THE Phantom Lover.

(By the Author of "A Bachelor Husband.")

CHAPTER XXV.

Outside in the road Micky suddenly started up the engine of his car. The dull throb, throb, came faintly to Esther as she sat there as motionless as if she had been carved in stone.

The little vibrant noise sounded like the beating of some one's heart, she thought dully; she found herself listening to it subconsciously.

The two men behind her had moved out to the doorway; she could still hear their talking and laughing together. Something within her urged her to get up and follow them to tell them that she had heard what they said, to tell them that it was all a lie—a shameful lie. But she could not move.

She told herself that if she kept quite still for a few moments she would wake and find that she had just dreamed it all. She stared hard into the glowing fire, trying to believe that it was all part of her dream, that it was not real warmth which she felt on her face at all, that those leaping flames were only pictures of her imagination, that even if she thrust her hand into them they would not burn her, but would just melt away into the silence around like phantoms.

The phantom lover! June's half-mocking words beat dully against her brain. June had always hated Raymond; she would be glad if this were true.

She suddenly realized that she was shivering in every limb. With an effort she dragged her chair closer to the

LUX FOR DAINTY FABRICS

When Choosing the Material for a washable Frock for the growing child—

MOTHER naturally thinks of the possibilities of the fabric shrinking in the wash. It is therefore a relief to her to know that the fabric will not shrink or lose its charm if Lux is used for its cleansing.

Durability, charm of colour, quality of texture, the freshness of newness—these are preserved to all good fabrics washed with Lux. A packet of Lux—a bowl of warm water—and dainty hands can cleanse delightful fabrics in a delightfully easy manner.

The beautiful pure Lux flakes are whisked into a creamy, bubbly lather in an instant. Gently squeeze this cleansing foam through and through the soiled, texture—then rinse in clean water and hang to dry. Lux cannot harm a silken thread. It coaxes rather than forces the dirt from the clothes.

truel! It was some other man of whom they had been speaking, some other Raymond!

She heard Micky laughing with the landlady as he paid for the coffee and bun, and she felt that she hated him for not guessing how she suffered. She walked down to where the little car stood waiting. If only he would be quick and take her back; she could do nothing till she got back to Emmore, and each moment was so precious.

It seemed an eternity until Micky was joined her. He avoided looking at her, though he bent and wrapped the rug carefully over her knees before he took his seat.

The other car with its two occupants had vanished down the road some minutes since; only a small cloud of grey dust on the horizon showed which way they had gone.

Micky drove back faster than he had come. Once or twice he looked down at Esther with an anxious pucker between his eyes.

What had happened in those few minutes to make this sudden change? he wondered.

She had been happy and smiling enough this morning; now all that he could see of her face, half hidden in the big upstaid collar of the coat he had given her, were two piteous blue eyes staring steadily ahead of her down the road.

They had gone some miles almost silently when he felt that he could bear it no longer. He stopped the car almost savagely and turned in his seat.

"What's the matter? What have I done now?" he asked roughly. "You weren't like this when we came out. If I've done anything to annoy you it was only when he bent and caught her hand back from the flames that she realized what she had been going to do. She looked up at him with a sick smile.

"How absurd!" she said in a high-pitched voice. "Nothing is the matter. I'm tired, that's all; I shall be glad to get home."

He was not satisfied.

"You're not telling me the truth," he said. His mind searched anxiously back to the short time they had stayed in the inn. What could have happened? They had seen nobody there except the two men with the racing car.

"Those two fellows who came in—they didn't annoy you, or anything like that, when I was out of the room?"

She shook her head.

"Of course not; they never spoke to me."

"If you won't tell me what I've done, how can I hope to put things right?" he said.

It was always like this, he told himself savagely; one little step onward and a dozen back. He did not speak again till they got home.

Either got out of the car without waiting for him, and went on into the house.

After a moment Micky followed.

Esther was in the hall; she turned to him impatiently.

"Every one is out," she said. "Miss Dearing and June are both out."

There was a sort of strain in her voice which Micky could not understand. She looked as if she had had some bad shock, and yet what could have happened? He had not left her for more than a few minutes.

"Very well, I won't wait," he said formally. He spoke curtly; he felt sore enough; he raised his hat stiffly and turned away.

He looked back once at the little house. He thought perhaps Esther might be standing at the door in case he should turn, but the door was shut, and it was impossible for him to guess that upstairs in the room over the porch Esther had shut and locked the door, and was pacing up and down the room, her hands pressed hard against her eyes, sobbing—great fearless sobs that seemed to rend her very heart.

"It's not true—it's not true," she said over and over again under her breath. "It's not true—it's not true."

The striking of a church clock in the village seemed to rouse her. June would be back soon, and Miss Dearing.

She dabbed her eyes with her handkerchiefs; they felt hot and burning. She looked at herself anxiously in the little mirror—such a white face; she turned away impatiently.

Twelve o'clock; there was a train up to town at half-past, she knew. The confusion in her brain seemed to have passed all at once; she felt quite calm and clear.

She would go to Paris—she would see Raymond, and hear from his own lips what a lie it was. She ought to have gone before. She had been a fool to listen to Micky; of course he would not wish her to go.

She put a few things into a bag. She took the last letter she had had from Raymond, and kissed it before thrusting it back into her dress; she scribbled a pencil note to June and fastened it to the pin cushion.

With the little suit-case in her hand she went downstairs and out into the street.

There was nobody about, and she almost ran to the station. The porter who had witnessed her meeting yesterday with Micky stared at her wonderingly.

The London train was due now, he told her. She'd have to hurry. . . . She was gone before he finished his slow speech.

She found an empty carriage and got in, sitting as far away from the door as possible in case any one should come along the platform and recognize Color and Clothes.

Are you willing to talk about color again? I know it is just the other day that I sang the song of color—the color of sunsets and sunrises, of forests' windows and of m'lady's gown—and rejoiced that the eye-minded joy that flows from music to the ear-mind.

But to-day I want to talk about color from a single standpoint, the standpoint of clothes.

The Opinions of an Expert.

And the reason I want to talk about this subject is that I have the opinions of an expert to pass on to you—the opinions of a woman who has made a study of clothes and of color.

Here are some of the hints she gives in regard to one's color choices when selecting one's wardrobe:

"Consider the background against which your clothes are to be mostly displayed when selecting them. The home background should be originally planned, when possible, to harmonize with your personality and appearance, and your clothes should then be selected to fit this background."

Look Out for Cold Greys.

"Beware of the 'grey' and 'silver' sprays which the fashion makers have planned for us. Only the very young, the transcendently beautiful, and a few women with silver hair, can wear the colder greys, without disastrous effect."

"Black also should be left for the young and brilliantly beautiful."

"Midnight blue is the ideal color for business wear, but it can be relieved by a touch of some other color or a bit of embroidery."

"Gold and the metallic fabrics are excellent for everyone in combination with most colors and especially with black."

"Red should not be used except as an accent and in infinitesimal quantity."

White is Hard to Wear.

"Only a glowingly rosy young girl should ever be sent into a ballroom in a cold color or white." (This delighted me as I have long held this opinion that white is the hardest

Blake's Last Victory.

On the bed-room of Britain's heroes there are few names more glorious than that of Admiral Blake, who on April 20, 1657, achieved his splendid and last victory at Tenerife. He tracked down the silver ships of Spain lying in the harbour of Santa Cruz, and round the curve of the bay. Forcing his way in the gallant admiral silenced the Spaniards with a cannonade, and burnt their ships until Lord Byron's Life Tragedy.

No student of human nature has ever yet solved the mystery of Lord Byron, that strange genius, whose handsome, melancholy face fascinated all the women of his time. As a young man Byron was much envied by his fellows. At Cambridge he was renowned as a dandy and a wit, and later he took London by storm with his "Child Harold" and other poems. Every great house in London was thrown open to him, and although he walked with a limp and was notoriously self-conscious of his infirmity, he had the face of a Greek god—which fact doubtless accounts for his power over the fair sex. Hidden secretly in his heart was a romantic attachment for a girl named Mary Chaworth, who was his ideal, but they drifted apart, and she married a man much beneath her in social status. Disappointed, Byron married Anne Milbanke, who adored him; and this was the beginning of the poet's life tragedy. Possessing a self-conscious virtue, and a jealous nature, she unbraided him with infidelity, and with Sunday school texts of morality constantly remonstrated with him, until she drove him to seek consolation elsewhere. Many women were anxious to thrust their love upon him. He flirted with Lady Oxford and a young actress named Jane Clarendon outrageously, but kept on the safe side of the danger line. His wife became so desperate that she concocted a tale of her husband's illicit attachment for his own sister, which was, of course, without any foundation, but public opinion became fired to a fever heat, and Byron was hushed and slandered, and his name became a byword of immorality. Shunned on all sides, he left his country

Lloyd George Defends New Home Rule Bill.

Government's Irish Policy is Sound --Hopes for Early Cessation of Trouble--Soviets Want a Navy.

PREMIER DEFENDS GOV.

ERNMENT'S POLICY.

LONDON, April 19.

The Prime Minister defends the Government's policy in Ireland, and cites the United States civil war as providing an exact parallel for the situation there, involving the fundamental issue of Union or secession. In his reply made to-day to the recent memorial sent him by nine Anglican bishops and heads of principal non-conformist churches in Great Britain. In this memorial the signers endorsed the Archbishop of Canterbury's protest in the House of Lords against reprisals in Ireland and pleaded for a truce. Among other things the memorial declared that the Government's policy in Ireland exposed Great Britain to misunderstanding and hostile criticism; even of the friendliest of the world's nations. Lloyd George in his letter of reply declared, "at the outbreak of the United States struggle nearly every one in these islands sympathized with the South, even Gladstone took this view and only John Bright, famous English statesman, did not waver his adherence to Lincoln's cause. That war lasted four years and cost a million lives and much destruction of property in a single confederate country than has been caused by all the so-called reprisals throughout Ireland. Lincoln rejected a truce and compromise as he often said he was fighting for the Union and meant to save it even if he could only do so at the price of retaining slavery in the South. Is there a man or woman to-day who does not admit that the North was right and who does not see the calamitous result which would have followed the breaking up of the United States Union. I doubt if there is a responsible man in the Southern States to-day, however much he admires great figures like Jackson and Lee, who is not glad that the Union was preserved even at that terrible cost. Is not our policy exactly the same. It is by reason of the contiguity of the two islands and their strategic and economic interdependence and it is our duty to fight secession and to maintain the fundamental unity of our ancient kingdom of many nations. I believe our ideal of combining unity with Home Rule is a finer and nobler ideal than the excessive nationalism which will have nothing less than isolation, which is the Sinn Fein creed and which if it had full play would Balkanize the world. I believe that once the struggle is over, bitterness forgotten and unity preserved, all will agree that the fundamentals of the Government's claim was right and the Sinn Fein wrong."

ONTARIO VOTES DRY.

Jubilant over the result of the Ontario referendum, whereby Ontario declares itself bone dry, was expressed by referendum workers this morning. Dr. A. S. Grant of the referendum committee, predicted that within five years the whole of Canada would be totally dry.

His Offence.

"Constable," said the senior magistrate of the little country town, frowning daskly in his effort to look wise, "what is the man charged with?"

"Bigotry, your worship," said P. C. Cumaloug. "He's got three wives."

"Constable," said the magistrate, whose learning was inferior to his talent for his small business, "you should be more exact. Why have we instituted evening schools for our police force if not to teach you that when a man has three wives he has committed, not bigotry, but trigonometry?"

And the prisoner turned a shade paler as he realized the deep wisdom of the wielder of the sword of justice.

MINARD'S LINIMENT RELIEVES COLDS, Etc.

House of Assembly.

APRIL 19th.

Petitions were presented from St. George's by Mr. MacDonnell, and Placentia and St. Mary's by Mr. Walsh.

Notices of Question were given by Messrs. F. F. Moore, J. R. MacDonnell, M. S. Sullivan, N. J. Vincembe, W. J. Walsh and Sir M. P. Cashin.

The following Bills were read a first time and ordered to be read a second time to-morrow:

"An Act to amend Chapter 23 of the Consolidated Statutes, entitled 'Of the Auditing of Public Accounts.'"

"An Act to repeal 10-11, Geo. V., Cap. 25, entitled, 'An Act to Regulate the Exportation of Salt Codfish.'"

Answers to questions were tabled by the various departmental heads.

In answer to Sir Michael Cashin the Premier practically admitted that John M. Devine and Mr. E. Collishaw had gone to Washington to enquire into the fishery industry. As to the payment of expenses, it was a matter for the future consideration of the Government. The whole matter had not come before the Committee of Council, and as the mouth-piece of the Government he could not give "official" information.

Sir Michael Cashin thought the limit had been reached when one, Mr. E. Collishaw, should be sent to Washington to represent Newfoundland on fishery matters. That was the worst insult Newfoundland ever got. Sir Michael also passed comment on the answer received in connection with the question referring to the Revenue Protective Service. He said that Free Trade existed on the West Coast.

Considerable discussion arose over the matter of exacting income taxes from clergymen as a result of an answer to Sir M. P. Cashin by the Prime Minister.

The Premier informed Mr. Walsh that Sir Edgar Bowring had intimated that he wished to resign the High Commissionership, but that he had been asked to reconsider this.

The Prime Minister tabled the Public Accounts.

Sir Michael Cashin complained of the unsatisfactory manner in which some questions had been answered.

Sir John Crosbie rose to a point of privilege in connection with an attack on him made in the Star that afternoon. After the House closed on Monday, he had been given to understand by the Premier that personalities would in future be omitted from the Star. Continuing, Sir John said, "I hold in my hand a copy of the Star and here it refers to me in editorial comment. I ask the Prime Minister if he knows anything about it."

Hon. Prime Minister.—I spoke to Sir John yesterday and we thought it would be better on the part of all the papers if they paid less attention to personalities and got down more to political issues. I promised to speak to the editors of the Star and Advocate on the matter. I only saw them for a few minutes before 3 o'clock this afternoon, and I don't know what is in the papers.

Sir John C. Crosbie.—It is not the Advocate; the gentleman who owns that paper would hang his head in shame were such an editorial to appear in its columns. I asked the Hon. Prime Minister yesterday to see that these personalities were put a stop to.

Hon. Prime Minister.—I think we understood each other.

Sir John C. Crosbie.—Yes, and I thought we did also, but in spite of your promise to see to it that this thing was not repeated, I had a repetition of it in the filthy rag again this evening.

Hon. Prime Minister.—I did not get in touch with the editors of these papers until 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Sir John C. Crosbie.—Then you should have sent for this fellow and made sure that you did get in touch with him. All I can say about Editor Mosdell is that if he is the writer of these scurrilous articles and that if he persists in continuing them, I will before the closing of this House, tell something of his history. If I thought that you were guilty of any part in or knowledge of this dirty campaign, I'd allow no business to go through this House until you had given a solemn promise to have it discontinued and apologize, but as you have said that you have no part in it or knowledge of it, I shall take your word for it.

I'll give you an opportunity to run off a few more issues of this dirty rag, but if this sort of thing is allowed to continue in the meantime, I give you my word that no further business is put through this House until it is stopped. I am doing this, Mr. Speaker, because I want to rise above petty and personal squabbling and to see you on the other side do the same thing and get down to serious business. I am doing this because I want to help those of my fellow-men outside of this House who are starving to-day and who are looking to us to do something for them. I want to show the country that I have an ambition above party politics because it is men of the type of those who sit on this side of the House to whom the people will turn for help in their extremity. If this dirty, contemptible sheet is allowed to continue in the way it has been going on, I will appeal to the people to teach the fellow who edits it a lesson that he will have reason to remember for the rest of his miserable life. It is not alone myself who has been the subject of these attacks; even Government House cannot escape them, and I repeat now that the sooner the Star stops this filth, the better for the Government whose organ it is and for all those connected with it. I've spoken to the Prime Minister once, twice and even three times and now I speak to him for the last time, and I promise him that if he fails to stop it, he will have no worse opponent in this country than myself when I get out against him.

I have got enough of taffy and high-sounding words. You come in here and tell me all sorts of flowery things, but as soon as your back is turned your promises are forgotten. And now I say stop it, or I will put forth an appeal the result of which you will never forget. Now, Sir, this is the last time I shall speak to you on this matter. I have fired the last shot, and I assure you that the last shot has been fired against me, because if this sort of thing is continued any longer, some one will have to answer for it. If I have said anything at any time which appeared to the Prime Minister to be of a personal nature, I want to assure him that I do not come in here to attack him personally, but to attack the Government of which he is the leader. See Dr. Mosdell before three o'clock to-morrow, because if this occurs again you may have reason to regret it. This is the last notice.

Mr. Walsh rose to speak to the Amendment. He first read the Resolutions. He came into the House for one purpose only, to assist his fellow-countrymen who are being weighed down by the weight they had to carry. He first wished to draw attention to charges made against him in the Advocate on the question of sectarianism. He had no desire to enquire into the affairs of any private firm, but the F.P.U. was not a private firm. He asked in the House if the F.P.U. owed money on bonds, and he was glad to know that no money was owed the Customs. But what about the money owed on salt? Were those members who did not represent F.P.U. constituencies doing their duty? The F.P.U. motto "To Every Man His Own" should be changed to "To the F.P.U. All!" He charged the Minister of Marine and Fisheries for not rising to support the Resolutions because they emanated from the Opposition. He was going to marshal his statements this afternoon under three heads. The first was his position at the time the Fish Regulations were brought in. Mr. Walsh then went into the matter of the regulations once again. The House was given to understand that an Export Board would be formed, but it did not know that Messrs. Collishaw, Brookes,

The Challenge of Fear.

Driven to bay the least courageous denizen of the forest will turn and attack in a final effort to overcome its foes; but it does not issue any challenge of fear. It simply turns and attacks its pursuer blindly and with the hope—not of victory—but of at least diverting its enemy and eventually making its escape. Though sometimes it will fight to the death against long odds. The human animal when in a tight corner from which it knows there is no release, excepting by going under in an unequal struggle, often blusters and roars in order that it may strike a semblance of fear into the heart of its attacker, and so cause it to desist. Such to-day is the attitude of Mr. Coaker, such the attitude of his own personally governed and directed newspaper. The note of the challenge of fear crept into the defiance of the North, trumpeted by the organ on Monday. It is the last word, the final defiance of a lost cause, a cause conceived in the brain of a genius, but carried out by the same genius under the intoxicating influence of power. A cause born and nurtured under the most beneficent conditions, but abused and destroyed because of an ambition that overleaped itself. The cause of Unionism was a great and grand one. The principles enunciated at the inception of the Fishermen's Protective Union were beyond cavil or criticism. They were in a class all by themselves, and were worthy of subscription to by any man of intelligence. But the institution developed into a riot, an orgy of power and autocracy, and the moment the true principles became undermined by the introduction of elements foreign to its original constitution, that moment dated the beginning of the end.

It has been part—if not the whole—of the policy of the leaders of the Fishermen's Protective Union to let no moment pass without impressing upon the members of that organization the astounding falsehood that it is the desire of a certain class to kill that Union. Such an expressed sentiment is but the diseased thought, put in words, of a jaundiced brain, a brain which did not possess the forethought to visualize far enough ahead the magnificent work that could be performed by the uniting, under a properly formed executive, of certain classes, imbued with the sole desire of improving and enlarging certain conditions of life under which they labored, and which they desired to advance and cultivate. For that was the original object aimed at in the formation of the Fishermen's Protective Union. We challenge the denial of this assertion; from the President down to the junior member. But amelioration of living conditions did not suit the book of those who were elected to leading offices. They grasped after the sceptre of power and power can only be gained in Newfoundland through domination in politics. Such was the thought of the men controlling the administration and movements of the F.P.U. and these men so imposed their personality upon other and inferior men to them that at length the Fishermen's Protective Union, from a commercial institution, became erected into the most formidable political body that ever was seen in Newfoundland. Politics, Commercialism, Benevolence, and Unionism were welded together, and the weld held for a time. The first sign of weakening came when men long in public life uttered a warning, that the entrance of the F.P.U., as an organization, working under a Constitution and with hundreds of Councils throughout the Island, into politics, governed autocratically by its President and having its said Constitution framed to meet political exigencies, was a menace to freedom of government. From that time it has been the one aim of the leaders of the Union to impress upon their followers that there has been a desire on the part of all non-unionists to destroy the F.P.U., its President and its commercial ramifications. Nothing could be, or can be, farther from the truth. If the Union has been killed, the murder has been done by the one man in whom members placed implicit confidence, and the story will be heard in thunder tones as the noise of the fall of the Fish Regulations reverberates amongst the hills of the hundreds of fishing settlements in Newfoundland.

Assaulted the Police—A man was charged with being drunk and disorderly in his mother's house, and with assaulting the police. The defendant hit one of the policemen who went to arrest him and temporarily stunned him. His Honor said the police were there for our protection and to enforce law and order, and they must be upheld in the discharge of their duty. He fined the defendant $20 or 30 days.

In For Safekeeping—A foreign seaman who was in for safekeeping, said his ship was in the stream and he couldn't get aboard last night. He was discharged.

At Home, which the N.C.O.'s of the C.L.B. Cadets are holding on Friday night in the C.C.C. Hall, promises to be a big success. The organizers have chosen a particularly suitable day for the dance, as Saturday is a whole holiday. Moreover, owing to the shops being open on Friday night, dancing will not begin until 10 o'clock. The music will be provided by the full Battalion Band, under the able direction of Capt. A. Morris. Refreshments will be on sale during the evening and an excellent supper will be served by the Ladies' Auxiliary in the manner for which they have already been noted. It is the intention of the Non-Coms. to make this At Home an annual affair.

No Duty Paid. The following information was tabled yesterday in reply to a question which was asked by Sir Michael Cashin relating to some motor cars imported last year: (a) Six Motor Cars were imported by the S.S. Canadian Miner in July last by the General Motor Supply Co. (b) Their removal from the possession of the Customs Department was secured on a Temporary Permit. (c) The same was signed by the Minister of Finance and Customs. (d) The duty has not been paid. (e) As no invoices have yet been presented, the Customs authorities cannot tell the amount of duty. (f) Payment has been demanded from the Importers and is being arranged for.

Schooner Abandoned. We take the following from the Halifax Herald of April 15th. "Last night Mr. A. Moulton of the firm of A. Moulton this city received a telegram from his brother John T. Moulton of Burgeo Nfld, stating the schooner Ronald B. Moulton had been abandoned at sea, and the crew landed at a port in Gambia. She was a vessel of 138 tons net, owned by J. T. Moulton, and was bound for Burgeo with a load of salt from Santa Pola via Oporto, sailing from the latter port on March 4th."

Row at Argentina. FUGLIT BATTERS TWO MEN. From the particulars learned of an affair which happened at Argentina a few days ago, it would seem that the aggressor, a powerful man of about 200 lbs. weight, seriously injured his opponents so much, so that they had to come on here for treatment. The injured men are Thomas Kelly and his brother, ex-Const. P. Kelly. The aggressor is a man named Cooney. From the reports to hand it appears that Cooney entered a dance hall and made an attack on Thomas Kelly, knocking him down, and then jumping on him. Kelly received a compound leg fracture and had his face badly battered. His chest is also seriously injured, and it is likely he will have to go to hospital for treatment. Ex-Constable Paul Kelly, who interferred to save his brother, had his face also badly battered, and was obliged to run from his assailant. A summons has been issued against Cooney and he will be tried at Placentia before Magistrate O'Reilly. Counsel from the city has been engaged in the case.

Presented Dr. Chase's Prize. On Monday Mr. Gerald Doyle presented Miss P. Florence Miller of Top-sail with a voice-phone, awarded that young lady for first place in the great Dr. Chase Almanac Competition. The instrument is a splendid one, and worth several hundreds of dollars. A large number of residents of the settlement assembled to witness the presentation and compliment the fortunate young lady.

Numerous Protests. Seeing the numerous protests that have come to the city from every hamlet in the country against the Fishery Regulations it is small wonder that the Government was forced to move. It is said that an armful of such letters of protest have come to the Board of Trade and they are from nearly every settlement between Godroy on the West to Outwalk in Notre Dame Bay.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES. MILITARY POLICY APPROVED. LONDON, April 19. The British Government approves fully the general policy of military Governors in Ireland, it was declared in the House of Commons to-day by Austen Chamberlain, Government Leader. Asked whether the policy existed, of official reprisals by Crown forces in Ireland, Chamberlain replied, "It is within the discretion of military Governors in martial law areas to direct the carrying out of outrages have been committed. The imposition and collection of fines is a legitimate and recognized feature of martial law, but as far as my information goes, occasions on which such fines are imposed are very few. The general policy pursued by military Governors in Ireland has the full approval of the Government."

TIME LIMIT SET. PARIS, April 19. Allied reparations commission announced to-day that it had given Germany until April 22 to transfer gold holdings of the Reich Bank to the Coblenz and Cologne branches of that bank. If Germany refuses to comply with the ultimatum, it states it will require the immediate delivery of the gold to the commission itself. The transfer of gold, the commission explained, will not permit the German Government to dispose of it without authority from the commission.

necessitating the turning in of three alarms. The church is one of the largest in Montreal, and was a reproduction of the Cathedral of Florence, Italy. It was built of stone over a wooden interior, which accounted for the spread of the fire. The tower is nearly two hundred feet high, and shrouded in great difficulty in fighting flames there. Every appliance and all the apparatus possessed by the Montreal Fire Department was called out to fight the flames, but it was impossible to save the church.

GOING TO ENGLAND. LONDON, April 20. Owing to the inability of Lloyd George to leave the country during the present industrial crisis, Aristide Briand, French Premier, will cross the Channel next Saturday for a preliminary conference on the Allied plans on the question of reparations.

WILL NOT BE CANCELED. MONTREAL, April 20. The Harbor Commissioners gold-headed cane, for their arrival here from the ocean, will not be presented to the captain of the Manolia, which docked here last night from Newfoundland, because the Canada Steamship Lines boat is not an ocean boat.

NEW DEMANDS. LONDON, April 20. Demands for a National Wage Board and a National Wage Pool have been re-affirmed by a large majority of miners' committees throughout the country, the Labor Herald declares in a statement last night declaring Lloyd George did not understand a National Wage Pool, and his address in the House did not carry the possibility of settlement any further.

GERMAN WILLNESS. PARIS, April 20. The Temps to-day publishes a despatch under Cologne date, giving what purports to be a proposition, which the newspaper says, Germany will make to Allies. Germany proposes it is said to pay the Allies three billion gold marks during ten years, and also yearly payments equal to one fifth of the value of German exports to Allied countries, during the preceding year. In order to realize the sum, Germany proposes to issue a loan of ten billion gold marks, upon which she is prepared to pay interest up to five per cent. Commenting on this despatch the Temps says Berlin is convinced that these terms will be rejected by the Allies, but insists on a public presentation, hoping that a part of opinion abroad will consider them sufficient to bring pressure to bear on the Allies not to occupy the Ruhr region.

MRS. LLOYD GEORGE ON THE HUSTINGS. LONDON, April 20. For Clean Government.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—May I be permitted, as a citizen, and one who has fought and bled for his right, to enter a protest against the Government's existence. I must state right here that the Leader of the Opposition, Sir Michael Cashin, is the best Minister of Finance the country has ever had, and I defy any man to contradict this statement.
In the face of what has happened to some of the best business men of this country, men who for the past fifty years have been the backbone of the fishing industry, being driven insolvent by the unheard of audacity of "Parker's ultimatum" to the world at large, that the inhabitants thereof must buy our fish at his price. The Star, in the face of that, to support the Government. Well, the less said the better.

What we want, Mr. Editor, is a Government for the people's interests, a Government that will do its honest best to make this Newfoundland a better place for us to live in. Not a Government that would sanction such atrocities as anyone who can think and are unbiased in their opinions, must know have happened.

Before closing, I might remark that there is such a thing as a vote of no confidence, that a people can use in the failure of a party or Government to live up to its manifestations.
Thanking you for space in your esteemed paper, I am,
Yours for clean Government.

Canadian Tobacco.

Someone said of the Ford Car, "everyone laughs at them and everyone drives them." Similarly it may be said of Canadian tobacco, that everybody makes fun of it yet everybody uses it. The funny part of it is that the smokers of Canada are imbued with the fond belief that little if any of the "native herb" is used in the country, when as a matter of fact it is nearly all consumed at home and tens of thousands of smokers of the same are blissfully ignorant of the fact. Last year the crop for the whole Dominion came to more than 48 million pounds, Quebec raising over 26 millions and Ontario more than 21 millions, the total value being thirteen million dollars. The taste and quality differ with climate and the location where it is grown, some of the leaf being particularly tasty to the initiated, even British buyers having become interested and desirous of opening up a trade in the same.

So important are Canadian prospects considered that a Growers' Co-operative Company has been organized in Windsor, Ontario—the company already handling one hundred thousand pounds of dry-leaf daily. It must be remembered that it has been only within a short time that experimentation in the growing of tobacco in Northern climates has been carried on at all extensively, while every effort extending over two centuries has been made in the growth and improvement in the weed in warm climates. In this age of more rapid advance, twenty-five years' of intensive experiment in Northern climates would, doubtless, result in equally great improvements, and Canada may yet be a word of magic among smokers when applied to the home-grown product—Acadian Recorder.

Salt-Cellar Superstitions

The superstition connected with the spilling of salt has the same origin as the one concerning thirteen people at a table—Last Supper.
But there is no foundation for it in history. None of the accounts of the Last Supper records any spilling of salt by Judas, and it is doubtful whether Leonardo da Vinci, in his famous fresco, intended to attach any significance to the over-turned salt-cellar beyond indicating nervousness on the part of Judas.

Leonardo's painting having been accepted as an historic replica of the Supper, it is only natural that the incident of the overturned salt should have been implanted in our minds as an integral part of the meal, and that it should have been connected with Judas and his subsequent ill-fortune.
The custom of throwing salt over the left shoulder in order to dissipate any evil influence has an origin which antedates Leonardo by hundreds of years. The pagan Romans considered that salt was sacred to the Penates, the household gods, and that to spill it during a meal would incur their wrath—not upon the spiller, but upon the person in whose direction it was spilled.

Casting a pinch of salt over the left shoulder—the shoulder of evil—was an act of politeness, for it was supposed to lift the curse from the person toward whom the salt fell and to fasten it upon the spiller himself.
It was probably this ancient Latin belief which caused Leonardo da Vinci to include the overturned salt in his painting of the Last Supper.

Upset His Calculations.

An old man appealed for charity from the passers-by: "Pity a poor old man who has missed his calculation."
The strangeness of his cry attracted an old lady, who stopped the man and asked him what he meant.
"Madam," said he, "it's like this. When I was young I earned plenty of money, and at fifty had saved a good sum. I said to myself I should only live to be seventy, and what I had would keep me comfortably till then. Unfortunately, I missed my calculation. I've lived to be seventy-two, and my money is all gone."
The explanation secured him the gift, his ingenuity deserved.

That Would Cure Him.

A crowd assembled quickly when it was discovered that a tall man in a temperance suit of all black, and wearing teetotal whiskers, was chastising a gay semi-drunk with a flapping umbrella.
The young man was taking his castigation in the greatest good humour, and the aggrieved party exclaimed, with righteous ferocity: "This scoundrel kissed my wife!"
"Yes, he did," shrieked a gaunt woman, whose face would have stopped a clock, "and I never saw him before in my life."
Her grief inspired the husband to more violent efforts with the gamp.
"I'll teach you to kiss my wife," he snarled.
Then a portly taxi-driver, cut in, "Garn!" he snorted. "You can't hurt him with that. Make him kiss her again!"

Do This

Then see if your friends notice prettier teeth

Make this pleasant ten-day test. See what it does for your teeth. Then judge for yourself—by the clear results—how much this method means.

Millions of people have thus found a way to whiter, cleaner, safer teeth. And you will also find it.

It fights film

This method combats the film on teeth—that viscous coat you feel. Film is the teeth's great enemy. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays.

Brushing in the old ways does not end this film. And most tooth troubles are caused by what is left. Film absorbs stains, making the teeth look dingy. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Very few people have escaped these troubles caused by film.

Two new methods Dental science has now found two methods to fight film. Many careful tests have proved their efficiency. Leading dentists everywhere now advise their daily use.

The methods are embodied in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. Other factors, now considered essential, are included with it.

FREE

This Ten-Day test costs you nothing. Simply mail the coupon. Then watch the delightful effects.

Pepsodent combats the film with every application. It keeps teeth highly polished, so film less easily adheres.

It also stimulates the salivary flow. That is Nature's great tooth-protecting agent. It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva, to digest starch deposits which so often cling and form acid. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva, to neutralize the acids which cause tooth decay.

Thus every use brings five desired effects which old methods failed to bring.

The modern way

Pepsodent is based on modern research. It does what authorities now regard as essential. Half the world over it is displacing old methods, largely by dental advice.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

Watch all the good effects. The book we send will tell the reason for them. Then decide if this method, in your family, should supersede the old. Cut out the coupon now.

The New-Day Dentifrice

Workmen Hold Another Monster Meeting.

Spacious Casino Filled to Capacity--Sentiment Powerful and Determined.

The Casino Theatre was crowded to its utmost capacity last night when the adjourned meeting of St. John's unemployed was held, and the committee appointed on Saturday night gave a report of the work so far accomplished. Mr. E. J. Whitty, chairman of the committee, called the meeting to order at 8 p.m., by asking the Secretary to read the minutes of the previous meeting, which were received and adopted. Mr. Whitty then addressed the large audience and gave a complete outline of the work during the past few days, explaining that already it had brought forth good results. They had got all the information that it was possible to get on the unemployment question. The resolution had been drawn up in proper form by a solicitor and he had much pleasure in reading same to the meeting. After doing so he stated that copies had been forwarded to the Prime Minister and the Leader of the Opposition and they would be presented at the Bar of the House at 3.30 p.m. today. The Speaker had been written in connection with this matter and the Prime Minister had informed them the delegation would be received at the above hour. Yesterday morning, he continued, in company with Secretary Kavanagh and Mr. Dempsey he had a 2½ hours' conference with the Prime Minister in his office, who told them that the Fish Regulations were practically now off for ever. The bungling of the Sugar Control Board was also discussed at the conference. The bungling of the Food Control Board said the Speaker was in buying when the cost was highest and having to sell when it was lowest. "Experienced men were not on that board said Mr. Whitty and the time is come when those on it should be heard of no more, we need no food control. What most of us can get these days is easily controlled. I may say, however, that on or about the 29th day of May the Sugar Regulations are coming off and you can then buy sugar for 12 cents per pound. Competition then will settle the price and not the Food Control Board. The agreement reached is that the Government will put 1½ cents per pound, extra duty on sugar until such time as they are reimbursed for the $180,000 that have been lost on the sugar business. The War Measures Act was all so dealt with and that too the Speaker said would be removed from the Statute Book. "I wish to tell you men" said the Speaker, "that we have been treated in a gentlemanly manner by every one we came in contact with since assuming the duties you imposed upon us on Saturday last. Your requests have been answered and the official announcement from the Speaker of the House on to-morrow will be that what you asked has been granted and a little more. We have won out, but at the same time to-morrow afternoon we must conduct ourselves in an orderly manner. We have pledged our word that there would be no disturbing and we would be law abiding. People said we had nothing in our resolutions about employment, well I say the resolutions are all about employment. When we went to the Prime Minister with the resolutions he said he expected what was coming. When I spoke to Hon. Dr. Campbell about the resolution I did not ask for a script I said we had one for him. Yes men they all got busy and on Thursday morning a Labor Bureau will be opened at the Municipal Council Office. Work giving 50% of labor for expenditure will be started and $50,000 will be expended on work at the Long Bridge. The Municipal Council will expend $150,000 on water works and road improvements. This money is now being negotiated for. The Council's work will go on for six days a week and when fully under way 500 men will be employed. These are to be residents of the Municipality. Men your committee has been busy and our work does not finish to-morrow afternoon. Today we visited the Board of Health and made the Doctor there get busy—or I should say get down to his job. We also sold a cart load of fish. Yes we sold the fish. One of the committee met a man this morning from Pouch Cove, the horse drawing the load of fish was hungry and the man was the same. The fish was sold and I believe both the man and horse got a big fright. The petition that we are presenting to the Assembly will be a historic document.

Mr. J. Dempsey—Mr. Chairman and gentlemen I am here to-night with a heart full of joy because the things we set out to do have been practically accomplished, and we need not feel ashamed. Both the laborer and the mechanic were always regarded by certain people as a go-as-you-please crowd. But events have proven otherwise and now I would say, as we have gone so far, uphold the principles of unionism but don't over step the bonds. As we were treated with courtesy and I must give the Premier credit for treating us like gentlemen, don't to-morrow give anyone a chance to say we are a disorderly crowd of men. While we live within the law we have nothing to fear. We accomplished what we set out to do by being orderly. So let us be the same to-morrow and when we are finished at the Assembly then we can cheer."

Mr. S. Earle who had been made a member of the Executive Committee spoke a few words on factory conditions the labor side of which he said he was conversant with. He urged that all work in harmony to get the factories in full running order as very many of the girls who worked in the factories are now very badly off.

Mr. Robins who sold the load of fish for the Pouch Cove man, spoke at some length dealing principally with the Fish Regulations, which he said touched every man in Newfoundland, and even the truckmen were sufferers by it, many of whom are not earning 50 cents per day. The shoemaker, sailmaker, blacksmith, tinsmith, cooper, were likewise affected. "I would ask you men" he said, "to keep yourselves within the bounds of the law. They cannot allow us to starve although we are very near it, and I might say the same conditions apply to that once prosperous and independent settlement of Pouch Cove as applies all over the island. They caught fish but could not sell it, and to-day they are on the verge of starvation there and this is all through those Fish Regulations."

Mr. M. Bennett—"Mr. Chairman and gentlemen I am a cooper and would just like to tell you what the regulations have done for me and those of my trade. I may say I am the son of an honorable Southside fisherman. I prosecuted the fishery for a number of years. I went out of the country and returned again in 1912 when I took up my occupation of journeyman cooper. From 1912 to 1920 I never lost a day's work at the trade. From April 1920 to December I never received a full day's pay and since January 1921 to the present day I received the sum of six dollars, and I have eight mouths to feed. What I have suffered no tongue can tell. Picture to yourselves Christmas approaching and my dear little children to provide for, I had no work. In my opinion the fishery regulations are responsible for the stagnation, and the individuals who are responsible for them should be prosecuted. I am not a politician and I defy any one to say that I interfere in politics. I took no sides in the General or the Bye-election in St. John's. I say again that those who brought this misery on us workmen should be prosecuted. My nearest relation made the Supreme Sacrifice in the Great War, and in 1917 I offered my services which was more than Coaker did. I call on my friends the fishermen the coopers the laborers and other workmen to come forward and we will put these persecutors to the mat." He congratulated Mr. Robins who started the fight for the poor man's cause and also Mrs. Julia Salter Earle, whose name should go down in history as far as the workman was concerned.

Mr. Earle—Gentlemen of the Committee and all brothers. It is a pleasure to think that I have done anything for you. I could not have done it without the help of my brothers. I must speak of unemployment, do you know what it carries in its trail. Unemployment means sickness, death. It is all very well while your brother unionist has work to do and get assistance, but when too he is out of work then it is all different. I will quote for you a moral— "Value the one who stands by you in a storm, for swarms of insects will surround you in the sunlight." Now I tell you stand by your committee. Remember there is a very sad side to this business and I will quote for you a report of the loss of wages from the factories in the city. There are only two operating on full time, A. Harvey & Co., John Browning, some are closed. The decrease in wages from this source per week is $9,460. Any of you men who read the report in the News of the Society for Protection of Animals must feel indignant. Imagine $780.00 raised to protect animals and according to the report the Government is to be asked for more money, to protect animals and there is nothing to protect a girl. Many of the girls who worked in factories now closed are in want. We need protection for these girls. Society says I have interfered with domestics and that I won't let a girl go into service unless there is a menu of grape fruit, etc. The girls know better."

Mr. J. Cahill followed in a pathetic but humorous speech. He had been out of employment since January. He cautioned his audience to be law abiding and behave well on their first anniversary day. The discussion was then opened to the audience, and several questions regarding employment for those not used to laboring work were put to the committee. The Chairman promised that the matter would be given the best of attention. It was then proposed and seconded and unanimously adopted that all unemployed, both male and female would meet at the Casino Theatre at 2 p.m. to-day and parade through the city to the House of Assembly. The line of march will be along New Gower Street to Hutchings Street, thence to Water and Cochrane Streets to the Colonial Building and it is expected that the parade will be the largest seen in the city for many years. The meeting was brought to a close at 10.30 p.m. with the singing of the National Anthem.

There are many good reasons why you should "KLEAN UP" your house. HERE ARE A FEW—
 Paint preserves wood from decay. A painted house will outlast an unpainted one. People are judged by the appearance of the house they live in. A shabby looking house is a reflection on the people who reside therein. A house which is painted every 4 or 5 years expresses in a forceful manner the cleanliness and character of its occupants. Men Who Refuse Millions.

Wealthy People Who Prefer Poverty to Riches.

"I did nothing to earn this fortune and I was not given an opportunity to decide whether I needed it. It is more than a man wants. One man is only entitled to more than another if he needs more."

With these words Mr. Charles Garland has just turned a resolute back on the quarter of a million pounds left to him by his late father, a rich Boston financier. He declares that he prefers his simple life on a small farm to the luxury such unearned riches would give him.

Bakes His Own Bread.
 And he is only one of many men who have similarly scorned the gold which wealthy fathers have accumulated for them.

For many years Mr. John Vanderbilt, a member of one of the world's richest families, has made his home in a small cottage on the summit of the Witch's Head Mountain in Pennsylvania. Here this millionaire-horror leads his lonely life, doing his own cooking and housework, washing his linen in a mountain stream, cultivating his vegetables, making his own bread, and replenishing his larder with the spoil of his gun and rod.

On a small rocky island off the Connecticut coast lives in equal isolation and penury Charles Alvord, son of an American millionaire, who, thirty years ago, turned his back on society to lead the simple life in close communion with Nature. His home is a tiny cabin built by his own hands. He pays the Government a yearly rent of a sovereign, and spends his days happily in reading and fishing.

"No one comes to see me," he says, "and I go nowhere. I am always alone. I am cut off from the world as on the planet Mars; but I have found happiness. I am content to watch the battle from afar; for riches, he says, social triumphs, and all for which men are willing to lay down their very lives, are nothing to me now."

A few years ago M. Solodovnikoff, a Russian multi-millionaire, ended his days in a cottage, surrounded by dilapidated and rotting furniture. Although he was reputed to be one of the richest men in Europe, his wealth gave him no pleasure. "My gold," he once said, bitterly, "has brought me nothing but misery, and I hate it."

When M. Solodovnikoff was shivering in his fireless hovel, a well-known English baronet, with a rent-roll of £30,000 a year, was leading an equally sordid and wretched life in a London garret overlooking the Thames, while two of the most beautiful ancestral homes in England were waiting vainly for the coming of their lord.

He never crossed the threshold of his hermitage, and found his chief pleasure in papering his walls over and over again with pictures cut from the various illustrated papers.

Fifty years ago there was a no more enviable figure in France than M. Paul Colasson, the Parisian millionaire, whose regal entertainments were the talk and wonder of Europe.

Lived a Hermit's Life.

Then fell the tragic blow which laid his life in ruins. One day in 1874 his nephew, to whom he was passionately devoted, was burnt to death at a fancy-dress ball; and from that day M. Colasson was dead to the world, with grief as his only companion.

"My money was all for him," he

AS TO NAMES.

(From the Boston Transcript.)
 The late Champ Clark was christened James Beauchamp Clark, but he voluntarily dropped the first name, and later because people would insist on mispronouncing "Beauchamp," he re-christened himself with the name by which he was generally known. His case reminds us of the old darky's plan. The latter was asked, "What have you named your baby, Rastus?"

"Sam Deo Tom Johnson, sah."
 "What's the Pro Tem for?"
 "To show that the name is only temporary, sah. We kinder thought Sam might like to choose his own name when he grew up, so we put in de Pro Tem as a warning to de public."

Touch the Bell.

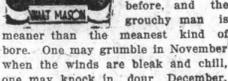

The latest story of J. D. Rockefeller, the millionaire oil king, illustrates one of his mottoes, "Never do any unimportant work for yourself which others, whose time is less valuable, can do."
 One day his secretary was reading to him an important letter which called for an interest calculation. Instinctively the secretary began a rapid calculation, but the proof came without delay. "Mr. Rogers," said the millionaire, "you have clerks to figure interest. Touch your bell."

APRIL DAYS.

April birds are sweetly calling in the shadow of the wood. April rains are softly falling where they'll do the most good. April fields are a brighter greener. I have seen them ever before, and the grouchy man is meaner than the meanest kind of bore. One may grumble in November when the winds are bleak and chill, one may knock in our December, when the snow is on the hill, but when April skies are flowing in the warmest fints of blue, smiles ecstatic should be showing on the whole blasted human crew. One may kick in sultry summer, sweating in the baking grad, when the long day is a hummer and the night is twice as bad, when the cloudless sky is brassy, and the whole world pants with heat—one may then get pert and sassy, and denounce things and repeat. But when April, clothed in beauty, shows the finer curves of Spring, he is nifty and gaily who declines to smile and sing. He is fit for feigning treason and for stratagem and spoli. If he scorns the finest season that has been designed by Hoyle, There should be no grouchy faces in the surging ranks of men, when fair April, with her graces, makes the old world young again.

Expulsion of the Long Parliament.

During the Interregnum, when England was called a Commonwealth, a naval war with Holland began. The Dutch having shown an inclination to sympathize with the House of Stewart, the English Parliament passed the Navigation Act, which prohibited foreign ships from carrying to England the produce of any country but their own. This was a heavy blow to the Dutch shipping trade, and a war for the empire of the sea ensued. The Dutch Admirals were Tromp and De Ruyter, and to them was opposed the English Admiral Blake, formerly a colonel. After several indecisive engagements, the superior numbers of the Dutch forced Blake to retire; whereupon Tromp traversed the Channel with a broom at his mast-head, to indicate that he was sweeping the English from their own seas. But early in 1653, however, Blake defeated Tromp, off Portland, and destroyed eleven of his ships. The Dutch then sought peace; but the English Parliament, dreading the ambitious schemes of Cromwell, refused to terminate the war; as it was only by

Two Tragedies.

Dear Sir—For the second time within two months the little settlement of Fox Roost has been called upon to mourn the loss of four of its inhabitants, under most tragic circumstances. In February last Mr. Wm. Collins fell overboard from his fishing boat while on the fishing ground and was drowned, his son who was with him in the boat, being the only witness of the tragedy, and was unable to do anything to rescue his father. This six children were placed on April 20, 1653, and is historically known as the expulsion of the Long Parliament.

A Smart Lad.

Commenting on the need of resourcefulness amongst officers of the Royal Navy, Admiral Beatty recently told an amusing story concerning a naval cadet "up for" his oral examination in common sense and resource.
 The examiner (said Lord Beatty) was a certain bluff old admiral of the old, old school.
 "How did you come here, m' lad?" was his first question.
 "In a taxi, sir."
 "And what was the number of the taxi?"
 "2648, sir."
 "Good. You'll do."
 That evening the admiral told the story to a friend who said: "What a very observant lad! But how did you know he was telling the truth?"
 "Truth be sugar!" said the admiral. "It was devilish smart of the boy to give me any number without the slightest hesitation."

PROMOTION OF THE PRINCE.

LONDON, March 21st, 1921.
Some time in the next few months the Prince of Wales is to become a Major-general in the Army and a Rear-admiral in the Navy. These promotions are due before His Royal Highness leaves for India towards the end of the year, and they mean that he will require a larger naval and military staff during his tour. As promotion runs among Royal Princes, the Prince of Wales will not reach these new ranks at an unusually early age, although the Duke of Connaught had passed his thirtieth birthday when he was advanced from lieutenant-colonel to major-general. The Prince may wear his uniform as a General for the first time at the trooping of the Color on the King's birthday in June.

MR. WELLS AND A.D. 4921.

H. G. Wells, the novelist, is becoming so much a national institution that his correspondence must be reaching Gladstonian dimensions. People of all sorts in doubt, on difficult imaginative questions particularly, appeal to him in both senses of the phrase. The manager of the huge Bush Company building that is being erected between Kingsway and the Strand has been considering the idea of a foundation stone casket to be embedded in which the building is to stand. As a reader of Mr. Wells' "History of the World" he had been struck by Mr. Wells' difficulty, through lack of significant material, in dealing with the world's history 2,000 years ago. As he was told that the concrete foundations would last at least that time he thought that it might be of use to the Mr. Wells of A.D. 4921 if he found the information about our time neatly prepared for him. Accordingly Mr. Wells was written to and asked to suggest what would be the most useful things or messages to be placed in the cavity. Here is Mr. Wells' reply: "Difficult to make suggestions. Probably common-place things with their current prices will be of as much value as anything. Safety razor, cotton reel, bottle of pickles, and that sort of thing. Shoolbred's (a well-known furniture store) catalogue, pre-war and post-war. Samples of patent medicines and what they profess to cure. Dietary of ordinary citizen; typewriter, a sewing-machine, and so forth. Dressing-bag with fittings. Current book on "How to Behave." A cinema reel of current events. "Whitaker's Almanack" and Bradshaw's Continental time-tables (pre-war and post-war). Baeker's, England. Town maps and plans.—H. G. Wells."

FRENCH AVIATION SUBSIDIES.

Details of the French aviation subsidies have now reached me. They are of a most elaborate character, and after considering them it will be seen that there is little chance for British firms to compete with the French in civil aviation. The subsidies are of two kinds. One deals with the purchase of machines, and the other with public transport. The grant towards purchase amounts to half the value of the machines, and there is a series of grants made under the head of transport which are extremely important in character. It is a condition that firms receiving the transport grant shall have a minimum number of machines, and this number may be gathered from the fact that it is necessary to have a minimum of 21 machines in order to provide a daily outward and return service to Paris from London. There is a subsidy given for depreciation, another for the crew carried, a third for the expenses of actual flight and dependent on the load carried, a fourth for the amount of petrol used, and a fifth, on account of turnover. The total amount of the subsidy is very nearly equal to the maximum fare allowed to be charged for the services rendered.

AIR MAP OF LONDON.

One of the minor services of aviation is illustrated by the experiment now being made of mapping London photographically from the air. The plan is an ambitious one, and several thousands of photographs will have to be taken before work is completed. The pictures will then be pieced together so that the whole will form one comprehensive and very accurate map of the Metropolis. The results so far achieved have given every satisfaction, but the task, the biggest of the kind yet embarked upon, is too far qualified verdict on the coal and under-merits of the work. There is, however, no doubt that a saving in money will be effected. The photographic map of London will cost considerably less than one made by a survey of the ground, and it will be completed in quicker time.

WOMEN DETECTIVES.

Although the big departmental stores have for years employed women detectives to deal with thieves, it is only recently that Scotland Yard (the headquarters of the police) began to employ them officially. In the shops women detectives have proved a marked success, as the employers generally concede. This is the only effective method of bringing purloiners to book. It is believed that women should be equally efficient as official detectives in the employment of Scotland Yard. And so their training, hard but interesting and thorough, is now taking place. The recruits are drawn from the ranks of the Metropolitan Policewoman's Patrol, which has done useful work of a preventive nature.

NEW COINAGE SUSPENDED.

I have been informed that the Mint has suspended the coining of the new nickel-silver shillings and other "silver" coins until it can find an alloy which does not tarnish, as readily as the one recently employed. The new coins sometimes show blemishes in the design owing to their metal being too hard for the dies, and, as everyone here knows, they are liable to take an unpleasant brassy appearance. In West Africa, where they have been sent in some quantity, they actually turn black from the heat and moisture of the air.

PREMIER'S BREAKFASTS NOT REVIVED.

Despite the fall in the price of eggs here, Lloyd George is not reviving the Ministerial breakfasts which he used to give once a week during the war, and for some time after, so that he could meet his junior colleagues, hear their views, and prime them with his own optimism. As breakfasts these gatherings were, perhaps, not very attractive, for the Premier's fare is simple, and there was so much talk that the least grew flabby; but they improved the spirit among the Ministry and made junior Statesmen feel more important than usual. Probably the reason for the Premier's decision not to revive them is that he intends to spend more time on the Treasury Bench among his lieutenants.

TESTING DIAMONDS.

A Harley Street (where live all the most famous medical men of London) specialist, who has been experimenting with the violet ray, recently delivered a lecture at the Royal Institution on its properties, and mentioned casually that by its aid it was possible to determine at once whether diamonds were genuine or not, as under it a diamond appears black, whereas a paste, however good, will sparkle. Since that lecture any number of his woman friends have brought their rings to him to be tested, and he has had to come to the conclusion that over 70 per cent. of the big stones which are worn in rings are not diamonds at all. He always now endeavors to avoid applying the test, thinking it a pity to shatter domestic illusions, since most of the rings are gifts from husbands. I fancy that the application of polarised light under a microscope would have the same success in distinguishing between real and imitation diamonds.

GERMAN CLIPPER IN THAMES.

The visit of a big sailing ship to the Thames is a rarity nowadays, but one of the finest afloat is at present in the Surrey Commercial Docks, London. She is the steel four-masted barque Peking, 3,100 tons gross, a great size as sailing ships go. She was built in Germany for the fleet of F. Laeisz, of Hamburg, who included among his vessels The Prussen, the largest full-rigged ship ever built, which was wrecked on the Dover cliffs just before the war. The Peking was in an African port when the war broke out, and was captured as a prize. After the Armistice she sailed to South America, where she loaded nitrate of soda, and she has just finished discharging. The Peking, which is a very beautiful vessel, in spite of the fact that she needs repairing after her long voyage, has now been acquired by an Italian firm. British shipping men do not care for sailing vessels.

MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR SALE EVERYWHERE.

IF you would keep well, avoid constipation.

Nujol works on an entirely new principle. Without forcing or irritating, it softens the food waste. This enables the many tiny muscles in the walls of the intestines, contracting and expanding in their normal way, to squeeze the food waste along and out of the system.

It is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take. Try it.

THE DREAMER AND A DOG.

I seem to have a longing for the road that winds away
From the noisy land of work-to-do to the pleasant land-of-play.
I'd like to be a vagabond, a chum of lanes and streams,
And make the world of real things a playground for my dreams.
Oh, I would foot it up and down, nor care about my goal,
I'd make my couch beneath a tree and rest my weary soul;
I'd answer every songbird's call, and should I chance to see
A lonely dog along the way, I'd let him come with me.

I'd toss to him my crusts of bread and take his love for pay,
And he and I would little heed what others had to say;
We'd trudge along or romp along and rest when'er we chose,
And fill the day with happiness from dawdling to the close.

A dreamer and a friendly dog and dusty miles to tramp,
The stars at night to blink at us when we have pitched our camp,
Our faces to the land-of-play, our backs to selfish care,
A little while just dog and man, with time enough to spare.

A Cautious Bridegroom.

Amongst a host of good stories attributed to the Bishop of Birmingham I think the following will take some beating:

A minister on the occasion of a marriage (said His Lordship) was at a loss in trying to discover the bridegroom amongst the company present. Fixing on a young man with the biggest frowner in his button-hole he asked him quietly:
"Are you the happy man?"
"That remains to be seen," was the solemn answer.
"But are you the man who is to be married?"
"Oh, ay, but that's another matter."

England's Mud Houses.

Owing to the shortage of houses, and the failure of the brickyards to cope with the present requirements, housing authorities in England have turned to ancient history to see if there is any trace of the secrets of the craft of building mud-houses.

According to Capt. B. S. Townroe, editor of Housing, official journal of the ministry of health, when Great Britain undertook the task of constructing half a million houses for the working-class, it was found that the brickyards could not produce sufficient material. It was therefore necessary to seek substitutes.

Substitutes plenty were discovered. More than seventy new methods of construction were tried, chiefly dependent on concrete. The most interesting experiments, however, were not in a new material, but in an adaptation of a procedure which was known to the ancient Egyptians and Assyrians, and was carried to great success in the Middle Ages. To-day many districts have gone back to mud-building, and to methods that were regarded as out of date hundreds of years ago.

While the ministry of health was busy with its research and experiment another department of official Britain was working away at mud-houses, and achieved considerable success. At the Amesbury settlement farm cottages made of mud have been erected by the department of agriculture and fisheries, and are proving comfortable and cheap.

Some observant officials, travelling between Norwich and London, saw many houses, erected in the seventeenth century, made of unburned clay, or sun-dried bricks. These houses successfully have withstood the wear and tear of centuries, and leave no doubt as to the suitability of clay as a material. Climate seems to be an insignificant matter for they withstand the worst rainstorms, frost does not "kill" them, and excessive heat does not lessen their cohesion. At East Harling there is an ancient Corn Hall, made of clay lumps, which is still doing fine service as a district council school. The clay lumps are plastered externally and color washed.

Partial to Clay Houses.

The people of East Anglia are partial to clay-houses, as walls made of clay lump are cheaper than walls made of brick, but it is not only economy that prompts the use of clay. Comfort enters into the equation. Clay provides a stronger wall, and an absolutely dry and warm house. Clay is a non-conductor of heat, and tends to maintain a uniform temperature, with warmth in winter and coolness in summer. Similarly in Devonshire, cob-houses were popular in the days of Queen Anne. The walls of many of these cottages made of sand, mixed with shale, clay, straw, and water are still standing. The cob-house at Hays Barton, in which Sir Walter Raleigh was born, is still inhabited.

Whatever the reason for the use of clay in the olden times, the modern reason is economy. Pise de terre, or mud-houses do not need costly materials, nor do they call for the employment of highly skilled labor. Walls are built up by damming dry natural soil between movable shutters, which form a temporary mold. Such walls are durable and strong, and will last quite as long as ordinary brick walls with very little attention and repair.

In Cornwall and Devon houses over a hundred years old, built this way, are quite as serviceable and weather-proof as any tenant could desire, and they are constantly occupied.

In the selection of soil, preliminary tests must be made to determine that the soil possesses such qualities that it will cohere when rammed, and not shrink excessively on drying out. Pure clay coheres, and pure sand or gravel does not shrink in drying, but neither substance is suited for use alone in the making of pise de terre walls.

The shutters which form the mold must be easily portable, yet strong, so as to resist the thrust of the ramming. Pise walls can be made at a cost of slightly less than $3 a yard super, as against $5 a yard super for 11-inch hollow brick walls.

It must not be forgotten, however, that the foundation of pise buildings must be made of brick, but the experts of the ministry of agriculture believe that added experience and research will make it possible to build these either of pise or concrete in the near future.

Wedding Superstitions.

There is no end to the superstitions connected with weddings and the bride who would avoid ill luck, according to absurd omen-seekers, must walk warily.

To begin with, in her selection of a suitable day and date, she must be careful in her choice. May is to be shunned as a most unpropitious month, and there are also certain days of the week associated with misfortune. The old rhyme is to the following effect:

Monday for wealth,
Tuesday for health,
Wednesday, the best day of all;
Thursday for crosses,
Friday for losses,
Saturday for no luck at all.

While, therefore, the first three days of the week have something to recommend them, the second three have nothing, and the bride will do well if she chooses for "wealth" or "health," or "Wednesday, the best day of all."
For some reason or other June 4 is regarded as the day of days for wedding, and if the happy bride is fortunate in getting that day to fall upon a Wednesday, then she should have an extremely successful married life.

Having selected the wedding day, and so far avoided ill luck, the bride must see that she does not court misfortune by an unlucky choice of color for her wedding garment. There is a rhyme which will assist the superstitiously guided one, as to what she should wear. It is as follows:

Married in white, you have chosen all right;
Married in grey, you will go far away;
Married in black, you will wish yourself dead;
Married in red, you will wish yourself dead;
Married in green, ashamed to be seen;
Married in blue, he will always be true;
Married in pearl, you will live in a whirl;
Married in yellow, ashamed of your fellow;
Married in brown, you will live out of town.

If, in addition to her choice of color, she would make assurance doubly sure in the matter of good luck the bride should see that she does not go to the altar without wearing something old, and something new, something borrowed, and something blue.

and also, that none of the bridal guests appear at the ceremony in a costume entirely black.
One superstition—it was probably originated in order to snub feminine vanity—must be carefully observed. The bride must not look in a mirror after she is completely attired for her wedding. If she does so ill luck is sure to follow. In order to obviate the bride must be careful to leave minor detail of her toilette unfinished—such as a glove to be put on—until she has satisfied herself that she is dressed quite to her taste.

A Baby for a Dollar and a Half.

If you want to buy a baby you must go to China. You can purchase one for $1.50 or maybe two for $2.50. China is, in fact, the great slave country of the world. Of a population of 400,000,000, there are slaves to the number of 10,000,000.

Every family of means keeps its girl slaves, and a man's position is usually gauged by the number he keeps. At any age from three to fifteen girls are sold, seven or eight being the age at which most change hands. The girls are purchased to do housework, it being cheaper to buy than to hire.

To the credit of the authorities, it may be stated that the regulations governing the sales are pretty stringent, and ensure decent treatment of the girls. Women slaves are frequently given by one man to another as presents, and it is quite a common thing to give slaves as wedding presents.

Occasionally a man will sell a wife; but such treatment stamps him as a vagabond. Practices of this kind are mainly resorted to by opium maniacs, who have been known to sell their wives and children to supply their crazy appetites.

Slaves vary in price; $10 is about the average; but much depends on the girl's appearance. A good-looking girl will fetch $25, or even $50. In buying slaves a man takes them on trial, just as if he were buying horses, in make sure they are sound and healthy.

The Shipping Marquess

Democratic and enterprising to a degree, the Marquess of Carlisle, who has become one of the directors of a famous shipping firm of London and New York, is a practical man of business. He hates to be regarded as a figure-head because he is the son of Princess Beatrice, Queen Victoria's daughter.

Lord Carlisle, who has served in the Navy, tells the following yarn: An admiral met a more than ordinarily cheery midshipman. "When I was your age I was a sub-lieutenant," remarked the admiral, patronizingly. "Yes, sir," replied the youngster; "but, then, it is not a fact that the Navy was never so efficient as it is today."

Wide Protective Policy

OF LLOYD GEORGE AIDS UNEMPLOYMENT.

(Montreal Daily Star Cable)
London, April 1.—The Government publishes the text of the money resolutions to be proposed in the Commons next Tuesday as a prelude to the safeguarding of Industries Bill. They will be pushed through under closure rules as the Government's policy to counter unemployment. Article now scheduled as the key (the essential), industries are to be protected against foreigners by a duty of thirty-three and one-third per cent. of their value. The Tariff is to run for five years in these industries. The second resolution which is to be submitted to Parliament next week deals with exchange. Under it thirty-three and one-third per cent. duty will be imposed upon any article sold "below cost of production" or on any which, in consequence of depreciation of exchange, can be sold cheaper in sterling here than home manufactured goods. Critics of Government say this is, under present conditions, nothing less than a general tariff, inasmuch as every European country has a depreciated exchange, and if its manufacturing costs are to be reckoned with in sterling, all imported goods must carry a tariff.

The resolutions are obviously framed with an especial eye upon German competition which is already subject to a fifty per cent. tax under the Reparation Recovery Act. This in the case of German magnetos and other competing products, these two resolutions, impose duties, which, including the fifty per cent. tax, may amount to one hundred and sixteen per cent. While five years is named as the period of key industries duties, no time limit is specified in the second resolution relating to goods dumped in the United Kingdom. The Government can make an enormously strong case on the unemployment issue. Unemployed registered with labor exchanges number 1,375,000, besides 780,000 men and women on short time. Unemployment does not exceed one million sterling per week, the men receive one pound and the women sixteen shillings.

Harbor Grace Notes.

On Monday night of last week a meeting was held in St. Paul's Hall, in the interests of the forward movement campaign, which is being waged in connection with Queen's College, St. John's. The packed Hall in itself, must have been an inspiration to Dr. Facey, and his colleagues, who are striving to reach the objective of $70,000, which sum is needed to put this College on a good financial standing and sound basis, thereby increasing the number of Theological students and furthermore supplying the demand there is for young men to work in the different fields for the Church. Rev. W. R. J. Higgin, Rector of St. Paul's Church, acted as chairman, and after a few well chosen remarks, introduced the Rev. Dr. N. S. Facey, Principal of the College. Dr. Facey gave a very powerful lecture and by the help of some very interesting lantern slides, made everything clearly understood by his hearers. He concluded with a stirring appeal on behalf of the College. The other speaker for the night was the Rev. Canon Smart of Heart's Content, who also spoke in connection with the College, and certainly must have aroused the audience to a sense of their responsibility in this respect and no doubt, when the returns come in, it will be found that this meeting had a far-reaching effect and that the Diocese of Newfoundland will certainly do its bit.

Terra Nova From Icefields.

S.S. Terra Nova, Capt. A. Kean, arrived in port shortly before 11 o'clock last night, from the Northern seal fishery, hauling for 10,500 old and young seals. The Terra Nova struck the patch with the others of the fleet on March 27th, and before the storm of March 29th broke, succeeded in securing about 9,000 prime whitecoats. Since April 1st her crew killed about 1,500 "old ones" and bedlamers. On Monday morning, being short of coal, Capt. Kean decided to abandon the voyage and make for home. All the crew of the Terra Nova are well.

Liquor Bill May be Changed.

HALIFAX MEN WANT NEW DISTRIBUTION SYSTEM.

A Bill will be introduced at the present session of the local legislature by which liquor may be purchased under a yearly permit system, with limitations on the total quantity, by all adult residents of the province. It was announced by men connected with the liquor business in Halifax last night.

It is proposed that yearly permits be issued, obtainable for five dollars, which should contain a number of coupons to be presented on purchase of liquor. The number of these would be decided later, and the right to purchase would cease when the individual's quota of these was exhausted, it was announced.

The system outlined is similar to that which will obtain in British Columbia after May 1. It is in all probability patterned after that of the Pacific coast province. There the government will establish and maintain stores wherever it is considered advisable and all these sales will be made under a permit system and only sealed packages of liquor will be sold. The administration of the act, including the general control, management and supervision of all government stores will be vested in a liquor control board consisting of three persons, one of whom shall be chairman.

Residents of the province of adult age can take out yearly permits to cost five dollars. Another permit, costing fifty cents, allows for a single purchase of two quarts.

There are safeguards to prevent abuse of the permit system. Persons convicted of drunkenness can be interdicted and have their permits cancelled. There are heavy penalties attached to those who violate the law by selling liquor, an individual being subject to imprisonment of six months with hard labor for a first offence.

Last night's announcement caused a great stir in the circles in which it was made known and many observations were made concerning the bill's probable fate in the local house. As many of the present members are in the legislature for their first term it is difficult to gauge their probable action on a question of this kind. No effort has been made to ascertain their liquor sympathies, as up to the present there seemed little probability of a decision on a temperance question being necessary.

Members of the legislature told the Herald last night that they would not be surprised to have the bill presented any day. One member went so far as to say that owing to recent developments such a bill would have an excellent chance of being adopted—Halifax Herald, April 7.

Music as a Cure for Disease.

The Society of Vocal Therapy was founded two years ago in England to provide teachers for the instruction of soldiers and ex-soldiers in breathing and singing under musical supervision.

At the second annual meeting of the society, Lieutenant-Colonel Sir Frederick Mott gave an address on the influence of music on body and soul. He said that early in the war two pages of shell shock, in which there was complete loss of memory, came under his notice, which showed that musical memory returned earlier than other forms of memory—or, rather, the power of recollecting past experiences.

He found that soldiers suffering with shock, who had been singers or players of the piano were able to remember and sing songs by play pieces they had learned on the piano, and yet could not remember experiences connected with their daily vocations or surroundings. Again, men who were mute from the same cause would at a concert suddenly regain their speech by joining in the chorus of some well-known song.

Of all the arts, music appealed most to the emotions, and probably words associated with music were more easily grasped in the mind, owing to the musical origin of the language of the emotions.

There was reason to suppose that the utterance of vocal inarticulate sounds of varying pitch was in evolution much older than articulate speech, and that whereas the production of such sounds could be initiated in both halves of the brain, articulate language in right-minded persons could be initiated only in the left half, which controlled voluntary movement of the right half of the body.

He quoted the case of a soldier who suffered from aphasia following a gunshot wound of the left side of the brain. The bullet passed through the speech centre and also blinded him. He understood what was said to him, but could express judgment only by "Ah" and "Oot," which corresponded to "Yes" and "No." He could, however, sing several songs through without difficulty, provided the first word or bar of the music was given to him. When the song "This is a long way to Tipperary" was hummed to him, he started the well-known chorus, wind-up with: "Are we downhearted? No." But on being then asked to say "Tipperary," he replied, "Oot," and could not utter any of the words. A month later he could speak.

Sergeant's Mess

DISCUSSES WAR MEMORIAL.

The Sergeant's Mess of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment held a largely attended meeting in the G.W.V.A. rooms last night, when several matters of importance were discussed, including the War Memorial, which the Mess is erecting to their fallen comrades, and which is due to arrive on S.S. Sachem on Monday next. The memorial is to be erected in Mullaly Park and a memorial committee was appointed as follows:—Chairman, H. Peckham; Secretary, P. Daniels; Committee, Messrs. G. Harvatt, R. Grimes, J. Dooley, J. Taylor and A. Gooby. This committee will meet on Tuesday night next, when the various details in connection with erecting the monument will be discussed. Votes of thanks were unanimously accorded Lt.-Col. W. F. Rendell, and Capt. H. A. Anderson and J. McKay, M.S.M., whose services in connection with the memorial were most valuable in bringing the matter to a successful conclusion. Capt. Anderson made all arrangements in connection with the order for the monument, whilst Capt. McKay, who was formerly Regimental Sergeant-Major of Depot-Headquarters, looked after matters in England, whilst Lt.-Col. Rendell has been trustee of the Mess funds since the regiment was disbanded. The matter of holding the Sergeant's Mess annual dinner was discussed by those present and received favorable comment. This affair was a splendid success last year and members are looking forward to this year's reunion. After a vote of thanks had been tendered the G.W.V.A. for the use of their rooms, the meeting adjourned at 11 p.m. with the singing of the National Anthem.

Personal.

Little hope is entertained for the recovery of Rev. Canon Smith, who has been seriously ill for some time and shows small sign of improvement.

Head Constable Olliphant of the Central District Court, is at present confined to his home, suffering from a cold. In his absence his place is being taken by Sgt. Savage.

Capt. J. Whelan leaves by the Fortis this morning for Boston, where he takes charge of Messrs. Penney & Sons' sch. Edith Cavell. Capt. Whelan is an ex-Sergeant of the Royal New Regiment, and his many friends wish him every success in his new command.

Mr. E. B. Erlicher left by yesterday's express for Boston, Mass., to undergo medical treatment.

"You Are Working Too Hard, John"

"WELL, I cannot help that. I am trying to figure out how the business is going to pull through and meet the liabilities with prices falling the way they have been lately."

"But, John, if anything happens to the business your health will be more necessary to you than ever, and you cannot afford to take chances of putting such a strain on your nerves. You are looking so worried and nervous, and you do not half sleep."

"What am I to do? You know I have got to keep plugging along and try to see things through."

"One thing you can do is to begin a treatment of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. You know how well that brought me around when my nerves gave out and I was so miserable."

Mr. Charles E. How, R. R. No. 5, Aybarr, Ont., writes: "My system became generally run down and I suffered from dull, heavy headaches. I was nervous, could not sleep at night, and my muscles used to twitch. My appetite became poor. My indigestion and weak spells, I consulted a doctor, who gave me a tonic, but it did no good. I used other remedies, too, before finally trying Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I found that this did me more good than anything I had ever taken."

Friends Notice a Big Change in Him, Asserts Newton

Quebec Citizen Says He Never Enjoyed Better Health Than He Does Now—Praises Tanlac.

"My friends all tell me now that I am the very picture of health and I know one thing—I certainly feel like I have been made all over again," said Archibald Newton, 53 Belleau St., Quebec, in telling of his recent experience with Tanlac.

"I suffered from chronic indigestion and at times had acute attacks that simply put me in bed and more than once it looked like I wasn't going to pull through. I can truthfully say I hope I never have one of those spells again. My stomach gave me no end of trouble and I simply couldn't eat in peace. Gas formed something fearful and many a time I couldn't even retain a glass of milk. I had terrible nightmares and hardly went to sleep. I was run-down completely and felt so weak and drowsy I could hardly work.

"Well, after going through all that it certainly is great to be feeling well and eating hearty and sleeping good and sound. That's just how Tanlac has fixed me up. It's a medicine in a class by itself. If ever a man felt like new I'm that man and I don't know when I ever enjoyed better health. I never lose a chance to speak a good word for Tanlac."

eries Department, the Hon. W. F. Coaker, and for the Advisory Board, and each and all Newfoundland Trade Commissioners abroad since November last together with a memorandum showing the total cost of said cables and instructions under which they were sent, etc.

Mr. Bennett—To ask Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to lay on the table of the House a statement showing:

(a) The number and cost in detail of all radiograms, cablegrams and telegrams passing between him and the Marine and Fisheries Department from the time of his departure from the Colony in January until his return last week;

(b) Of the same between himself and his department or any of its officials;

(c) Between himself and the Cod-fish Exportation Board or any of its officials;

(d) Between himself and the Trade Commissioners or any of the parties purporting to act in the Government's interest and the Fisheries Department, the Cod-fish Exporters' Board or any other persons or organizations, and to accompany this statement with copies of all of the messages in these categories; also to lay on the table of the House a statement showing the number and cost of all telegrams exchanged between himself, the Fisheries Department or the officials thereof and the F.P.U. or its subordinate companies or any officials thereof at Port Union from November 15th, 1919, to date which have been paid for out of the public funds and to lay on the table of the House copies of the same.

Sir M. P. Cashin—To ask Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries if Martin Gosse, brother of George Gosse, M.H.A., for Harbor Grace, was employed by the Fisheries Department as an Inspector of fish at Dark Tickle, Labrador, last summer, if so how much he was paid for his services; also if the said Martin Gosse in such capacity inspected fish belonging to the firm of G. & M. Gosse, in which his brother and himself are partners, and if so how much; also if it is the policy of the Fisheries Department to permit a member of a firm to inspect its own fish and if he considers that certificate of inspection issued under such conditions are of any value whatever.

RANGER LAST OUT.—The Ranger which is the only sealing steamer now prosecuting the voyage was estimated yesterday. Her catch is estimated at about 7,300 old and young, but as she has a fairly large quantity of coal still on board it is probable she will considerably augment her catch during the next few days.

Magic Island in the Mediterranean.

Amid present day trials, it is somewhat piteous to read of a place where cool breezes blow and the scenery is magic; where people are peaceful and honest and there are no profiteers; where the women are pretty, charming and easily entertained, and life moves along with a song. There is such a spot. Ten hours out from continental Spain on a fairly fast and quite comfortable steamer lies a little archipelago--the Balearic Islands--whose largest island, called Mallorca, or Majorca, is perhaps the most enchanting corner, one of the most interesting and pleasing, as well as one of the most forgotten islands of the Mediterranean. The following account of its attractions is summarized from the description of Colonel Ernesto de March Garcia-Riera, Spanish army. A great painter and writer called it the "Island of Calm," for there every one moves, rests, talks, walks and conducts his courtships as if the day had forty-eight hours, the mile about 15,000 feet and the span of human life, 700 years, so little haste do they make in living and enjoying life. One Mallorcan of noble family is said to have waited forty-five years in determining to lead his sweetheart to the altar, with no protest from her. Last summer, during the latter part of July, when the thermometer in Canada and the United States stood around 80 degrees in the shade and in Madrid ran to blood heat, the breezes fanned these island folk to the tune of 76 degrees. Picturesque Surroundings. The surface of the island is extremely varied. The flatlands, admirably cultivated and covered almost entirely with orange, lemon, almond and olive trees, spread out beyond mountains four or five thousand feet high. Upon the sides of these peaks snug little villages seem to hug. Like many of the mediterranean islands whose names are suggestive of mythological lore, Mallorca's littoral, especially that extending from Dragonera to Pollensa and from Soller to the extremity of Formentor, is indeed picturesque. The natural beauty of its huge cliffs, seeming to be touched by both wave and cloud at the same moment, is awe-inspiring and mysterious. Visitors are apt to feel reasonably sure that nymphs, undines, sirens and tritons once peopled its grottoes, and that Ligca comb on some of the queer jutting rocks at their entrances. Nor is this wonderful island an impractical place to spend a few months. There are about 120 miles of railroads on the island, and a system of local roads which permit of a traveller's visiting many of the chief points of interest with ease and comfort. These people who take life so leisurely are not lazy, shiftless or unpleasant in personal appearance or manner. They are intelligent, honest, capable of work, sober and economical. These characteristics, preserved throughout centuries of uninterrupted peace and tranquility, have made them peaceable, trusting and home-strong and agile. They have coped brilliantly in many of the championship sporting events held in Spain, and wherever they have gone on the continent their undertakings have been marked with success. And as for the women, Colonel March in writing of them says: "They possess the same lovely skin as the women of North America, features as if sculptured by Phidias or Praxiteles, and they walk like goddesses." But he laments in the next breath that they know nothing of the "joy of living," due partially to ancestral Arabic influences and to the fact that their island has for so long been under strict religious repression. He calls Mallorca "the loveliest care on the planet, its wonderful, intelligent and gracious women being as bored as odalisks in a harem without a sultan." Like many of the regions and cities of Italy, this island of the Balearic group, lost amid the waters of the Mediterranean, has many interesting treasures in art, history, archeology and architecture. Its cathedral and the palaces of some of the nobility are truly enchanting. And an all-important feature! The cost of living is low in Mallorca. Who would be astonished to know that he could become a member of the "Royal Club of Regattas," fully and comfortably equipped for about twenty cents a month in dues? Though prices have risen here as elsewhere during the war, the aforementioned Spanish colony says that it is the "spot of all Europe and America where one could have lived most reasonably during these last few years." The Calearic group, belonging to Spain, consists of five main islands and several islets. It is ruled as a military district, but the mother country has been wise enough to recruit from among the people for discipline, thus insuring a satisfactory result. The man who manufactures local goods pays his part of the City and Country taxes.--April 19, 21

Will Have Her Wish

But Madame Curie is to have her wish gratified. Women of the U.S. have decided that she should have her gram of radium when she visits the continent for the first time this coming year. They feel that she deserves at least that much of the world's supply. So the Marie Curie Radium Fund has been created, supported by voluntary subscriptions. Pledges have been made by individuals and organizations. The fund is not complete, but it seems certain that Mme. Curie is to have her gram of radium. Announcement of Mme. Curie's visit to this continent was made recently by Dr. F. C. Wood, of the Crocker Memorial Cancer Research Laboratory, who heads the reception committee appointed to welcome her to the United States. Mme. Curie will be accompanied by her eldest daughter, Irene, 36 years old, who is also a scientist. Mme. Curie was born in Warsaw, Poland, in 1867, the daughter of an obscure but distinguished professor. She was married to Pierre Curie, a physicist, in 1895. Their discovery of radium was given to the world in 1898.

The Ghost's Nest.

Nightmares are described in the dictionary as "oppressive conditions of sleep, accompanied usually by bad dreams." As a rule, they are the result of fatigue, eaten too heavily--thus constituting the stomach and preventing the flow of blood in the proper manner--or some outside influence, such as lack of proper ventilation, or too much covering, which oppresses both the body and brain. As children have stomachs which are more easily upset than those of adults, and as they are more prone to eat unwisely, they are more subject to nightmares than older persons; though full-blooded people and those who worry to excess often suffer from this disturbance of their sleep. The word itself is derived from the Anglo-Saxon words "neht," meaning "night" and "stara," a ghost or specter, which, according to an old belief, placed itself upon the breast of a sleeping person and deprived him of the power of speech and motion. The mara was also believed to be the guardian of hidden treasures, and the place where it was called the "marra's nest."

The C.L.B.C. "At Home" is being held on St. George's Eve in the C. C. Hall. For the benefit of clerks and others it is not starting until 10 p.m. Remember, two days to sleep in tickets to be had from Gray & Woodland's, members of the Mass and on the door.--April 19, 21
