N. S. HORTICULTURAL EXHIBITION

Fine Exhibits of All Kinds.—Royal Bank Prize of $50 Captured by Waterville Fruit Co. for Best Display of Fruit Packed for Export. Creditable Exhibits in All Departments.

The Nova Scotia Horticultural Exhibition, held annually in one of the three counties—Annapolis Kings and Hants—was held in Bridgetown on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, October 2nd, 3rd and 4th.

The preceding week the weather had been exceedingly fine, and it was hoped on all hands that this would continue. However, this was not to be. Monday opened with a perfect deluge of rain, and continued all day, and Tuesday was very unpleasant.

On the opening day, Wednesday, the sky was black and of a very angry nature, and it almost seemed as if there were to be a continuation of bad weather. To the joy of all, about one p. m. the sky became less overcast, the sun shone through at brief intervals, and by 2.30, the clouds had cleared, and there was every likelihood of nice clean weather for at least a few hours.

The Exhibition building, the large apple warehouse to the west of the D. A. R. station, had been kindly loaned for the occasion, and on Monday and Tuesday sawing and hammering were carried on with the greatest zeal. Long tables soon appeared in the centre and along the sides, and while this was being carried out, three or four of the decorating committee were busily employed in festooning the sides—north and south—and the centre of the building with red, blue and white bunting.

The south side displayed cream separators, sewing machines, fruit, cider, and a large exhibit of the Domestic Science class, many of the exhibits in the latter class being particularly handsome, and constantly calling forth the praises of the ladies present.

The north side was devoted to fruit and vegetables, a small space in the centre being reserved as an enclosure for the opening ceremony.

The east side held the various side shows found in all exhibitions, and needs no further description. The west end was the piece de resistance of the show, and here were to be seen the various exhibits competing for the Royal Bank of Canada prize, viz., $5000 for the best collection of colored export apples (3 boxes and 3 barrels). Crowds lingered around this section of the building, and great interest was evinced by not only the average exhibition hunter, but particularly by the farmers themselves. The fruit in all instances was most splendidly packed, and it must have been a very hard matter on the part of the judges to decide this most handsome prize.

The Waterville Fruit Company, Limited, turned out to be the fortunate winners, and they have generously presented their exhibit to the Bank. Along the entire length of the building in the centre huge tables bore the exhibit of as fine a display of fruit as it is possible to imagine. On every side it was pronounced to be superb. Plums, pears, peaches and grapes were included in this display.

Upstairs on the east end of the building were shown poultry and vegetable exhibits, and these called forth many favorable comments. On Wednesday the proceedings were enlivened by the musical abilities of the Bridgetown Band. Thursday the Law rencetown Band, assisted by a few of the Bridgetown Band, were in evidence, and on Friday the local band again delighted its hearers.

The "Blue nose" conveying the Premier and other guests was over half-an-hour late, and it was not until 3.10 p. m. that the Mayor (D. G. Harlow, Esq.), accompanied by Premier G. Murray, Attorney-General O. T. Daniels, A. L. Davidson and Professor Cummings entered the building, and to the strains of "The Wilmington Military Band March" proceeded to the enclosure, upon entering which the Premier was busily occupied for a few moments in shaking hands with various friends.

Amongst others he noticed the town's new policeman, Sergt. Major Gill, and appeared surprised to see him in his new uniform in Bridgetown. The reception committee included a number of ladies.

The Mayor, in his opening remarks, deplored the bad weather they were having, and said that the managing committee had not left a stone unturned to make the exhibition a success. On behalf of the town and committee he extended to the Premier and the other guests a most cordial welcome. Mr. Harlow then introduced Professor Cummings (Secretary of Agriculture for the Province of Nova Scotia) to the gathering.

Professor Cummings expressed surprise at being called upon as the first to speak. He was delighted at having the opportunity of attending the exhibition, and said it was the sixth exhibition of its kind held in Nova Scotia, two in

Killed at Wilmot

Unknown Man caught on the Wiswall Bridge by D. A. R. Special.

A shocking accident occurred at Wilmot on Thursday morning. As the excursion special from Windsor for Bridgetown rounded the curve at the Wiswall Bridge, Driver Dill saw two men on the bridge.

The men started to run but one of them stepped between the ties and fell. He got up, but again fell and before the heavy train could be stopped the man was terribly mangled his head, arm and leg being cut off.

The men were strangers and the one who escaped after telling Conductor Little that his companion's name was Kennedy disappeared in the woods.

The remains were brought to Middleton and Dr. S. N. Miller empanelled the following jury:—N. F. Marshall (foreman) I. Young, S. Daniels, A. W. Phinney, G. N. Reagh, W. L. Magee, I. M. Shaw, M. P. Neily, W. A. Baker, W. R. Beals, S. H. Morrison, W. R. Perkins and F. H. Roop. W. G. Parsons appeared for the Crown and A. L. Davidson for the D. A. R. Conductor Little, Driver Dill, Fireman Barnaby and Brakesman Haystead testified on oath. Efforts were made to ascertain the whereabouts of the companion of the deceased but without success.

The verdict of the jury was that "the deceased came to his death at Wiswall's bridge, Wilmot, at 10 minutes 11 o'clock this morning being killed by a special train of the D. A. R. while walking on the said bridge and we find the employees of the company are not responsible for the accident."

The cover of a shipping box, was found in the dead man's pocket. The address upon it although partly obliterated, appeared to be William Kennedy, 46 Louisburg Halifax. This it was thought is probably his name. —Outlook.

MISS BUZBY'S BOARDERS

The comedy "Miss Buzby's Boarders" was given by local amateurs, under the able direction of Miss Annie Chute, in the Court House on Wednesday evening, 2nd inst. A fair audience was present considering the many attractions of the week in the entertainment line. The play was well staged, the scenery from the Primrose Theatre being used and the stage nicely furnished by the kindness of J. H. Hicks and Sons. Barring a trifling nervousness on the part of some of the performers caused by the hasty preparation of the play, only about a week having been available for rehearsals, the performance went off nicely. Without disparagement to any of the players it may be permissible to say that the honors were evenly divided between Mrs. Henry B. Hicks, who took the part of the leading lady with her customary ease and self-possession, and to whom was largely due the sustained interest of the play, and Miss Jennie Vroom, who was a veritable Topay, and whose spontaneous comedy kept the audience in a continual state of merriment.

Much praise must be given to the home orchestra, under the direction of Ross A. Bishop, violinist, who was assisted by H. G. Bishop, P. Munroe, cornetists, Mr. Brittain, violinist, and Mrs. S. A. Mitchell, pianist.

Following is the cast of characters:—Jerome Townsend, a lover somewhat in the background. H. B. HICKS. Felix Marden, who is not afraid to come to the front. A. F. HILTZ. Mr. Smith, a mysterious individual. S. MITCHELL. Alexander Pettifar, a worm that finally turns. A. MITCHELL. Jimmie Spangler, a footlight artist. G. BROWN. Marguerite Marr, a vaudeville star. Mrs. H. B. HICKS. Lillian Wendale, by the villain pursued. Mrs. W. A. WARREN. Pansy Purple, Jimmie's professional partner. Miss F. COCHRAN. Amelia Buzby, country spinster keeping boarders. Mrs. W. D. LOCKETT. Mrs. Pettifar, with a mind of her own. Miss F. LEE. Florida, a maid. Miss JENNIE VROOM.

The cover of a shipping box, was found in the dead man's pocket. The address upon it although partly obliterated, appeared to be William Kennedy, 46 Louisburg Halifax. This it was thought is probably his name. —Outlook.

Graves Brothers Convicted

The October term of the Supreme Court opened at Annapolis Royal on Oct. 1st, his honor Chief Justice Townsend presiding.

The Grand Jury found true bills in the case of the King vs. Graves Brothers, for murder, in the case of the King vs. Beals, for rape, and in the case of King vs. a Middleton man for perjury.

A jury was empanelled to try the cause of the Graves Brothers, for the murder of Kenneth Lea, for which his counsel made application for a change of venue. Judge Ritchie granting same, named Annapolis as the place for trial. Mr. Wickwire was counsel for the prosecution, and Mr. Roscoe counsel for the defence. The jurors were John Elliott, Judson Bartheaux, Whitman Ruggles, R. C. Brooks, George Longley, Edward Best, R. A. Crowe, James Merritt, Anisley Clark, Newman Daniels, Avard Reed, Fred Flanagan.

The chief justice stated to the jurors, briefly and concisely the nature of the case, after which the following witnesses were examined on behalf of the crown. Mrs. Lea, Flora Wright, Edith Thorne, R. S. Steward and David Mansley. The evidence given was on the same lines as given at the preliminary hearing and although the counsel for the defence endeavored on cross-examination to break down the evidence of Mrs. Lea and some of the other witnesses they adhered to their evidence as given at the preliminary hearing. At six o'clock adjournment was made until nine o'clock the following day.

After deliberating for upwards of six hours the jury, trying the case of the Graves Brothers, returned verdict of guilty, the prisoners sentenced to be hanged on January 15, 1913.

After the Judge had received the verdict of the jury, he addressed the prisoners in a few words, asking them if they had anything to say why they should not be sentenced in accordance with the verdict found against them by the jury of the countrymen. His Lordship then proceeded to pronounce the sentence, which was to the effect that the three Graves Brothers are to be hanged on January 15, 1913, for the murder of Henry K. Lea.

In his charge to the jury the Chief Justice said that although Lea actually killed himself, if the accused were the cause of his death, and bore malice and ill-will towards the deceased, it was murder. If there were no malice, no ill-feeling, then it was manslaughter. The evidence was contradictory. The jury must decide which to believe. If there was any reasonable doubt, the prisoners must be given the benefit of it.

TOWN COUNCIL IN SESSION

Sanctions Appropriation for Deficit in Exhibition Receipts.—Will Assist in Making Concrete Side Walk on Queen Street, Several Business Men to Complete the Work.

The regular monthly meeting of the Town Council was held in the Council chamber on Monday evening the 7th day of October at 7.30 o'clock with Mayor Harlow in the chair and councillors present as follows:—

A. B. McKenzie; Karl Freeman; W. E. Reed; S. F. Pratt; and J. K. Craig.

Ordered that the following bills be paid:—Annapolis Royal Spectator, advertisement for policeman, $1.50; A. L. Anderson, for services as special policeman, team to reservoir, etc., and cash paid D. A. R. freight on casting, total $33.04; W. E. Connell, team and time to reservoir, $1.00; Guy Todd, services as special policeman at exhibition, 3 days, $6.00; Norman Dargie, services as special policeman at exhibition, 3 days, $6.00.

As I. Foster supplies on page 200, $10.75; Colwell Bros. Ltd., Halifax, helmet and cap for policeman, $6.50.

Resolved that the account of the Lloyd's Manufacturing Co., Kentville, for repairs to crusher, $17.59 be referred to A. L. Anderson who ordered the work done, and that the clerk be authorized to pay the same when certified to by Mr. Anderson.

R. J. Messenger, Manager of the recent Horticultural Exhibition, held in the town, addressed the council, and explained to them owing to weather the attendance at the exhibition was very small, and that in consequence there would be a deficit, and asked the council to pay a portion of the loss, inasmuch as they had received part of the profits from the last exhibition held here. After discussion the Council agreed to pay, when the exact amount is ascertained, provided it does not exceed the sum of $67.50 the amount received from the previous exhibition as a surplus.

Councillor Freeman stated to the Council that he had been requested by E. A. Hicks to ask them to furnish a street light on Freeman street, so called, in front of the residence of J. N. Fulmer as he intended to build another dwelling there if a light could be secured. A resolution was passed authorizing the Committee on streets and lighting to furnish a street light as requested, the location of same to be left with them provided Mr. Hicks will put a light on the outside of his residence, on the East side of Washington street to light that section.

Councillor Freeman stated to the council that J. H. Longmire & Sons with himself and other lot holders on the East side of Queen Street were willing to make a concrete sidewalk in front of the premises provided the council would raise the curbing and straighten it on that side of the street and give them enough fine crushed stone to make the concrete with.

A resolution was passed authorizing the street committee to have the curbing raised and straightened as requested and supply the crushed stone required to do the work free of charge.

Minutes read and approved and council adjourned.

MY BUSINESS.

It is everybody's business, In this old world of ours, To root up all the weeds he finds, And cultivate the flowers.

It is everybody's business, As he walks earth's weary miles, To keep back all the frowns he can, And bring out all the smiles.

It is everybody's business, To be thus kind and true, I'm sure it is not hard to see, It means both me and you.

SCHOOL TEACHER KILLED.

Peticodiac, N. B., Oct. 4.—A shocking fatality occurred here this afternoon when Miss Rita Perry aged 22, a school teacher of Havelock, was instantly killed by a train. The young woman was on her way home from a teachers' convention at Moncton, and was crossing the track to board her train, when she was struck and her skull crushed. Her body was taken home on the train she intended going on as a passenger.

Proof!

THIS is written with a full sense of our serious responsibility to housewives. It is not a glib argument. It is a solid fact. Nothing but truth would do with such easy proof offered you.

Fact:

A barrel of Regal Flour yields the utmost quantity of bread. No flour in the world yields more. The loaves it bakes are white and light. Pastry of melting flakiness.

Proof:

Your dealer wants you to take your money back if Regal Flour proves below this promise. In that event we must pay him. On this understanding, isn't it only fair to yourself to test Regal at once?

Farm Dairying

XVII.—Cow Diseases. First Article.

By LAURA ROSE, Demonstrator and Lecturer in Dairying at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, Canada.

FLIES are a terrible torment at times and have much to do with the lessening of the milk flow. The cows are so worried and kept so busy fighting the flies that they lose much of the time they should be feeding, and it is their starved condition that largely causes the shrinkage in flesh and milk.

Something should be done to rid the cows of this fly pest. The following mixture has been found as effective and less expensive than many of the fly remedies on the market: One gallon of fish or seal oil or old grease of any kind, one pint of coal oil (kerosene) and two ounces (four tablespoonfuls) of crude carbolic acid. Mix well together and apply with a cloth or spray to all parts except the udder.

It is a good plan to darken the stable during the day and to have the windows screened. To prevent the flies that are on the cows from going into the stable with them, arrange some evergreen boughs, brush, brooms or sacks at the entrance. As the cows pass through this many flies are brushed off and remain outside.

The housefly has always been a troublesome nuisance, but now it is looked upon as a very potent agent in spreading such dangerous diseases as typhoid fever, cholera infantum, summer complaint, etc. If a cow shows symptoms of being ill do not delay doing something for her. Begin at once to check the trouble.

Every dairy stable should have in it a medicine chest or shelf provided with such drugs as are commonly used in cases of sickness among the animals. A short list is given below. Each bottle or package should be distinctly labeled and the supply renewed as soon as exhausted: Spirits of turpentine, raw linseed oil, sulphur, saltpeter, carbolic acid, nux vomica, epsom salts, ground ginger, vaseline, camphorated oil, laudanum, boracic acid.

There should be on hand a common bicycle pump, a few feet of rubber hose and a milk siphon or tube to insert in the teat. Immerse the tube in boiling water to disinfect it and oil before gently inserting it into the teat opening.

How to Examine a Sick Cow. First, take the temperature of the animal by placing a self-registering veterinary fever thermometer in the rectum, allowing it to remain there from three to five minutes. The normal temperature of a cow is from 98 to 100 degrees F., but in some cows may be higher. It is usually so in young animals.

Second, take the pulse, which can be found at the angle of the lower jaw bone. The normal beat of a cow's pulse is from fifty to sixty per minute. Third, count the respirations of the animal or number of times it breathes by watching the sides of the flanks or by pressing your ear to her side. The normal respiration of a cow is from fifteen to twenty per minute.

If the temperature, pulse or respiration is found to vary much from the normal, you will know the animal is ailing. Dull, glazed eyes; cold ears; dry hot nose; harsh, rumpled coat; lack of appetite, rumination ceased and sudden shrinkage of milk are outward indications that something is wrong with the cow.

Milk from sick cows is unwholesome and in some cases positively dangerous. Sick animals should be removed from the herd, and especially if there be any suspicion of a contagious disease. Parturient Apoplexy—Commonly Called Milk Fever.

Cause.—Milking the cow out too thoroughly after calving. Better not to draw any milk the first twenty-four hours, but just leave the calf with the cow. If for any reason it is not desirable to leave the calf with her draw only a little milk at frequent intervals the first three days if possible to the

GETTING RID OF TUBERCULOSIS GERMS

It is not safe to put cattle into a barn that has housed tubercular animals unless it has been thoroughly cleaned and disinfected, says Hoard's Dairyman. If the barn is well lighted a great many of the tubercular germs will be destroyed by the direct and diffuse sunlight, but it is scarcely possible to construct a barn so that the light strikes all parts. It therefore becomes very necessary to thoroughly clean and disinfect a barn that has held tubercular animals before putting healthy animals into the stable.

Before disinfecting the walls, ceiling, floor, mangers, etc., everything in the stable—should be thoroughly cleaned. A number of disinfectants may be used. Corrosive sublimate is probably the most powerful, but it is very poisonous. One part of corrosive sublimate to 1,000 parts of water is the proportion used. One of the commonest and a good disinfectant to use under all conditions is lime. In preparing quicklime add a pint and a half of water to each quart of lime or by weight 60 parts of water to 100 parts of lime. The result is hydrate of lime, a dry powder. One quart of this is mixed with four quarts of water. This mixture must be used immediately to have any germicidal power. It has been found very effective to add some of the coal tar product, such as cresote or zenoleum, to this lime mixture.

The best way to apply the lime is through a spray nozzle, which is quicker and more economical than trying to put it on the walls and ceiling and floor of the barn with a brush. We might say that some authorities recommend thoroughly disinfecting the barn with this coal tar product before whitewashing. There are a number of these coal tar products which may be used for this purpose, and full directions accompany each package as to how much water should be mixed with the coal tar product in order to make the right kind of a solution.

In disinfecting the barn it is quite as important to spray the mangers, cow ties, stalls and cutters and the feeding alley as it is the walls and ceiling. If corrosive sublimate is used great care must be taken to thoroughly wash the mangers, stalls and cow ties before any animals are permitted in them. On the whole, it will probably be found more satisfactory to use some coal tar product and then thoroughly whitewash. This would make it doubly sure that the barn had been thoroughly disinfected.

Treatment For Calf Scours. Calves at the Wisconsin experiment farm are specially treated for calf scours. First special care is taken to avoid scours by keeping the calves in clean, bright, well lighted and well ventilated quarters. They are fed regularly until four weeks old on two to six pounds of their mother's milk three times daily. Care is taken to have the temperature of the milk as near that of freshly drawn milk as possible and always to have the calf pal scrupulously clean.

In spite of all precautions now and then there is a case of scours. For the past two years such cases have been treated as follows: As soon as symptoms appear two or four tablespoonfuls of castor oil are mixed with one-half pint of milk and given to the calf. This is followed in four to six hours by one teaspoonful of a mixture of one part salol and two parts sublimate of bismuth. It can also be given with one-half pint of new milk or the powder placed on the tongue and washed down by a small amount of milk. The salol and sublimate of bismuth can be secured from any drug store mixed in the proper proportions at the time of purchase and thus have the powder readily available for use at any time.

Value of Good Blood. The value of the pure bred animal lies in his ability to consume and digest large quantities of feed and turn it into meat quickly. Formerly a beef steer had to be four years old before it could be marketed. Now it is a better animal and can be marketed at a year of age. A sheep ready to add to the milk of its udder of fine water.

MAMMITS—Caked Udder—Inflammation of Udder—Garget.

Symptoms.—Usually at first the milk is watery and sometimes discolored with blood and may contain clotted, curdy matter, and the part affected is swollen and painful. In severe cases the cow will have a chill, and the limbs, ears and horns become cold. Then fever will follow and the udder becomes hot, swollen and hard. The milk flow decreases or stops. The cow eats but little and does not chew her cud.

Treatment.—Give oxygen treatment as described for milk fever and a good dose of salts. If the udder remains hard rub well with goose grease or camphorated oil. When the entire udder is caked take a piece of heavy cloth and put it under the udder, making incisions for the teats, and fasten it on top, placing straw or a pad on the back so as not to chafe the cow. This relieves the udder by easing the weight.

For Inflamed Udder.

Rub well after milking with liniment made from four ounces sweet oil, four ounces laudanum, three ounces of extract of belladonna. Silmy or Ropy Milk (Not a Disease). Milk which becomes stringy, silmy or ropy after standing awhile is not due to the cow's condition, but is caused by a large number of bacteria which develop in the milk and change

Value of Farm Lands.

Twenty-five years ago farm lands in Belgium were worth $13 an acre. To-day the same farm lands in Belgium average in value $405 an acre. Isn't that something to make us here in Nova Scotia sit up and take notice.

Supposing that the values of farm lands in Nova Scotia were to increase in the next twenty-five years in the same proportion as those of Belgium have increased in the past 25 years.

Then a hundred acre farm which to-day exclusive of its buildings is worth $1300 would in 25 years be worth $40,500.

That's enough to make one's eyes pop out. But there's the actual increase which has taken place in Belgium in the past quarter of a century.

Of course with land worth $400 an acre one man wouldn't want to farm 100 acres and wouldn't be able to farm a hundred acres; $400 an acre land isn't farmed with exactly the same methods as $13 an acre land is farmed.

The increase in the value of the land involves an increase in the size of the population. Some will say if large numbers of our people get into intensive cultivation and the growing of fruit and vegetables that we'll glut the market. Don't worry. The Canadian market is growing a good deal faster than Nova Scotia's production is doing or is likely to do. Let us keep on the job. Let us grow the stuff.

Much of the vegetables and fruit is now exported direct by the growers. And many who now have small surplus to spare are unable to dispose of their stuff because they have not the necessary knowledge of the markets, the ways of the trade, or do not have sufficient quantity to make up a big enough shipment to interest a big city dealer.

But that is the condition which will very soon adjust itself. Just as soon as we begin to grow a reasonable quantity of fruit and of the more expensive vegetables there will be dealers ready to take care of it and the business will be handled just as satisfactorily as the egg or the butter business is to-day.

Let the agriculturists produce the right stuff. The markets are ready; the middlemen will be found. For some sort of middlemen will be absolutely essential if the business is to assume large proportions.

And the farmer mustn't want to have it all. When he can get $200, $300 or even $400 for one year's products of a single acre he won't need to worry about how many other fellows make a living or how easily they make it.—Dartmouth Patriot.

TEN CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH.

St. Bernard, Dorchester County Que., Oct. 2.—Left alone in their home by their parents, who went out to a neighbors to play cards, the ten children of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Gravel of this place were burned to death at a late hour last night. The Gravel home was completely destroyed.

The fire is believed to have been due to the explosion of a kerosene lamp. The ten children, the oldest 16 years and the youngest 16 months had no chance to escape.

A NEW KIND OF BOOK.

Mr. Edison has invented an extra ordinary kind of book as a substitute for the present paper book. It is only two inches thick and contains 40,000 pages.

The pages are made of nickel and are one-twenty-thousandth of an inch thick. Nickel of this thinness is tougher and more flexible than ordinary book paper, and it readily absorbs printer's ink. The covers are made of steel.

The metal book weighs about a pound, and with its 40,000 pages costs about a dollar and a quarter.

MORE TROOPS.

Centinje, Montenegro, October, 1.—King Nicholas has ordered a general mobilization of the army. It is officially announced that the mobilization is for the purpose of demonstrating Montenegro's solidarity with Serbia and Bulgaria and to protect threatened interests in Montenegro.

Kidneys Wrong?

If they are you are in danger. When through weakness or disease the kidneys fail to filter the impurities from the blood, trouble comes at once. Backache, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Gravel, Diabetes, Gallstones and the deadly Bright's Disease are some of the results of neglected kidneys. Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills contain a most effective diuretic which strengthens and stimulates the kidneys so that they do their work thoroughly and well. Try Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills

WOMAN ENGINEER.

London, Sept. 28.—Nina Cameron Graham the only English woman who has taken the degree of Bachelor of Engineering sailed yesterday for Winnipeg, where she is to marry Mr. Cecil Stephen Walley, of the Dominion Bridge Building Company. The introduction of a woman into the engineering business is first created a little flutter of opposition to Miss Graham but her influence for good among young men was diluted upon the university publications, and a remarkable ovation was accorded her when she was invested with her university degree. This was looked upon as the finest testimony that could have been given as to her popularity.

MYSTERIOUS DEATH OF YARMOUTH WOMAN.

Gloucester, Mass. Sept. 30.—The mysterious death of Mrs. Estelle C. Roberts, who comes from a small Nova Scotia town near Yarmouth, has developed into what the local newspapers term a deep murder mystery. Several persons besides the father of Mrs. Roberts claim she was a victim of foul play. Her body was found two weeks ago in Manchester, Mass. and persons with whom she was last seen alive with have told the state police a strange story of how the woman came to her death. Several of these witnesses tell conflicting stories. To fathom the mystery an inquest will be held, and the entire affair gone into detail.

Trial of McNamara Dynamiters

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 1.—Whoever participated with the McNamara brothers in the series of dynamite and nitro-glycerine explosions, which preceded and followed the wrecking of the Los Angeles Times building, Oct. 1, 1910, when twenty-one persons were killed, the government hopes to disclose in the trial which will begin to-day, before Judge A. B. Anderson.

At the head of the list of defendants who are thus brought into court exactly two years after the Los Angeles disaster, are: Frank M. Ryan, President of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers.

Ortie E. McManigal, once known as "Q. McGraw," on the Pacific coast, a confessed dynamiter and accomplice of the McNamara brothers, who has been kept in custody as a witness for the prosecution ever since his arrest in Detroit a year ago last April.

Herbert S. Hockin, successor of John J. McNamara as secretary-treasurer of the union, whom McManigal accuses of being the organizer of the "dynamiting crew," and one of the originators of the alarm clock scheme by which explosions were set off several hours after a mine was placed.

Most of the other defendants are present or former union officials who government charges, were linked together in a conspiracy from 1905 to 1911 during which time more than 100 explosions in states scattered from Massachusetts to California occurred in works under construction by employers of non-union labor.

Fifty-four were indicted, but John McCray, Wheeling, Va., never has been located and the McNamara brothers are in prison in California.

LORD MILNER

the clearest headed and most judicial officers in the British service, and also as a man of moderate liberal views, he was finally chosen as High Commissioner for South Africa and Governor of Cape Colony, on the resignation of Lord Rosemead, shortly after the Jameson Raid. His was a delicate task and tactfully performed, but all his efforts were unavailing to prevent the inevitable war between the Boers and British. During the war he rendered the military authorities "valuable support and wise counsel," being in "Lord Roberts' phrase," whose courage never failed.

Boston-New York Express Ditched. And Several Passengers Killed and Injured.
 Westport, Conn., Oct. 4.—Rushing along at high speed, the engine of the second section of the Springfield express which left Boston at noon Thursday for New York left the rails and nearly the entire train was ditched. Four parlor cars were heaped in a mass and caught fire, imprisoning the passengers. Several persons were killed and injured. Eight bodies were found.

BIRDMAN WHO FLEW AT HALIFAX EXHIBITION KILLED

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 3.—With fifty thousand people watching at the Inter-State fair grounds, this afternoon, Charles F. Walsh, while making a spiral descent, in a Curtis biplane, fell to instant death, about a quarter of a mile outside the fair grounds. When physicians reached him, Walsh was dead and his machine was a complete wreck. Practically every bone in his body was broken and his face and body were badly cut. He had fallen 2,000 feet. Walsh had been giving exhibitions at the fair all week and this year for the first time was doing fancy stunts in the air, with his machine. He was very high today, probably, 7,000 feet, when he began his descent. He was making his spiral descent, with the front of his machine pointed almost downward, when the upper plane seemed to become loose. Walsh could be plainly seen struggling to regain his balance, but without avail.

Walsh was twenty-five years of age and a native of San Diego, Cal. His wife and two children are visiting at Hammondsport, N. Y., where they intended remaining while he was flying in the west.
 It was aviator Walsh who thrilled thousands by his flights at the recent exhibit in Halifax.

THE AUTO AND THE HORSE.

At a meeting of the St. John Marine Driving Club to be held next Thursday evening a call will be extended to all vehicle drivers, including farmers throughout the country to co-operate with the club in securing legislation which will make imperative for all automobile owners and drivers to carry speedometers on their autos. The feeling among the members of the club is that the auto drivers are constantly infringing on the speed limits and it is in order to keep some check on them in this respect that they mean to insist upon the Legislature passing making it necessary for the autos to carry the speedometers. A JACK TAR AFLOAT

THE NAVY IS NO PLACE FOR THE SLUGGARD.

The Jacky Starts at Five in the Morning and His Day's Work and Play is Carefully and Rigorously Allotted to Him Until Bedtime—Thursdays and Sunday Afternoons Are Holidays For the Men.

If Jack tar does not have a good time afloat as well as ashore, it is his own fault; for, although he has plenty of work to harden his muscles and give him a good appetite for his boiled "duff," he has at least plenty of time to enjoy himself in such ways as are dear to his heart.

There are no sluggards aboard a man-of-war, and every Jack of them all rubs his sleepy eyes open at five o'clock in the summer, and an hour later in the winter, to the blare of the bugle, and the shouting of the bosun's mates. "Show a leg there! Arise and shine, rise and shine. All hands lash-up-and-trove-an-um-cks." In the twinkling of an eye he is wide awake, and begins another day's round by lashing his bedding in his hammock, with seven turns of his hammock-lashing, and is then ready, with a rare appetite for his breakfast of cocoa and bread or biscuit, for which half an hour is his allowance.

Then follows a long spell of work and drill until noon, with a quarter-of-an-hour's "stand easy" at eight o'clock, when Jack is at liberty to enjoy the pipe he has earned, or to repair to the mess for such supplementary breakfast as he requires. And we may be sure that, four hours later, the shrill note of the bosun's pipe that summons him to dinner, falls like music on his ears, for if ever a man has right and appetite for a good square meal it is "Jack" at "eight bells."

There is no laggard in the joint rush, at the bidding of the pipe, to the cook's galley, from which rise mingled odors of baked meats, vegetables, and the succulent "duffs," so dear to Jack's heart. It is no Sparta's meal that awaits these hundreds of hungry sailors—it may be salt pork, with pea-soup, or salt beef and pudding, or liberal portions of preserved beef or mutton, familiarly known as "Fanny Adams," with potatoes or rice on alternate days. But whatever it is, it is good and plentiful, and does not require the sauce of hunger to make it appetizing.

Nor is the meal prepared by any cunning chef. Every member of every lower deck mess takes his turn to cook, though he may know as little of cooking as of quadratics, and the results may at times be more startling than agreeable. It is the duty of the day's cook to get the provisions for his mess from the issuing room, where ship's stewards officiate; and, after manufacturing the meal from his raw materials, to carry it to the ship's cook for its final stages, which do not doubt do much to remedy the ineffectual work of the mess-cook.

At "one bell" (half-past twelve) the bugle-call, known and beloved as "Nancy Dawson," rallies the forces to the grub-club for the daily distribution of rum, a ceremonial as popular in the time of Nelson as in our own. The day's allowance of grog is mixed with scrupulous care in an enormous tub which bears on its bulky side, in large brass letters, the fairly loyal words as "The King, God bless him." Three parts of water to one of rum go to the mixing, and the grog is served out by a petty officer and the marine sergeant of the guard to the waiting queue of mess-cooks — as many half-pints as each man has earned, and they are then awaiting them in his mess. Every tar above the age of eighteen is entitled to his half-pint; and those who have no taste for it are allowed to draw money instead at the rate of 3-12 cents every two days.

His dinner, his grog, and his pipe serve to pass an hour and a quarter very agreeably for our sailor, and occasionally it furnishes him with an opportunity to make a few cheap additions to his wardrobe, for the dinner hour is found a convenient time for disposing by auction of the effects of men who have deserted or are dead, and it is often possible to pick up a white duck-tunic or other article of raiment for a very small fraction of its cost.

At 115 Jack is ready, at the bugle-call, to resume work—cleaning guns, or whatever it may be, but on Sundays and Thursdays he is indulged with an "afternoon off." This is a tailor's opportunity for doing a little Jack's work on his own account, and he spends many a happy afternoon, pipe in mouth, on the upper deck "making and mending clothes," with a skill the slop-shop worker might well envy; for Jack is noted for his clever needle-work.

But the needle has no monopoly of Thursday afternoons. This is the time also sacred to the rites of the "scrub-bag," with its mysterious contents. A warship, as we all know, must be kept as spick and span as the sitting room of the most careful housewife. If Jack carelessly leaves any of his property about—as, of course, he often does—from a tunic and a towel to a book or a pound of tobacco, the hand of the ship's corporal pounces on it, and in it goes into the capacious canvas-bag, there to be imprisoned until the hour of liberation comes. Every Thursday afternoon the bag, full of its miscellaneous booty, is opened, and each article is claimed by one or other of the sailors crowding around, its owner being allowed to redeem his property by the payment of a penny fine—the price of an inch of yellow soap—for every derelict article that is his.

But Jack is not only a skillful needleman, he is also an accomplished "washerman," as he proves on the evenings which he spends periodically, with his arms in the soap-suds, restoring his clothes to a "virginal whiteness, and if he is a good cobbler or a deft wielder of the razor he can put many an extra pound into his pocket by operating on his fellows' boots and chins.

M. K. PIPER
PROPRIETOR AND PUBLISHER

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER, 9 1912.

A tragic circumstance, unparalleled
in Annapolis County, was the death sentence pronounced at Annapolis last Wednesday by Chief Justice Townshend, decreeing that the three Graves brothers should be hanged on the fifteenth of January next for the murder of Kenneth Lea.

The lives of four citizens of Kings County, in the prime of their young manhood, will thus have met a sudden and violent death, and four homes will have been made desolate by the demon liquor. The murderers had been drinking—this was their only and unavailing excuse for the despicable deed which made them criminals, murderers of an inoffensive fellow-man.

Probably, in his sane, sober senses,
not one of the brothers would have been guilty of the deadly assault that caused the death of Lea, no matter what degree of ill-feeling existed between the dead man and the men who accomplished his murder. It was the liquor fiend that "stole away their brains."

Surely, no more effective temperance sermon could ever be preached than the bare facts that the details of this tragedy convey.

Another distressing fatality is reported this week by which a young lad,
in company with others of his age,
carrying fire-arms, met his death by accidental shooting. There is a craze among boys just passing out of childhood to become possessors of a gun.
Any boy who handles a gun without having been taught the danger of it, and the proper precautions in handling it, is not only menacing his own safety but the lives of all with whom he comes in contact. That the destructive element is fostered in boys by the military spirit, so much in evidence in this age, is undeniable. Whether this is a good or a bad trend in the training of boys is a question open for discussion,
but one thing is self-evident: unless boys are to be entirely prohibited in the use of fire-arms, it is a most desirable and necessary thing that they should be taught the danger in handling fire-arms
and the proper means of avoiding catastrophes by their use.

no more men to spare and can ill
afford to lose the citizens already referred to. There are few men in Bridgetown who are not profitably employed.

Halifax, which was now more in the nature of a fair. He praised the climate of Nova Scotia, and said the province
was second to none in its apple culture.
He (the speaker) then went on to speak of the appointment of 12 or 13 inspectors by Premier Murray, to help eradicate the different pests to the fruit growers, and paid a very high tribute to the ready manner in which the Premier had assisted him in this matter. The Premier had told him he would help in every possible way to eradicate all that was harmful to the fruit growers and farmers of his Province. The Professor stated that last year was a most fruitful one in every respect, and referring to the matter of spraying said last season it so happened that whether the trees had been sprayed or not there was yet an immense result, but this year the result was not nearly so good. He (the speaker) was afraid that the farmers did not recognize the importance of spraying their trees, and this year's lesson ought to be productive of much good. A farmer should always see that his trees
were well sprayed, and so secure a much better result. He stated that Mr. Samners, of the Entomological section and Mr. Payne, of the Provincial section, were present to give advice and to receive any information as to where any harm was accruing to trees in districts not yet heard from. Professor Cummings promised immediate help to farmers where San Jose scale was found,
with a view to its eradication (applause).

Mr. A. L. Davidson, who spoke next,
said that it afforded him the greatest pleasure to be present there that afternoon, and predicted that the exhibition would be a most successful one. These exhibitions, he considered, had now passed the experimental stage, and were productive of the greatest good to the farmers. They had become some of the most valuable institutions of the province. The speaker considered that there were better opportunities for the young man in Nova Scotia than in the great West. After paying a high tribute to the Nova Scotian orchards, the speaker said the Province had already built up a great reputation in its fruit
all over the world, and that reputation would be enhanced as time rolled on.

The Hon. O. T. Daniels (President)
expressed his pleasure at being present and hoped that the exhibition would be a great success. He said that he certainly must congratulate the committee of management for the excellent exhibits
as displayed before him. In this province this year no less than twelve exhibitions were being held, including the exhibition at Halifax. These exhibitions were to a great extent taking the place of the work of the exhibition at Halifax, and in every case the result appeared to be most satisfactory. The local exhibition must necessarily take the place of the city fair, and all over the province where these exhibitions
have been held they were great successes, as evidenced by, amongst others,
Sydney, Yarmouth, and even Musquod-dobiit, where they had large gatherings. In this province there was undoubtedly an awakening going on.
There should be no diminution of our population. The speaker dealt on many matters connected with the province's welfare and reiterated that Nova Scotia had the opportunities for any man who cared to make use of them, with as much, if not greater, success as in the West (applause).

The Premier, who was received with a round of applause, thanked the audience for their kind reception, and said that it afforded him the greatest pleasure to be present that afternoon. In the short time he had been in the building
and from what he could see, he congratulated the committee upon their splendid exhibition. He hoped, however, to see more of it, as he intended remaining in town overnight, and therefore would be able to inspect the whole exhibit before leaving. He (the speaker)

could scarcely regard this as a local exhibition. They were all trying to do something for their country, province and county. The Provincial Exhibition at Halifax had come in for a great deal of criticism, and he felt that a portion of it was deserved, but, nevertheless, he (the Premier) considered it was doing a good work, and he, for one, would be sorry to hear of its abandonment. Local exhibitions required no defence. Everybody appeared satisfied that they were doing excellent work in Nova Scotia.

The people of the province should be proud of it, for in the matter of population they were the equal of any other in the world. It was a no-one-industry province. It was rich and strong by reason of its large resources. The West with all its fertility was a great country, of one industry. In Nova Scotia we have numerous industries. These formed the great underlying strength of our province. From our geographical position we can reach out in transportation not only to the American markets with the greatest ease, but also to every known market in the world. What were we doing in Nova Scotia? Was the province progressing as it should progress? He (the speaker) wanted all to think: "We are making progress."
A distinguished English parliamentarian was going to visit Kings, Hants and Annapolis counties a few weeks ago, and in a conversation he (Mr. Murray) had with the visitor, he told him he was going to visit one of the finest countries
he had ever seen, and said he made that statement purposely because he knew he was going to visit it. After the visitor had returned from his trip he told him (the speaker) that he had not spoken enough of the value of the counties through which he had passed. At a great fruit exhibition held in London
a few years ago, Nova Scotia had the honor of winning the gold medal, with which he was delighted. In this province as good fruit as any in the world could always be produced. The speaker referred with the greatest pride to the growth of the steel industry in Nova Scotia, and said it was one of the greatest commercial factors on this continent.
Referring to the coal and fish industries,
the Premier said that these great industries added to the enormous resources of this province, and clearly showed that here was a land of opportunity. In his opinion, Nova Scotia was more than making progress. Our men and boys should live and work in Nova Scotia and not go elsewhere. They had as great chances of success, if not greater, than in other places. For the next 20 or 30 years we should advise the young man or young woman to remain here.
In conclusion, he declared the exhibition
open.

Mr. R. J. Messenger, the Secretary,
Manager of the Exhibition, regretted
the fact that only 40 per cent. of the entries were on exhibit, and hoped that by the following day all would be in position. There was a record entry of 4,297 plates. He said all had worked their hardest to make the exhibition a success, and hoped that the result would turn out beneficial to all. Mr. Messenger stated that Mr. G. H. Vroom had come to demonstrate the proper and improper methods of packing fruit, and trusted many would take advantage of these demonstrations.

This concluded the opening ceremony,
after which the Premier, accompanied by the Mayor and Mr. Messenger, and the ladies, paraded the whole building
and made a most careful inspection.

The Monitor cannot close its account without drawing attention to the Entomological exhibit so charmingly displayed in the centre of the Exhibition
building. "The Systematic Collection of Nova Scotian Moths and Butterflies,"
by Mr. G. H. Payne, one of the Provincial inspectors, was much admired, and here crowds congregated, and eulogistic comments were frequently passed. The Monitor understands that it is the result of fifteen years' collecting, sometimes accompanied with the greatest difficulty, and, once or twice, danger.
This exhibit was an education in itself,
and reflects the greatest praise upon the collector.

Mr. Saunders, the Dominion entomologist and Mr. Payne were constantly present, and many were the questions
they were called upon to answer, particularly with regard to the San Jose scale (of which there were many specimens present, brown tail moth, codling
moth, bud moth, apple maggot or railroad worm, etc.

In the Royal Bank collection the exhibitors were the Grand Pre Fruit Co.
Ltd., Berwick Fruit Co., Ltd., Cornwallis Fruit Co., Ltd., Kingston Fruit
Co., Ltd., and Waterville Fruit Co., Ltd., the latter, as stated before, being
the prize winners.

One vegetable exhibit was particularly worthy of notice, that of H.
Loomer, Falmouth (1st prize), there being a very fine display of garden produce, viz., corn, tomatoes, cucumbers,
lettuces, spinach, cauliflower, onions,
beets, celery, asparagus, cabbages,
pumpkins and squash.

Of the fruit exhibit it is very difficult to particularize. The whole was a grand exhibit in variety, quality and coloring, and nothing but the best impressions could be conveyed to the sightseers of the exhibit.

The drawing match on Friday was held in a field at the back of the depot.
In the horse competition the results were:—1st, Herbert Hicks, Bridgetown; 2nd, J. F. Stephens, Tupper-ville. Oxen:—1st, Atherton Marshall, Clarence; 2nd, Arthur Marshall, also of Clarence.

Mr. Strong has handed the editor ripe field strawberries and blossoms, and Mrs. R. F. Connell has presented a beautiful half-blown rose bud, with two other buds on the same stalk, of the blue rose variety which had its regular blossoming season in the early summer and is having a second season of bloom in October.

Sheburne Gazette: There came near being a frightful railway accident to report this morning. Last evening as the accommodation was a short distance east of Shelburne station the driver noticed a pile of ties on the track just in time to stop the train. It is hoped that the devil who placed them there will be caught and given the punishment he so richly deserves.

Price Webber's popular Boston Comedy Company played "The Female Detective" with Edwina Grey in the leading role at Primrose Theatre last evening. Notwithstanding the many amusement events of the past week, this popular actor and his company drew a good sized audience and played with their usual acceptance. This is Mr. Webber's 38th season on the road, accompanied by his talented wife as leading lady.

A purse containing $40 was lost by Miss Hannah Hill, of Hampton, on Friday last near R. F. Connell's blacksmith shop. It fortunately was discovered by an honest man who immediately sought the Monitor Office to advertise his find. Shortly afterwards Miss Hill arrived to advertise her loss. Her relief on learning that her money had fallen into honest hands may be imagined. She was soon the happy possessor of her purse again. The gentleman who picked up the purse was Mr. Gillatt a painter of Digby.

PERSONAL

Miss Annie Tupper of Digby has been visiting friends in town.

Max Young has entered the Maritime Business College, Halifax.

Mrs. H. Cann of Digby was the guests of Mrs. F. Johnson last week.

Miss Alice McMillan of Annapolis was the guest of her relatives here last week.

A Birthday Party

Mrs. Ruth Ann Banks, an aged lady of Arlington, passed her 86th birthday on Saturday last. The ladies of Arlington and Outram gathered in the afternoon with cake and all kinds of refreshments to celebrate the day. Mrs. Roland Healey presented a birthday cake. A pleasant afternoon was spent and a swell supper enjoyed by all present. We all left wishing Mrs. Banks might live to see many more birthdays and that we might be spared to enjoy them with her.

Mrs. John A. Cook, of Isaac's Harbor, while attempting to draw a pail of water fell into the well and was drowned.

The curfew bell commenced its work again on Tuesday last week, and as the new policeman humorously remarked, "numbers of small children bolted home, and he believed, were still running yet."

To the lovers of the beautiful, Gasbell Hollow at Hampton is worthy of a visit this week. The multitudinous colors of the wonderful maples are now in all their glory and grandeur, and with the small meandering stream in the hollow, a most enchanting scene is displayed.

Outlook:—Fruit Inspector Vroom shipped on Monday to St. John 17 boxes of Ribston and Blenheim apples to be held in cold storage for Exhibit next year in England. They were obtained from the orchard of G. C. Miller. For large, uniform and clean fruit we have seldom seen anything better than the orchard of Mr. Miller. He sprayed with lime-sulphur and thinned his apples on the trees.

An unfortunate accident occurred on Thursday last when the special train bearing excursionists to attend the Exhibition at Bridgetown, ran over and killed a young man at Port Williams. He proved to be William Kennedy of Halifax, who left his home two weeks ago to come to the Valley as an apple picker. His mangled remains were returned to his parents at Halifax. The details of the accident and the verdict of the coroner's jury are given elsewhere.

CREeping TREES.

Tropical Growths Which Develop Into Natural Bridges.
Very familiar objects in tropical forests are the remarkable Lianas, or bush-ropes, so-called because their stems have developed into natural ropes or cables. There is a necessity for this style of growth imposed by the luxuriant growth of the tropics. To every green plant a place in the sun is a necessity. It must have light and if it cannot get light it dies. The tropical forests constantly growth of continuous and rampant growth of the tropical forests constantly tends to choke and smother the slender Liana
and the enormous length of its creeping tendrils is but the result of its keen struggle for light and existence.
Thwarted at one point by the dense foliage, it seeks the line of least resistance, some times creeping along within easy distance of the ground, but ever and always climbing toward the sun. The consequence is that many equatorial forests are a tangled network of stout rope-like creepers which lattice adjoining trees, and form great loops and natural bridges.
In the region of the Cameroons in West Africa, also in western Uganda,
and in the impenetrable forests of the Congo, the Liana is represented by various kinds of Landolphia, a genus
of rubber-bearing trees or shrubs,
which furnishes nearly all the wild rubber derived from Africa. These rubber "vines" climb over the big trees, sometimes to a height of 300 feet above the ground, hanging occasionally in great loops like enormous cables.
The flowers of these Landolphins are deliciously scented. They are white, with a golden centre, and not unlike in shape the flowers of the periwinkle. The foliage is a glossy dark green, and the large fruits which they bear are brightly colored. The rubber is a sticky sap, which flows from the lining between the outer bark and the inner core of woody fiber. To obtain the valuable product, the natives cut the Lianas up in sections, strip off the bark and boil
it until the whole of the viscid sap
is extracted.

Muscular Labor M.P.
In the next general election in Brittain John Redmond will have the unusual experience of finding a seat
for an English member of the House of Commons.
James O'Grady, the muscular labor
man, who at present represents East Leeds, has come into conflict with the official Liberal organization in that constituency, with the result that he has had notice to quit. His offence was that he denounced the Cabinet
over its attitude to the recent dock strike. Although there is a powerful Irish element in Leeds, O'Grady would stand no chance without Liberal support.

As his name implies, he is an Irishman, although, as he himself says, he did not enjoy the blessing of being born in the Emerald Isle. He first saw the light in Berlin, and was a Hanseatic propagandist in England
long before Parnell or Redmond came along to preach that gospel.
"Jim" O'Grady has in fact done
more to educate the English democracy in regard to the grievances of Ireland than any Anglo-Irishman, and for that reason John Redmond will see that he will not lose his place in the House of Commons. If Home Rule becomes a reality before the general election, T. P. O'Connor will join the Irish Government, and in that case O'Grady would be available for the Scotland division of Liverpool.

Fumes Kill Off Bees.
Having a Cobalt silver smelter in their midst is not an unmixed blessing to the residents of Thorold, Ont., town or township who keep bees and hens.

It is claimed that there is not a live bee left within a mile of the Thorold smelter, because the fumes
of the arsenic getting into the flowers, has killed them all off. Farmers who keep bees, or did, are demanding damages from the owners of the smelter, and it is understood that the claims are readily paid.
There are even cases where cows and horses, as well as chickens and other fowls, have died as result of the arsenic fumes from the big smelter.

Puns.
The pun was at its climax early in the nineteenth century. Thomas Hood was a master punster, especially in verse. No better examples can be found anywhere than those in "Miss Kilmansegge" and the "Tale of a Trumpet." What could be neater than the argument of the fiddler trying to sell an ear trumpet:
There was a Mrs. F.
So very deaf
She might have worn a percussion cap,
And been knocked on the head
Without hearing it snap.
Well, I sold her a trumpet,
And the very next day
She heard from her husband at Botany
Bay.

What They Meant.
A Scotch clergyman named Fraser
claimed the title and estates of Lord Lovat. He tried on the trial of the case to establish his pedigree by producing an ancestral watch on which were engraved the letters S. F. The claimant alleged that these letters were the initials of his ancestor, the notorious Simon Fraser, Lord Lovat, beheaded in 1747 for supporting the young pretender. The letters, engraved under the regulator, were shown to stand for "Slow, Fast," and the case
was laughed out of court.

When Coal Was Banned.
It would greatly surprise the average person to-day to hear that by a proclamation of 1806, the use of coal in London was forbidden, so little was it liked. Two and a half centuries later, on the contrary, its value was recognized, and its export in any form prohibited. To-day nothing is so scarce as coal in London. As for colliers, their pay and conditions of living to-day are princely when compared with those of many miners in the 18th century.

THE HOME

HOME MANNERS

A little girl perhaps eight or nine years old, came skipping out on the veranda of the hotel where I was staying this summer, and exchanged greetings with a man who stood looking out across the mountains.

"Good morning," said the little girl, "how do you do this morning?"

"Why good morning," said the man, turning towards her with evidence of pleasure. "I'm fine as silk, thank you. I'm trying to make up my mind whether it's going to rain or clear off. What do you think?"

The youngster took a look at the clouds and with a youthful optimism promptly decided that it was going to clear off, then she put her hand in his and still chatting sociably, they walked down the veranda. Just as they passed out of ear-shot I had a shock; I heard the little girl call the big man papa.

Why was that a shock?

Because they had been talking together with so much evident pleasure, so much sociability, that it had never occurred to me that father and daughter could be their relationship. I had fancied the man was a hotel acquaintance or possibly an uncle.

Nor was this an accountable mistake of mine. I am sure you would have been deceived in just the same way. For if you will take notice, I think you will find that you seldom hear members of the same family talking to each with the same sociability, the same courtesy, the talk to outsiders.

A little boy I used to know once gave a most naive proof of this fact. He had taken a deep interest in two of his mother's guests, and after they had gone, he asked his mother what relation to each other they were. She told him that they were husband and wife. "Are you sure?" he asked. "Of course," she said much astonished at his doubts. "Why?" "Well," answered the youngster, "I didn't think they could be, because even when you were out of the room they talked a lot to each other like—why just like friends."

There is no doubt whatever that ninety-nine people out of a hundred have a totally different tone of voice and manner for their family from which they use for their friends. Notice when some member of your family goes from the family circle to telephone—surely a whole jar of honey has been suddenly upset into her voice—there is such an astonishing change in it.

Or mark how differently father speaks to mother and the maid when something is wrong in the household economy. Not that he prefers the maid to mother—it is simply because the maid is an outsider and therefore, entitled to a decently pleasant voice and a measure of courtesy, even when fault must be found.

Now, of course I realize that it is not either possible or desirable to treat one's family exactly as one does outsiders. I admit that there are forms and artificialities in our intercourse with strangers which it would be absurd to carry into the home. But I do think that most of us might treat our housemates more "like friends," as the little boy said without being uncomfortable formal.

We say that home is the one place where we can be our real selves. Surely that cannot mean anything but our best selves.

CARE OF THE CHILD IN EARLY AUTUMN.

Few mothers fully realize, perhaps, that a little extra care bestowed upon the child in early autumn will save many of those colds and troublesome ailments which are likely to incur needless doctor's bills and weeks of worry, added to a great tax on the little one's constitution during the winter months.

"Prevention is better than cure" may be despised as an old adage, but never the less it is a very sound advice. Autumn colds are ailments which every wise mother will guard against, as they are too often the cause of chronic state of catarrh from which so many children suffer, and which is so obstinate to cure.

The careful mother will see to it that the little one who has been wearing cotton stockings during the warm weather is put into thin woolen ones as soon as summer declines. The same advice holds good for those child who has been wearing cotton vests. These should be changed for woolen combinations.

Woolen underwear, covering the body from neck to feet, including the arms, fitting loosely, with moderately thin outer garments provide necessary protection from changeable weather and damp. Many who make the mistake of putting on a thick coat or extra heavy petticoats. These only needlessly fatigue the little one, and are not nearly as efficacious in warming the body and same advice holds good for mothers underwear.

During the summer the child has enjoyed playing in the garden until quite late, but now that the evenings are getting shorter she should go to bed in good time so that by winter she will have re-formed the habit of getting to bed early and so having several hours of "beauty sleep." It is well to do this gradually by calling the little mite in a few minutes sooner each day, not by suddenly putting her to bed an hour or so earlier, as in this case she would only lie awake in bed and become restless.

Many children suffer from overwork in their play, especially little ones who have grown out of the daily nap. To a child who is not very strong it is a great strain to be on her feet all the day, and some indoor sitting-down game might be substituted in the autumn evenings for outdoor pastimes.

A very good plan is to give the little one a tonic towards the approach of autumn. This will generally serve to give her power of resistance against the cold winds of October and November.

DISARMING FATE.

"I notice Mrs. Simmons is having a new porch put on to her house," said Deacon Wood, polishing his glasses.

"Yes," said his wife, "she always wanted one clear across the front of the house, but Silas never would build one, so the first thing she did with some of the insurance money was to have one."

The deacon looked at his paper thoughtfully for a moment, then remarked:

"This widdler Davis is setting out a good many flowers, isn't she? She keeps getting seed catalogues at the post-office."

"Yes," replied his wife, "her heart's been set on a posy-garden a good many years, but I should almost think 'twould make Jed Davis turn over in his grave. He always thought flowers was such a foolish waste of time and money."

For a time the deacon was silent then he said, "Wasn't that a new rubber-tired buggy I saw Prussia White in yesterday?"

"Yes," replied his wife with animation, "and I'm glad she's got it at last. She rode round for years in an old farm wagon, though Leander could well afford a decent buggy for her and her girls, but if he'd a lived they'd never have had one."

For a time the deacon remained silent in thought; then he said:

"If you had a comfortable sum of money to do just what you wanted with, Mandy, what would you get?"

"I'd have me a hardwood floor in that kitchen," said his wife firmly.

"I never scrub that old floor but what I run my fingers full of silver."

"Mandy," said her husband, with fervor, "you'll see the carpenters at work on that new floor to-morrow mornin'." And the deacon resumed his paper with a sigh of relief.

YOUNG ASTOR WILL WORK AS HARD AS OFFICE CLERK

New York, Oct. 11.—Vincent Astor who is worth $75,000,000 in his own right, will work as hard as any $15 a week clerk in managing the immense estate left by his father, Colonel John Jacob Astor, who we lost with the Titanic.

Sitting at his desk in front of a three foot pile of letters young Astor outlined his plans. He will not allow sports of any kind to interfere with his business.

His office, No. 23 West Twenty-sixth Street, Young Astor went from his home to street, where he will conduct all of his business. A reporter was waiting for him there.

"In six weeks you know, I will be of age," he said, as he tore open, letter after letter, gave it a quick glance, marked it for future reference and placed it aside. "Then I will assume control of all of the business. In the meantime I am going to familiarize myself with every detail."

HOSTILITIES HAVE BEGUN.

London, Oct. 4.—Hostilities between the Balkan States and Turkey have already commenced, according to reports from many quarters. A despatch to the Russian Government says the Bulgarians are crossing the frontier.

PARALYSIS COMPLETELY CURED

"Fruit-atives" Performs Another Miracle

BRISTOL, N. B., July 25th, 1911
 "I had a stroke of Paralysis in March 1910, and this left me unable to walk or help myself, and the Constipation of the Bowels was terrible.
 Nothing did me any good and I was wretched in every way.
 I then took "Fruit-atives" and to my surprise it not only cured me of this terrible trouble, but gradually this fruit medicine toned up the nerves and actually cured the Paralysis.
 By the use of "Fruit-atives," I grew stronger and stronger until all the Paralysis and weakness left me.
 I am now well again and attend my store every day. I say "Thank God for Fruit-atives!"
 ALVA PHILLIPS.
 "Fruit-atives" not only cured the terrible Constipation, but so toned up the nervous system and the general health as to completely overcome the palsy.
 Truly "Fruit-atives" is a wonderful medicine.

TO USE CONCRETE FOR KING EDWARD ROAD.

A portion of the King Edward Highway is to be built of concrete, the contract for its construction having been let on Sept. 11th, by the Honorable J. E. Caron, Minister of Agriculture and Highways of the Province of Quebec. The King Edward Highway is the Canadian section of the Intercolonial Highway connecting Montreal with several large cities in the United States. Ultimately, it is expected that this road will continue as far south as Miami, Florida.

It was the original intention that the entire highway should be built of macadam; but the honorable Minister who has under his jurisdiction the Canadian branch of the work has become interested in concrete roadways and has decided upon this important undertaking as a good place to try it out. Government and municipalities are gradually coming to recognize the necessity of a more permanent form of roadway construction. That concrete is the material which best fulfills all the requirements of a permanent roadway is a fact that will ultimately obtain world wide recognition.

THE REAL OBJECT OF LORD MILNER'S VISIT.

(Montreal Witness.)
 Local financial and brokerage houses are in receipt of news from Sydney, C. B. that the President J. H. Plummer, of the Dominion Steel Corporation has arrived at the plant and that he is accompanied by Lord Milner and several other leading English capitalists.

It is understood that the object of the visit is purely instructive, but those who are close to the Steel management are of the opinion that these British representatives are not visiting Sydney for their health, and behind this inspection and apparent interest in Dominion Steel progress and possibilities lies an important movement which is certain to be made public before long, and which will prove highly advantageous to the Cape Breton corporation.

TO BRING ABOUT A WORLD WIDE STRIKE.

Lawrence, Mass., Oct. 4.—Announcement of the beginning of a campaign to bring about a possible general strike of the members of the industrial workers of the world, in this country and abroad, was made here Thursday by William D. Haywood as chairman.

"Don't spurn to be a rutilight, because you are not a star; but brighten some bit of darkness, by shining just where you are."

THE FERTILE FRENCHMAN.

Quebec Canadians Have Doubled Every 25 Years.

Race suicide, so often pointed to as a grave peril for France, is invisibly remote in French Canada. The province of Quebec so abounds in large families that it is capable of supplying the deficiency of its mother country. Indeed, the late distinguished economist, Mr. Leroy Beaulieu, recently said: "Give us 10,000 French-Canadians and we will repeople France." In 1754 the last census under French regime showed 55,000 French in Canada. This number has doubled every twenty-five years, says Eugene Rouillard, so that now they aggregate 330,000.

A paternal government has not been slow to reward the effort of its people in "multiplying and replenishing" the earth, says a recent writer.

In 1890 the Government of the Province of Quebec passed a law granting a piece of land to every head of a family that could boast of twelve or more children. This grant was later changed to a cash premium. Until 1905 a total of 5,414 families received the premium. Of this number 150 families had 14 to 18 living children; in some cases where one or the other of the parents was married twice, the number of living children ranged from 18 to 27 children. Since the foundation of Quebec in 1608 there have been entered upon the parish registers, up to 1885, a total of 2,900,000 births, or 67.25 per one thousand population. French-Canadian families of eight and ten children are not uncommon. The average size of a family is five children—an average that will be maintained, one should think, unless alcoholism, which is beginning to plague our race, pervades the rural districts.

The French-Canadians have few millionaires among them, but there are a few. On the other hand, they have no poor. The poor, even in the great city of Montreal, are not French-Canadians. Among the smaller places one town, Nicolet, will serve as an example. Conversing with one of the citizens, the writer asked him if there were a large number of poor. He answered that practically there were no poor. "We are neither rich nor poor. Every one makes a living, and a comfortable living. Our farmers are even prosperous." The question was asked if the large families did not have the tendency to make the people poor, and he laughed and said that on the farms the large families were a distinct advantage, for, while farmers in English-speaking portions of the country could get no help at all, the French-Canadians never lacked for it.

Large families do not appear to interfere with educational opportunities. In the archdiocese of Montreal there is a Catholic population of 472,000. Roughly, we might say that 400,000 of these are French-Canadians. For this population there is one university, having a normal school and faculties of arts, medicine, law, etc. There are eight classical colleges and 731 Catholic schools. And then we have spoken only for the boys. This does not count the numerous educational boarding schools and other educational institutions for women. In this archdiocese alone there are 88,000 pupils.

Getting Even.

Did you ever live in the same neighborhood as a man who complains that the neighbors' children spoil his lawn, that their chickens scratch up his seeds, and so on?

There's a Mr. Blank in Hamilton who frequently makes such complaints concerning his neighbors.

One night Blank heard a dog barking. He thought he knew whose dog it was, so he called up Neighbor Fisher and said, "Your dog is barking and annoying the neighborhood."

"It's not my dog," said Fisher.

"It is."

"It's not."

"It's twice more before he turned in. Blank called up Fisher and they had the same conversation.

Fisher who stayed out very late that night, decided to get even. At 4 a.m. he called up the kicker.

"Is that Mr. Blank?" he asked.

"Yes," answered Blank, sleepily.

"Well, I want to tell you," said Fisher, "that that wasn't my dog."

Blank was too tired to put up even a telephone fight, and Fisher added, "My dog has been down cellar all night, and he's scratching at the door now and whining to get out."

Didn't Worry Sir Mackenzie.

In the days when Sir Mackenzie Bowell was one of the Conservative leaders, and an active campaigner, the contest electorate used to take liberties with his name on his campaign tours.

Once while canvassing the county of Hastings, the Belleville knight was variously addressed by the "free and independent," as "Sir Mackenzie," "Sir Mack," and just plain "Mack."

One of his colleagues noted the familiarity and was rather nettled by it, so he spoke to Sir Mackenzie.

"Why do you allow people to be so free with your name?"

"Sir Mackenzie was too thick-skinned by long practice at the game of politics to mind it."

"But," he said, "I don't care a rap what they call me so long as I get their votes."

And he got them.

Education Progress.

Four years ago the University of Alberta commenced operations in a room in one of the public schools of Strathcona. Four professors kept the freshmen in order.

Today Dr. Fry and his assistants number twenty-four, and there is 300 of an enrollment expected when the college term opens. Education, like other things, moves rapidly in the West.

THE FREE TESTING OF FARM SEEDS.

During the season of 1912-13, the branch of the federal department of Agriculture will test free of charge, samples of seeds of grasses, clovers and cereal crops. This has been the policy of this branch since the passing of the seed control act.

As a guide to growers, dealers and others who desire to have samples tested for purity, grading and germination, a leaflet of instructions has been prepared. Under twenty-three numbered paragraphs there are described, among other things, how to prepare, pack and address samples of seeds of various kinds. Useful notes are given on qualities affecting the value of seed. It is pointed out that injury to wheat from frost or dampness is usually apparent in the color and shrunken conditions of the grain. Well-hulled kernel of sound oats is usually semi-transparent and not brittle a frosted kernel is dark and mealy, particularly at the tip and is usually brittle. Instructions are given for cleaning clover and grass seeds, but the growers whose farms are not clean are recommended to sell their seed in an unclean condition to a wholesale merchant who has special power cleaners. Persons who desire to have seed tested may procure a copy of this circular by applying for it to the Publication Branch of the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

HARVEST MAN MURDERED

Carlyle, Sask., Oct. 4.—The country, for forty miles around Carlyle, has been scoured by a posse headed by the mounted police, all day, for the murderer of William McLeod, a harvest hand of Halifax whose body was shipped tonight from Winnipeg to his parents.

Mounted police are searching the thickly wooded Moose Mountain country, which affords an excellent hiding place for the fugitive; but there is no doubt that the pursued men will give himself up, as telephone messages giving a minute description have been sent broadcast and no one will give him refuge.

That W. McLeod's death was caused by a blow struck by Solomon Rose, a storekeeper, with some instrument resembling a hammer, on Friday, Sept. 20, and that the blow was struck while McLeod was standing on the steps of Rose's store, at Lamphan, Sask., was the unanimous verdict of the coroner's jury, handed down at the inquest.

The St. John Telegraph states that the Calvin Austin carried a record crowd to Boston on Saturday night, giving the number at more than 700 passengers. The two steamers leaving Yarmouth the same night for Boston carried 957 passengers, so that the Yarmouth line still leads, and it always will if given equal chances with any other.—Yarmouth Herald.

ENTERTAINING THE KING.

What It Cost To Be the Host of Royalty.

King George, like the late King Edward, does everything that lies in his power to prevent undue trouble or expense being incurred by those whom he visits, and everything that savors of ostentation is most obnoxious to him. At the same time it is necessary that certain amount of formality should be carefully observed, and all this runs into money. His Majesty, for instance, is invariably accompanied by an Equerry, who, by reason of his position, becomes a member of the house party, while if the Queen travels with His Majesty, her Lady-in-Waiting has likewise to be included among the guests. It is very rarely that the King is attended by more than two body servants; while three maids, as a rule, suffice for Queen Mary's requirements.

It is laid down that His Majesty must upon all occasions have a suite of apartments to himself, and it is desired that these should be as far removed from the rooms of the other members of the house party as possible. A similar suit has to be provided for Queen Mary when she is present. Not many years ago a well-known nobleman who was entertaining the present King for the first time spent over $10,000 in providing a new suite of rooms for His Majesty's occupation.

Whenever it is at all possible, the King also desires that he should be placed in telegraphic and telephonic communication with the royal palace, so that he may be within easy reach of his secretaries and the chief officials of his household. Most country seats are, of course, to-day upon the telephone, but the telegraph is a very different matter, and when the late King Edward was once staying in the North of England his host spent $650 to provide a special telegraph wire. His late Majesty, as it happened, only required to make use of it upon one occasion, when he wired exactly eight words to Buckingham Palace—surely the most expensive telegram that was ever dispatched.

Enlivened the Dinner.

When Muzaffar-ed-Din, Shah of Persia, paid his first visit to England he was the guest of King Edward VII., then Prince of Wales. On the evening of his arrival a banquet was held at the palace, and on the menu was asparagus.

As it happened the Shah had never heard of, much less tasted, asparagus till that evening. When the dish was brought on he helped himself to half of it, picked each stalk up in his fingers, nibbled gingerly at the head and then threw the stalk over his shoulder on to the carpet. To have let it remain on his plate would have been a breach of Persian etiquette.

All eyes were turned to the Prince of Wales. What was he going to do? The prince, tactful as ever, glanced at those about him, then at his plate; then he picked up stalk after stalk, ate what he wanted and threw the balance on the carpet behind his chair.

A moment later thirty people in that room were eating asparagus in Persian fashion. The air was thick with flying stalks, and the attendants, trained to look more serious than ever on such occasions, never batted an eyelash nor moved a muscle.

Busiest Spot on Earth.

The most crowded spot in the world for five and a half days of the week is that small tract of territory, covering one acre, bounded by the Royal Exchange Bank, and the Mansion House in the city of London. It is a veritable human gannet, says The Strand Magazine. If you were to stretch an invisible thread north and south across this space you would find that in the course of each day no fewer than 500,000 persons passed and repassed together with 50,000 vehicles. And the busiest corner of all in this busy acre is immediately outside the Mansion House, for rather more than half the traffic crossing our imaginary boundaries passes that way. The results of a traffic census taken by the city police show that on an average day some 30,000 vehicles pass this particular corner, while the pedestrian traffic is well over 250,000, and these figures are constantly increasing.

The Wrong Crowd.

Mr. George Grossmith tells this story of when he was performing with his father. On one occasion, instead of beginning the performance at eight o'clock, as advertised, they did not arrive in the town until twenty minutes past that hour. "We dressed in the cab, which flew along like a fire engine. Suddenly we espied a building lighted up and a large crowd coming out. 'Go back, go back!' shouted my father to the crowd as he put his head out of the cab. 'Go back; it is all right—Grossmith is here. We have arrived—go back!' Unfortunately it was not our audience, but a congregation leaving a Methodist chapel after service."

Disputed Authority.

There is a story told of Drs. Chalmers and Stewart, who argued on the street corner on some knotty point of theology with Scottish pertinacity until it was time to separate, when one of them remarked, "You will find my views very well put in a certain tract," of which he gave the title, upon which, to his surprise, his antagonist replied, "Why, I wrote that tract myself."

An Unsinkable "Boat."

Among the water vehicles the most extraordinary is the catamaran of the Madras fishermen. It consists of three logs lashed together flush with the surface of the water and is propelled with a single oar. The catamaran is really unsinkable and in rough weather could be used when an ordinary boat could not.

The British Museum.

About forty miles of shelving are taken up by the books in the library of the British Museum in London. There are about 2,000,000 at present, and the number increases at the rate of 50,000 a year.
