The Coming of Age.

The coming of age of our beloved Order has roused a desire among a large number, that hitherto looked upon Englishmen as having no national existance in the Dominion of Canada, to make enquiry as to what we are doing, and what is our aim and what is our claim to national existence. What we are here for has been shown in every town and city in the Dominion, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, which our reports will demonstrate.

Ald, Bro, Fred. Cook, declared to the Ottawa gathering that the dimensions of the Order had now arrived at the stage of its national existence when it must be counted of political importance in the Dominion, and the contemptuous expression that in the past has been so freely used to designate the want of unity among Englishmen is no longer applicable, to our nationality.

The Sons of England Society's mission is one by which all Englishmen can take a pride—NATIONAL AND BENEFIT—and by its unswerving devotion to England and her institutions, is now looked upon as a political link between the Mother Country and Canada. They are obligated to maintain the "integrity of the Empire," and, therefore, can always be relied upon to be in the foreground in support of all measures to cement that link of national kindship.

It is not generally known that this benefit and national society of Englishmen are adding to its numbers each month, and are distributing a large amount of financial and medical aid to its members.

Among the 15,000 members in Canda is paid out something over $1,000 a nonth in sick dues, etc. The society as reserve fund of nearly $100,000.

The Insurance Branch of the Order very strong, and its importance is lemonstrated by the payment of some $26,000 to deceased members' wives luring the past year.

en our endeavors to keep up the fond remembrance of the land we left, and let me invite my fellow-countrymen present to come and join us and help us in our aims to relieve each other in sickness and distress. Our motto is to keep in remembrance the land of our fathers, and in doing so we show our loyalty both to the land we left and to this land of our adoption, where we have the advantage of independence and national glory. We are fully convinced that perpetuation of our connection with the British Empire is the path to success, for her laws, which are copied by all nations, are founded on the Bible, and so long as we maintain the privilege of an open Bible, and so long as we maintain the privilege of an open Bible we not fear of our course as a nation advancing in success and greatness. I will conclude with the words of the poet, "England, with all thy faults I love the still," for absence makes the heart grow fonder. Isle of beauty, fare thee well.

Moncton, N. B. FIDELITY TO QUEEN AND COUNTRY

Moncton, N. B.

Lodge Shaftesbury, No. 208, celebrated the coming of age by a social and entertainment, and a very enjoyable evening was spent by the members and their friends. The President, Bro. Geo. H. Pick, gave an able and stirring address, setting forth the aims and objects of the S.O.E., and appealing to the patriotism of this bearers. the patriotism of his hearers as follows:—Coupled with what I have already stated there is also other and important reasons why Englishmen and their decendants should be members of such orders as this the Sons of England.

enlightened England is not so exacting. She is cool and calm in her deliberations and in her judgements, but she goes straight on, bending to no opposition, ever increasing her power, and her infinence; ever striving to elevate other nations to her own high standard of civilization. Brothers, remember you are England's Sons; bear that fact in your minds always. Whenever you feel inclined to act with injustice towards men think of the land which gives you your name of Englishman. Whenever for the sake of mere prosperity and wealth you feel inclined to give yourself and your freedom to another country, think of what you owe to your own motherland and the inclination will die away because of the instincts which our lear old country breeds in her children, and as we are with all other men partakers of the brotherhood of nature, let us endeavor, Sons of England, to make our special brotherhood of charity a reality. Let there be no false brethern, no envious brethren, or churlish brethren, among our ranks; let not our badge of brotherhoy love cover a narrow-minded heart or a false heart, let us be to the very core, first Christians, then Englishmen.

Bryson, Graham New Glasgow, N.S.

In common with the other lodges in the Dominion of Canada, Kenilworth lodge decided to keep the anniversary of the Order, by a concert in the lodge room. The chair was occupied by the Rev. Bro. Taylor, D. G. Chaplain, supported by Rev. Mr. Croft, Deputy G. Chaplain and Rev. Mr. Lea. The chairman made a loyal and patriotic address, dwelling upon the growth of the Order throughout Canada. Addresses were also given by the Rev. Mr. Croft and Lea. Kenilworth lodge is doing well, and so are the other lodges in the Province, and the future prospects are very bright.

MEN AND WOMEN

WHO HAVE HELPED TO MAKE

ENGLAND GREAT.

Perhaps no other name in history, certainly none in English History, that makes a greater claim to live, patriotism and admiration, than "Alfred the Great," great in many respects, in ce as well as war, in art as well as in the encouragement of the ordinary pursuits of life. In statesmanship, in patience, and in that peculiar quality of persistence and indomitable courag that seems to belong specially to the Anglo-Saxon race. That this great man possessed in an eminent degree that quality that neither knows nor acknowledges when it is beaten, his life affords ample evidence; and his endents, nearly a thousand years after his birth, were honored by a compliment for this quatity by one of the greatest of modern soldiers, when he exclaimed on the battle field, "confound those English, they never know when they are beaten."

Born at Wantage in 849, but according to some authorities, in 844, but upon what day, the chronicles are silent; but from circumstances that are known of, it must have been about Christmas or New Year's time

Wantage at that time was a royal residence, in Berkshire, when, at that time, a thick forest covered nearly the whole country. Born at a time when the whole country was been torn to pieces by factions and invaders, when Dane, and Northmen, Saxon and Welshmen, each in his turn struggling to get the better of all the others, it was no wonder the boy received a too small to justify a comparison of him knowledge of war, that stood by him in good steed and saved England to Saxon rule in after years. He was the him to their level is the moral grandeur youngest of a large family, and owing to his gentleness and kindliness of disposition, was the special favorite of his mother, who seems to have been a Christian King, of a ruler who put woman of more than ordinary ability, and for these days, a person of learn ing far above, even the high born ladies of the court. It is proof of her ability, that she was not of royal blood in his mouth a life of worthiness meant but was the daughter of the King's up-bearer Oslac, and a Jute. History erved to us but little info arding this remarkable woman and her ultimate fate is unfortunately shrouded in a veil of poetical mystery. Of noble lineage, she was noble also in heart and spirit; of extraordinary piety, she always fulfilled her duty to her children in the best manner. She was, in fact, like our present beloved Queen Victoria, the ideal of a true English mother. All her energies were devoted to her household; and we find active part in public affairs.

The boy thrive visibly in the free air, amid the din of war, more b ful than either of his three brothers, more lovable in speech and demenour. In these days, education was scarcely poems of the daring feats of their fore-fathers. It was the mother or the nurse who first spoke to the little one Collingwood, Jan. 15th, 1896. of the heroes of past days, and of their battles with men, monstors, and evil spirits, and of these things, Alfred could never hear enough.

no trace of her even having taken any

It was from Osburgar, his mother, that the boy, in his earliest child hood, learned the first of these ballards, in the manner so touchingly related by Asser. One day his mother showed him and his brothers a beautiful volume, filled with Saxon poetry, and said, "The one among you children who can first say this book by heart, shall have it." Inspired by an almost divine instinct, and allured by the richly-decorated initial letters, and the binding painted in various colours with all the skill of the period, the little Alfred came forward before his brothers, who were only his superiors in age, not in mind, and eagerly asked his mother, "Wilt thou really give it to the one who learns it the quickest, and repeats it to thee?" Osburga smiled for joy, and said, "Yes, to him will I give it." So he directly took the book out of her hands, went with it to his teacher and read. After he had read it, he brought it again to his mother, and repeated it to her."

It would take up too much space to give in detail the youthful troubles The W. H. Comstock Co., Ltd.

ceived his education in Ireland, and that he got his idea of "trial by jury from the Irish Brehon laws, but this is a mistake. Nowhere, in recognized authority can I find of Alfred's being sent to Ireland to finish his education. He was sent to Rome when very young, and again he went lateron, but his stay on either occasion was but short. That he did establish "trial by jury" in England, is a fact. He also translated Bede's works, the works of Boethins, Owsins and others, into the language of his own people, and established schools in every thickly settled portion of his domain.

malady during his whole life, which often brought on him long periods of Her Poets and her Scientists immortalized shall meloncholy and suffering. It is not quite clear what this malady was, but in the nature of epclipsy. Yet, with this disease even present and racking him in body and mind; he managed to drive the Danes across the Roman road and to keep them there, and to lay the foundation of an united England. "So long as I have lived," wrote the great King towards the end of his days, "I have striven to live worthily." longed, when death overtook him, "to leave to the man that come after a remembrance of him in good works." His wishes have been fulfilled, for no man in history has come down to us deserving of our admiration, and our gratitude. Wise in council, brave in war, kind and just to friend and foe alike, a lover of peace but not afraid of The sons of Jolly England are the bravest in war, even when the odds were greatly against him. He was not ambitious and cared little for power other than that it enabled him to work good for his subjects. "Politically, or intellectually," says the historian Green, "indeen the sphere of Alfred's action is with the few whom the world claims as its greatest men. What really lifts aside every personal aim or ambition to devote himself to the welfare of those whom he ruled. So long as he lived he strove to live worthily," but "a life of justice, temperance, self sacrifice." Ethelswitha, the wife of Alfred was an eminent woman, a fit mate for so noble a man, and their sons and daughters were such as might be expected from so brilliant a couple, but we will speak of these later on.

Alfred, besides being a great Monarch, vas an ememplary son a faithful husband, a loving father, a scholar, an author, a moralist and a finished states man. He died A.D, 901, at the early age of fifty-two years. He was a model Englishman, an ideal, that may be set Da up in any home, to be followed as an example. He made an epoch in his country's language and literature, that s since broadened out to the present dimensions. "The writer of English history may be pardoned if he lingers too fondly thought of, even amongst princes, for the culture of youth consisted only in the strengthening of the body by war-like exercises and the chase, and in quickening the mind by the songs and greatest of English monarchs, by a

One of the best patriotic poems that the Anglo-Saxon has seen for many a day recently appeared in the columns of the Victoria (B. C.) Colonist under the above heading. It is by Capt. C. Phillips-Wolley, an Englishman and a worthy constituent of Bro. Hon. Col. Prior, Controller of Inland Revenue. If Mr. Phillips-Wolley is not a member of the S.O. E., our Victoria brethren should lose no time in capturing him. He is the kind of material which reflects credit on our noble order. The poem is herewith given in full:-

"The flying squadron, which together with the existing available squadrons with which it is proposed to join it will form the most power-ful fleet of war vessels ever put afloat."—Ex-cerpt from the Colonist Jan. 11, 1876.

Historical Battles-Noteworthy Events in the Story of the Creation of the British Empire.

War had not been declared formally, yet the Danes had not been idle from the moment that Colonel Stricker's cannon in Cronenburg made it known the moving of the stump of his lost that the passage of the Sound had been arm in a manner that was generally forced. All ranks of men, with noble his wont when excited. Then referring patriotism, offered their lives for Denmark. The University furnished a the signal lieutenantbattalion 900 strong, the flower of the land; and when, by Nelson's movements, it was known when and where the attack might be expected, the lines of defence were manned indiscriminately by soldiers, sailors and citizens, all inspired by the most splendid enthusiasm. The sky was clear and really do not see the signal!" After a starry, and a few shells were seen to minute, he added, "Hang the signal! describe flery arcs as they rose from the isle of Amak and fell harmlessly That's the way I answer such signalsamong our ships, which were crowded in an anchoring-ground of small extent. Nelson sat down to table with a large party of his officers; he was, as he was ever wont to be when on the eve of action, in high spirits, and drank 'to'a leading wind, and to the success of tomorrow.' After supper they returned what they were about." to their respective ships, except Riou, meantime, went in a small boat to examine the channel between them and from total destruction. the enemy, approaching so near that he sounded round their leading ship with a pole, lest the noise of throwing the lead should discover him."

A fair wind was announced at dayreak. Nelson had already left his cot, and signalled for all captains. The pilots of the ships were generally men who had been mates of Baltic traders, and their hesitation about the exact bearing of the shoal and the exact line of deep water was ominous warning that they could be little trusted.

The Signal for Battle.

But the signal for battle was flying on Nelson's ship, the wind was fair, and there was no time to lose; and on Mr. Bryerly, volunteering to lead, at half-past nine the fleet weighed in succession.

In the Edgar, 74, Captain George Murray led the way. Unfortunately, the Bellona and Russell, from the intricacy of the navigation, took the. ground; but though not in the station assigned them, were so placed that their guns were of service. Nelson's old ship, the Agamemnon, was unable to weather the shoal and was compelled to anchor. These contingencies prevented the extension of the British line, and ultimately exposed the Monarch, the Defiance, and the small squadron of frigates under Capt. Riou

The action began at five minutes past ten, and by half-past eleven the battle She calls and Her ships of battle-dragons Her was general. Every ship and battery was engaged. Deprived thus of a fourth part of his ships, Nelson, though exposed to the As we go to our rest forever, leaving the world fire of more than 1,000 pieces of cannon, never flinched from the task; "and, as a bystander describes him, his conversation became joyous, animated, elevated, and delightful."

Sir Hyde Parker, meanwhile, was too distant to know the real state of matters, and suffered the greatest anxiety. The fire of the Danish ships and batteries seemed so tremendous, that he proposed to hoist the signal for recalling Nelson, and ultimately did Nelson, says his biographer, was at this time in all the excitement of action, pacing the quarter-deck. A shot wounded the mainmast, knocking the splinters in every direction.

At that moment the signal lieutenant called out, "Number Thirty-nine!"

This was Sir Hyde Parker's signal to discontinue the action, and the officer asked if he should repeat it.

TRADE AND THE TIGERS.

We have been under the impre that the British Empire League was armed at a conference held in London the 20th July, 1894, and, indeed, that impression has been confirmed by a reference to a circular issued about that time by the organizing committee Nevertheless it seems, according to the most recent advices, that the "inaugural" meeting did not take place until the 29th of last month, when the Lord Mayor of London, Sir Walter Henry Wilkin, presided. It thus appears that eighteen months' time have en taken up in "organising" the League, and that, after all was said and e, its officials at its last meeting had nothing definite to propose in the way of action for accomplishing its ob-ject. We are tempted to suspect that they "dunno' where they are," but this does not appear to be the case if reference is made to their proceedings cember last year. Those present at the meeting held in the first week of that month, spoke strongly of the hindrance to Anglo-Colonial trade, which results from the fact "that no legislation exists applicable to all the provinces of the Dominion of "Canada providing for the realisation administration and distribution of in-"colvent estates." It was even pro-posed to make representations at Ot-tawa on the subject.

The proceedings of this League af-ford a brilliant example of the process of "beating about the bush." At a time when the Imperial idea is ding so rapidly, when inter-Brit-preferential trade is finding so many advocates, when rumours of war cially and politically, the Brit-Canada! This, too, happened at a time when the press in the mother country was engaged in pointing out the true hindrances to Anglo-Colonial trade. For instance, in a leading ar ticle in the Times of 5th December,

"It is a matter of common knowdge that the trade of the Colonies with the United Kingdom is not increasing in proportion to the trade which the Colonies are doing with foreign countries. In the case of some of the most important Colonies this disposition is very marked. Taking, in the case of Australasia, the comparatively recent period during which Mr. Chamberlain has asked for returns, it will be found that in 1881 the total external trade with British sions amounted to £57,340,763. In 1892 it was £60,952,541, showing an increase in round numbers of little more than three millions and a half. The foreign trade of Australasia in 1881 was £7,213,916, and in 1892 it had risen to $14,894,557, or very nearly double the figures of the earlier date. Had trade with the United Kingdom progressed to anything like the same extent the effect would have been of the utmost importance to British industry. The increase, on an examination of the detailed returns, will be found to have gone almost to the United States, Germany and France, and by so much has served to stimulate the competitive enterprise of those countries. An almost similar state of things is to be traced in the Trade returns of South Africa, where also mining enterprise has of late shown a tendency to pass into French, American and German bands. In Canada where, twenty years ago, the imports from Great Britain formed 55 per cent. of the entire imports of the Colony, the proportion has now sunk to 37 per cent., while in the same period the proportion of imports from the United States have risen from 35 to 46 per cent., and those from France and Germany have heavily increased."

This quotation serves to prove the correctness of the judgment of the Royal Commission on the Depression of Trade and Industry that "in neutral markets, such as our own colonies and dependencies, and especially in the East, we are beginning to feel the effect of foreign competition in quarters where our trade formerly enjoyed a monopoly." The causes and effects of this foreign competition are patent and might well have occupied the attention of the British Empire League when considering the subject of hindrances to Anglo-Colonial trade. Instead of proposing remedies for these evils they blame the absence in Canada of slation regarding insolvency! Verily this League has not yet learnt the use of a rifle and prefers to blaze away with a shotgun. It reminds us of a story from far-away India, where at one of the back-country railway stations a tiger had emerged from the jungle and attacked the station master The native operator at once sprang to the telegraph and wired the manager. Tiger on platform eating station master; please send instructions"! Similarly the B. E. League proposes to make representations about bankruptcy in Canada while the tigers of unre stricted importation and foreign pro tectionism are preying upon the vitals of English and Anglo-Colonial trade.

THE DEFENCE PROBLEM.

While the new (B. E.) League busie tself about Canadian insolvency, the Imperial Federation (Defence) Committee continues its activity in publishing pamphlets, two of which have yet to be noticed in our columns. No. 7 is a re-publication of an article on "The Navy and the Colonies," by H. O. Arnold Foster, M. P., who has long been identified with the Imperial Federation movement, and who was in fact Honorary Secretary of the original League at the meetings which were held in July and November, 1884. Of course the article is largely taken up in setting forth the short-comings of the Colonies in the matter of Im-perial Defence, and in advocating the Committee's proposal that the Colonies should be asked whether they are, or are not, prepared to share the burdens as well as to enjoy the privileges of the Empire. This naive demand on the part of the Committee has always reminded us of Madame de Staels proposal to Goethe, that he should explain his philosophy in a short and commercially and politically, the British Empire League busies itself with suggestions about a Bankrupt law for ermany." and neither do v ada choose to answer such weighty stions in such a brief fashion. We gratified to observe that Mr. Arnold has much improved upon the method of the Committee, and now proposes "that a friendly request "should be forwarded to the various Colonial Governments, by the Imperial Government, inviting Colonial representatives to a conference for the prevail upon the Imperial Government to carry it out. The progress of events is, however, so rapid in these days that we may reasonably expect the question to be reached in a manner still more direct. In our own Parliament, Mr. McNeill has given notice of a motion which, in our opinion, will, if carried, effect the solution of the problem. It reads as follows:—"That it would be to the advantage of Canada and the Empire as a whole that a small duty (irrective of any existing tariff) "spective of any existing tariff) be "levied, by each member of the Empire against foreign products imported by them, and that the proceeds from such duties be devoted to purposes of Imperial inter-communication and naval defence." We fear that this proposal is not likely to be approved of by the Committee, because in their programme "it is specifically n their programme "it is specifically declared that the objects of the Committee do not include any proposal involving an alteration of the fiscal policy either of the United Kingdom defence, but these are to be in the shape of hard cash, and to carry with them no commercial privileges whatever. On the other hand, we who approve of Mr. McNeill's resolution, maintain that if we are to stand oulder to shoulder when nece with the mother country against foreign nations, we must have precedence of them in time of peace. Like the citizens of the American Republic or the subjects of the German Empire, we demand that our sacrifices in war times for the good of the common-wealth shall be recompensed by the care and protection of our material in-terests when the conflict is over.

No. 7 of the Committee's pamphlets Chamberlain's speech of the 6th November last, at the Natal Banquet, which has already been referred to in our columns. In the preface the Committee state that "in all that he has "said, and all that he has done, Mr. Chamberlain has given evidence that, while he shares to the full the hopes Committee in the direction of Imperial unity, he is also in perfect har-"lal unity, he is also in perfect har"mony with the views of the Com"mittee in regard to the principles
"upon which that great end can be
"effectively and honourably attained."
In view of this very sweeping assertion, it becomes necessary to state that in a careful perusal of the speech referred to we have been unable to find anything to shew that Mr. Chamberlain agrees with the Committee in their peculiar views regarding Colonial contributions for naval defence. Neither is there anything in Mr. Chamberlain's is there anything in Mr. Chamberlain's speech at the Eanquet given to Lord Lamington on the 21st January last which would justify the Committee's assertion. Indeed it is of a similar nature to other unfounded statements which have been made regarding Mr. Chamberlain's atterances, and to which he refers in the following feli-sitous reply to the toast proposing his

Sir James Garrick and gentlemen nothing could be more grateful to me posed by the eloquent representative of a colony which we have met to honour as well as its future Governor, honour as well as its future Governor, and nothing could be more agreeable than the kindly reception which you have given me. (Renewed laughter.) When I became Secretary of State for the Colonies I accepted with that office certain duties, not the least pleasant being that of presiding over similar gatherings to this. I attended a meeting of the friends of South Africa on an occasion interesting especially to our colonial. ed to point out that this was, on the whole, a considerable empire, and that any true view of its perspective would take into account the greatness of the colonies, the magnitude of their resources, as well as the past history of the mother country—(cheers)—but thereupon I was surprised to read in the report of a speech of a minor luminary of the late Government, on the occasion of the recent raid into the Transvaal, that that unfortunate occurrence was entirely due to the currence was entirely due to the spread-eagle speech which I then made. (Laughter.) It is extraordinary what great events spring from trifling lief I have never made a spread-eagle speech in my life. (Laughter.)I think I have been, able to distinguish between patriotism and Jingoism, but in order that there may be no mistake I design to say now in the most for I desire to say now, in the most formal way, that the few remarks which.

I have addressed to you to-night are not to be taken as an invitation to any individual to carry on war on his "purpose of discussing the question of "Imperial Defence. At such a conference or account or to make an invasion of a friendly country with which we are at present at peace. (Cheers and laughter.) But, gentlemen, this is not all, because this afternoon I read in an evening newspaper that this same speech, which I thought so natural and so innocent, was really the dictating cause of our difficulties in British Chieve (Laughter). cause of our difficulties in British Guiana—(laughter)—of the complications across the Atlantic. It appears that in speaking of Imperial unity, in endeavouring to popularise that idea amongst my countrymen, I am giving offence to other nations. Gentlemen, I cannot help thinking that Lord Rosebery was mistaken when a short time ago he said that Little Englanders no longer existed among us (Hear, hear). longer existed among us. (Hear, hear.)
A pretty pass we must have come to if the Minister who is responsible for the British Colonies is forbidden to speak of their future, of their greatness—("Bravo," and cheers)—of the importance of maintaining friendly relations with them, of the necessity of promoting the unity of the British race. (Cheers.) I remember a story of a certain burgomaster in a Continental town, to whom complaints were made that naughty boys were accustomed to throw mud upon the pass-"involving an alteration of the fiscal ers-by. He was asked to intervene, and policy either of the United Kingdom or any of the Colonies." The Committee are anxious to obtain contributions from the Colonies towards naval their second-hand clothes—(laughter second-hand clothes) and cheers)—in order not to give of-fence. but not for any such consideration will which have for us the greatest interest, and upon which the future of our Empire depends. (Loud cheers.) Sir James Garrick has kindly attributed to me motives in seeking the office which has been conferred upon me. He is not perhaps far wrong in thinking that I have long believed that the future of the colonies and the future of this country were inter-dependent, and that this was the creative time, that this was the opportunity, which, once let slip, might never recur, for bring-ing together all people who are under the British flag and for consolidating them into the great self-sustaining and self-protecting Empire whose future will be worthy of the traditions of the of Macedonia in the vision, 'Come over and help us.' past. (Loud cheers.)

"COME OVER AND HELP US!"

Not unfrequently in these columns have we expressed the hope that Lord Salisbury's Government would in some way or other contrive to take a decided step in the direction of Imperial msolidation. The wish being father to the thought, we have anxiously scanned the Premier's speeches in the hope of finding some indication that he intended actively to promote the unity of the Empire. We must confess that until very recently our search has been in vain, and we must also acknowledge that the programme unfolded in the Queen's speech does not contain much of interest for the imperialist. It is pretty much the same as was outlined by Lord Salisbury at Brighton, as far back as the 19th November, 1895. He then told his audience that "in the present prosaic commercial age most measures are measures of money," and stated that in dealing with such money as might be at command it would be expended in the following order of importance:-The first claim is the Naval Defence of England; Next, 'A sincere effort will be made to bring some mitigation to the suffering Lord Salisbury said, "after we have defended the country and relieved its will be available to deal with a question in which we all feel the keenest interest,-I mean the education of the country There is nothing in this prosaic pro-There is nothing in this prosaic programme to fire the patriotic heart, and yet, on the 31st January, only twelve days before the opening of Parliament, Lord Salisbury had made the following remarkable statement:—

"Surely the lesson which has been "taught us by these recent times, is "that all parts of the Empire must "draw together. If we are in trouble in the new world and the old, it is not because we have thought of any domestic interest attaching to Eng-land. It is because we have been anxious to defend the rights and the the colonists have answered in the spirit in which we have acted. They with. We all know how difficult it is to find any formula or statute for the federation of the Empire, but we yet feel that something greater than formulas or statutes is driving the Empire together; is forming a federation which will be a reality before the expression to denote it has been invented." The contrast betwixt these words and the unpromising sentences in the Queen's speech is very striking. The The latter no doubt describes all the business which the government is capable of undertaking, while Lord Salisbury's glowing words indicate his own aspirations and those of the nation. It is difficult to conceive of any words bet-ter calculated than these to stir up those lethargic leagues of London, which have been expressly formed to which have been expressly formed to advance the cause of Imperial unity. Yet we do not hear of any special effort on the part of the British Empire League, the Imperial Federation (Defence) Committee, the Navy League or even the United Empire Trade League One would have thought that if gue. One would have thought that if they had anything in the way of ar advantageous course of action to suggest they might have made very effective representations to Lord Salisbury just about the time of the delivery of this speech.

From a recent cable message it appears that Sir Howard Vincent was asked what the United Empire Trade asked what the United Empire Tatas League proposed to do respecting a tariff of preferences within the Em-pire. The reply was, "I cannot say "definitely, but we shall march for-"ward day by day and stage by stage "in accordance with Sir Charles Tup-"per's views and those of the Canadian "Government." Now, since both the Canadian Parliament and the Colonial Conference pronounced long ago in favor of Preferential Trade as advo-cated by the League, it is not very clear what more the League wants from Canada or what Sir Howard Vincent is waiting for. All the leagues giving offence to foreign nations. We mean them no harm. (Hear, hear.) We hope they mean us none—(hear, hear)— like Micawber, for something to turn up that will bring on Imperial Fed.

eration without any positive action on heir part. Divergence of opinion and want of purpose on the part of the friends of Imperial unity in England sometimes finds relief in the suggestion that the Colonies should make the first move. This, indeed, was done by the Ottawa Conference of 1894, but its resolutions were condemned by Lord Rosebery's Government, who had nothing to offer in the shape of counter proposals. Nevertheless, in spite of all this shuffling with great interests, it cannot be denied that the great heart of Eng-land yearns for her children, and there seems to be standing now on her shores the grand form of Britannia herself looking across the ocean towards Can-ada and calling out to us, like the man

REINFORCEMENTS.

It is with great pleasure that we notice that some of our contemporaries are becoming more decided in their advocacy of measures tending to closer British union. We observe leading articles indicating this in the Mail and Empire, the Hamilton Spectator, and the Toronto World, which have mostly reference to the resolutions brought before Parliament by Mr. McNeill during the present session. We reprint in this issue one of these leaders from the Toronto World, on "Mr. McNeill's second motion," and strongly recommend its perusal by our readers. We welcome these expressions on the part of the daily press as reinforcements for the cause which the Anglo-Saxon has so long advocated.

ENCLISH NEWS FOR ENGLISHMEN

The Venezuelan question has simmered down, the Yankee eagle has flopped, and the work of Cleveland's Commis which we see around us in respect of sion will result in nothing. The Geragriculture." And, in the third place, man Emperor's letter to Kruger was only gas, and that bee-in-the bonnet and hair-brained creature Bill took agriculture, I do not know how much old Bismarck's advice, and cooled off. The world, and the great British Empire know that England has a manyes, a statesman, at the helm, who spends his days and nights looking after, and working for, the Empire's best interests. Veteran Salisbury made a good beginning when he took hold of the reins, when he said "that God rules in the affairs of nations." He has also in his Cabinet men of intellectual calibre and pluck. He put into commission the Flying squadron on short notice. This squadron has wings and fins, and the propelling power can-not be surpassed, and the admiral in command is like the Donneybrook Irishman, "just spoiling for a fight," and it may be truly said, "God help the unfortunate ones who may come in contact with that flying squadron".

THE LIQUIDATORS. Just think of the stupidity of a de putation of temperance people interpathy and support which have been of the greatest encouragement in the duction of licenses, especially at a time when the Premier had other more important matters of the Empire to look after. The Premier wisely let them know that the question could not be entertained this session.

THE IMPERIAL PARTIAMENT. The Queen's speech is devoted mainly to foreign and Imperial questions, and no attention will be given to domestic legislation this session. Salisbury meets Parliament without any forebodings of trouble. He has at his back a strong government and following, a United Empire, an army of lions, and a volunteer force that surpasses in drill, discipline and pluck, the regular army of any other nation. He has also a sur-plus of £6,000,000 in the treasury, and two distinct elements, one rich, and the other poor. The banquetter, millionaire, aesthetic, some in purple and fine linen, faring sumptuously every day, with many of the Dunraven kind, Rosebery, who believes more in horse-racing than in statesmanship, has a poor and awkward squad to lead. An agricultural bill is promised, to relieve the depression in that calling. A government reform is promised for London, which everyone knows is greatly needed. Ireland is promised a palliative measure. It needs it, judging from the strange that at the time Tupper's election was going on, Dr. Montague should become sick, and had to make a trip to New York to see a specialist. IN TORONTO.

The Rev. Mr. Aitken, of England, has been conducting revival services in St. James' Church, to rather slim audiences, and with a fervent feeling of disappointment and pain. In his farewell address he uttered the following:—"O, my God! is the end of all these services to leave men further from God, with hearts more hardened the will more steeled against divine influence!" Mr. Aitken is an earnest, true, and genuine minister of the gos-pel. But the crowd he had to deal pel. But the crowd he had to deal with seems to have been a hard one to either move or melt. This earnest missioner did all that he could.

THE ONTARIO COUNTY COUNCIL. As Goldwin Smith once said, the Ontario County Council is meeting in the legislative buildings, Toronto. The old drill shed at the market would be a more suitable place for them to meet in. The usual display of cavalry, tinsel and prayers, were gone through. The speech from the platform was read by the Lieut-Governor, in which he said, "that the whole people of Ontario sympathizes with Her Majesty at the death of Prince Battenberg." He is pleased to notice the farmers exhibitt a growing interest in every department of agriculture." Quite an agricultural remark for the Governor to make. It is expected that the "ditches and watercourses act" will occupy the balance of the sitting of these sages. hot, and taking such action as will induce the Imperial Government to establish preferential trade within the Empire. We pointed out that a tax on foreign products would supply Great Britain with a welcome revenue for defensive purposes, and that it would mean a great deal more for Canada now than even the National Policy, which has been so beneficial for her in the past. Preferential trade, which has now, by the advocacy of Sir Charles Tupper, been advanced to the forefront of the Government's policy, has been mooted, proposed and discussed at various times, more or less energetically, during the last ten years. One of its earliest advocates was Col. mooted, proposed and discussed at (now Sir) Howard Vincent, who founded the United Empire Trade League in England on this principle. We well remember his visit to Canada in July, 1891, and the complimentary dinner then given to him in Ottawa by the members of the Parliament then in session. Even then our present Premier, in adding his meed of welcome to the guest of the evening, said that he never had any sympathy with free trade doctrines, and, though called an old fogy by some for holding protec-tionist opinions, maintained that if they were to have relaxed conditions with any country, in God's name let them have it with the country whose protection they had so long enjoyed. Sir Howard Vincent made a telling speech in favor of the League which had just been established "for the furtherance of commercial relations upon a preferential basis between all parts of the British Empire." Shortly afterwards he returned to England, much encouraged by his reception in Can-ada, and since then the League has kept persistently at work, its last annual report being for the year ending March 31, 1895. It has frequently been proposed to start a branch of this League in Canada, but the necessity for it became very doubtful after the passage of Mr. McNeill's resolution of April, 1892, which pledged the Commons of Canada to the principle of preferential trade. This well-known motion marked an epoch in the history of the movement, and on account of its intrinsic importance we reproduce it:

"That if and when the Parliament of Great Britain and Ireland admit Canadian products to the markets of the United Kingdom upon more favorable terms than it accords to the products of foreign countries, the Parliaaccord corresponding advantages by a substantial reduction of the duties it bankrupt, professions over-crowded and the working classes are having a hard time. The whole industrial system is on the verge of a precipice, and it is expected that soon there will be hundreds of thousands of unemployed in the country. In England, as in Canada and the States, the rich are growing relatively poorer, One bad omen there, is the deficiency of adequate charity. In regard to the giving of charity, a civil way to make a revolution (in England) withdrawn all the guarantee business of the Grand Trunk from the Guarantee Company of North America, and given it to a Yankee company. The Canadian servile ward politician, whether elected to the Ottawa or the Toronto House, is an animal not to be depended upon. The Englishman at home has pluck and backbone, but in Canada these two are unknown.

A young man named George Ledgerwood met with a fatal accident at the Central Prison. The body was interred in St. James' cemetery, and the funeral services were conducted by Geo. Watts, superintendent, and Robert Dandy, of the Newsboys' Association. The pallbearers were newsboys. Toronto is full of churches and preachers, but "there was no money in it." It was not yet ripened into action. Possibly the remarkable confession contained in the Cause of the delay: "The problem the cause of the delay: "The problem would be greatly simplified if this country had adhered to the fiscal notions that still dominate the greater part of the commercial world. But our free the commercial world. the commercial world. But our free trade system, great as are its benefits to ourselves and to the Empire, as a whole, leaves us with little means to strike bargains and little power to discriminate in favor of colonies.

It is remarkable that Englishmen should have acquiesced as calmly as they have done in arrangements which place them, as regards food, in a precarious and partially dependent position.

* By adhering to and developing the Imperial idea, and not in any other way, can we regain that self-sufficing position which the United Kingdom has so conspicuously lost."

Under the present law homestead duties must be performed in the following way, namely, by three years' cultivation and residence, during which the settler may not be absent more than six months in any one year without forfeiting the entry.

APPLICATION FOR PATENT

May be made at the end of three years, before the local agent, or the homestead in spector. Before making application for patent the settler must give six months' notice in writing to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands of his intendent in any other way, can we regain that self-sufficing position which the United Kingdom has so conspicuously lost."

Newly arrived immigrants will receive at any Dominion Lands Office in Manitol a or the Northwest Territories information as to the lands that are open for entry, and from the officers in charge, free of expense, advice and assistance

In this quotation we believe the true In this quotation we believe the true reasons are given why, up to the present moment, the conference proposals have elicited no favorable action on the part of England. The colonies stand in the position (were it not for the existence of the "unfortunate treaties") of being able to reduce their duties in favor of English goods, but the United Kingdom has no such power. Having long ago, except in the case er. Having long ago, except in the case of tea and a few other articles, abolished the use of customs duties as Mr. McNeill's Second Motion

a source of revenue and adopted a policy of "unrestricted importation," discrimination in favor of her colonies has become a very difficult thing to carry into practice. Great Britain imposes no duties on grain, flour, meat, bacon, dairy products, sugar, etc., and Great Britain, and the urgent need of therefore, cannot bestow any favor on utilizing it, of striking the iron while the colonial products in the shape of a reduction. To comply with the colonial policy of preferences, it therefore be-comes necessary, while still allowing these free entry, to impose duties on the corresponding products from for-eign countries. This, to the political economists of England, reared in the precincts of the Manchester school, is a terrible and almost impossible alternative, and such a proposal is always sure to bring out the non-possumus of the hide-bound free trader. If anything is to be accomplished in England in the direction of preferential trade, some means must be found of conciliating the free traders, of "letting them down easy," and this it is proposed to accom-plish in the manner indicated in Mr.

"That it would be to the advantage of Canada and the Empire as a whole that a small duty (irrespective of any existing tariff) be levied by each mem-ber of the Empire against foreign products imported by them, and that the ducts imported by them, and that the proceeds from such duties be devoted to purposes of Imperial intercommunication and naval defence."

The plan here outlined of simultaneously obtaining a revenue for Imperial defences and establishing preferential trade within the Empire is not brought forward by Mr. McNeill as entirely proved. It was in fact, first, discussed novel. It was, in fact, first discussed at a federationist meeting in Mont-real in December, 1885; it was next brought forward by Mr. Hofmeyr of

Cape Colony at the Colonial Conference of 1887, and it was adopted by the Im-perial Federation League in Canada at its annual meeting in May, 1894, in the following terms: "That any scheme of Imperial Federation should embrace a commercial union as necessary to its strength and permanence, that such union should be based as nearly as practicable upon freer trade throughout the Empire and upon the imposition of an extra duty on foreign imports, with few exceptions, to provide funds for Imporial defence." perial defence.'

We congratulate Mr. McNeill on the ability, perseverance and consistency which he has displayed in the advocacy of proposals which make for the com mercial unity of the Empire. His first resolution of loyalty and devotion to the British throne pledged Parliament to "substantial sacrifices" in maintaining the integrity of the Empire. In his second resolution, the merits of which second resolution, the merits of which we hope to point our more fully in a future issue, he indicates the way in which the responsibilities of each part of the Empire for its defence can be most conveniently borne, and at the same time preferential trade relations within the Empire be most readily established.

A RAMBLER'S NOTES.

Lennoxville, P. Q.

It puzzled me how such a small place could boast of a S. O. E. lodge. I alled at the lodge, but unfortunately there was not a quorum, a tew years ago this lodge was very flourishing, but the brethren have been obliged to leave for asstures new, to make their fortunes, if possible. The brethren are seriously thinking of smalgamating their lodge with Gloucester odge, of Sherbrooke, which is only three miles listant.

But what shall I say of Gloucester lodge, Sherbrooke? This lodge has an able and most painstaking officer in Pres. Bro. C. H. Pearce, and a first-class secretary in Bro. Capt. T. Rawson, and yet the lodge is not as flourishing as it might be. Surely the Englishmen in Sherbrooke will not allow this, don't be so indifferent, attend lodge, back your president and officers up; sometimes things may look discouraging, but stand fast, fight and conquor every difficulty, and you may be sure jou will come out on top, and soon too.

The Montreal lodges—at least some of them—are moving themselves with a view to restoring the Nelson Monument on Jacques Cartier Equare. I cannot express myself strong enough on this subject. The monument as it is is a standing disgrace, not only to Englishmen but to all Britishers in the city of Montreal, and if the Sons of England pull themselves together they can easily put this matter right, and be a lasting credit to them. Denbigh lodge, I believe is prime mover in this scheme. I only hope they will stick to their duty, and Rambler will be very happy to support them financially ill be very happy to support them financials otherwise.

Editor ANGLO-SAXON:

Sir.—Our Grand Lodge will soon hold its an nual meeting for the consideration of matters affecting the welfare of our Order, and making such alterations to our constitution as may have been found necessary or advisable. I have gone very carefully through the Sessional Paper, and I don't find that anyone has suggested any amendment touching the matter of our lodge Surgeons, and the present mode of securing them. Yet, this has been an and is still one of the most iritating questions, at least in our city lodges, where there are quite a number of doctors members of the Order. To the present system is largely to be attributed the fact that we have a number of small lodges that might well be amalgamated, and save a large expenditure that is of an unproductive character, but for the reluctance of members to give up the medical attendant of their choice. Ten years ago when it was thought advisable to form a lodge in an occupied neighborhood, a doctor started out to canvass Englishmen, both members and non-members, and when it was found that hi canvass was meeting with success, anothed doctor chiped in and canvassed for himself, and the matter became a doctors' fight, and when it came to the formation of the lodge, and the lection of doctor, the adherants of each stood

Why is it so?

Editor ANGLO-SAXON: DEAR SIR AND BRO.-Why is it that the average Englishman has so little of that brotherly feeling which marks the character of men of other nations? I have often asked myself the above question without being able to arrive at any reasonable solution of the same. The more 1 consider the matter the more I am convinced that the fault lies with those who have the power to promote a better feeling. Being indiffererent on that subject they fail to use the means which would not only engender a better feeling, but inspire higher aims for their fellow-countrymen. On the question of loyalty and the welfare of our dear old land,

ENGLISHMEN RANK FIRST,

they are even ready to be true to their even unto the end. But on the tion of loyalty to each other it would appear (I am sorry to say) that hey rank as last. It is no uncommon hing to find large English employers indifferent as to whom they employ, whereas with large Scotch or Irish em-ployers it is a rare thing to find any but men of the nation to which these employers belong. Another question which is not sufficiently considered is the best means for finding employment for deserving members of our Order.

THE USE OF THE PRESS.

Now, sir, one of the best means to accomplish any end is the use of the Press, and here is where the Sons of gland show almost criminal neglig nce. In the Anglo-Saxon we have a paper which should find its way into the homes of every member of the Sons of England. Yet, I find, on question ing members of many different lodges that they do not take it, never see it in that they do not take it, never see it in fact, and why? Because a proper method is not adopted by the various lodges to accomplish that end, and because the word brother is more fiction than fact, for if a true feeling for the welfare of each other really existed every means at hand would be used to the best purpose and a steady growth the best purpose and a steady growth of better feeling would gradually follow. With a national paper like the ANGLO-SAXON much could be done in this line if those who are able, would contribute to its pages articles on questions for the general benefit of English

GOOD SENTIMENT.

At a recent meeting of lodge Ham mersmith, Toronto, the supreme Grand President favored the lodge with his presence, and a few encouraging words, in the course of his remarks he said, That much could be done to adv the growth of our Order if Englishmen would be true to each other and be more earnest in the welfare of Englishmen generally," and I perfectly agree with him.

THEY KNOW HOW TO DO IT. I have seen on several occasions advertisements in Toronto papers as ployment, call and register at St. Andrew's Society," or words to that effect. Has the Grand Lodge of the Sons of England ever tried to draw the hearts of Englishmen towards them by doing the same? It is when men are out of employment and needing a friend that they are most likely to feel the effects of a friendly act.

GOOD REASONING.

It would be idotic on my part to im agine that I know how to run a societ as well as the gentlemen who are our rand lodge representatives, neverthe-ess there are many things in connection with advancing the strength of our society which appears to me so reasonable, that I hope I may be excused for the line of argument I am taking. The main point on this question is to use every effort to keep every man in the society when once he joins it. Now, as a rule, men fall out through being unable to pay up their dues; is there no way of remedying this? There is surely some reason why his dues are not paid, and the chances are that reason is want of employment. If such is the case the question to consider is the best means of seeing that such a member gets work, and here is such a member gets work, and here is a plan that appears to me worth consideration. Let every lodge become an employment agency for its members, adopt a method whereby every member out of work can register on each meeting night at his lodge, the list to be read by the secretary and then every brother use his influence to obtain employment for a worthy brother. This system may not be perfect, but it would certainly be beneficial, and it would leave no excuse for any member would leave no excuse for any member to plead ignorance of knowing that a fellow member was in need of employment, and without which he would be obliged to fall out of his lodge. And it is safe to say such a system would greatly increase the strength of the Sons of England.

A WORTHY SUGGESTION.

Another important point is for each lodge to find some means of having the Anglo-Saxon circulated amongst its members, and still another good point would be for the wealthy patrons of this paper to advertise in the columns thereof, for members of our society when in need of workmen. Help one another more faithfully in acts; patrionize each other more in business; and work conscientiously to excell each other as Englishmen should do. Having had the honor to be born in the grandest Empire the world has ever known, they should leave party differences aside and work for the general welfare of the whole. For myself, I am an Englishman first, last, and always. God bless our country and her people is my earnest

For where the flag of England waves there's peace and freedom too.

And Englishmen in heart and hand would stand forever true.

And should a foe oppress our land Up boldly rise and firmly stand To pull Old England through.

And where the flag of England waves there's wealth and plenty too,

No want should cross a brother's door if Englishmen were true.

So never shum a needy friend

If in distress stand till the end

And help to pull him through. JOHN R. GRAY.

Toronto, Feb. 8th, 1896. [We trust the above letter will be read and digested by the Supreme Offi-cers, subordinate lodge officers, members, and Englishmen generally.—ED.]

THE ENGLISHMAN'S CALENDER.

Editor ANGLO-SAXON:

SIR,--I think that the new feature introduced into the Anglo-Saxon, namely, "The Englishman's Calender," is an excellent idea. I would suggest that as the organ does not reach the bulk of its subscribers until the latter part of the month that it would be an advantage to insert the list one month in advance, giving the April list in the March number, and so on. WHERE TO GET THEM.

ditor ANGLO-SAXON:

SIR,-Can you or any of your readers inform me where the following songs may be obtained:

1. The White Squall.
2. Union Jack of Old England. 3. Starry Nights for a Ramble.

4. Have You Seen Her Lately? I would like to have these songs, and if any of your readers would send me a copy of one or all of them, or loan me the books containing same, I would gladly pay for trouble and postage, or reciprocate in any way. Or perhaps,
Sir, you might publish same, as the two first are exceedingly good songs

SUPREME GRAND LODGE

TWENTY-FIRST ANNUAL MEETING TO OPEN AT PETERBORO.

Since our last issue we have received a copy of of the "Sessional Papers," which are before the lodges. The Twenty-first annual meeting of the Supreme Grand Lodge, will open in Peter-borough on the 10th of March. There are 117 proposed changes to the constitution on the papers —all of which must have had the serious consideration of the lodges proposing the same—but whether they can commend them to the favorable consideration of the Supreme Grand Lodge, in some instances, will be doubtful.

The Official Organ.

We took occasion to say a few words in our last issue upon this important matter. Clause 114 of Sessional Papers also refers to the same question, which is similar to the proposition submitted by the ANGLO-SAXON to the Grand Lodge.

"That we desire to furnish every member of the Sons of England Benefit Society with a copy monthly, at a rate per annum per member of 260. (twenty-five cents) each. Said paper to contain not less than eight pages, size of present copy of the ANGLO-SAXON, monthly. Two-thirds of the specified pages to be devoted to reading matter. Revenue from advertising to go to the publishers of the paper. It being a stipulation that all official information from the Supreme Executive, and all other matter that they may wish to have published in the Interests of the Society, shall be published free of charge to the Order.

"The Supreme lodge shall be responsible for payments of said monthly issue, which payments shall be made monthly, and a levy of the cost per member be made quarterly on the Subordinate Lodges according to the number of members in good standing in each lodge. Said paper to be mailed direct from office of publication to each member from lists to be furnished by the Secretary of each Subordinate Lodge, on or before the 18th of each subordinate Lodge, on or before the

"This is a matter that has been continually beore Grand Lodge for some years past, and I cersinly recommend that some action be taken in

"I have long held the opinion that an officiargan would be of great good to the Society. This opinion has been much strengthened by etter acquaintance with the work and needs of ur Order, which my year of office has afforded by the total the strength of the total that the total strength of the strength of the total total the total strength of the strength of the total total the strength of the s ne. In this connection, I have pleasure in testi-ying to the service rendered the Institution by he ANGLO-SAXON, especially in the Maritime rovinces, where nearly all the brethren take the aper, and who, I need hardly say, prize it much, being the principal medium through which hey can learn of the welfare of the Order."— eo. Clauvorthy.

"The subject of an official organ has been so often before your honorable body, that it is hard ly necessary to say more than submit that it is of the uttermost importance that we have some medium throughwhich the aims and objects of our society can be made known to the English population throughout the Dominion. Many attempts have been made by different parties to establish official organs for the enciety, but all have signally failed. The only one which has survived is the ANGLO-MAXON. Nothing but the courage of our Bro. E. J. Reynolds and his helpers could have stood the strain. His efforts deserve appreciation, his sacrifice should be recognized; an organ that will avoid all personalizies, and strive to built up the society, upon sound an honorable principles, is bound to prove successful and become a power for the institution. A proposition is make by Bro. Reynolds which could easily be carried out, and make the organ independent of any outside assistance, which at the present time I understand it is regeiving, which must to a very large extent deprive it of its independent character. I can, without bias, urgently recommend the Order to support the ANGLO-SAXON."—John W. Certer.

At this meeting of the Supreme Grand Lodge.

At this meeting of the Supreme Grand Lodge he views expressed by the Supreme officers will to doubt be put into effect. At the age of 21 we hould assume the responsibility of manhood!

Clause 173-by Kent lodge, awakes a feeling which has laid dormant for years in the breasts of some of our most prominent members. The obligation has consequently been neglected or put into the late hours, and a large sumber of our brethren, who care nothing for detail and routine, further than pay their dues, fell to attend our meetings. By the formation of district lodges, national and political interest affecting Englishmen can be fully discussed and the pros and cons of all vital questions thoroughly threshed out. By the adoption of the ideas expressed in clause 113, we would be harmonizing and strengthening our national interest. We trust delegates will view this clause in a broad and liberal spirit.

Beneficiary.

There are a number of clauses introduced relating to this matter, they are chiefly aiming to have the present beneficiary constitution made more explicit; the general tenor is in favor of allowing the assessment rates, as arranged at Woodstock, to prevail. A monthly beneficiary report should be published, giving the number of beneficiary members, also surplus in hand, claims paid, cause or nature of claim, number of certificate, name and number of lodge, the assessments received and the lodges in good standing on the list of each month. It would arouse a deeper interest in this branch of our Order and give it prestige among the non-beneficiary members, and we believe increase our beneficiary in the delegates. This is a problem which sooner or later must make a deep impression upon the minds of our adult lodge members, and it must be given serious cons

Supreme G. L. Contingent Fund.

The strength of our Order would be grea ly enhanced if some means could be devised whereby there could be put into operation a "Supreme Grand Lodge Contingent Fund." Something must be done on this line whereby lodges can become acquainted with our official officers. There is nothing that will stimulate zeal, and inspire confidence in a dispondent lodge or individual more than a good hearty shaking up either in mirth or national sentiment, and an Englishmen, when he is informed that he has 15,000 others thinking and acting for each others welfare, will rouse him to a point that will stimulate his dormant feelings and bring to him renewed activity. Who then is better able to do it than those in supreme authority? Then let us provide for this contingency by arranging a contingent fund to meet this end. Our lodges must all be visited by our Executive Officers.

A Suggestion.

For the past five years the Order has existed and fought nobly in the distant provinces, and during this year of our coming of age we suggest for the consideration of the members and the delegates to Grand Lodge the propriety of creating "Supreme Grand Presidents" in the Provinces of Manitoba, British Columbia, PRIVINCE OF MANITOBA, BRITISH COLUMBIA, PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND, NOVA SCOTIA and NEW BRUNSWICK, from among the pioneer workers. We believe such a plan would be of the largest possible benefit to our Order. Our present or future elected Supreme officers cannot always find it convenient to make visits such always and it convenient to make visits attailed and distances, and to leave brethren in their "splendid isolation" is not commendable to our brotherly interest, We trust the Supreme Grand Lodge will clothe itself with that broad spirit of justice and act upon the suggestion here

Dominion Charter.

Another important matter for which we as a Society must contend for is a "Dominion Charter." It is felt as a necessary lever to our national development. We trust Grand Lodge will deal with it at its coming session.

What the Law Says.

In answer to the many enquiries re-ferring to the publishing of a monthly Beneficiary Statement of the Insurance Branch of our Order, we quote the Ontario Statutes bearing upon the mat-ter in full, as follows:—

Insurance Corporations Act, 55 Vict., Cap. 89, Sec. 29, says—

"It shall be the duty of the officers of every friendly society to have at least once in each year, a bona fide and business-like audit made of its books of record and account, by at least two competent auditors, who shall not be officers of the society, and to furnish to each member annually a summary statement, showing as the result of such audits, the society's actual assets, liabilities, receipts and expenditures, and the state of the insurance fund or funds, and a copy of such sundry statement, signed and certified by the officers, shall be filed in the office of the registrar, on or before the first day of March in each year.

"Provided that the society instead of furnish-"It shall be the duty of the offic before the first day of March in each year.

"Provided that the society, instead of furnishing such summary statement to each member individually, may deliver to each lodge or local branch for the information and use of the members thereof, at least twenty-five copies of the summary statement, of which also, at least one copy shall be kept posted up in a place accessible and convenient to the members generally, there to remain posted until at least one month after the posting of the next succeding statement; also one copy of the said summary statement shall be kept on record and shall be made accessible to the members generally."

I'The above is very vapue as regards in-

The above is very vague as regards information to the individual member. What is wanted is compilation of the statistical standing of each lodge monthly in the insurance branch, or at least every three months, and so arranged that it will be easy of comprehension by those who are not familiar with tabulated statements. What member cares to wade through a sixty page pamphlet to arrive at a simple fact? How many have still some of the 25 copies in their cupboards? Is there a lodge room that could keep a copy posted up from year to year? There is a possibility of the present law being amended at the present session of the Ontarto house, and no doubt better provision will be made to give each individual a clearer knowledge of the operating of the insurance done by fraternal societies.—ED.]

A CORRECTION.

Some cases of complaint have reached us of the irregular delivery of the ANGLO-SAXON. In almost every case, spon investigation, the cause for complaint arises from the fact that the paper was expected formightly. In expressing their grievances, they state as follows: "We have only received the paper on an average about once a month."

once a month."

The Supreme Executive's offer was for a monthly issue, for six months at 10c per member, commencing with September issue and ending with February—the present issue. We refer the brethren, who complain, to the circular from the Executive, which must be on fyle in their lodgeroom for verification.

In several cases upon comparing Secretary's list with list of names forwarded to us, it was found that names and addresses had been accidently omitted entirely from the list.

The ANGLO-SAXON has given the most sincere attention to the mailing list actording to names and addresses received, and we feel no hesitation in saying, that no matter what real or imaginary complaint crists, the fault cannot be taced to the ANGLO-SAXON.

There has been too much illegitimate kicking and petty jealously in the Brandon lodge, and so long as members will not carry out their obligation, and ignore any sincerity in the aims and objects of the Order, so long will a lodge be in a semi-dormant state.

There are year many Englishmen in and
