In youth he was a great traveller, and became an accomplished linguist, so that he acted as interpreter at Queen Caroline's trial. He engaged in the Greek revolution and showed great bravery. Afterwards he kept the duellists of Naples in terror with his reputation. Returning to England he settled down as a merchant in Liverprofession, an author.

The Times speaks hopefully of a pacific solution of the Virginius question. The Daily News says the rumored ultimatum of the United States would appear to be equivalent to a declaration of war.

Late despatches have been received from Gen. Wolseley, commanding the Ashantee Expedition. They condemn the native auxiliaries as worthless. The Ashantees are in full retreat. Their main column, however, is within easy march of the British advance, yet the General is unable to overtake them, owing to the tardiness and cowardice of his native allies. He complains of the humiliating position in which he is placed in consequence of being obliged to depend on such help.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28. SPAIN'S REPLY A SECRET. The expectation of receiving a concl sive answer from Spain to the demands of the United States respecting the Virginius has not yet been realized. It is stated, however, that the tenor of all the despatches received indicated that Spain will accede to our demands. It is now known that Gen. Portland Police Court.

A case of interfering with the police occupied the most of the time of the Court this morning. Alex. Ramsay was charged with trying to prevent policeman Myles from doing his duty on Saturday night last, while he was arresting a drunken man, by shoving and pushing him. Myles swore that while he and policeman Stockford were endeavoring to put the hand-cuffs on a drunken man, a crowd surrounded them, among whom was Ramsay. That he saw Ramsay deliberately shove and push him, and that he then told him he would have to pay for it. Stockford did not see Ramsay shove Myles, but heard Myles tell him at the time he would have to pay for so doing. The evidence for the defence that was offered by Mr. Gregory was quite different. Several of the crowd swore that Ramsay never laid hands on the policeman, but stood back some distance with his hands in his pockets. That the prisoned and possible of the conditions of the policeman, but stood back some distance with his hands in his pockets. That the prisoned and possible of the condition of the condition of the policeman, but stood back some distance with his hands in his pockets. That the prisoner complained of being choked and the crowd rushed in carrying Ramsay Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, with it against the police, and that Myles looked up, and recognized the prisoner and said he had spoted him before and would make him pay. The evidence was so contradictory that the charge was dis-

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs.

A MONG the great discoveries of modern science, few are of more real value to mankind than this effectual remedy for all diseases of the Throat and Lungs. A vast trial of its virtues, throughout this and other countries, has shown that it does surely and effectually control them. The testimony of our best citizens, of all classes, establishes the fact that Cherry Pectoral will and does relieve and cure the afficting disorders of the Throat and Lungs beyond any other medicine. The most dangerous affections of the Pulmonary Organs yield to its power; and cases of Consumption, cured by this preparation, are publicly known, so remarkable as hardly to be believed, were they not proven beyond dispute. As a remedy it is adequate, on which the public may rely for full protection. By curing Coughs, the forerunners of more serious disease, it saves unnumbered lives, and an amount of suffering not to be computed. It challenges trial, and convinces the most sceptical. Every family should keep it on hand as a protection against the early and unperceived attack of Pulmonary Affections, which are easily met at first, but which become incurable, and too often fatal, if neglected. Tender lungs need this declence: and it is unwise to be without it. As a safeguard to children, amid the distressing diseases which beset the Throat and Chest of childhood, Cherry Pectoral is invaluable; for, by its timely use, multitudes are resecued from premature graves, and saved to the love and affection centered on them. It acts speedily and surely against ordinary colds, securing sound and health-restoring sleep. No one will suffer troublesome Influenza and painful Bronchitis, when they know how easily they can be cured. Prepared by Another Indian died at Pyramid Lake from her fatal influence, and an attempt was made to capture and kill her. She eluded the pursuit of the enraged warriors. The matter was taken up and discussed in the grand council in Pine Nut valley last Friday, and the result was the appointment of a large detail of Indians to stone her to death. The unfortunate woman was placed in the centre of a large ring formed by her executioners, who were armed with stones, and was beaten to a pulp and left unburied. At first her husband felt somewhat outraged, and threatened to "clean out the circumstances, and it being intimated to him that "he'd better let that job out." he cooled down, and joined with the other relatives in expressing satisfaction with the killing, all of them saying that it ought to have been done long ago.
