PEACE AND THANKSGIVING

PEACE! On November 11, 1918, the world watched the length and breadth of the living line of the Great War with the peace of stillness. Men laughed at it with weary contentment. They had heard that story too often in the news since the outbreak of the war. The peace of stillness was a peace of triumph. The peace of triumph was a peace of triumph.

As the day wore on, officers, almost hushed with joy, continued the story that Germany, defeated on land and sea, was now a peace of triumph. The peace of triumph was a peace of triumph. The peace of triumph was a peace of triumph.

In the hearts of all, a peace of triumph. The peace of triumph was a peace of triumph. The peace of triumph was a peace of triumph. The peace of triumph was a peace of triumph.

In the hearts of all, a peace of triumph. The peace of triumph was a peace of triumph. The peace of triumph was a peace of triumph. The peace of triumph was a peace of triumph.

Memories

How often when the evening
Has closed the book of day,
I think, in happy, happy days,
How sleep so far away,
I sleep again his little hand
Contentedly in mine,
I think that in his love for me
There is a spark divine.
I see the bloom of untroubled youth
Within his innocent eyes,
I think the progress of his soul
The birth of enterprise.
I think that when the world will call
My day to be his part,
I think that I shall always hold
A place within his heart.
Ours were 3 heart the single soul,
I see his first slight
With quick desire to take the lead
In battle for the right.
"Remember in France" he slept, but oh!
His heart was still awake.

LOOKING BACKWARD

We have followed
Along the Highway of Time to the mile post of the Present.
Here we march gaily with a song of happiness in our hearts;
here we plodded wearily with sorrow at our side. In vain we try to see the road ahead. Future, active and dispassionate, veils it. What matter? There is no turning back. Forward is still the watchword. Hope and Faith are our guides. They were with us in the darker hours of the journey, though we could not always see them nor believe that they were there.
There is much for Canada to be thankful for as a result of all the cares and anxieties that encompass her. Unlike the countries of Europe she is not surrounded by hostile nationalities, each eager to expand territorially at the expense of its neighbors. She is not called upon to maintain a great standing army, either through fear, or through hope of conquest. The people of her Provinces may be jealous and critical of one another at times, but all are united in love for the land of their birth or adoption. All have faith in its destiny. The harvest has been bountiful beyond the hopes and predictions of the spring and summer. There is no fear of famine that stalks with deliberate malice in some other lands. Providence and Nature have blessed this country whose possibilities in natural resources are still beyond the calculations of those who love her best.
Thanksgiving Day!
It comes also to mark a day when the whole world woke to the realization that the years of warfare had ended in the vindication of the right of mankind to live in freedom. To many it will bring with increased poignancy the thoughts of loved ones who died that Thanksgiving Day might hold all of its true meaning for those they left behind. The memories of earlier Thanksgiving Days with their merry outings and jolly frolics, gatherings, will be hallowed by the prayers for those whose names are inscribed on the roll of the fallen. They fought and died for the Canada of to-morrow as much as that of to-day. It is ours to prove that their sacrifice was not in vain.
For their dear ones we loved and lost,
In silence let us stand
For one brief moment, while we pledge
To them beloved land,
A faith as steadfast and as deep
As theirs who died that we Might know, through all the years to come,
The way of liberty.

GRAPHIC REPORT OF JAPANESE QUAKE

Recent Statement of Capt. Robinson of Empress of Australia Printed

Just in hand is the official report of Captain Robinson, R.N.R., commander of the Canadian Pacific R.M.S. Empress of Australia, on the Japanese earthquake, the fire and the subsequent relief operations, in all of which Captain Robinson, his officers and crew played a part which had been a most successful one. The report describes the disaster from the moment the first shock, on Saturday, September 1st, till the ship left Yokohama on her return voyage to Vancouver on September 12th. It is a most interesting and vivid account of the disaster and the relief operations, and is a most valuable contribution to the historical records of the catastrophe.

One may subscribe heartily to the tributes paid Captain Robinson and those under him by various committees. The American Relief Committee states that "We know what the lives of all on board the ship during the first two days were constantly in the hands of you, your officers and crew. It was your able, skilful and courageous handling of the many difficult situations that saved us all and the kindly, courteous and efficient manner in which you cared for the refugees, regardless of conditions, nationality, or colour, was marvellous." The British refugees and passengers subscribe to these sentiments and add that "the traditions of the British Mercantile Marine Service have been maintained."

Copies of the report, tastefully printed, are available free of charge on application at the C. P. R. Windsor Street offices, Montreal.

SEED GROWERS WILL ORGANIZE

Committee Appointed in August—Held Meeting in St. John Recently.

The members of the committee appointed by the potato growers of the province in August for the purpose of considering the formation of a New Brunswick Potato Growers Association, held a meeting in St. John recently where it was decided to proceed with the drafting of the necessary constitution for submission to the annual meeting of the New Brunswick Farmers and Dairy-men's Association for approval.

Considerable discussion was devoted to the proposals for the formation of the seed growers association which had originated definitely at the gathering held at the Ex-oriental Station conducting the potato field day held on August 15th, when the committee was appointed for this purpose. The constitution and by laws will be prepared by the committee and submitted for approval at the meeting of the Farmers and Dairy-men's Association which will probably be held in Fredericton this year.

Address Of Welcome By His Lordship Bishop Ross

Railway Matters Of Gaspé Coast Clearly Placed Before The Large Gathering At Bonaventure On Tuesday Oct. 30th.

The following address was delivered by His Lordship, Bishop Ross at the great meeting held at Bonaventure recently, and clearly sets forth the aims and objects of that meeting. Nothing could better prove the importance of the question we have to discuss, give to it a certain character of sacredness; moreover the high position of the gentleman who have honored the Bishop of Gaspé, his clergy and his people, by entering into community of spirit with them, has authorized me to make an exception in this case, and to receive you in the church, the place where we deal only with the sacred interests of a people.

Gentlemen, be welcome, and accept my thanks. May I specially thank Sir Henry Thornton, the President of the National Railways, who has greatly honored and pleased us, by coming to hear us after he had personally studied our question during the past summer. We see in this act his part that he is at least sympathetic to our views. We felt it beforehand. We also know what great weight his authority will have with the Government to which our request is to be presented. And we cherish the hope that after he has come in contact with the soul of a people who suffer and who ask to be assisted, he will find in his kindly nature the necessary words to cause the balance to turn in our favor.

I am also pleased to see in this meeting the two wardens of the two counties, the mayors of the various

GOOD ROADS ARE AN INDUCEMENT

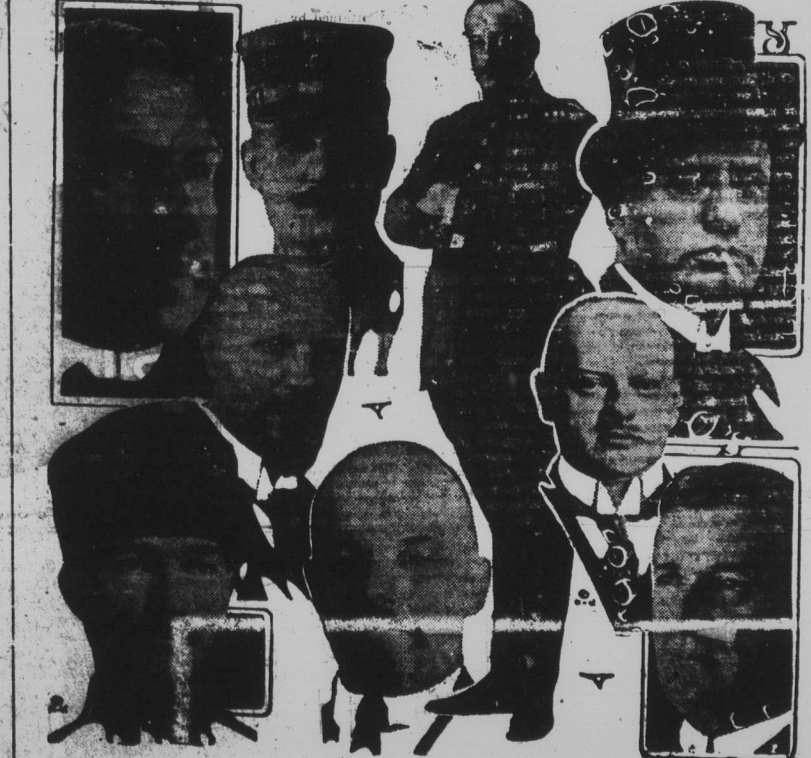

Tourists Will Visit New Brunswick In Larger Numbers Next Year.

Fredericton, N.B., Nov. 3.—J. R. Douglas, president of the Montreal Tourist Bureau, with George A. Macdonald, secretary treasurer of the Bureau and also secretary treasurer of the Canadian Good Roads Association, and Harry Hatch, of Montreal, left here by automobile this morning for Bathurst with Burton M. Hill, chief Highway engineer, to call upon Premier Vautour en route back to Montreal.

"We have been making a personal inspection of the highways in New Brunswick and we have found that this province has an excellent system of roads which are suitable for motor touring," said Mr. Douglas. "We expect that one result of our visit will be the completion of a co-operative agreement which will combine Quebec and the Maritime Provinces so that we may all benefit from the advantage of the growing number of tourists who are visiting Eastern Canada."

Mr. Douglas went on to say that there were three necessary attributes to be able to successfully attract and handle automobile tourists: first, good roads; then, clean, comfortable hotels; and last, a safe and secure environment. He said that the Montreal Tourist Bureau showed up to September 28th no less than 114,000 visiting automobiles, had entered the province of Quebec and it was expected that the records for the entire season would show a total of 125,000 for the year.

DICTATORS RULING NINE EUROPEAN NATIONS, BUT NEWER ONES ARE HAVING HECTIC TIME

The nine dictators of Europe. Top row, left to right: Dr. Von Kahr of Bavaria, Gen. Gonzalez of Greece, Premier Prime de Rivera of Spain, and Premier Mussolini of Italy. London, Oct. 30.—The nine "supermen" now try to guide the destinies of so many countries in Europe, which should be the old days when Europe was ruled by the kings of France, England, Prussia, Austria, and Russia.

Next arose Mussolini from the ranks of the black-shirted Fascists of Italy, who stepped into the activities of the Communists, led his cohorts against the Reds and by his own personality and appeal to the loyal Italians became the man of the hour there. King Emmanuel was forced to make way for him.

Unheard of two years ago he led the Turkish Nationalist movement to a successful ending and even forced the powers of Europe to listen to "the sick man of Europe."

The assassination a few months ago of the premier of Greece, Gen. Zeev Jabotinsky, was a blow to the Greek government, and the Greek Dictator, Gen. Zeev Jabotinsky, was a blow to the Greek government, and the Greek Dictator, Gen. Zeev Jabotinsky, was a blow to the Greek government.

YOUNG DAUGHTER MADE WELL

Mother Tells How Her Daughter Suffered and Was Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Vancouver, B.C.—"My daughter is a young girl who has been having severe pains and weak and dizzy feelings for some time and had lost her appetite. Through an older daughter who had heard of a woman who was taking it for the same trouble, we were told of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My daughter has been taking it for several months and is quite all right now. It has done all it was represented to do and we have told a number of friends about it. I am never without a bottle of it in the house, for I myself take it for that weak, tired, worn-out feeling which sometimes comes to us all. I find it is building me up and I strongly recommend it to women who are suffering as I and my daughter have."—Mrs. J. McDonald, 2047 26th Ave. East, Vancouver, B.C.

From the age of twelve a girl needs all the care a thoughtful mother can give. Many a woman has suffered years of pain and misery—the victim of thoughtlessness or ignorance of the mother who should have guided her during this time.

If she complains of headaches, pains in the back and lower limbs, or if you notice a slowness of thought, nervousness or irritability on the part of your daughter, make life easier for her. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is especially adapted for such conditions.

GIANT SPECIES OF CENTIPEDE

Reptiles Found in Trinidad Secrete a Deadly Poison

Trinidad centipedes have been presented to the London Zoo, an exchange says. They are more than a foot long, and at the broadest part nearly half an inch across. They are dark brown, with rings on the lower feelers and on the legs, a pair of which projects from each flattened segment of the body. These tropical centipedes live in shady places, hidden under bark, stones or dead leaves, moving chiefly at night. They run quickly and can climb vertical surfaces if there is any foothold for their claws. They are entirely carnivorous, living on insects, small birds or mammals, which they kill with their venom.

It has been shown that the whole of the body of these centipedes secretes a volatile venom, so that even the wounds made by the sharp claws are extremely painful. The under surface of the head carries a formidable pair of poison fangs, the venom of which escapes by a pore in the claw, being formed by large glands at the base of the claws. The venom is an acid opalescent liquid, hardly miscible with water. When injected into the veins of rabbits it produces instantaneous paralysis, with coagulation of the blood; when injected under the skin enormous abscesses are rapidly formed. The bite is very painful to human beings, but has not been known to be fatal, although it causes insomnia, local swelling and occasionally ulcers.

Melody the Life of Music

What gives life to a work, what makes it true, will never be its characteristics, polytonal or atonal, but, rather, its essential melody. These springs its real power because it comes straight from the heart of the musician. There is no training so complete or so thorough that it can suffice without that melodic source, Darius Milhaud writes in the North American Review. It is the primary element, the authentic organic one, that comes from the pure sentiment itself and that is conducive to rhythmic and harmonic design. Without melody all composing will fall on deaf ears and in vain rhetoric, quite conventional and empty. It is the entire secret of music, which I found out one day when I was studying at the conservatory with my master, Andre Gedalge. I was showing him some great symphonic plan or other and he said to me:

"Just write for me eight measures that I may be played without any accompaniment."

Melody is thus our aim and greatest ambition. It alone will allow us to work by our imagination and yet keep close to the tradition which we feel to be true.

Pity the Modern Baby

Despite the fact that the modern baby thrives on what science does for him to-day, it's a big job to be a baby.

Just when baby is kicking his little pink toes and making an effort to count the funny stitches on his new white crib quilt, a some one comes along and says: "It's time to take the baby to the doctor," or "It's time for his weighing and measuring," or "It's time to take his temperature," or "It's time to try out his new diet." And just when he's getting ready to close his eyes for a nice long nap some one comes along and says: "It's time to give the baby his tomato juice," and what baby in the world like the taste of tomatoes?

There's a million things science puts over on the baby to-day when baby is absolutely helpless to prevent the experiment. He may holler his little lungs out, but it doesn't do a bit of good, as crying causes much less concern than it used to, for the baby these days needs exercise for his lungs and he needs much more discipline than he used to. That's what science thinks.

Sociality as Asset

A political candidate, on paying a second visit to the house of a doubtful voter of the agricultural class, was very polite but somewhat surprised on hearing from the elector that he would support him.

"Glad to hear it," said the candidate. "I thought you were against me."

"I was at first," said the elector. "The other day when you called here and stood by that pig sty and talked for half an hour you didn't dig me as much."

"But after you had gone away, sir, I got to thinkin' how you'd reached your hand over the rail and scratched the pig's back until he lay down with the pleasure of it. I made up my mind then that when a man was so sociable as that with a poor fellow creature I wasn't the man to vote against him."—Harper's Magazine.

Sport in Ancient Egypt

Egyptians were the oldest adherents of sport. From the pictures on temple walls and tombs one learns how they spent their days in work, religious rites or pleasure. Girls played ball, sitting on the backs of their girl friends. They also danced to the rhythm of songs, which were accompanied by hand clapping. Boys ran races, balanced on beams or stood on their heads. They tried their skill in throwing pointed sticks at a wooden stump and had themselves blindfolded, beaten by their comrades, and then guessed who was beating them.

Fencing was done with a light wooden saber; a shieldlike piece of wood was fastened to the lower arm during the combat. Pictures of wrestling matches along the tomb walls of Beni Hassan would illustrate a modern textbook of wrestling.

Titian Home Monument

The home at Pieve di Cadore in which the great painter Titian was born has been proclaimed a national monument.

It was the birthplace of the poet and dramatist Count Vittorio Alfieri and of the painter Antonio Canova.

The judge adjusted his spectacles. "In this charge against Mrs. Bunnaphy, of sticking a hatchet in Mrs. Bunnaphy's eye, the case is dismissed."

Mrs. Bunnaphy snorted and turned red with rage. "But," continued the court, "for the future protection of Mrs. Bunnaphy, the court orders that Mrs. Bunnaphy plug up her haystack."

Ways to Simplify Your Housekeeping With Real System

"Do you know what you think you do?" Any housewife who has attempted to teach new help their duties has probably asked herself this question, and consequently has sincere pity for those who have over-estimated their own practical knowledge and are going through the same experience.

The silent person who follows you about "as the teaching progresses—herself an unknown quantity—may know all you are laboriously trying to explain to her in a pleasant way so that she will like you. She may, on the other hand, be listening to what is Greek to her. And her silence has the effect of making you for the moment doubt your own ability to teach and shaking your faith in what you really do know.

The necessity that arises to force is to teach also awakens us to the fact that we must have system in order to teach. If we have no system it behooves us to work out one without delay. Every well regulated household should have system, for system saves time, money, wear and tear, and enables one to keep help after the manner of men in their offices. System gives stability to household labor, which it lacks when hit or miss methods are in operation.

A clever woman called upon to teach newly-engaged help their duties has a system that is workable, and as she teaches it point by point, she leaves written instructions or formulas, so that the maid may refer to them should she be busy upon any special point. Everything is done on schedule, so there can be no excuse for misunderstandings. This is the right way. If you are interested and have one or more helpers to manage, it is a good idea to evolve a system of your own that will meet your particular needs.

Meal time, days for certain work, time off duty, methods of cleaning and ways of cooking vary with different families, so that in teaching a maid, you must say to her: "First, get what you have done elsewhere. This is the way I want my work done."

Work in a house is quite different from work in an apartment or flat, and the system required is different. In an apartment help by the day or hour work well, as the help sleeps out in most places. I know one woman who has found the services of a man hired by the hour a solution of her help problems. The laundry is sent out. The man comes in and brushes down walls and paint, cleans rugs, dusts and polishes the furniture, oils the floors, turns mattresses and does any other odd jobs. This work takes about four hours, once a week. Then he makes a call during the week to straighten up. The result is a spic-and-span place. When work is poorly planned, it takes twice as long to do it, and twice the energy is wasted in fussing over it. We hear a lot about work-saving and time-saving utensils, but if they are not used intelligently they are useless. First, adopt system, then see that it is carried out. This demonstrates that we have learned and can teach.

Some Timely Recipes

Fried Raisin Cheese Sandwiches
3 tablespoons butter, 3 slices cheese, 3 slices bread, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1 egg, 1/4 cup milk, 3 tablespoons finely chopped Sun Maid raisins.

Cream butter until soft. Add raisins and spread on bread. Place one slice cheese between two slices of bread and cut in halves to make six sandwiches. Beat egg. Add milk and salt and dip each sandwich in the mixture. Try until brown in a little melted fat. Serve immediately.

Yorkshire Pudding
1 cup flour, 1 cup milk, 1/2 cup Sun Maid Raisins, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 2 eggs, 2 stiffly beaten egg whites. Sift flour and salt together and add raisins. Add milk gradually to form a smooth paste. Add well beaten egg yolks and fold in egg whites. Cover the bottom of a hot pan with some beef fat "fried out from meat." Pour mixture into pan. Bake in hot oven about 20 minutes. After it is well risen, baste with hot fat from meat. Cut into squares and serve on platter with meat.

Delicate Party Cake
1/2 cup butter, 2 cups flour, 4 eggs whites, 1/2 cup hot water, 1/4 cup oil, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, 1/2 cup Sun Maid Raisins, 2 teaspoon baking powder, 1 1/2 cups sugar. Cream together the butter and sugar; sift together the flour and baking powder; put the hot water into the butter, and then gradually add the flour and baking powder. Lastly, fold in the beaten whites of the eggs. Bake in two layers in a moderate oven. Put together with a filling made by running the raisins and oil, lemon and a little confectioner's sugar and thoroughly blending. Frost with a white icing and decorate with candied or maraschino cherries.

The price paid for Alaska by the United States was about $7,200,000.

Here and There

The world's record for grain trains was shattered by the Canadian Pacific Railway on October 5th, with a monster train of 125 car loads of wheat, over a mile long, which operated between Stoughton and Arcola. The contents of the cars, 186,000 bushels, weighed 5,560 tons.

All grain loading records in Alberta were completely smashed by the Canadian Pacific on October 19th when the Company loaded 753 cars, representing at least 1,000,000 bushels. If these cars were placed together they would make up a freight train about six miles in length, and a baker's dozen of these trains would extend from Calgary to Banff, a distance of 82 miles.

A record in western railroad construction was established on the Canadian Pacific Lethbridge-Melfort line recently, when the last mile of track between Lethbridge and Melfort was completed in one day. D. A. Livingstone, engineer in charge, reports that seventy per cent of his crew of 25 were British harvesters.

Federal and Provincial Departments of Agriculture co-operated in the purchase in the British Isles of a large stock of horses, swine and sheep, including sheep owned by His Majesty the King, which arrived here recently. This is the second shipment of cattle to Canada through the co-operation of the agricultural departments with sheep and swine breeders throughout the Dominion.

T. K. Doherty, the Canadian Commissioner in the International Institute of Agriculture, estimates Canada's exportable wheat surplus this year at 500 million bushels, as against 150 millions from the United States, 110 from Argentina, 50 from Australia, and 15 from Russia. Canada, in fact, may be expected to supply nearly half the wheat exports of the whole world—300 out of 675 million bushels.

E. W. Beatty, K.C., President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, speaking at important centres on his recent extensive tour through the Canadian West, sounded a note of optimism, declaring that the general improvement in Canadian business conditions rendered an accompanying growing pessimism entirely unjustifiable. Stressing the need for a vigorous, intensive immigration policy by the government, he put forward as suggestions that the department of immigration and colonization should issue a general invitation through Great Britain, the United States and certain European countries, for settlers, and that greater advantage should be taken of the favorable policies towards emigration to Canada adopted by the governments of Great Britain and other countries.

Most extraordinary yields of grain are reported from the Provincial School of Agriculture at Olds, Alberta. On a one-acre patch 105 bushels of Marquis wheat were threshed, which is believed to be a record for this crop, exceeding the 82 bushel yield of Senger Wheeler, which was previously considered unsurpassable. From 25 acres seeded to oats, 206 bushels were threshed. On a field of 27 acres an average of 70 bushels to the acre was secured, while on another, 30 acres of a different variety, a yield of 60 bushels to the acre was recorded.

Opera Star Forms Her Own Company

FLORENCE MACBETH
To be of royal blood and a famous opera star is not enough for Florence Macbeth of the Chicago Operatic force, who has now become an impresario, formed her own company and is planning to tour the United States with the opera "The Barter of Sunam." Other women before her, like Mary Garden, have achieved distinction by directing an opera company, but Macbeth is the first who will be the principal factor, which she will be the principal factor, which she will be the principal factor.

CHAPTER X. VIII.—At his hotel, Harry finds a message asking him to "phone" the Hotel McAlpin. He does so and is twisted into a trap. He is told that he needs Harry Gessler. But refuses fully to explain her position, and he is unable to make up his mind whether to tell the police of the recent arrest of Harry's murder. The presumption is that he is devoted to Harry Gessler, on whom she has made a deep impression, in a conspiracy.

CHAPTER XI.—Harry Gessler visits Perone's safe, an underworld racket, where the girl believes that she may meet Harry and a friend. He is deceived, and a leading ripper in the scheme of robbery, who is devoted to Harry Gessler, believing the latter has obtained the money for his sister Alice, attacks him and tries to fight him. Harry is aided, with Marie, escape. The girl refuses to explain her position, and she is left with the conspirators, insisting that Gessler must give her her full confidence and that she is devoted to him.

CHAPTER X. XII.—After leaving the girl at the McAlpin, Perone finds that his room has been searched. He is surprised and bewildered, he about comes to the conclusion that Marie has secured it as its terminating evidence. On a telephone call from Harry Severs via Costigan's office, he is told that the girl has fled from him. They refuse to believe he has been deceived, and they are left with a fight after Severs is left unconscious.

CHAPTER XIII.—Returning to Condemns, Severs escapes from the room in which he is confined. He finds Marie and Costigan and they are told of the flight of her part in the tangled affair. He is told that the girl has fled from him, and he explains her presence in the house by the fact that she and Lynn Waldron's father had been married. He is told that she has been decoyed to the place by Harris in order to save her from the hands of the conspirators can induce Severs to share the money which they are convinced will be made when she is stolen from Alice.

The girl laughed softly, then she said:

"Now, Lena, even than do."

"Because, after all, it might be the Sarah said nothing from him. She would have been glad to see him go.

"Because, after all, it might be the Russian; if it was he would have to let me go," Harris, and pretend to know nothing. You heard her those two talking. You found her what did you make of it?"

She drew her eyes together, leaving the marks of a frown on her forehead.

"That they had planned together to rob Alva; that Waldron was to hide himself somewhere outside, and was to wait for Harris to signal him that the money had been taken."

"Exactly; Harris failed to learn that the money changed hands, and consequently did not signal. But Waldron nevertheless, was waiting; had no doubt spotted Harris's machine, and was ready to act. The one thing we do not know—is Alva, start home alone; or did she get some accomplice?"

"I don't accompany him," Harris, if the latter-supposition is true then for fellow must have committed the murder;—with Waldron a possible accomplice." "If so, I am sure it is true, this the only other solution is that Alva picked Waldron up for companionship. Were they acquainted at all?"

"I think so, but am not sure; you said Waldron first reported his chase? Harris."

"So he did; then it is quite possible the two knew each other. That would mean they were by far the best of friends. Whoever struck the blow was in the rear seat. This theory fits it all right with his actions toward Harris."

"Shadow Waldron is he sure to expose himself sooner or later. We must get away from here, out of the hands of those fellows. Would you mind going away with the stairs?"

"Shadow Waldron is he sure to expose himself sooner or later. We must get away from here, out of the hands of those fellows. Would you mind going away with the stairs?"

He looked at her with a stern, anxiety, frowning the large hall, uttering a good oath, started forward, and then turned back, saying nothing else for it but to fight it. If I ran the case would only give her before she could distance punishment besides that first glimpse had revealed the man's name.

"Gentlemen! George!" His knuckles almost at the same instant, split upon a curse as he reached back his gun.

"What say hey! How the b—I did get down here"

But I was quicker, the move gripping the wrist, and twisting round until the force caused to drop the weapon, as we struggled back across the width of the hall. We were both weaponless, relying on the efficacy of bare hands, but Harris was a strong, athletic fighter who cared only to disable opponent in any way possible. It like battling with a wild cat, in the end he was the victor. At the moment the fellow had driving me back against the rail, less before the fierceness of attack.

Some one was coming. I could a voice, and flying steps on the stairs then a woman's scream somewhere. I broke away, glancing at my wrist, and saw a faint red mark on the floor. He could see I couldn't, and found value in my of throttling.

"You are drunk, Severn, get up. Hit him, Evan! Smash in, get the guy—quick now!"

I whirled with him, ducking my head behind his shoulder, gaining a few feet, and blundered down as he swung fall at me what looked like the leg of a chair. Harris caught the full force of blow, staggered back, and fell over his own, pulled to the solid of my

"Where was that?"

"Colmar buildin' on Broad street. Wa'n't a darn light from top to bottom. He didn't let me pull up there—not by a d-d sight. I had ter let him out a block away, around the corner. But somehow I sorter wanted ter know just where the bloke went, so I slipped off the box, an' took a peek. He turned in there, where it was blacker than a stack of black cats, an' thet's the last I seen of him. S'pose he was the duck who did that job sir?"

"He might have been, of course. Did you report it to the police?"

"Lord, no; if us fellees told the cops half all we know they wouldn't get no sleep at all. I ain't med nothin' to nobody. Ready to go now, sir?"

CHAPTER XIII.

In the Colmar Building

His horse was not a fast traveler, yet this afforded me time to think over my situation. As well as this clew so unconsciously furnished me by the loquacious driver. The chances were that this mysterious stranger of two nights before had no connection with the Alva case; yet there remained a possibility. The hour, the place, his evident fear of pursuit, his eager desire to get out of sight, the heavy coat, the black hat, the white gloves—these were all things all no attention, passing down the street to the floor below. Growing more pessimistic as I proceeded, I reached the fifth floor, when, as I turned at the front of the iron stairs, my glance rested on the letters stenciled along the frosted glass panes—'Mutual Investment Company Gasper Wile, Manager.' I stopped still, my heart beating wildly, realizing that I had stumbled blindly on the very thing I had been seeking. Gasper Wile was the name of a man who, through accident, had opened me the door leading into the Alva factory; the man who had disappeared in the entry while he dropped alone to talk with Alva privately in the little sub-basement. Gasper Wile? As these things I really believed suddenly picked up just such a fellow, suggesting a link between the fellow to this place at midnight I had never connected the crime with Wile before—yet why not? He was among those present; he had been moving silently along the wall. I hanging close so as to touch her. A few steps brought us forth into the hall at the head of a flight of stairs. The door was ajar, and I saw the members, while she stood aside to let me pass.

"You better go ahead now; the next flight is directly beneath this, and only a few steps more."

"Of course; I shall have right behind you."

We went down step by step, not a word spoken, or a sound heard. The door, even slightly ajar, reached the hands still on the club, his eyes for long that flying figure. With all strength I drove a fist flat to his end, and as he reeled, stumbling backward, I sprang past, and raked down his back.

The body lay at the bottom motionless, huddled up in such fashion a block the door. Without a doubt, even the man who had been so quick to turn to one side, leaped through opening, and crashed the door boom.

I turned to the left, afraid of bright light, and the street-car was plunging into the spiral of the gun. The Colman building, my recollection of the place was vague, a huge pile on Broad near Wall, devoted largely to brooked offices, absolutely devoid of any business character, a woman and a watchman or two. A tenant might stop in at such an hour, yet he would be fortunate indeed to escape the observation of some one along the hallway or in the lobby. I could not resist a careful questioning among the night employees would give some hint on the identity of the man, even if there should prove no other means of locating him.
