Cambon, the French ambassador, and Baron de Bunsen, the German acting secretary for foreign affairs, this afternoon signed an agreement in settlement of the Casablanca incident. All the Powers With Exception of Japan Will Have Smaller Navies in These Waters

UNREST IN INDIA.

Although there is undoubtedly a disposition in some quarters to magnify the unrest that is in evidence in India, it must be admitted that the account of the attempted assassination of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal is rather disquieting reading.

In this connection it is interesting to note that on November last, at a durbar held in recognition of the fiftieth anniversary of the taking of the Government of India by the Crown, Earl Minto, Viceroy, read a message from the King, reviewing the history of the British administration.

The British government favors the Indian movement in Turkey and Persia, and it could not very well deny the aspirations in that direction entertained by those natives of India who brought up under the British system of education.

ELECTION AFTERMATH

Commenting upon the election in Northumberland County, N. B. the Chatham News (Conservative) says: "When one is licked, it is a great satisfaction to feel that the licking is so bad that it could not have been avoided by doing something that was left undone."

The big majorities of the campaign are thus given: Alpha Verville, Malsonneuve, 4,299 Dr. Beland, Beauce, 3,500 E. B. Osler, West Toronto, 3,320 Frank Oliver, Edmonton, 2,508 Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Quebec East, 2,242 C. Marcell, Bonaventure, 1,700 Gervais, St. James-Montreal, 1,588 H. Demers, St. John's-Iberville, 2,204 Alex. Haggart, Winnipeg, 1,800 G. H. Cowan, Vancouver, 1,530 E. Proulx, Prescott, 1,501

It is said that there will be at least seventy new members in the House of Commons. There were fourteen members of the late House from Ontario, who either did not ask or failed to receive nomination.

The Canadian Courier, which by the way, is improving steadily in its character, makes a few passing comments upon the elections. It declines to take Sir Wilfrid Laurier's statement that he will never again appeal to the people as anything more than a "rhetorical flourish."

thinks that the two leaders are in a position to purify their parties of all objectionable material and says "the two leaders could guarantee us a campaign free from scandals in 1912." Referring to Lord Milner's Toronto speech it notes the great interest taken in imperial questions by ladies, and quotes one of them as lamenting the absence of great issues in Canadian politics.

The New York Times closes its review of the Canadian elections with the following sentences. "He took the view, discarded in high quarters with us, that guilt is always personal, and left individuals to present their own defenses to their constituents making no defense on the part of the government collectively."

Our evening contemporary is still keeping up the election fight. It is dissatisfied because the Colonist expressed the opinion that the Minister of the Interior will not seek another constituency and takes rather more than a column to say so.

The Kaiser is not making a success of international politics. He has contrived to get himself quits with every power, whose goodwill is worth having. A few years ago he was confident that he had isolated the United Kingdom.

A POOR DIPLOMAT

No city in the East is looking to the future with greater hope than St. John, and we know of no one who has a better right to be hopeful. It is already the winter port of the Canada.

FUTURE OF ST. JOHN.

All critics of the situation agree that seldom in recent years has France been so stirred as over the Casablanca incident, which, though it appears to latest advice, has been smoothed over. Concluding a long cable message despatched on November 6, a Paris correspondent says that the Kaiser's attitude is not as quiet and dry as the eastern frontier in better shape than for many years past to sustain an attack.

MR. HILL'S SPEECH

Mr. J. J. Hill, of the Great Northern Railway, was invited by the Vancouver Board of Trade and made a speech. Mr. Hill's ideas, perhaps it would be more accurate to say that his expression of his ideas, are more favorable to Canada than they were only a few years ago.

The announcement that the White Pass and Yukon is contemplating the building of a spur line to the Port of Horse district, is a very natural development of the situation. One needs only a cursory knowledge of the resources of that section of the province to realize that the undertaking of railway enterprises there can only be a matter of time.

Bank clearings are increasing, and there is a marked revival in the demand for building permits. In the absence of news of a more exciting character this isn't bad to take.

THE PORT OF VICTORIA.

The Vancouver World hardly acts in its pretensions as a metropolitan journal, when it exercises ingenuity and ransacks its memory to discover things that appear unfavorable to the port of Victoria.

With two score or more of polls to be taken in the next few days, the result of an election, but the indications are that the Liberals have carried Prince Albert. That constituency has nearly all its voters at the polls, and the polling places are widely scattered.

BOARD MUST HAVE THE NECESSARY FUNDS

Money For New School Must Be In Hand Before Contract Is Let

The school board will not proceed for the time being at least, with the plans of the new school which it is to erect on the site recently acquired on Chambers street. The cost of the building, according to the plans prepared by Messrs. Hooper & Watkins, architects, would probably exceed the amount of about $60,000. Out of the proceeds of the sale of the debentures issued under the authority of the $70,000 school loan, the board has now at its disposal about $22,000. It was proposed to raise funds for the purchase of two sites and the erection of the new school, the board has now at its disposal about $22,000. It was proposed to raise funds for the purchase of two sites and the erection of the new school, the board has now at its disposal about $22,000.

Must Have the Funds.

The city solicitors, instructed by the city council, has given the following opinion on the right of the board to enter into a contract for the erection of the school at a cost of $60,000 when the board has not sufficient funds on hand to meet its obligations relative to such a building. The solicitors' advice is as follows:

Gentlemen,—We have instructions from the council of the corporation to intimate to your board, in view of the fact that your board has not sufficient funds on hand to meet its obligations relative to such a building. The solicitors' advice is as follows:

Trustee McNeill, when Mr. Campbell's request was read, called attention to the former resolution of the board allotting the city school manual training class room as above. He thought that the board should insist on that arrangement being carried out. The application of T. G. Rayner to be appointed inspector of construction work on the new North End school was received and filed until it is known what will be done in the matter of construction.

Increase in Salary

Trustee Bishop, chairman of the finance committee, recommended that the salary of Mrs. Kennedy, janitor of the Victoria West school, be increased to $50 a month. The recommendation was adopted. On behalf of the committee appointed to inquire into the advisability of the continuing of the system of banking in the schools, Trustee Bishop stated that the committee has not yet had time to go through the matter and will report for further time, which was granted.

Since the first of the present month the number of building agreements in value $2,120 have been issued by the building inspector, and should this pace be kept up until the end of the month, November will make a good showing, and the aggregate value of buildings for which permits have been issued so far this year will go over the $100,000 mark.

Medical Inspector's Report

The toast of the first annual event to be given by the recently organized society. B. E. Vaughan, president of the society, presided.

Tomorrow is the King's Birthday. Edward VII. has proved himself a wise king, although the sovereign of England must obey the laws as well as the meanness of his subjects, he has great influence. Edward has used this influence to keep the nations at peace. Long Live the King.

There are complaints that the American fishing vessels are carrying off the halibut from British Columbia waters and that these fish are becoming scarce. In Eastern Canada the fisherman used to come ashore to catch cod, mackerel and other fish. This stealing of fish is a disgraceful business.

The people of Pandora Street who want boulevards and a square should have their wish granted. It is a pity that such a pretty spot as the vacant land on that street should be wasted. It might be made into a lovely little resting place where grown people could rest on a summer's day and where little ones could play.

The United States fleet visited the city of Amoy in China. It is said that the citizens did not give the battleships a very warm welcome. All the United States ambassadors went to New York to make a treaty between the United States and China. This coolness is surprising. There will probably be fuller news before next week.

The City of Victoria will sell the people of Oak Bay all the water they need but the Oak Bay Council will put in the mains and collect the water rates. All the water will be sold at a rate of one cent per gallon that next year we will all have as much water as we need. The pipes are being laid all through the city as fast as the men can get the work done.

The Indians will neither move from their reserve to another with $2,000 for each family, nor own their property as white men, voting, paying taxes or selling it. They have washed their hands of the land. Mr. Templeman declared the government would make a law to force them to part with their land.

It was quite different with some of the outdoor tricks that were played. In a village where every one knows every one else it is all very well to play check, ring door-bells or even carry off a gate if it is not broken. But if there is illness in a home such pranks may do great harm. However such tricks are going out of fashion and the sooner the better.

There were a great many children's parties on Halloween and the boys and girls enjoyed themselves greatly. The older people felt young again as they helped in the games or even played. Such happy times are few and far between. Pleasant memories behind and the more of it children can have without neglecting their work, the better. Indeed, sometimes fun is better than work.

The rains have set the electric power at work again and we have plenty of light and a better car service. That is not all the good the rains have done. They have washed the dirt and the streets. Rain and wind are the safeguards of Victoria's health. When we have a plentiful supply of water and the sewerage system is complete Victoria should be the healthiest city in the world.

The Russian parliament or duma, as it is called, has met for its second session. It is only about four years since the first duma had any share in making the laws. Before that time the Czar ruled without consulting the people. It does not seem as if much of the power had been taken from the Czar and the gradually the people will gain greater freedom and know how to use it.

One of the exports of the Philippine Islands is hemp. This has since the United States came into possession of the islands come to Puget Sound ports across the Pacific. The changes have been made and now the hemp will be taken via the Suez Canal to New York, and then distributed to the different cities. This will, it is said, be a cause of loss to western ports. News and other articles are carried on largely in the prisons.

The election in the United States is over and the Republican candidate William Taft is president. He is a good man and has done his country good service already. The president of the United States has far more power than the King of England. He has the power to make laws and his messages to congress are very like commands. Whether Mr. Taft has as much power of ruling as the Czar and the Emperor is a matter to be seen. Good servants do not always make good masters.

The Emperor William has once more displeased the English people. This time it is by allowing a conversation he had with an English statesman to be published. It would appear that this was done to convince the English nation that the Emperor William and his friends should know that when bad feeling exists the best way to change it is to say nothing but to act as a friend. The long statement that the Emperor William wrote during the Boer war is not likely to make the English better pleased with him. What they wish is that the emperor would mind his own business.

Lord Milner has spoken in many of the cities of Canada, and has said many things worth remembering. He would have Canadians feel that they belong to the great British Empire and that they must take their part in building it. He thinks that the time is coming when all the colonies will be like the grown up sons who take a share of their father's business. Every member of a firm would undertake any business without consulting the rest. If this were done, the British Empire would be wonderfully strong and great.

It is not often that a bad man gives himself up to justice when he knows that he must suffer severe punishment. Yet that is what happened a short time ago at Coeur d'Alene in Washington. A notorious robber listened to a woman preaching on the street, felt how wicked he had been, confessed his sin, and went to prison. To the young men assembled around him he declared that drink was the cause of all his crimes. For three years this man has been a high-way robber but he has determined now to lead an honest life. He will probably be sentenced to a long term of punishment but it is far better to be a good man in prison than a bad man out of it.

There are six hundred men working on the railroad between Wellington and French Creek on the Alberta branch of the E. & N. Railroad. They will be glad to hear that they are to have work all winter. Even if they do not get on as quickly or work as steadily it will be a great thing not to be forced to idle. Clearing land is slow work but the company hopes to begin to lay the rails early in the spring and then go on to build the road from French Creek to Alberta. When we read of the hundreds of thousands idle in great cities in England six hundred men seems a small number but it would cause great distress even if so many were thrown out of employment.

Thomas Greenway, formerly premier of Manitoba, died during the last week. Mr. Greenway was just seventy years old. He was one of those who worked hard to make Manitoba the great and prosperous province it has become. He was an industrious and a successful farmer. A premier of the provincial parliament, he was a fearless advocate of the rights of the province and when he became a member of the Dominion parliament his opinion on Manitoba questions was valued. He established the school system of Manitoba and put an end to the use of the French language in the province. In Manitoba, as in British Columbia English is taught in the schools and spoken in parliament. Quebec is the only province in Canada where both French and English are taught and used in the courts and in the legislature. In all free countries people may speak what they choose in their homes but in public most countries believe one language is enough.

Tomorrow is Thanksgiving Day. The children will all have a holiday and most of you will enjoy yourselves in one way or other. Yet we should remember that the day is one on which we ought to thank God for his mercies throughout the year. Victoria children have much to be thankful for. Very few during the past year have been seriously ill. None have suffered from cold or hunger. All have had healthy and comfortable homes. Most have happy, comfortable homes and kind friends. Nearly all have an opportunity of getting an excellent education. These blessings are not given because the children here are better than the thousands and thousands of children who this autumn are suffering from want. You ought indeed, to be thankful for your beautiful homes and try to grow up good men and women.

During the week Victoria had a visit from the Arctic Brotherhood. These men have spent much of their time in Yukon and Alaska and are proud not only of the northern country but of each other. And they have a right to think much of the land so rich in gold and of the men who have borne cold and hunger and weariness to open up what was long believed to be a land unfit for men to live in. It is a great mistake to think, as so many of the story books do us, when men go north they change their natures. It is only strong brave men that can stand the hardships of the north and wicked men are never strong and seldom brave. The men and women who have made Athabasca, Yukon and Alaska a part of the civilized world have done Canada and the United States great service. It is to be hoped they have enjoyed their visit and will come back to Victoria again.

The harvest of Canada is not so good as was hoped for before the threshing. Injured by the dry than was expected. The men on the new farms in Saskatchewan and the lately settled parts of Manitoba will feel this to be a great loss. Home-stealers have to spend a great deal of money buying machinery and stock and if their crops are poor in the first years there is often much anxiety, if not suffering. When once debts are paid a bad harvest is not so great a misfortune. In Alberta the average yield has been very good though even there, the early frost affected the northern districts. On the whole throughout Canada the harvest has been a good, though not a very large one. In British Columbia the fruit harvest has been abundant. The time is coming when this country will be as well known for the fruits of temperate climates as California is for oranges, lemons and other semi-tropical fruits.

But before that time there must be much hard work as well as intelligence and forethought. British Columbia boys must not expect to gain the profit if they are not willing to do the work needed for fruit raising. It is nearly a lifetime since the battle of Inkerman was fought and Vancouver Island is nearly half the distance of the world away from the Crimean peninsula. Yet they were to tell the story to the guests at the banquet. The Crimean war is a time of sad, as well as glorious memories. Perhaps the happiest thing we can say about it is that such a war would not be waged in our day and it is not likely that it ever will be again.

The thousands of brave men who were slain on the battlefield, fell in the trenches or died in the hospitals did not give their lives for some good cause or to defend their country. They fought in obedience to the command of their generals but even the generals scarcely knew more than that they must conquer. The Russians because they were their enemies. Even now it is hard to learn that caused that war. The world in this half century has learned to hate causeless strife, the noblest effort of that war was the woman, Florence Nightingale, who went to the battlefield on an errand of mercy.

The Story of Walter Harvey—Coward

(Conclusion)

Awake now he rushed to the window and through the smoke that poured from below he could see the upturned faces of a great crowd three stories down, and in an instant he knew that the dormitory was on fire. He snatched his cap and rushed to the door, but a great rolling bank of smoke met him. He slammed the door, but not until a great cloud had filled his room, and it was only by a sudden memory of a story read years before, that he felt to the floor, for there the smoke is never so dense, and crawled to the window.

He forced the sash open and stuck his head out, but by this time the smoke from below was dense and the chances of escaping suffocation hardly better. He managed, however, to get outside the window, on the narrow ledge. It was covered with little knobs of ice, and it was with great difficulty that he was able to keep his balance. He was out at last and had closed the window before him, leaning back hard against it to keep his balance. Great clouds of smoke curled round him, but with the cold, fitful wind it was swept aside every other instant and he could catch his breath.

Just as he had closed the window, a heavier gust of air blew the smoke downward and the crowd below saw him for the first time. There was an instant of silence, then a great startled cry. Everybody was supposed to be safely out.

Again the smoke covered him. His eyes smarted and a great stinging hand seemed to grip his throat. He fought hard to keep his balance, and his hands were already numb with the cold.

From below he heard mingled cries and orders. "Hold tight!" "Run up the ladders!" "Don't jump!" "A confused babel. One moment they would be shut out from his view by the choking smoke; the next he could see them, a hundred hands trying to raise the ladders, and it came to him with a sickening despair that they were across the street with two trolley wires intervening. Slowly the old ladders mounted, and then, even though he could not see, he heard a voice crying.

"You are on the wrong side of the street. Cut the trolley wires."

But there was nobody to cut the wires. The ladder was up almost to his level, wabbling and swaying in the wind, but it was thirty feet away. When he could see again, the men were trying desperately to lower it, but it was impossible to stay there until the ladder was lowered.

And so through moments of suffocation and pain, he watched the confused, frantic mob below. He could see the faces of his classmates and best friends now straining upward, now bobbing about in a desire to help him. He saw Mr. Benjamin, too, tugging at the big crank of the ladders. And all the while he saw that he could hold on but a minute more, for he heard the flames crackling in his room behind him and felt the beams grow hot.

He could see nothing to do but to wait till he was burned from behind or crushed by his fall. Wave after wave of sickening fear swept over him as he clung grimly to his narrow ledge, struggling for breath, bearing the intense heat of the window, waiting, hopeless and afraid, but waiting.

When he could see the crowd next time, his eye caught the big figure of Mr. Benjamin, forcing his way through the men about the ladders. Mr. Benjamin stopped, made a trumpet of his hands, and shouted:

"Hold on a minute longer, Walter. Wait till I get a blanket. You've got to jump for it."

Again the smoke curled round him. This time a deadly dizziness seized him. He thought he was falling and would never strike. He stiffened his body against the hot glass and held his breath. It seemed to him that the smoke would never clear again. When it did, he saw a circle of men just below him straining at the edges of a horse blanket. A silence fighter, and will attack fish five times his size. If he comes off victor, then his back glows a shining green, his side and head are brilliant gold, while his belly is silvery white; but if he is beaten, his bright colors fade, and he looks dull indeed. The sticklebacks will not allow another fish to come near their nests, which are built of twigs, grass and leaves, fastened usually in the branches of shrubs that grow in the water. After the materials are woven together the sticklebacks are built of twigs, grass and leaves, fastened usually in the branches of shrubs that grow in the water. ## SHORT STORIES

A Lesson in Grammar

In the mountainous sections of the Middle West the teachers are appointed with little question concerning their grammatical orthodoxy, says the Youth's Companion. Occasionally, however, a wave of school reform sweeps through the valleys, and these periods of intellectual discomfets that the following sentence was given: "The bird flew over the house." Accompanying it was the query: "Is 'flew' a regular or an irregular verb?"

Another teacher after another shook his head hopelessly, despite the slow, thought-inspiring question in which the examiner repeated the perplexing fact that "The bird—flew—over—the—house."

Finally, a man rose in the rear, and with the assurance of one who puts his trust in logic and a practical knowledge of natural history he volunteered a solution. Said he:

"If the bird that flew over the house was a wild goose it went in a straight, regular, or irregular line; but if it was a peck-wad that flew over the house then it went in a crooked, zigzag line, and so the verb is irregular."

All but the grammar-bound examiner, who sat in the front with this sensible and rational explanation.

Waggles the Other Day

"Things is very, very bad when they can't be no wuess!" remarked our little boy philosopher, Waggles, the other day.

Whilst he was away for his Easter holiday he amused himself by helping his cousin George to deliver the linen rendered spotless by his aunt, who did the washing for the 'A's."

Returning homeward the boys invented a game, the girls, and allowed the other to wheel him for five minutes, when the positions were reversed.

They were quiet near home when a little accident occurred. Waggles lost control of the carriage, which dashed down the hill, struck the low parapet of the bridge, and toppled over into the canal.

His aunt rushed out of her cottage and uttered loud lamentations over the fate of the "beautiful clothes."

"It's all right, aunt!" said Waggles. "The washing's delivered. We was coming back!"

"Then it might 'a-been wuss!" said Waggles, with a glance at the floating basket. "It might 'a-been my turn to ride."

Another Adventure

On one side of a cricket field in the village where Waggles spent that holiday there is a steep hill, from the top of which it is quite impossible to see what is happening at the wickets. Waggles was selected to play for the "Visitors" against the Village, and his captain thought it wise to place him in this miniature valley, where he could see the play, but not be seen by the opposition.

Waggles dutifully went, and after a long, long time he saw the ball sailing sweetly over in his direction. He caught it cleverly, and ran panting up the hill to claim the wicket.

"I've caught it," he cried exultantly to the captain, who was leaning against the pavilion rails. "Perhaps they'll doubt my word, but I caught it, honest injun."

The captain glared at him in unspeakable disgust. "You idiot!" he spluttered out at last. "Other team finished their innings half an hour since. You've caught out one of our own side!"

"I want a gentle horse for my son to drive," said the prospective purchaser. "Can you recommend this one?"

"Yes, indeed!" replied the owner; "there is not a safer horse for a boy to be found anywhere, and there is but one thing he's afraid of."

"And what's that?" asked the other.

"He is awfully afraid someone will say 'Whoa!' to him and he won't hear it," replied the conscientious owner.

FOR THE LITTLE TOTS

The Leprechaun, or Fairy Shoemaker
Little Cowboy, what have you heard?
Of the prospecting purchaser. "Can you recommend this one?"
Only the plaintive yellow bird
Sighing in sultry fields around,
Canary, chary, chary, cheese-ee?
Only the grasshopper and the bee?
"Tip-tap, rip-rip,
Tick-a-tack-too!
Scarlet leather, sewn together
This will make a shoe.
Left right, pull it tight.
Summer days are warm;
Underground in winter,
Laughing at the storm!
Lay your ear close to the hill.
Do you not catch the tiny clamor,
Busy clink of an elfin hammer,
Voice of the Leprechaun singing shrill
As he merrily pleads his trade?
He's a span
And a quarter in height.
Get him in sight, hold him tight,
And you're a made
Man!"
—William Allingham.

The Country Cousin
My cousin Alfred Williams, he
Ain't had advantages like me—
(My mamma says not to say "ain't")
Buhcause it gives my speech a taint.
My cousin Alfred, he don't know
A thing about 't's latest show,
Nor any of the latest jokes,
Buhcause he isn't city folks,
But he knows lots of things to say—
One of 'em rattles on this way:

What's your name?
—Fuddin' Tame!
Where you from?
—Down the lane!
An' one is where you hafta say:
"I saw a woolly worm today."
An' then he says, "I one it," then
You say, "I two it," then again
He says, "I three it"—an' you go
Right on, till you find you know
You say, "I eight it!" Soon's you've spoke
You see that minute where's the joke!

My cousin Alfred Williams, he
Is all the time "catchin' me,
With jokes I never heard at all,
But papa says he can recall.
For papa, one time, where he grew
To be a big philosopher,
But cousin Alfred's jokes is smart—
I'm going to learn them all by heart;
An' best of all the lot o' 'is
Is what I say that this one is:

Where've you been?
—In my skin—'ll jump out
An' you jump in!"
—Wilbur Nesbit, in Harper's Magazine.

The Tallman—A "Guess Story"
Papa had little Robbie on his knee, and Paul and Frank comfortably snuggled up on each side of him. Then Papa said:

"Now tell us a 'Guess Story, please, papa."
Papa would tell the most interesting stories about common things, like bees or kites or marbles, but without telling what they were, and the boys would have to guess what they were about.

"Well," began papa, "you know that long ago, in the country, there were tall men, called tallmans, sometimes send some man, whom he knew he could trust, on an important mission. The king would give his own signet-ring to the man, so that the one to whom he obeyed it, and so it would pass from one to another, for thousands of miles.

"You would not even have to pay the railroad fare of the men—the great steam engines would puff, and the wheels would revolve, and the train would travel on, day and night, carrying the tallman on the errand that you entrusted to it.

"When it left the train, there would be other men waiting to receive it and to carry out the commands you sent with it.

"Even away up in Alaska there are men waiting now who would tramp for miles over snow and ice for you, if you sent the tallman to them with your orders."

"Would it ever come back again?" asked Rob.

"Well, no," said papa. "Oh, yes, there is a way you could have it come back to you."

"How would that be?" asked Paul.

"Is it a penny?" asked Paul.

"No."

"A dime—any money?" asked Frank.

"No."

"The boys thought and puzzled some more, but still they failed to guess right.

"Tell us about how we could make it come back from the long journey, papa," asked Frank.

"Papa thought it was time to help them a little, so he said, "Well, if you wanted to send it to some one you knew in—well, in California, and you were not quite sure where he lived, you could send a request that if not messengers failed to find him they would send it back to you."

"Oh, I know!" exclaimed Paul. "You mean that they would send back what the tallman carried, papa?"

"Yes."

"Then, I know," and he whispered in papa's ear. "Papa has guessed it, and I'll give him the tallman's name, and he'll really 'give it up,' and he'll show it to you."

So as Frank and Robbie really couldn't guess, Papa opened the little box carefully and showed them—a postage stamp!—Ida Kenniston.

The Most Important Men's Clothing Sale of the Season Starts Friday

Men's Suits That are Worth $18.50 to $22.50 Priced at This Sale at $12.50

THE season's best clothing bargain is here for you on Friday and Saturday. We consider ourselves particularly fortunate in securing this lot of suits, as they are made by one of the very best of Canada's tailors. According to the agreement made when buying this line, we are unable to advertise the brand of these suits. If we could do so, it would not be necessary to say anything further, as these garments are well known and widely advertised. The reasons causing this offer are easily explained: "Most retailers bought in small quantities in ordering Fall goods. The manufacturers, expecting heavy repeat orders, made up large quantities in preparation. Business in the East has not been what was expected, consequently the makers have large stocks on hand. Large pay rolls make it necessary to get rid of their stocks at some price. That is how we came to get hold of this lot."

THE SEASON'S NEWEST STYLES ON SALE FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

THESE SUITS were made up after the style question was entirely settled, and represent the authoritative styles for the season. They are made up in both single and double-breasted styles—the single-breasted style predominating. They have all the little finishing touches that give smartness and style to the garment. The cloths are all new in style, and of the best quality—fine worsteds and tweeds in the most desirable colors and the latest designs. The regular selling prices on these suits would be $18.50 to $22.50, but, at this great sale starting Friday morning, your choice at $12.50.
