

800 HORSES PERISH FROM GERMAN LIE FACTORY.

LONDON, To-day. The Indian forces in France have made good, but have achieved none of the daring and extraordinary exploits attributed to them, according to statement issued by official Press Bureau written by 'An Observer with Indian Corps.' Above all, the account emphasizes difficulties under which Indians are fighting, because of their ignorance of French, German and English languages repeatedly they have been subjected to tricks on the part of Germans.

SPY SHOT AT THE TOWER.

LONDON, To-day. It is officially announced that Carl Hans Lody, alias Charles A. Inglis, who was found guilty by court-martial of espionage on Nov. 2nd, has been shot. Lody, when arrested claimed he was American, but later confessed he was a German. Lody met his death in the Tower of London. This was the first execution at the Tower of London since 1700.

INSURANCE RATES CUT IN TWO.

LONDON, To-day. The claims of contending armies in the Eastern and Western theatre of war, especially as concerns the situation in West Flanders, dovetailed in so few respects last night, as to leave but one big fact a land of sea undisputed, that was the destruction of the German raider Emden and the trapping of the German cruiser Koenigsberg, the latter in a palm lined East African river, under circumstances which read as though they were taken from Stevenson. The British Marine Insurance rate was almost instantly cut in half, for never since the days of the Confederate warship Alabama has there been such a successful commerce destroyer as the Emden. Cheers broke forth at Lloyd's at the announcement, and for a moment the strategies of the armies in France, Belgium, Russia and elsewhere were forgotten, yet all these armies were at each others throats—Germans and Russians clashing in cavalry engagements along the German frontier; Russians still harassing the Austrians in Galicia; French, British and Belgians holding back what still appears to be a tremendous German attack, a break through the allied line in the vicinity of Ypres. Aside from the military aspects of the war what stood out bold-ly was Germany's reported threat to cut off the food supply which the United States is sending to Belgium, if the Belgians did not return to their cities, and make an effort to resume their normal occupations. The Belgian answer is that it has been impossible to resume a semblance of normal activity because the German soldiers had commandeered all the implements and materials necessary to an industrial revival.

No Military Despotism.

Why the British Labour Party Support the War.

The British Labour movement, as represented by the Labour Party and the Trade Union organisations, has issued a statement defining its action in relation to the present war. The policy of the movement, it is said, has been dictated by a fervent desire to save Great Britain and Europe from the evils that would follow the triumph of military despotism. Until the Power which has pillaged and outraged Belgium and the Belgians, and plunged nearly the whole of Europe into the awful misery, suffering, and the horror of war, is beaten, there can be no peace. While the conflict lasts, England must be sustained both without and within, and combatants and non-combatants must be supported to the utmost.

The Labour movement has done, and is doing its part in this paramount national duty, confident that the brutal doctrine and methods of German militarism will fall.

When the time comes to discuss the terms of peace, the Labour movement will stand, as it has always stood, for an international agreement among all civilized nations that disputes and misunderstandings in the future shall be settled not by machine guns but by arbitration.

EMDEN'S LOSS VERY HEAVY.

LONDON, Nov. 10. To Governor, Newfoundland:

The following from Press Bureau: The German cruiser Emden was driven ashore and burnt after a sharp action with H. M. Australian ship Sydney. Her losses in personnel are very heavy. All possible assistance is being given to the survivors. Our casualties are 3 killed and 15 wounded.

The German cruiser Koenigsberg has been discovered hiding in shoal water in the Rufiji River, opposite Mafia Island. Pending operations for her capture, the only navigable channel has been blocked, and she is now imprisoned.

Excepting the German squadron, now off Chili, the whole Pacific and Indian Oceans are now clear of the enemy's warships.

The French Government reports progress between Dixmude and the Lys, and a distinct check for the enemy in Alsace.

The Russian advance on the Polish frontier is continued. Two Turkish divisions have been defeated by Russian troops in Asia Minor.

HARCOURT.

ST. PIERRE BULLETIN.

PARIS, Nov. 10.—(Official.)

Action continued all day yesterday with the same violence as previously between the sea and the Armentiers region; the contact was so violent owing to the opposing forces both acting on the offensive. To sum up, the day was marked by a failure for the Germans in their attacks, in heavy numbers, south of Ypres, and a notable progress for French troops around Bixchoote and between Ypres and Armentiers. On the front of the British troops, German attacks were energetically repulsed. On most part of the front from La Bassee Canal right up to Woerwe our troops have consolidated the results attained during recent advances. An advance for our troops is recorded in the region of Loivre between Rhelms and Berry au Bac. In Lorraine no change. In region of Vosges attacks of enemy

Stop Coughing.

It's quite as foolish as it is annoying to keep on coughing since

"PHORATONE COUGH MIXTURE" is guaranteed to soothe and heal the irritated parts at once, and to rapidly destroy the very cause of this aggravating nuisance. Hundreds of persons are complaining every day about the cough or cold they have had for a long time, and they are not able to get rid of it.

Don't let a cough or cold hang on to you day after day and run the chance of catching and developing the "cough" that is not easy to throw off.

You will avoid all this worry (about the cough or cold you have) by obtaining "Phoratone Cough Mixture" at once.

Sold at Stafford's Drug Store, Theatre Hill, and Stafford's Pharmacy, Duckworth Street. Price 25c.; post, age, 5 cts extra.

Phoratone Cough Cure is prepared only by DR. F. STAFFORD & SON, St. John's, Newfoundland.

Russian ships bombarded the Bosphorus, causing heavy damage to shipping in the Straits. The Turkish fleet came out, but on the appearance of the Russian fleet put back immediately.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

PARIS, Nov. 10.—(Official.) At the north the battle continues very violent. Nothing to report on other parts of the battle front.

AN AMSTERDAM STORY.

LONDON, Nov. 10. A despatch from Amsterdam says: "Trainload after trainload of German artillery is leaving the Lys valley in direction of the army headquarters, transferred to Alost.

RUSSIANS STILL SCORING.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 10.—(Official.) In Eastern Prussia the right wing of the enemy, who has been stubbornly resisting in the region of Lyck, has been driven back towards Mazouri Lake, east of Reideberg, 24 miles south of Koenigsberg. Near Mush-aken railroad station a Russian cavalry force defeated a German detachment, which was protecting the railroad. The Russians captured the train and drew the railroad bridges.

On Nov. 8, a Russian cavalry division, meeting a cavalry division of the enemy forced it to retire towards Kalisz.

On the route to Cracow we have attained Miechow, a town 44 miles southwest of Kielce.

In Galicia our troops have traversed the River Wisloka. They now occupy Rzeszow, Dynow and Liske.

EMDEN AND KOENIGSBERG.

LONDON, Nov. 10.

The Admiralty statement which announces the destruction of the Emden in the Indian Ocean, and the bottling up of the Koenigsberg on the East coast of Africa, is as follows: After the whereabouts of the Koenigsberg had been indicated by the attack on the Pegasus on Sept. 19, a concentration of fast cruisers was arranged by the Admiralty in East African waters; and a thorough search by these vessels in combination was made.

This search resulted in the Koenigsberg being discovered by H. M. S. Chatham hiding in shoal water about six miles up the Rufiji River, opposite Mafia Island, German East Africa. Owing to greater draught the Chatham could not reach the Koenigsberg which probably is aground, except at high water. Part of the crew of the Koenigsberg has been landed and is entrenched on the bank of the river. Both these entrenchments and the Koenigsberg herself have been bombarded by the Chatham, but, owing to the dense palm groves, amid which the ship lies, it is not possible to estimate the damage done. Pending operations for her capture or destruction, effective steps have been taken to block the Koenigsberg by sinking a collier in the only navigable channel into the river. She is now imprisoned, unable to do any further harm. Fast vessels which have been searching for her have thus been released for other service.

Another large combined operation by fast cruisers against the German cruiser Emden, has been for some time in progress. In this search, which has covered an immense area, British cruisers have been aided by French, Russian and Japanese vessels. Yesterday morning news was received that the Emden, which has been completely lost to sight after her action with the Russian cruiser Jemtichug, had arrived at Keeling on Cocos Island, and landed an armed party to destroy the wireless station there. Here she was caught and forced to fight by the Australian cruiser Sydney. A sharp action took place, in which the Sydney suffered the loss of 3 men killed and 15 wounded. The Emden was driven ashore and burned. Her losses are reported heavy. With the exception of the German squadron now off the coast of Chile the whole of the Pacific and Indian Oceans are now clear of enemy warships.

The First Lord of the Admiralty sent the following message to the Sydney, and to the Navy Board of the Australian Commonwealth: "Warmest congratulations on brilliant entry of Australian navy into war, and the signal service rendered to the Allied cause and to peaceful commerce by destruction of the Emden."

THE TURKISH THREAT.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11. The Commander of the Turkish forces at Beirut in an informal note addressed to the American Consul General and intended for the British and French Governments, declared that for every Mussulman killed in the bombardment of any open and unfortified port, three British or French subjects will be immediately killed.

The Turkish note says, moreover, that the Commander declines to accept responsibility for any uprising against Christians which might ensue from such bombardment.

KING GEORGE CONGRATULATES ARMY.

LONDON, Nov. 11. King George has sent the following communication to Sir John French, Commander of the British Expeditionary Forces on the Continent: "The splendid pluck, spirit and endurance shown by my troops in the desperate fighting which has continued for so many days, against vastly superior forces, fills me with admiration. I am confident of the final result of their noble efforts, under your able command." General French replied, thanking His Majesty for the message, which he said had been received with gratitude and pride by the Army. He assured the King of the unalterable determination to uphold the highest tradition of His Majesty's Army, and to carry the campaign to a victorious conclusion.

Mother! the Child Is Costive, Billious

Don't Hesitate! A laxative is necessary if tongue is coated, breath bad or stomach sour.

No matter what ails your child, a gentle, thorough laxative should always be the first treatment given.

If your little one is out-of-sorts, half-sick, isn't resting, eating and acting naturally—look, Mother! see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad or has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated poison, undigested food and sour bile gently move out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this harmless "fruit laxative," because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grownups printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."

TO BE OPERATED.—Miss Flossy Wiseman, of Ayre & Sons show room department, entered the General Hospital yesterday afternoon to be operated on for appendicitis.

Signs and Tokens.

The Autumn days will soon be over; the winter tempests a 6 n will roar; among the flowers and in the clover the busy bees are seen no more. Out in the woods the nuts are dropping; the coal is poured in yawning bins; and we should waste to do our shopping before the Christmas rush begins. Across the sea the cannon thunder, Death's harrowing a mighty cry; to-day we see our army under, to-morrow it may be on top. But here at home no shells are popping, there is no struggle, born of hate, and we can do our Christmas shopping before it is too doggone late. In Mexico all things seem quiet, but quiet there's a thing of doubt, for any hour may bring a riot, to turn the country inside out. The generals are always swapping their threats of death, with ugly leer, but we may do our early shopping, and none will dare to interfere. The fall is with us, gentle reader, the crops are garnered on the farm, the turkey hunts the highest cedar, the goose is viewing with alarm; the football coach is wildly hopping, his victims hear him rant and rate; and we should do our Christmas shopping before it is too all-fired late.

Fads and Fashions.

The fashion of high hairdressing has made fashionable many beautiful combs and pins.

White taffeta frocks with fitted basques and full tunic skirts are immensely popular.

Dyed laces are to be used, but metal laces are expected to outvie anything so far shown.

The proper silhouette is now erect; the spindless, slouchy carriage is no longer tolerated.

Charming little hats for the small girl are made of muslin, trimmed with bands of colored beads.

The leading feature in fall footwear is the button boot, with whole quarter or gaiter effects.

Among the newest skirts are those with long overskirts, open to the waist and with rounded corners.

Sports coats for the present are long and loose fitting, and are set in at the normal shoulder line.

Very smart is the lace blouse with Roman striped silk bodice that covers all but the sleeves and décolleté.

Long sleeves are a distinct feature of the new blouses. They are fashioned after the mousquetaire pattern.

Some of the new chemisettes are so severe in line that they closely resemble the bosom of the full dress shirt.

The small sister's school dress may be made of serge or homespun and worn with white linen or pique collar and cuffs.

Crepon is a thoroughly practical material for blouses, as it requires no ironing and it can be used to fashion a blouse of the severest lines.

For the little girl's best dress a frock of challis made in a simple manner and trimmed only with a wide velvet belt or sash of ribbon.

Too Busy, Your Majesty.
 The Kaiser's visit to the soldiers at the front is described in the Berlin Lokal Anzeiger as follows:—
 "The Kaiser, wearing a grey uniform, appeared unexpectedly among the soldiers, who cheered while the bands played martial airs."
 "Meanwhile the guns opened fire against the enemy's position. The Kaiser, after repeatedly bowing his thanks to the salutation, praised the troops and conversed with several of the men. When he asked one of the soldiers what he thought of the enemy, the man replied, 'I'm too busy fighting; it is impossible to think.' Thereupon the Kaiser laughed and the soldiers joined in."
 Before this great European struggle is ended, the Kaiser's grey uniform will be sadly in need of a thorough Dry Cleaning, and if William Hohenzollern will send it along we shall be happy to clean it free of charge.

Have You an Itchy Spot?

Somewhere on your body? If so, attend to it at once. In Eczema—and itchy spots, whether dry and scruddy, or moist and inclined to "weep," are generally eczematous—delays are foolish, allowing the disease to spread and affect more of the good skin. Your best chance for a cure is to use Zylex, which will give almost instant relief, and if used in the earlier stages of the trouble will almost certainly bring a cure, and in any event will greatly ameliorate the trouble. Ask your druggist about it. Price 50c. a box. Zylex Soap, 25c. a cake.

Fishery Reports.

Oct. 21. From M. Vaisour (Lawn Point to Little St. Lawrence)—The total catch is 4,590 qts., and for last week 20. Twenty dories and skiffs and one boat are fishing. Prospects are very poor and there is no fresh bait, salt squid being used. The fishery is about over for the season as bait cannot be obtained, cod is scarce and the weather is becoming rough.

More Fires.

Fires provoke immediate sympathy for the sufferer and also thankfulness for personal escape. Another thought should be whether one is personally and sufficiently protected? An insurance policy with Percie Johnson would provide for you this desired security and at small expense. Have you enough insurance?
FADS AND FASHIONS.

"Too Young, Sonny!"
 Lord Kitchener's Advice to a Ramsgate Boy.
 Eager to join the army, a Ramsgate lad, Reginald Smith, whose father and five uncles served with the colours, ran away from home and walked to London, where he called first at Buckingham Palace and then at New Scotland Yard and asked to see Lord Kitchener. By chance the Secretary of State for War called at the Yard, and was stopped by the boy. Fating the boy on the shoulder Lord Kitchener said: "You are too young, sonny; wait until you get older."
 The boy, whose father works at Ramsgate Railway Station, is to be sent to a military training school in order that his ambition may be realized.

Bullies.

By GEORGE FITCH,
 Author of "At Good Old Slwash."

A bully is a man who isn't happy unless some one is afraid of him. Bullies are born and not made and constitute about the only possible argument for infanticide. As soon as a bully gets big enough to use his fists he picks out some one a little smaller and begins target practice. By the time he is fifteen years old he usually has acquired a collection of several dozen boys whom he can whip.
 This makes the bully very happy and it also keeps him very busy. He has to keep his victims in a proper state of terror by punching their heads in a methodical and regular manner. It is hard work and it is unable as a rule to keep up under the strain of his studies and has to drop out of school at an early age.
 Human strength is very desirable and it is indeed a fine sight to see a young bully in all the pride of his large muscles and tough fists, dancing around a boy one or two sizes smaller than he and hitting him with perfect coolness and self-command. But it is a much finer sight to see him tackle some strange boy who isn't very large, but who has a mule kick concealed in one fist and a pile driver in the other. Those who have watched the bully's look of confidence and brutal joy fade to dismay and abject terror as the quiet young stranger remodels his face, changing the shape of his nose and adding here and there little chasms and protuberances declare that no moving picture film can do justice to the sight.
 The only way to cure a bully is to have him operated upon in this way. If not cured he grows up into a strong, bull-necked man who abuses his wife with hoarse roars, keeps the children looking out for bomb proofs and swears at his stenographer who needs the money and can't resign.
 The man or boy who will take a bully aside in a quiet way and operate upon him until his nose is on the bias and his eyes look like a cubist painting is doing humanity the greatest possible service and should be encouraged with a medal instead of being reproved for fighting. He is not really fighting. He is hammering an idea into an unusually thick skull.

The Importance of Essen.

Mr. H. G. Wells on "The War of Material."
 Writing on "The War of Material," in the Western Daily Mercury, recently, Mr. H. G. Wells says all the initial successes of Germany in this war were successes of gear. France was short of all sorts of material, boots, uniforms, equipment; she was unable to put great numbers of available men into the field for some weeks; it is only now that her full resources of life and courage are getting armed into the fighting line. By sheer good luck the Crenschneider people were in a position to hand over to her nearly forty batteries that had been ordered by Italy. In artillery, transport, every sort of supplies, Germany was overwhelmingly at an advantage and the great march that came so near to Paris was far more a triumph of boots and tyres than men.
 And Germany was at the outset also enormously superior in the number of her flying machines. The Allies were not only unready, but, so far as air scouting goes, blind. In a previous article I pointed this out. I expressed my conviction that gear, too (says the writer), it is that stands in the way of Italy seizing her crowning opportunity of complete national reunion. She is terribly short of boots and guns. It is Germany and Russia only that seem to have been fully equipped for a struggle of this magnitude. We on our part were prepared to the last but not indeed most admirably for the Expeditionary Force and the Indian Army, and we have very creditable stores in hand; and now the task before us is not only to keep up our equipment to the level of our recruiting but to do everything in our power to supplement the lesser productive power of our present and potential Allies. Our part at sea and in the field is only one side of our national duty. I dare not write about our British manhood at war except that I am proud to be English. But we have to justify our claim to be the factory of the world also, and to put flannel shirts by the million, rugs, wraps, waterproofs, boots, straps, rifles, guns, ammunition, into the battle line. That is not perhaps so glorious a task, but it is equally essential to victory.

 We shall beat Germany at the output of supplies (declares Mr. Wells). Zeppelins are a Teutonic illusion; they will be no trouble to aviators with bombs or with light guns firing explosive shells. We have too keep pace with Essen, and as soon as possible we have to get Essen and smash up Essen for ever. In a war of material it is at the centre of manufacture that a hostile army must strike.
