

LLOYD GEORGE

Has a Residence in Course of Construction Partly Wrecked by Explosion—Militant Suffragettes are Blamed for the Incident.

(Courier Leased Wire).
LONDON, Feb. 19.—An explosion believed to have been caused by militant suffragettes, partly wrecked early this morning the country residence in course of erection for Chancellor of Exchequer, David Lloyd-George at Walton Heath, near London.
A bomb had been placed in one of the rooms of the residence, which is a modest one, adjoining the golf links on which Mr. Lloyd-George plays. The infernal machine was so powerful that neighbors who were attracted by the explosion found the thick walls of the house split in all directions and most of the rooms wrecked.
Two seven pound tin cans of black powder also had been placed in two separate rooms among the heaps of wood shavings which had been saturated with oil and in the centre of which burning candles had been fixed. The only clues obtained by the police are two broken hats which were found among the wreckage. It was declared by the neighbors that an automobile containing several people passed through a nearby village in the early hours. Nobody was injured by the explosion as the house has not yet been occupied.

(Courier Leased Wire).
LONDON, Feb. 19.—The country residence of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, David Lloyd George, at Walton Heath, was practically destroyed this morning by a bomb, believed by the police headquarters at Scotland Yard to have been placed there either by militant suffragettes or male sympathizers with the woman suffrage movement.
Mr. Lloyd George himself is on a motor trip in France and nobody was injured, as the residence has not yet been occupied. The whole of the rear portion of the house will have to be razed and rebuilt. An official of the Woman's Social and Political Union declared that the society had no knowledge of the perpetrators, adding: "Plenty of people besides ourselves have a grudge against the Chancellor of the Exchequer."
General Mrs. Flora Drummond, however, held the explosion was the work of women. She exclaimed enthusiastically: "I think it is grand. It was a fine act successfully carried out and shows the determination of the women. I say all power to all kinds of militancy in the direction of harrassing cabinet ministers short of taking human life."
This is a second time within a year that violent methods have been used against the residences of cabinet ministers, the first being an attempt to burn the house of Lewis Harcourt, Secretary for the Colonies, at the Nuneham.

THE MEXICAN PRESIDENT

Is Forced From That Position and Peace Once More Reigns in That Country—He and His Ministers are Now Prisoners—Scenes and Incidents of the Turn Over.

(Courier Leased Wire).
MEXICO CITY, Feb. 19.—Francisco I. Madero, forced from the presidency by the coup d'etat of two of his generals yesterday, is a prisoner to-day in the national palace.
General Victoriano Huerta, who had been commanding the Madero forces against the rebellious troops under General Felix Diaz, has been proclaimed provisional governor-general of the Republic.
General Aureliano Blanquet, who aided in the overthrow of Madero, is provisional military commander.
These arrangements have been agreed to by General Felix Diaz, and the ten days' battle which he has been waging with the federal forces appeared to-day to be over.
Thronges of men and women and children seemingly gave popular approval to the sudden change in affairs, by crowding the big square in front of the palace and deliriously shouting "viva" for the three principals: and for Manuel Mondragon, who had been conducting the Diaz military operations.
The demonstrations of the night, however, were not without serious disorder. Marco Hernandez, a brother of the Minister of the Interior, Rafael Hernandez, was killed in the streets by the rurales when he refused to cry "Viva Huerta." A demonstrative crowd surrounded him and insisted that he join in the shouting, but he defiantly replied, "Viva Madero." He was answered by the pistols of the rurales, whose bullets killed him instantly.
Another instance of disorder was the firing of the building occupied by The Nueva Era, a newspaper organ of the Madero administration.
Vice-President Pino Suarez, who was also arrested in the coup d'etat, was held prisoner during the night in another part of the palace from where Madero was confined. Each man was under the guard of two soldiers. The ministers of the cabinet were given parole over night. Senor Juan Sansanchez Azcona, private secretary fled from the country during the night in an automobile.
The deposed president will be treated with all consideration by those who have him within their power, it is declared. General Huerta promptly despatched a message to Mrs. Madero assuring her of the personal safety of her husband and declaring that he would be well treated. It was the determination that the battle in which heavy artillery had been used in the streets since the outbreak of the Diaz mutiny must come to an end that led a group of senators last night to urge General Huerta to the stroke that would not only terminate the terrible conflict, but at the same time remove the Madero family from public affairs of Mexico.
At An End.
(Courier Leased Wire).
MEXICO CITY, Feb. 19.—Felix Diaz went to the United States embassy this morning in order to formally ratify the agreement with General Huerta which brought the crisis to an end.
Later Details
MEXICO CITY, Feb. 19.—By 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon Francisco Madero and the members of his cabinet, with the exception of Ernesto Madero, the minister of finance, had been made prisoners.
Ernesto Madero managed to effect his escape only a few minutes before the men commanded by General Aureliano Blanquet had taken the other ministers prisoners in the national palace.
Gustav Madero, another brother of President Madero, also was arrested. He had been denounced in many quarters since the first days of the Madero administration, as an arch-politician, and had been charged with being a false counsellor of the president.

ANOTHER MURDER

Is Reported in the City of Hamilton—A Foreigner Found Dead With a Bloody Axe Close by the Body.

(Courier Leased Wire).
HAMILTON, Ont., Feb. 19.—The body of Cajimer Linkiewicz, a Polek 34 years of age, was found this morning shortly before 7 o'clock at the door of a woodshed in the rear of 22 Ferguson avenue north. A bloody axe lying nearby gave mute testimony to the manner in which he had met his death. Boarders who made the gruesome discovery, followed a trail of blood which led to the room of William Dojko, the boarding house keeper, who, when the police arrived, was peacefully sleeping in bed with his wife and babe. He was arrested on an open charge. The woodshed in question is only a short distance from the rear of the house. It was shortly before 7 o'clock that a couple of the boarders discovered Linkiewicz's lifeless body, which gave indications of having been dragged to that position. A gaping wound in the head indicated how he met his death, and the condition of the clothes and the sprawling attitude of the body testified mutely to the fact that the unfortunate man had been roughly dragged to that spot and left there. The boarders notified the police. The police, after viewing the body, followed the blood trail into the house, and through the kitchen and into Dojko's bedroom. Dojko was lying in bed with his wife and ten months old babe. He was awakened and detained pending further enquiry. His wife is in the city hospital suffering from a fractured forehead. It is alleged by the police that the man who killed Linkiewicz also struck Mrs. Dojko with the axe. It is doubtful if she will recover.
Coroner Hopkins said: "The fight between the two men evidently took place in the bedroom of the kitchen. From what I learned, Dojko, who is the keeper of the house, evidently made a discovery concerning his wife and Linkiewicz. There was a quarrel, and Linkiewicz, in my opinion, was killed in the kitchen, the condition of that room testifying to a struggle. The man who killed him wielded an axe and struck him on the back of the head, fracturing his skull and causing instant death. Whoever committed the crime then dragged the body from the kitchen, across the yard and to the woodshed. He evidently intended to conceal it there, but the woodshed door is a short distance above the yard level, and it was too much of a lift for the murderer, who contented himself with leaving the body sprawling over the door sill. The man then went back to bed. I found Mrs. Dojko suffering from a wound in the centre of the forehead. Her forehead was fractured and her brain pierced. Despite that horrible injury, she was lying unconscious in bed, cuddling her baby born last September, while in the same bed, close to it, wall, was lying her husband under the influence of liquor."
The police rounded up all the boarders in the house and took them to the headquarters for an examination with keeping liquor on his premises, 37 Pearl street, for sale, was dismissed.
Another similar case against a foreigner at 39 Pearl street was adjourned till next week.
The principal case was that of an abduction. The complainant's daughter went away and married in Hamilton, after which they went to Windsor. The father of the girl followed them there and brought back his daughter and had action taken. His Worship, after hearing the evidence and satisfying himself that the couple were quite happy, dismissed the case.
Juvenile Delinquents Act
The city clerk is in receipt of a letter from Mr. Edward Taylor, Solicitor to the Attorney-General's Department, which reads:
Toronto, Feb. 17th, 1913.
City Clerk, Brantford, Ont.
Dear Sir.—The Children Aid Society of Brantford, through Messrs Harley and Sweet, has made an application to have the Juvenile Delinquents Act 1908, proclaimed in Brantford and Brant County. They advise us that the Department of Justice state that the application must be made by us, and that this Department must certify that the requirements necessary have been supplied. Referring to 10 Edward VII Ontario, Chapter 96 as amended by I George V, Chapter 17, Section 27, I beg under instructions from the Attorney-General, to enquire whether the city council of Brantford is in favor of the proclamation of this Act. In the event of the city being called upon to pay (as it might be called upon to pay) the salary or portion of the salary of the juvenile court.
Yours truly,
EDWARD TAYLOR,
Solicitor to the Attorney-General's Department.

UNDER ARREST

In the Ottawa Parliament Buildings—The Man Refuses to Answer a Question as to an Alleged Grit Money Bribe

OTTAWA, Feb. 19.—For the first time in the history of the Parliament of Canada since Confederation there is a state prisoner locked up in the Commons building. He is R. C. Miller of Montreal, the sometime manager of the Diamond Light & Heating Company, which did business with the Laurier Government amounting to $117,000, to get which business, Miller swore, he paid out the sum of $41,000. He refused to tell the Public Accounts Committee to whom this money was paid, and the committee reported his refusal to the House.
Miller was summoned to appear, and shortly after the House assembled yesterday afternoon he stood to the bar. He was called upon to answer the question as to the disposition of the money, and again refused, his counsel, George Kidd, K.C., of Ottawa, taking the ground that an answer might incriminate his client and that the question was an unwarranted interference with Miller's private affairs.
Miller was ordered into the custody of the Sergeant-at-Arms. Captain Bowie took him to his office and held him there with a big Dominion policeman on guard outside. Early in the evening the prisoner was given his dinner, and afterwards they let him sit in the Speaker's gallery, accompanied by an officer. Last night he slept on a davenport bed in the office of the Sergeant-at-Arms, and to-day he reappears at the bar of the House.

FATAL SHOOTING
(Courier Leased Wire).
NORTH BAY, Ont., Feb. 19.—A rifle in the Italian colony last night resulted in the fatal shooting of the five-year-old son of James Demaree, a contractor. The shooting took place in the house of Liberto Conte, who had an altercation with Antonio Decicco over money and took down his rifle, as he says, to frighten Decicco off the information asked for by the House, disclosing the names of the person or persons to whom he paid the $41,000. He has already stated that the money did not go to a member of Parliament or to a public official.
Only twice before has a man been summoned to appear at the bar of the House. Michael Connolly was summoned in 1891 in connection with the McGreevy case, and in 1906 a member of the press gallery was summoned for going beyond bounds in a criticism of Hon. George E. Foster. In neither of these cases did the trouble go farther.

A REORGANIZATION
(Courier Leased Wire).
MONTREAL, Feb. 19.—That the old directors in the Richelieu & Ontario Navigation Company will not allow themselves to be deposed without a fight by those who are anxious to reorganize the company and place upon its board a number of Toronto and Hamilton financiers and representatives of the Furness-Withy Steamship Company of England not there at present, was indicated at an annual meeting this morning, when an attempt made to elect a new board was blocked.

HOTEL FIRE IN WEST.
(Courier Leased Wire).
HERBERT, Sask., Feb. 19.—Fire completely destroyed the Maple Leaf Hotel, Tuesday morning. It started about 3 o'clock and the proprietor, Wm. Bohm with his wife and seven children had to jump from a window in their night apparel. Everybody in the hotel lost all their clothing and nothing whatever was saved. One guest lost $200, another $85, which was in their clothes. The fire started from the stove in the office.

VICTORIA LOST.
(Courier Leased Wire).
NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., Feb. 19.—Victoria narrowly escaped a shut out at the hands of the New Westminster seven on Tuesday evening. It was Victoria's first appearance on the local ice and the highly praised combination and team play failed to materialize in the face of the aggressive assault of the Royals who showed better form than at any time this season. Westminster had their opponents beaten in every department from the start, and Victoria's only goal was scored by a surprise shot coming out of a mix-up. Johnston, Oatman and Rochon were the stars for the locals, while Dunderdale shone for Victoria. Lester Patrick shifted several of his

Good Roads Association.
The annual meeting of the Ontario Good Roads Association will be held in the Dairy Building at the Canadian National Grounds, Toronto, on Feb. 26 and 27. It is expected that a large delegation from the city and county will attend the meeting.

An Account.
Mr. A. Markle, tollgate keeper on the Cocksfoot road, has rendered an account to Major Smith for $1.05, being the amount of toll due for the six automobiles which passed over the road in connection with the business of Connaught's trip to Ohsweken on Saturday.

Woodmen Won.
Brantford Camp, W. O. W., No. 12, and the Liberal Club, clashed at carpetball last night in their Club rooms, Dalhousie street, when the Axe-men chopped them all up at the finish. The score stood, 61-80 in favor of the Woodmen.

Elected.
At a very large and enthusiastic convention and banquet of the Marble and Granite Dealers Association of Canada, held at the Grand Union Hotel, Toronto, John Hill of Brantford, was elected chairman of the executive council for the ensuing year.

Encampment Fraternal Visit.
Brant Encampment No. 4, I. O. O. F. had a busy session on Friday evening, Feb. 14th. After a large amount of business had been transacted the Golden Rule degree was conferred on several candidates. An invitation was received from Burlington Encampment, Hamilton, to pay them a fraternal visit on Good Friday, March 21st and confer the Golden Rule Degree, which was accepted and a rehearsal will be held on Friday night. All three degrees in the Patriarchal branch will be conferred in the new I. O. O. F. Temple at Hamilton on the above date.

Evolution of the S. A.
Great interest is being aroused in connection with this, and at the rehearsal last night it was evident that there is to be a very unique demonstration on this Thursday night at the Victoria Hall. Over 80 persons take part, and nearly every department of S. A. work will be demonstrated. There is much amusement in seeing the police officer handle the fellow who robes the office; then will come the part the Army play in the case. Then there is the social work shown, and it is seen which man wants work and which man thinks that he is "too light for heavy work and too heavy for light work."

Liability to be Committed.
What will then take place is problematical. If he persists in his refusal a motion will likely be made to commit him to the penitentiary at Portmouth, following the British precedent of committing offenders to the Tower or to Newgate for refusal to answer questions. If such a motion is made there is likely to be opposition from the Liberals, who yesterday afternoon loudly dissented from the motion committing Miller to the custody of the Sergeant-at-Arms, despite the fact that he had openly defied the high court of Parliament. Miller, of course, may decide to give the information asked for by the House, disclosing the names of the person or persons to whom he paid the $41,000. He has already stated that the money did not go to a member of Parliament or to a public official.
Only twice before has a man been summoned to appear at the bar of the House. A RESCUE HOME.

This paper desires to make the suggestion to the Salvation Army authorities that Brantford has now reached a size when a Rescue Home is desirable, such as they have in London, Hamilton and other cities. A newspaper man in this city, during his days avocation, comes across or knows of many cases which could most suitably be handled by such an institution.

The scope of such homes is to look after friendless girls, maternity cases and so on, and to place the occupants when leaving, in healthy and beneficial surroundings. And in the Salvation Army way, it is not a case of "out you go and be hanged to you," but a close and kindly touch is kept afterwards with the careers of those thus helped.

It is to be hoped that the Headquarters Staff in Toronto will see their way clear to take up this matter.

THE PITY OF IT.

The committee of the U. S. Senate has rejected the amendment of the Hon. Elihu Root, who sought to prevent the proposed breach of faith with reference to the Panama Canal.

In his great speech on this question Mr. Root said in part:—

"And thus when the United States turned its attention toward joining those two coasts by a canal through the Isthmus it found Great Britain in possession of the eastern end of the route, which men generally believed would be the most available route for the canal. Accordingly the United States sought a treaty with Great Britain by which Great Britain should renounce the advantage which she had and admit the United States to equal participation with her in the canal and the protection of a canal across the Isthmus. From that came the Clayton-Bulwer treaty.

Let me repeat that this treaty was sought by England but by the United States. Mr. Clayton, who was secretary of State at that time, sent the treaty to France, Mr. Rives, to London for the purpose of urging upon Lord Palmerston the making of the treaty. The treaty was made by Great Britain as a concession to the demands of the United States. As you will observe, Mr. President, under these provisions the United States gave up nothing that it was to receive in the future; and Great Britain gave up its rights under the Clayton-Bulwer treaty to what was supposed to be the eastern terminus of the canal. And let me say without referring to it again, under this treaty after much discussion which ensued as to the meaning of its terms, Great Britain did surrender her rights to the United States and Great Britain became a position of equality with the United States. Under this treaty also both parties agreed that each should enter into treaty stipulations with such of the Central American States as they might deem advisable for the purpose of carrying out the great design of this convention, namely, that of constructing and maintaining the canal as a ship communication between the two oceans for the benefit of mankind, on equal terms to all, and of protecting the same."

"This declaration, Mr. President, is the cornerstone of the rights of the United States upon the Isthmus of Panama, rights having their origin in a solemn declaration that there should be constructed and maintained a ship canal between the two oceans for the benefit of mankind, on equal terms to all."

NOTES AND COMMENTS

The Hamilton Hardware men are in session in Hamilton. As to that, most of us who get a living are in that class.

It appears that there is a slump in the price of Egyptian mummies. Now's your chance to acquire a first-class specimen if you have not one already in the home.

So the Dominion has a prisoner on its hands in the Parliament Building. The best plan to make him reply to the question he refuses to answer would be to force him to be in attendance at the Senate sessions.

It begins to look as if the foolish Laurierites actually do think of tying up the business of the country on the navy question in order, if possible, to force an election. They must be yearning very hard for another walk-up.

The Dominion House adjourned yesterday as a mark of respect to Scott and his companions, and both Borden and Laurier heartily approved of the suggestion of Hon. Mr. Lemieux that Canada should join with the rest of the Empire in helping to see that the loved ones left behind do not want. So say we all.

It is announced that the playing of a violin proves a great success if you want to attract mosquitoes. It's not in it, as a matter of fact, with wearing kilts near some marsh in summer time. The way those skaters pass around the word of lunch on dimpled knees is simply appalling. Just try it and see.

The following from the Providence Journal is one of many similar comments in the United States press:

"Nothing more heroic and nothing more characteristically English, could be recorded than the remark of Captain Oates of the Scott expedition, when he went to his death in the hope that thereby his companions might live. Crippled and weak, fearing lest his presence might be a fatal burden to his companions, he left them with the purpose of losing himself in the snow. Such acts may be less common than we think among the men of every race. But the last words of Capt. Oates, 'I'm going outside and may be some time,' reveal that peculiarly self-possessed and nonchalant heroism which an English officer and gentleman exhibits almost as a matter of course. Cool, apparently unemotional, such a man goes to certain death as if it were all a part of a day's work. Nor does he even think of his act as heroic. There have been hundreds of heroes of this type in the story of the British Empire."

Oyster Supper.

The ladies of St. Luke's gave an enjoyable anniversary oyster supper last evening which was very successful. At the conclusion of the supper a first class programme was rendered. Mr. H. Felton acting as chairman in a most efficient manner. The programme consisted of the following numbers: Songs by Mr. G. Hunt, Earle Matthews, Chas. Bourne, Mr. Harradine and Miss Clifford; recitations by Miss Pollock; speech Mr. R. Hunt; paper Miss Gilkison. The recitations by Miss Pollock were of a humorous character and greatly enjoyed. Miss Gilkison's paper dealt with the history of the church and was most instructive in every way. St. Luke's has now been established three years and the work has prospered in all its branches. There is hardly a night in the week but the church building is used by some one of the different societies connected with the church. The need of more room is felt. Plans are under consideration for the enlargement of the present building during the coming summer. In the meantime in order to accommodate the Sunday school, which is continually growing, it may be necessary to hold two sessions. A church hall is also greatly needed in which the work of the Men's Club, the Boy Knights and other work can be carried on more vigorously and also for the holding of social gatherings.

LAND OFFICE ROBBED

(Courier Leased Wire) SASKATOON, Sask., Feb. 19.—The C. P. R. land office was robbed Monday night, when checks and bank notes for over $8,000 were taken. Twelve hundred of this was in cash and seven thousand in checks. It is supposed the thieves used skeleton keys, as there were no signs of forced entrance.

How small the gain,
How great the loss,
A moment's joy
A life's remorse!

—MUNYON.

I THINK that most wrongs, if not most sins, are done in moments of passion, thoughtlessness, or through a desire to please others. The old heart never ceases to hunger for love, whether in a year-old baby or an octogenarian. Deny it love, and it becomes indifferent, cold, selfish. The medical and scientific world are just beginning to understand the mighty moral, as well as the healing influence of love. It is the ladder by which men and nations climb to greatness. It is the power that will eventually disarm battleships, scatter armies and bring the whole human family into the great brotherhood where the interests of one will be the interests of all. I should like to see in all schools the study of love placed ahead of all other studies, for the noblest objects of life are defeated if we are controlled by selfishness, malice, hatred or revenge. It is well understood by the medical profession that anger and greed do more to produce disease, destroy happiness and shorten life than all other causes combined.

I do wish that the readers of this article would join me in spreading "hopeism," and I do most earnestly ask every ailing person, no matter what their disease may be, to think hopefully, to talk hopefully, to act hopefully, to be tender in all things, to encourage the despondent, to assist the despairing and to send out hopeful messages to all who are suffering. I want every person who has a cold to try my Cold Cure. I know that it is harmless and is doing a great and good work in warding off pneumonia and serious ailments. I want every person who is suffering with the undulating result I will refund the money. I want every person who is suffering with any kidney ailment to try my Kidney Remedy. Thousands of testimonials from those it has restored to health have been received at this office. It takes away the headache, the dragging down pains, the puffiness of the limbs and all the painful symptoms of kidney affection. I want every despondent, every person who is troubled with indigestion to try my Dypetosa Remedy. It will not make an old stomach new, but it will give you a new appetite and give you within reason and digest all they do eat. I want every nervous person to try my Nerve Cure and see how quickly it will give rest to the tired nerves and strength to the whole system. I want every person who suffers with Piles to try my Pile Ointment, which stops almost every form of Piles in a few hours.

I want every person who is troubled with biliousness, constipation, or any liver or bowel ailment, to try Munyon's Paw Paw Pills. They are having a tremendous sale and are doing a mighty work for humanity. These pills keep not only the stomach in good shape, but they cleanse the lower bowel, and soon habituate the bowels to act regularly without any assistance. I want every person who needs medical advice to call and see my physicians. They are placed at your service absolutely free. They are not allowed to make any charge for examination or advice.

—MUNYON.

UNDER HEAVY GUARD

(Courier Leased Wire) MEXICO CITY, Feb. 19.—Francisco I. Madero, the deposed President of Mexico, was removed under a heavy guard today from the national palace and lodged in the arsenal. There he is a prisoner of General Felix Diaz in the very place which for over a week he had caused to be battered with cannon in an effort to subjugate the rebel army.

FATAL ROW

(Courier Leased Wire) MORSE, Sask., Feb. 19.—Following a drunken row over a wrestling match last night, Henry Heinke threw a bottle at Albert Mantz at the Pioneer livery barn Monday night. Mantz was fatally injured and died before a doctor could be brought. Heinke and Mantz are both farmers, living 16 miles south. A coroner's jury returned a verdict of murder, implicating Heinke, and he was later committed for trial. He stated that Edward Parker, another of the crowd, was the man he wished to lay out. Heinke showed signs of having received a terrible beating himself.

$3.50 RECIPE FOR WEAK MEN FREE.

SEND NAME AND ADDRESS TODAY—YOU CAN HAVE IT FREE AND BE STRONG AND VIGOROUS.

I have in my possession a prescription for nervous debility, lack of vigor, weakened manhood, failing memory and lame back, brought on by excess, unnatural drains, or the follies of youth, that has cured so many worn and nervous men right in their own homes—without any additional help or medicine—that I think every man who wishes to regain his manly power and virility, quickly and quietly, should have a copy. So I have determined to send a copy of the prescription free of charge in a plain, ordinary sealed envelope to any man who will write me for it. This prescription comes from a physician who has made a special study of men, and I am convinced it is the surest-acting combination for the cure of deficient manhood and vigor failure ever put together. I think I owe it to my fellow-man to send them a copy in confidence, so that any man anywhere who is weak and discouraged with repeated failures may stop drugging himself with harmful patent medicines, secure what I believe is the quickest-acting, restorative, upbuilding, SPOT-TOUCHING remedy ever devised, and so cure himself at home quietly and quickly. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, 3789 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send you a copy of this splendid recipe in a plain ordinary envelope free of charge. A great many doctors would charge $3.00 to $5.00 for merely writing out a prescription like this—but I send it entirely free.

Mr. John Muir congratulated the president on his very able report and his many suggestions for the coming year, saying that in his opinion the president should have the second term. Mr. Muir said he had much pleasure in moving the adoption of the address and that the same should be published in pamphlet form and distributed among the members.

Mr. F. D. Reville said he would take pleasure in seconding the motion but he objected to the mention of the removal of the Market which he claimed was an impossibility, as the property had been given to the city for that purpose in perpetuity and a court finding was on record in the Brantford Registry Office to that effect.

Mr. Waterous said he did not mean change of Market, but change of conditions which were abominable. The address was carried unanimously.

A Clear Brain and healthy body are essential for success. Business men, teachers, students, housewives, and other workers say Hood's Sarsaparilla gives them appetite and strength, and makes their work seem easy. It overcomes that tired feeling.

RECENT ARRIVALS OF New Spring Goods

MAGNIFICENCE is the word applicable to and descriptive of the new goods recently passed into stock here. Yesterday witnessed a great accession thereto—each day adds its quota. Everybody who has seen the advance showings emphatically agree that for supreme tastefulness, style and good value we have far excelled any previous endeavor—AND IT IS SO—CERTAINLY.

Fashion

A few words on the forth-coming styles might be of interest to our lady readers. These may be taken as being absolutely correct as they have been gathered from the heart of the World's Fashions. Each Spring Season, if possible, the goods seem more beautiful than ever, and this season is no exception.

The materials and colorings for early spring wear are of the most useful and tasteful character. For early spring wear, for suits and gowns, Serges in fine qualities are very strong. These are in silk as well and have a wonderful weight and wearing quality. Wide Diagonals are also very strong. Whipcords are shown very much for street wear and are of the most serviceable character, if the purchaser makes sure that the goods are all-wool; many Whipcords are shown in various stores in which there is a large proportion of cotton. These are apt to cockle or crinkle up if they get damp. Our Whipcords are all-wool. The colorings are decidedly pretty, such as Delph blue, very light tan and a range of navy shades.

For Dressy Wraps, very fine Chiffon made, short cut plush is the acme of fashion. These are shown in black, navy, cadet, brown, tan and green tones. For Dressy Dresses, in a charming variety of styles of goods, Crepe effect is the new thing. This applies to all kinds of materials and is extremely popular under the name "Areophone," no other material has that exquisite soft draping effect to the same extent as these soft French Crepes. These are shown in all the new colors. The crepe effect is so minute as to be almost invisible, but at the same time they are of such exquisite fineness that a piece 42 inches wide can be drawn through a lady's ring.

In the assortment of Wash Materials no season for many years has shown such a wide range of beautiful fabrics as the present one. In this class of goods also the fine crepe effect is a novelty and while it is shown in perfectly plain finish and color very many of this class of goods have the crepe ground with stripe effect more or less marked off ratine. Other styles being in wide widths, wide enough for the skirt with graduated lengths of ratine becoming wider towards the lower border, while others have wide embroidered designs in ratine towards the lower part of the skirt. These pretty fabrics are extreme novelties and are shown in not more than one dress of any particular design and color.

New Things in Draperies, Curtain Nets, etc.

Correct Window Draping is indispensable in the make up of an artistic room. We are well ready to supply you with the latest designs and novelties in New Curtain Nets and Chintz Draperies, also new patterns in Casement Cloths. FINE EVENING

Is Spent by the Schubert Choir---Mr. Jordan the Popular and Capable Conductor Presented With a Purse of Gold.

The Tea Pot Inn last night was the scene of a very successful banquet when the Schubert Choir and a few friends gathered to the number of about one hundred, to partake of a luncheon and listen to a very excellent programme. Mr. John R. Varey, the genial President, filled in a very capable way the office of chairman.

About nine o'clock, after the refreshments had been partaken of, Mr. Varey called the choir to order, and drew their attention to the first item on the programme, "O Canada," by the choir. This was excellently rendered by the members. The next item, as usual, was the chairman's address. He dealt at some length with the work of the choir, and also the successful concert of this year. On behalf of the executive, he wished to say that they were not only delighted with the work of Mr. Hollingshead and the Boston orchestra, but they wished to congratulate and thank the members of the choir on their work and showing of this year.

The chairman's address was followed by the business end of the meeting, namely the treasurer's report and the election of officers. Mr. H. J. Smith, the treasurer, gave his statement of proceeds and expenditures in a very precise form. The proceeds from sale of tickets and membership tickets amounted to $900.75, while the expenditures amounted to $571.84, showing a very neat balance of $328.91 for the year.

Mr. Jordan, the very capable conductor, took the opportunity of making a few remarks and also a few criticisms on the work of the choir. He said that since the organization of this body he had never seen such enthusiasm as the members displayed this year. The attendance was better, with the result the chorus singing was better in every way. Before resuming his seat, Mr. Jordan made a suggestion and motion that the members of the executive for the past year be put back into office this year, or until such time at least as the choir contemplates another concert. Mr. H. Whitaker was the seconder of the motion which carried.

Dr. Russell rendered in a very clear voice some verses cleverly written by Mr. R. C. Burns. The song dealt with the many good qualities of the reliable conductor, Mr. Jordan.

EXPERT ADVICE

Money spent on keeping time pieces "on the job" is really a necessary expenditure. Plenty of good watches aren't doing their best work, simply because they can't. Many a fifty or hundred dollar watch is being slowly but surely ruined, because it needs a dollars worth of cleaning. If this reminds you that your watch is in that shape, let it also remind you that our repair dept. can attend to your needs on short notice.

MEXICAN PRESIDENT

A few hours later in the day Gen. Delgado and General Felipe Angeles, two of the federal commanders, who were not in accord with General Huerta's plan were added to the list of prisoners.

The plan had originally been made without the knowledge of Gen. Felix Diaz, the rebel leader. The word soon, however, permeated through the rebel lines, and then began such a fusillade from the machine guns and such volleys from the rifles, which has been but few times since the opening of hostilities in the very heart of the city. It appeared for a time as though every machine gun and every rifle in the arsenal had been brought into action in the effort to fire away all the remaining stores of ammunition there.

This was, however, merely in celebration of the arrival of the news that peace was near and that the fraternal struggle which had caused so much terror and misery to hundreds of thousands of people for ten days was about to be brought to an end. The awful din was permitted by the commanders to continue for 20 minutes before the buglers were ordered to sound the "Cease Fire." As the noise of the reverberating reports from the guns died away, the sound of merry peals from all the church bells of the city rang out. They had been ordered to be set in motion by a message from the national palace.

It did not take the public very long to realize what had occurred, and long before the details of the formation of the provisional government under General Victoriano Huerta had been completely worked out the residents of the capital had begun to give vent to their joy and relief by manifestations all over the city. The shouts that were sent up were not those of the partisans of a victorious army, but of people whose nerves had been worn into tatters by their enforced participation in a long and desperate battle which had been fought in the confined space of a great city.

In diplomatic circles, where the tension also had been great, the solution which had been found was greeted heartily.

Along San Francisco street and in other thoroughfares of the downtown district, extending as far as the big open square in front of the national palace, hundreds of thousands of people pushed their way back and forth, waving banners which had been improved out of the first material at hand, and on which was printed the one Spanish word meaning "peace," "Shouts of "Hurrah for Huerta!" "Hurrah for Blanquet!" "Hurrah for Diaz!" "Hurrah for Mondragon!" sounded everywhere throughout the city.

The soldiers who a few hours before had been on the firing line were posted as sentinels on the street corners, taking the place of the police, who had not been on duty on the abandoned streets for over ten days. There was practically no disorder, except one notable case of direct vengeance. This was the burning down of the building and plant of the Nueva Era, the organ of President Madero. This newspaper was already despised by the anti-governmental element, which utilized the opportunity of paying off in kind the vandalism of the followers of Madero, who had during the previous revolt burned the plant of the newspaper El Pais, which had always been renowned for its independence.

Had and soft corners both yield to Holloways-Corn Cure, which is entirely safe to use, and certain and satisfactory in its action.

A MILITANT BISHOP.

Rt. Rev. Robert Brindle Has Had an Adventurous Career.

A few days ago the Rt. Rev. Robert Brindle, D.S.O., the Catholic Bishop of Nottingham, England, celebrated his sacerdotal golden jubilee. A testimonial was presented and arrangements concluded to honor in a fitting manner the most famous and popular chaplain ever connected with the army.

Brindle was born seventy-five years ago at Liverpool, and studied for the priesthood at the English College, Lisbon. After some experience of missionary work in the Plymouth diocese he became an army chaplain. He took part in the Egyptian campaign of 1882 and was the only chaplain present at the two engagements of Kassassin. He was not present, however, at the victory of Tel-el-Kebir, for he was lying dangerously ill with cholera. From 1882-1886 he was on active service in the Sudan, and was present at all the decisive engagements. Dr. Brindle accompanied the Royal Irish Regiment in their trying march across the Bayuda Desert to Metemneh, and received the British war medal for Egypt with three clasps.

He was present at home followed, and Dr. Brindle acted as spiritual director of the Catholic troops at Colchester and Aldershot. When Lord Kitchener embarked on his famous expedition in the Sudan Dr. Brindle again went to the front. He did much to keep up the spirits of the troops when men were being stricken low with cholera and excessive heat, the taking of Dongola, Lord Kitchener, who has on many occasions testified to his faith in and respect for Dr. Brindle, placed the chaplain in charge of the third gunboat company of a detachment of the South Staffordshire Regiment, and for his heroic conduct on the field at Abbara he was rewarded with the D.S.O. At the Gordon memorial service at Khartoum he again came into prominence by composing the beautiful prayer which was recited on that occasion, and by the request of the Sirdar copies of the prayer were presented to all the officers. Bishop Brindle possesses an imposing array of medals and decorations, and widespread was the regret when he retired from the army. Generals and war correspondents have testified to his splendid qualities. Sir Evelyn Wood recalls seeing "Father Brindle on the Nile in December, 1884, pulling stroke in the leading boat of the Royal Irish. His features were burned by the sun, and, like his hands, covered with blisters. The battalion won Lord Wolseley's prize of $500 for the best time from Wadi Halfa to Korti. He was doubtless the most popular man in the expedition. His own flock loved him, and he was respected by everyone from bugler to Lord Wolseley, who more than once tried to get him knighted."

The Rt. Hon. Winston Spencer Churchill knows, how, on occasion, to silence dissentients in a heated assembly.

Once, when addressing a big political meeting in the north, the present First Lord of the Admiralty was frequently disturbed by a man who persisted in shouting "Liar! Liar!" Mr. Winston Churchill bore with this, despite the indignation of his supporters on the platform, for some time.

Eventually, however, the Cabinet Minister-to-be reduced his interrupter to abject silence with this smart reply delivered in the blandest manner imaginable: "If the gentleman at the back of the hall who is so anxious that this audience should know his name will kindly write it down upon a slip of paper and pass it up to the chairman, instead of having it out at the top of his voice, he will save himself a lot of trouble."

Swim to Pasture.

The island of Bernera, Lewis, in the North-western Hebrides, does not afford sufficient summer grazing for the crofters' cattle. Consequently in the beginning of July each year they are sent to the mainland hills for a period of about two months. In order to get there they have to swim a sea channel about half a mile wide.

On a certain day the cattle, numbering about seven hundred, are ordered together on the seashore. Two or three of them are tethered to a rowboat, and when the remainder see these in the water they plunge in themselves and swim across.

It occasionally happens that as the time draws near for returning to the island some of the cattle, especially the older ones, steal away in the dead of night from the grazings, travel a distance of about ten miles to the seashore, and swim back to the island.

Spectacles.

All European references to the use of spectacles before the year 1270 are dubious. Pliny's description of Nero looking at the gladiatorial combat in an emerald means at best only a lorgnette, or most probably a reflecting mirror. Roger Bacon seems to have known of magnifying lenses (1276), which soon became common enough, but the probable inventor of spectacles as such was a Florentine worthy on whose tombstone in the Church of Santo. Croce is the inscription: "Here lies Salvino d'Armate degli Armati di Florence, the inventor of spectacles. May God forgive his sins. Anno Domini 1317."

Packet Wireless.

The latest development in wireless telegraphy was shown recently at the Imperial College, South Kensington, England, by the Marconi Company. It took the form of a "packet wireless." In four little knapsacks all necessary apparatus can be stored, and if a party were lost in a wilderness help could be easily summoned. At present the apparatus can only send messages within an area of fifteen miles, but it is expected that in time this range will be greatly increased.

INDIA'S HOARDS.

Untold Quantities of Gold and Silver Hidden Away.

Readers of Kipling will remember the seedy individual who confided to the author his confident belief that, although every Indian native pleads that he is a poor man—the "Karli admi swindle," he called it—there is enough money hoarded away in the country to produce taxes on an absolutely unlimited scale.

The scallywag's statement is strangely corroborated by information contained in Messrs. Montagu's annual bulletin letter, issued recently in London, England, in which it is shown that not only is India hoarding gold on a gigantic scale, but that the natives put the precious metal to the strangest of uses.

It is noted in the letter that the great prosperity of India—a prosperity more thorough than a superficial observer can imagine—results from the accumulation of dead capital by the population, and it is suggested that it would be profitable to the advantage of India if the natives learned to turn some portion of their savings into remunerative investments. The bulk of hoarded wealth in India is buried, so that, at the present time, all the gold and silver in the earth in South Africa is by a fresh digging operation deposited again beneath the soil in South Africa. Complete hoarding from India are not yet to hand, but it seems practically assured that the total imports of gold to India during 1912 are not only a fresh record, but will attain a total of not less than $137,600,000 or 28 per cent. of the world's output.

The strange uses to which gold is put in India are referred to. Consumption of the metal is implied in England the actual swallowing of extremely thin gold leaves for medicinal purposes, but gold is so taken in parts of India. Again, a frequent form of piety is to regild the domes of religious buildings. Such operations can easily absorb $50,000 or more. Sovereigns with a shield on the obverse are in constant request, and inquiry as to the ultimate use of certain shipments of some thousands of pounds revealed the curious fact that a rajah of nooco tastes had imported them to form a centre of each minute pane in the windows of his palace.

It may be noted in passing that one of the reasons why the shield of piety is so much in demand in the east is that the Chinese dragon is a sacred emblem, and the representation on the ordinary sovereign of St. George slaying the mythical monster is offensive to their ideas. Accordingly they absolutely refuse to deal with the dragon coin, and some English houses make it a regular part of their business to ship to the east only sovereigns bearing the shield on the obverse.

Exchange Stolen Dogs.

One of the chief features of the English dog-stealing traffic is that it is by no means confined to the limits of the towns where the dogs are stolen. There is a regular exchange of stolen dogs between the large cities of the country.

The exchange is not carried on by the thieves themselves, but by the "fanciers," who buy their captives. A really well-bred dog is too well known in its neighborhood to sell in the same district. It has been found by hundreds of people on the benches at local shows. So it is sent from Bristol or Liverpool to London or Edinburgh, where no one will recognize the straight-legged, bright-eyed fox terrier or the heavy-winked pug, the long-sought prize winner of the other side of the country.

Oxford and Cambridge are excellent markets for the dog thief. Undergraduates are always ready to pay high prices for really well-bred dogs—especially bulldogs and bull terriers—and the bully, low-voiced gentry who whisper, "Want a really good dawg, sir?" to likely customers in "K. P." or "The High," have always a plausible tale ready to explain their possession of a valuable animal.

Another method of the dog thief is to come to dogs' homes and try to claim good dogs found and brought in by the police.

The National Spirit.

The great baritone, Signor Foli, when singing in grand opera in his native city, Corle, had to sing some of his songs from a stage balcony. The arrangements were not very perfect, and the manager, fearing the carpenter had not made the balcony strong enough to sustain the weight of the big man, told two assistants to hold it up from beneath. The lengthy signor was only half way through his song when one man said to the other:

"Be jabers, Moike, this Oitalian is mighty heavy."

"Let's drop him, Pat; he's only an Oitalian, after all."

Voice from the signor above: "Will ye, ye divils, will ye?"

"Tare an' oats! Pat, but he's an Oitishman! Hould him up for the loife of ye!"

A Certain Cure.

Hugo Arnot, the historian of Edinburgh, was one day waited upon by a woman who requested him to advise her how she might best get rid of an admirer whose importunities caused her annoyance. The woman was the reverse of fascinating, and Arnot, being indisposed to flatter her vanity, replied:

"Oh, you had better marry the fellow."

"Marry him?" replied the astonished woman. "I would see him hanged first."

"Marry him, then," persisted the humorist, "and I'll bet he'll soon hang himself."

Cycling To School.

The master of the Dis, Norfolk, England, Secondary Schools says that one of his boys during last year cycled 2,522 miles to attend school, and was late only five times and absent once. A girl who also arrives by cycle had covered 2,088 miles in 1912, and had been late only thrice.

WE WILL SHOW YOU HOW!

If you have ideas—if you can THINK—We will show you the secrets of this fascinating new profession. Positively no experience or literary excellence necessary. No "flowery language" is wanted.

The demand for photoplays is practically unlimited. The big film manufacturers are "moving heaven and earth" in their attempts to get enough good plots to supply the ever increasing demand. They are offering $100, and more, for single scenarios or written ideas.

Nearly all the big film companies, the buyers of photoplays, are located in or near NEW YORK CITY. Being right on the spot, and knowing at all times just what sort of plots are wanted by the producers, our SALES DEPARTMENT has a tremendous advantage over agencies situated in distant cities.

We have received many letters from the big film manufacturers, such as VITAGRAPH, EDISON, ESSANAY, LUBIN, SOLAX, IMP. REX, RELIANCE, CHAMPION, COMET, MELIES, ETC., urging us to send photoplays to them. We want more writers and we'll gladly teach you the secrets of success.

We are selling photoplays written by people who "never before wrote a line for Publication."

Perhaps we can do the same for you. If you can think of only one good idea every week, and will write it out as directed by us, and it sells for only $25, a low figure paper. There is no organization at present in connection with St. John's.

A jolly little party of skaters took possession of the Y.M.C.A. rink last evening, and later adjourned with Miss Marion Watts to her home on William street for supper, the evening having been voted a huge success.

Mrs. D. S. Gibson, Dufferin avenue, has returned from Tillsonburg, where she was called by the very serious illness of her sister, Mrs. Lorne Livingston, who is suffering from pneumonia. Mrs. Livingston has now turned the critical point, however, and her recovery is hoped for.

A programme has been received in the city from Mr. E. L. Cockshutt, who with Mr. E. N. Roberts, is at present in England, of Straus' opera "Elektra," which was produced at the Royal Opera House, Covent Garden, on Friday, 7th February, and attended by the King and Queen, as well as members of the Royal household—our Brantford friends were also among the audience.

The following criticism of the production, taken from an English paper, is interesting reading:—

"Elektra" Revived.

Who that was present at Mr. Thos. Beecham's original production here of "Elektra" three years ago less a fortnight has as yet forgotten either the event or the rumpus that the work created in London musical circles? Last night Mr. Beecham revived Strauss' opera, when he, as conductor, again, was so superbly supported that this hour and three quarters of concentrated hideousness proved a most decided and undeniable success from the public point of view. Indeed, Strauss has here reached the sublime heights of hideousness. Yet one can still stand apace at it in all its nakedness and can still marvel at its stupendous mastery of means, which is even more sublime. In very truth Strauss is an amazing person. So much cannot be denied him even when one has had the opportunity of studying and re-studying his methods and the exposition of his ideas; and if for no other reason than that he has compressed more real hideousness into a few bars of music than any other composer, his name will go down to posterity. But of course, there are a dozen other and more cogent reasons for the survival of his name and his fame; and we, for one, have no doubt that he will yet put forth his right and proper claim again, as he did in his earlier days, when the spirit moves him.

Would indeed that the spirit might quickly move him, for it is hard to get away from the awful haunting howls of fear of Klytemnestra, or the weird and wonderful "Sprechgesang" of Elektra herself. The performance last night was undeniably a fine one. Indeed, one is not sure that a more complete individual performance of a single role has been seen in London in recent years than that of Madame Bahr-Mildenburg as Klytemnestra, a part she played magnificently three years ago here, but in which now she easily surpassed her previous performance. At first Madame Mottl-Fassbender, as Elektra, seemed out of voice, but she rose to a fine height later in the huge, repellent, but impressive scene with Klytemnestra. And a word of praise of a hearty kind goes to the Chrysothemis of Madame Petzl-Perard (a sympathetic interpretation): to the Aegistheus of Mr. John Barsley, a very hard worker; and to the Orestes of Mr. Broderson. It was truly all very wonderful and very impressive. But, also, it was all very brutal and hideous—all the more because so superbly done.

The Boston Ladies' Orchestra is one of the features of the Automobile Show which is to have its formal opening by the Hon. W. J. Hanna at the Exhibition Grounds, Toronto, to-morrow evening. The Toronto Symphony Orchestra is another added attraction. Tea and rest rooms have also been provided in the Government Building, and will no doubt prove very popular.

God broke our years to hours and days that hour by hour, Just going on a little way, We might be able all along To keep quite strong. Should all the weight of life Be laid across our shoulders and the future rife With woe and struggle, meet us face to face At just one place, We could not go; Our feet would stop; and so God lays a little on us every day And never, I believe, on all the way Will burdens bear so deep Or pathways lie so steep But we can go if, by God's power, We only bear the burdens of the hour. —George Klingling.

It is said that so strong is the light emitted by Jamaica fireflies that the presence of six will enable a person to read.

How Things Are Reversed in Japan.

In Japan the natives have a habit of reversing nearly everything according to our accepted ideas of how things should be done. Thus a Japanese workman pulls the plane towards him, a blacksmith blows the bellows with his feet, and nearly everyone sits down to work. Horses are put in their stables reverse ways, for the horse's flank is where his head should be, Japanese screws screw the other way, and Japanese locks lock to the left.

Among the luxuries, comforts and conveniences nowadays provided by the great hotels are cribs for the baby guests. Even in the very finest of the large hotels these cribs are a comparatively recent addition to the house equipment. Up to about five years ago when a separate bed was required for a baby's use, a cot was put into the room and many persons travelling for the first time with the baby still ask for the cot.

They are agreeably surprised when informed that a crib can be supplied if desired. In one large hotel there are now kept ready for use a dozen cribs simple but of the latest style of construction and ready to be sent whenever they are needed.

Shoes at $125 a Pair.

The "high cost of living" has extended to the shoe industries. Those persons who can afford to purchase bread and butter with meals in Fifth avenue restaurants may now obtain a pair of shoes in New York for $125. In September, 1911, Mrs. Allan Brown, wife of a lawyer living in Douglass, L.I., became dissatisfied with the cheap shoes she had been wearing and upon the recommendation of a friend ordered a $125 pair from a company at No 40 West Thirty-ninth street. When she signed the order she stipulated that she would pay by installments, and that her husband was not to be told of the purchase.

Yesterday her husband was sued by the firm in the municipal court at Madison avenue and Fifteenth street before Judge Marks, for $65, balance payment on three pairs of shoes. According to the shoe company, elaborate plaster casts had to be made from which lasts and patterns were formed and upon them the shoes were constructed. Three pairs were made, and after five payments Mrs. Brown said all were unsatisfactory. Then the shoe company brought suit.

Mr. Brown took the case philosophically and decided to stand by his wife. Judge Marks, after gazing with surprise at the price, dismissed the case on the ground that there was no proof of a contract, and that the husband was ignorant of the affair.

Mrs. Brown stated that despite the reported qualities of the shoes, they hurt her, but the shoemakers met this complaint by saying that they contracted to fit feet, not to cure them.—New York American.

Mosquitoes Attracted by Music

In some parts of India, where mosquitoes abound, it is impossible to play the violin because the music attracts the insects in great numbers. When the first notes are heard the mosquitoes swarm in clouds around the player and make the movements of the hand impossible.—Harpers Weekly.

LAYMEN'S MEETINGS

Proved a Most Pronounced Success—At Night a Most Notable Dinner Was in Order.

The Laymen's Missionary convention was attended by a very large and representative company of men gathered from all parts of Brant county. The afternoon session exceeded in attendance and interest the morning session. The first address of the afternoon was given by Mr. E. H. Dickson of Toronto on "The Missionary Committee, Its Organization." Then followed a stimulating paper read by Mr. W. C. Senior of Toronto on "The Duties of the Missionary Committee." "The Missionary Committee, Its Preparation," was the subject of Mr. W. G. Ranton's address. All of these messages were listened to with rapt attention by the men, and will surely prove effective in the better organization of the men's work in missionary service in Brant county.

One of the outstanding addresses of the afternoon was given by that veteran missionary of the Presbyterian Church, Dr. Murdoch Mackenzie, who has served his church for 24 years as a missionary to Honan, China. In a very graphic way he took the audience with him in imagination to China, and told them exactly how the work of the modern missionary begins and recited in a very touching way the trials and triumphs of missionary service there. He has a hopeful picture to paint for he had seen repeatedly the triumphs of the Gospel and had great faith in the ultimate conquest of Christianity in China, as well as throughout the world. Few who heard this message will ever be able to forget it. Dr. Nichol followed in his address, and his gratitude to the throne of grace for the victories accomplished and in fervent intercession for the needs of the church to-day. Mr. A. E. Armstrong of Toronto, a fine type of Christian manhood, followed with an address upon "The Every Member Canvass, Its Value." The every member canvass has many valuable contributions to make to the life of the church, and especially to those who engage in it. It affords education, answers superficial objections and stimulates interest. It declares the needs of the church, and enlists more in giving and service and creates a wider vision. It helps the ordinary revenue of the church and avoids repeated appeals. This was a logical, forceful address, and produced a deep impression. Mr. Armstrong is a master in his line, and his presence at the convention was a decided help.

Rev. R. G. MacBeth of Paris gave a spirited address on "How to Conduct the Every Member Canvass." He preferred to call it the every member opportunity. The sending of men out two by two had been his plan of campaign. An experienced layman with one not so experienced had worked well in Paris, and their canvass had been a revelation to themselves of the latent power of the congregation in the matter of giving to the work of the church, both for home expenses and for missions.

"The Follow-up Work" was the subject of a splendid address by Mr. W. A. Noble of St. George's Church, Hamilton. This was an address that strongly emphasized the importance of creating a spirit of atmosphere in the church and of the importance of prayer in the prosecution of the work. The illustration given of the follow-up work was taken from his own parish in Hamilton. Speaking as he did from experience made his address all the more telling.

Mr. H. K. Caskey, General Secretary of the Laymen's Missionary Movement, closed the afternoon conference with a helpful message on "How to secure the best immediate results in the churches in Brant county."

Notable Dinner.

Seldom in the history of our fair city has a finer company of men gathered about the festive board than was witnessed last evening in the Wellington St. Methodist church when 300 men representative laymen from Brant County gathered about the tables so daintily set and so splendidly served by the ladies of that church. The pastor, Rev. R. D. Hamilton called upon all to rise and sing grace which was heartily done. At the speakers table sat that honored "Nestor" of Brantford pastors, Archdeacon Mackenzie; at his side was Archdeacon Cody of Toronto; next Mr. T. L. Wood, the efficient chairman for the day. Others at the table were Mr. C. Cook, Mr. W. G. Ranton, Mr. Thomas Findley, Mr. S. J. Moore and Rev. R. D. Hamilton.

Mr. Moore was the first speaker and dwelt upon the wider outlook upon the field. He called the attention of the men to the recent developments in China. Many were so occupied with their own local work that they forgot to look up and to look out upon the wider field and upon the larger opportunity. Business men are apt to keep their eyes so close to their ledger that they fail to hear and to heed the call of Jesus Christ to this larger task of making Christ known among all the nations. Toronto declared her problems, having 30 distinct languages spoken there, having 38,000 Hebrews, having in one section of the city alone 50,000 young men and young women who do not attend any church. He was thankful for the privilege of a small share in the moulding of China for Christ. He paid a striking tribute to the splendid work of the Y. M. C. A. in foreign lands and said that of all the investments he had made he considered that what he put into the Y.M.C.A. work in foreign lands to have paid him the best returns.

Mr. Thomas Findley of the Massey-Harris Co., of Toronto, was the second speaker, and a very effective one he proved himself to be able to hold his audience until the last moment. He took up the matter of the every member canvass and worked it out in a very satisfactory way giving as a working illustration the plan as put into actual operation in his

HAMPSTEAD HEATH. Lover of Historic Spot Has Immortalized It in Huge Book.

Who that has enjoyed the delights of a ramble over the Northern Heights, the bracing air filling out his lungs, the ever-changing shades of green soothing his eye, his thoughts fascinated with reflection upon the great city that darkens the vale so little distant away, who that has experienced the charm over body and mind inseparable from a stroll across Hampstead Heath could resist the impulse to return again and again? Hampstead has possessed its allurements for myriads of human beings since London was a hamlet, miles away on the bank of the Thames, and probably for many times more ages before. Since the dawn of British History leaders of men, and women of note, kings and queens, knights and ladies, historians and politicians have made their homes in Hampstead. Poets, painters, novelists have lived there, too, and chosen the scenes of their romances from its surroundings. The elm where Little Nell rested with her grandfather is indelibly imprinted upon the minds of readers of "The Old Curiosity Shop" throughout the world. "Fashionable London" of a "Famous London" shrouded the walls of Hampstead, and in the present day Hampstead Heath is the great holiday resort of London's masses.

Hampstead is essentially the people's, and the people owe this great possession to-day largely to the influence of one man, Mr. Barratt, who has just completed and published "The Annals of Hampstead," a work in five volumes, which will probably rank for ages as the highest achievement in local histories English literature possesses. Mr. Barratt loves Hampstead. Though he might not say so in such set terms as every page of his splendid work proclaims it. His personal interests and large sums of his money have rendered valuable aid in preserving the people's right to the locality.

On his production of "The Annals of Hampstead" Mr. Barratt has brought to bear all the wondrous machinery and science of modern printing and illustration; and, drawing upon his collection of Hampstead pictures, known as the famous Bell-Moor Hampstead Collection he has reproduced in the book about 500 illustrations of local scenes, photographs, etc. These illustrations are of as varied subjects as "The Gibbet," "Elms, North End, 1819"; "Romney Studio" (now the Hampstead Constitutional Club); "The Bus and Bus-Top"; "Jack Straw's Castle, as it was in 1835," when Charles Dickens used so frequently to entertain his friends at that delightful tavern; the house where Mrs. Siddons, the famous actress, once lived; and the old Hampstead home of the Kit-Kat Club, besides many pieces of local scenery.

Finest For Marrying. A cynic once remarked that marriage brought its own punishment, and that condolences rather than congratulations should be sent to the bride and bridegroom. How much truth there is in this contention we must leave our readers to decide; but it is a fact that in the most problematical punishment, there are certain sections and communities who penalize marriage, and regard it in the light of a punishable offense. It is the rule for instance, at All Souls' College, Oxford, England, that a Fellow forfeits his Fellowship if, when studying the classics, he should take unto himself a wife. In such an event he must not only pay the penalty, but must also present his college with a memorial in the shape of a silver cup, with the inscription that on this cup shall be inscribed in Latin: "He back-slid into matrimony."

Many readers have doubtless heard of the Bachelor's Club in London. When a member so far forgets the principles of the club as to enter Hymen's realm he is promptly expelled and ordered, of course, to contribute far as the other members are concerned. By the payment of a fine of $125 he can, however, retain an honorary membership, but, of course, he cannot enjoy the privileges of this select band of non-marrying men.

Lucknow's Great Hall. Connected with the Mohammedan mosque at Lucknow, India, is the largest room in the world without columns, being 162 feet long, 34 feet wide and 50 feet high. It was built during the great famine of 1874 to supply work for a starving people. It is a solid mass of concrete of simple form and still simpler construction. In its erection a model of transparency of timber and brick several feet in thickness was first made, which was then filled with concrete. The concrete was allowed about a week to set and dry when the mold was removed. Although the building has been standing so long, it is said to show no signs of decay or deterioration.

LONG DISTANCE PICTURES. How They Transmit Photographs by Telegraph in France.

In France the transmission of photographs over a telegraph wire is now practical for newspaper work, and pictures sent in this way appear in the Paris papers. L'illustration is taking the lead, and one station is installed at its Paris office and another at Monte Carlo. The Scientific American has the following account of the process: Photographs are taken in the afternoon at Monte Carlo and quickly developed in the laboratory. Next the photographers prepare a copper film by direct printing from the negative. The copperplate is covered with narrow parallel lines of insulating substance, very thin in the white parts and broad in the blacks, not unlike a half tone, except that lines are used instead of dots to make the picture. Next they wrap the copper film round a metal cylinder not unlike a photographic cylinder, against which a small metal point bears. As the cylinder turns the point passes across the lines of the image. In the white places, represented by the bare copper, this point makes a contact that sends an electrical current through the line. In the black spaces formed by the insulated coating the current is cut off. At the Paris end the operator has wrapped a photographic film round a cylinder contained in a dark box, and the image is transferred to this film by a small spot of light controlled by an electromagnetic shutter that is operated by the electric current that comes from Monte Carlo. The operator removes the film and develops it and after a quick washing and drying makes a half tone from it. The operators at Monte Carlo prepare the plates toward evening and telegraph the pictures during the night for the morning papers.

RAKING THE OCEAN. New Wire Drag That Sweeps the Seabed and Lenses Obstructions.

Pinnacle rocks, ancient wrecks and other ocean bottom obstructions that have for centuries taken their toll of human life and dollars in ship disasters have been discovered by the United States coast and geological survey at harbor entrances and in much frequented waters of the United States through the use of the new wire drag that sweeps the seas. This simple invention, simple at least in its operation, has saved and will save uncounted millions of dollars and countless lives. Already it has been used to sweep the entrances to the Panama canal on the Pacific side in preparation for the opening of this great waterway, and one dangerous rock obstruction heretofore unfound and uncharted has been discovered. This was in the pathway of shipping through a main approach. Had it been found by the costly expedient of running a great ship upon it the world might have had another horror. Through the old method of sounding with lead and line it was impossible to find rocks, wreck spars and other similar obstructions, because the lead, even if it struck these bodies standing perpendicularly in the water, would slip from them and find the bottom level, maybe twenty or a hundred feet below. With the wire drag even the point of an abandoned or lost keel anchor can be found immediately. The new drag consists of a long wire carried through the water horizontally at any given depth by an arrangement of floats and buoys that keep it taut and evenly stretched.

Curious Thefts. Under the headlines "What Can They Do With Theirs?" a Vienna paper tells of a number of thefts which were recently perpetrated in churches in that city. From the Church of St. Stanislaus a statue of St. Peter was stolen. Also visited the Church of the Angels' choir and carried away a wood carved altar three feet high and of the same length at the base, representing the baptism of Christ by St. John. The list includes several other similar objects of worth and the suggestion that foreign collectors of old church decorations may be interested.

African Diamonds. The newest diamond field is in the Kasal river district, Belgian Congo, West Africa. The famous De Beers group of mines at Kimberley, South Africa, have heretofore furnished 95 per cent of the world's diamond supply. Their annual output is about $44,000,000, and since their discovery in 1867 they have produced $600,000,000 worth of diamonds. The remaining 5 or 6 per cent of the world's supply has come from India, Brazil, Borneo and Australia. There are many diamond occurrences in the United States, but none so far of any important commercial consequence. - New York American.

Australia to Save Giant Trees. A popular movement has been set on foot in Australia to preserve the gigantic stringy barks, various species of eucalyptus, of that country, which are the highest and finest big trees of California and are the tallest trees in the world. These trees sometimes attain heights ranging from 400 to 500 feet. Their timber is exceedingly valuable, and for this reason they have been ruthlessly destroyed by lumbermen while no proper steps have been taken to provide for their reproduction. - New York Sun.

GALESTON PLANS IMPROVEMENTS. Galestion is laying plans for an extension of the sea wall and grade raising to at least double the present area. This extension of the wall with accompanying grade raising will entail a cost of at least $5,000,000 and will provide raised area and sea wall protection for practically double the present population of the city. - Shipping Illustrated.

TURKEY'S SACRED FLAG. What It Means to Raise the Precious Banner in Time of War.

The sacred standard of the prophet is enveloped in forty coverings of green taffeta and is inclosed in a case of green cloth, which also contains a Koran (the book of the law), written by the Caliph Omar himself, and the silver keys of the Kaaba, which Selim I. received from the sheriff of Mecca. The standard is twelve feet high, and the golden ornament (a closed band) with surmounts it, contains another copy of the Koran, written by the Caliph Osman III, the successor of Mohammed. In time of peace this precious standard is guarded in the hall of the "no-ble vestment." Thus is styled the dress worn by a prophet. In the same hall in which the tunic hangs are also preserved the other venerated relics of the empire—the sacred teeth, the holy beard, the sacred stirrup, the saber and the bow of Mohammed and the arms and armor of the first caliph. The signal for instant exertion is erected for receiving the sacred standard, which is attached by silver rings to a lance of ebony. This custom brings to recollection the little temple in which was deposited the eagle of the Roman legions, as related by Dionysius Cassius. At the end of every campaign the sacred piece of green silk which forms the standard is replaced with great solemnity in a richly ornamented chest. Down to the present epoch this standard has always been a real talisman to the Turks and has served to rally the defenders of Islamism and to inflame their courage in battle against the Christians. This sacred banner is, however, never displayed except in time of war as a last extremity. It is the signal for instantly exerting every effort to save the empire. Every Christian is prohibited from stopping before or even casting a profane look on this sacred pledge of safety. - London Tit-Bits.

BOLD ADVERTISING. A German Tailor's Scheme For Getting His Circulars Read.

America has the reputation of having forgotten more about advertising methods than Europe has ever known. But it is doubtful whether the American business man ever devised a more ingenious method than that adopted recently by a Dresden tailor. He addressed his circulars, describing the excellence of his military tailoring, to officers of the reserve in imitation official envelopes with the printed envelope at a time when mobilization uniforms and commenced operations simultaneously in several German towns. Wives of absent reservists were terrified by the appearance of the fateful envelope at a time when mobilization and European war were in the air. But the advertiser had scored his point by impressing his name upon his victim quite indelibly, which is, we are told, the essential end of advertising. The distributors were dressed in military uniforms and commenced operations simultaneously in several German towns. Electroplated Porcelain. The electroplating process by which glassware is decorated with a network of silver designs has been extended in Germany to the plating of porcelain dishes, such as platters, bowls, tumblers and tea and coffee sets. Vessels thus treated are said to wear better than either simple porcelain or solid silver, being less fragile than porcelain and less subject to indentation and deformation than silver. The product is called electroporcelain and is cheaper than plated silverware. The plating is usually of silver, but sometimes of nickel. In some cases instead of covering the entire vessel the plating is confined to the handles, knobs and edges, and cooking pots are usually left uncovered within, because porcelain can more easily be kept clean than a surface of metal. - Harper's.

Saloons in Russia. It will come as a surprise to most people to learn that the greatest publican of ancient or modern times is none other than the devoutly orthodox czar of Russia. Vodka, the national drink of the Russian people, has been a crown monopoly continuously since the sixteenth century. Today the crown owns 30,000 kabaks, or public houses, and 4,000 distilleries. The annual income from this source is approximately $100,000,000. Public houses are open by imperial command in that country. Every hamlet, no matter how small, must have at least one. - Exchange.

Fires Without Flames. An English engineer named Bode has invented a way to have fire without flame. His apparatus consists of a porous plate or mass of fire resisting fragments, within which he mixes inflammable gas and air in the right proportions. When the gas is first turned on and lighted it burns with a flame at the surface of the plate. When the air is turned on the flame disappears, but the heat increases. A temperature of 3,200 degrees is claimed. Just what use of this invention can be made is yet a question. - Exchange.

WHEN AILING ASK YOUR NEIGHBORS. That's How Magnus Johnson Got Relief From Kidney Troubles.

They told him to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. He did and his Backache and other sickness speedily vanished. LAC LA NONNE, Alta., Feb. 17. (Special)—If you have kidney trouble of any kind, from Backache to Bright's Disease, and don't know how to cure it, ask your neighbors. They'll tell you to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. Such is the experience of Magnus Johnson, a well known farmer residing near here. In an interview, Mr. Johnson says: "In the year 1907 I took a pain in my back, due to a strain and hard work. I kept getting worse. In the fall of 1908 I was unable to do any hard work and began to suffer a great deal. I did not know what to do, and told one of my neighbors. He handed me a Dodd's Almanac. After reading it I concluded to try Dodd's Kidney Pills and after using five boxes my kidneys and I cannot praise them too much." "You don't experiment when you use Dodd's Kidney Pills. They have cured my kidneys and I cannot praise them too much." "You don't experiment when you use Dodd's Kidney Pills. They have cured my kidneys and I cannot praise them too much."

Indigestion for 2 Years

Few people seem to realize that chronic indigestion is a disease of the stomach. Even the doctors err in this way, as is proven by this letter.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are the most effective treatment obtainable for chronic indigestion, because they awaken the action of the liver and bowels, sweep the foul impurities from the system, and set the whole digestive system in perfect working order.

Mrs. George Swain, Ashworth, Ont., writes: "My husband suffered with indigestion for two years. We tried three different doctors, but they didn't help my husband very much. As he still suffered, he began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and soon got relief. I am thankful to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for the cure of my husband after other treatments had failed."

Lady Marjorie's Love

"Is he not? He understands the policy of making the most of his injuries. I fancy, May I look at the foot?"

"Oh, do, please. I am afraid that it is very painful; he has gone about on three legs ever so much to-day. Alice put a poultice on this morning, but when we were not looking at it."

Jack's principal personal characteristic was his ability to eat anything and immense perseverance in doing it. Barrington laughed, swung him up under his arm, examined his foot and put him down again.

"He's not in desperate case yet, Lady Marjorie—I cannot make out where the puncture is. I fancy that he could manage the fourth leg well enough if he tried. But you were wise not to venture out to-day. The heat is terrific—I found it so."

"I dare say." It was easier in her present mode to be gracious than to be cold, and really he had been very nice about Jack. To carry him home, kicking all the way, had been no joke—she would have found it utterly impossible. "You must be tired. I should think if you had been to Upton Waters; it is such a dreadfully unsheltered road," she said. "Won't you sit down, Mr. Barrington?"

If the agent felt any surprise, as it may be assumed he did, for this was an immense concession, he was far too clever to show it. He bowed and sat down.

"I should have found it hotter walking. I have no doubt, as I should have put it off but I was anxious to see Mr. Petherick. I had to consult him about a rather important letter which I got from Mr. Chadburn this morning."

"From Mr. Chadburn? Oh," Marjorie stiffened, as she felt herself bound to stiffen at the mere mention of the name of the master of Castle Marling.

Mr. Chadburn was proposing to run down for a day or two," Barrington proceeded; "there are several things which he seems to think it would be better to look into himself. He is right enough so far, for he is a thousand times a better man of business than I am, but—"

"Come down here," Marjorie cried, interrupting. Her face blanched, her eyes widened; she looked as panic-stricken as though Mr. Chadburn had been an ogre, and indeed to her he was little less.

"Oh, Mr. Barrington, he is not going to do that, is he? Not yet, surely?"

"No, no," Barrington said soothingly. "It seemed that he understood your mind, for her look did not seem to surprise him. 'I said that he was proposing to come. I am going to write him to-day to say that I can get on all right for the present and that I should much prefer his putting his visit off.'"

"Oh, but he may come nevertheless."

"Oh, no, he won't do that."

"Certainly he spoke with a good deal of confidence, the circumstances considered. Marjorie raised her expressive little eyebrows.

"Mr. Chadburn must be very easy to get on with, I should think," she said.

"He is." His smile seemed to imply that he thoroughly understood what the break in her words had meant. "Very easy, indeed."

"Or at any rate that you find him so," she suggested.

"I find him what the rest of the world finds him—the best, most splendid old fellow in the world. Lady Marjorie."

"Really," she smiled to wit with a touch of incredulity. "You are just a little bit enthusiastic, aren't you?"

"I hope I am. I ought to be. He is the best friend I ever had in my life. If you had ever seen him—"

"I have seen him."

"Indeed?" he stammered.

"Once—for a few moments only. I doubt if I should know him again." She flicked the broad black ribbon on her hat to show how perfectly indifferent she was. "But, excuse me, you were saying—"

"That when you knew him I hoped you would think of him as I do. I think you will."

"I fear you are mistaken. For one thing I may never make Mr. Chadburn's acquaintance at all." Marjorie stiffened again, and the next moment in her inconsistent little way, relented again. After all it was just a little unreasonable to snub him because he seemed to admire the rosy faced old gentleman who had presumed to accompany her with such an absurd familiarity and fatherliness that day in the park—the day when she had been so utterly ignorant and unconscious of all the misery and ruin which were looming over her head. But he had known, and it was possible that in his way he had meant to be kind. "As Mr. Chadburn's visit is to be postponed it is probable that I shall have left the Castle before he comes to it," she added.

Relief for Suffering Everywhere

He whose life is made miserable by the suffering that comes from indigestion and has not tried Parmelee's Vegetable Pills does not know how easily this formidable foe can be dealt with. These pills will find where others fail. They are the result of long and patient study and are confidently put forward as a sure corrector of disorders of the digestive organs, from which so many suffer.

WARNED OFF

NEW YORK, Feb. 18—A cable from London to The Tribune says: One of the most sensational incidents that has occurred in racing circles for many years took place yesterday, when the stewards of the National Hunt Commission, the body which controls steeplechasing in England, "warned off" Tom Couthwaite of Heneferd, who is probably the best known and ablest trainer of jumpers in the United Kingdom.

Mr. Couthwaite's jockey, who has been associated with Couthwaite's stable for some years. The stewards also severely censured "Jock" Ferguson, who until a few years ago was one of the most capable amateur riders, and who now manages the horses of C. Bowyer Insmy, a member of the family which founded the White Star line. Mr. Insmy, who is the owner of the Derby favorite, Craganour, is recommended to look more closely into the running of his horses.
