CHAPTER XII.
A BATTLE FOR LOVE.

She laughed, and he helped her into the saddle, not with the gingerly touch of a man of fashion and weak muscles, but with a sweep of his splendid arm that put her into her seat as if she were a baby. Then he sprang across his own horse, and they started.

"I suppose the park?" she said. He nodded. "Yes, let us get on the tan," he said, in the most business-like tone. He had come to give an opinion of her horse, and he was going to do it, and his admiration for her took the second place in his mind.

"What a lovely morning!" she said, as they entered through the park gates; "a lovely morning for the country. Do you know I have an idea that—perhaps, I had better not say—"

"Why not?" he said, looking frankly at the dark eyes suddenly downcast. "Go on."

"I have a suspicion that, but for my unfortunate request, you would have been in the country this morning."

He colored and stooped to pat the horse. He would not tell a lie, as some other men would have done. "I was going," he answered; "but it is of no consequence—I mean this afternoon will do as well. Take care!" for her horse had shied slightly at one of the posts.

She laughed softly, sitting the mare as if she were a part of her. "Oh, she always does that at starting," she said. "I don't mind."

He looked grave. "I don't like a horse that shies—for ladies' riding," he said. "Ladies are more easily unseated than men. I remember seeing a lady thrown and dragged—I don't wish to see another."

"I hope you won't see me," she said, lightly. He glanced at her marvelous beauty, and almost shuddered.

"No!" he responded, gravely. There was nothing of fear in her voice or her manner. She sat the horse with perfect ease, and rode as few women ride, out of a circus; and his admiration had another point to go upon.

"You ride splendidly," he said warmly. "Do I? So the man who taught me said. I don't think I have much fear. If I were in the country, I would hunt. If I were a great lady, I should like to see my husband master of the hounds, and ride to the death with him."

He nodded eagerly. It was just what he would fancy her doing; but, mark me, he had no thought of himself as her husband. All the morning he had been thinking, musing, upon his sweet Lela—counting the hours that must elapse before he could be with her.

"Shall we have a gallop?" she said, and she touched the mare with the whip.

The animal, not one of the best tempered, and overfed, sprang forward, and Lord Edgar had to use his spurs to make his heavier horse keep pace with her.

She galloped as she had cantered, perfectly. "Yes," he thought, "she is right. She would make an admirable wife for a master of the hounds. I wonder whether Lela could learn to ride?"

They galloped over the tan, the groom lumbering behind them. The park began to fill. Innumerable hats were lifted by the men lounging on the rails as she swept by.

"You seem to know all London!" he said, with a smile. She laughed, softly, almost bitterly.

"Yes. A great many. And yet—and yet I can scarcely own a friend." "No?" wonderingly.

"No! Women are not like men. Men have so many friends, women so few—or none."

"I thought women always had one bosom friend," he said, interestedly and inquiringly. She shook her head.

"Some may have; I have not. But I was speaking of women's men friends. I envy Madame de Stael, who used to boast that she hadn't one lover, but a host of friends."

"H'm!" said Lord Edgar, doubtfully. "But what about all those men I saw at your house last night?"

"Oh, those!" she said, scornfully. "They are not friends, not one of them. They come because it amuses them. There is less restraint at our house than at many others; and they come because we are the fashion just now, and they like to say that they have been."

Lord Edgar looked grave. He did not know much of the world, and this phase of it surprised and puzzled him.

"I hope that you don't class me among them," he said, warmly. "I didn't come because you were the fashion."

"No!" she said, and there was a grateful tone in her voice. "No, I do not class you with them; you are quite different."

It was flattery of the subtlest kind; and he would have been more or less than human if he had been insensible to it.

"Besides, you are taking all this trouble to help me," she said. He laughed.

"Trouble! I imagine that every one of these men," and he glanced at the long line of loungers who raised their hats, "would only be too glad to be in my place!"

She laughed bitterly. "That they might satisfy their own vanity!"

"Come!" he said, "you will rouse mine if you talk like that!" and he laughed and colored.

"Have you any?" she retorted, opening her eyes upon him. "Worlds of it!" he responded.

All the while he had been keeping an attentive eye on her mare; he had noticed the nervous fidgety twitching of the animal's ears, the jerky bowing of the head, the chafing at the bit, and he formed anything but a favorable opinion of it.

touched his shoulder to steady herself. "Lean on me," he said.

"May I?" she murmured, and she leaned on him, so that her hand—she had taken off her gauntlet—touched his neck.

Another man—Clifford Revel, for instance—would have flushed crimson at the touch of the warm, soft hand, but it did not affect Lord Edgar.

In the most business-like fashion he lengthened the leather, placed her foot in the stirrup, and with, "You're all right now," sprang into his saddle.

She noted his indifference, and a color sprang to her pale face and a fierce light to her eyes, but she was not discouraged. She admired him all the more for his coldness; it made her all the more determined to win him.

"Thanks, so much!" she said. "That is so much more comfortable!" "I thought it would be," he said. "Now, we will have a gallop, if you like."

She touched the mare with her whip rather sharply, and the animal sprang forward viciously. But Lord Edgar kept up with her, and they made the circuit of the ride, and were turning back, when Edith loosened the bridle, and the mare, who had been watching her chance, seized it, and made a bolt of it.

Edith Drayton was not a white alarmed; she could ride a wild horse if need were; but she seemed to turn pale and looked around hesitatingly, and Lord Edgar, fully persuaded that she was frightened, plunged his spurs into his sturdy horse, and called out, in a low but distinct voice:

"Don't be frightened! Keep a tight rein on her!"

Instead of doing so, she gave the animal full rein, and, with a flush of color on her face, swayed to and fro, as if she were going to fall.

did so, Edith swayed heavily, and he had only just time to fling himself from his horse before she fell straight into his arms.

It was beautifully done, both on his part and on hers. There were no riders at the spot where the catastrophe happened; she had been fully aware of this, and he stood supporting her, while the groom rode after and caught the two horses.

For a minute, a full minute, she leaned in his arms, her lovely face, pale as death, pressed against his breast; then she sighed, faintly, and feebly drew away from him.

As she did so, she glanced up at his face; it was grave, anxious, but not a whit tender or passionate, and her teeth closed over her dainty lip, with a gesture of impatient disappointment. It was a bold game she had played, but it had failed. Where was there another man who could have held her to his breast, as he had done, and been unmoved?

From that moment her heart, swaying to and fro, leaned toward him, and she loved him.

"You are not hurt?" he asked, anxiously enough, but not tenderly, not with the passionate entreaty that she had hoped to hear in his voice.

"Not at all," she said, smiling. "A sudden faintness—that was all. I can't think how I could have been so stupid!"

"Stupid! It was the horse's fault," he said, sternly. "I didn't like her from the start—I like her less now. You ought never to ride her again. Are you all right now?"

"Yes, quite," she said; and, as the groom, who seemed amazed, as well he might be, at the performance, came up with the two horses, she moved toward the mare.

"No!" said Lord Edgar, sternly. "You shall not ride her again; she is not worthy of it."

He beckoned to the groom, and with his own hands changed the saddles, putting hers on his own horse.

"Now," he said, confidently, "you shall ride mine. He will carry a lady. Come."

She faltered a moment, and leaned heavily on his arm, and he looked down at her with manly pity and consideration, nothing more.

"Must I? But you—supposing an accident occurred to you, who are of so much more importance than I am!" He stared at her, then laughed.

"I'll defy her to hurt me!" he said. "Come. You need not be afraid!"

"I am not afraid," she murmured, lifting her dark eyes to his, with a glance that would have intoxicated most men and turned their heads. "Who could be afraid when you were near?"

"Oh, as to that!" he said, coloring under this flattery; and he swung her into the saddle. "I had my suspicions of this animal," he said, as he got on the mare. "This is not quiet enough for a lady. See here," and his eyes shone with the idea, "I'll swap her with you!"

"You'll—"

"I beg your pardon. I'll change her for mine. You'd never be safe on this beast, while you might ride mine for ever and a day. What do you say?"

"I—oh, Lord Fane!" she murmured. "But I don't like to take such an advantage. This is a much better horse than mine!"

It was determined that the date of April 25, first fixed for the arrival of the German representatives at Versailles, could not be adhered to because of the confusion over the arrangements. Premier Clemenceau's second telegram reached the Foreign Office last evening but was not considered officially until this morning. In it the French Premier said his original notification regarding the German representatives had been misconstrued and misinterpreted by Germany. He declared there was no intention on the part of the Entente to deny the Germans the right of negotiation or discussion.

ONLY A SQUABBLE.

LONDON, April 22. The Army and Navy Court of Inquiry into the fight between American and other soldiers and the Metropolitan police on March 9th last interpreted the affair as an unimportant melee which did not affect the relations between the British authorities and the American fighting men. In its report made public today the Court refrains from attempting to place any blame, and confined its recommendations to one, namely, that one American military policeman be disciplined for carrying his pistol when off duty. The soldier did not draw his revolver in the fighting. It was testified he had just been released from duty and had removed all insignia of his office except the pistol.

No Case Is Too Old None Too Severe

Mrs. Riches Proves Once Again That Dodd's Kidney Pills Cure.

She Suffered for Seventeen Years from Kidney Trouble and Now a Well Woman Says, "Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured Me."

St. Denis Riviere, Richelieu Quebec, April 22nd. (Special).—One of the most remarkable cures in the long record made by Dodd's Kidney Pills is that of Mde. Alf. Riches, well known and highly respected here. For seventeen years Mrs. Riches was a sufferer from kidney disease in its worst forms. To-day she is a well woman. And she says with an earnestness born of conviction, "Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me." "I suffered for seventeen long years," Mrs. Riches goes on to say, "From backache, headache and sleeplessness my troubles grew to rheumatism and diabetes. I tried the doctor and other medicines, but I got no lasting good till I tried Dodd's Kidney Pills. I took 12 boxes of them in all. They cured me." "Dodd's Kidney Pills are purely and simply a kidney remedy. But no case of kidney trouble is too severe or too long standing to resist them. If you haven't used Dodd's Kidney Pills, ask your neighbour about them."

In Caesar's Steps.

Over the same ground were Caesar fought nearly 2,000 years ago, and with many implements of war remarkably like those used by his army, the allies are fighting the Germans today, says a writer in Pittsburgh Dispatch. The foe is the same in cruelty and in overbearing nature, as any school boy or girl who has read the commentaries of the great Roman general can tell you. How history repeats itself and how important as well as interesting is the study of the Latin language, become, since the war is illustrated in telling fashion by a classical exhibit in the University of Pittsburgh.

In the exhibit, which was arranged under the direction of Dr. E. Williams of the State Classical Association, is a model of a bridge built over the Rhine by Caesar. It was made from the description given by Caesar.

The bridge is almost exactly like the temporary bridge the soldiers at Pittsburgh are now being taught to make and on which they expect to cross the Rhine as they go into the domain of the Kaiser.

The Roman ballista, used to throw stones at the enemy, is made exactly on the same principle as the machine used today to throw trench bombs. Modern springs now take the place of the twisted rawhide with which momentum was obtained by the Roman machine. A model of the Roman ballista is in the exhibit.

On the same principle is the catapult, used by the Romans to shoot arrows. Several of the weapons used by the Roman soldiers, including sword and spear, forearm of the bayonet, are much like those used in the present war. Models of all these are in this exhibit. There are also models of the Roman soldier and of the soldier of today, both wearing headpieces of metal much alike.

The boy who is reading Caesar can tell you that Reims, whose wonderful cathedral has been destroyed by the Germans, was named from the Remi tribe mentioned by Caesar and that Soissons takes its name from the Suesones tribe, conquered by Caesar. The Commentaries are full of names made familiar by the war going on today and the schoolboy reads with added interest how Caesar defeated Ariovistus, king of the Germans, and won other triumphs on the same battle front as that of the allies today. The wolf holes he describes are much like the traps used to ensnare and bewilder the enemy now.

Other articles in the exhibit made by students show what a wealth of Roman tradition has been handed down to us. The Roman fasces, shown on the new United States dime, is the original of the mace, the symbol of power, used by the speaker of the house of representatives. The fasces, in turn, had its origin in the sticks used by the Romans to dog offenders and the ax used by them to cut off the heads of the worst of them.

Aerial Visions.

Among the visions of the future in aircraft design are huge dirigibles of the rigid Zeppelin type with landing platforms for speedy scout and bombing planes built on top of the great gasbags. One of the prospective developments is to have big dirigibles constructed to carry a number of airplanes suspended from the framework, from which they may be released automatically. These planes would return to the dirigible and effect a landing on the platform constructed over the gasbag for that purpose. Such platforms might be 900 feet long and 15 feet or more wide. With the dirigible and the plane both facing the wind and moving at reduced speed, it is said by experts that a landing could be effected without serious difficulty. Even if a plane failed to land on the platform the pilot would simply do a fancy stunt of some kind and then come back and try again.

The Estimates.

A careful study of the published synopsis of the estimates for 1919-20, submitted to the House of Assembly yesterday by the Hon. Minister of Finance Customs, should be made by every voter and taxpayer. The increase in current expenditure, which the Minister announces reaches the startling figure of ONE MILLION, SIX HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS, an extra financial burden which averages about SEVEN DOLLARS PER HEAD for every man, woman and child in the dominion and which will necessitate extra taxation to that amount. An all round general expenditure of SEVEN MILLION DOLLARS for the ensuing fiscal year ending June 30th, 1920, is covered by the tables presented, yet there is no talk in the air of increases under every head of expense seems to be the order of the day, and the Minister and his colleagues appear to imagine that they will have a source of unlimited revenue from which to draw to meet the outlay. It is not without the bounds of possibility that these estimates, gigantic as they are, will be sufficient to meet the demands of administering the affairs of the Colony. There are always contingencies cropping up and as no increase has been provided for this elastic method of expenditure, it may happen, as it has in the past, that an overdraft will have to be made to cover expenses incurred under this mysterious head. Some few days ago we suggested that the estimates for the current fiscal year had been overdrawn and that money had been spent on contingency and other accounts without legislative sanction, and under no other authority but that of Minutes of Council. This has been proven to be the case by no less a person than the Auditor General who in his report states that nearly all the departments had spent the moneys voted them at last session of the House, by the end of February past, which means that they had actually exhausted their legitimate and authorized appropriations four months before the end of the financial year. The consequence of this is that for all other expenditure incidental to the carrying on of those departments which had outspent their votes, Minutes of Council had to be made, which had neither the approval of the Legislature or the warrant of the Auditor General. And in the face of this the Telegram was charged by the Hon. Minister of Finance, from his place in the House, with misrepresenting facts. The report of the Auditor General amply corroborates what we said under the caption of "Financial Juggling" in our issue of April 16th, and no other evidence is needed to prove the case against the Government.

Sealing Catch. With the discharge of the S.S. Terra Nova yesterday, the sealing voyage for 1919 closed, and with the smallest catch in recent years. The total catch for the ten steamers numbers 81,292, as follows: Sable L.-Farquhar 3,477; Fogota-Dalton 6,109; Diana-Parsons 2,878; Seal-Randell 10,832; Thetis-Winsor 12,909; Eagle-Bishop 15,723; Ranger-Winsor 3,729; Neptune-Barbour 12,223; Viking-Bartlett 38; Terra Nova-Kean 12,569. 81,292

Methodist Transfer.

The list of Ministerial transfers resulting from the deliberations of the transfer committee meeting recently held in Toronto and of which Rev. Dr. Curtis is the Newfoundland representative, has been published. Among the several transferred we notice the following: Rev. Levi Halliday from Newfoundland to Toronto Conference and Rev. J. N. Seivour from Newfoundland to Saskatchewan Conference. We note also the transfer of Rev. Professor Lina of Mount Allison University, from Toronto to Nova Scotia Conference.

HOSPITAL CASES.—A man named Billard, of Bellevue, T.B., and a boy named Noseworthy, of Bay Roberts, entered hospital yesterday for treatment.

Honor the Brave.

Since honors and awards for services rendered during the period of the war have been freely distributed, we offer the suggestion that there should be a Newfoundland Medal struck in commemoration of the services of the "Blue Puttees" the gallant five hundred who responded so nobly to the call of Empire, and who so bravely and heroically broke the trail for those wearing the Caribou badge who came afterwards. As a tribute to the memory of them who sleep in far off Gallipoli, under the poppy fields of Flanders and the hilly crowned sod of France, no reward could be greater or more appreciated by the survivors of the "five hundred" than that of being the honored wearers of a special medal, given by a grateful Government and people.

"Tit-Bits" From the Audit Report.

The total revenue received for the fiscal year, ending June 30th last, was $6,540,082.67, being $1,833,485.13 in excess of the previous year. The increase was principally due to collections of $840,450.92 under the Excess Profits Tax, $49,881.60 under the Income Tax, and excess customs collections of $463,883.75. Excess duties also showed an increase of $70,905.25, and there was also received $90,188.55, the first payment by the Western Union and Direct Cable Companies of the tax imposed on cables landed in this country. The expenditure for the same year under the Public Services Act amounted to $5,369,454.73, and increase of $814,664.15 over the previous year. The surplus was $1,170,627.94. The Auditor General reports overdrafts in the various departments for the current year of $645,640.00. On February 25th the Legislature voted for 1919-20 were all practically exhausted. These do not include the sum required to cover new salaries, increases to salaries, etc. He estimates that $1,078,972 will be required for supplementary supply to meet the overdrafts to Feb. 25th as regards ordinary services and to 30th June for salaries. It will take all last year's surplus and more to meet the additional expenditure of this. The Liquor Controller's Department last year had a revenue of $75,028.63, and made a profit of $4,622.06. The Civil list for the new year will be enlarged by about $400,000. This is due to increase in salaries. Sir P. T. McGrath was paid last year $1000.00 for services investigating Fishery problems 1914-15. Strange that it was not collected before.

St. George's Day.

Although the 23rd of April is the day in which we commemorate St. George the patron Saint of England, it seems rather unpatriotic to say the least that so very few flags were flying to-day. It is bad enough to know that we have no holiday on this day, but surely we can manage to have bunting unfurled in plenty on every staff in the city.

Cathedral Girls' Sale.

The Cathedral Girls' Sale started yesterday evening in the Presbyterian Hall and was a big success. His Excellency the Governor accompanied by Capt. Campbell, opened the sale at 6 o'clock. His Lordship of Bishop White introduced His Excellency and the latter visited each of the various stalls and spoke glowingly of the decorations and the object of the bazaar in trying to raise funds for a new parish hall. Among those present at the opening were Revs. Canon Bolt, Brian, Fletcher and others. The hall is very prettily decorated; the stalls alone are worth a visit, that containing the display of work being of the finest finished in white and yellow. The pantry stall is very effective in red and yellow tulips; that containing the novelties of Chinese design, trimmed with lanterns, and that for the sale of candy is a rose booth. The large amount of fancy goods on sale was greatly appreciated by the numerous purchasers. During the afternoon teas were served. The sale will re-open again this evening at four o'clock. Among the many attractions last night was the music by the C.L.B. band. This evening supper will be served for all who wish to attend the bazaar after coming from the theatre. A great bag and a bassinet well supplied with dolls, infants' clothing, etc., are other attractions. It is hoped that the attendance this evening will be even greater than that of yesterday.

Relatives Dead.

Mr. A. G. Andrews, 192 New Gower Street, recently received a letter from Mount Lebanon, Syria, announcing the sad news of the death of his mother, at the age of 83, two brothers, aged 72 and 74, and fifteen other relatives of the family. This being the first letter received from his relatives by Mr. Andrews for the past four years, the deaths which are announced, and doubt occurred over that period. We extend sympathy to Mr. Andrews in his sad bereavement. Mr. Richard Joseph, 206 New Gower Street, is also in receipt of a communication from Hadeset-El-Djube, Mount Lebanon, advising that his father, died three months ago, at the age of 65 years, but that the rest of his family and relatives were all well. Mr. Joseph has our sympathy in his loss.

"Eliza Comes to Stay."

On Thursday night the three act comedy "Eliza Comes to Stay" will be presented at the Methodist College Hall, in aid of the funds of the Society for the Protection of the Blind. His Excellency the Governor has kindly consented to attend. As the various characters will be sustained by a capable cast, the production itself is one of the best comedies produced here, we feel sure that a crowded audience will greet the performers.

Marriage Anniversary.

Magistrate and Mrs. Fitzgerald celebrate to-day the twenty-fourth anniversary of their wedding, and for the first time in four years the pleasure of a complete family circle, their two soldier sons having returned from the war. Mr. and Mrs. Fitzgerald were married at the residence of the Rev. Canon Noel, on St. George's Day, April 23rd, 1895, the best man on the occasion being Mr. O. V. Travers who although a Methodist, is a remarkable coincidence is the fact that Mr. Travers was also present at the wedding of Mrs. Fitzgerald's parents over fifty years ago. The Telegram wishes to extend congratulations to the happy couple, and to wish them many more years of wedded bliss.

Terra Nova's Turnout.

S.S. Terra Nova finished discharging her seals yesterday afternoon, her turnout being as follows:—5,412 young harps, 1,488 young hoods, 4,028 bedlamers, 517 adult harps, Monday hood. Outport Health Report.

The Council met at 4 o'clock yesterday. Hon. Mr. Anderson, according to notice of motion, introduced a Bill entitled "An Act of Ejection of Tenants." The second reading of the Bill to that effect respecting Compensation to Workmen who suffer from injuries in the course of their employment was moved by Hon. Mr. Gibbs. The motion was carried by a vote of 10 to 5, the majority being in favor of the maximum weekly rate from $5.00 to $10.00, bringing local and foreign companies on a like basis. The Bill was supported by Hon. Mr. Squires. At the request of Hon. Mr. Harvey, the second reading was deferred until the Bill is printed.

McMurdo's Store News.

WEDNESDAY, April 23, 1919. People sometimes go a long way in search of hair tonics, and sometimes hand us the most unlikely recipes having for their object the growth and strengthening of the hair, its restoration to natural color and brilliancy, the cleansing of the scalp from dandruff and scurf. There is really little need of having us compound these mixtures, some of which are inelegant enough, when Canthardine Hair Tonic can be had so easily. This preparation is the result of careful study, and both in appearance and effect will bear comparison with any hair tonic in the market, as an increaser of the growth, as a gradual restorer of color and lustre, as a cleanser of the scalp, and as a dressing. For any or all of these purposes, we can honestly recommend Canthardine. Two sizes: 30 and 60c. a bottle.

Encouraging Coal Reports.

Latest advices from the mining headquarters of the St. George's Coal Fields, Ltd., state that the work of tunnelling goes on steadily and that the coal continues to improve in quantity and quality as advance is made into the hill through which the seam runs. The new section of the seam opened up some time ago 1000 feet farther south, is also showing up satisfactorily. A tunnel has been started there also, and the result of the work to date completely justifies the belief that the seam is continuous, and that there is no fault in the 1400 feet so far prospected. The samples received here from the mine this week are of an excellent quality and are identical with the very best Pennsylvania gas coal, in appearance and in analysis. As soon as the ground dries up, work will be begun on various other sections of the property, judging from the work accomplished and the enormous quantity of coal that is in sight after such an early start. There is really nothing to equal any of the bituminous coal fields of the eastern section of the continent of North America.

WILLIAM WARD.

(H. F. SHORTLISS.) Many friends of W. Ward, Esq., of Customs, Harbor Grace, were shocked this morning when they learned of the death of this official of the second city had passed away. The deceased always enjoyed the best of health up to yesterday, and was suddenly stricken down. He was suddenly stricken down, and notwithstanding the most careful attendance, he died at the Great Beyond at 11 o'clock this morning. Mr. Ward was the son of Isaac Valen, Placentia Bay, and was the second of our countrymen to be removed to Harbor Grace, where he was in charge of the English School of that place. After a short time he opened a grocery store in the building on the public wharf, and in 1871 he was appointed Collector of Customs, and held that office for his courtesy, respect and ability than was the case with any other collector of that gentleman. He was always a true and every movement for its object the advancement of Harbor Grace and its people, and his charitable disposition, as well as his broadmindedness, endeared him to all. He always held the highest respect for the intellectual traits, as well as for the important events of our life. For many years and up to the time of his death he held the post of Church Warden in the parish of St. Peter's. He leaves a widow (nee Miss Margaret Ruthven) and one daughter, the nonagenarian Mrs. Mary. Mr. Ward's remains were interred in the cemetery of St. Mary's in the presence of the family in their bereavement.

WILLIAM WARD.
 (H. F. SHORTIS.)

Many friends of W. Ward, Esq., of Customs, Harbor Grace, who died this morning when he was 67 years of age, will be shocked to hear the news that this dear official of the second city had passed away. The deceased was the best of health up to yesterday when he was suddenly stricken with paralysis, and notwithstanding the most careful attendance, he passed away at 9 o'clock this morning. Mr. Ward was the son of the late Valen. Placentia Bay, in the seventies of the past century, and was educated at the Grammar School of Harbor Grace, where he was in charge of the school of the English School of that place. After a short time he opened a grocery store in the building on the wharf, and in 1885 he was elected to the office of the General Election, having been one of his colleagues the late Charles Dawe, but was defeated by a small margin. He was appointed Collector of Customs at Harbor Grace, and for many years he held in that position, and for his courtesy, respect and ability than was the deceased. He was always a very kind and charitable disposition, and as his broadmindedness endeared him to all. He always held in high esteem the people of all classes, and was a man possessing intellectual traits, as well as thorough knowledge of the business and important events of our country. For many years and up to the time of his death he held the position of Church Warden in the Anglican Church of St. Paul's. He leaves a widow (nee Miss Margaret Rutherford), daughter of the nonagenarian business man, Mr. Andrew Rutherford, two daughters and hosts of grandchildren. Mr. Ward was a prime favorite of his friends, and his passing will be mourned by the sincere regret. To parents and relatives we offer our sympathy.

Hymeneal.

A very quiet and pleasing ceremony took place yesterday afternoon in the Chapel of Our Lady of Good Counsel, at the Presentation Convent, Military Road, when one of St. John's most popular young ladies, Miss Lucy Maher, daughter of the late Edward and Johanna Maher, was joined in holy wedlock to Francis McGilley, of Glasgow, Scotland, the Rev. Dr. Carter officiating. The bride, attired in a lawn travelling costume, was supported by her brother James, and was accompanied by her niece Miss Bride Maher, while the groom was supported by his fellow employee, Mr. Harold Brown, of the Commercial Cable Co. Only the immediate relatives and friends were present, and after a luncheon at the home of the bride, the happy couple drove to the station where they entrained for a short honeymoon at Holyrood. Mr. McGilley, since coming to St. John's with the Cable Co., has made himself one of the most popular young men of the place, while the bride is well known and highly esteemed for her many admirable qualities. The numerous presents received testify to the popularity of both bride and groom, and if good wishes are a source of strength, then they are well equipped for the battle on life's highway.

Soldiers' Handiwork.

Displayed in the window of Messrs. Ayre & Sons' eastern store are a number of baskets made and fashioned by the members of the Newfoundland Regiment now in the city. The baskets which are of different designs and sizes, are quite useful and are woven of a grass brought to this country from the United States by Mrs. John Browning, who is teaching various soldiers in the military ward of the General's Hospital, the Military Hospital, Military Road, Jensen Camp and the Convalescent Home on Waterford Bridge Road, the art of grass weaving. The baskets, which may be used for holding flowers or flower pots, lunch or other articles, are very pretty as well as useful, but so far are not offered for sale. A large number of people stopped this morning to examine them in Ayre's window.

New Schooner.

The schooner "J. O." recently built by the H. R. Grace Shipbuilding Co. for Messrs. J. O. Williams & Co. is now loading codfish at this port for Oporto. The "J. O." is three-masted, of a gross tonnage of 150 tons, and is fitted with about 500 tons gross and fitted with a 120 h.p. Skandia engine. Capt. P. A. Bell goes in command of her, on her maiden trip.

Shipping Notes.

The Associate is loading codfish at A. E. Hickman & Co.'s premises for Brazil.
 The Danish schooner Ludwig Bramsen is now loading codfish at G. M. Barr's for Brazil.
 The s.s. Adolph sailed from New York Monday direct for here.

One of the most extraordinary gifts made on the coronation day of Edward I, was that of 500 horses which had been used by the Royal Princess and other personages in the procession to Westminster Abbey. These horses, all richly caparisoned and harnessed just as they were, were let loose in the very midst of the mob after the banquet in Westminster Hall that always succeeded a coronation in those days. The people in the streets were permitted to catch the animals, and to him who caught a horse it and its appointments belonged.

The London, Ont. members of the Independent Spiritualist Church have determined to apply for a charter, and in addition legislation that will enable women to perform marriage ceremonies in that province. The local church, which was established by Michigan missionaries, is presided over by Rev. Lady Jean Hooper, who recently established congregations in Toronto and Hamilton, and ordained women ministers. Another class of women is to be ordained at Toronto in the near future, and complaint is made that notwithstanding such activities members of the creed are compelled to cross to the American side of the border to marry.

The People Remember.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

Isn't it funny how a person who really means a lot to you can entrench himself or herself in your memory by saying some little thing which links up with some familiar act. Every time you perform that act you think of that person.

For instance, a woman whom I met some years ago at a summer hotel, told me apropos of some exercises we were discussing that I ought for my health's sake to sit up straight. "I have been told," she said, "that one should sit up straight enough to feel the back of one's neck touch one's collar." It is nine years since I met this woman and yet whenever I catch myself sagging forward and straighten up, I try to see if my neck is touching the top of my collar, and then I think of her.

She Told Me One of My Bad Faults.

Something like fifteen years ago another woman, a woman I do not like and should probably never think of otherwise told me one of my faults was that I was always thinking not of what I was doing at the moment but of what I was going to do next. And whenever I find my mind shooting ahead from the letter I am writing to the letter I'm going to write next, from the grocery list I'm making out at the moment to the shopping list I'm putting away to the telephone call I'm going to make when I get that task done, I think of that woman. Especially when because of that bad trick of mine I find, as I frequently do, that in failing to give the task at hand my full attention I have made some foolish mistake.

Whenever I Tie My Shoes.

Another friend told me how to tie my shoe in a way in which it would not come untied and whenever I wear lace boots I am sure to think of her at least once a day.

Not one of these three is anyone I would naturally think about once a year or for whom I care in the least.

And yet they visit my mind oftener than people I really care about.

Whom Do You Think Of?

Absurd isn't it? I wonder if you have had similar experiences? Doubtless you will not be able to recall any at the moment but some day as you cut up the vegetables in some special way or make some particular play at cards or end, a letter with some special phrase you will think of the friend who suggested that method or play or phrase. And then perhaps you will also think of me.

Milady's Boudoir.

PERSPIRATION AN OFFENSE.

The perspiration of summer can so easily become an offense that it behooves the woman of dainty habits to consider how she may minimize its discomforts. It is, of course, an essential excretion of the body. If the pores could not thus throw off the waste poisons, disease and even death would follow. There is a story recounted of a young girl of the time of the French Revolution who, in some celebration, was gilded to represent a gold statue of a symbolical figure. The pores of her body being closed by the coating given her, all perspiration stopped and death followed. Any stoppage of perspiration is distinctly injurious, and for that reason the pores must be kept open.

Yet, while a normal amount of perspiration is necessary to health as well as beauty, many people are afflicted with over activity of the sweat glands, a condition of discomforting and debilitating to themselves, and somewhat unpleasant, at times, to those about them. The hot days of summer, of course, intensify this condition and act as a forcible reminder of Milady that the functions of her body need constant looking after.

For normal perspiration, attention to foods, a tub bath morning and night, followed by the dusting of the body with a good talcum powder, using a large-sized "shaker" and a change of clothing twice a day, will ordinarily keep one fresh, cool and wholesome.

On very hot days, however, the armpits may perspire excessively. If the other pores are left unimpeded, it will do no harm to check, somewhat the underarm perspiration. A simple and effective method to use is to rub the armpits with a moist cake of Castile or any other pure soap immediately after scrubbing them with a bath brush, and then dust them with a small flannel bag filled with cornstarch. Sometimes bathing the armpits with a solution of an ounce of hydrate of chloral and one pint of water will remove all odor of perspiration.

WAR DOGS

Dogs were used in the army in various ways. The sentinel dog accompanies an advanced sentinel; despatch dogs carry despatches between commanders; patrol dogs range ahead and about the patrol looking for the enemy; ambulance dogs search the battlefield after the ambulance men have picked up all the wounded they can find; draft dogs are used to bring up munitions and food; listening dogs are highly trained animals used in the front trenches, where their keen sense of hearing enable them to detect sounds inaudible to the men. The dog in many places in Europe is a working animal, and has been readily adapted to war work.

Just Folks

By Bob Alquist

THE VICTORY LOAN.

I thought: "The war is over now, the boys are coming back. The Kaiser has been overthrown, no more the Hunns attack. The Stars and Stripes in safety waves against the summer sky. There is no need of sacrifice, more bonds I will not buy." And then a soldier passed my way, his sight was blurred and dim-- The time of war's grim sacrifice will never end for him.

The war is over! Soothing though for those of us who stayed. We never faced the German guns nor heard a cannonade! We never drank the poison air and shriveled with the draught. We lingered here from harm secure and toiled and sang and laughed. But those who carry empty sleeves and those who wear the scars until their forms are cold. Must pay the price of war until they pass beyond the stars.

The mothers of our glorious dead, whose youths shall never mend, When think you for their troubled hearts the sacrifice shall end? When shall they settle back and smile and free from sorrow say, The war is over. Peace has come, and we may cease to pay. Oh, they shall give in tears and sighs until their forms are cold. We only can forget the war whose gifts were made of gold.

The war is over for the dead, but not for us who live. There still is need for sacrifice, there still is need to give. And none who sees a soldier pass whose eyes have lost their glow, Or who must walk through life in pain on limping feet and slow. Has any right to settle back, and claim the victor's share And say in tones of selfishness that he may cease to care.

Nfld. Scotch Cured Herring.

The demoralized condition of the herring market heretofore reported, in the opinion of merchants and importers in New York, may be charged directly to the unsatisfactory condition of the Newfoundland Scotch cured herring received here during the present season. The fact that prices have declined to a point where they are in some cases lower than the prices at which importers in New York were willing to purchase at the beginning of the season in Newfoundland is taken as evidence sufficient as to the quality of the fish shipped to this market. The general run of Newfoundland Scotch style herring is inferior; a great percentage of the so-called good herring is poorer than the stocks received here last winter and spring. But there are a few lots of superior herring in the market, and in striking contrast with the other stocks, they are bringing a good price. It is reported that some of this good quality herring has been sold at 24 and 26 per barrel during this week, while sales of inferior herring are reported to have been made in at least one case as low as $16, but on the average at from $18 to $20 per barrel. The market remains heavily stocked, the demand taken into consideration, but in normal times the 20,000 barrels more or less in storage here would not be considered more than enough to meet the demands of the trade of this city and vicinity. There are some lots of spring and winter herring of the pack of 1918, and these are not selling at all--N. Y. Fishing Gazette, April 12.

The Flight Across the Atlantic.

(Daily Mail.)

The entry of a Martinsyde aeroplane, which will be piloted by Mr. E. P. Raynham, increases the number of competitors for The Daily Mail £10,000 Atlantic Flight Prize to eight. It is particularly gratifying to read that five are British pilots flying all-British machines; while of the other machines one is of British design though with American engines. It is thus no longer a question whether the Atlantic will be crossed by air, but when it will be crossed and by what nation.

Nothing could be more important than that this great competition should be won by a British pilot in a British machine against the whole world. There is good reason to hope that the victory will fall to us. British engines, we know, are the best and the most trustworthy in existence, and British designs are second to none. While the struggle for our prize is in progress a spirited competition between the British and American air services is about to open. The British Air Ministry means at the earliest possible date to cross the Atlantic with one of its monster airships, with a flying boat, and with an aeroplane. The American Navy is now testing a number of flying boats for the passage; so that the world may look for an intensely interesting struggle this spring.

The crossing of the Atlantic by air is a feat that both appeals to the imagination and tests the efficiency of aeroplanes to the utmost. Nothing is more wonderful than to think that in a few months this ocean will be regularly crossed in as many hours as it took days to make the passage to America fifty years ago. Nothing better illustrates the shrinkage in space produced by the modern mechanism of travel. Just ten years have elapsed since M. Bleriot won a Daily Mail £1,000 prize by flying the Channel and annihilating the narrow seas. And now one of the greatest oceans is to be conquered by the flying man, only sixteen years after the first motor-driven aeroplane hopped off the ground in Ohio.

TO ALL OF WHICH SIR SID. WOULD REMARK, "QUITE SO, QUITE SO."

Finance Minister Ca Increase of $1

Chairman: On the desk of the Honorable Member is a copy of the Estimates for the fiscal year, and I will deal with it page by page.

Reference to the summary on page 4 will be found the total amount for 1919-20 amounting to $6,987,975, or, in round figures, seven million dollars, $5,400,000, or, say, roughly, $5,400,000. This is an addition of $1,600,000 in the current fiscal year. This addition is for the coming year. The most important items therein are: an increase of about $1,000,000 in the pay of the civil service; a result of the decision of the Government last autumn to increase the same as from the first of the various items of the Public Works of the Colony and the interest on the new Loan; and the increases represent the additional cost of maintenance of public works, etc.

page 5 will be found the summary of the several heads included in the Government's details. We have to make provision for an additional $25,000,000 for the five years of the five years ago, and of $55,000,000 per cent. on the extra million raising now, a total of $80,000,000.

only noteworthy departure from the general increase, by percentage, is in relation to the Judges of the Supreme Court. They present a memorial to the Government pointing out that in all the possessions of the British Empire the salaries of the judges are given to Federal and Provincial Judges in Canada, South Australia and New Zealand, which shows that nowhere were salaries less than $7,000 for an assize, and $6,000 for an assize. Accordingly, the Government, in view of this fact, felt constrained to depart in this particular from the general principle, and put the salaries at the same rate as those of corresponding officials elsewhere.

next item is that of the Board of Commissioners. The Staff Commission provided is that recommended for the proper carrying out of work, which is of a peculiarly and complicated character. It involves the creation and maintenance of records of every man who went overseas in the navy and auxiliary forces, and may have to be under constant review for the next fifty or sixty years.

the ensuing pages there are many additions for sundries, which is important enough to call for a detailed explanation, until we reach page 12, where it will be seen that provision is made for the office of the High Commissioner of the Government, $2,850,000, an increase in the cost of fuel and light for public works of about $8,000; and an increase of $1,000,000.

Talk With the Dead.

Sir A. Conan Doyle's Claim.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle possesses papers which, he claims, "prove survival of and communion with the dead beyond the shadow of a doubt." A representative of The Daily Mail examined these papers at Sir Arthur's home at Crowborough recently and found them to consist of letters from correspondents relating their experiences with a medium recommended to them by Sir Arthur.

All these correspondents, who live in different parts of the country, had lost a near relative or dear friend, and out of 26 cases, said Sir Arthur, there were only two failures, one of which was his own experience. He attended four sittings of seances, and three were completely successful. On each occasion the medium was the same—a woman known as Mrs. B.—and in the successful sitting she revealed trivial and private family reminiscences, on which Sir Oliver Lodge lays much stress.

Relatives' names, personal appearance, idiosyncrasies, and mannerisms were accurately reported; and in one case a question asked in Danish was correctly answered in English, the medium not understanding Danish; and therefore, said Sir Arthur, ruling out the theory of telepathy.

A "Spirit's Vehemence.

One woman writing from Tunbridge Wells said her husband, who died in Genoa, had not written to her for five months before his death. Through the medium, who gave his name and described his personal appearance, he said he was suffering torments of remorse over his neglect of her, and during the seance he continually requested other spirits not to "barge in."

"Why did you not write?" asked the wife. "I did write," he replied, "but that damned fool Ginger did not post the letter."

A South Croynon correspondent stated that her son, a soldier, died in France, and the family had heard that the fatal wound was self-inflicted. After much hesitation the medium related this fact, which was unknown to her, and added that "the boy looked somewhat defiant. He said he had been depressed, and was not in his right mind when he shot himself."

"I said the family were helping him with their prayers."

From Bournemouth came a statement wherein the medium described a young officer standing beside a broken aeroplane propeller. This officer was accidentally killed on Salisbury Plain, she said, by the propeller of his aeroplane, which started prematurely.

Another woman said she was told by her dead son through the medium that she would see him in the garden, and she would first see his "pink aura."

Sir Arthur's Belief.

In his own case, Sir Arthur said, most intimate family affairs were related by the medium, who could not possibly have any previous knowledge of the things she told. His son, who died on service, had been a sceptic on spiritualism, and had declared that his father was being bamboozled. "It was the only difference between us," said Sir Arthur. "But, communicating from the other side, my boy expressed his regret at not having trusted his father's judgment. In speaking he used endearing terms and favourite slang expressions known only to the family circle."

Both Sir Arthur and Lady Doyle were completely convinced that they had actually communicated with the dead boy.

Relating the case of his brother-in-law, a doctor who was killed at Mons, Sir Arthur said that not only did the medium give his name and accurate personal description, but also she said he could be identified by a gold coin. "This gold coin," said Sir Arthur, "was a spade guinea I gave to him for a joke after a medical consultation, and nobody but myself knew of the incident."—Daily Mail.

Funny Navy Talk.

Slang Phrases that are Used by the Sailors.

If "niggers in a snowstorm" faced you on a moon, what quaint sort of cookery would you expect it to be? Well, it is nothing very cannibalistic after all, being merely the blue-jackets' name for the concoction which figures as "stewed plums and rice" on the bill of fare of your favorite luncheon place.

But then "Jack" gives such queer names to familiar things. To him tapioca pudding is "squeaker" and blanc mange just "Chicken food." Plum pudding he calls "aggy duff," and for blotters he has a variety of strange appellations. "A spithead pheasant," "a dead marine," and "a two-eyed steak" are the most generally used of all. By a "half-timer" he means a kipper, and "bunny's meat" is his name for a salad. The war has added new terms to lower-deck vocabulary, and the origin of some is inscrutable. For example, "jack" signifies as "Harry Frosses" the fruit and vegetables which are sent as gifts to the Grand Fleet. Men who have joined the navy "for duration" are termed "hostilities," not because there is anything specially hostile about them or toward them, but for the reason that they have enlisted "for the period of hostilities" only and will go "on the beach" (return to shore employments) when the war has ended. In sailor language an officer who has been superseded is "put on the beach," and "Jack" never uses this expression as he terms an army man.

"The Harry Tate Navy"—meaning the Motor Launch Patrol—is another war addition to lower-deck language, which is always being enriched by new additions and is ever vastly bewildering to those unfamiliar with it. For the most part, however, it consists of time-honored expressions. Of such are "bad hat" and "King's hard bargain," both of which mean bad characters, while the man who has humbly too well is described as being "tin hats" or "three-parts seven-eighths."

A sailor who overstates his leave "gets adrift," when he is hauled up and receives punishment he "goes leeward," and this latter may be generally interpreted as the sailor's equivalent for the longshoreman's "going wrong." The bluejacket who fails to seize an opportunity or is behindhand in anything "misses the boat." Sailors are never called to account for any dereliction of duty; they are "brought up with a round turn." In the navy "a square number" means a cushy job, usually in a shore establishment, and in speaking of anyone who holds a position similar to his own in a ship Jack will describe him as "my opposite number."

Boots are "pusser's crabs," "the pusser" being the paymaster, the lineal descendant of the old-time purser who used to sell "slops" (clothing) to the crew. Certain articles are still obtainable from the paymaster. In his own way of putting it, a sailor does not buy these, he "takes them up" from "the pusser." Between "taking up" an article and being "put down" for it lies this big distinction, that the former means a voluntary purchase, the latter a forced one. Leading seamen are referred to as "killicks," because they wear an anchor as a badge of rating, and "killick" once meant anchor. From all time the master-at-arms has been "the jaunty," and ships' corporals "the crushers." Likewise, the cooper retains his ancient name of "Jimmy Bungs," while marines are "leather-necks" generically, or "bullocks" (artillerymen), or "turkeys" (light infantrymen) specifically.

But the oddest term of all to shore-going ears was that of "idlers," once, though not now, officially used when speaking of artisans and non-military ratings who were certainly among the hardest worked men in a ship. Officially these have now become "daymen," though colloquially the older term sticks. "Dry idlers" are those who were supposed to work in positions where they did not get wet by the sea. Mostly this was supposition. Until recent years, when a ship prepared for action the "idlers" used to be armed with pikes and stationed to repel boarders. Now they are sent to the magazines and such-like places. Idlers they never were in the lexicon sense.
