"Flowers of the Valley,"

OR MABEL HOWARD,
OF THE LYRIC.

CHAPTER XXI.

MARK HOWARD, OF THE LYRIC.

She looked, and following the direction of all the other eyes, saw a tall, overdressed young lady standing at the wings.

She was rather good-looking, of a commonplace type, but her pretty face was pale with passion, and her eyes seemed to blaze as they rested upon Iris' face.

It was Miss Alfrede.

"Good-morning," said some one, in a timid voice.

She took no notice, but swept up to the manager.

"What is this?" she demanded, imperiously.

"Good-morning, Miss Alfrede!" said Mr. Stapleton, dryly. "What is what?"

and he looked round the stage with look of innocence.

"What does this mean?" reiterated the proud young person, stamping her feet.

"We are only rehearsing 'The Imprisoned Princess,'" said Mr. Stapleton, eying her coolly.

"With—my part?" she said, shooting a fiery glance at Iris, who stood pale and distressed.

"With your part!" said Mr. Stapleton, as calmly as before. "By-the-way, I'm glad to hear that your throat is better! Never heard you in better voice" for Miss Alfrede had almost screamed the last question.

She turned pale and clinched her teeth.

"I see," she said with angry sarcasm. "I'm not wanted! I'm sorry I came! Pray don't stop! Pray forgive me for interrupting! Oh, I'm of no consequence!"

Iris could bear it no longer.

Flushing, but calm, and with that well-bred composure which always stood by her in such moments, she came towards the angry prima donna and held out the music.

"I am very glad you have come," she said, gently. "I have been trying, most ineffectually, I fear, to take your place. Everybody will be very pleased that my poor services are no longer needed."

Everybody did not look very pleased—quite the contrary—but very anxious.

Miss Alfrede turned and looked Irish and down scornfully.

"Oh, indeed!" she exclaimed, tossing her head; "you have taken my place, have you? Then you may keep it!"

"Oh, no, no," said Iris; "you misunderstand. I ventured to sing your music, that the rehearsal might go on. I am very glad to stop."

The gentle voice, the sweet eyes might have moved any one but an actress.

"Home-made, but Has No Equal for Coughs"

Makes a timely supply of really irreplaceable cough medicine. For Myself, My Family, and my Neighbors.

If you have a severe cough or chest cold accompanied with soreness, throat tickle, hoarseness, or difficult breathing, or if your child wakes during the night with croup and you want quick help, try this reliable old home-made cough remedy. Any druggist can supply you with 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. If desired, this recipe makes 16 ounces of really remarkable cough remedy. It tastes good, and in spite of its low cost, it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

You can feel this take hold of a cough in a way that means business. It loosens and raises the phlegm, stops throat tickle and soothes and heals the irritated membranes that line the throat and bronchial tubes with such promptness, ease and certainty that it is really astonishing.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is probably the best known means of overcoming severe coughs, throat and chest colds.

There are many worthless imitations of this mixture. To avoid disappointment, ask for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex." Being also guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

spoke to Miss Alfrede. A lady—forgot me, but I know you are a lady—a lady who can retain her self-possession at such a trying time must be a person of good sense and self-control—two things absolutely necessary for an actress. Then you speak distinctly, and— I'm going to ask you to forgive me again—you are very beautiful, my dear, and have a good figure. Now, all this means that I think you'll succeed, and as I am fond and proud of my profession, I shall rejoice if you say, 'Yes.' Now, tell me—after all I have said—why you should not say, 'Yes'?"

Iris stood and gazed at her in silence.

The actress—Mrs. Berry was a first-rate one, and well known—patted Iris' hand.

"I see," she said, with a smile; "you have no reason for saying 'No.' Go and tell Mr. Stapleton that you will join us, and leave the rest to him. You can do so safely, for he is more than honest; he is honorable and liberal, and he is grateful, too, for the manner in which you have helped us all. Go, my dear!"

Iris, her heart as well as her reason moved by the motherly and affectionate counsel, went up to Mr. Stapleton.

"Well!" he said. He had been leaning against a wing, his hat well over his eyes, watching the conference between the two. "Well, Miss Howard?"

"I accept," said Iris, in a low voice; "and I am very grateful to you."

He held out his hand in his satisfaction, then instinctively drew it back.

"I beg your pardon," he said, "but I tell you candidly that I'm very pleased, Miss Howard."

Iris held out her hand, and he inclosed it in his large one and shook it heartily.

The company, seeing how matters were going, raised a stage cheer.

"Yes, ladies and gentlemen," said Mr. Stapleton, "Miss Howard is now a member of the Lyric company, and will, if all goes well, play the leading part in the new opera. Now, then, changing his tone to the old impatient one, 'let us get on. Good gracious me, look at the time! Let us get on!'"

That night, while Iris was hard at work in Paul's room learning her part, and vainly endeavouring to realize that she, who a little while ago was Iris Knighton of the Revels, was now Mabel Howard of the Lyric Theatre, there was a ball at the French Embassy.

It was one of the great gatherings of the season, and the crowd which filled the ballroom, and overflowed into the anterooms and staircases, contained the most famous and best-known of that indescribable compound of fortune beings called "society."

It was long past midnight, and the ball was at its height, when that strange but well-known sensation which always accompanies the entry of some person of note ran through the throng.

"Who is it?" was the question that passed from lip to lip, and the answer, when it came, only increased the interest—"Lord Coverdale."

In the centre of the room, surrounded by an ardent court, was Lady Lillian Foyle. She had never looked more beautiful than she looked to-night, for the faultless face wore an expression of expectancy and that consciousness of coming triumph which lends light to the eyes and a smile to the lips. As the name of Lord Heron reached her ears, she looked across the room and saw him standing, talking to the hostess and her father.

A Stitch in Time

Quick action is the only hope when kidney disease appears.

There is a whole train of dreadfully painful and fatal ailments which soon follow any neglect to get the kidneys right. Among others are rheumatism, lumbago, Bright's disease, hardening of the arteries and high blood pressure.

In Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills you will find a treatment which is both quick and thorough.

Mr. C. E. Raymus, Lindale, Alta., writes:—

"I was a great sufferer from kidney disease and have been for more than a year. A friend of mine one day told me of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and acting upon his advice I used them. After I had taken one box I felt better, so I continued until I had used five boxes. By this time I felt as well and strong as ever, and am glad to recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to anyone suffering as I did."

Chinese Gave Japan Its Name.

The English word "Japan" and the Japanese Nihon or Nippon are alike corruptions of Yih-pen, the Chinese pronunciation of two characters literally meaning "sun-origin" that is, "the place the sun comes from"—a name given to Japan by the Chinese on account of the position of the archipelago to the east of their own country.

From Chinese Yih-pen the Japanese derived the present name Nihon. It was officially adopted, according to history, in A.D. 670. Before that time the usual native designation of the country was Yamato, properly the name of one of the central provinces. Yamato is the name still preferred in poetry and belles-lettres.

The English name Japan seems to have originated with the Portuguese, who spelled the Chinese Yih-pen, Japan, the letter 'j' being silent or similar to 'i' according to their lan-

Fads and Fashions.

The waist-line has been lowered. Sleeves are heavily trimmed with fur. The oval décolleté shows no fur trimming. Leather-trimmed frocks are popular in Paris. A smart light fur duvetine has a brim of moleskin. A gown of flamingo chiffon velvet has plenty of gold lace, dyed flame color.

Veteran Who Carried "Cease Fire" Order is Dead

NEW YORK, Nov. 14—Albert Miller, Canadian war veteran, who was killed to carry the order to "cease firing" from the British headquarters to Moss, the day the armistice was signed, will either be buried in Canada with the comrades with whom he fought or will be given a place among the Buffalo soldiers dead, according to a despatch to the New York Herald.

Miller, who wore the military medal, died in Buffalo, on armistice day, but three years to the day from the day on which he made world history. His body lay unclaimed in the morgue until his identity was established. Military and fraternal organizations have long since offered to bury him. The Canadian Great War Veterans' Association was notified and if desired, they will be given the body to be buried on Canadian soil. Serving with the Canadian forces as despatch bearer, he was chosen at British headquarters to carry the message that stopped firing; to outlying British posts in the vicinity of Moss. After the war he came to Buffalo to work as a printer and was living in an obscure boarding house when he died suddenly. He was preparing to celebrate armistice day with the Buffalo veterans.

FOR COUNCILLOR

P. E. OUTERBRIDGE.

SUGGESTION No. 4.

Women's Help Necessary for the Proper Running of the City.

I have always been a strong advocate for giving women the vote both Municipal and Political. I understand that women property owners are permitted to vote in Municipal Elections, but I personally consider that women should have absolutely equal rights with the masculine sex where all matters of administration of the city and country are concerned.

The reason is obvious. Think of the number of intelligent, clever women there are right here in the city. Many businesses are conducted solely under the management of women in St. John's, and did you ever hear of one of these businesses that was other than successful? As far as that goes, I bet ninety per cent. of the successful business men of St. John's owe their success to the fact that they discuss their business problems with their wives. Again, take the various organizations with which different ones of us are connected. Which are the most successful? In nine cases out of ten the one that have "Women's Auxiliaries" connected with them. Isn't that a fact? Take the N. I. W. A. Isn't it a fact that the women's branch of that organization is doing a splendid work in the city? And these successful, clever women are the people whom masculine governments do not consider fit persons to have a say in the government of country and city. In this twentieth century did ever anyone hear such arrant foolishness?

Now as far as the civic elections go, I personally think it is a very great pity that among all the candidates offering there is not a woman among the number. I have faith enough in the clear-headedness of my fellow townsmen to believe that if the right woman offered she would be returned at the head of the poll. Such not being the case, however, I hereby pledge myself, in the event of my being returned, to act as spokesman for and to further to the best of my ability any project that may be brought before my notice by any organization of women in the city, because I firmly believe that any such project would be for the ultimate good of the city. I can hear somebody say "P. E. O. is out cadging for the women's votes in to-day's issue!" Certainly I am, and what's more, I am proud to be cadging for their votes. But, all the same, I am absolutely sincere in every word I have written above. (In Friday's issue I shall have a few words to say on the subject "Give St. John's annex the things they are paying taxes for.")

P. E. OUTERBRIDGE.

I THANK YOU!

To the Electors of the Municipality of St. John's.

Belgium Takes Attitude Adopted by France-Newfoundland Shipwrecked Mariners Landed at Boston-Princess Mary Betrothed to Peer.

BELGIUM'S ATTITUDE.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 22. Baron De Cartier, speaking for Belgium, yesterday, on the question of land armaments said, that the policy of that nation is to keep her land forces down to a level strictly consistent with the requirements of her national security. At this time, he said, Belgium could not possibly proceed to a further reduction of her armaments.

GRAVE RIOTING IN BOMBAY.
LONDON, Nov. 22. An Evening News despatch reports grave rioting in Chamarautown, in the Palna division of Bombay.

ANOTHER FISH CARRIER GONE.
BOSTON, Nov. 22. The captain and five members of the crew of the British schooner Vogue, lost at sea while bound from Quipron, Nfld., for Gibraltar, with fish, were brought here to-day by the Norwegian steamer Elda Clausen, which arrived from Hersonand. Capt. George Yarn and crew were taken off their sinking craft after all their boats had been smashed by storms on the Grand Banks last Thursday. They said Jon Dolemain, a seaman, was washed overboard in another storm several days earlier.

(The Vogue was owned by A. E. Hickman & Co. and she had on board 5,000 qtls. of fish.)

AN ENEMY'S GUESTS.
NEW YORK, Nov. 22. Seventy-four members of the United States House of Representatives and two Senators have accepted an invitation of William Randolph Hearst, and will go to Canada as his guests to study the operation of the Canadian Sales Tax.

PRINCESS MARY ENGAGED.
LONDON, Nov. 22. The betrothal of Princess Mary, only daughter of King George, to Viscount Lascelles, eldest son of the Earl of Herewood, was announced to-night. The Viscount, who served with distinction in the war and was twice wounded, and was an aid to Lord Grey when Governor-General of Canada, is 39 years old. Princess Mary was 34 years old last April.

NOMINATIONS IN CANADA.
OTTAWA, Nov. 22. Candidates for Canada's fourteenth Parliament were nominated to-day in the 235 Federal constituencies of the Dominion, and the most complete political battle in the history of the Dominion entered on its final stage. Three cornered fights will be common in every Province, and in a number of constituencies there will be four, five and in one case, six candidates to contest for one vacancy. There are four distinct parties in the field, Conservative, Liberal, Progressive and Labor, and to their candidates are added many independents. Quebec has thirty of the latter. The franchise is extended generally to women as well as to men for the first time, and there are four women candidates, two in Ontario, one in Manitoba and one in Quebec. To-day's nominations emphasized that Ontario with its 82 seats is the Central battleground with Conservative, Liberal and Progressive candidates in almost every riding. The Canadian Labor Party, which was organized only in August of this year, has comparatively few candidates in the field. The issue taking the Dominion as a whole, will be between the Conservatives, Liberals and Progressives. Whatever the result the next House of Commons will have many unused parliamentary warriors. Faces prominent for many years will be missing. Sir Robert Borden, Prime Minister from 1911 until July, 1920, has retired. Sir George Foster, first elected to the Commons thirty-nine years ago and Minister of Marine under Sir John Macdonald, has gone to the Senate. Hon. N. W. Rowell, Hon. J. D. Reid, Hon. J. A. Calder, Right Hon. J. C. Doherty, Sir Thomas White, Hon. T. W. Crothers and Hon. R. C. Wignmore, all of whom have occupied seats on the front Government benches, were not numbered among to-day's candidates. Of the number Messrs. Reid, Calder and Crothers have been appointed to the Senate. J. A. Maharg, prominent in the Progressive Party, since its formation, has left the Federal arena to join the Martin Government in Saskatchewan. W. H. Middleboro, former Chief Conservative whip, has retired. Hume Cronyn, who made a special study of soldiers re-education and was chairman of the special public committee too has left public life. Dr. Michael Clark, orator of the Progressive Party last session, has returned to the Liberal Party. Of the Cabinet Ministers nominated to-day six did not sit in the last Parliament. They are Hon. R. B. Bennett, Minister of Justice; Hon. J. P. Norris, President of the Privy Council; Hon. Andre Paquet, Solicitor-General; Hon. L. G. Bell, Postmaster General; Hon. Rodolphe Monty, Secretary of State, and Hon. J. B. M. Baxter, Minister of Customs.

RIOTING IN BELFAST.
BELFAST, Nov. 22. The first day's actual functioning of the new Ulster Government, created by the Home Rule Act of last Spring, was signalled by rioting and considerable activity on the part of hooligans in the York Street area. Two bombs were exploded in a tramcar full of shipyard workers this afternoon, killing three occupants and injuring eighteen others. In Thompson House, escaping gas from a pipe pierced by a bullet caused the death of three persons. Several deaths were caused by bullets.

NO PLAN DRAWN UP.
LONDON, Nov. 22. The Greeks recently displayed a desire for mediation with the Turkish Nationalists, but no written plan was drawn up for killed consideration, according to British official circles to-day, where it was stated that the recent French Treaty of Angora had had effect on the possibilities of peace. The British believe that if the French assist on adherence to the Angora Treaty there will be little chance for mediation.

Woman States She Felt Like Iron Band Was Round Her Head

This Is How Lynchburg, Va., Resident Says Headaches Often Affected Her.

Everybody will read with interest the statement of Miss M. E. Woodford, 1808 Filmore Street, Lynchburg, Va., who says:

"I don't believe anybody suffered from headaches like I did. The pains felt like an iron band was being drawn around my head and my temples would throbb until I was driven almost distracted. I shudder when I think of those awful headaches. I had no appetite.

"I owe Taniac an everlasting debt of gratitude for entirely ridding me of those terrible headaches. My stomach has been toned up too, and everything I eat agrees with me now. Taniac certainly brought me health and happiness."

Taniac is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

TIME FOR CHANGE SAYS NATIVE.
Dear Sir,—I have read the several communications to your paper from the pen of Mr. A. B. Morine on the question of the Coaker Portuguese agreement; and also the letter from Mr. W. A. Munn on the Regulations. These two gentlemen ought to receive the thanks of every well-wisher of his country for laying before the people the hard and incontrovertible facts regarding the greatest curse that has ever befallen this country since we secured Responsible Government.

The effects of the ill-considered policy of Coaker and those directly associated with him are being felt in the remotest corners of this country to-day, and the result is want and the general dislocation of trade and commerce generally.

The facts presented by Mr. Morine caused Mr. Coaker to run to his favorite weapon—personal abuse—for defence, and this he has used in his own Coakerish style.

By using the columns of the Advocate and twisting the facts presented by Mr. Morine to suit his own purpose he knows very well that the readers of the Advocate, generally speaking, of a large percentage of them, read only the Advocate, and he feels safe in publishing the trash and abuse which fills its columns.

But if it were possible to place, before every Advocate reader the arguments and facts presented by Messrs. Morine and Munn—venture to say that hundreds of fishermen would have a different opinion of Coaker from what they have to-day. Nay, it would be a great blessing to the fishermen and to the country if the propaganda carried on by the Advocate (now the "Fishermen's" Advocate) could be clearly exposed.

I would, as a citizen with some stake in the future success and prosperity of the country, like to see the correspondence of Messrs. Morine and Munn published in pamphlet form and placed in the hands of every fisherman, particularly those who read only the pages of the Advocate.

It also would like to endorse the sentiments expressed by your Bayview correspondent "Anglican," where he points to Mr. A. B. Morine as a man well qualified by experience and ability to lead a Party and a Government which would be capable of pulling this country out of the terrible condition in which we find ourselves through the bungling and gross mismanagement of public matters by the politicians that compose the Government in Newfoundland.

But the demon of prejudice has got to be killed before this can happen, and I sincerely hope that all well-wishers of their country will cast aside everything else and look only to their country's good.

Yours truly,
NATIVE.

K. of C. MEMORIAL SCHOOL.
Yesterday afternoon His Excellency the Governor, accompanied by Capt. Hamilton, visited the new school rooms of the Academy of Mercy, Cathedral Square. He expressed himself as well pleased with this splendid monument erected by the K. of C. The Kindergarten, Domestic Science, and Commercial Class Rooms were particularly pleasing to the viceregal party.

Municipal Candidates.

The number of candidates for Municipal honours grows daily. The latest to make announcement of their coming forward are Messrs. George H. Cook and Patrick E. Kelly, the latter making his announcement at last night's public meeting. It is known that at least three others are sounding the electric note. Mr. F. J. Roll is reported to be considering a request of a number of people that he place himself in nomination.

Love Tragedy of Twins.

GENEVA, Nov. 17.—The love tragedy of twin sisters who drew lots for death by poison became known recently in the Innsbruck courts, when one of them was tried for murder. The girl was acquitted after she told her story.

The girls, daughters of a farmer named Goldstein, fell in love with a former Hungarian officer, who was unable to distinguish one girl from the other and courted both, thinking he was always with the one sister. The officer, when he realized the situation, asked the girls to decide which should marry him.

They solved the problem by preparing a glass of water and a glass of poison. They drew lots and the loser drank and died.

When the surviving sister was arrested the officer disappeared.

Clean Up the City.

From the number of candidates who have announced their intention of entering the lists in the coming Municipal Election, it is apparent that citizens will have a more difficult choice than that of Paris. Twenty-four candidates in a Civic Election is an unheard of number. Of the many who have announced their candidacy, few have published a platform. This is a matter which should demand instant attention. A man cannot be elected on the strength of his individual popularity. There must be a stronger reason, and the men with the most popular platforms will stand the best chance. There is one thing which should be contained in the manifesto of every candidate for Municipal honors. That is—a cleaner city. It has been stated time and time again, that there is much room for improvement in the condition of the city. But there should be no necessity to point this out. Every citizen can see it for himself. In fact, he cannot put his foot outside his door without noticing it. It may be said that there is nothing to be gained by repeating what is already ancient history. It cannot, however, do any harm, and it may be productive of a little good if some of the most objectionable features of the city are again referred to. In the first place, there is the cleaning of the streets. Every city street, and Water Street in particular, is a standing disgrace. Mud, slush and dirt are all that meets the eye upon surveying our principal thoroughfares, and year after year goes by without any real attempt being made to make modern improvements. Then there is the present sewage system. Some effort must be made to substitute a more efficient system than that now in vogue. Hoppers are unpleasant and objectionable, but the night carts are decidedly worse, and are extant specimens of a past age. It is ridiculous to think of such a primitive system in a modern city. Finally, there are the drains. All over the city the stench that arises from the drains is unbearable. Filth of every description is thrown into the gutters, and yet people marvel at the amount of disease there is in the city. The squalor in which so many people of this town are forced to live would have to be seen to be believed. All these matters mentioned here should be planks in the platform of every would-be councillor, and as it is on the merits of their platforms they will be elected, then it is well time that each makes his announcement so that electors may be given an opportunity to judge between them.

Personal.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Morine left by S.S. Rosalind this morning for Halifax. The annual visit of Mr. Morine to Canada was somewhat accelerated by the announcement of the illness of Mrs. Morine's sister. Both Mr. and Mrs. Morine will spend the Christmas and New Year season with friends and relatives, the former returning early in January.

Marine's Illness Relieved Nov. 22/21.

Wireless Expert Arrived on Rosalind.

WILL ESTABLISH SCHOOL OF WIRELESS.

F. L. Southgate, Wireless Officer Canadian Air Force and chief Wireless Instructor, Canadian School of Telegraphy, arrived Monday on the Rosalind and extends opening up a wireless school in this city, providing sufficient young men are interested. The school will be equipped with the most modern Radio apparatus, including a super-sensitive receiving set capable of receiving trans-Atlantic messages from Namur, Germany, Eiffel Tower, Paris, and all the high-powered European stations. Wireless telephony concerts will also be received from the United States. Later, if the school proves satisfactory, a Wireless Telephony transmitting set will be installed, which under good conditions will be capable of transmitting speech directly to New York and perhaps across to Ireland. Our boys should avail themselves of this splendid opportunity of studying the most fascinating profession in the world. Mr. Southgate installed the wireless set on the S.S. Eagle in 1914 for the American Marconi Company of New York, and operated it at the Isfelds for that year. He was then transferred to the 2nd Canadian Division. Later he was granted a commission in the Royal Naval Air Service as pilot and wireless officer. We are indeed glad to welcome him back to St. John's, and wish him the greatest success in this enterprise, which will be of incalculable value to the boys of Newfoundland.

A Serious Burden.

Extra Tax on Sugar Still Continues. The following is taken from the current issue of the market report as sent out by a leading Water Street firm to its customers:—"We have been expecting that the excess duty of 2 1/2 cents per pound on sugar would be removed by the Food Control Board as being liquidated; we are informed, however, that by Resolutions of the House of Assembly, the Government is empowered to continue the tax in order to pay the increased pensions to soldiers and sailors and understand the same is being done. A tax of 200 per cent. on sugar is a serious burden at the present time. Markets seem to be little easier at the moment but declines seem hardly possible to any extent."

Brighter Outlook.

Fishermen Get Better Opportunities. According to Customs Inspector Dea, who has just returned from revenue service on the South Coast, the outlook for the coming winter is much brighter in many sections than it was last year at this period. The near approach of a barrel of flour for a quintal of fish has enabled many a fisherman to store away a barrel this year he says. A ready sale has been found for all the fish caught and as opposed to last year the fishermen are not compelled to beg the merchant to purchase the product of his toil.

Oil Stove Explosion.

Shortly after nine o'clock this morning an oil stove in the Avalon Drug Store exploded, and it looked for a time as if there would be a blaze. A telephone message called the central near West End Fire Companies to the scene. Their services were not however needed as a few buckets of water had been applied by the store assistants before the firemen's arrival. There was no damage done to the premises.

Again on Route.

The staunch little freight and passenger ship Earl of Devon, Capt. Carter, sails to-night for Wesleyville, Change Islands, Twillingate and Western Arm, Green Bay. The ship is chock full to the hatches with freight and we understand more is offering. It is not known if the ship will make another trip North, but the people will welcome the first appearance for some time of the ship on this route.

Grateful to St. Shott's People.

Mr. M. F. Ouel, chief steward of the wrecked steamer Fern, speaks in glowing terms of the treatment extended to those in his department by the people of St. Shott's. The Molloy brothers rendered particular service. They brought many of the shipwrecked men on their backs through the surf as in their hurry to leave the doomed ship there was no time to obtain oil skins or boots.

No Parade.

After prayers at the Armory last night the C.I.B. Cadets were dismissed so that they could attend the Dominion Sports. The Officers Mess held a special meeting when matters in connection with Brigade Week were discussed. Several other matters also came up for discussion. There will be no parades next week as the Armory has been leased to the Poultry Association for their exhibition.

Co-Operative Marketing

COMMODITY CONTROL BY EXPORTERS AND PRODUCERS.

ARTICLE II.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—It would be very difficult to form a co-operative marketing association for selling our fish abroad, but it would be a work of very great magnitude to form such an association amongst fishermen-producers for selling fish within the Colony, to the merchant members of the Exporters' Association. The fishermen-producers reside in widely scattered parts of the Colony. Those in any compact or sharply defined community have no monopoly of any special commodity. If the fishermen-producers in any particular locality formed an association, they would have control of the commodity caught by the residents there, but not of that kind of commodity generally, for the same kind could be procured in many other localities, and hence no such "commodity control" would exist as Mr. Sapro says is "fundamental" to success. They could, perhaps, by local association force up the price local buyers would have to pay, but only at the risk of not getting any buyers, unless they could transport to other parts of the Colony, or could export. Only by co-operation to which, say, seventy-five (75) per cent. of all the fishermen-producers of the Colony were committed, could "commodity control" within the Colony be exercised, and to bring this about would require herculean efforts. In Nova Scotia, amongst the Apple-growers, subsidiary co-operative companies are formed in many localities, and these companies become members of the United Fruit Companies, Ltd., which markets all the fruit turned in by the members of the subsidiary companies. Applied here, the method would work out in this way, that associations would have to be formed in various parts of the Colony, and these become members of a central association, which would sell to the merchant-members of the Export Association, or, perchance, itself become an Exporter, which it would need to become if it wished to meet the merchant-exporters were not paying reasonable prices. The creation and functioning of an exporters co-operative association need not wait on the creation of a producers' association, for the latter might never become necessary, if the competition amongst merchant members of the Exporters' Association were free, and kept up home prices to a fair rate. That the combination or co-operation of the Advocate aims to promote is amongst exporters, not amongst fishermen, is shown by the following extract from the Advocate of the 10th inst:—"Fishermen cannot themselves market their fish (abroad). It is enough and to spare for them to catch and cure it. To market requires very deep insight into the science of marketing. It is necessary to have a class of men (the merchants) set apart to do it. The fishermen will catch and cure the fish, and someone else will market."

SHAREMEN WOULD BE LABORERS ONLY. There is much more difficulty about the basis of co-operation amongst fishermen for sale of fish in the Colony than amongst merchant exporters for sale abroad. The various branches of the fisheries each present their own problem. The Bank fishery, for instance, is carried on by capitalists, so to speak, who could, perhaps, join the exporter class, and go into the Exporters' Association. But what about the sharemen? How would they co-operate with other sharemen as to the sale? And this raises a legal question—have the sharemen legally any ownership in shares of the fish caught by the crew of which they are members, or only shares in the proceeds of the fish when sold? This would be a vital point in co-operation by sharemen, for if the planters for the voyages are the owners of the fish, and the sharemen only entitled to part of the proceeds, the planters could turn the firm into a co-operative society. A similar difficulty arises, of course, as to the position and rights of sharemen in the Labrador or other fishery. If, as I am inclined to think, they are all merely laborers whose scale of remuneration is fixed as a share in the money proceeds of the product, they help to catch and cure, they can, if they like, form a trade union, to adjust payment by shares and other matters, but cannot co-operate as to the sale of fish. The crews and servants of planters in the Labrador fishery, and in the Shore fishery, are in like case, for the planter owns the fish they catch, and he alone co-operates with other planters in the sale thereof. The case of men fishing singly or as partners with others is beset with another class of hindrance of co-operative marketing. Any number of them able to buy their own supplies, or to get them on credit, without pledging their fish to suppliers or disposing of it rapidly, could, of course, co-operate as to selling in the Colony, but all such fishermen unable to pay cash for supplies, or to get them on credit without pledging or bartering their fish, could not co-operate as to sale, on the basis of co-operation in marketing advocated by Mr. Sapro, for an association formed on that basis, having no cash capital, could not supply to the fishermen, and could not advance against fish delivered in small lots, for it could not itself get bank loans on such fish. The only co-operative societies on which fishermen unable to pay cash for outfits could rely would require cash capital, and such might be formed, though with difficulty, upon the basis that every fisherman-member should take an equal number of shares, entitling them to receive yearly dividends of say ten per cent. of the cash they had paid for shares, the balance of the profits of the association to be paid proportionately to the quantities they had turned in, minus any advances they had received when the fish was delivered to the Association.

PROCESSES OF GRADUATION. "The key," says Mr. Sapro, "to co-operative marketing of this sort, is the pooling of grades of commodities. Every member delivering produce to the association does so in grades. He may be in as many pools as there are kinds and grades of commodities." In the fish business, for instance, an exporter-member would be in as many pools as the fish he delivered would fall into kinds and grades; that is to say, as many grades of cod, herring, etc., as a standard cull would make of his produce delivered. This would be essential, obviously, for as the association would be selling for different prices for different grades and different kinds, it would manifestly be inequitable to pay members one price for all grades. A member who had delivered a thousand quintals of choice shore, for instance, would expect to be paid the price received for choice shore, not the average price received for all grades, and hence cull and pooling would become essential to the success of the association. And hence would arise the very best possible result to be expected from co-operative marketing, for the association, and every member thereof, would be keen to enforce the strictest cull of fish turned into the Association by the members, and these in their turn, knowing that their fish when delivered to the association would be strictly culled, would enforce a similar cull in buying, so that the quality of fish shipped abroad would be enormously improved. "When you come right down to it," says Mr. Sapro, "there are always bases for commercial classification. To discover these bases is often the work of experts, but they could be ascertained and fixed here. Yours truly, ALFRED B. MORINE. Nov. 22, 1921.

Cooking de Luxe.

Eight of our most well known ladies are meeting quite often lately and are producing from the kitchen fire some of the most dainty dishes we have yet seen. We think it would be a sterling success if these ladies would open up a domestic science class, as their products are "la dernière cri" in cooking. By the way, these culinary efforts of theirs are for the supper at the Fieldian-Club Dance. nov23/21

Motor Driver Fined.

A poor compliment to the quality of the rum sold at the Controller's Department was paid by a motor driver, charged before Judge Morris, this morning, with reckless driving. Asked if he were drunk at the time, accused said he was not as he had only had two or three drinks of Controller's beverage. Soldiers' Handicraft.

An exhibition of his work done by wounded soldiers in hospital, will shortly be held. A similar exhibition was held last year and proved highly successful. Some of the work done by the soldiers under the supervision of their able teachers, was really wonderful. Large numbers of people attended the exhibition and purchased specimens of the most work. It is to be hoped that the same support will be given this year's exhibition, which is now being organized.

Molested Captain.

A well-known local captain charged a man in the Magistrate's Court this morning with assault. Plaintiff said he was in a street car on Monday and the defendant leaned over on him. Witness moved away to let the accused sit on the seat. The latter abused him in filthy language in the presence of all the passengers, and had to be removed from the car. The street car conductor corroborated plaintiff's evidence. The accused said he had been drinking hard for the last three days. He was fined $5 or 10 days.

Own Your Own Home for Less Than You are Paying Rent. For $600 cash down we build a nice plain 6 room $1,800 house and give 10 years to pay the $1,200 balance. Payments in principal and interest will average $14.40 per month for the 10 years, when payments cease and buyers own their own homes. We build up to $3,500 house on this plan. We accept $900 on a $2,700 house; the monthly payments for 10 years to own this averages $21.60 per month. The actual rent on the $1,800 house is $4.40 per month, as $10.00 per month or $120 per year applies to paying the principal. On the $2,700 house, payments on principal is $15.00 per month or $180 per year, rent therefore only $6.60 per month. See the $2,500 bungalow we are now erecting on Mount Royal Avenue—$800 down and $20.87 per month for 10 years is the price to own this beautiful home. We are in a position to give good service and value; we operate our own saw mills on the West Coast, also our own factory on Plank Road. We have one million feet of splendid sound, clear lumber of all kinds now in the city, including clear Fir Clapboard. HIS DIARY.
Thursday, November 22nd. At my waking I found the tops of the houses covered with snow and the streets which is a sight which I have not seen there many months. To the sea where I did hear how one who had purchased a bottle of whiskey from a purveyor of so-called illicit beverages, was high poisoned with a mixture of vinegar and water. The cause of the infection to the Council of Health increase and where it will be I know not. At this time I have two kegs of rum, two bottles of port, and a smaller bottle of champagne; a small bottle of cherry and another of whiskey all in my wine-cellar together which I believe, none of my friends of any name now alive ever had his own at on time since Prohibition. Mr. Morine, the learned Attorney, who write in the Telegram of cooperative marketing, wherein he puts to shame the Advocate for its pictures whereat I was much amused, albeit the day was a dull one.

Caribou Scarce.

BIG GAME HUNTER'S ADVICE—ON PRESERVING CARIBOU.

Very few caribou, and none of any size, were seen by H. H. Banks, big game hunter, who recently returned after spending forty days hunting along the Gander River. The largest head seen was only a fifteen-pointer, and at no one time were the caribou seen in larger numbers than five. "If you want to preserve your Caribou," said Mr. Banks to the Telegram to-day, "you must protect your stags and lessen the number of barren does." Mr. Banks, who is a Civil Servant in the Federated Malay States, where he has shot elephants, tigers and other big game, left for the Gander on Oct. 3rd and with a good guide, went in search of caribou. He was greatly surprised at the scarcity of the animals and even the guide could not account for it. At one time they traversed twenty miles without seeing one head and, when game was seen, the majority proved to be barren does. Not one head was seen worth shooting. In some places the party came across the remains of caribou and observed signs of traps around them. It is possible that the heavy snow storms experienced in the interior recently may have been responsible for the scarcity of caribou. In no other way could it be accounted for. Meat hunters whom Mr. Banks met had got hardly anything. Whilst his trip was a trying one to one used to a warmer climate, Mr. Banks greatly enjoyed it, although he experienced natural disappointment at not obtaining a good head. He leaves by the Sackem for Liverpool en route to Malaga.

100 Years' Peace Park.

ESTIMATE OF 10,000,000 CORDS AS ANNUAL PRODUCTION.

Taking as his text a quotation from an article in the "Pulp and Paper" Number of the Financial Post, which stated that 10,000 cords of pulpwood could be produced from a planted area of 50 miles, T. Kenneth Thomson, the well-known consulting engineer of New York, brings forward again his plan for the establishment of "A 100 Years' Peace Park" between Canada and the United States. His suggestion was that the Governments of the two countries each buy a strip of land ten miles wide, making a total width of twenty miles from Lake Superior to the Pacific Ocean, about 1500 miles long, creating an international park and forest and home for wild animals, birds and fish. This would be a "wind break," would improve the climate, and increase the value of the adjoining land, and in addition would be a profit-producer through the sale of timber, furs, animals, fish, etc. Taking the basis of the estimates in these columns Mr. Thomson estimates that this park would yield from ten to twelve millions of cords.—Forbes Magazine.

Says End of Depression Due in February.

That the limit of business depression in the United States will be reached about February 1 to 15, was the opinion expressed by George E. MacLain, of the Babson Statistical Organization, speaking before the Chamber of Commerce at Montreal on "The Economic Situation." By means of a chart, compiled from fifteen such business indicators as bank clearings, foreign trade figures, etc., Mr. MacLain illustrated the rise and fall of business in the United States since 1903. Canada's experience could be regarded in the same light, as conditions here were similar to those across the border, with the one exception that changes here came from thirty to sixty days later.

The turning point, when reached, said Mr. MacLain, would not mean a sudden wave of prosperity. It would simply mean that from that day onward the business world would gain day by day; very slight gains, probably. And it would be better that the gain should be small and steady, for the sooner the world of business learnt the folly of forcing prosperity to unnatural peaks the sooner would true, steady, sane prosperity and progressiveness be reached. If nothing serious occurred to delay it, ultimate high level of prosperity would be reached in two or three years.

One Hundred Thousand Pay Honor to Unknown Soldier.

World's Notables Pass Bier in Capitol at Washington--Procession Took Sixteen Hours in March Past--Newfoundland Pays Tribute to First Foreign V. C.

(From The New York Times)

Washington, Nov. 18.—In solemn state the Unknown American slept to-day in the very center of the heart of his country, the rotunda of the Capitol, while thousands of his fellow countrymen and the representatives of the world's great powers join in paying him tribute such as emperors and kings rarely know.

While this American warrior lay in his simple black coffin, a steady throng filed past, past, all through the day and up to midnight. Old and young, black and white, crippled and stalwart, soldier and sailor and civilian, they moved steadily on, each craving the privilege of tendering to this symbolic man reverence and honor.

In the early morning they came fast, slacking a trifle in the forenoon. In the afternoon the number grew steadily and at night the throng increased to great proportions.

At 10 o'clock, the official hour of closing, men, women and children were still peering by the bier of the nameless American and the crowd outside extended ten deep for many blocks from the Capitol.

At that hour it was decided to keep the doors open until midnight to admit all that were possible.

In all more than 100,000 persons filed past the catafalque during the day. This included hundreds who came in delegations to pay special tribute.

Wreath after wreath was placed on the bier, while patriotic organizations of America, foreign diplomats and, most honored of all, the mothers who had given their sons bowed their heads.

The walls of the rotunda were banked with these gifts until it seemed almost like a garden. From every land they came. The King of England sent a wreath of red English roses, crowned at the top with a bunch of flowers made up from all the Dominions.

More than an hour before the east door of the Capitol was opened in the morning a crowd had gathered in a line that extended a block away. The rain and fog of last night had been blown away and across the blue sky swept only a few fleecy clouds.

Within the rotunda an unknown American lay, guarded by the motionless armed men who had watched over him all through the night.

Most of the flowers placed on the coffin last night had been removed and the only covering was the brilliant American flag. On this rested the flowers sent from France, the shield of the nation placed there by President Harding, and the white ribbon tenderly tied by Mrs. Harding.

THE SLOW MARCH BEGINS.

Slowly the men and women who were first in the great stream of humanity came through the opened doors, moving through a roped aisle from the east door past the bier to the opposite entrance and down the staircases to Pennsylvania Avenue.

The public were admitted four abreast. As the first line appeared within the great bronze doors, which in themselves typified French affection for America, having been given to the young Republic in the long ago, a group of men sang the last verse of America:

Long may our land be bright,
With freedom's holy light,
Delegations formed on the steps to the Senate wing and entered the rotunda through the north door. After placing their flowers at the bier, and in some cases holding brief services, they filed out with the public through the west door.

Conspicuous among the delegations was that representing the British Empire, who came in a score of automobiles and with two trucks, bearing flowers. Earl Beatty, Arthur T. Balfour and Ambassador Geddes headed the long line. Soldiers and sailors, comrades of America's unknown, in the great war, bore the floral offerings.

The Earl of Gavan placed upon the catafalque the wreath from King George, which bore a card with the royal crest, and in their King's own handwriting this message:

As unknown and yet well known,
As dying, and, behold, we live,
GEOURGE, R. I.
November 11, 1921.

Arthur T. Balfour brought a wreath for Premier Lloyd George, which carried a card reading:

"Nameless, yet his name liveth forever."

Canada's wreath of maple leaves bore this sentence, chosen by Sir Robert Borden, from "The Pilgrim's Progress":

"But that which put glory of grace into all he did was that he did it out of pure love to his country."

Sergeant Richardson, oldest holder of the Victoria Cross, brought a wreath from the Great War Veterans' Association of Canada, and Sergeant Rayfield, another Victoria Cross man, a wreath from the Grand Army of United Veterans of the same country.

Colonel Crossfield represented the British Legion, Major Fitzgerald the British Great War Veterans, Sergeant Young, V.C., the Army and Navy Veterans of Canada, and Mrs. Fox the Imperial Daughter of the Empire.

A replica of the Victoria Cross sent by the British Great War Veterans of America, was of black leaves, inscribed "For Valor."

A wreath from India was inscribed: "They never die who die to make life worth living."

A wreath for Australia was placed by Senator Pearce, for New Zealand by Sir John Salmond, for South Africa by Ambassador Geddes and for Newfoundland by Captain Robertson.

Another wreath bore this card:

"From the members of the returned soldiers and sailors of the Imperial League of Australia in memory of their American comrades who fought with them in the great war."

Foreign diplomats with their attaches mingled all day with the groups of Americans, come to honor the unknown.

A given statue of the Angel of Peace, gifted by the Chinese Republic, was brought in early. It was later unveiled by Mr. Stan, the Chinese Minister. As the envoy and his staff entered, they advanced to the bier and bowed reverently. Then the group separated, and three, at a time, the Chinese walked to the foot of the casket and bowed low. When they left the scene they repeated this observance.

Later in the afternoon came the delegation of Japan, Baron Shidehara with a secretary of Embassy, Military Attache and Naval Attache, with their aides. They brought three wreaths and showed marked reverence as their offerings were deposited.

The wreath left by the Honduran Minister was inscribed:

The Minister of Honduras to the Unknown American Soldier, as a tribute.

Of Admiration to the whole American Army for its glorious bravery.

Premier Briand, with others of the French delegation to the Armament Conference, brought a bunch of pink chrysanthemums tied with the tricolor. The Premier stood silent for a moment and then moved on with the rest of the group.

One wreath from a new country that sprang from the great war had a card reading:

"To the Unknown American Hero from the grateful Czechoslovak nation."

From the Republic of Cuba came a wreath of yellow roses.

Belgium's representative brought palm leaves tied with the national colors.

Russia, too, was represented in the long line. Henry de Bach, counselor of the Embassy, headed a delegation which included Prince Cantacuzene, Count Speransky and Captain A. I. Smirnov, representing the Russian Army, and Captain I. V. Mieshtov, representing the navy. They brought as a tribute of gratitude a Cross of St. George, composed of white and red flowers.

REPRESENT AMERICAN LIFE.

The American delegation that paid tribute to the dead were a living cross-section of the country's life.

Major General Nelson A. Miles, the gray old Indian fighter, headed a group of best members of the Royal Legion who bore their glowing colors proudly. One of the men wore that highest decoration of the nation, the Congressional medal. They held a brief service. Representatives of the Grand Army of the Republic followed them, many of these feeble and a few in old and faded uniforms.

Dressed in black from head to foot, twenty gold star mothers brought to the bier a great plaque of white carnations in its centre.

Boy scouts, young and virile, honored the warrior with a wreath and repeated their oath beside his bier.

Sixteen wounded men from Walter Reed Hospital hobbled in—stiffly on crutches and saluted. With what memories they stood beside their dead comrade.

An organization of ex-service men placed on the catafalque a white pillow, bearing in purple flowers the words: "Our Pal."

FOR THE CHURCHES OF AMERICA.

Early in the day a committee of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, representing the Protestant Churches of the United States, came to the bier and held a brief service. Bishop McDowell of the Methodist Church offered prayer and the Rev. Dr. William A. Brown of Union Theological Seminary briefly eulogized the dead.

The delegation left as an offering an American flag, made of tiny flowers, all surmounted by a white cross.

A delegation from the Red Cross brought a floral design, consisting of palm leaves forming a medallion of carnations with a red cross in the center.

A floral wreath was brought by officials of the American Federation of Labor. It was inscribed:

Live on, thou spirit of justice, freedom, democracy and humanity.
A grateful tribute to our Unknown Soldier, from the American Federation of Labor.

A group of Knights of Columbus in regalia came in, clustered about the bier and recited their ritual for the dead.

The Jewish Welfare Board was represented by a large delegation which held a brief service. They placed a laurel wreath on the bier.

A large group from the Red Cross Woman's Overseas League also held a service.

GREAT HOST OF DELEGATIONS.

Other delegations that brought tribute were—American Ambulance Association, Rotary Club of Washington, National Women's Overseas Service League, United Spanish War Veterans, Department of District of Columbia; Rainbow Division, Twenty-eighth Division, Association; Eighty-third Division, Veterans of Foreign Wars; Eightieth Division, American Library Association; Disabled Emergency Officers of World War, Thirty-seventh Division; Daughters of Veterans, Sixth Division; Hoboken War Mothers, Women of A. and N. Legion of Valor, Young Men's Christian Association, Second Division, National Organization of Sons of Veterans Auxiliary; National Society of United States Daughters of 1812, Society of Fifth Division, Young Women's Christian Association, America Women's Legion, United States Infantry, Third Regular Division; American War Mothers, National Catholic Welfare Council, American Legion; Military Order of World War, Daughters of American Revolution, Disabled Veterans of the World War, Navy League of Foreign Wars, Military Training Camps Association, Naval and Military Order of Spanish-American War, National American Indian Memorial Association, Department of Maryland Veterans of Foreign Wars, Thomas Roberts Reath Post of American Legion, Hebrew Sheltering Immigrant Aid Society of America, Orders of Sons of Temperance, and Salvation Army.

So numerous were the floral offerings that every once in a while the guards moved them away from the bier to leave room for those that were to come.

Although the last delegation, the Salvation Army, was not to appear until 9:55 o'clock in the rotunda, so precise and smooth were the arrangements that they appeared half an hour before that time.

NOTABLES FROM PUBLIC LIFE.

Many notables in the nation's life were conspicuous in the throng that passed through the rotunda during the day.

Vice President Coolidge, Secretary Weeks, Attorney General Daugherty,

THIN, FLAT HAIR GROWS LONG, THICK AND ABUNDANT

"Dandergine" costs only 25 cents a bottle. One application ends all dandruff, stops itching and falling hair, and, in a few moments, you have doubled the beauty of your hair. It will appear a mass, so soft, lustrous, and easy to do up. But what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair—fine and downy at first—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. "Dandergine" is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. This delightful, stimulating tonic helps thin, lifeless, faded hair to grow long, thick, heavy and luxuriant.

Postmaster General Hays, Justice Pitney, McKenna, Day and Clark of the Supreme Court, General Pershing, Major General Harbord, Major General Lejeune, as well as hundreds of other army and navy and marine officers and prominent officials visited the sacred spot.

All through the day the immobility of the soldiers that guarded the unknown's coffin attracted the wonder of the crowd. They stood there carven images, so rigid that they seemed scarcely breathing. Every five minutes they were allowed to change their pose from "attention" to "parade rest," but they snapped from one position to the other with one move. At intervals the guard was changed, and the men who had been on duty retired to an improvised barracks under the rotunda.

Officers of the Thirteenth Engineers said the men had been in intensive training for this guard mount for weeks and had hardened themselves for the ordeal.

The following official programme was carried out, without any change, the arrangements being such that there was no occasion for any alterations. The instructions contained herein were issued by His Majesty's Ambassador at Washington, in conformity to the schedule approved by the United States Authorities.

Arrangements for laying of wreaths in the Rotunda of the Capitol on November 10th, 1921, at 12 noon by representatives of the British Empire on the occasion of the lying in state of the body of the Unknown American Soldier.

1. The British Ambassador presents his compliments to the representatives of the British Empire and, in order that this ceremony may be fittingly performed, requests that they will conform to the following programme which has been arranged with the United States authorities.

2. The procession will be preceded by two motor lorries on which all the wreaths will be carried and is timed to leave the British Embassy, 1500 Connecticut Ave. at 11.15 a.m.

3. Wreaths are being provided at the Embassy for His Majesty, the King; the Prime Minister; Canada; Commonwealth of Australia; Australian Soldiers; New Zealand; and India and in order that all the wreaths may be suitably arranged and carefully loaded on the lorries for transportation to the Capitol, the British Ambassador requests that the others may be delivered at the front door of the British Embassy not later than 9 a.m.

4. The British Ambassador further requests that, in order that the procession may leave the doors of the Embassy punctually at 11.15 a.m. each representative accompanied by his secretary in accordance with the attached list will be at the British Embassy not later than 11.00 a.m. The cars will then be arranged in the order in which the procession will proceed.

5. The procession will be headed by a policeman mounted on a motor cycle who will indicate the route to be followed. It is particularly requested that all cars be kept well closed up as the cross traffic on the route will be heavy.

6. On arrival at the Capitol the motor cars will be halted at the foot of the Senate steps and the wreaths will be unloaded by five British wreath bearers assisted by a detachment of United States soldiers.

7. The procession will then form and mount the Senate steps in the order of arrival. It is requested that the private secretaries of those gentlemen laying wreaths will ensure that each wreath bearer takes up his appropriate position in the procession.

8. On arrival at the head of the Senate steps the procession will be met by an officer representing the United States Government who will conduct it to the catafalque where the wreaths are to be laid in a position specially reserved for them.

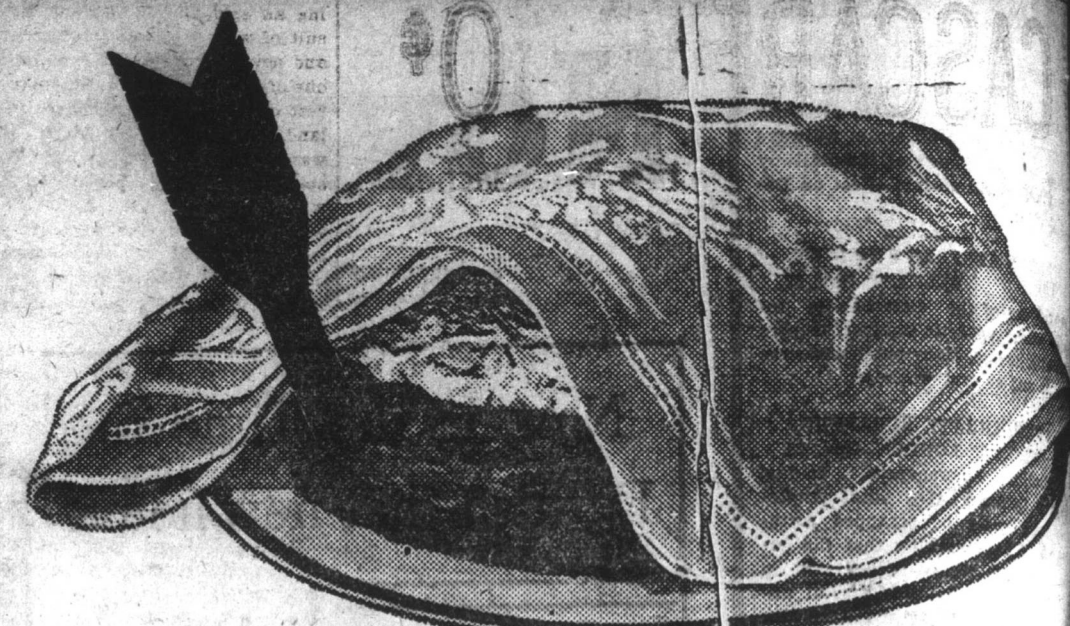

9. At the conclusion of the ceremony each representative is requested to re-enter the same motor car which he proceeded to the Capitol, at the foot of the Senate steps.

10. Motor cars may proceed independently as soon as they have passed the Peace Memorial on the return journey.

11. Dress:—Royal Navy Rig No. 3. Army and Air Force service dress without swords.

Municipal Candidates Hold Meeting.

PROGRAMME OF POLICY OUTLINED.

The first public meeting in connection with the forthcoming Municipal Elections was held in the L.S.P.U. Hall last night. The meeting was called by Mr. E. J. Whitty, who is a candidate for Councillor. Mr. John Murphy presided, and in a few words called on Mr. Whitty to address the gathering. The speaker on coming forward was greeted with applause. Before outlining his policy, he explained to the meeting that neither he nor the foremen or men of the Unemployed Committee were responsible for the enormous cost of the Road de Jure, and that if the guilty parties were not brought to book it would be one of his duties, if elected to the Council Board, to see that it were done. The following planks in his platform were then announced:—

1. Right of way for pedestrians over motor cars. In this he advocated, at least one of the lower roads for pedestrians leading out to Bowring Park.
2. Cobble stone drains. These he would have removed and if finances would not permit he would use tarrifs surface. The drains at present in use are poisonous, particularly underneath the stones, where the filth cannot be got at.
3. Labor brought from outside the city by contractors. This, Mr. Whitty said, should not be permitted unless those employed were made to contribute something to the city's revenue. He would have all such employers made responsible for the tax which would be a poll tax of $5.00.
4. Housing and Landlords' Treatment of Tenants. The system of appraisement at present is unjust, and Mr. Whitty opposes the appraisement tax being passed on to the tenant without corresponding benefit. He said that there are many instances when the tax was raised 50 cents the tenant was charged $2. The fine on landlords for having leaky houses did not meet the situation, and the speaker thought that some better remedy could be employed. The year appraisement on old property he thought sufficient and quarterly collection of taxes.
5. Employees of Municipal Council. Better treatment should be given the permanent employees. These, if they do not turn up through no fault of their own, are docked even if they are only one half day off. In the payment of the men's wages there is also room for improvement. They should not be kept standing in the Council yard waiting till six o'clock for their wages, in view of the fact that their time ceases at 4 p.m. There is nothing modern about the system, said the speaker. It was a law passed at the request of a few people to prevent the men from going to the saloons. These have been done away with for some years, but the rule is still continued.
6. Public lavatories in addition to those in existence. These could be put in such places as fire halls and other public institutions.
7. Tax on vendors of produce from outlying settlements. The cost to the city for cleaning after the ponies and horses from the outside limits amounts to $100 per week, yet these people do not contribute one cent of revenue. Those sending manufactured goods from outside the city should also be taxed. In this he instanced coopers' work.
8. The securing for the city of its per capita share of the general revenue; this would amount to $70,000 per annum. Improved sidewalks for Gower Street, the weight of bread and other vital subjects were also dealt with by the speaker.

After concluding, Mr. Whitty invited any candidates who were present to come to the platform and address the meeting. Mr. E. D. Spurrell was the first to come forward. He thanked Mr. Whitty for his generous offer and the spirit of comradeship which prompted him to invite a competitor to speak at his meeting. He endorsed all that Mr. Whitty had said and added that he was an advocate of having the street car service extended to the higher levels. Amongst other improvements he would have the South Side Road East made passable for pedestrians. Under present financial conditions he could not father great projects such as paving Gower Street, but he saw many improvements that could be made with little expenditure.

Availing of the offer of Mr. Whitty, Mr. Patrick E. Kelly came forward and announced to the meeting that he proposed seeking a seat on the Municipal Board. He stated that he had not a full platform prepared to place before the assembly, but it would appear in due course. He, however, intimated that the following items would be amongst the list: (1) a revision of the present charter, (2) suspension of the Poll Tax under present conditions, (3) new sidewalks on New Gower Street, (4) have a more equal distribution of the Council's money for repairs on the different streets, (5) improve the present car coating on the streets, (6) make absentee landlords pay a higher tax, (6) erect a market place where all vendors from outside the city would be compelled to go. These he would have taxed. Mr. Kelly was formerly

Live to be One Hundred

His That Are Fatal to the Majority of the Race Should and Could be Abolished.

Do you know that under favourable conditions people should live in comfort and health to the age of one hundred years or more, useful and in full possession of their faculties. Many of the ills that are fatal to the majority of the human race should and could be abolished. There is too much illness, too much suffering, and too many premature deaths. It is natural to be healthy—yet nearly all suffering from some ill which deprives them of a part of their power. If you could read through the thousands of books written on hygiene and health, you would realize that in the maze of technical information they contain, the one vital rule that underlies all the precepts of medicine is: Keep the stomach functioning normally.

If people would see that their digestive organs are in good order, most of the ills affecting humanity would disappear. It is easy to prevent stomach troubles—"Gastronol" the new specific for all troubles of the digestive tract is sold everywhere. Its cost is cheap; each Gastronol bears its name to protect you against dangerous substitutes.) If you have gas in the digestive tract, or sour stomach, or heartburn or a badly coated tongue, or bad taste in the mouth, or pimples, or a muddy skin—take one or two "Gastronol" after meals. You will be amazed at the wonderful improvement in your health.

Stabbed With Penknife.

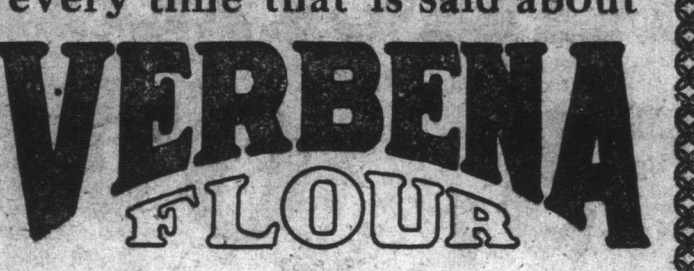

YOUNG WOMAN COMMITS MURDER FOR FIVE DOLLAR BILL.

A 23-year-old girl named Grace Moreno alias Bianco has been sentenced to life imprisonment by Mr. Justice Monet at Montreal for causing the death of a Newfoundlander named John James Rowe, who was a returned soldier. The woman was found guilty on Friday, Nov. 12th, and sentence was passed on Tuesday last. The tragic death of Rowe occurred shortly after midnight on May 19th of the present year. It appears that the deceased, who was dining at a restaurant near Vitis and St. Urbaine Street, produced some money to pay his bill when the girl, Grace Moreno, snatched a five dollar bill from his hands. The girl ran to the street and Rowe followed her. In an altercation Moreno produced a knife and stabbed Rowe to the heart. The weapon was afterwards found and used in evidence. Dr. Derome, a medical expert, gave testimony that the blood found on the knife used to commit the crime was human blood. Judge Monet, in addressing the girl before sentencing her, commented strongly on the address to the jury of the defending lawyer, Alban Germaine, K.C. He said your lawyer was devoted to such an extent that he made remarks during the hearing of the evidence to the jury. When Dr. Derome was answering questions concerning blood on the knife I clearly heard someone in the court room say "perhaps it is pig's blood. Your devoted lawyer said to the jury settle your mind that 'yes it was pig's blood—the blood of an Englishman.'" After sentence was passed the prisoner said "Thanks." The husband of Grace Moreno, Giuseppe Bianco was sentenced last April to two years in St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary for highway robbery. He was convicted of hitting a man over the head and stealing his money and watch.

LADY SQUIRES PRESENTS PRIZES.

Over 5000 spectators were present at the second annual Dominion Sports at the Prince's Rink last night. The sports were organized by the C.C.C. Boat Club and the programme was varied and interesting. Every item was keenly contested and in very few cases did the winner have an easy task in defeating the other competitors. The five mile race was one of the most interesting of the events. Twelve competitors entered, all getting away well. For the first half mile the runners kept close, but going into the first mile they began to spread out, and O'Toole, who took the lead from the start, began to draw away and kept a safe lead all through. He was followed by Thorburn, who finished second, about three quarters of a lap behind, with Taylor third. O'Toole's time for the five miles was 23.57 3-5, which, considering the condition, was a creditable showing. The one mile for juniors was a splendidly run race. Bayly, the winner, is a plucky youngster, and gives promise of becoming a first class runner. Much interest was aroused by the basketball game. Very little of this fine game has been played here and last night's exhibition will do much to create interest in it. Lady Squires presented the prizes after the sports had been concluded, and she congratulated the winners on their excellent showing. Mr. P. F. Collins, President of the Boat Club thanked Lady Squires for her kindness in being present. During the evening the C.C.C. Band was in attendance and rendered many delightful selections. All who had anything to do with the organizing of the sports deserve every congratulation on their success.

The list of prizewinners is as follows:

- 100 Yards (1st heat)—1st, E. Phelan; 2nd, P. Dobbin; time 13 4-5 secs.
- 100 Yards (2nd heat)—1st, H. Halley; 2nd, J. Nikosey; time 13 1-5 secs.
- 220 Yards—1st, E. Phelan; 2nd, H. Halley; time 29 4-5 secs.
- 440 Yards—1st, E. Phelan; 2nd, P. Dobbin; time 1 min. 6 secs.
- Half Mile—1st, N. Clouston; 2nd, G. Halley; time 2.33 3-5.
- One Mile—1st, A. Murray; 2nd, D. Redmond; time 5.14 1-5.
- One Mile Walk—1st, H. Burnell; 2nd, G. Wilson; time 8.16.
- One Mile (Junior)—1st, A. Bailey; 2nd, J. Herder; time 5.50 2-5.
- Basket Ball—B.I.S. vs. Methodist College.—Won by B.I.S.
- Tag of War—Guards vs. C.C.C.—Won by Guards.
- Club Relay Race—Won by B.I.S.
- Ex-Pupils Relay Race—Won by St. Bon's.
- Basket Ball Finals—B.I.C. vs. C.C.C.—Won by C.C.C.
- 100 Yards Final—1st, E. Phelan; 2nd, H. Halley; time 13 3-5.
- High Jump—1st, J. Kieley; height 5 feet; 2nd, J. Cross.
- Five Mile Race—1st, J. O'Toole; time, 23.57 3-5; 2nd, W. Thorburn; 3rd, W. Taylor.

The Victor Ludorum medal was awarded E. Phelan who had 9 points to his credit, while H. Halley was second with 4 points. The medal was especially imported from England and is a splendid piece of workmanship. The other prizes were also ordered from England.

Soviet Rule in Georgia.

COMMUNISTS RIGHT ON THEIR JOB
Tiflis, Soviet Republic of Georgia. (By a Staff Correspondent of The Associated Press)—The Soviet Government here is much more active than that of Moscow. It is a case of the new broom that sweeps clean. It has been supposed that, since the destruction of the democratic Georgian Republic by the Eleventh Red Army, last February, the Government here was of the kind jocularly called "ersatz" in Germany, that is, a sort of harmless substitute for the real thing. While in Soviet-Russia, the Red flag and the bayoneted Red soldier are going out of style, these two attributes of new freedom are much in evidence here. Automobiles whiz along, bearing red banners, these banners are likewise flown from many public buildings and passes are strictly examined on trains by shaggy persons armed with knife and pistol, which every true-blue Communist has a right to wear.

Strange persons, probably intent on pocket-books and forgotten or mislaid baggage, represent themselves as members of the committee against counter-revolution) Cheka, when interrupted. This is quite a pastime with young roughs. On the contrary, in greater Russia, the Cheka is a gunshoe affair, and when it takes anything, it does so when nobody is looking. It covers its trail even when it makes arrests, so thoroughly that the after releases of the arrested are left in doubt. Here, when the Cheka makes an arrest and later executes, near relatives are broadly informed, when they bring food to the prisoner, that the person in question no longer needs food, and they had best discontinue their visits.

One of the latest performances of the Soviet here was to start a brand new kind of finance. It set out to reform the currency and improve exchange and general commercial conditions, and took the short cut of arresting 700 of the leading merchants of the country. They were told they would be shot within a week unless they made a contribution of 25,000,000,000

World's Cheapest Steel.

Great Works for India: Cammell Laird's New Project.
The recent registration in India of "The United Steel Corporation of India, Limited," with a capital of 20 crores of rupees, by Messrs. Bird & Co., of Calcutta, and Messrs. Cammell Laird & Co., of Sheffield and London, may be considered an event of great importance to the future of the iron and steel industry in the East. It being proposed to establish as soon as possible works on a large scale near the deposits of iron, coal, and limestone in India.
Iron ore of the highest quality, fluxes of suitable character, and excellent cooking coal occur close together in vast quantities in Bihar and Orissa. The cost of these at the works is very greatly below what has to be paid in other steel-producing countries. There are upon main railway lines suitable sites for works, with abundant water supply within easy distance of the deposits, all of which are, or will shortly be, served by branch line railways. The combination of these factors with labor facilities indicates that India will be in the position of being able to produce the cheapest steel in the world.

Counting a Billion.

What is a billion? The reply is very simple—a million times a million. This is quickly written and quicker still pronounced. But no man is able to count it. You count 100 in 170 a minute; but let us suppose you go as far as 200, then an hour will produce 12,000; a day 288,000; and a year or 365 days (for every four years you may rest from counting during leap year) 105,120,000. Let us suppose, now, that Adam at the beginning of his existence had begun to count, had continued to do so, and was counting still; he would not even now, according to the usually supposed age of our globe, have counted near enough. To count a billion he would require 9,512 years 84 days 6 hours and 20 minutes, according to the above rule. Now, supposing we were to allow the poor counter 12 hours daily for rest, eating, and sleep-

Napoleonic War Brought Havoc. COMPARISONS OF TO-DAY AND A CENTURY AGO SHOW STARTLING SIMILARITY.

The unrest that has descended on the world as the aftermath of the Great War, together with the disturbance of trade, unemployment, and other evils, followed after the Napoleonic wars. Of course, in those days it did not affect America in the same fashion as the aftermath of the World War does today. This country was too far removed from Europe in the days of the sailing vessels and it did not depend to such an extent on exports and foreign trade for its prosperity.

It is interesting, however, to note with what similarity the situation in England has shaped itself to that of more than a century ago. William Cobbett, famous political writer and reformer, told of the disillusionment and discontent that followed immediately after the end of the war with Napoleon. In his Weekly Political Register for October 28, 1815, he wrote: "Everyone, however, ignorant, begins to perceive that this century of war and this harvest of glory have not yielded happiness. People do not know how it is; but they know that they are in distress. . . Agriculture languishes; trade follows agriculture; nobody has money to pay rent, taxes, or debt."

Farmers Suffered. "A Corn Bill has not protected the farmer. The cheapness of food has not lessened the misery of the poor. Nothing sells. The nation perishes in the midst of the spending of the produce of successive abundant harvests. . . The people do not perceive the real cause of their distress. The farmer sees his wheat fall from 15s. to 7s. a bushel. He ascribes it to the defeat of Napoleon, and says that he was the best friend of the farmers. . . Others damn the French, and say that it is their produce that lowers ours in price. . . Nobody sees, or, at least, appears to see, that their distress arises from the debt and the military establishment and other fixed expenses entailed on us by the war, and from the attempt which is now making to bring us upon a par of exchange with other countries, by diminishing the quantity of our paper money."

Unemployment Problem. Finding employment for the former soldiers and those engaged in war work was a problem in those days, just as it is to-day. In the London

Times of November 23, 1816, was the following: "We perceive with the greatest pleasure that all humane and benevolent minds are now turned to the consideration of the various modes by which relief may be most effectually administered to the poor. . . We may point out two or three ideas which seem to deserve the notice either of Government or of private individuals. We mentioned yesterday that this had been done at Salisbury, at Plymouth, and at Rye. We have to add that at Exeter employment is given to as many of the poor of the city as choose to apply for it in the brick and tile manufactory near the workhouse. . . A meeting will be held in the united parishes of St. Andrew, Holborn, and St. George the Martyr. In this populous and extensive district some benevolent individuals have set on foot a plan for supplying the distressed with meal, bread, potatoes, and coals, under the most liberal cost."

"It is now universally admitted that the best means as well as the most politic mode of relieving the poor is by finding employment for them. The great evil to them, at present, is want of work. The supply of labor is greater than the demand; consequently, in that, as in every other article, under similar circumstances, the price falls; the laborer's wages are reduced in some instances below what is absolutely necessary for his support. The proper remedy is to increase the demand for labor."

Private Charity Suggested. In those days the state did not take over the burden of providing for the needy. It was suggested that every person comes to the aid of the helpless, and the following extract from the London Times of November 23, 1816, is a comment on this practice: "Of the modes of private beneficence which seem peculiarly suitable to the present circumstances, there is none more simple than that of making soup of the remaining victuals too often wasted. 'This practice,' says one of our correspondents, 'has been adopted by myself ever since the complaint of distress became general; and I have often had the satisfaction to afford some nutriment to a dozen or twenty poor starving creatures in the course of a day. . . LONDON GOSSIP.

AT DOWNING STREET.

The story of the proceedings in Downing Street on October 23rd, may be told in brief compass. When the Irish representatives arrived at No. 10, at 5 o'clock they were informed that the Prince of Wales was in the building, he having called to bid good-bye to the Prime Minister before he left for India. This necessitated some delay in the assembling of the Conference. Indeed, it was almost half-past 5 o'clock before Ministers and the Sinn Fein representatives met in the Cabinet Room, and they were in joint session for only 14 minutes. I am informed that a small committee was immediately appointed presumably to consider the desired formula. On this Committee the Government was represented by the Prime Minister and Mr. Chamberlain. The full Conference reassembled at 7 o'clock and a half hour later the Sinn Fein representatives left Downing Street. Afterwards there was a ministerial consultation which did not end until nearly half-past eight.

SEARCHING FOR A FORMULA.

From the information available it seems to be established that neither the Government nor the Sinn Fein desire to see the Conference break down without making a serious attempt to bridge the gulf between them. What that formula, if desired, may turn out to be it is impossible to-day to say, for the reason I have given—that it has not so far been found. That some difficulty was expected in adjusting matters was evident from the Prime Minister's brief statement in the House of Commons. He described Mr. De Valera's telegram as "a grave challenge" and declared in words which most of his hearers understood to be an ultimatum to Sinn Fein that the Conference could not proceed on any other basis than that set forth originally by the Government, namely, the inclusion of Ireland within the British Empire. In some quarters, however,—and the point is worth making in view of the subsequent search for a formula—the Prime Minister's statement was proposed to mean that the Govt. would be willing to go on with the Conference on the basis upon which the negotiations had been begun. That basis was to ignore the claim of Sinn Fein to independence in the hope that an alternative policy might be worked out which might induce Mr. De Valera and his friends ultimately to withdraw the claim. But if this is the ministerial attitude to-night, it makes nonsense of the Prime Minister's assertion that the telegram constituted a "grave challenge" and will leave the country in a state of bewilderment. If, as the Government who first insisted that the telegram was a serious embarrassment to the Conference, and who protested in the most emphatic manner during the week-end that the allegiance issue would have to be settled now by a plain "Yes" or "No" from Sinn Fein.

WEATHER VAGARIES.

The fires are on in almost every London house, and the winds blow shrewdly. Winter has come before Autumn, and people are rather annoyed at it. Although to-day has been bright and clear, a week ago the afternoon shade temperature touched 75 degrees; this afternoon it only reached 49 degrees, and Kew Gardens showed traces of frost. The gardeners welcome the change, however, even if it blackens their dahlias. Swelling buds on fruit trees and other shrubs but unduly require a hardy require a check. So do the insect pests, particularly the crane flies, and leather jackets which infest lawns, which have, in any case, been harmed by the summer's drought. Vegetation's recovery from the drought has been marvellous, however. Some of the Surrey Downs, which were burnt black in August, have now show new bracken 18 inches high risen among the ashes of gold.

FRUIT IN THE FOREFRONT.

Two institutions and one trade are to be thrust before the public gaze this week-end in the hope that a keener and a lasting interest in all three may usurp the indifference of which we are at present accused. The Crystal Palace, and palaces of echoes and neglect, the English apples unappreciated because so common and the local fruiterer slight but assiduous servant of the State, are combining, and on Friday, October 28th will create a record in fruiterian exhibition. The place is at the moment swarming with assistants in a turmoil of preparation, for not only is the spirit of the thing abroad, but that, too, of competition, since one gold and sixteen silver cups as well as £3,000 will be given as awards. Thousands of amateur and expert growers, all over England and Wales are sending their samples, hundreds of tubs are under loads of good things, and the air is pungent with unnameable fragrance. And the plucky will reign over all. There will be 200 tons of apples, every chest bursting reedy to indicate the claims of the English apple to be the finest in the world, and a chief section demonstrating the purity and excellence of the English recipe. And the fruiterers' The retailers in the highways and byways who cannot hope to vie with the great producers, and who haven't a single plop for exhibition? For them there is a competition in window dressing, and the next four days customers will be exalted from the status of vegetable buyer to that of critic.

GUARDIANS AS SHOPKEEPERS.

The Lewisham Board of Guardians have embarked upon an ambitious scheme, the object of which is to secure cheaper living for the unemployed in that borough. They have opened a store in the workhouse, at which out of work men and women can obtain their relief in kind at prices considerably below those ruling in the neighbourhood. The claim is made indeed that meat, groceries, and bread can, and will, be provided at an all-round average of 40% cheaper than at the shops. In this connection it must be remembered that the Guardians are in a much happier position than the tradesmen who have to add to the cost of their goods for rent, labour, rates, etc. There is no intention, however, on the part of the Guardians to enter into competition with the shopkeepers, as their goods are to be sold only to those entitled to relief tickets. The saving to the rate payers should the scheme develop on the lines expected will amount to £2,000 a year, which is equal to a 1 1/2% rate. The doors of the store were opened on October 25th, and needless to say the unemployed were quick to seize the advantage of cheaper living offered them. The action of the Guardians will, however, prove a blessing to more than the out of work. Already local tradesmen are regretting the fact that prices are reduced this week, with the result that to-day in Lewisham generally the spending power of the pound is probably greater than in any other part of the city.

THE GERMAN GOVERNMENT CRISIS.

News has been received officially in London that the German President has asked Dr. Wirth to continue in office pending the formation of a new Ministry. An analysis of the feeling in Germany which has been received here, states that the right is protesting against the German decision on the ground that it is unfair and contrary to the Peace Treaty, and is refusing to co-operate in any measure for carrying it out. On the left the feeling is stated to be one of protest with compliance, it being urged, for instance, that representatives should be appointed at once to the mixed German-Polish Commission provided for in the League scheme.

M. J. O'Brien.

A very timely and most serious subject for to-night's consideration, that of "Bridal" to you voters and citizens is the one under the classification of sanitation. O'Brien would here pay a tribute to the great work of seven years ago when, under ex-Mayor Gosling, and largely due to the earnest work and engineering skill of Mr. Bradshaw, a commissioner of that day, who spent many nights in the disagreeable discharge of his duties, the city was instrumental in abolishing the hideous system of disposal of night soil as at that time prevailing and for reducing at that time our famous night brigade down from seventeen to five. O'Brien admits we will of necessity have about three or four at least, always on duty, but he intends to see if the suggestion of improvement herein made will not be adopted. Many of our streets are marred; we will not mention either particular one for fear of dislodging the one lone house with no sewerage facilities, and the rest of the street must suffer out all the filth and refuse these charlatans make, and the patient forbearing residents of the vicinity of the sanitary stables must be aghast. If we could be aroused both by the exit and return of those limousines of the night. Give O'Brien one of your votes and he will see if they cannot put rubber tyres on those carts, that must be used, and he also promises to make whoever the plumbing inspector may be wake up to the fact that we have now a new Charter which gives no chance or excuse to owners of property to evade their duties, and let him see that they either install this necessity, in the interests of the public health, or have the house vacated. Such action would reduce the brigade to three at most, and those citizens who have installed the requirements of the law shall at last know that the house next door is no longer a menace to his health, his family, and that the rest of his night shall be undisturbed. In reference to the gathering of the ashes, this could be improved upon, says O'Brien, if housewives would help by burning all their waste paper and peelings of vegetables. This he estimates would reduce the amount collected in half; and by insisting on the Sanitary Inspector to see that the collectors do not be so anxious in overloading their carts which after falls over. Now, kind reader, can you after reading this disagree with his policy? Not Your reason bids you say that when you go to the bathroom you must mark One Vote for O'Brien.—adv.

Vaccinate Against Insanity.

"The brain of an insane person may be likened to a piano, the intricate mechanism of which is broken, rusted, or clogged," says Dr. W. Ford Robertson, pathologist to the Scottish Asylum. He shows that insanity, like various other diseases, is frequently caused by bacterial infection, and can be cured by vaccine injections. "The recorded observations," he states, "would warrant the conclusion that the bacteria that most commonly cause insanity are streptococcus pyogenes, pneum. occi, bacillus typhosus, bacillus influenzae. In the form of insanity known as 'dementia praecox' could be prevented or cured, states Dr. Ford Robertson, the lunatic asylums would be more than half-emptied in a few years' time," and he shows that dementia praecox in its early phase has been cured in six months by vaccines.

X-Rays and Cancer. RESULTS OF INTENSIVE TREATMENT. The new intensive X-rays treatment of cancer is being studied at Erlangen in Germany, by a number of British experts. The X-rays physician of a big London hospital, who has returned from a visit to Erlangen says "that although it is too soon to speak of the discovery of a cure, the results so far are most promising. People in whom definite cancer was diagnosed beyond doubt by microscopic examination of the cells of the tumour, and who were successfully treated five years ago, are still free from the disease. We cannot be sure that the growth will not recur, but their life has at least been prolonged." In Germany, this expert states, is greatly in advance of us in X-rays treatment, although behind us in X-rays photography. With this new method treatment is carried out in from half an hour to twelve hours that may take twelve months in England. The Germans have devised an extremely accurate method of measuring dosage of X-rays, and this is an important matter, for the dosage varies with the situation and depth of the tumour. The general elections in Norway gave no party a clear majority, and it is impossible to predict which party will form the new cabinet for the new Storting, which meets in February. Out of the 150 seats the Conservatives, running on an anti-prohibition platform and against the Government policy of maintaining wage-restrictions, secured 56 seats. The communists, following the Moscow programme, obtained 20 seats, largely at the expense of the Right Wing Socialists. The Radical Left, the biggest party in the old Storting, and the basis of the present cabinet, lost heavily of prohibition policy and violent treaties with Spain and Portugal, which led to the tariff war, complete closing of those countries to the Norwegian fish trade. Miss Karen Platon, of Oslo, was elected. She is the first woman to enter the Storting, though women have had the right there since 1907. I make a Specialty of Engraving French Ivory. Romance of Old Inverness.

RECALLS GALLANT PRETENDER.

It is surely a more than remarkable fact that a town which, a matter of two centuries ago, was a stronghold of enemies of the King should now-day be the scene of perhaps the most faithful Cabinet meetings in the history of Great Britain.

The story of this town—Inverness—is inextricably bound up with that of Bonnie Prince Charlie, the Young Pretender to the Crown of Scotland, and the most romantic figure in Scottish history.

It was in the old town on the shores of the Moray Firth that Charles spent many of the happiest moments of his life. And it was near the Highland capital that the last spark of the flames of the rebellion he led died out.

Inverness has been the scene of many great incidents in history, but somehow it seems to breathe, this old town, more of the spirit of the "draft days" of 1745, when Charles led his army against "Butcher" Cumberland, the English general. It is a wonderful romance, this story of the Jacobite rising.

With a magnificent boldness, the Young Pretender, as handsome and dashing as ever, landed on the west coast of Scotland, and, rallying the Highland men around him, swooped down on Edinburgh and the south.

Success followed success, and soon the handsome young rebel had reached Derby. London was in a panic; King George II. sent his jewels abroad; Bank of England officials started paying out demands in sixpences.

But the Highland army was exhausted. It fortunes changed. It suffered a grave reverse and started to retreat. Beaten but not disheartened, Charles, with great strategy, managed to lead his now greatly diminished army to Culloden, near Inverness, which seemed to have some magnetic attraction for him.

The clansmen charged the English again and again. But all in vain. The rebels were defeated, and Charles had to fly. Assisted by brave Flora MacDonald, the heroic Jacobite woman, Bonnie Prince Charlie disguised himself as a servant-girl, and hiding among the rocks and valleys succeeded in escaping to France.

The earlier rising of 1715—which met with a similar fate—started at Braemar, the scene of the thrilling Highland gatherings. But the penalties of the 1715 defeat were small indeed compared with those of 1745, when the clansmen were forbidden to wear the tartan, the feudal authority of the nobles was abolished, and the carrying of arms prohibited.

Bitter as was the defeat, the suppression of the kilt was the greatest blow of all. The pride of the Highlanders never would submit to this, and although many of them allowed themselves to be formed into regiments to fight for England, the spirit of lawlessness remained so long as the tartan was banned.

With the revival of the kilt—the initiative of the Prince Consort—the Braemar gathering came to life once more in all its glory. Since then year after year the same inspiring scene takes place. It is hard to imagine anything more thrilling than the march past of the clansmen, kilts swinging, bagpipes playing, and claymores flashing.

Anyone who had seen those mighty kilted men and listened to the heart-catching wail of the pipes, can never forget them. It is the romance of Scotland come to life.

But even apart from history, there is something about the grandeur of Highland scenery that stamps it as apart from and more beautiful than any other. Like some jewel clasping the folds of the Grampian mountains to the blue zone of the sea, Inverness has inspired more than one poet, and even Shakespeare saw fit to write about it in "Macbeth."

Even more romantic and beautiful is Moy Hall. The Young Pretender was nearly captured at Moy, but Lady Macintosh, sometimes known as "Colonel Anne," because of the spirit with which she adhered to the Jacobite cause, saved him.

C. C. C. Grand Carnival.

The C.C.C. Final Grand Carnival takes place in the Prince's Rink on Friday next, November 25th, at 8.30 and no doubt there will be a record attendance. The receipts go towards paying off the debt on their Hall, and as the admission fee is only 20c. it is earnestly requested that the public will turn up in large numbers to help the band in their effort to wipe off their entire indebtedness by the end of the year. The last Carnival was a wonderful success, being attended by 2,000 people, and those who attended have the satisfaction of knowing that their 20c. contributed on that occasion helped to make a big hole in the debt and trust that they will again turn up, together with those who have not yet attended either the first or the second Carnival.

This is positively the last Carnival for the season, as the Band are booked up with engagements for the next few weeks, and we again repeat that it is to be hoped that the public will turn up in their thousands and by their attendance they will show that they appreciate the work of the Brigade Bands who, during the twelve months in the year are at the beck and call of all. It is expected the attendance will be about 2,500 and a big increase in Masqueraders, and regardless of the weather the Carnival must go on, and the large attendance will make the Rink comfortable for the spectators, as was amply proven at the Dominion Sports last night.

General admission and Masqueraders tickets 20c. are on sale at Hutton's Music Store, and the Numbered Reserved Seats 30c., at the Royal Stationery Store. Don't miss this big final event. See Trapnell's window with prizes to pick from.

"Ruth"—A Sacred Cantata.

Everything is now in readiness for the Recital of the Sacred Cantata "Ruth" by St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Choir in the Kirk to-morrow (Thursday) evening. A splendid programme has been arranged and is divided into two parts; the first will consist of miscellaneous selections while the Cantata will form the second part entirely. The items in the first part of the programme will prove as interesting as they are varied, the choir opening with an anthem "Hail, Gladdening Light," composed by Dr. George E. Martin. Then follows his organ solo by the organist and director, Mr. Mawer, Lemmens grand fantasia "The Storm." A double quartette consisting of male members of the choir, in "The Lord is my Strength," by Thielson; Hon. A. W. Mews contributes a violoncello solo with organ accompaniment. The next number consists of the well-known soprano and chorus from Rossini's "Stabat Mater" "Inflammatus." Mrs. Harvey Small taking the solo part. Two short organ pieces complete the first part. The Recital will commence at 8.15 prompt, and it is requested that the audience will be in their seats by that time as no one will be admitted during the performance of any item.

The Big Lesson Wrigley Learned in Dull Times.

"The result of my investigation was that I signed up in the midst of the depression of 1907 for $1,500,000 worth of advertising—our first national contract and a very large one indeed for us at that time. It was, as you see, another restraint in the face of an opportunity for immediate profit.

"But for once the policy did not involve the sacrifice of immediate profits even. We really had expected it would. We were after the vivid impression we thought we could make on dealers and consumers at a time when so few people were trying to sell them, and we were willing to pay something for that. We were willing to wait for our returns. But we did not have to wait. They came generously enough even the first month to meet what had seemed an enormous first payment on the advertising, due at the end of the month, and the payments every month thereafter were entirely met out of the increase in our profits, with a continuously widening margin to spare."

Christian Brothers' Annual Collection.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—As the ex-pupils and all other friends of the Christian Brothers are reminded again of the annual collection next Sunday, will you kindly permit me to express the hope that this year will establish another splendid record in the total contributions. We need not fear, I am sure, that the collection will be a good one, for the ex-pupils and all other kind friends of the noble teachers have never yet failed to respond generously to this annual appeal, but as conditions this year with some former generous contributors may not be so favorable as before, let us hope then that those who are not so affected may counterbalance the result by the increased weight of their generosity. I know, Sir, my old fellow school-mates and all the ex-pupils who during the past 45 years have passed out of the schools, will never forget the gratitude they owe to those who gave them their early training and that remembering this, as they have always done before, the collection will again be swelled next Sunday so as to make it even better than the best that we ever had before.

Yours truly,
OLD BOY.

Enjoyable Card Tourney.

Last night a very successful and enjoyable "forty-five" tournament was held in the Club Rooms of the Society of United Fishermen, St. John's Lodge, No. 5. The Club Committee made the most ample and complete arrangements, and soon the maximum number of players were busy thumping the tables. The first prize—a fine fat goose—was won by Mr. George Buchanan, his son Hubert carrying off the second one, which was a $2 bank note. Other similar events will be held during the winter, such reunions assisting in developing a spirit of true enjoyment and innocent pleasure.

Shipwrecked Mariners Arrive.

Captain Dalton and crew of S.S. Fern, wrecked last Saturday at Western Head, St. Shotts, arrived in the city by train yesterday afternoon. From members of the crew it is learned that the ship struck the rocks at 11.30 p.m. during a dense fog. Those who were sleeping forward were thrown from their berths. All hands were immediately on deck and preparations were made to leave. The ship began to go down by the bow and shortly after midnight she was abandoned. The crew in open boats had some difficulty in getting their bearings, but fortunately sighted Cape Pine Light, St. Shotts was made and the 24 men landed safely. Only part of their belongings were saved.

The care of the teeth is now recognized as a necessity. In fact the large hospitals all over the world examine the patients' teeth and where it is possible put them in good condition before attempting a surgical operation. Experience has shown that the patient has a better chance for recovery with a clean healthy mouth than without it. This ought to convince the most skeptical that care of the teeth is requisite to health.

This efficient cleaner thereby minimizes the danger of sickness and repeatedly saves its moderate cost by preserving all rugs from wear. In one easy, rapid, dustless operation, guaranteed to prolong rug life, it gently beats out all germ-laden, nap-wearing grit, from beneath rug surfaces, electrically sweeps up stubbornest litter, erases trodden nap, revives colours and suction cleans.
