A Great Intrigue, —OR, THE— Mistress of Darracourt.

CHAPTER XXVII.
The marquis frowned.
"A man outside," he said, coldly.
"You are quite wrong, Mr. Sklake. I owe no man but yourself anything—to speak of."
"I beg your lordship's pardon most humbly," said Sklake. "I thought by the look of him—but I beg pardon, my lord," and he took himself off.

The marquis rang for his man and got dressed quickly. He must pay in Lucille's check at once to meet the one he had given to Sklake, and he went down the great staircase, the waiters and footmen drawing back against the wall and bowing. He had quite forgotten about the man Sklake had mentioned, but suddenly he saw a man standing by the portico crying the entrance hall with a sidelong glance. The marquis looked at him with a strange feeling of having seen him before, but he could not remember where.

His glance just rested upon the tall, lean face and black moustache of the fellow, then he said to one of the footmen:
"Call a hansom, please."
No sooner were the words out of his mouth than the stranger man darted forward and beckoned a cab, and then getting in front of the footman threw open the doors. The footman, thinking it might be some acquaintance of the marquis, drew back, and the marquis got into the cab.

As he did so the remembrance of the man who got into his way as he entered the carriage on the day of the wedding flashed upon him, and he looked at the man keenly.
"Where to, my lord?" inquired Mr. Sinclair, fixing his dark eyes upon the marquis.
"Ount's bank," he said, leaning back.
But the man still kept his hand upon the door, and thrusting his head forward, whispered:
"Can I have a word with your lordship?—name your own time."
With the head came a whiff of scented hair oil. The marquis frowned angrily.

Vigorol

If you want to feel well, bright and cheery, full of ambition; be able to move about quick and smartly—VIGOROL, the Great French Tonic, will brace you up—it cleanses the whole system. If the manufacturers could only impress this upon every one who does not feel as they ought to, the world would owe them a great gratitude; but all we can do is to ask you to try one bottle and see for yourself. You need a spring medicine—then take VIGOROL. Sold at all drug stores.

ship, far from it. What I want to say—
The marquis eyed him with the cool, steady gaze which made his handsome face particularly unpleasant.

"I don't know who you are," he said, quietly, but sternly. "and I don't want to talk to you. Be off, my good fellow, or I shall have to call a policeman."

Mr. Sinclair's face grew red in spots.
"Call a policeman!" he said, angrily. "Very well, call him! I'll tell him the business I've got with you, marquis, and you'll be ready to give me a hundred pounds down to keep my mouth shut."

The marquis let an oath slip through his thin lips.
"What is it you know, or think you know?" he said. "You are playing a dangerous game, fellow."

"I know the game I'm playing," said Mr. Sinclair, nodding confidently. "Give me 'at an hour, marquis."
"Very well," said the marquis, after a moment's rapid thought. "Call this evening at eight o'clock, and I will give you ten minutes; at the end of that time I shall probably give you in charge," he added with a smile.
"I'll chance that, marquis," said Mr. Sinclair, and stepping off the foot-board he told the cabman to drive on.

CHAPTER XXVIII.
Mr. Sinclair went home to Eden Row with visions of an immense fortune floating before his eyes; to him the air was full of castles. Being a famous tenor was a good thing, no doubt, but to have a nobleman like the Marquis of Merle under one's thumb was a great deal better.

The marquis looked at him steadily.
"You want to extort money," he said. "Take care, my friend!" and he smiled a particularly unpleasant smile. "The law has an uncomfortable knack of sending such gentlemen as you to Her Majesty's jails."

Mr. Sinclair nodded insolently.
"All right, my lord," he said, easily. "I knew you'd carry it with a 'igh hand, and was prepared for that. It ain't likely as a 'igh and noble gent like you would cave in at the first go off. But I tell you, as a true friend, you'd better give me a hinterview. As a true friend, mind you! It's better than being a henemy, my lord!"

And he had got the marquis so completely under his thumb!
"I've got him under the screw, and I'll keep him there till he's shelled out—how much?" he exclaimed, standing before the portrait of Marie Verner in his dingy room.

"How much shall I ask him, Marie? Half his fortune, or a quarter? Perhaps I'd better be moderate, and be satisfied with less! I should like to tell her and ask her advice; but no, half the pleasure would be gone! Wait till I've got—say five and twenty thousand pounds, and then I'll go to her, and say—"he struck a theatrical attitude, with his eyes turned up to the smirking picture—"Marie be'old your true and devoted lover! I am poor no longer! See, I pour my riches at your feet! Be mine!" He stalked up and down the room in an ecstasy of imagination. "Yes! she won't refuse me then. I can make a lady of her in downright earnest. After all, what's a tenor at a music hall? Nothing compared to a gentleman with five and twenty thousand pounds! I'll ask that sum, and I won't take less! Why should I? They are rolling in riches! I won't take less. And I'll bring that 'igh and 'aughty marquis to my feet! I'm a 'ellow, am I? And he'll send for the police, will he? Very well, we shall see!"

Long before eight o'clock he had dressed himself in his best clothes, consisting of a hideously light pair of lilac trousers with a black stripe down the side, a cutaway coat of dark claret, patent leather boots, and a silk hat with a broad turn-up brim. This attire, aided by a bright blue necktie, with a large brass pin, a thick chain of the same material, an unreal diamond ring, and a silver-top walking stick, completed what Mr. Sinclair considered a remarkably neat and effective "get up."
It was effective, certainly, for it nearly gave the porter at Merle's a fit when Mr. Sinclair walked into the hall and demanded to be taken to the Marquis of Merle.

"The Marquis of Merle!" repeated the porter, staring vacantly at the vulgar apparition, and his dismay was echoed by a couple of footmen and a waiter who stood near. "You want to see the Marquis of Merle! Good heavens! my man, the marquis can't see such as you at this hour. If you have got a bill or anything, send it in the usual way."
Mr. Sinclair got red and drew himself up.
"It's the chap who talked to the marquis this morning, as he was getting into the cab," remarked one of the footmen; "I saw him."
"Yes, you saw me talkin' to my friend, the marquis, my good man," said Mr. Sinclair, pompously. "And you'll hear more than you care to do if you don't take my card up," and he handed it to the man.
The footman took it gingerly, and glanced from one to the other of his fellows dubiously.
"Perhaps it's some racing man," said one of them, struck with a bright idea. "Take his card up, Jeames. If it ain't right, the marquis will soon have him kicked out."

Dizzy Headaches Cured in One Night.

If Troubled With Head Fullness, Ringing Noises, Specks Before the Eyes, the Stomach is at Fault.

Quick Relief and Certain Cure Came From Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

"I had terrible pains in my head. My appetite faded away, and when I did eat anything it disagreed and made me very sick for hours after each meal. The pains in my stomach and the dizzy headaches I had to endure almost set one wild. Sometimes attacks came on so severely that I had to go to bed. I would feel so worn, depressed and utterly miserable that for hours I wouldn't speak to my family. My system was poisoned with wastes and nothing helped me till I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Without this grand system-cleaning remedy I would still be sick, but each day brought me better health and spirits. I was cured and made strong, ruddy, and healthy, and will always use and recommend Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

"MRS. B. C. CURRAN, Westport P. O."
Thousands who are in an ailing, low state of health need nothing else but Dr. Hamilton's Pills. 25c. per box, or five boxes for $1.00, at all druggists and storekeepers, or the Catarthozone Company, Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Ont.

the porter, staring vacantly at the vulgar apparition, and his dismay was echoed by a couple of footmen and a waiter who stood near. "You want to see the Marquis of Merle! "Perhaps it's some racing man," said one of them, struck with a bright idea. "Take his card up, Jeames. If it ain't right, the marquis will soon have him kicked out."

This was not pleasant for Mr. Sinclair to hear, but he bore it as well as he could.

"I don't think the marquis will have me kicked out, young man," he said. "Just you take my card up, and I'll teach you better manners than to insult a friend of the Marquis of Merle."
Too astounded to argue any longer, the footman ascended the stairs slowly with the card.

The marquis was dressed for dinner, and seated in a small room which had been set aside as his writing room, study, or private room. In his well-cut evening dress, his snowy shirt-front, with his single diamond glittering in it, with his pale, clear face, he looked the model of an aristocrat from the white, shapely hand to the smooth, close-cut hair.

There was not a line upon his face, not a tremor upon his lips, although since the time he had driven away from the man, he had looked forward to this interview and wondered what evil it boded him.

He took the card, glanced at it, and nodded carelessly.
"Show the man up."

The footman went downstairs with a grin.
"The marquis will see you, my man," he said, condescendingly.
Mr. Sinclair reddened furiously. "Don't you call me 'my man!'" he said, passionately. "I'll teach you; but wait—only wait!" and he clinched his hat in his hand and walked upstairs.

The marquis was reading the evening paper, and lowered it to his knees as Mr. Sinclair entered. A faint smile of amusement and disgust played in his eyes as they rested on the extraordinary "get up" of his visitor; and with almost good-natured contempt—if good nature could possibly be attributed to the marquis—he said:

"Now, my man, I have kept my promise. I will give you ten minutes—quite long enough for you to tell any reasonable number of lies in—at the end of that time I shall ring the bell, and hand you over to the police!"

He did not ask Mr. Sinclair to sit down, so that gentleman, putting his hat on the ground, took a chair and wiped his forehead. The marquis leaned back in an attitude of perfect indifference, and eyed him with a smiling contempt.

"Now, sir, begin, if you please," he said.
Mr. Sinclair polished his face and pulled down his cuffs.
"I've got a story to tell you, my lord, that will astonish you," he commenced.

"No doubt," assented the marquis; "but, please remember, I allow you ten minutes only to astonish me in. I dine at half-past eight."

"All right, marquis," said Mr. Sinclair, with a nod. "Ten minutes will do—less, a minute, would do it, but I'm not going to hurry. Now, first of all, perhaps you'll be good enough to tell me your name?"

The marquis was now convinced that he had a lunatic to deal with, and glanced towards the bell. Mr. Sinclair read the glance, and nodded, reassuringly.

"Oh, it's all right, my lord. I'm sane enough, as I'll prove to you directly. Perhaps you will oblige by answering my question."

"You are an impertinent rascal, my friend," he said. "My name is Vyvian Bertrand Devenge, but I am usually called Marquis of Merle."

"Ah!" said Mr. Sinclair. "Called Marquis of Merle. Nicely put—"

The marquis half rose, but leaned back, with an air of resignation. He had brought this upon himself. He ought to have given the man in charge in the morning! Well, he would hear what the fellow had to say.

"And as Marquis of Merle, you inherited the Hall and the late marquis' money—there wasn't much of it, though."

The marquis stared at him haughtily under his half-closed eyelids.
"You father was bit by the same mad dog as yourself, wasn't he, my lord? Fond of shuffling the cards, eh?"

The marquis eyed him in silence.
"I'm only stating the truth, marquis when I say that he'd have been ruined before you was born if it hadn't been for your mother being an heiress. She was a Miss De Vere, marquis?"

The marquis rose, and laid his hand upon the bell.

Holding Our Own Good.

The despatch from the Secretary of the Colonies, Rt. Hon. L. Harcourt, tells us that the Allies are holding their own well in France. This is satisfactory news, although it is not as jubilant as some of the French reports, it should give us satisfaction. So far as we can judge the Allies are allowing the German forces to beat hard upon them, and are directing their efforts to holding the lines and are trying to do what they can to turn the flank of Von Kluck's army. It is evident if this is the case, the German forces must be paying a heavy penalty in life and limb for their attacks, and that the process will result in a wearing down of the German armies at a greater rate than that of the forces of the Allies. It also means that time is being gained to allow the vast forces of the Russians to be brought to bear on the Germans in the Eastern theatre of war. Moreover, all time gained gives the further advantage of the transport of Indian and Colonial troops to the front, and adds to the efficiency of the armies which Kitchener is forming and moulding in the British Isles. We should also keep in mind, what we have mentioned already several times, that it is dangerous to give particulars of recent operations and particularly of the movements of troops in the theatres of war, all such information given out finds its way to the German headquarters and tells them exactly what they have to checkmate. No nation has availed of such sources of information to the extent the Germans did in 1866 and in 1870, and it is only reasonable to recognize that they are now availing of all information that may be indiscreetly given away. The lives of hundreds of thousands of men are at stake. We are fighting for our lives and our independence and the liberty of our people and our children, and we must wait to see the results and not be over anxious to be posted in detail as to how that result is being achieved.

DESPATCH FROM SECRETARY HARCOURT ON SITUATION.

His Excellency the Governor received the following message from the Secretary of State for the Colonies: To Governor, St. John's, Sept. 30th, 1914. Following from Press Bureau: Situation in France practically unchanged. Allies left has had some very heavy fighting but are holding their own well. Near Tsing Tau allied forces have occupied all high ground overlooking enemy's main line of defence.

(Sgd.) HARCOURT.

The Fish Situation

During the past two months the quantity of fish that has been shipped to foreign markets is considerably less than in normal years. This arose partly from the lateness of the catch due to ice conditions in the early months of the fishing season, largely to which paralyzed banking, upset exchange and dislocated trade. It was partly local and partly foreign. The purchasing power of people in the foreign markets has been lessened by the war. In Brazil, the flotation of a loan of two hundred million dollars failed. The object of the loan was to make a funded or permanent debt of a number of floating debts, to set finances generally straight, and to continue development works. Brazil is a country rich in resources, but the government there and the people generally have been over-spending, and the failure of the big loans has upset things generally. One of the effects has been failure to pay interest on their debt, another has been the depreciation of their currency. The milraes fell in value from 32 cents to 22 cents. The effect of this is seen on the number of milraes it takes to purchase a cask of fish quoted at 42 shillings. Instead of paying 31 milraes, they are called upon to pay 45. This must naturally affect the purchasing power of the people. The tendency there will be twofold, to limit the purchasing and to lower the prices offered. An exporter told us if he could continue to realize $42 in cash, he could continue to pay six dollars a quintal. Otherwise, it will be seen that it will require most careful handling of the export here to maintain these prices in Brazil, to which our efforts should be directed, as far as it is judicious. In Italy, too, the difficulty of marketing is great owing to banking conditions. Fish importers have difficulty in getting cash owing to banks being authorized to hold up a large percentage of the balances of depositors, and they find it difficult to get their notes taken as bankers in London, where the exchange against fish purchases is made, are shy at discounting their notes. This has its effect here on fish buyers who find it difficult to realize at once on the fish they place aboard for foreign shipment, as they have to use the usual normal facilities to keep up the stream of purchases from fishermen. These are factors which are adverse to the foreign markets.

The situation is exceedingly difficult and calls for co-operation of Government, bankers, merchants and fishermen. We must avoid panic skimping of fish in St. John's, and undercutting of merchant against merchant abroad. The Govt. should lend what aid they can by keeping in touch with the bankers who discount notes, the merchants who export, and the fishermen who sell to local merchants. They should hold conferences with representatives of these bodies, and if necessary lend what aid they can. The British Government has already taken steps in these directions and has pledged the national credit to the extent of $1,000,000,000 to aid banking and trade. It is the duty of the Government to study the steps taken by Lloyd George to relieve the situation at home. As the Daily News stated this morning: "The problem of the price of fish is a very serious one. All are interested in it. High prices mean less spending. Low prices involve strict economy, and sometimes poverty and suffering."

Pit Props.

We desire to direct the attention of our readers to the demand which exists for pit props for the coal mines of Great Britain. The stocks required are from 7 to 8 feet in length, with a diameter of two and a half inches at the small end. For some little time a gentleman has been here making contracts to supply these stocks to the Welsh collieries. At the time of the outbreak of the war, he was in Finland, looking after shipments from that country. The war has closed the Baltic and the supply from that country is cut off. The price offered we understand, is $3 per cord for sticks with the bark or rind off. The quantity required is large and at the present time there are experts on their way here to examine what our resources are in the way of supplying the demand. It will be remembered that at the last or previous session of the Legislature, the Crown Lands Act was temporarily amended in the interest of the Empire to permit of the export of pit props for the next year.

Daring Thefts.

Yesterday afternoon an intoxicated man named Finny entered at the rear of Bishop & Sons store and started to remove goods wholesale. After going over two flights of stairs he opened a window and threw out fifteen axes in a bundle and three rolls of felt. He then came down and picked up nine of the axes, which were all he could carry, and went off to sell them. The matter was immediately reported to the police by one of Bishop's employees, who had seen the seaman leave the premises with the goods in his possession. Const. Tobin saw the seaman and followed him to Dourings wharf and later caught him red-handed selling two of the axes on board the schr. Sarah Bell for 40 and 50 cents each. Finny was at once arrested and acknowledged his guilt. Seven of the axes, including the two that were sold, were recovered but two could not be accounted for. The accused was convicted this morning and will come up for sentence this afternoon.

Last night a teamster was arrested under warrant at the instance of Mr. P. H. Kershaw, chief steward of the s.s. Florizel, charged with the larceny of a horse valued at $85. The accused sold a horse to Kershaw and for which was paid $40 down, the balance to be paid after thirty days had expired. That was the agreement made. After twenty days the teamster said he could get a better price for the animal, which he had bought. His request was refused and he visited Mr. Kershaw's stable on the Portugal Cove Road and took away the horse. This case will be heard this afternoon. The hall door thief in his element again and several people in the vicinity of Hamilton Street have lost mats, coats and caps recently. Only last night a residence in the neighborhood mentioned was visited by a fellow who was very near being captured. The young outfit who was victimized of a considerable amount of money, as referred to exclusively in yesterday's Telegram, is still without his cash, but the police are working hard on the case and expect to run down their men shortly.

4,000 Rheims Refugees Expelled From Cellars.

London, Sept. 26.—Ward. Price, special correspondent of the New York Sun and London Daily Mail, in a despatch to-day from Rheims, says an English member of a champagne firm expelled four thousand refugees from the cellars, thus preventing an almost certain epidemic.

"Imagine," he says, "four thousand people of all ages, of both sexes, with ering, living for a whole week, night and day, in empty cellars intended merely for the storing of champagnes and ventilated naturally only sufficiently for that purpose, entirely without sanitary accommodation. "Conditions down there were frightful," said my English acquaintance. "There was another cellar below the one into which I went and there were more people there. They wanted me to go down and see them, but I would not. They gathered round me as I went in, but I made them all go over to one side and made them a little speech. "However, they would not budge, so I went to see the general. The general had eight gentlemen with fixed bayonets and we cleared them out. We are now going to have the place soaked with disinfectant."

Pope Pious Blessed Fighting Monks.

Bordeaux, Sept. 25.—One of the last acts of the late Pope Pius, says La Liberte, was to give his blessing to the Capuchin Monks who are fighting in the ranks of the French army. The Superior General of the Monks who obtained the blessing of the Pope is Father Venance, in civil life Paul Dodo, who was an old school mate of President Poincare at the Nancy High School.

AN EXCELLENT PHOTOGRAPH.

At the Holloway Studio to-day, our representative was shown a splendid picture of the Nfd. Reservists leaving the training ship Cayuga to board the Niobe. The photograph is an excellent one, as every man is shown clearly and can be easily recognized. The work is of the usual high order turned out by this studio, and will form a fitting souvenir of the departure of our sailor lads. As far as we can ascertain, it is the only picture of this subject to be had, and is the same as that shown at the Nickel Theatre recently.

Acoplane Capture Elates Allies.

London, Sept. 25.—The correspondent of the Daily Telegraph in France says: There is considerable elation in the Allies' line over the capture of five German aeroplanes by a French cavalry patrol.

"Twenty cavalymen, patrolling into a thickly wooded country entered a clearing where the rich prize awaited them. The aviators and a number of mechanics at the time were engaged in overhauling five Taube aeroplanes. The patrol made a dash to round up the lot, but met with fierce resistance and twelve cavalymen were killed before the aeroplanes were beaten. Their aeroplanes will never fly again.

A Battle.

By GEORGE FITCH,
Author of "At Good Old Slivash."

A battle is a wholesome case of justifiable homicide.

When one man kills another in a private quarrel he is hanged unless the crime occurred in this country, in which case he gets anywhere from a slap on the wrist to several years in prison. But when a man takes a rapid fire gun and shoots the vital up-holstering out of a hundred husbands and fathers in a battle he is promoted and gets a medal.

This is because it is patriotic and gallant to fight in battles and will be until nations have as much sense as individuals.

Man has been fighting battles ever since he was invented. But methods have changed a good deal. Five thousand years ago a warrior fitted a handle around a large stone and bashed in the heads of his enemies. Later on the sword was invented and thousands of men backed away at each other on the battlefield from sun-up until supper time, throwing the ground with arms, legs, ears and noses, which remained uncalled for after hostilities had ceased. Those were the days when a broad-shouldered man who could do a half-lawford or back-bone stroke with a twelve-pound sword hewed great holes in the enemies' ranks and became king, because nobody could object. The king business was conducted strictly on its merits in those times, and when a king got out of practice with his cutting tools he went into a sarcophagus in short order.

When gunpowder was invented all this was changed because a thin little man, with no ancestors, could shoot a hole in a perfectly good king with no effort at all. After this kings stayed in the background and made suggestions, while the common soldier shot each other into messy remains with rifles, mortars, cannon bombs, torpedoes, revolvers and Gatling guns.

Fifty years ago a battle was a grand sight and sound, but times have changed. A rifle now shoots two miles and a soldier lies all day in a ditch shooting into the invisible beyond, over a hill. At night a book-keeper checks him off and if there are enough soldiers alive to keep on firing a great victory has been won.

Battles are now fought over mines and under airships with machine guns which can mow down a forest, and a couple of good, hard scraps of machine gun has suspended hostilities until it can grow a new crop of soldiers. This is a good thing, because battles will soon become so fatal that brains will have to be used in their place in settling international disputes.

Household Notes

- Cold water soothes the pain of any sudden inflammation of the eye.
- Rust can be removed by boiling the garment in cream of tartar water.
- The paraffin paper which lines boxes is good to polish flatirons on.
- Fill half peaches with whipped cream and cover with grated macaroni.
- If an iron is allowed to get red hot it will never retain the heat as well again.
- If one or two green nasturtium seed pods are put in the catsup, it will not mould.
- Begin at the root of an onion, peeling it upward. The juice will not fly in your eyes.
- Never dust a silk hat with a brush, but wipe the dust off with a piece of velvet.
- When watering house plants, a little sweet milk added will often be a benefit to them.
- Dried lemon peel sprinkled over the coals will destroy any disagreeable odor in the house.
- Do not allow ashes to collect in the ashpan; they will cause the grate to burn out quickly.
- Rub the zinc-covered kitchen table with a cloth dipped in vinegar. It will keep it bright.
- Painted woodwork can be satisfactorily washed by dissolving baking soda in war water.
- Put a pair of old gloves in the shoe box to keep the hands clean when polishing shoes.
- The color of kid shoes can be restored by a mixture of good black ink and the white of an egg.
- Cayenne pepper sprinkled on every shelf and in every crevice is said to drive mice away.
- When frying oysters, try adding a little baking powder to the crumbs in which they are rolled.
- A pumice stone will remove any discoloration or burned or scorched spot on cooking utensils.
- The water in which unsalted rice has been boiled makes an excellent starch for lingerie waists.

Two Souls with but a Single Thought.

"Two souls with but a single thought,
Two hearts that beat as one."

After the betrothal it is perfectly natural to consider the HOME. The HOME is the important point in your married life. The cozier and the more comfortable the HOME, the happier are the conditions under which the couple lives. Let us furnish your Home as you want it. After the man has popped the question and the girl has said yes, then it's only a step to consideration of the Home; for the Home is in itself the biggest, most vital and most important part of the matrimonial venture.

When you come to this important consideration, bear in mind the big part this store has played in outfitting thousands of happy newlyweds. You will do better here than elsewhere. Why? Because we are the only people that have our Mattresses made by machinery in our own building, the only machines of its kind in the country. We also have our Springs made by the only weaver in the country, also the Oxford or Copper Wire. We are making our own Parlour Suites, thus saving considerable in cost. We have the Surface Oak finish for our furniture, which is the only thing of its kind here. Having the Factory in the same building we can handle all sizes of repairing, in fact you can choose your own coverings for Parlour Suite, Mattresses, etc., and have them made to order. We are, where possible, reducing the price, which should appeal to every housekeeper when in need of furniture. A trial order will convince.

PROCLAMATION!

By His Excellency SIR WALTER EDWARD DAVIDSON, Knight Commander of the Most Distinguished Order of St. Michael and St. George, Governor and Commander-in-Chief in and over the Island of Newfoundland and its Dependencies.

Whereas the British Empire is now at War with Germany and Austria; and whereas, after consultation with the Heads of the various Religious Denominations in this Colony I deem it meet and proper, and in keeping with the desire of our people, that a special date be set apart as a day of Universal Prayer and Supplication to Almighty God for the protection of the British Empire and the success of the British Arms and Allied Forces, and for the blessings of an honourable and lasting Peace;

And whereas I have ascertained from the Heads of the various Religious Denominations in this Colony that Sunday, the Eighteenth day of October next, would be a convenient day for such public prayers:

Wherefore I, the Governor, do hereby appoint and direct that Sunday, the Eighteenth day of October next, be observed throughout this Colony as a day of Universal Prayer and Supplication to Almighty God for the protection of the British Empire and for the success of the British Arms and Allied Forces, and for the blessings of an honourable and lasting Peace:

And whereas notice of this appointment may not be received in some of the remote settlements of the Colony before the said Eighteenth day of October;

Therefore I do further direct that in such cases such public devotions be observed on some other convenient day as early as possible after the receipt of this Proclamation as the various Clergy having jurisdiction in these remote settlements may respectively appoint.

Given under my Hand and Seal, at the Government House, St. John's, this 29th day of September, A.D. 1914.

By His Excellency's Command,
JOHN R. BENNETT,
Colonial Secretary.

Further Instructions for Newly-Weds

"Marian's whole object had been to help Mrs. Dale, the bride, and member of her college sorority. But she was to discover to her dismay that her remarks about married life and its problems had had quite the opposite effect.

One day, while Marian was strolling through the woods near the inn, she found Mrs. Dale seated alone on a rustic bench in a little glade, weeping quietly.

"Having a good cry?" she demanded good-naturedly, crossing to the other side. "It's good medicine for most feminine woes," she added, trying to appear philosophical.

Louise Dale looked up with a start. Recognizing the newcomer, she replied: "You must have a horrible opinion of me."

"What makes you say that?" asked Marian in surprise.

"I'm so thoroughly ashamed and disgusted with myself for talking to you about my husband as I have, that I can't look him in the face with a clear conscience," said the other gloomily. "I've been thinking it all over and wish to goodness I hadn't complained."

"Don't be uneasy," said Marian. "I'll never tell a soul. And it has done you good to discuss matters with me. Analysis of a matrimonial situation can't possibly do any harm. But a woman has to guard against too much brooding introspection. It's the worst thing that can happen to her. The thing to cultivate is a sense of humor. A thousand good laughs to one good cry is a pretty good ratio to maintain."

The weeping wife smiled through her tears.

"Sooner or later every wife has to learn," continued Marian. "That mighty few husbands can begin to fill every nook and cranny of their wives' lives. But that's no cause for being miserable. A woman has to learn to live her own life. That's the thing. And there's no reason why she can't do it without making a botch of her marriage. Every husband has to live two lives: his business life and his married life. The two are separate and distinct, although they interlock. The wise wife does not interfere with that other life of her husband. She knows that upon his success in the other life, or business life, depends the financial stability of the marriage partnership. As long as the man is the family's money-getter, he is forced to live two lives. And as long as a wife has a mind and an intellect, she must find breathing space for it and live her own individual life, as well as her married life."

"You're a regular feminist," answered the former school teacher. "And incidentally, I think you are right."

"A feminist," replied Marian, "is the woman who thinks not only of and for her husband, but of and for herself. Remember, it is only man's law that a woman should love, honor, and obey her husband. But it is God's law that she shall live up to; at least try to live up to, her own best and highest instincts. If she fails to do this, she betrays herself, which is the worst crime I know anything about."

"Where did you learn all these things?" asked the bride, absorbed with interest in the other's remarks.

"I have never thought these things out, I wish I had."

"Oh, my bumps have taught me a good deal," returned Marian. "There's no teacher like a good hard bump."

"I wish you'd talk to Dan like this some time," said Louise. "I think it would do him good."

At the Crescent.

A Gem Special Feature in two reels will be presented at the Casino Picture Palace to-day. "The Celebrated Case" is founded on an incident of the Battle of Fontenoy and is well known in St. John's being played by our own amateurs, all the characters are familiar. Count De Mornay, Jean Renand, Lazare, O'Rourke, etc., etc., and all are splendidly portrayed in this grand feature. "John the Waggoner," is a very fine picture of western life with a gripping story. "Billy the Wise Guy" is a clever comedy. "Dublin, Ireland," is a grand scenic picture showing everything of interest in and around Dublin. Mr. Frederick Knights, Boston (tenor) sings "Queen of the Earth," by Piniuti, a song he made famous in the opera "Isle of Champagne." Prof. Spencer presides at the piano and has some special music arranged for this show.

Sulphate of Ammonia.

St. John's Gas Light Company. Dear Sir—I have analyzed a sample of Sulphate of Ammonia made at your Works, and I found 20.6 per cent. of NITROGEN, Sulphates of Ammonia and Nitrate of Soda are the two principal Nitrogen manure. Sulphate of Ammonia is less soluble than Nitrate of Soda, consequently it is a safer manure to use during a wet season.

Yours truly,

WORLD WIDE MELO-DRAMA.

At the Nickel Theatre.

The Nickel Theatre gives another choice programme of clear, sharp, sticklerless pictures this evening. The entertainment has been specially selected, and patrons are assured an enjoyable time. Great interest is centered in the two reel melo-drama "L'Article 47," which is produced after the famous French play. It is a thrilling story and the acting is first class. This melo-drama which has a world-wide reputation was staged in St. John's some years ago by the Fleete Stock Company and was seen by nearly all our theatre goers; all were delighted with it, and are now waiting the opportunity to see it at the movies.

"The Drummer's Honeymoon" and "Fanny Joins the Forces" are comedies which will put all in the best of spirits.

"His Secret" is a very clever drama by Witt C. Cairns will repeat "Soldiers of the King" to-night.

The entire entertainment is up to the high standard the Nickel always gives. Nothing but the best in pictures, song and music is found at this popular house of entertainment.

More Fires.

Fires provoke immediate sympathy for the sufferer and also thankfulness for personal escape. Another thought should be whether one is personally and sufficiently protected? An insurance policy with Tokio Johnson would provide for you this kind of security and at small expense. Have you enough insurance?

Hr. Grace Notes.

The very high wind yesterday caused much damage with fences, trees, etc., and not a few garden-owners were forced to break the Sabbath by doing a little fence-repairing. The most damage was done in the neighborhood of Bannerman Street, where, owing to falling trees, the electric wires and three poles came down with a crash. Mr. Gorman, the company's manager here, immediately set to work and had damages repaired, and the lights on at night as usual. Well done, Jim!

We regret to hear of the death of our old friend Head Constable Winslow. The many friends of the family here sympathize with the bereaved family.

It is just seven years ago to-day that we commenced to write items to the Telegram.

Mrs. Quinn, mother of Messrs. Edward and William Quinn, died on Saturday night after a long illness. The funeral took place yesterday afternoon.

From letters received from Murray's Harbor, Labrador, we learn that at the time of writing (Sept. 20), the weather was very unfavorable for fish-making, but the writer expected to be leaving for home about the first week in October.

Another severe wind storm visited us last night. The wind this time was from the eastward, accompanied by a downpour of rain.

Farewell Entertainment to Volunteers.

The Masonic Fraternity will entertain their brethren who have enlisted in the First Newfoundland Regiment at the Temple to-night. A special musical programme has been prepared for the occasion.

At the C.I.B. Armoury the Legion of Frontiersmen will give a farewell party to the comrades of whom a large number have enlisted. The entertainment will consist of a concert followed by a supper, with an interesting toast list.

On to-morrow night at the T. A. Armoury the Catholic Cadet Corps will entertain the representatives of that Brigade, who have enlisted to smoking concert and entertainment.

ICEBERG IN THE OFFING.

Yesterday afternoon a very large iceberg was in the offing, and this morning was at the mouth of the harbour.

A few crumbs of bread added to the scrambled eggs will improve the taste and make the eggs go farther.

Patriotic Concert.

The concert in aid of the Women's Patriotic Fund, held at the Casino Theatre last night, was attended by a capacity house and proved an unqualified success. The affair was under the patronage of His Excellency the Governor and Lady Davidson, and the programme was a most patriotic one. To Mrs. Chater, under whose direction the programme was arranged, and to Mrs. Rossley, who arranged the beautiful tableaux, much credit is due for the excellence of last night's entertainment. All the performers acquitted themselves creditably, while the novel and patriotic features introduced contributed towards making the evening a most enjoyable one. The vocal numbers were encored again and again, and the audience sang the choruses enthusiastically.

The following is the programme:— Overture of National Airs, arranged by Mr. Gordon Christian. (By the Orchestra).

Prologue, Britannia—Mrs. Herbert Outerbridge. (Written by Mrs. Brown).

The "Marcellaine"—Sung by Mr. R. H. Tait.

The Russian National Anthem—Full Chorus.

"Angus McDonald"—Sung by Miss Louise Anderson.

"The Maple Leaf"—(Canadian Trio)—Miss Arnauld, The Misses Anderson, Tommy Atkins—Sung by Mr. H. H. Godridge, (and Ladies' Military Chorus).

"All the Nice Girls Love a Sailor"—Sung by Miss Emily Mars, (with Naval Chorus).

"Up, Brave Boys of Terra Nova"—Chorus.

National Dances of England, Ireland, Scotland, and a peep of Wales.—By Miss Florence Winter, Sailor's Hornpipe; by Miss Rossley, Irish Jig; by Miss Flora Cliff, Scotch Reel; by Miss Kathleen McNeil, Wales.

"The Volunteer"—Miss McLesney. Patriotic Recitation—Mr. T. H. O'Neil. "The Lads in Navy Blue"—Miss Joan and Naval Chorus.

"Soldiers of the King"—Mr. Godridge (and full Military Chorus).

"It's a Long Way to Tipperary"—Miss Louise Anderson.

"Land of Hope and Glory"—Mr. Ruggles.

"Hands All Round," recitation—Mrs. Chater.

Song, "We Love Thee, Newfoundland"—Mrs. W. C. Job.

Tableau, "The Ministering Angel"—Miss Jean Emerson, Mr. W. Rendell.

Lantern Slides.

Tableau, "Newfoundland's Offering"—Newfoundland, Miss M. Rendell.

Fisherman, Mr. Eric Bowring; Volunteer, Mr. H. H. Goodridge; Britannia, Mrs. H. Outerbridge.

Lantern Slides.

Tableau, "The Hero of the Hour," Belgium—Miss E. Hayward.

"The Triple Entente"—England, Mr. W. Rendell; Russia, Mr. H. Winter; France, Mr. R. H. Tait.

The 4 British Belles

IN BEST ACT YET.

The four popular young ladies known as the British Belles have become very great favorites here in St. John's, for their work is good. Their singing and dancing is the best seen here. The skipping rope dance by Miss Evelyn Keen, and Mother's Joy is a positive delight, very graceful and novel, such as we have never had before. The costumes worn for this clever act are beautiful; in fact all the costumes worn by this Lady Troupe of Artists are greatly admired. Miss Gracie Keen, a dainty young singer and dancer is a big favorite here and her appearance is greeted by rolns of applause each night. Miss Keen is well liked for her ballad singing. There is a complete change of picture to-night. Man and his other self, and three others. A very fine programme with the Rossley Orchestra—Piano, Violin, Cornet and Drums.

"Down With the Kaiser."

Say Posters in Berlin.

London, September 24.—Despite the watchfulness of the German authorities, says a despatch from Copenhagen to the London Evening News, Syndicalist posters proclaiming: "We want peace. Down with the Kaiser!" are appearing on the walls of buildings in Berlin.

Travellers driving through the city between railway stations are ordered to keep the blinds of their vehicles drawn, so that the posters may not be seen.

Wedding Bells.

St. Patrick's Church was the scene of a very pretty wedding last evening, when Mr. Joseph Partridge, of the Royal Stores Clothing Department, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Miss Martha Ennis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Ennis, of Hamilton Street. The bride was attended by Miss Annie Gunter, whilst the groom was ably supported by Mr. Thomas Walsh. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. J. McDermott, assisted by Revs. J. F. Pippy and P. Kelly. After the ceremony, the happy couple drove to the residence of the bride's parents, where felicitous speeches were made by Rev. Pss. McDermodt, Pippy and Kelly, after which Mr. J. P. Flynn read a congratulatory address and presented on behalf of the Christian Doctrine Society, of which the groom is President, a splendid hanging lamp, and Mr. E. F. Shea, on behalf of St. Patrick's Altar Society, read a similar address, and presented a Morris Chair. The groom made a suitable response. Refreshments were then served to the fifty guests present, after which a programme of songs and recitations was taken up, and dancing indulged in. We wish the happy couple many years of wedded bliss.

Oil of sassafras if dropped on a wart two or three times a day will remove it without pain.

On Automobiles and Pedestrians

By RUTH CAMERON.

Too much cannot be said against the recklessness and selfishness of the automobilist who thinks he has an inalienable right to travel at a speed along the public highway, and that anyone who interferes with that right deserves to be run over. On the other hand, something as nearly as strong needs to be said about the recklessness and selfishness of the pedestrian who thinks he has the right to be as careless as he chooses about crossing or walking upon the street.

are treacherous. It may mean loss of property and perhaps of life by those in the car.

Just the other day we were proceeding down a hill, on a country road, at no great pace, when a man on a bicycle shot directly out of a small path hidden from the eyes of the driver by shrubbery, and straight across the road in front of us. We swerved, plunged into the bushes and into the ditch. We struck the rear wheel of the bicycle and knocked the man off, but did not hurt either him or his wheel. By grace of having an exceptional driver, we escaped turning turtle. Had the ditch been a little deeper or our driver a little less skillful, we could not have taken the narrow middle course between killing the man or injuring ourselves. Had we killed him, many would have blamed us. Had we been killed, few would have thought to blame him.

In France, as I understand it, when a man is hit by an automobile he is arrested and forced to explain how it happened. Of course the automobilist should be summoned too. But if we had a little more sharing of responsibility in this matter, I fancy we should have less responsibility to share.

Sidewalks are for pedestrians; streets are for vehicles. The pedestrian has a perfect right to cross the street, of course, but no more right to walk in it (when there is a sidewalk) than a vehicle to drive on the sidewalk.

Perhaps she had a right to risk her own life if she chose (though that it is a big question) but she hadn't the right to risk the lives of others. Suppose by her independence she forces a machine to stop or swerve suddenly upon wet days when the pavements

OTTAWA, To-day. A special committee of the General Conference of the Methodist Church, reported to the Conference this afternoon, in favor of giving to women an equal right with laymen in the Administration of the affairs of the church. It was voted down.

FRENCH LINE REMAINS MUCH THE SAME.

LONDON, To-day. The fighting of the past few days which took the form of heavy offensive operations, has not changed to any extent the positions of the opposing armies in Northern France. Some hard blows have been struck by both sides, but the armies remain practically where they were when the Germans stopped their retirement and commenced to entrench themselves.

A lengthy official communication issued yesterday by the French General Staff makes this plain. The line of the allies are roughly sketched in the statement, and it is gathered that the French right still rests on Port a' Maussion and from there turns Southward to cross the Meuse near St. Michael, where the Germans have succeeded in pushing a contingent forward. Hence the front proceeds Northward to encircle Verdun, from which fortress it goes directly Westward to Rheims and thence Northward across the River Aisne. At Berry-au-Bac it follows the Aisne to Soissons and runs from the Northwest crossing the River Oise at Ribecourt to Roye and Comblis. The two latter places are North of the Somme. In the West, the wings are in very close touch, the Germans holding Lassigny which lies between Ribecourt and Roye which are in possession of the French, and also Chalency, which is an almost direct line between Roye and Albert. It is here that the Allies have been attempting a wide turning movement to prevent which, the Germans apparently have sent out strong opposing forces. A French announcement says the Germans have continued their day and night attacks only to be repulsed, but it is evident that they are showing plenty of fight and are making a supreme effort to prevent the Allies from working around their right.

10.30 A. M.

HOLDING OUR OWN. Special Evening Telegram. LONDON, To-day. The Official Press Bureau issued last night the following regarding operations in Northern France: There is practically no change in the situation. The fighting on the left has had some heavy lull, but they are well holding their own.

SOME SUCCESS IN TURNING MOVEMENT—PERONNE RE-CAPTURED—AUTOMOBILES PURSUE GERMAN.

LONDON, To-day. A Paris despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co. of yesterday says: It was stated here yesterday that the German right has been entirely broken and is now being pursued by the allies. All automobiles in Paris have been requisitioned for the purpose of pursuit. Armored motor cars with mitrailleuses are also being used to pursue the retreating enemy. An official communication issued at three o'clock yesterday demonstrates unmistakably that the Germans had been surrounded in Somme Department, the French front extending further east. It is officially stated that Peronne has been re-captured. The above message has been referred to the British Official Press Bureau which, while not objecting to its publication, takes no responsibility for its correctness.

PARIS, To-day.

A French official statement issued yesterday afternoon says: On our left wing along the River Somme the Germans attempted numerous attacks, which the allies repulsed, first on our left wing north of Somme, and between Somme and Oise, the enemy both by day and night delivering several attacks, which have, however, been repulsed. To the north of the Aisne there has been no change. Second, on the centre front of Champagne and to the east of the Argonne, the enemy has restricted his activities in heavy shelling. Between Argonne and Meuse there has been slight progress on the part of our troops, who are confronted by strongly organized positions. Third, on the heights of the Meuse in the West-district, and on our right wing in Lorraine and Vosges, there has been no notable modification of the situation. We again took numerous prisoners during yesterday. They belong principally to the 7th Active Corps and the 7th Reserve Corps of German army corps.

RUSSIAN GENERAL CHEERS HIS MEN.

ROMME, To-day. "Cheer up, we'll spend Xmas in Berlin," is the encouragement which General Rennenkampf has offered to his men, according to a report received here from Russian headquarters. The General proffered this word of cheer for the purpose of helping his officers and soldiers to stand fast during the present discomforts and sufferings.

GERMANS ATTACKING ANTWERP.

AMSTERDAM, To-day. The Germans have commenced their attack on the first line of defense of Antwerp, according to despatches received by Amsterdam papers. Moll, an important railway junction near the Dutch border, was occupied by Germans on Sunday and to-day. The Germans who again occupied Malines began the bombardment of Liere directly in front of Antwerp. They also continued their bombardment of the forts of Waebel and St. Catherine.

CENSORSHIP MUCH CLOSER.

LONDON, To-day. The closely drawn censorship has not permitted the publication of any definite news beyond that contained in the official bulletins concerning what is happening in France. Nevertheless, there prevails throughout the military clubs and other good sources of information, a spirit of quiet but cheerful confidence. Information from quarters which have always been reliable show that this confidence is not baseless, or unjustified. It is recognized that the great struggle cannot and will not be ended without appalling losses, but the present outlook, it is felt is better than had been expected by the most of sanguine of those in authority, and cheerful confidence that excellent news will soon be forthcoming from France is now the order of the day.

AUSTRIAN RETREAT TO CRACOW.

LONDON, To-day. From the latest events in Galicia and along the line of Carpathians, the conclusion drawn is that the Austrian army has abandoned Hungary to its fate and has left the route to Budapest to be defended by Hungarian National Troops, says the Petrograd correspondent of the Daily Telegraph. The despatch continues, the Austrians continue their retreat before the pursuing Russians and appear to have given up, not only the defense of their country in general but also to have decided to abstain from further independent action. They are simply hurrying on to Cracow to join the right wing of the Germans and apparently intend to become a mere component part of the German army.

BRUSSELS GETTING EXASPERATED.

LONDON, To-day. Americans who arrived to-day from Brussels say most of their countrymen are leaving that city, fearing an outbreak owing to a strong feeling among the population against the Germans. As an evidence of this attitude among Brussels people, it is cited that after the Burgomaster Max was arrested, numerous placards were posted, warning the Germans that if the Burgomaster was injured, the people of Brussels had petrol, vitriol and butcher knives and would use them.

MOVING TO NAMUR.

LONDON, To-day. The Ghent correspondent of the Daily Express sent the following despatch: "Persons arriving from Brussels, says that the Germans are preparing to move the administrative headquarters of the Military Government of Belgium to Namur. This is taken to mean the Germans are getting ready for the next stand nearer their own frontier."

A WAR TROPHY.

LONDON, To-day. A despatch to the Star from Petrograd says that among the remarkable war trophies arriving at Smolensk is the entire stock of Emperor William's famous pedigree cattle and stud horses, captured by Russians from the Emperor's estate at Rominten, East Prussia. They were taken to Moscow and presented to the Russian Agricultural Institute for distribution to the Agricultural Association.

GERMAN ACTIVITY IN THE BALTIC.

LONDON, To-day. A despatch from Petrograd says an unconfirmed telegram from Mittau in Russian Baltic Provinces, says that German warships have appeared several times since the war began in the waters of Windau, a seaport of Russia. In Courland, on the Baltic Sea, a large fleet with transports appeared Sept. 24th but soon disappeared in a southerly direction. On Monday afternoon 18 German destroyers and cruisers came fairly near the coast and fired shots at the lighthouse near Backhofton lighthouse elar-

CROWN PRINCE OF BAVARIA REPORTED CAPTURED.

LONDON, To-day. A correspondent of the Times at Nancy, France, telegraphing under date Sept. 26th, gives an unconfirmed report that the Crown Prince of Bavaria, St. Michael's, the fortified encampment on the Meuse, 20 miles S. E. of Verdun, and also that they have captured the Crown Prince of Bavaria at Nancy. The correspondent adds that, according to report, that the Germans are assaulting Nomeny with the object of getting the Prince free.

BIG BATTLE ON THE NIEMEN.

LONDON, To-day. A despatch from Rome dated Tuesday says that a Petrograd message says that a fierce battle between Army of General Rennenkampf and that of German General Von Hindenburg, has been raging since Sunday morning along the front extending from Grodno to Druskiniki on the Niemen River. Four army corps have been engaged on both sides and the Russians have been constantly re-inforced from Vitebsk. The Russians already have repulsed the Germans at several points.

GREAT STORM IN NORTH SEA.

LONDON, To-day. The heaviest gale within living memory is sweeping over Denmark and the North Sea and along the whole German coast, says a Copenhagen correspondent of the Daily News. Considerable damage has been done to property, continues the despatch. German air manoeuvres in the neighborhood of Kiel have been abandoned. A telephone message from West Jutland says a number of bodies of German sailors in uniform were washed ashore on Monday north of Esbjerg. Telegraphic communications have been considerably upset.

Keep smiling, 'tis better than building a fame as kicker or fretter who's sore on the game.
