When the train arrived at their destination Philip was at hand, genial, kind, and considerate, to take charge of Beth's hand baggage and assist her to alight.

They found Miss Russell at the station to meet her niece, and she insisted that Philip should be her guest, instead of going to the hotel as he had intended. She had secretly joined the ranks of the other conspirators; and, delighted at his appearance upon this occasion, she resolved to throw the young people together as much as possible, and so aid and abet the good cause, as she now regarded it, in every way that was practicable.

Philip was delighted with the change in his proteges, both of whom were doing great credit to Miss Russell's hospitality and training. Zieba, particularly, was growing round and rosy, and was adapting herself to the refining influences of Miss Drue's home with remarkable rapidity.

Nathan, though still uncouth in appearance and rough in his ways, had also toned down somewhat, and tried to express his gratitude for what was being done for him and his sister by watching for and neglecting no opportunity to serve their benefac-

Best City Doctors Failed, But Cure Was Effected by Use of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mrs. A. T. Smith.

You apply Dr. Chase's Ointment for eczema and feel the benefit as if by magic. It may take some days to get the sores cleaned out and the healing process fully established, but from day to day you can see the old trouble gradually disappearing and know that you are getting rid of it.

Mrs. A. T. Smith, 1 Mr. Charles St. Montreal, Que., writes: "I had eczema on my leg for four years, and tried many remedies and doctors in Montreal and Boston, without any benefit. I used three boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment and was cured completely. This was three years ago. Since then I used Dr. Chase's Ointment for irritations and eruptions of the skin, and easily got rid of them with two or three applications. Dr. Chase's Ointment is a wonderful preparation."

He could not seem to do enough for Philip, whom he recognized as the power behind the throne, following him about like a faithful dog, anticipating his wants, and actually shedding secret tears upon one or two occasions when he saw him petting little Zieba, who was his heart's idol.

It was a very pleasant visit for them all, Philip especially, for, being their guest, Beth vied with Miss Russell in her efforts to make him enjoy it; and when he took his leave early Monday morning, she told him, with every appearance of friendly interest, that she was going to spend an hour or two every day in trying to lay the foundation of Nathan's and Zieba's future education. Philip, however, was not deceived by her affability into betraying any elation; in fact, he was not sure that he had any real cause to feel elated, for she had adroitly managed not to be left alone with him one moment during his stay.

Mr. Russell came up the next Sunday, and made their hearts glad by unmistakable evidences of perfect health, almost of rejuvenation. He was still a trifle thin, but so happy and jolly that his spirit infected them all. He and Philip alternated in going to New Hampshire for several weeks, and during this time it was definitely arranged that Mr. Russell and Beth should take an apartment in Boston about November first for the winter.

The first of October, Nathan was to begin his duties with the new firm, and after the Russells were located, Miss Prue and Zieba would be their guests until spring. This latter arrangement had been considerably suggested by Miss Russell, who had become deeply attached to the child, and did not like to part with her, neither did she think it wise to separate the brother and sister at present.

Philip greatly enjoyed these visits to the farm, but not once did he attempt to renew his forbidden love-making. Beth was a problem which he realized would need study and careful handling. She seemed to be very sincere in her friendship, and was ever on the alert to contribute to his comfort and pleasure; but she never gave him the slightest encouragement to press his suit; so he cheerfully met her on her own ground hoping that by patient waiting he would ultimately find his opportunity and reward.

Hence he assumed the role of a genial, comfortable friend, coming and going as a matter of course, and with ever-increasing interest in his youthful charges, until Beth began to think that he had indeed taken her at her word, had accepted as final her emphatic assertion that any other relations were impossible, and to wonder if she had not spoiled her life by her obstinacy and over-sensitiveness. But she was too proud to bend one iota, and was careful never to betray by word, look, or tone the state of her own heart.

Early in September, Philip came by an earlier train than usual to take them all on a little outing to a beautiful lake a few miles distant. He had previously chartered a steam launch for the afternoon, and they enjoyed a delightful sail of two hours, when they landed at a lovely island, where, after partaking of a delicious luncheon prepared by Miss Prue and Beth, they spent another hour wandering about and gathering various woodland treasures. It was a charming little picnic, the first one the young people had ever enjoyed, and all returned to the farm in a very happy frame of mind.

After supper Miss Russell busied herself about some household duties, and Philip, Beth and Zieba went out upon the veranda, while Nathan amused himself on the lawn below throwing jackstones, a favorite pastime of his. They had been chatting socially for a few minutes when Philip broke in suddenly:

"Lady Beth, I wonder if I may write a letter here on this table? There is a small matter of business I had forgotten that needs attention."

"By all means," Beth cordially returned, "and you will find everything you need in the drawer of the table. Auntie and I often do our writing out here."

"Thanks. All I need is a sheet of paper. I have my fountain pen and an addressed envelope with me," Philip returned, as he drew forth the wallet which Beth remembered to have seen once before, and, taking from it his pen, envelope, and memorandum, was soon absorbed in his work. Beth took up a book, and Zieba sat on a step to watch her brother's game.

Perfect quiet reigned for a while, not a sound breaking the silence save the click of the jackstones as Nathan excitedly threw and caught them.

In the midst of it a shrill cry of fear startled them all. Zieba had lost her balance and fallen from the steps upon the lawn below. Philip was on his feet in an instant. The next moment the child was in his arms, still crying from fright, but unhurt, and was soon laughing again merrily at her tumble.

But before Philip could return to his writing, a mischievous puff of wind swept the length of the piazza, catching his papers and wallet, whirling them in every direction, and making a general mix-up. There was a great scramble to recover them, during which Nathan made himself very useful in gathering them together; then Philip laying a book upon them, finished his letter, after which he rearranged the contents of his wallet preparatory to putting it away. While doing this he missed the envelope containing the picture of Beth. He went through every pocket two or three times, but could not find it.

Not wishing to recall anything of a disagreeable nature to Beth, he did not speak of it, but resolved to search for it quietly the first opportunity he could get. He was up very early the next morning for this purpose, but an hour of diligent effort failed to restore the lost treasure. He tried again Monday morning, but with the same result. Then he took Nathan aside and told him of his loss, describing the picture to him, saying it was the likeness of a little girl he had known when a boy, and told him if he found it he should have a silver dollar for his trouble. He charged him, however, to say nothing about it to any one.

"I find 'im," said Nathan eagerly, "and"—with a repudiating gesture—"no want dollar."

During the next few days both Beth and Miss Prue observed him haunting the lawn and piazza as if searching for something of great moment to himself.

"What are you looking for?" they asked him. "What have you lost?"

"Jackstones," he would laconically reply, not yet having acquired the habit of adhering strictly to the truth.

The Friday following Philip's loss, Beth was sitting alone at one end of the veranda sewing industriously upon a dainty white dress for Zieba, although her thoughts had flown away to a certain downtown office in Boston.

A gentle breeze was blowing, and presently the flutter of a bit of paper that just protruded from the crevice beneath one of the supports of the piazza roof caught her eye. At first she paid no attention to it, but as it kept up its busy rustle, her curiosity was aroused, and, rising, she applied the point of her scissors to it, and drew forth a soiled and yellowed envelope.

"There is something in it," she said, surprised, and the next moment she was gazing down at that "hideous" picture of herself taken so long ago.

A wave of hot, angry color shot up to her forehead as she realized that it had slipped from Philip's wallet the previous Saturday evening when the wind had made such havoc with his papers.

"Did I ever look like that?" she muttered, with a repellant shiver. Then a sly smile curved her red lips as she added: "He wouldn't give it to me, but fate had been more kind, and now he shall never see it again. She took it between her thumbs and fingers as if to rend it in twain. Then some swift thought arrested the act. Philip had told her he loved that little girl, and if the picture was a valued souvenir, she could not destroy anything that was dear to him.

At that instant she caught the sound of steps, and, hastily returning the card to its envelope, she slipped it into her workbag just as Nathan crept around the corner of the house, evidently hunting for something again. Beth instantly suspected that Philip had told him of his loss, and drafted him into his service to find the picture, whereupon she smiled a trifle wickedly, for she had not yet made up her mind as to whether she would ever surrender the trophy which the winds of fate had blown her way.

Received Serious Injury.

About 11.30 a.m. yesterday an engine ran down to the eastern part of the dock premises with some material which was brought along on cars attached, when a large cable which weighed nearly a ton and standing about 7 feet in diameter was seen to be in the way. Samuel Froude, who works in the pump house from which the wheel had been taken, and two brakemen ran to get it out of the way and placing it on its edge began to try and roll it along. The railway men were behind it and Froude stood on the side of it guiding it when suddenly it toppled over, its weight being too much for the men and it fell with a crash pinning Froude underneath. Those who saw the accident believed he was killed, and men quickly extricated him. The weight of the wheel forced the blood from his mouth and nose and he was badly crushed internally. He was brought to the pump house where the doctor of the Calypso and Dr. Roberts attended him after which he was removed to hospital. He was very ill for a while last night but shows signs of improving to-day.

Where's The Ferry?

The St. John's ferry, the brag and boast of the Picnic Party and the special gift of the Premier to "his people" is not est. New Year's morning the captain of an outbound steamer thrust the ship's prow against it, sunk it in the water and this was the last seen of it. Recently another boat was put on, an ordinary skiff, but this was so badly played out that it stopped like "grandfather's clock" never to go again. This ferry would seem to be symbolical of the policy which put it into commission. It came into being four years ago with a great flourish of trumpets, the public quickly realized its inherent weakness, its decadence has been evident the past 18 months and the ship of public opinion will collide with it so heavily in November next that it will sink into the waters of oblivion. Unlike the ferry the captain and crew will go down with the Picnic Party.

More "Scientific" Effects.

The accurate scribe of the News contradicts this morning an item of ours yesterday, referring to a row on the football field Tuesday evening. The contradiction, of course, is another instance of "scientific" effects. Perhaps the biased vision of the man prevented his seeing the scrap. This fellow is now trying to ingratiate himself with the police in an effort to obliterate his kindly attention to two of them a few years ago. But the officers who remember this, will not soon forget him, and certainly few will ask favors of him. He says "the police ask to correct." He does not say whom they ask. Certain it is they would not ask him.

Customs Report.

Customs Inspector O'Rielly sent the accompanying message from Lamalae yesterday to the Board of Trade:—"Caplin plentiful all along the coast and have also struck in at Miquelon. There are not many French vessels in yet to get them. The French bankers are reported with an average catch of 700 green quintals. The weather is stormy. Traps are getting a better sign of codfish yesterday and to-day but there is nothing being done on trawls."

Schooner Kangaroo Wrecked.

Mr. Jesse Whiteway, as well as the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, had a wire yesterday from Mr. F. Abbott, of Musgrave Harbour, saying that the schooner Kangaroo, Capt. Parsons, went in on Edward's Reef during a squally spurt, Tuesday evening, and carried away her rudder. She later was thrown in on Carey Point and became a total wreck. Her crew of 8 hands landed and were looked after by the shore folk. The vessel was bound for the Labrador.

Rifle Match.

There was a goodly attendance of the members of the Rifle Club at the Butts on the South Side Hills yesterday when the J. C. Parsons handicap prize was competed for. It was won by Mr. John Murphy on a score of 77 points. Mr. Murphy deserves credit on his good scoring. It blew hard and scoring was good considering this.

Straits News.

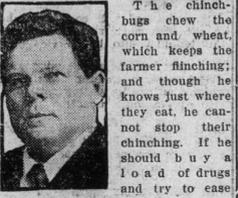

The Reid Mtd. Co. had the following message yesterday as to conditions in the Straits:—"Strong N. & N. W. winds; ice moving out the Straits on the Newfoundland side. Heavy jam north of Belle Isle, moving south again."

This Weary World

The chinche-bugs chew the corn and wheat, which keeps the farmer pinching; and though he knows just where they eat, he cannot stop their chinch-ing. If he should buy a load of drugs and try to ease his sorrow, by killing off ten million bugs, there'd be far more tomorrow. And so he feels misfortune's pinch, and groans beneath the pinchers, and lets the bugs go on and cinch with their back action chinche-cers. The cutworms kill the wheat and corn with double action cutters; the farmer leaves his house at morn, and views his fields, and mutters some language of magenta tint, which here must be omitted; it wouldn't make a hit in print—for children 'tisn't fitted. He goes to town to get relief by drinking soda fizzers, and while he tells about his grief, the cutworms wield their scissors. This sort of thing we hear each spring, and often times we wonder that crops are raised at all, by Jins, since they're all knocked to thunder. The farmers in the fall, indeed, bring in their loaded wagons; no consolation do they need, no comforting with flagons. So let the humble cutworm eat, the chinche-bug do its carving; they doubtless are a nuisance but the farmers are not starving.

Nickel's Fine Bill.

The attendance at the Nickel's Theatre, yesterday afternoon, and last evening, were unusually large, every seat at each performance being occupied. The programme was a good one and found favor with everybody. "The Insurgent Senator" is one of the strongest Edison dramas ever seen at this popular show. "Me and Bill" is a comedy which was watched with the greatest interest. "The Grouch" is a humorous story with an excellent moral. "The Bicycle Bug's Dream" is a great comedy which kept the audience in the best of spirits. A Gaumont Graphic was also included in the programme. Tonight the pictures will be repeated, but Misses Gardner and Guerin will be heard in new songs.

The Morwenna is due to arrive from Sydney to-night.

"Just For Fun."

This society comedy in three acts was produced in the Aula Maxima of St. Bonaventura's College last night before a fashionable audience. The different characters were ably sustained by Misses Keegan, Doyle, Warren and Messrs. Knight and Emerson. The entire staging of the piece was really good and elicited the highest encomiums from the auditors. The orchestra helped in no small measure to the success of the affair. The comedy will be presented again to-night.

Can This Be True?

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—In the Municipal Council report of a meeting about three weeks ago, was an item stating that if Patrick English was not satisfied with the pay he was getting he could quit. This seemed rather strange, considering that Mr. English is one of the oldest of the Council's staff, both in age and years of service, and yet he is more active than many others who are his juniors by more than a score years.

After making some enquiries I learned the following facts, which I would ask you to kindly publish for the information of citizens in general, for I feel assured, that the taxpayers of this town (whose servants the Council and its officials are), would be pleased to have such an old and faithful civic employee treated with that consideration which long years of faithful service warrant.

Mr. English was, last year, approached by one of the Council's supervisors and offered a change of work at the same rate of pay which he had been receiving. This was done in the presence of witness. This arrangement went on for several months until about ten weeks ago when his pay was reduced without any cause being assigned therefor. Of course Mr. English, as was only natural, objected to this treatment and was told publicly through the Council's report in the daily papers, that if he was not satisfied with the arrangement he could quit. He submitted quietly to this piece of harsh treatment thinking that the petty persecution which was evidently being worked against him, would cease; but that it has not is made plain from the fact that every employee of the city except himself has been paid for Empire Day. His pay was stopped for this day. What do you think of that, you loyal citizens? Do you want that one day on which British subjects all the world over join in celebrating the stories of their great Empire, to be made the medium of such a contemptible piece of tyranny which is quite the opposite of what we all delight to speak of as "British fair play"? Suppose a Water Street firm singled out its oldest and most faithful employee and stopped his pay on that day, what would you think of it? Now your City Council has done, or allowed to be done, what the "meanest man on Water Street" would not dare do. Yet, methinks the Council, as a body, may not be altogether to blame for this pay-stopping. You are all aware that the tail is said to sometimes wag the dog. If it was wrong to pay Mr. English on Empire Day, then it was wrong to pay other employees of the city. That all civic employees without exception should receive full pay on Empire Day, is, I feel sure, Mr. Editor, the wish of every loyal

CITIZEN.

Notes From Placentia.

A very pretty wedding took place here on Wednesday, the 11th inst., when Mr. George Kelly led to the altar Miss Bride Collins, niece of our most popular postmaster. The wedding festivities were held at River-view Hotel, S. E. Arm, where a sumptuous repast was spread by Mrs. Fulford, mother of the groom. We wish Mr. and Mrs. Kelly many years of wedded happiness.

The fishery around here is very poor so far. Let us hope it may turn to be a good trap voyage. The only fish that is brought into Placentia so far is that taken by Fred and Mike Lannon, sons of James Lannon, who have to date for one dory the snug catch of 40 qts. Well done, Fred and Mike! We wish you a bumper trip next time. It shows good for you both that you are keeping up your father's reputation.

ARRESTED FOR THEFT.

Books, groceries, dry goods, etc., were stolen, and O'Neill found the goods in the homes of these apprehended. Others will be taken in custody today.

GET IN COWS.

Mr. Thomas Farrell, of the Southside, a well-known fisherman, and an all-round good fellow, passed to the Great Beyond on Monday, at the age of 47 years. The funeral takes place this afternoon.

One of the revisers in connection with the appraisement of property for the local Company, not being paid for work performed, sued the company a few days ago. Defendants pleaded non-liability, but His Honor thought otherwise, and judgment went in favor of the plaintiff. It will be remembered that over a year ago your correspondent referred to this case and said there would be something doing unless the amount was paid. The amount sued for was $25. It is said interest on the amount will also be added.

The owner of a waterside premises now in New York, seeing our note in the Telegram about hay being stored in a building here, sent to the agent in this town asking for an explanation. The building referred to is not the one he was interested in, but all the same his letter shows the far-reaching effect of items, etc., in the Evening Telegram. The danger referred to is now past, as the windows have been boarded up.

The public are loud in their denunciation of the item appearing in Saturday's Daily News from the pen of its Harbor Grace correspondent, who appears to lay much blame to the obliging local manager of the Electric Light Co. We say manager, as Mr. Gorman manages everything in his line to the very best of his ability. One light referred to by the correspondent, as being out is still in, good trim, and no new lamp has been put up. As to the two in the extreme east end, it is said that nothing has been paid for them since they were put there some three years ago. The attack on Mr. Gorman is unfair, and we are surprised at our friend of the News, to attempt to do a man an injury without first finding out the full particulars of the case. Mr. Gorman is one of the most obliging officials in Hr. Grace, and while doing all in his power for his company, he is not forgetful of the comfort and convenience of his customers and the public. Apologize, Brother News.

WHAT'S THE MATTER?

The following lines state the usual trouble of Motor Engines, as well as the remedy.

If memorized will be a great help to the Fishermen and others operating Motor Boats:
When you want to start your engine
And the blamed thing doesn't start,
There's no use in getting rattled,
Nor in taking it apart;

Or thinking that your coil's to blame
Because she will not go,
For there are many other things
As I'll proceed to show.

Just turn your fly wheel over
While you listen to the sound;
But if there isn't any,
Then commence to look around.

First look your battery over—
Are all connections tight?
Is your wiring all connected
And everything just right?

Then when your coils are buzzing
Don't look for trouble there;
But just take out your spark plugs
And try them in the air.

If the spark is hot and lively
It will surely make a hit;
Look at your carburetor—
Does your mixture pass through it?

If you adjust it any,
Now it will set before—
Or you will find your troubles
Are increasing more and more.

Perhaps you've over primed her,
So the mixture is too rich;
Cut off the gas and crank her,
Keeping in the battery switch.

If she starts just when you prime her,
Runs just while the priming lasts,
Then your mixture isn't coming,
There's a place it can't get past.

If she squeals and growls when turning,
Oil her up, she's getting dry;
If exhaust is blue and smoky,
Then cut down your oil supply.

If exhaust is black and sooty,
Then she has more gasolene
Than there's any feed of using
To work best in your machine.

When your engine's running fairly,
Then bangs loudly in the base,
Giving it a richer mixture
Cures its troubles in this case.

So when it makes you wrathful,
Go sit down and rest awhile;
You can start it much more surely
If you try it with a smile.

MORAL.
If your engine's poor and trappy,
Don't swear until your hoarse;
Just dump it in the junk heap
And get a FAIRBANKS-MORSE.

LONDON, To-day.

After the two ministers, Attorney General Isaacs and Lloyd George had collected their papers and retired from the scene of the drama there came the anti-climax. Lord Robert Cecil, who had made the minority report of the investigating committee, created a small sensation by replying to Lloyd George's charge. He tried to make the case against the ministers as bad as possible, saying, "I wish it could have been made really a flaming report. I could have said a great many more things, and I am quite ready to tell any member privately some things, because I didn't consider the evidence justified me in putting them before the House or country." Leo Chiozza Money (Liberal) shouted, "You ought to state them." Lord Cecil replied, "I do not think it fair to state publicly things where there is not enough evidence to justify." Mr. Money: "Mr. Speaker, the noble lord has made them a matter of honor." The Speaker: "The noble member is not allowed to inter-

The offerings at each service on Sunday will be devoted to this purpose. St. Mary's parishioners, composed mainly of the working class, have long been known for their self-sacrificing energy, and the special effort now being made to entirely pay off the debt will no doubt be successful.

Civic Management.

Second Letter From Mr. Gosling.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—In my last letter I advanced the theory that it was useless to blame the Municipal Council for all our civic ills, and that it was our ridiculous system of government which was really at fault. I say "ridiculous" advisedly, for it is utterly absurd to expect men who are paid

50c. a day, who have very limited powers, and strictly limited funds, to transform St. John's into the city of our dreams. The Municipal Council might easily ask with the Israelites in Egypt: "How can we make bricks without straw?"

I think it is time to stop criticizing the Municipal Council, and instead to endeavour to make such changes in our system of government as will make it effective.

There has been a remarkable growth of civic pride in the U. S. and Canada in recent years. Dozens, many hundreds, of cities have found themselves in exactly the same plight as we are, and it is most interesting and useful to learn how they have grappled with their problems.

The system of government, which has been evolved, is known as Government by Commission. To us the term is apt to be misleading, as we generally apply it to a body of persons appointed by the Governor in Council for some definite purpose, but Municipal Government by Commission will be found to be the purest and most direct type of democratic government.

The fundamental principle of Commission Government is to secure the services of efficient men to administer the affairs of the city, and to give them full and complete authority, reserving to the electors certain checks or "balances of power."

Efficient men are obtained in the usual way—by paying for them. In towns up to 30,000 to 40,000 inhabitants Mayors are paid from $2,500 to $3,000 and the Councilors, generally four, are paid from $2,000 to $2,500 per annum. They are elected for terms of two, three or four years and in practice are generally re-elected term after term. The ward system has been abolished, each member of the Commission being elected by the whole city. Instead of each Commissioner having a ward in his special charge, under the new system each man is made the head of a definite department, for the conduct of which he is responsible to the Commission and to the people.

These Departments vary in different cities, but the general division of work is as follows:—

1. Public Affairs,—under the Mayor, having general oversight over the city's business.

2. Accounts and Finance, which is self explanatory.

3. Public Safety, including the Police and Fire Department and Board of Health.

4. Streets and Public Improvements.

5. Parks and Public Property.

For obvious reasons such a division of work would not be suitable for us, and I would suggest something like the following:—

1. Public Affairs.

2. Revenue and Finance.

3. Water, Sewerage and Lighting.

4. Road making, Paving and Repairing, Street Cleaning and Watering, and the Collection of Garbage.

5. Public Health and Housing.

But very likely those who have had practical experience in the work of the Council can suggest a much better division of work than I can.

The Commissioners are generally expected to give the whole of their time to their duties, but in some cities they are only required to give five or six hours per diem. Besides having each his own department to manage, the Commissioners, under the chairmanship of the Mayor meet regularly to discuss and decide upon the general policy of their administration.

A check is placed upon our Municipal Council by the necessity it is under to submit to the Legislature on January 31st of each year, an estimate of its income and expenditure for the ensuing year, and it is not allowed by law to exceed its estimated expenditure or to raise money.

A proper check upon the action of the Municipal Council is no doubt desirable, but, in my opinion, the above is a most unreasonable hindrance to efficient government. I am told that, strictly speaking, they cannot put a new light in the streets unless it has been provided for in the estimate of expenditure.

Under the Commission form of government full legislative and administrative powers are bestowed upon the Commission. It has the right to levy taxes, to borrow money, issue bonds, lay out and pave streets, enact building regulations, grant franchises, operate water powers, lighting plants or other public utilities. In fact some cities have almost complete "home rule" and are independent almost entirely of state or provincial legislation in matters which concern the city.

When giving such comprehensive powers, it is only right and proper that some check should be provided, which while supplying a powerful corrective, when found necessary, would yet permit the larger freedom of action.

Most cities adopting Commission Government have therefore associated with it three "checks" or "balances of power," known as the "Referendum," "Initiative" and "Recall."

The "Referendum" gives the voters the power to reverse or approve the policies of the Commission.

The "Initiative" gives them the power to insist upon new lines of policy.

The "Recall" gives them the power to dismiss any member of the Commission whose conduct is not satisfactory.

These powers are put into force by petition for a plebiscite vote to be taken upon the matter in question. The petition has to be signed by from 15 p.c. to 25 p.c. of the voters at the last election, the proposition varying in different cities.

It will thus be seen that while complete powers are given to the Commission, the final control is in the hands of the people, and can be exercised at any moment.

The first city to adopt, or rather in its case, to formulate the Commission plan of Government was Galveston, Texas, after that city was devastated by the tidal wave in 1900. The first Commission was partly appointed by the Legislature of the State and partly elective, hence it took the name "Commission" which seems rather a misnomer now that the governing bodies are entirely elective.

The work done by the Galveston Commission was so remarkable that the fame of it spread to other cities, which while spared a cataclysm such as forced a reform upon Galveston, were suffering from the more general and greater evil of mismanagement and boss rule.

By the close of 1910 about 150 cities had adopted the new system of government, and I understand that the movement has continued to find favour, but have no positive information as to the number of cities now governed by Commissions.

The history of the cities first making the change is quite remarkable. It is one long story of triumph, of evils removed, reforms established and economies effected.

The city nearest to us to elect to try the new method is St. John, N. B. There the movement was set on foot by a Committee of the Board of Trade, but I have no information at present as to the form of the Act finally passed by the Legislature.

Now the question is whether this new system of Civic Government would suit us. It seems to me that it would, admirably, and in any case that it is worthy of very careful consideration.

One thing I am quite convinced about, and I feel sure that my conviction is shared by every thoughtful citizen, and that is the necessity of taking action immediately to obtain more efficient Civic Government.

No doubt there are many in the city who have information as to the Commission form of government, who, I hope, may be induced to make their knowledge public, whether it be for or against the system.

Yours truly,
W. G. GOSLING.

Special to Evening Telegram.

MONTICELLO, N.Y., June 18. Master Wolf was naughty. Mother tried to spank him. The oil stove upset. Result, 12 business houses and three dwellings, including that of the finally passed by the Legislature.

Now the question is whether this new system of Civic Government would suit us. It seems to me that it would, admirably, and in any case that it is worthy of very careful consideration.

One thing I am quite convinced about, and I feel sure that my conviction is shared by every thoughtful citizen, and that is the necessity of taking action immediately to obtain more efficient Civic Government.

No doubt there are many in the city who have information as to the Commission form of government, who, I hope, may be induced to make their knowledge public, whether it be for or against the system.

Yours truly,
W. G. GOSLING.

To-Night's Match

The opposing teams in to-night's game are the Casuals and B. I. S. The players will be:—

B. I. S.—Goal, Lundrigan; backs, Doyle, Buckingham; halves, Joy, Murphy, C. Murphy; forwards, Power, Ryan, Keenan, Murphy, Brennan.

Casuals—Goal, Foster; backs, Dick, Clarke; halves, Gardner, Stevenson, Searle; forwards, Green, Cunningham, Smith, Sullivan, Ennis.

GOT GOOD FARES.—The local grounds were teeming with codfish yesterday and all the fishermen who were out got large fares.

Not Stuck-on Itself.

The built-in—not stuck-on—tire like Dunlop Traction Tread is the only successful Anti-Skid. Manufacturers of the stuck-on type dare not make the corrugations big enough to prevent skidding without fearing to make them so big that they will destroy resiliency.

The cost of the safety which you obtain by purchasing Dunlop Traction Tread tires is insignificant in comparison with the price of neglect.

The Jaw.

By H. L. RANN.

The jaw is a restless annex to the human face which is suspended where it can be seen and heard with great ease. It is the home of the will, but also secretes moveable teeth a n d several thousand yards of back talk.

The jaw has two important functions, which keep it busy fourteen hours a day. One of these is to reduce the proud and austere beefsteak with a sliding gear action, and the other is to deliver curtain lectures. If it were not for the jaw every home would be a hospital for indigestion and belated husbands would not have to crawl up the front stairs in their stocking feet and be interrupted in the midst of an eloquent lie by the accusing voice of the town clock.

There are two kinds of jaws—round and square. The round jaw is the prettier of the two, as it usually contains the high-priced ornament known as the dimple, but it is not so useful in a joint debate or an argument with the grocer, as it is liable to give in and be stung with green bananas and withered sweet corn. The best specimen of square jaw now worn in this country is that used by Woodrow Wilson, who inherited it in early youth and points it in the direction of congress every few days. This is highly exasperating to congress, which runs quite extensively to jaw itself and does not care for any competition.

A good deal has been written and sung about the feminine jaw, mainly by disgruntled husbands who are about as delightful a household pet as the hedgehog. This is a base libel on the fair sex, who seldom take an active part in the conversation unless forced into it. On the other hand, all that is necessary to trip a man's jaw faster than a water meter in a laundry is to give him two highballs and a headline about T. R.

The jaw is used considerably in prize-fighting, and if struck with sufficient feeling will produce a drowsy feeling on the part of the struckee. The most famous jawbone recorded in history is the one with which Samson slew a thousand men, but there are some on the Chautauqua circuit that are almost as deadly.

Practical Imagination.

BY RUTH CAMERON.

Imagination is not generally considered a practical quality. And yet it there a real great many practical matters in which it is of inestimable value.

Shopping, for instance. The other afternoon a neighbor of mine was bewailing like Flora McFlimsey that she had nothing to wear. Her particular plaint was that she had absolutely nothing suitable to put on afternoons in the house.

Now not a month ago, this woman told me that her husband had given her $100 for her summer wardrobe. And, as I had seen some of her purchases, I knew she had spent part of it, at least, for that purpose. I reminded her of this fact.

"I know it," she said. "I did have $100 and I spent almost every cent of it for clothes, and yet I don't seem to have anything to wear afternoons.

That blue charmeuse is too delicate to wear around with the baby, and I don't like to put on my suit in the house because that spoils the look of the skirt and wears it out before the coat. That serge I bought at such a bargain is too heavy for this weather. So here I am, with my money spent and nothing but a shabby last year's dress to wear afternoons. I ought not to have bought that blue dress, but it was so becoming, and I knew I should enjoy having it for the bridge party. For that price I could have gotten a simple afternoon dress and a less expensive bridge gown. But it's too late now, and the worst of it is that I do this every year—go in and spend a lot of money and then find that I haven't half covered the ground. Isn't it dreadful?

Do you know what quality that lady lacks?

Imagination.

Let me tell you how the Lady-Who-Always-Knows-Somehow has taught herself to avoid this predicament—a predicament into which almost every woman of limited means occasionally falls. "Before I go shopping for my season's wardrobe," says the Lady, "I sit down and try to picture just about where I'll be and what I'll be doing each day, so that I can see what I'll need the most. I picture myself from the time I get up in the morning until I go to bed at night. I think of all the things I'm likely to do, and the places I'm likely to go, and I make out a list of the clothes I want. Then I cut it down to the clothes I can't get along without, and then I buy them. Of course, I still make some mistakes, but I find that helps me a lot in getting what I need the most, and not loading up with superfluities."

The Lady, you see, has that invaluable quality, a practical imagination.

Perhaps you already apply her method, consciously or unconsciously.

If you don't, permit me to give it my highest recommendation.

Ruth Cameron

Household Notes.

An omelet pan should be used only for omelet. Never scratch it in any way. If any pieces of egg have stuck to the pan put in a tiny piece of dripping and allow this to get hot over the fire. The pieces will then come off easily.

To remove mildew make a thick paste of salt and buttermilk. Cover the spot with it and lay it in the sun for a day, renewing the paste at the end of four hours. If the stains are obstinate, several applications may be necessary.

The brown spots which appear on old china may be removed. Bury the dish in the earth covering it completely. The darker spots will require more time in the earth than the light ones. This method will not harm the most delicate china.

Dusters can easily be made by soaking squares of old flannel in paraffine oil overnight and wringing them out lightly. They should be washed in lukewarm water. They will gather up all dust and leave a nice polish on the furniture and floors.

Hardwood floors should first be swept with a soft brush then wiped with a long-handled dust mop. If there are any spots on the floor rub them with a flannel cloth. If this does not remove them clean with a little turpentine on a cloth. If water is spilled on the floor, it should be wiped up at once. If any liquid spilled on a wax floor is allowed to dry, it will produce a stain which can only be removed by hard scrubbing.

If the yoke of a dress has become soiled try cleaning it in the following manner: Have a basin of warm water, a cake of pure white soap and a brush with medium stiff bristles. Spread the yoke carefully on a flat surface, placing a turkish towel, folded several times, beneath it, to absorb the superfluous moisture. Apply the soap and water to the yoke, scrubbing it carefully with the brush until it appears clean. Then place a fresh towel beneath the lace and rinse several times with clear, cold water. Pull the lace into shape and allow it to dry.

Declines to be Brummel.

Her to British Throne Goes in Fur Comfort in Clothing.

The Prince of Wales is yet too young to be "arbitrator elegantum," but the time may come. At present our fashionable youths are much perturbed because they do not find that the prince sets the seal of his approval on their taste in elegant attire. While they are especially punctilious in the observance of certain modes the prince makes a point, it might almost be said, of ignoring these customs. For example, he invariably wears his gloves buttoned and never leaves the ends open and tucked down over the wrist, as is the custom of the young "swell."

He wears a stand up turned down collar with a frock or morning coat simply because that collar is more comfortable than the plain stand up collar.

Several members in the royal household, it may be mentioned, have lately followed the young prince's example in this matter and have discarded the stand up collar altogether "except in the evening," by general consent a stand up collar with small wings looks smarter in the evening than a turned down collar—and such a collar is always worn.

The taste of the prince in the matter of socks, however, delights the heart of the youth of fashion, for he frankly confesses to a taste for gaily patterned socks. These socks are made to order from designs that are submitted to the prince, who has two or three pairs made to go with each of his suits. The dress bills of the prince are naturally beginning to rise, but nevertheless, he does not throw money away on clothes. He generally orders half a dozen suits at a time, and does this at most three times a year. Though the prince is "fitted" at his tailor's when necessary, his tailors have an accurate model of his figure, and one fitting is the most that is necessary.

The heir apparent has a great liking for soft shirts and wears ordinary white shirts as seldom as possible. His favorite day attire is a knicker suit and soft shirt and collar, and directly he gets out of London he gets into such a suit as early as possible.

In the matter of walking sticks the prince bids fair to exceed his grandfather's famous collection in number and interest, but of the thirty walking sticks he possesses the prince rarely carries any but a large crooked gold mounted stick given him by the Kaiser when he came over to attend King Edward's funeral.

This particular stick at Oxford is known as the "Prince's Crook," a designation that when it reached the ears of the Princess Mary she at once gave to the stick.

Evening Telegram

W. J. HERDER, . . . Proprietor
W. F. LLOYD, Editor

THURSDAY, June 19, 1913.

THE REID '98 DEAL.

A McGRATH LIE NAILED!
Among the brazen falsehoods outrageously circulated by the Hon. P. T. McGrath on Tuesday, in the Herald, was one about the attitude of the Evening Telegram to the Reid Contract of 1898. Mr. McGrath falsely and recklessly makes a "charge" that the Telegram "offered no objection to the Contract until the Opposition Party in the Assembly decided to oppose it."

Fortunately, the records of the time enable us to nail the lie, and prove conclusively to the most doubting Tory Thomas that the charge is false in every particular, and has no foundation whatever in fact. It is a strange charge for the editor of the Evening Herald to make, for he had gone to the country in support of the Reid Deal, and the main plank in the appeal of that Party to the people was "No further concessions to Reid," and this he acknowledges in his notorious Chicago Letter.

The people were indignant when they discovered they had been "out-witted," to use Mr. McGrath's word, and the WARNING was first made to the public at large by the Evening Telegram, immediately the plot was discovered, as we shall prove presently. The Evening Telegram, sounding the note of alarm remarkably promptly, and not as Mr. McGrath falsely insinuates offered no opposition until the Party had decided in the Assembly to oppose the Deal. Mr. McGrath, however, made himself conspicuous in fighting for the Reid Deal just as he had fought for the Tory Party's platform before the election. This is the man who has the effrontery to make insinuations against the Evening Telegram.

Mr. McGrath's charge is that the Evening Telegram offered no objection to the contract until the Opposition Party in the Assembly decided to oppose it. Now, in the first place, would there be any great wrong-doing on the part of the Evening Telegram if its editor had waited until the party it supported had decided on the course to adopt? As a matter of fact however the opposition of the Evening Telegram was remarkably prompt as the records prove, and the loud tocsin was sounded at once. It must be remembered that the features of the Deal were not known until the Contract was tabled. The all important point then is to discover what interval of time there was between the revelation of the outrageous terms of the Deal, and the time when the Evening Telegram began its opposition. This is easily determined.

The evidence which settles the matter is contained in the Journals of the House of Assembly and the pages of the Evening Telegram. According to the Journal, "The House met at three o'clock in the afternoon" of February 22nd, 1898. Ten petitions were presented. Notices of several questions were given. The Speaker gave several messages to the House about bills by the Legislative Council, and the amendments to two bills from the Council were read a first time and ordered to be read a second time on the morrow. All these matters were gone through after three o'clock on the evening of February 22nd. We have taken them, as we have mentioned from the Journal and they would occupy a certain amount of the time of the House. Then comes the record of the all important matter, which was next taken up. Here is the record:—

"Hon. the Premier laid upon the table of the House draft copy of a proposed contract between the Government and R. G. Reid, for Railway contract."

Then the cat was out of the bag and the nature of the Deal known. It was not known as we have shown until several hours of the afternoon of February 22nd had passed. Mr. McGrath insinuates his charge against the Evening Telegram that there was then an unconscionable delay on the part of the Evening Telegram in making up its mind as to its course. That for a considerable time the Evening Telegram wavered as to whether it would oppose the Deal or not. The facts, however, are otherwise. The opposition shown by the Evening Telegram was phenomenally prompt. The draft was not tabled until considerably after three o'clock on the afternoon of February 22nd, yet on that very afternoon the Evening Telegram was out in definite uncompromising opposition to it.

The proof of this is found in the issue of the Evening Telegram of February 22nd, 1898, the evening the draft was tabled. It establishes our contention and demonstrates that the charge made by Mr. McGrath on Tuesday was a reckless falsehood. In the issue referred to will be found at the head of the editorial column the tocsin of opposition, printed in large heavy black type:—

TREACHERY!

A Huge Plot to sell Newfoundland Railways, Dock, Telegraph System, Mines, Minerals, Timber, Agricultural Land and Everything else of any Value offered by the Government for $1,000,000. Look out for to-morrow's "Telegram."

If any further proof is needed that the Evening Telegram was prompt in opposing the railway proposals of the Tories, it is furnished by Mr. P. T. McGrath himself, in the Evening Herald of February 23rd, the day after the Deal was disclosed in the Evening Telegram's note of warning of the day before. Mr. McGrath heads his reply, "Selling the Country," and commences thus: "In considering the Railway proposals now before the House, the public should not be led away and deceived by the Telegram's catch-ery of 'selling the country,'" and then Mr. McGrath proceeds to support the Deal. This clinches the McGrath falsehood, and shows how unscrupulous he is in making false charges against an opponent and with what an easy conscience he can effect a change of policy, not to speak of party allegiance.

Another fine comedy will be presented by the high class artists, Lorraine Buchanan and Billy Devan the actor singer. This is a quaint and delightful comedy that appeals to all. It is not often we have the opportunity of witnessing such fine sketches and those popular players are giving much enjoyment by their clever little productions and to-night Billy Devan sings two special songs "Last Night was the End of the World," and "If I Built a World for you." Harry Ingram has another stirring song. There are some real up to date pictures, and the latest selections by the Star orchestra. A fine show of first class quality.

PRESCRIPTION "A"

It is quite a daily occurrence to hear persons say: "Oh, what a feeling of distress I have after meals. Fullness of the stomach, heaviness and headache, I feel too tired to do anything. I have no heart to exert myself, and at times I care for nothing."
I often have a pain in the pit of my stomach, no appetite, my heart beats rapidly on the slightest exertion. I feel just as tired when rising in the morning as when retiring to bed. My sleep is often disturbed and I often awake with a sense of suffocation and a difficulty of again going to sleep. I have to be careful of what I eat, and my life seems a veritable burden.
Now, it seems a shame and a pity for persons to be suffering like that when it is in their power to get cured by taking a bottle of Prescription "A". A sure cure for persons afflicted with stomach troubles. It can be obtained at—

Capt. Doggett, Portland Maine, and five members of the crew of Gloucester fishing schooner Olympia, went down with the craft when she was rammed off Sable Island in a dense fog yesterday by the Warren Line steamer Sagamore. The Sagamore arrived at quarantine from Liverpool last night with eight survivors of the sunburn, tan, and smarting skin with fresh halibut from fishing trip. She is owned by Sylvanus Smith Co., of Gloucester. Those lost besides Capt. Doggett were John L. Doggett, his son also of Portland; William Sullivan, East Port Maine; Rainey Doucette, Gloucester; Frank Banner, East Port Maine; Fred Train, Portland. The Sagamore was groping her way at slow speed through heavy fog when the accident occurred. The Olympia, aboard which all but the men on watch, were asleep in their bunks, was pierced abreast the mainmast and foundered within a few minutes. One of Captain Doggett's two sons, Frank, of Gloucester, was among the eight to reach the steamer's side; the other son, John, went to death with his father. Michael Flaherty, of Newfoundland, was among the saved.

The Servant Problem.

In view of the ever-increasing difficulty of obtaining and retaining satisfactory domestic servants it is highly important to adopt every means which will reduce the work of the house.

It has been proved by the experience of many that the use of gas for cooking, heating and hot water supply, makes it possible to do with fewer servants, easier to keep those you have, and a less serious matter to have none.—June 10, eod, tf

Green With Envy.

Because we gave the facts of the tax case in Tuesday's paper the Herald man shows his jealousy as usual and gives vent to it in his own gentlemanly style with the cant phrase, "You're dead a month." Those who had to do with P. T. not so long ago when he was getting about sideways like a crab could size him up better. A little while ago the Herald published something about foxes, but the true story we gave of a different matter altogether aroused his envy, and hence his hysterics.

The Police Court.

One drunk was discharged.
Two seamen for desertion were put on board their vessel.
Four boys charged with the larceny of a quantity of goods, the property of Mr. T. J. Allan, pleaded guilty and were let go on suspended sentence; the parents of the lads had to sign bonds.
Two butchers summoned for breaches of the Municipal Regulations had to pay costs.
The case against a man for assaulting and refusing to support his wife was dismissed.

League Football, St. George's Field, 7 o'clock this evening, B. I. S. vs. Casuals.—Jun 19, 11

BRUCE PASSENGERS.—The S. S. Bruce arrived at Port aux Basques at 6:25 a.m. to-day bringing J. W. Keating, J. A. Messervy, John M. Kennedy and a few second class.

KYLE SAILS.—The S. S. Kyle left St. John's at 1 p.m. to-day for Labrador taking a large freight and passengers H. H. Smythe, F. C. Grant, and a few second class.

SMASHED HER PROPELLER.—When the S. S. Sagona was going into St. Pierre this trip she met with an accident, going up on the breakwater and smashed three of her propeller blades. She will be docked here to get three new blades.

SALMON FISHING.—Mr. G. R. Moulton, of Burgeo, who was salmon fishing at Grandy's Brook, last week, caught a salmon that weighed twenty pounds. It took Mr. Moulton over two hours to land it. Salmon are plentiful at this spot.

MORE SMALLPOX.—Two new cases of smallpox were reported to the Health Authorities last evening. The patients are John Hillyar, aged 19, of Warberry Street, and Mary Farrell, aged 20, of Allendale Road. Both have gone to Hospital.

YESTERDAY'S EXCURSIONS.—By the excursion train at 2:30 p.m. yesterday about 125 persons left here for different places as far as Kelligrewa. Quite a number went by bus and carriage to Bowring Park and other rural retreats and a large number left the city.

Here and There.

PATIENT FOR HOSPITAL.—Leah Hutchings arrived here by the shore train to-day from Spaniard's Bay and was taken to Hospital by Mr. White-way. She is 12 years old and one leg is crippled. The little one took a sudden pain in the limb some time ago and can barely walk with the aid of a stick.

Yesterday in Walsh's Lane, just east of the recent disastrous Allan fire, the chimney of Fitzgerald's house ignited and blazed up. Mr. Peter Power mounted to the roof and gave it what he calls the "toothache cure" a mixture of salt and water. Whether it cures the toothache or not it effectually quenched the blaze.

NEW FRUITS AND VEGETABLES BY THE FLORIZEL.—Wine Sap Apples, California Oranges, Bananas, Table Cherries, Lemons, Celery, Cucumbers, Tomatoes, New Carrots, New Parsnips, New York Butchers' Corned Beef at W. E. BARNES. Telephone 379.—11

At 4:45 p.m. yesterday an alarm of fire from box 32 brought the Western and Central firemen to the residence of Mrs. Capt. Daniel Scanlan, New Gower Street. Mrs. Scanlan was absent from her home, and neighbors saw smoke issuing from crevices in the clapboards. This was in a little pantry on the second flat of the hallway where coal is kept. Some papers and old rags were on fire and the discoverer of the blaze kicked open the door quenched the incipient blast with a pail of water. How the paper, etc., became ignited is a mystery.

N. & M. Smith.

As regards the telegraphic despatch published elsewhere, with reference to N. & M. Smith, of Halifax, it is hard to get any definite statement at this end as to the actual intention of the principals of the firm. The statement contained in the despatch was taken from a Halifax paper and the rumor had been about that city for some time. It is quite likely however we learn, that the Smith couple of Halifax will be curtailing their business in Halifax and it is not unlikely that as a result the Smith Co. of this city may enlarge its operations and sphere of influence. The principal of the Halifax firm, we hear, has not been paying much attention to the fish business. He is a director of several large corporations doing business in Canada, including the Halifax Tramway, which were recently purchased by Montreal and Halifax people. Whatever changes are made in Halifax, will not affect the Smith Co. here, as they are a limited liability company, incorporated under the laws of Newfoundland. The Telegram called on Mr. Hickman, at the Smith Co.'s offices here this morning, but he was not prepared to make any statement as to the intentions of his friends and co-workers in the Nova Scotia capital.

Antiquity of the Gaelic Language.

Before Apollo had a lute, Mair than a hundred year, Macgregor played his ain bagpipes, His Heelant clans to cheer, He had a boat, too, of his ain, Made out o' Heelant wud, Which saved at the Macgregor's freen's Frae droonin' at the flood.

For you must know the Gaelic tongue Was spoken in Glen Eden, And Adam wrote his Heelant songs The time his sheeps are feedin' And Mrs. Adam's snare was Grant— She came from Abergeddie: She was a poetess, and wrote "The Birks o' Aberfeldy."

Moreover, too, old Tubal Cain— His name was Tubal Dhu, But was misprinted in the Book When the printen had got fou'— He was a balcksmith till his trade, And made the first claymore: For ye, he made the coat o' mail That Noah's father wore.

And Samson, too— that's more o' Greek— His name was Gilderoy, He felled a bullock with his neive When he was just a boy, They sent him off to Stirling jail 'I my little means his might; He walked off with the gates and all At the dead o' night.

And that's not all— our Heelant chiefs Have all got pagan names, Such as Achille— pless my soul!— The more the bunning shame! Fingal was Aja, or the like, O-sian they made a Tartan; Macgregor was— who can tell what— 'Twas something about Spartan.

There's no use talking about Greek, It's just a word o' gabble— A portion of the Gaelic tongue Spoiled at the Toor o' Babel, The Greeks, you see, were no't a clan; Although of the same bone, But just a sort o' laborin' men, That carried bricks and stone.

For instance there's the "blind" now It's ruined altogether, 'Twas first writ in Gaelic tongue, By Homer in Bautilier, The Greeks they got it at the last! And spoilt it as you see Then swore that Homer was a Greek— An most tremendous lee!

And no doubt you would like to know Where fair Glen Eden stood; Och hone! It was the bonnie place Before the awful flood. A weel, 'twas just in Inverness, Some say 'twas in Argyll; There's no use fectin' quot a word— 'Twas the Heelants all the while Montreal Star.

A Strange Find.

This morning a man named William Hickey, while passing near Waterford River, near the trestle bridge, took out of the water a man's pants, vest, coat and singlet. Hickey immediately reported the matter to the police station. Const. O'Neill, who was dispatched to make enquiries, as it was thought at first they were part of the clothes that were stolen from Allan's store, found no owner for them. Hickey did hear of any one missing any. The garments are in good condition, fairly new, but appears to have been in the water a long while. The police think that the clothes were thrown out by some party who had sickness at home.

Tourist Traffic.

There are thirty-one round trippers on board the Red Cross liner Florizel this trip. The next trip from New York every room in the ship will be occupied by tourists, who have already booked their passage. The Stepano, which is due here next week, will also be filled with American people. It is expected that the tourist traffic by the Red Cross boats this year will be nearly double the number of previous years.

FURNACE LINE.—The s.s. Digby is due here to-morrow night from Liverpool. The s.s. Kanawha sailed last night for Halifax.

STUDENTS ARRIVE.—Nineteen boys and girls, who had been attending the school for the blind, deaf and dumb at Halifax, arrived by the Florizel to-day to spend their summer holidays with their friends. The school will reopen the first of September, when the students will return.

The bark, Minnie, Capt. Wakeham, arrived here at 8 p.m. yesterday from Barbadoes, after a run of 17 days. The vessel is molasses laden to A. Goodridge & Sons, and would have made the run up in the record time of 12 days but that after the 6th day out she was becalmed and this lasted for 5 days. She brought up 3 colored men from Barbadoes to go to Sydney for work.

BOWING SHIPS.—The s.s. E. Fortin left Channel at 11.15 a.m. to-day, coming this way. The s.s. Prospero sails on Saturday for the northward.

The Norwegian barque Pharos, Captain Bie, arrived to-day, 33 days from Buenos Ayres, and reports passing through a number of icebergs on the outer edge of the Grand Banks. The discovery that Princess Patricia has written a book dealing with her experiences in Canada and the States, has upset the Royal Household. It was not long finished before Queen Mary got hold of it, and still has it. The Princess wants it back, but the contents are said to have irritated the Queen, who desires its destruction. The Princess loaned it to a friend, who showed it to Lady Fortescue, Lady-in-Waiting, and it was shown by her to the Queen.

HALIFAX, June 18.
It is announced that N. & M. Smith, wholesale fish merchants, will cease doing business here in a few months. For some five years they have been conducting a business in St. John's, and gradually have been swinging their business to that port, as they found they could operate there more successfully. This will mean a big loss to Halifax, as the firm employed over 100 men during the busy season, and half that number throughout the year. The firm owns two large waterfront properties, also the two large Cronan wharves in Upper Water St.

Great improvements have been made recently in Zeppelins, both in speed and stability. The Count believes that in good weather the voyage should not last more than three days. The German government are favourably disposed, and if the trial is made, will probably station several warships in the Atlantic to render assistance.

The Marconi Shares Matter in Parliament

Special to Evening Telegram.

LONDON, June 18.
For the first time for many years British Cabinet Ministers were compelled to-day to defend their personal honesty before Parliament. Attorney General Isaacs and Chancellor Lloyd George excused their dealings in American shares on the floors of the House, and the final scene in Marconi affairs their political enemies had attempted to magnify into a scandal rivalling the Panama debate, was tense and dramatic. The galleries were filled with Peers and diplomats, all seats and standing room on the floors were occupied. The two Ministers admitted they had acted thoughtlessly and mistakenly, although without dishonest intentions, and regretted their failure to divulge all facts when they had made their denials to the House last October, of buying English Marconi shares. Having finished their defence, in deference to the tradition that the House should be left to discuss their conduct without the embarrassment and their presence, they walked from the Chamber together. A great cheer from their followers followed, members standing on benches waving handkerchiefs and papers. The resolution, introduced by George Cave, Unionist, in behalf of the Opposition which brought about the debate, went no further in its course, than to express the regrets of the House at the transaction of the ministers and the lack of frankness displayed by them towards the House. By expressing their regret and thereby agreeing with the resolution, the two ministers spiked the guns of their bitterest opponents who regarded the case as an opportunity to make political capital. This course made practically a tame ending to the fierce controversy and was apparently a result of an agreement between party leaders to protect the good name of parliament. Liberals were threatening to resurrect all the buried shortcomings of Conservative Ministers. Hicks Beach's sale of Salisbury Plain to the government for manoeuvring grounds, the Chamberlain family interests in Kynoch armament works during the African war and directorships held by other ministers in firms making contracts with governments, from almost forgotten graves. Two more different types than the ministers before the bar, could not be imagined. Sir Rufus Isaacs with clear cut scholarly and ascetic features and low toned voice of a Priest; Lloyd George, whom aristocrats look upon contemptuously as the Welsh Socialist and as always theatrical and emotional. The Attorney General's statement of case was like that of a judge on the bench. He emphasized his desire to take all responsibility for tempting the Chancellor of the Exchequer and Lord Murray of Ellbank into the affair. Lloyd George could not refrain from denouncing the journalists who had spread rumors of corruption, and said although the charge of corruption had been exploded, the deadly after-damp remains and the noxious fumes are poisoning the blood of the people, not engaged in considering minor charges. I am conscious of having done nothing to bring any stain on the honor of ministers of the lessy, I acted carelessly, I acted mistakenly, but I acted innocently, openly, honestly. That is why I am content to place myself with confidence in the hands, not merely of my political friends, but of all members of this great assembly.

Has Disaster Occurred?

Yesterday afternoon the appended message was received by the Minister of Fisheries, sent by Mr. J. H. Badcock, at Cow Head:—

"The following articles were picked up yesterday morning by fishermen and presumably are from a vessel of 50 to 60 tons register, and apparently result from a collision: one patent fog horn, a cabin half-door with portion of brass hinges attached, a strip of moulding from the inside of a cabin, about 12 feet long; a glass rack and end of plank painted white, about 4 feet long and 2 1/2 thick. Fishing boats report passing through lots of floating debris at the same time. The wind is still heavy from the north-east, with a big sea, and no boats are out to-day."

No further particulars were received up to last night, but it is feared some vessel has met with disaster.

Let the Good News Travel Broadcast into Every Home, that on Monday, June 16th, C. L. MARCH CO., Ltd., BEGINS THEIR JUNE Furniture Sale!

No explanation or elaboration of this Furniture Sale idea is necessary. People already know what it is. The preceding semi-annual events held at the C. L. March Co's. Store have proved to the satisfaction of even the most skeptical that the very best class of Furniture can be bought here now at decisively lower prices than it usually brings. In other words, the person that has a certain sum of money to spend in furniture can get one-third more furniture one-third better, or that person can save one-third in cost.

Encouraged by the splendid success of past sales, and having full confidence that the public understands and realizes the economic features of the event, we have by far outdone all past records by assembling thousands of pieces of the most excellent furniture that the factory could produce—to be disposed of this month. The scope of this furniture movement covers the requirements of every home, whether cottage or mansion. There are magnificent pieces and sets of the finest woods, carved and finished with elaborate care.

But the backbone of the event is of course the vast array of furniture of the moderate kind, which the average home demands—substantial, well-built furniture that gives comfort and satisfaction through years of steady service. Come and inspect the furniture at your leisure, and feel at perfect liberty to ask all the questions you like without incurring the slightest obligation to buy. Out-of-town folks will find it to their advantage when in town to see us. Young people getting married should certainly see us.

Life In An Ice Tunnel

British Explorers' Year On A Glacier.

The first account has reached this country of the experiences of Mr. Frank Wild and seven companions, all under thirty, who, forming the second base of Dr. Mawson's Antarctic Australian expedition, lived on a glacier for a year, and discovered a great tract of land, with 350 miles of coastline. This land, which probably extends to the Pole itself, has been named Queen Mary's Land.

Speaking to Reuter's representative, Mr. Wild said: "We prepared for a winter in our glacier home. We dug a tunnel with caves to hold our stores, and this was entered by means of a trap-door on the top, raised above the snow. We had regular routine meals at stated hours, work in morning, and afternoon off, and we amused ourselves with hockey, football and skiing in fine weather, and chess, draughts, and cards when unable to venture out. Every Sunday I conducted Divine Service in the morning, and we did nothing except essential camp work.

7,000 Emperor Birds.

"In August we again made preparations for sledging, one party of three going eastward and another to the west. The latter surveyed all the coast line to the point reached by the German expedition of 1902. On one trip it did 510 miles at an altitude of from 2,000 to 3,000 feet. This party discovered the largest emperor penguin rookery ever recorded. This was on an island sixty-five miles west of our glacier, but, and here were congregated some 7,000 young emperor birds in addition to innumerable ordinary penguins.

Falling down crevasses was more or less common and we all got grazed and bruised, while once Mr. A. D. Watson was down a crevasse for 20 minutes before we hauled him out. Our worst experience was in October, when the western party was laid up for seventeen days in a blizzard, the longest on record. I had never before experienced one of more than nine days. It is difficult to imagine what it meant for three men to be imprisoned in a tent six feet across which got gradually smaller with the piled-up snow outside. There was no room to lie straight and nothing to read. Sixteen hours out of the 24, we spent in sleep. At the end of the blizzard we were as weak as kittens, but it is extraordinary how soon one picks up. I have known cases where a man will gain five or six pounds in weight after one meal.—Daily Mail.

Motor Polo Fiasco

Excitement That Survived Only Five Minutes.

The roar of open exhausts and the scream of gears instead of the thud of hoofs and the creak of saddles resounded over the third polo ground at Ranelagh on Saturday when Mr. R. C. Klegin's team played the first game of motor-polo seen in Europe. A very large crowd had gathered to witness what everyone expected to be the most thrilling thing known since Ranelagh was founded. The excitement survived about five minutes of the game. It was amusing for about ten minutes more, and at the end of a quarter of an hour numbers of the spectators strolled away to the tea tables.

The "teams" consisted of one car each—practically stripped chassis, with a seat for the driver and a long step for the player. A strong hoop over the head of the driver protected him in the event of an upset. This actually occurred only once, when, after a terrific skid round in the attempt to get back to the ball, a car overturned close to the boundary. Flames burst from the engine as the petrol began to spread, but the fire was very quickly put out and the car was soon in action again.

Uncanny Driving.

Though the actual game quickly proved to be quite uninteresting, the driving of the cars will not easily be forgotten as a spectacle of marvellous coolness and almost uncanny skill. At the beginning the ball was placed in the centre of the ground and the two cars rushed at it from their respective ends. Just as the spectators were holding their breath in expectation of a collision they skimmed past each other "with just daylight between them," as one enthusiast expressed it.

When, as very often happened, neither man hit the ball, the crowd saw superb exhibitions of lightning turns and reversing. One was forcibly reminded of Mr. Kipling's story of the poly pony "The Maltese Cat," who "wheeled like a coochachaer on a pin." These skeleton machines, pouring smoke and making a noise like Gatling guns, spun round in their own length, darted away, wheeled again, and reversed in a wonderful manner. But the game seems scarcely likely to hold the attention of an English crowd, though it might possibly be more successful at the Crystal Palace than at Ranelagh.—Daily Mail.
