ed Number Over a Hundred.

Harrisburg, Pa., May 12.—Nineteen persons are known to be dead and more than 100 others were injured in the railroad wreck and dynamity explosion which occurred gerly yesteriasy on the Pennsylvania Railroad in the southern part of this city. That ne more persons were killed is considered remarkable, as a full boxcar of dynamite exploded directly at the middle of the heavy express train. The train carried many prominent persons, meat of whom escaped with enly slight injuries. The wreaked train was the second section of the Cleveland and Cincinnati exprass leaving Philadelphia at 11.65. Wednesday night, it consisted of a combination baggage and smoking car, one day coach and six sleepers. There are various stories of how the wreck securred, but the official version is as follows:

curried, but the official version is as follows:

At 1.49 o'cleck the engine on an east-bound freight train was flagged by the crew of a shifting engine shead on the same track. The engineer quickly put on his airbrakes and the train, an unusually long one, came to a sudden halt. The strain on the air valves was a severe one and a connecting air hose in the middle of the train blew out. This caused the middle of the train to "buckle" and the damaged care fell over en the passenger tracks.

Beginning of Horvers.

Just as this happened the Cleveland express came thundering up and "side wiped" the wreck. The express was stopped within its own length and the third sleeper was opposite the wrecked cars. Before any one could leave the passenger train, which was not very badly damaged, a few slight explosions occurred, and then there was one great flash and roar that sheek the earth. The whole affair occurred within a period of a few seconds. Men and women came tumbling and climbing from the car windows, or crawled from under the wreckage. No one for the moment seemed to know what to do, and many of the passengers momentarily seized with terror, ran wildly about the fields on the north side of the rail-road or waded into the shallow waters ily seized with terror, ran wildly about the fields on the north side of the raliroad or waded into the shallow waters of the river. Realising their safety and the danger stil threatening others, the frightened passengers turned in and began the rescue of the living.

Fire Consumes Wresk.

As they approached the wresk another explesion occurred. Pearing that the other explesion occurred. Pearing that the strine freight train might be leaded with synamite, no one dared go near the wreck. Finally the raliroad men, who knew the contents of the burning freight train-led the way and the uninjured passengers followed.

Advancing fire drove the rescuers fack as they were about to take others from the wreck and unfortunate men

W. B. McCaleb, superintendent of the Philadelphia division, said he was unable as yet to fix any responsibility for the accident. A thorough investigation, he said, is now being made.

COLES ARE POSITIVE

That Willis Passed Their House Be-Rodney, May 12.—Rigorous examination and cross-examination tailed yesterday at the preliminary trial of Alexander Willis and Elizabeth Cevell for terday at the preliminary trial of Alexander Willis and Elizabeth Cevell for murder to shake the evi-ance of William Cole and little Bila Cole. Their stories, to the effect that they saw Willis passing their house between 6 and 7 o'clock on the morning after the murder, was attacked at every point, but it still stands intact, the most damaging evidence against Alexander Willis. Other witnesses were F. A. McCallum, editor of The Rodney Mercury; F. B. Hurseley, a druggist in Rodney, and A. J. Liebner, undertaker. His chief testimony was of a conversation he had had with Willis in the afternoon. As Willis came across the yard Liebner had remarked the nasty bruise on his cheek bone. "Twe worse than that," said Willis, showing another wound in the hatr at the side of his head. He said he had received both bruises and a slight discoloration around the left eye from a blow from his barn door. Mrs. Covell had told him three times the story of the murder, but any variations in the stories were additions in the second and third tellings.

The hearing was then adjourned till Friday morning.

"We are informed on high authority that important developments may be anticipated in the situation of the Jews in Russia. We are informed that a measure is more than under consideration, which will give unhoused for relief to Jews. Absolute freedom of movement and residence will be granted in all cities and towns, but not in villages, as the authorities are not willing to run the risk of a repetition of the Kishineft affair.

"We understand that the murder of Jews causes the Government more anxiety than of persons of other nationalities, because of the reprobation it arouses in Europe."

East Kent License Commissioners Put Themselves on Record—Thousands of Dollars in Improvements Going on in Hotels—Will Consider Two Harwich Cases -A Bothwell Transfer-Phil. Bowyer's Interpretation of Premier Whitney's Policy.

the strength of Premier Whitney's license policy and the determination of his Government to bring about a non-partisan administration of the cant features of yesterday's meeting of the East Kent Board of Commissioners. Moreover it led Commissoner Gifford to give publicity to the definition of these principles and the absolute freedom of the Board to sarry them out, communicated to him by Phil. H. Bowyer, M. P. P., at the time that gentleman urged his acceptance of the duties—statements that do infinite credit to the esteemed member for East Kent, the Government and the Commissioners.

Government and the Commissioners. The incident in question arose out of an amusing personal experience related to the Board by Barrister J. M. Pike, who appeared in the incerests of Harwich applicants. In the course of his address the clever counsel took occasion to congratulate the Board on the policy they had adopted in enforcing licenses to keep hotel and ruling against the cross-road houses that had become mere drinking booths. By way of illustration Mr. Pike related an experience which befel him while stumping through the country during the recent political campaign. After a meeting he was called upon to put up overnight at one of the so-called country taverns. He described the accommodation of the night, but said the limit was reached so called country taverns. He described the accommodation of the arght, but said the limit was reached when, after waiting some time, the maid brought him two eggs for yer's laughing reply, "but my clients to-day are not."

"I't am very sorry if l'unwittingly called forth that response," was Chairman Sitton's prompt comment. "The policy of the Government and the policy upon which this board acts is that of a strictly non-partism administration of the license laws. No man has either been helped or hindered in h's license aspirations by his political inclinations. The principles cannotated by the Provincial Sceretary, interpreted to the best judgment of this Board, alone govern such matters. To follow any other course would bring discredit on ourselves and the Government of the copie which we serve."

"I'm glad the chairman has so spoken," added Commissioner, and that politics have nothing to do with the business of this Board, alone govern is not have the position quite clear," sommented ex-Warden Gifford, the third Commissioner, and the statement of Mr. Philip H. Howyer, the member for East Kent, when he asked me, on behalf of the Government, 4-b become a Commissioner, and the statement upon which a accepted the office. It was: The license policy of Premier Whitney is a non-political one. Commissioners are asked only to use their best judgment in administering the law wellout fear or lavor. Accept no political suggestions; do freely and fuelessly just what in your judgment is required for an honest endicated by the constant of the provincial suggestions; do freely and dates of the provincial states of the clearly-capressed will of the clearly-capressed

An interesting incident, revealing standard set up by our member him-ble strength of Premier Whitney's icense policy and the determination its ability."

MAKING HOTEL.

The new era of activity and obedience to the law has dawned among the license holders in East Kent. Inspector Boon says he never knew so much doing. In almost every licensed place in the constituency plumbers, masons, tarpenters and paper-hangers are—or have been—at work. Thousands of dollars are being spent by the owners in making hotel in accordance with the decree of the Commissioners and a wonderful improvement is already noted. Moreover, the hotal men themselves are rigidly observing the closing laws. The statement of Chairman Sitton at the inaugural meeting that the Board purposed making every first offence a last offence and not renewing the license of any man who broke the law, has had a tremendous effect as no doubt is entertained that the Commissioners will strictly, enforce their declaration.

SHAKING DICE. Commissioner Gifford pointed out that it had come to his attention that in some bars young men had been permitted to shake dice for the drinks. This was, he believed, completely illegal, and, moreover, encouraged the most undesirable element and conduct. Young men them continued to drink more for the sake of the game than from desire. He (intended to ask the Inspector to notify all hotel men that it must be stopped, or regarded by the Commissioners as a direct violation of the law, to be so dealt with.

THE HARWICH CASES.

The Board met yesterday afternoon in the town hall at Bothwell. The chairman, ex-Warden W. C. Sifton, presided, and there were also present Commissioners ex-Warden Frank Gifford and Robt. L. Jarvis and Inspector Thos. Boon.

J. M. Pike appeared for Arthur Walker and Alex. D. Forbes, of Charing Gross and Cedar Springs, respectively, to ask for a reconsideration of their cases. Mr. Pike made ing Gross and Cedar Springs, respectively, to ask for a reconsideration of their cases. Mr. Phe made a strong plea on their behalf. There was n olocal option law in force in Harwich; these applicants held long and unsultied records; they were supported by strong and inflaential petitions; they had good houses and kept them well, and it was not fair to punish them for the misedmeanors at the McKay's Corners and Fargo taverns, which had been so largely the cause of the Harwich vote.

A SPLENDID RECORD.

A SPLENDID RECORD. Inspector Boon, who had been asked to furnish a special report of these places, reported that they were all that had been represented on their behalf—good houses and well kept. Mr. Walker had kept his hotel for 29 years and never once had a secondary here. for 29 years and never once had a complaint been lodged against him.

Commissioner Gifford complimented Messrs. Walker and Forbes on the Inspector's report. It was exactly what he anticipated from what he knew of the men and their houses. The only point was this: Local option had carried by a large majority and had only been set aside on a legal technicality. The people had voted in good faith and expected the law to come in force. The ballot was even more potent than petitions.

Walker and rottes and respect them and admire the conduct of their houses. What I would personally like to do would be to give them the licenses they deserve, but it yet seems to me that my duty in face of the Harwich vote is clear.

TEMPERANCE MEN. AND CRANKS TEMPERANCE MEN, AND CRANKS
Commissioner Jarvis-I have received over 50 letters from good citizens in the interests of Messrs.
Walker and Forbes. What surprised me most was that some of the temperance people who had opposed the granting of these licenses came privately and said they had no objection. It really makes a large of the whole thing. The character of Messrs, Walker and Forbes is all we could wish.

Mr. Pike-I'm not surprised to hear Mr. Jarvis statement. There is so much hypocritical conduct about these temperance people, and the second statement of the second statement of the second statement of the second se about these temperance people, that is a fair expression Mr. Pike.

Why sneer at the term temperance fault of the people.

Mr. Pike—There is no legal barrier to the course I ask.

Chairman Sifton—No legal barrier has entered into our consideration.

Commissioner Gifford—I am told there is a revulsion of feeling in Harwich. Why not ask the Council to submit the by-law again?

Mr. Pike—The places at McKay's Corners and Fargo would have an influence.

Chairman Sifton—They need not, If local option were defeated in Harwich by 500 I wouldn't consent to those places having licenses. I inspected them myself and saw enough of them to know they were dives of a most discreditable character. At the same time I admired the conduct and places kept by Messrs, Walker and Forbes.

Mr. Pike—And doesn't it look like injustice to them?

Chairman Sifton—It is a hardship, but we are servants of the people, with our duty to perform.

Commissioner Jarvis—I have been waited on by a great many respected people, but is it wise to change our decision?

Chairman Sifton—Oh, I have not hestation on that score. If I've done wrong or decided unjustly I want to change it—and right it—at once.

THE VERDICT OF THE RIGHTFUL

That the remarkable resolution forced through the Legislature in 1903 by a meagre majority of four by a Government which was not only in a minority of 9,000 votes in the Province, but had completely lost the confidence of the people of Ontario, almost irrespective of party, censuring Mr. R. R. Gamey and complimenting two members of the Canadian judiciary who consented to sacrifice the honor of their position by descending to assist in a political intrigue-was on Wednesday rescinded and expunged from the journals of the House, will meet with commendation and endorsement from a people who have already passed emphatically on the matter. That Mr. McCoig has definitely ranged himself with the Strattonites, the Sullivanites and the methods he condemned as "corrupt and rotten" will be noted with interest by the people of West Kent. They have good memories. The serious phase to which attention is again turned, however, was the conduct of the judges who allowed themselves to be used for political purposes. Mr. Harcourt put himself in a ridiculous position when he pleaded for the protection of the judiciary after having, in spite of the protest of the representatives of a large majority of the Province, dragged them into the mire. What, he declares, if Sir John Boyd should resign as a result of the motion There is little danger, but there is no doubt that any such action by the Chancellor would not be greatly bewailed by the people. Canadians desire to maintain the dignity and integrity of the bench, but they can only do so when the encumbents of judicial positions co-operate themselves. A huge majority of the peole of this Province have rejected the finding of these men who came down off the bench and submitted a "judgment" that has been pointed out to have been at variance with the facts revealed in evidence, calculated to assist a tottering administration which had furnished themselves and their families with several comfortably remunerative berths. Judges are public servants; they are paid by the people's money-and they must be required to maintain that honorable position which the Canadian people and the British people demand of their judiclary.

The verdict of these judges, now formally wiped from the records, matters little. It was emphatically reversed by the great tribunal of the becople in January last. But it is gratifying to have Premier Whitpey's assurance that no more shall members of the judiciary be permitted to drag down the good name of the Canadian bench and traffic politically on its prestige.

Frea W. Tobey of Battleford N. W. T. Shows What Enterprise Can do in : the North West

Two years ago when Edwin Moore and Fred. W. Tobey, two of Chatham's bright voung men, left for the Northwest to establish homesteads they drove 100 miles from Saskatoon to Battleford, where they established homesteads 100 miles from any railway. People at that time thought they were foolish for going so far away from railway connection. At that time there were only 30 homesteads in Battleford. The next year, in 1904, Wilton Ball, son of Wm. Ball, of this city, went up to Battleford and during that year 146 people took up homesteads in that district. This year, 550 families have settled down in Battleford and the place is growing every day with every prospect that it will be a second Edmonton. In spite of the fact that it is so far away from the railroad it stands second in all of the Northwest as the best growing place. steads they drove 100 miles from

The form Winnipeg will be of interest in this connection:

"C. N. R. track-layers are now within four days of Battleford, 572 miles west of here, and the train service will be inaugurated this week, which means much for that district Passenger service opens June 4th. The immediate result is a great reduction in freight rates on the C. P. R. to Saskatoon from Montreal and Toronto, as a means of competition."

Battleford has a great future before it and is favored with excellent climate and location. There will no doubt be a rapid advance in the price of land this summer.

The reason that Battleford has grown so rapidly is undoubtedly due to the hustle and enterprise of Fred. W. Tobey, who was one of the early settlers. Through his letters to English, Scottish and Canadian papers be has succeeded admirably in getting people interested in his district until now, when the railroad goes through, Battleford will be une of the most important places in the Northwest.

A MONUMENT TO AN ERA

MOVEMENT ON FOOT IN HONOR OF SHAKESPEARE.

ndications Are That a Greater Fund For the Purpose Will Be Raised Than Was Ever Collected in Honor of Any Literary Character in History-A Distinguished Committee-City of Great Poets.

A movement is on foot in London A movement is on foot in London which is beginning to attract attention from all parts of the world. It has for its object the erection of a monument to Shakespeare. From present indications, a greater fund will be raised for the purpose than has ever been collected in honor of any literary character in history. character in history. A Monument to An Era.

Monuments, in the mind of the aver-

Monuments, in the mind of the average Englishman, seem post-mortem appurtenances of great military heroes, or of statesmen. To many there may appear a suggestion of sacrliege in the notion that a poet or a playwriter should be thus commemorated. In the case of Shakespeare, however, an exception is made. It is a fact, and an odd fact, that he is not thought of as a poet, or an author of plays. It is not the playwright that the monument will honor, but a certain force which is connoted by the name Shakespeare; not an historical character, but an historical event, an era, perhaps the most glorious in our common history. So great and marvelous a place does he occupy in our hearts that an honor done his memory seems on a parity occupy in our hearts that an nonor done his memory seems on a parity with a salute of the Union Jack, or the applause won by the National Anthem. The Shakespeare monument, whatever form it assumes, will be a monument

A Distinguished Committee. A Distinguished Committee.

Some such ideas as these were eloquently set forth by a number of noted men at a secent gathering in the Mansion House at London, called for the purpose of considering the matter. Among those who were present and spoke were Lord Avebury, Lord Reay, president of the British Academy; the Lord Mayor, Dr. Furnivall, the famous Shakespearean scholar: Anthony Hone president of the British Academy, the Lord Mayor, Dr. Furnivali, the famous Shakespearean scholar; Anthony Hope Hawkins, Bram Stoker, Sidney Lee, Beerbohm Tree, and Prof. Gollancy, the latter honorary secretary of the gathering. Some of those who have expressed willingness to serve on the committee which shall conduct the movement are the Princess Louise, the Duke of Norfolk, the Duchess of Marlborough, Lord Roberts, Admiral Fremantle, the Archibishop of Canterbury, most of the diplomatic body in London, the Lord Mayor, the presidents of the British Society, the Royal Academy and many other distinguished persons. Another gentleman who was present, and whose name may not be so familiar to our readers, was Mr. Richard Badger. This gentleman has already contributed gentleman has already contributed £2,000 to the fund, in addition to £1,-22,000 to the fund, in addition to 21,500 for the working expenses of a public appeal. Another gratieman who could not be present sent his cheque for 500 guineas.

The City of Great Poets. The City of Great Poets.

It may well be asked what has precipitated the movement at the present time. For many years a monument has been urged, but those interested did not get a firm foothold until the Landon Gointy Council came to their assistance, and recently announced its desire to set aside a site for the monument. The Council felt that it could hardly resolve itself into a committee for collecting funds, and so the Lord Mayor summoned a meeting of those for collecting funds, and so the Lord Mayor summoned a meeting of those interested. As Dr. Furnivali said, it is fitting that London, as a city, should do something to commemorate its fame as a home of poets, Chaucer, Spenser, Shakespeare and Milton all lived there, and thus the smoky, foggy old city on the Thames had a record that no other city ever equaled.

An Ecclesiastical Proposal. What form the monument shall take was not decided by the committee, though some suggestions were made. Prof. Gollancy said that several distinguished dignitaries of the Church had proposed that whatever money was raised it could be the expert to had proposed that whatever money was raised it could be at be spent in strengthening the fabric of their cathedrals. In return they promised that the poet's bust should be carefully attended to each year on his birthday. As profane research had falled to precisely identify that day, they had, moreover, agreed to supply one. It is unlikely that this idea will be accepted, despite the undoubted advantages to be gained by furnishing. Shakespears with a suitable birthday. The most important subsection was that which the gathering was summoned to discuss. This was that a great Shakespears temple should be erected in London to serve the purposes of humane learning, much in the same way, as Burlington House served those of natural science. Most of those present seemed of opinion that it would be impossible to come to a definite conclusion, until it was known how much money would be available. Then the coat could be it was known how much money would be available. Then the coat could be cut to suit the cloth.

London's Most Beautiful Monuments London's Most Beautiful Monuments.
Anthony Hope Hawkins volced the opinion of a number who dissented from this view. He represented the artistic point of view as opposed to the utilitarian. He was not in favor of diverting a pound from the main purpose, which he conceived to be the erection of a literal monument, not a museum, a hospital, or a lecture hall. Beauty should be the first end served. After the most beautiful monument in London had been erected, the surplus cash, if they was any, might be used to build a hospital.

No National Theatre Needed.

No National Theatre Needed.

Lord Avebury thought that the original proposal, i.e., a Shakespearean temple which should do for literature what Burlington House had done for science, was the best advanced. It was agreed, however, that more time should be granted for a full expression of public opinion on the subject. Reference was made to the desire of other countries—notably France and the United States—to contribute toward the memorial, and the feeling was that agsistance of the sort should be courteously accepted. Before very long we may expect to hear more of the Shakespeare memorial. No National Theatre Needed.

Their power and strength is incredible, for it can be readily demonstrated by simple calculation that the muscular system is about 4 horse pound weight! The total capacity of a man's muscular system is about 4 horse power. To supply the energy for such a working force of 300 pounds in raising a ten pound weight! The total capacity of a man's muscular system is about ½ horse power. To supply the energy for such a working capacity a man requires food and water, and these must first be transformed into blood before they can be utilized by the tissues. The blood serves to supply the muscles with the food they use for their work, as well as material to repair damage and breakage from overwork and abuse. If the blood is pure and rich the repair is made promptly and well, but if it becomes thin and weak, the results are poor, breakdowns occur, rheumatism and neuralgia get a foothold, and the machinery of the system cannot work properly. Dr. Plerce's Golden Medical Discovery makes pure blood; helps you to put on flesh and muscle. Dr. Plerce guarantees that the "Discovery" contains no alcohol or narcotic, that it is made entirely from roots and herbs, it is nature's tonic and alterative—assists the stomach to take from the food the elements required to make rich red blood and thus cures Indigestion and Dyspepsia.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" has restored the health of thousands of those who were utterly hopeless, giving them back natural appetite, physical vigor, healthful sleep and mental strength.

The Music Master's Ruse. A very rich lady offered Garcia any price if he would only teach her daughter. He refused, knowing well he could never obtain serious work from her; never obtain serious work from her; but, as the mother persisted, he hit up-on a compromise. He asked the ladies to be present during a lesson, and he undertook, if the girl still wished to learn singing after hearing it taught, to teach her. The lesson began. The pupil, who seemed to the listeners an already finished singer, had to repeat passage after passage of the most diffi-cult exercises before the master was cult exercises before the master was satisfied. He insisted upon the minutest attention to every detail of execution. Mother and daughter ex-changed horrified glances and looked on pityingly. The lesson finished, the master bowed the ladles out, and in passing the pupil the young girl whispered to her, "It would kill me!" Senor Garcia, returning from the door, said contentedly: "They will not come again. Thank you, mon enfant, you sang well."—London Mail.

A naturalist has written to prove that birds are not singers, but whistiers; that is to say, that the notes are produced through a tube—to be technical, through the slit known as the glottle—not by the help of vocal cords. But the whole distinction is beside the point. Any one who has seen a bird singing will have seen both the vibrations in his throat and the variations in the ex-tent to which he opens and closes his beak or mandibles; and, given these ac-companiments, together with the pro-duction of an inarticulate language, whistling and singing become identical terms suggesting a distinction. People are accustomed to the idea that only a few species of birds, such as the parrot and the jackdaw, can be taught, but in wild life almost all birds are mimics to some extent, and probably more of them than people realize could be taught to imitate human sounds.

BUCCANEER PAUL JONES

NOVEL MADE PATRIOTIC FIGURE OF SEA-GOING ADVENTURER.

Since His Death He Has Become "The Father of the American Navy"-United States Ambassador to Paris Gen. Porter, Spent Five Years In Search For His Remains-Now Rewarded With Success.

A peculiar illustration of the influence wielded by a popular novelist is furnished in the despatch from Paris announcing the despatch from Paris announcing the discovery and exhumation of the remains of Paul Jones, after a search of five years, latterly conducted at the expense of Gen. Porter, the U.S. Ambassador at Paris. Whether the elaborate search made for the body was directly inspired by Winston Churchill's novel, "Richard Carvel," we do not pretend to say, but this much can certainly be said of the popular interest which alone makes Ambassadori Porter's labor worth while. The novel made a popular hero of Paul Jones a cantury and more after his death. It cast over a not particularly interesting career and more after his death. It cast over a not particularly interesting career the glamor of romance, and idealized commonplace and even unpleasant characteristics of the man. In a word, it made a patrictic figure of a man who was, when all is said and done, a buccaneer, an utterly commonplace, sea going adventurer. A country whose naval annals are illustrious would blush to include in them the name of Jones. As a matter of fact, this hero's name was not Jones. White he lived his name was Paul, and he was a violent-tempered sea captain. was a violent-tempered sea captain. Since his death he has become "the father of the American navy," and his name goes thundering down the ages with all the sonorous melody which forms the musical setting of the name forms the musical setting of the name Jones.

This hero was born on July 6, 1747, in the Parish of Kirkbean, Kirkoudbright, Scotland. His father was a poor market gardener, whose name was Paul. At the time he had no idea of becoming the grandparent of the American navy, and on this account we may dismiss him. His son, John Paul, is supposed to have settled the vexed questions which were estranging England and her American colonies, at the early age of thirteen. He was then apprenticed to a merchant at Whitehaven, who was thus afforded an opportunity of visiting America, where his elder brother, William, had settled some years previously. An American biographer observes with pride that "He became possessed of theories favorable to the American colonies." Having thus decided the question, his next step was to fit his mind to master more complex affairs, such as the rule of three and the difference between the nominative and the objective cases. His friendly biographer then hints at the possibility that young John sat up at night in order to study. He does not assert this much boldly, but rather offers it as a suggestion, in a half-hearted way, which reveals his own reasonable doubts on the subject. Be this as it may, Paul acquired some knowledge of navigation, which served him in may, Paul acquired some knowledge of navigation, which served him in good stead when he made up his mind to discharge a parent's duties toward the American navy.

Paul's master dying, the indenture was broken, and the exapprentice shipped as third mate in a slave trader. The work was not congenial, however, and he quit at a port in the West Indies. Thence he took passage for Scotland, and owing to the death from fever of the captain and the mate, he assumed command of the ship and brought her safely home. For this service he was made master and supercargo by the grateful owners. This brings his biography down to 1766. Four more years he spent at sea, and then in 1770 got into trouble through beating a sailor, details of which are lacking. In 1773 he went to Virginia to settle the estate of his brother William, who had died. John had high hopes of a legacy, but through the machinations of some unnamed and unscrupulous agents, little remained for him. In 1775 he was almost penniless, a circumstance which may have had not less to do with his enlistment in the navy of which he is the father than the "theories favorable to the American colonies" which he had embraced some years before. He became third lieutenant on the ship Alfred, one of the fleet which had recently been constructed by order of Congress, and one which had the honor of being the first fighting vessel to hoist the fing of the American Republic affoot was run up on the Ranger, then commanded by Jones.

Of the heroic exploits which have made Paul's wrong name famous, the first was a successful attack on New Providence, followed by a fight with the English ship Glasgow, which escaped. So did Jones. In May he took command of the Providence, and made a cruise in which sixteen prizes were captured, and several small vessels sunken. Transferred again to the Aried as captain, he raided Canadian waters, and seized three colliers off. Louishurg. He was promoted to the Ranger for this exploit, and continued his career in glory by capturing two fruit vessels. His ravages upon English shipping had made him a man of such importance that in 1777 he went to Paris to consult the American Comthe American navy.

If no attempt had been made to construct a mighty hero out of this Scottish adventurer, his story might arouse greater sympathy. If, however, he is to be regarded as a great man, we can only say that of them he is the least.

the independent colonies. The close of the war saw him in Paris.

Here he continued to live for some time, for the Parisians were his great admirers, and Jones was no more adverse to flattery than other great men. Later on he went to St. Petersburg, where he became a favorite of the Empress Catharine. In her service he enlisted and saw service against the Turks, but as promotions came too slowly, he resigned and returned to Paris. All through his career Jones complained that he was not treated with the official consideration which he deserved. His later years were made miserable by money troubles, and by his ill-health. When he died he had a claim for 7,000 livres against the French Government. Finally, in 1792, he suddenly expired, of apoplexy. His physician found him lying face downward on the bed, fully dressed, his feet on the floor. He was buried in the old St. Louis Cemetery, but the grave was unmarked, and this was the obstacle to the exhumation of his remains and their transfer to the United states, where they will be more suitably interred. 41 Persons Seriously Injured and Several Will Die.

Over 100 Other Persons Suffered Less Severe Injuries In the Tornado at Snyder, Oklahoma-Great Suffering Among the Survivors In the III-Fated Town, of Which Little Is Left

Guthrie, Ok., May 12.—The death list Wednesday night's tornado, at Sny-Guthrie, Ok., May 12.—The death list of Wednesday night's tornade, at Snyder will probably exceed 100 persons. Eighty-five bodies have been recovered, a dozen persons are missing and given up for dead, and of the 41 seriously wounded several are likely to die. More than 100 other persons suffered less severe injuries. Oklahoma City yesternatival and the die grayes are die grayes and the die grayes and the die grayes and the die grayes are die grayes and the die grayes and the die grayes are die grayes and die grayes and die grayes are die grayes and die grayes are die gr day sent 100 men to dig graves and seek the dead still in the ruins, and a dozen undertakers with 100 coffins. Of-fers of financial assistance have come from numerous cities.

It is still difficult to obtain information from Snyder. To add to the gen-eral confusion and distress, after the eral confusion and distress, after the tornado had passed fire broke out and burned up all that remained of the buildings, in one of the business blocks. So far it has not been possible to find out whether any bodies were cremated. Debris was carried northeast as far out whether any bodies were cremated.

Debris was carried northeast as far as Coopertown, 12 miles, and it is reported that there are more fragments at that town, than in the tornado path at Snyder. About 75 head of horses and cattle were killed at Snyder.
Survivors Suffering.
There is much suffering owing to lack of provisions and places to stay. What houses remain in the town are unsafe for habitation. Besides, there is not room enough to care for the homeless. Bedding and wearing apparel are both lacking, and, despite the effort to succor the unfortunates, they are still in a pitiable condition. Many of the wounded could not be cared far or given medical aid until 9 o'clock yesterday morning, and by that time wounds were aggravated.

Dr. York of Hobert, who was active in relieving the suffering, says that 20 per cent. of the wounded will die.

At 10 o'clock last night the number of known dead as the result of the tornado has reached 95. Arrangements have been made to convey all the in-

The havoc wrought by the tornados astonishing. Out of a town that is astonishing. Out of a town that housed 1,000 persons, not more than a score of houses are intact, two-thirds of the buildings being totally wrecked. The storm formed south of Olustee, near the Texas line, and took a northeasterly course through a well-settled At 8 o'clock it was observed by the people of Snyder, but the usual funnel-shaped formation was lacking, and the roar was plainly heard for some-time before the storm broke. Within a few minutes the sky suddenly became dark and a terrific downpour frein hearn leating for several minof rain began, lasting for several minutes. Then the rain stopped almost as suddenly as it had started.

For a few minutes an ominous calm followed, and then the tornado struck, tearing buildings to pieces as though they were made of paper.

JAPS HAD TO RETIRE.

Cavalry and Artillery Forced Them Back and Back Again.

Back and Back Again.

St. Petersburg, May 12.—Gen. Linevitch, in a despatch to the Emperor, dated May 8, says:

"Our advance posts along the line from Podysoussche to Shihousa were attacked by the enemy's cavairy on May 7. The Japanese were repulsed. They renewed the attack May 8, but were again unsuccessful.

"On May 8 our tavalry advanced in the direction of the Shahetzy mines, which were occupied by Japanese, who, in the face of our artillery fire and a turning movement westward of the mines, were obliged to retire towards the Village of Sintanzou, from which they subsequently were dislodged, retiring to the Village of Madiopa."

Where Russian Fleet is.

Hong Kong, May 12.—With the arrival here last night of the first-class packet steamship Sesis from Singapore another interesting chapter is added to the war situation in the China Sea. At 9 o'clock on Tuesday evening the Sesia ploked up three vessels of the Russian war fleet, and by 10 o'clock had passed thirty-seven of the Czar's ships about forty miles northeast of Cape Shanho, a little west of the regular trade route to Hong Kong.

A PAVING JOB.

No Tenders Asked-Col. Hughes Un earths Another Instance of Substantial Reward For Services.

Ottawa, May 12.—Parliament yesterday spent two hours on a discussion of the newly-made paving in front of the Parliament Buildings. Col. Hughes found that the original contract was sunder $5.000, but had been extended until it now reached $10,000. Still no tenders had been called for. He also discovered that the company who did the work was the Warren company, of which T. C. Robinette, "a prominent supporter of this administration and candidate for Parliamentary honors," was one of the principal directors. The price paid was also an astounding one, being from $2.50 to $3 a square yard. That would have been reasonable if the pavement put down had been of the best, but it was merely a patent ar mixture. Ottawa, May 12.—Parliament yester tar mixture.

The Autonomy Bills. The House then went into committee on the autonomy bills. Clause 6 was passed. Mr. Fitzpatrick introduced an amendment to clause 15, but it stood over. Clauses 17, 18 and 19, passed some days ago on resolution, were on motion of Mr. Fielding, incorporated in the bill.

Mr. Fitzpatrick suggested that clause clauses were disposed of, when it could be considered with clause 2. Mr. Borden asked him for the promised explanation of the difference between the riginal and the amended clauses (eduoriginal and the amended causes (edu-cational), but Mr. Fitzpatrick said he was not in a position to deal with the subject at this time as he had not the papers with him.

The debate was continued until after 11 o'clock on the line that the Liberals had voted on clauses which amended the original clauses but which the Minister of Justice was not prepared to state what difference existed between

BOUGHT PROPERTY

The Chatham, Wallaceburg and Lake Erie Electric Railway Company is composed of men of thorough business ability, who are certainly living up to their promises.

Yesterday they signed articles purchasing the Baby property on King St. West from Dr. Tye's former office to the Third St. bridge, and on it they will immediately commence preparations for the erection of their power house and general business offices. This will be the headquarters of the new railroad company, and a gang of workmen will be put immediately to work tearing down the buildings which are at present on the grounds and clearing up the property for the new buildings.

The building of the road will be commenced immediately now that the company has been placed on a working basis, and it is the determination of the men at the head of affairs to have the road in running shape inside of four months. They are certainly losing no time, and it seems quite probable that the road will be ready for traffic in that time.

AN ABLE MAN

The Chatham, Wallaceburg and Lake Eric Electric Railway Company has now been formally organized and placed on a solid financial and a good business basis, and there seems at present no reason to doubt that Chatham will have a complete electric service between here and Wallaceburg in the course of about four or five months.

This means much to Chatham and to Chatham's merchants and citizens. No more will the farmers of Dover and Chatham Townships be forced to remain at home during the rainy seasons owing to the muddy roads, for they will soon have access to an electric road which will pass right past their doors. They, too, will reap the benefit.

With the coming of such happy conditions in Kent County—conditions in Kent County—conditions that have been so often wished and hoped for—it is only natural to ask how they have been brought about. This is a question which is easily answered, for the railroad has been finally secured through the faithful and untiring efforts of one to ask how they have been brought about. This is a question which is easily answered, for the rallroad has been finally secured through the faithful and untiring efforts of one man, assisted as he was by a few of Chatham's most influential and progressive citizens. This man is W. N. Warburton, to whom unbounded credit and gratitude is due.

Mr. Warburton is by no means a stranger in Chatham. It will be remembered that a few years ago he was general managen of the Erie & Huron Railway with headquarters in this city, and ever since he left here he has always had a warm spot in his heart for Chatham, with good wishes for the welfare of the good people of Kont.

Two years ago Mr. Warburton held a mass meeting in Chatham with a view of falking up an electric road. He did not receive much encouragement at that time and many a man would then have given up the scheme but he stuck to it with untiring energy and succeeded gradually in getting a few of the men here interested in the project. After several obstacles, which he was successful in overcoming, he now has the satisfaction of seeing material results from his faithful efforts.

It is with pleasure that those interested in the road will learn that Mr. Warburton has been elected general managen of the new road. Ha is a man of exceptional ability in railroading and for the past seven years has been superintendent of the Niagars, St. Catharines and Toroonic Electric Boad, so that he fully understands the workings of an electric road, and a happier choice for general managen could not have been made, Mr. Warburton also enjoys the confidence and esteem of all who know him and the road should, and no doubt will, prove a splendid business success under his able management.

The average man is quick enough to grasp an opportunity to make a fool of himself.

A devoted mother seems to listen to every call of duty excepting the su-preme one that tells her to guard her thealth, and before she realizes it some derangement of the female organs has derangement of the female organs nas smanifested itself, and nervousness and arritability take the place of happi ss and amiability.

The mother should not be blamed, as she no doubt is suffering with back-ache, headache, bearing-down pains or a displacement, making life a burden.
Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the unfailing cure for this condition. It strengthens the female organs and permanently cures all dissorders such as this letter describes:

orders such as this letter describes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:

"Being mother of five children, I have had experience with the general troubles of my sex. I was lacerated when one of my children was born, and from that hour I date all of my affictions. I found that within a few months my health was impaired, I had female weakness and serious inflammation and frequent flowing spells. I became weak and dizzy, but kept on my feet, dragging threugh my work without life or pleasure. A neighbor who had heen helped by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound insisted that I take a telest one bottle. I did so, and felt so much better that I kept on the treatment, and it made me a strong and well woman. The few dollars I spent for the medicine cannot begin to pay what it was worth to me."—Mrs. Anna McKay, 326 Spadina Ave., Toronto, Ont.

Greer, Disciplinarian

By Ethel Barrington Copyright, 1905, by Ethel Barrington

Roxana's dog was an ill conditioned brute. He was a surly bull pup that had never met his master and delighted in making it most uncomfortable for those who sought Roxana's com-pany. He was not often docile, even with her, but she was so proud of his blue ribbon and ugliness that she endeavored to hide his delinquencies. Nevertheless, there were times when she would not have gone near him for the world. One day he snarled at her before Goddard Greer, and that was the be-ginning of trouble. Greer was a college bred athlete who feared nothing on earth except perhaps Roxana. Enraged, he seized the luckless prize winner by the collar and bore him to the hallway, where he administered a strong argument, after which he turned the amazed animal loose down the back stairs. Goddard returned to the parlor, arranging his cuffs, but other-wise as usual. He stopped short as he faced Roxana, who looked like an out-"A truly fine performance," she declared scathingly. "There is your ring.

I never wish to see you again."

"What's up? I don't understand"—
"If you think you can abuse my dog" or any animal and keep my regard you are greatly in error. It is fortu-nate I discovered your true character before it was too late."

An amused twinkle lighted Greer's eves. "Do you think if I let a dog snarl and snap at you I'd be better fitted to take care of you? The beast has been hunting trouble. Come. don't

"I shall never quarrel with you again," asserted Roxana sternly, as though depriving him of some pleasant pastime. "Can't you accept a hint that I wish to be alone?" Greer stood his ground. He tried to laugh, but not very successfully. "Come, Roxie, forgive me. You know the old proverb: 'A dog, a wo-man and a walnut tree. The more they be beaten the better they be.'" Roxana's eyes blazed as though she already felt the suggested chastisement. "Oh, is that your theory? Well, decline to be the woman!" And she left him to meditate on the ingratitude of womankind. They had quarreled efore, but never with what appeared to be such finality. When Greer called again Roxana was not at home. He wrote, and his letter was returned un pened. About a week later Roxana, having passed a day shopping and dining with her friend, Mrs. Vining, decided not to await Mr. Vining's delayed return, though he had promised escort her home.

"I'll jump on a car. I am not afraid,"

she declared. "But, dear, it's nearly 10. Phil can't be long now," urged her hostess. But Roxana was obdurate.

"No, I shall be all right." There seemed to be a delay on the line, for she had stood at the corner some minutes. Then a man foined her Without looking she knew it was God dard Greer. She was incensed. Had he followed her? Would he have the presumption to ride on the same car? As the headlight shot into sight she de cided to wait for another car rather than risk his unwelcome proximity Green glanced inquiringly at her, but seeing mat she made no move he like wise retained his position on the curb ing. Roxana tapped her foot impa-tiently. It was absurd! Why had he not taken his car? When the next car appeared, as one of them must make a move. Roxana hailed the motorman mounted the step and took her seat, From beneath her lowered lids she saw The car was empty, with the form. exception of a negro, and Roxana had traveled several blocks before the conductor came to collect her fare.

She opened her purse and looked hurriedly from one compartment to another. It was empty. Evidently she had spent every penny during the shop-ping expedition. But there remained her wrist bag, into which she frequent ly dropped small change. The co or went forward to speak to the mo torman. Roxana pursued the search. In vain she emptied out her belongings from the satchel. She found no coin. Then she unfastened her coat. Surely in the change pocket she would find a nickel. But the pocket was as bare as Mother Hubbard's cupboard. The conductor returned. Roxana was fright-ened. It was late, and she had quite a trip before her. "I seem to have no change," she commenced nervously.

"Allow me." Greer handed the fare to the official, who looked questioningly at Roxana. "No! I'll get off! Please stop!" she decided promptly. Not for worlds would she accept assistance from Greer. She had dismissed him. He had no right to intrude in any way. Heroically Roxana left the car and walked north. She had never been alone on the street so late, and, remembering the distance, the darkness and the lone the distance, the darkness and the lone-liness of the blocks, she was really alarmed. She did not fear the pedestri-ans she met as much as those who overtook her. She dreaded the sound of footsteps behind, conjuring up all sorts of horrors. As she hurried up the deserted thoroughfare it seemed to her that some one followed. If she has-ened the musuam footsteps onlet. tened, the pursuing footsteps quick-ened. When she slackened speed, the other did the same. It frightened her, and she became breathless. With the a passing minutes her terror gained. She began to run. Then the dread became a certainty. The other one would soon overtake her. What if that negro had

Across the avenue she saw an alley, She had heard that thieves often evaded arrest by disappearing in the darkness of such places. If she cut through might not she, too, escape? Desperate, half hysterical, Roxana made a sudden rush across the road. A trolley grazed her shoulder, the motorman cursed as he reversed the lever. Terrified, she had all but reached the desired shelter when a strong hand grasped her suddenly by the arm. She tried to scream, but no sound came. Lifting her eyes, her glance met Greer's, looking sternly at her.

"I guess that will do for one night." he remarked coldly. "Come over to the drug store while I phone for a cab." Completely unnerved, Roxana fol-The reaction had been sudden

She tried to remember what they had quarreled about, but could only feel relief in his presence. Greer ordered the cab, then went outside to wait. "Come!" he commanded tersely on its arrival.

Gratefully Roxana obeyed. Then as he was about to close the door she found her voice. "Don't leave me." "I've no intention of doing so." And he mounted by the driver. When they reached her home Roxana's eyes were suspiciously red.

"Well?" said Greer. The bull pup sniffed respectfully at his boots. Greer stooned and patted him on the head.

"Then its mistress can do no less," she admitted

"'A dog, a woman and a walnut tree' "- began Greer teasingly. "Hush, hush!" whispered Roxana, with her hand on his lips. "You know I never really believed"-

'Of course not," he agreed promptly. Then as his arms tightened about her, "But, oh, Roxie, don't let us play that game again."

Such Is Fame.

The following story concerning John Forster, the biographer of Dickens, was told by the late Sir Wemyss Reid: In the days of his youth Sir Wemyss showed a great desire to embark upon a journalistic career, whereupon an hold friend of the family in Newcastle told him that going to London and writing for the papers would bring him no good, adding:

"I mind there was a decent friend of mine, auld Mr. Forster, the butcher in the side. He had a laddie just like you, and nothing would serve him but he must go away to London to get eddicated, as he called it, and when he had got eddicated he wouldn't come back to his father's shop, though it was a first class business. He would do nothing but write and write and write, and at last he went back again to London and left his poor auld father alone, and A've never heard tell of that laddie since."
"It was thus," concluded Sir Wemyss,

"that the fame of John Forster, the author of 'The Life of Goldsmith' and the destined biographer of Charles Dickens, was cherished in his native town by his father's ancient friends!"

Points on Proposing.

An old fashioned book of etiquette contains a chapter on courtship that is exceedingly naive. Any young man who might be contemplating a proposal of marriage was urgal strongly to se lect with care and do forethought the proper time and place for such proposal. For instance, he should never propose to a young woman while out boating, for if she should happen to refuse him it would be difficult to reach shore immediately, and the situation would obviously be awkward.

On the other hand, if she should accept him the situation would be equally undesirable since too close a proximity and certain attitudes incident to the circumstances are known to threaten the safety of a boat; also said young man was advised never to propose to a young woman just before dinner. Havshe would doubtless be in a less amiable frame of mind than usual and might under these conditions refuse an offer which at another time would seem

"I met a man on the street who said he owed me $3 and who promised to pay the money some time. Knowing that there was little likelihood of his doing so, as he is a well known deadbeat, I replied in a bantering sort of way:

"Bet you a dollar you will power."

""Bet you a dollar you will never pay the $3."
"Much to my surprise, when I re-turned to my office, my wife said this man had called to settle his account. man had caned to settle his account. He had given her a check for $10 and received $7 in cash. In the evening he dropped in, and I gladly paid him my lost wager and thought I was a smart man. Today the check was returned by my bank marked 'no good.' "—New York Press.

Not So Far Out of the Way. During Governor Rollins' administra tion a representative to the legislature of New Hampshire from one of the rural districts in the northern section of the state was presented to the governor for the first time. The governor informed the gentle-man from the rural district that there was but one "Most High," "he who was out one "Most High," he who had made everything from nothing."

Pain Across the Kidneys For Three Years.

Suffered Great Agony. Could Not Stoop or Bend.

No disease is so quiet and stealthy in its approach as kidney disease. That is why it is so dangerous. It may become deep-seated before you realize the danger. It is therefore of great importance to recognize the early warning symptoms, because in its early stage kidney disease is easily curable. Pain or dull ache in the back is one of the first signs. So are hladder pains, bearing-down pains, smart-

So are bladder pains, bearing-down pains, smarting sensation when urinating, frequent or suppressed urination, and gravel or sediment in the urine, etc. You cannot be well if your kidneys are not performing their functions properly. Mr. Michael A. McInnis, Woodbine, Marion Bridge, N.S., tells of his experience: "For the last three years I suffered great agony with pain across my kidneys, and was so bad that I could not stoop or bend. I consulted and had several doctors treat me, but I got none the better. On the advice of a friend I procured a box of that valuable lifegiving remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills, and to my surprise and benefit I immediately became better. A Dissembler.
"Leonidas," said Mr. Meekton's wife, look me in the eye and answer me one question. Have you ever deceived me about anything?"

"Well, Henrietta," he answered after much hesitation, "I must confess that I have not been altogether frank. On numerous occasions I have dis-sembled to the extent of trying to appear far more amiable than I really felt.'

Like a Whale. "You cannot keep me down," shout-ed the great orator at a public meeting; "though I may be pressed below the waves I rise again. You will find that I come to the surface, gentlemen."
"Yes," said an old whaler in the audience, "you come to the surface to blow."

Elzear Cote Found in Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets a Speedy and Permanent Cure for his Stomach Trou-

"I have suffered for four years from stomach trouble, I consulted three doctors and they told me that three doctors and they told me that I had Dyspensia and no remedy would cure me." So says Elzear Cote, of St. Hedwidge de Chifton, Que, But Mr. Cote found a remedy that the doctors did not know. It was Dodd's Dyspensia Tablets and it cured him.

Dyspepsia Tablets and it oured him. He says:

"When I quit the doctors and started to take Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. After the first box I had no more trouble. It is now two years since I took them and I am still well, I do all my own work. I am never tired. That's why I recommend all who have stomach troubles to use Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets."

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets digest the food, themselves. This gives the overworked stomach a chance to rest and it naturally comes back to its normal healthy condition.

The Eye of the Shark.

The eye of the shark is small, long and narrow, closely resembling that of a pig. All observers have agreed in attributing to it a sly and malicious expression, but this must to some extent be taken as a flight of fancy. The only real reason for attributing to the shark a savage disposition is that, like the wolf, he has no pity whatever for a comrade in distress and that a wound-ed shark will be instantly attacked and devoured by his companion. This is indeed an evil trait in the creature and can only be excused on the ground of his prolonged fasts and the over-mastering demands of his appetite.— London Standard. NERVOUSNESS A CALAMITY Many who don't realize what lies beyond, treat an attack of the "nerves" with indifference. Others consider it will soon pass away. But in every case nervousness is a calamity. Only one remedy will cure—ferrozone—a nerve strengthener that acts through the blood. First it gives you appetite—you eat plenty. This fills the blood with nourishment for hte inner nerve cells. Energy and strength is instilled into every part of the system. You get well—keep well—nervousness forever departs, because you've used Ferrozone. Price 50c. per box of fifty tablets at all dealers.

The Englishman's Income. The total annual income of the pec-ple of the United Kingdom, as estimated by Sir Robert Giffen and Professo. Bowley, approaches $10,000,000,000. Our population at this moment is as nearly as possible 43,000,000. Dividing $10,000,000,000 by 43,000,000, we got hearly $235 as the annual income per head of the British people. Taking a family as five persons, we see that the average income per family is about $1,175 per aunum.

That Leads to a Tragedy.

Night-blindness is an allment prevalent among lumbermen who work in shanites remote enough to make vegetables an unusual luxury, says a Lachine, Quebec, correspondent. In most instances the persons affected have the nermal use of their eyesight from sunrise to sunset, but are stone blind when the sun is below the horizon.

Sometimes the trouble comes on slowly, beginnig with a dimness of vision at morning and evening, and increasing until it is impossible for the patient to sitr outside except when the sun is high. At other times, and especially in the bright days of March, when the glare of the sun upon the show is trying to all eyes, night-blindness sets in suddenly.

There was a curious case of this sudden coming on of the blindness in the Ottawa lumber district, near Beaver Leke. Four men had been detailed to mark the logs laid upon the ice, and they had worked three or four days in the scorching light of the March sun reflected from the clear lake surface

Two of them were sufferers from night-blindness and had to be led home at night by their comrades, and as their shanty was four miles way from the loke the was four miles away from the lake it was their custom to start back a lit-

Association of British Chambers of Commerce, died here yesterday. He was born in 1820.

The night was terribly cold and there was more than half a gale of north wind blowing across the lake. To attempt to grope their way home would be to risk their lives. Happily, one of the men-remembered that one of the great timbers used as a skidway was a stick of white birch, the canoe tree of the Indians.

Cautiously they felt their way to this log and contrived to tear away a secondation of British Chambers of Commerce, died here yesterday. He was born in 1820.

Cautiously they felt their way to this log and contrived to tear away a section of the paper-like bark. Hastily rolling this up into what would answer for a torch they lit it with a match and derived light enough for three of the four to be able to distinguish their surroundings.

The birch pole was at once completely stripped of its bark, and while at this work they decided that it would be almost madness to try to reach their shanty that night along the narrow pathway their footsteps had made in the deep snow. Right across an arm of the lake on a projecting point was a deserted shanty, and thither they determined to go.

a deserted shanty, and thither they determined to go.

The journey was difficult, as even with the fiamling bark to guide them the poor fellows found it difficult to steer a straight course. It was probably near midnight when they pushed open the rude wooden hinged door and entered the shanty.

Discover a Tragedy. Discover a Tragedy.

A fire was quickly started in the caboose with some of the poles taken from the bottom of one of the shelf-like sleeping bunks, still in position all around the walls. After a time their sense of seeing came back to them as they sat about the bright fire, and they could look about their new home with tolerable clearness. As their vision cleared they made out the figure of a man seated at the clerk's desk in the corner, with a fine hound at

A little investigation showed that both man and dog were stone dead and frozen to stiffness. It was evident that the shanty had been the home of the dead pair for a considerable time.

The greater part of fine deer hung in the cook's lean-to which was entered by a door from the rear of the shanty. No trace of flour or other provisions was to be seen.

The dead man was dressed in city clothes, some brown checker material, well made, and he had a good gold watch. On the table were old news-papers of six or eight months ago, all from the United States. A lead penoli lay near the hand of the dead man, and a bit of white birch bark, on which was written over and over again, "Bind!"

Victim of Night-Blindness.

Naturally enough the four men did not care to make a very close search for means of identification. They considered that the man was a stranger in the woods and an American. It is their opinion that the man was afficted way from it for fear of being over taken by evening and becoming unable to make a very close search for means of

Take care of the stomach and the Take care of the stomach and the health will take care of itself. If people only realized the soundness of that statement the majority might live to a good old age like Moses, "the eye andimmed, the natural force unabated." It is in the stomach that the blood is made. It is from the stomach that the blood is made. mach that the blood is made. It is from the stomach that nourishment is dispensed to nerve and muscle. If the stomach is "weak" it can't do its whole work for each part of the body. If it is diseased the disease will taint the nourishment which is distributed, and so spread disease throughout the body. It was the realization of the importance of the stomach as the very centre of health and the common source of disease, which led Dr. Pierce to prepare his "Golden Medical Discovery." "Dis-"Golden Medical Discovery." "Diseases which originate in the stomach must be cured through the stomach."
The soundness of this theory is proved every day by cures of diseased organs, heart, liver, lungs, blood,—by the use of the "Discovery," which is solely and singly a medicine for the blood and organs of digestion and nutrition. It is a temperance medicine Beginnings of Clubs. The first club of modern England seems to have been the circle at the Mermaid that Sir Walter Raleigh founded and Shakespeare joined. But in the seventeenth century clubs began to spring up like mushrooms. There was the Calves' Head club, whose members met and dined off whose members met and dined oft calves' heads to show their contempt for the decapitated Charles I. Then came the Kit-Kat club, which, according to Addison, took its name from a mutton pie. One Christopher Kat, a pastry cook of Shire lane, was a distinguished construction. tinguished constructor of mutton pies, and his productions were called Kit-Kats. The club meeting in his house and eating his pies acquired the pies' name for its own.—Loudon Telegraph.

Sir Oliver Mowat's Opinion.
Hon. Mr. Hanna opened up the question of the appointment of license commissioners, and quoted from the speeches of Mowat Fierdy and Freser commissioners, and quoted from the speeches of Mewat, Hardy and Fraser, in reply to Mr. Meredith, that it had been found advisable to select license commissioners from political friends. Experience had taught these men that it was impossible to carry out the acts of the Government, except through friends of the Government, Conservatives appointed by the Liberal Government of the day had obstructed instead of carrying out the License Act.

A. C. Pratt (South Norfolk) knew of shery licenses that had been refused opponents of the Government.

No Blame on Resume.

The discussion was closed by Hon.
Dr. Resume, who explained how the fishery circular came to issue from his Department. He read a letter from Mr.
Bastedo, his deputy, which said that it had been the practice of the Department in issuing fishery liceness to refer the applications to the Liberal member or defeated candidate in the ridlog. After the advent of the new Government, he prepared the usual circular, but in the hurry of sending it cut he had overlooked the important duty of showing the Minister the draft.

The motion for the papers was then passed.

Hon. Mr. Hanna introduced a bill respecting brewers and distillers and other licensees, providing for substantial license fees from warehouses of the brewers and distilers situated in places apart from the brewery or distillery, which would give an additional revenue of from $5.000 to $10,000. Before a season starts, just what was going to sell best in SUITS, the clothing business would beat a get-rich-quick concern.

But there is such a difference in taste that clothiers doing a large business must provide for all sorts and conditions of men; and have everything any of them might want.

We believe that in OUR SPRING SUITS we've come pretty near doing that-
