Germans Pick Shock Units For Assaults

Young Men Without Children and Those Who Are Insurbordinate

These Are Selected for Dangerous Operations in Which They Are Almost Certain to Face Speedy Death

French Front, July 20.-[Correspondence of The Associated Press]-Full and interesting details of the organization of the German formations known as "Stosstruppen" or shock units, indicate that the German army at the front is now divided into superior and inferior grades of soldiers...

Often part of the men of such a battalion are designated as "storm" troops, or "assault" troops. They are usually unmarried men, who are nearly all volunteers. This regulation has been drafted for the reason that whenever they are sent into action they will take kindly to the discipline of the front line.

German prisoners assert that soldiers who are insubordinate, or who do not take kindly to the discipline of the front line, are sent into the ranks of these special units destined to sacrifice themselves in the most important positions...

Until now each German army has had these shock units. Henceforth, according to the new regulations, each German army corps will have a shock unit of its own. Orders have been issued by the German high command that in certain cases each infantry brigade should have a shock unit consisting of a company and the companies may be united, should circumstances call for it, into a corps command.

These shock units are never used in the holding of a sector of the line. They go into action only when a difficult operation is to be executed. So soon as the men of such a battalion are designated as "storm" troops, they are specially instructed beforehand in the most important points aimed at in the attack, and they act as guides to their less experienced comrades.

So soon as the heavy fighting is over, the men of the shock unit still remain alive until they are sent back to their own units. The rest of the battalion in readiness to be hurled off to any other part of the line where hot work is in progress.

COACHMEN IN COURT - Ernest Starkey and Guy Parley were each fined $8 in the police court this morning for going beyond the rail at the Union station and thereby violating the law affecting coachmen. George Caplan pleaded not guilty to a similar offence. Policeman Roberts said that a woman from New York complained about the hackmen. The coachman in question did not go beyond the rail, but he did not know and paid $3 for a bottle of brandy. He gave the court a description of the man and the police and Inspector Crawford have the matter in hand.

ANOTHER LIQUOR CASE - A soldier was before Magistrate Ritchie today in answer to a charge of drunkenness. Policeman Hogg said that he noticed the man staggering about Main street yesterday afternoon and placed him under arrest. In answer to the question as to where and from whom he got the liquor the soldier replied that he had bought it in Main street from a man, whom he did not know and paid $1 for a bottle of brandy. He gave the court a description of the man and the police and Inspector Crawford have the matter in hand.

Holder acted as officials for the race.

Expect Conflict Between Russia and Finland

Helsingfors, Thursday, July 19.-A conflict with Russia is regarded as inevitable because of the action of the Finnish in adopting a bill granting independence to Finland. The socialist members of parliament assert, however, that Petrograd has its hands too full with its own troubles to attempt repression.

The Diet rejected, 104 against 87, a proposal by M. Tulas, member of the Young Finnish party, that the law as prescribed by the constitution be submitted for Russia's approval or veto.

A final vote was taken on a resolution of M. Hornberg, member of the Swedish party, the import of which was that the Diet reserve the right to break the law in case of emergency.

FINE OF $50 - IN INVALID PORT WINE CASE - Judgment Given Against G. A. Cameron, Druggist Vendor

In the police court this morning Police Magistrate Ritchie delivered judgment in the case of George A. Cameron, druggist and retail vendor under the prohibition act. The defendant was charged with selling Wilson's Invalid Port Wine to a soldier.

The court followed the points of the law involved, imposed a minimum fine of $50 or three months in jail. The court referred to the good character and reputation of the defendant and in view of this and other features of the case the lowest possible fine was imposed.

The judgment, which is an important one, as it involves the question of patent medicines under the prohibition act, is in part as follows:

The defendant came up under the intoxicating liquor act of 1916. The defendant is charged with selling liquor. The liquid in question is Wilson's Invalid Port Wine, sold to a soldier, John Bell, who drank the liquor, became intoxicated, was arrested in a hospital, and is now in the hospital for six or eight weeks.

The defendant does not deny selling the liquid in question, but he claims that he sold the bottles, one to each of the soldiers. Mr. Belyea, counsel for the defence, admits that the two bottles were sold, contending that the liquid is known as Wilson's Invalid Port Wine, and being a patent medicine, may be sold inasmuch as the defendant may keep it for sale as a tonic, not as a beverage.

The magistrate then said that the defendant admitted selling it and says he refused to sell some to two showmen who were having a party that night. They wanted it as a beverage.

This matter comes up under the new Brunswick act of 1916. We must consider the meaning, the object and scope of the act. This law in operation in St. John means that, except as provided in the act, St. John may be a town without liquor, having no taverns.

If those who visited saloons under the old act now be supplied with wine called "Wilson's Invalid Port Wine," and get intoxicated on it, it is evident that, notwithstanding the drastic measures in the act, the legislation might as well not have been passed. In law, it is not enough to say, the law having gone to such extremes, it is not to be observed; this might be a reason for the amendment of the statute, but not a valid reason in a civilized country for disobeying the law.

"Under the law over-riding in St. John, a dwelling house is the only place to have any liquor. It is the court's duty to interpret as fairly as possible the act in view of its purpose. The act of 1916 is to suppress all negotiations relating to the sale of liquor.

Mr. Tulas, Belyea, Iron and Wilson's Invalid Port Wine can be sold under the 1916 act of New Brunswick, and it is easy for people under the patent medicine act to evade the present law.

READS IN SPEECH NO HOPE OF EARLY PEACE

London Daily Mail Says Such Aspirations Knocked Flatly and Finally on Head; Other London and Berlin Views

London, July 21.-The speech of Imperial Chancellor Scheiser is regarded as a war, not a peace, speech by all the morning newspapers in their editorials. The Morning Post says the speech confirms the impression that the new chancellor was appointed not to make peace, but to continue the war.

The Daily Mail considers that no such clear and confident utterance has emanated from Germany since Bismarck's day and that all hopes of an early peace are knocked flatly and finally on the head.

The Daily Chronicle, taking the same view, attributes the chancellor's complacent view of the military situation to the temporary paralysis of Russia. It says that his language suggests that German autocracy, at first shaken by the storm of the Russian revolution, is again rearing its proud head, and, with the consciousness of renewed strength, is challenging the whole democratic movement.

The Daily News finds only a slender hope in the fact that the language of Michaelis is less offensive than that of his predecessor. The Daily Mail considers that no such clear and confident utterance has emanated from Germany since Bismarck's day and that all hopes of an early peace are knocked flatly and finally on the head.

German Opinions - Copenhagen, July 20.-The Berliner Tageblatt interprets the chancellor's speech as indicating that he is absolutely opposed to the annexations. The Vossische Zeitung says Dr. Michaelis lacks diplomatic ability and seems not yet to have found the way from his old office to the new.

The Tagliche Rundschau, while pessimistic concerning the speech, admits that the position of Dr. Michaelis is more difficult than that of any of his predecessors.

CRUISE AND ROUGH BAT TO A TIE - Chicago, July 21.-Cruise of St. Louis, has battled into a tie with Roush of Cincinnati for National League honors. Unofficial averages released today show them hitting .281. Roush, playing in seventy-eight games, five less than his rival, has driven out ninety-nine hits for 124 bases, while Cruise has stretched ninety-eight hits for a total of 103 bases.

Hal Chasen, veteran first base star with Cincinnati, is a point below the 300 class and Catcher Clarke is hitting .310. Chasen is batting .280, and Clarke is batting .310. Chasen is batting .280, and Clarke is batting .310.

Chicago, July 21.-At the result of farmers holding back their potatoes the retail price in the Fredrickton market jumped to 86 a barrel this morning. During Thursday's heavy thunder storm, Roy Yerxa of the Mouth of Keswick was struck by lightning and received unconscious for some time. He was cultivating potatoes when the storm struck and struck a fine of $50 or more. He recovered first and the horse did not revive to two hours.

MRS. GEORGE W. O'NEILL OF FREDRICKTON DEAD - Mrs. Michael Ryan of St. Mary's also Has Passed Away

Fredrickton, July 21.-Mrs. Emily L. O'Neill, wife of George W. O'Neill of this city, died this morning after a stroke of paralysis. She was aged eighty-two years. Besides her husband one son, two daughters, two brothers and one sister survive. The son is A. J. O'Neill of this city and the daughters are Mrs. Carrie O'Neill of Fredrickton and Mrs. Margaret L. Moffatt of Amherst.

The estate is being administered by the executor, Edward Stewart of North Attleboro, Mass., and Isaac Stewart of Chelmsford, Mass. The sister is Miss Ella Stewart of Haverhill, Mass.

Mrs. Martha Ryan, wife of Michael Ryan of St. Mary's, died yesterday at her home at the age of sixty-three. She is survived by her husband, one daughter, Mrs. William Laird, at home; two sons, Bert Ryan of St. John, and three brothers, all in the United States. The funeral will take place on Sunday afternoon.

NEXT TUESDAY - The case of W. H. Estey was to be continued in the police court this morning but William M. Ryan, counsel for the prosecution, asked for a further postponement until next week. This brought forth considerable discussion on both sides but the case was finally set over until Tuesday.

The new 1916 act says that neither wine nor any mixed liquor capable of being used as a beverage can be used in the city. This wine under consideration contains 10 per cent alcohol, or 32 per cent proof spirits.

This is the first case, and this court hopes it will have its effect on patent medicine.

The magistrate referred to the number of cases in Ontario and read an article headed: "Denunciation of Patent Medicine Boon." The action of the Ontario Medical Association in reference to patent medicines as a liquor was touched on by the court.

In this case the court held that anything intoxicating should be prohibited, and people who violate the law should meet penalty. Considering the character and good reputation of the defendant, Mr. Cameron, the court imposed a minimum penalty and a fine of $50 was struck.

George H. V. Belyea, who appeared for Mr. Cameron, said, following the judgment, that he was not yet certain whether an appeal would be made. The magistrate remarked that if an appeal could be made he was "just itching for a liquor case to go up."

NEW JUDGE OF PROBATES - Peter J. Hughes of Fredrickton has been appointed judge of probates for the county of York.

THE NEXT GREAT WAR

It has been predicted many times, and it is the hope of all earnest souls, that at the end of the war the wonderful energy which has everywhere been developed and directed into patriotic channels will not die but be diverted into channels of social welfare work.

But at home luxury and wealth, poverty and misery still abound. High profits and dividends are still being accumulated. After giving specific illustrations to prove that neither equality of service nor sacrifice exists, and that social conditions are full of material miseries for a great proportion of the people.

It is inevitable that the war, and the sharp contrast made between autocracy and democracy in all the appeals for national service, should be seized upon by advocates of radical social changes in the interest of the poor, to point a moral and press home a demand for an application of the same principles to remove burdens of social inequality.

Mr. Lansbury is very sympathetic in his discussion of workers who are very clearly the disabilities under which so many labor, but he is opposed to violence as a means of improving conditions. The greatest power is in the hands of the workers, he says, is in just standing still and doing nothing, but they must all stand together.

H.E. Duke Will Be Good Chairman Of Convention

Chief Secretary of Ireland Gave Up Huge Income For Patriotic Work
Boha or Smuts First Wanted—T. P. O'Connor Gives Character Sketches of Both Smuts and Duke
Washington, July 14.—The announcement that the chief secretary of the Irish convention is to be taken temporarily by H.E. Duke, the chief secretary for Ireland, apparently does not mean that he is to be the permanent chairman of the convention.

Thoughts on the War

To the Editor of the Times—
Sir,—Finish the war first. Then we will help to clean houses. St. John soldier's words which headed my article in the Times, are among the best I have read from the front. These words were created by a golden inspiration and their meaning should be drunk as pure wine.

War is out of its jungle and is running amuck in the garden of the world. Horrible, indeed, is the loss and suffering. Millions being killed; millions being wounded, millions homeless and starving. Billions in property being destroyed. Industry and agriculture being crippled. Chains of relationship and friendship broken assunder and their gold links tarnished with hatred and crime.

for Christendom, and should be carefully studied. Nobody should fail to read the page on which it is plainly written that when peace returns we must become a united people appreciating and protecting the blessings which God has showered upon our nations, or else Christendom to become a Mexico as then pass out of existence. The system of war is forcing upon the world many things which God made it possible to be practicable. A grimace is on our horizon. Civilization is trembling with fear. The future crying "My guardians, my guardian head my pleading."

When we think that war cannot be avoided, we should look to the unyielding and unrelenting nature of the globe and not to our great nations. Christendom whose people are the carriers of the earth. It is to be plain to see that it is not man's nature to kill, and that war is not the result of the soldier's nature.

Many are lamenting and saying, "We do not permit this cruel war!" I answer is plain. When children disobey their father's commands and follow that which leads to wrong, the must suffer the consequence. God a kind and loving father. To His children He gave the world and His instructions in the children's failure to follow these instructions is to be the cause of their sad plight. But punishment has power to correct, the evil reason to expect that the present catastrophe will cause all civilized people to turn to God and His leadership. The destruction of treasures, millions of maimed, the millions of weeping mothers, wives and children, the ragged and homeless orphans should impress those having eyes to hear and eyes to see.

Let us pray that the time may come quickly when peace and progress will be the aim of all, and when the principles of Christianity will have been firmly established in the hearts of all men. Yours sincerely,

Cataral Deafness Cannot Be Cured
By local applications, as they can reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure cataral deafness and that is by constitutional remedy. Cataral Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surface. Hall's Catarrh Cure acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrh Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Circulars free. All Druggists, 726 P. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Lusitania Dead Almost Forgotten

Marble Cross and Three Rough Mounds of Earth All That Mark Victims of U-Boat Savagery

Queenstown, July 8.—(Correspondence)—The newest memorial to be placed on the graves of the Lusitania victims is an artificial bouquet of flowers enclosed in a glass case, which also contains a woman's photograph and a small marble cross, with the inscription: "In Memory of My Dear Wife, Margaret Butler, Drowned on the Lusitania, Vengeance is Mine, Saith the Lord, I Will Repay." This and three rough mounds of earth are virtually all that mark the resting place of more than a thousand persons, who perished May 7, 1916, when a German submarine stunned the world by sending to the bottom of the ocean, twenty-three miles from here, the first transatlantic passenger steamer to be sunk by a torpedo.

A high official of the Cunard Steamship Company, owners of the Lusitania, visited the graves recently and deprecated the fact that they are so neglected. He said he is making a report to his company with the view of co-operating with the British government for a suitable monument, but expressed doubt if anything could be done in the midst of this world war.

Officers and men from American craft now in British waters also have made long overland pilgrimages to the graves and have given hearty support to the movement.

A correspondent of the Associated Press, who a few days ago visited the burial place in a local cemetery which is situated in a green wood on the cliffs behind this picturesque town, found grass growing a foot high over the three

When Your Color Fades

When a girl—or a woman—finds her color fading, when her cheeks and lips grow pale, and she gets short of breath easily and her heart palpitates after slight exertion, or under the least excitement, it means that she is suffering from anemia—thin, watery blood. Headache and backache frequently accompany this condition, and nervousness is often present.

The remedy for this condition is to build up the blood, and for this purpose there is no medicine can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They build up and renew the blood, bring brightness to the eyes, color to the cheeks, and a general feeling of renewed health and energy. The only other treatment needed is plenty of sunlight, moderate exercise and good, plain food. The girl or woman who gives this treatment a fair trial will soon find herself enjoying perfect health.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any dealer in medicine, or by mail post paid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville (Ont.)

The town council has just denied a request made by the relatives of Miss E. A. Scoble of Peterborough, N. H., to allow her body to be disinterred for burial in the United States, on the ground that it is opposed to the public health. Similar requests have been denied on the same ground.

The cemetery is seldom visited by any of the towns-people, who shun it because it brings back awful memories of the heart-breaking scenes enacted on that fatal May 7 two years ago.

As showing the sentimentality of these pious townfolk, it is interesting to note that the town hall, which was turned into a temporary morgue on the occasion, son, has never been occupied by anyone since, except by the town clerk. "People who used the town hall as a market place where they sold butter, eggs, and cheese have never returned," said the clerk, James Campbell. "The treasury is set back five pounds annually derived from rental space in the town hall."

Not until about two years after the disaster could the decorator and painter be induced to take up the work of house-cleaning the town hall, which is being done in the hope of coaxing back the market people, and incidentally some of the revenue of this quaint old place, which before the war owed its fame largely to its being the port of call of American mail steamers, and the fact that it boasts the oldest yacht club in the world.

No Change In Germany's War Aims and Methods

Copenhagen, July 20.—The German Reichstag has voted, without discussion, the third reading of a bill which grants a credit of fifteen billion marks. The minority against the measure was made up of Independent Socialists.

LORD CECIL'S TRENCHANT REPLY.

London, July 20.—Commenting on the speech of Chancellor Michaelis, Lord Robert Cecil, minister of blockade, said today:

"In the first place, it is a definite rejection of the formula of no annexations or indemnities. Secondly, the speech is a complete victory for the Junkers, a complete defeat for the democratic parties."

"To me it seems that the chancellor was astonishingly frank. He makes it clear as crystal that the Germans intend to carry on the war with the same old objects, the same old methods. It is well for us of the Entente that we should know how the facts actually stand, and thus the speech undoubtedly will be of service."

"It is perhaps better to deal with a frank man like the new chancellor than with Dr. Von Bethmann-Hollweg, who always cast a veil of hypocrisy around what militarist Prussians really intend doing."

ADMITTED STARVATION IMPOSSIBLE.

"One of the most startling passages in the speech is that dealing with the submarine war. Here is a complete change in attitude. The old position was that the U-war would starve out England—at various dates, which were altered from time to time. Now it is suddenly admitted that the starving of England is impossible."

"The new phrase is that the submarine war is to 'impair England's economic life' a quite distinct terminology, and a distinctly pleasant recognition of our contention that the idea of starving England is absurd."

"Perhaps you will permit a word of digression here while we are on the subject of U-boats. There has been a great deal of talk of various kinds on this subject. It is scarcely within my province to talk about the U-war situation, but I am sufficiently well informed to state definitely that as long as we deal with the submarine with proper strategy and show proper self-control there is no danger to our cause from the submarine war. To you, as an American, I can only add that we need all the help we can have, and the more anti-U-boat help we get the quicker we shall obtain a decisive peace."

Hon. Mr. Pugsley Reads Correspondence

Letter From Sir George

Member From St. John Also Advocates Better Treatment Returned Soldiers—Increase For Letter Carriers

Ottawa, July 20.—Hon. William Pugsley, on a question of privilege today, referring to a statement made by the prime minister on June 6 last, when announcing the appointment of Mr. Robert Rogers, and the Manitoba Agricultural College contracts, that the language used by him in 1909 regarding Mr. Rogers was stronger than the language used by Mr. Rogers regarding Justice Galt.

Mr. Pugsley proceeded to a general discussion of the incident of 1909 and referred to the motion made by Hon. T. W. Crother, then a member of parliament, of the opposition, that he had been guilty of conduct unbecoming a minister of the crown and should resign from the portfolio of public works.

Discussing the evidence upon which the motion was based, Mr. Pugsley read a letter sent by Sir George Foster on April 14, 1909, to the Hon. J. D. Hazen, then premier of the province, in which he stated that he would resign if he was to be appointed to the post of public works in the cabinet.

"I telegraphed you this morning re the commission report and trust you have sent me a number. As to copy of evidence, I put that in, in case you have it printed, which probably you have not. It is, I presume, voluminous. Why I did not print the evidence, I do not know. I will try to print the matter out of the house, here, as not pertinent to federal affairs. He will say that the report is not based on evidence and that he will, after getting a copy of evidence, issue a statement showing this to be so. That will be his defence. We propose to get after him here before he gets a copy of the evidence, but if by any possibility he does get it, then we need the evidence to meet him here. I printed the evidence in full, but it is in printed form for some time."

"If he gets a copy of the evidence, I will get a copy of yours. I have not seen full report, but what I have seen is to the effect that he is a member of the cabinet. (Signed) 'G. E. FOSTER.'"

One on Sir George.

The reading of this letter caused a great deal of amusement, particularly Mr. Pugsley's handling of it. It was made up by his Christian friend (Mr. Crother), and my high minded colleague, Mr. Rogers, who at that time, I believe, was in the house. The member for St. John spent nearly an hour on the matter, reading extracts from the evidence. He said that the evidence of the Landry commission, and the greater portion of the time was devoted to a general argument as to the question of order, and his right to go further than the actual point of privilege. His general argument was that where Mr. Rogers had attacked Commissioner Galt personally, he himself had attacked Justice Landry personally, and in support of his contention, that he had been unjustly treated, he referred to the fact that he was a member of the committee for the provincial government before the commission, to Premier Hazen declaring that the charge against Mr. Pugsley that when he was premier of New Brunswick bonds to the extent of $250,000 had been issued without the authority of the legislature, was false. Mr. Pugsley was proceeding to read the letter when the prime minister rose to a point of order, saying that the member for St. John had exceeded any matter of privilege and that if he read this letter there would have to be a report. Mr. Pugsley said that he had no objection to any number of replies and a discussion of the matter, but that the matter of privilege which was taken part in by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the premier, was not going to be discussed until Thursday. The speaker ordered the discussion closed.

Dr. Michael Clark, of Red Deer, also on a question of privilege, said he had the authority of Thomas MacNutt, of Selkirk, for saying that the statement attributed to him concerning a meeting of conscientious objectors was untrue. A long and somewhat desultory discussion took place this afternoon on the resolution presented by Hon. Dr. Roche, with regard to returned soldiers, which was carried on by Hon. Dr. Pugsley and Hon. Frank Oliver, the former taking the ground that while the resolution was a good thing in itself, it did not go nearly far enough and that it was a poor thing to merely give land and lend money returned soldiers, charging interest for the loan. A less vigorous criticism was offered by Hon. Frank Oliver, who suggested that it would be better to take over land held in the west and not occupied and turn it over to the returned soldiers, so that they might have better opportunities for starting their work. These suggestions were referred to Hon. Dr. Roche, who promised full consideration when the bill passed on the resolution was brought down.

The house went into committee on this resolution, when Hon. Dr. Roche explained that it would be advisable to get a report showing the unsettled lands with an easy access of the railways available for settlement for returned soldiers. He also proposed to amend the resolution so as to increase the loans to returned soldiers to $2,500 instead of $2,000 and make the terms of repayment twenty years instead of fifteen.

Called it Gold Brick.

Hon. Dr. Pugsley objected that the resolution did not go far enough. He

C. A. Clark Gives Evidence Regarding Business Affairs in Wesley Case

In the police court yesterday afternoon the case of Wesley H. Estey, charged with misappropriation of the cash book of the employ of Charles A. Clark of the City Fuel Company, was resumed.

Mr. Clark said that his business was questioned by J. A. Barry, who appeared for the defendant. The plaintiff said that he did not know where the note for $1,000 was entered in the cash book, but he did not know what happened to the proceeds or whether he was given credit for it in his business. He said that the note was given without his knowledge. He also did not know where the note for $1,000 was, and he would not swear that it did not go to his credit.

The plaintiff said that his business profits sometimes exceeded 50 per cent, and he swore that the defendant could have taken $1,000 customers and $8,000 profits. He also said that he had acknowledged in Boston that Estey had borrowed money from Mr. McGowan's office on the business.

Mr. Clark said that he had an audit of the cash book and bank made by J. B. Andrews. The plaintiff asserted that he had had heart trouble and that he had been advised by Dr. Baxter not to worry over his business. He told the court that his business was in such a state that he did not want to be bothered with bills. He did not know how much he owed, but he had had money in the bank to pay his bills without borrowing. The plaintiff said that the witness did not know the defendant personally. He said that then he had sufficient and did not have an overdraft. The witness did not know the defendant personally, but he said that he had had forty-nine checks missing from the back of the book, and he declared that he did not say that the defendant took the proceeds of these, which amounted to about $8,000. The plaintiff stated that he did not charge the defendant with the stealing of all the proceeds of these, but with the stealing of some of it.

Ignorant of Borrowing.

The witness then added that he could not say without taking time whether Estey used any of these forty-nine checks. He thought that some of these had been used but he could not say for sure. He asserted that he never knew that the defendant was borrowing money. He also stated that he did not think that Estey, just before he went away, had ever told him that he was over-drawn $2,500. Mr. Clark said that whenever he wanted that bank book the defendant would always say that it was at the bank. The plaintiff did not think that he could find a balance in the bank book for an amount in his credit, when Estey left, but he thinks that he had one when Estey took charge. Mr. Clark stated that before the defendant went away that there was not enough money coming to meet the bills, and he said that the bank thought that they had too much on their books.

The plaintiff said that he was trying at this time to sell the business to William H. Tennant. The latter had asked if he was for sale and had suggested that it be held over for awhile. Mr. Barry asked the witness if he had told Estey to doctor up the books; Mr. Clark said

St. John Officer One of Three Who Rank as Leaders

The Dominion Medical Monthly for July in its leading editorial points to the urgency of the appointment to the office of the minister of militia a well trained man. "If a man could be found who understands the army medical services, public health, and hospitals, in addition to being a military man of frigate training and experience, then, indeed could the militia and the medical services congratulate the public at the discovery of such a man."

There are but three in Canada capable for the position, it states, and one of this, indeed could the militia and the medical services congratulate the public at the discovery of such a man.

"General John Taylor Fotheringham, C.M.G., Toronto; Colonel Murray Macdonald, C.M.G., St. John; and the present of the Canadian Medical Association; Colonel Herbert S. Birket, C.B., Montreal, dean, medical faculty, McGill University; would have the confidence of the militia and the medical profession."

LABOR UNIONS OPPOSE CONSCRIPTION BILL

At a meeting held in the Odd Fellows' Hall on Union street last evening, attended by representatives of the labor unions of the city, resolutions were passed urging the workers to oppose by every means in their power the proposed conscription measure.

The matter of placing labor candidates in the field in opposition to conscription was discussed. Further action was deferred until a later meeting.

The local situation, as far as the striking plumbers were concerned, was gone into fully. The opinion was expressed that certain men were being unduly persecuted.

A committee, composed of representatives, one from each labor organization in the city, was appointed to issue a special appeal to all the labor organizations in the North American continent for support. Representatives of all the local organizations promised every aid to the plumbers.

A NEW COMMISSION

Toronto, July 20.—Sir Robert Borden has accepted the demand of Sir Joseph Flavelle, of the William Davies Company, Limited, and will appoint a competent judicial officer as a commission to make a full and complete investigation of the O'Connor report and its various sensational findings in regard to cold storage plants and profits.

Killed in Action.

Corporal D. Gibbons, of Sussex, a member of the 26th Battalion, has been killed in action. Corporal Gibbons was only sixteen years old when he joined the battalion and about the time the unit was to sail for overseas he was informed by his superior officers that they would not be able to take him to England as he was under age. With this Gibbons disappeared, and did not make his appearance again until the unit was at sea aboard the Caledonian. He had become a stowaway. He went into the hold with the unit and later crossed to France.

WIEZEL'S WEEKLY

Vol. 1—Saturday, July 21—No. 36

Ben Franklin Said:

"He that buys upon credit pays interest for what he buys."

If you don't want to take Ben's word for it, you may come to this Live Store any day that suits you best, and we will give you a convincing demonstration of the fact that—so far as shoes are concerned—you have to pay dearly for the privilege of saying "Charge It."

We are the only store in St. John dealing exclusively in high-grade merchandise, that is, on a strictly cash basis.

Our big buying, and prompt payments bring us many price and quality advantages, unavailable elsewhere, while cash selling eliminates the exorbitant expenses and inevitable losses of a credit department, to say nothing of interest lost on money charged out.

And since our aim is big business rather than big profits, we pass along to our customers every penny of the savings we make through cash buying, cash selling and low rent.

Thus it comes about we can—and do—sell the finest, known quality shoes on the market at lower prices than high rent, charge-account stores can afford to name on merchandise of equal quality.

HER 87TH BIRTHDAY

Many friends yesterday were congratulating Mrs. John V. Roberts on the attainment of her 87th birthday. She is the mother of Hon. Dr. Roberts, and lives at the corner of Main street and Douglas avenue. Her husband passed away twenty-seven years ago. Mrs. Roberts enjoys good health and is noted for a motor ride every fine day. She is naturally proud that her son has not only risen in his profession, but has had his ability recognized in the field of public life.

HE SLEEPS AT VIMY RIDGE

Comrade Writes Feelingly of the Death of Percy Clark in Famous Fight

Mrs. John Stone of Red Rapids has received a letter from Pte. Percy Clark, telling how her brother, Pte. Percy Clark, was killed in action at Vimy Ridge. He writes:

"Percy and I were great friends and we went over the top together that day, April 9, and were just going to take shelter in one of the shell holes as the machine gun fire was too heavy around us, when he either got hit by a sniper or a machine gun bullet struck him. I had just said to him on the side of this hole 'We will get in here for a minute until the machine guns let up, and as we were getting in he fell over my rifle. I turned to ask him if he slipped when I saw he was dead, he suffered no pain at all and just looked as though he had lain down to sleep. He is buried with the other brave boys who gave their lives that day on Vimy Ridge; they are all buried there and the graves are marked by white crosses very conspicuously. So long as I remain here I shall keep it nice.

"He was a good soldier and a jolly companion, he was well liked and will be greatly missed by all the boys who knew him. It seems hard at first when we see our dear ones taken away so suddenly but we have this to think of that he is away from all troubles and pain and died the most honorable and noble death a man can die, that is, giving his life for his king and country. His life was given to protect those at home in the years to come from the Hun's iron heel, to shield you and me from the well, for his talk was always of his dear old sister at home, and that morning going over to see me if anything happens me write to poor old Sis at home for she is waiting anxiously for me. His effects were all collected and turned in. I am sending you some pressed flowers from his grave."

WAS ALL DAY TASK

Drawing of Numbers in Lottery for Selective Conscription in States

Washington, July 21.—Selective conscription was put into effect yesterday when a national lottery fixed the order of military liability for the 10,000,000 young Americans registered for service.

To accomplish the result, 10,000 numbers had to be drawn one at a time, a task which began in the morning and lasted far into the night. As a result of the drawing every registrant has been assigned a definite place in the liability service list. Already 687,000 have been ordered to the colors to fill to war strength the regular army and national guard and to constitute the first increment of the national army. To secure the total 1,374,000 men will be called for examination within a few weeks, officials estimating that two registrants must be called for every soldier accepted. These 1,374,000 will be taken from the head of the liability list, every local district furnishing a fixed quota.

TURKS WITHDRAW TRAIN.

Reprisal Against Americans Going to Switzerland.

Berlin, July 21.—Dr. Achmed Emin Bey, editor of the Constantinople Daily Sabah, one of a party of Turkish journalists who are at present guests of the German government, told the Associated Press that the Turkish government withdrew the special train arranged for Americans who wished to depart from Turkey as a result of a report made by the former Turkish consul-general at New York on his arrival at Constantinople, that the American government had refused to permit Turkish students in New York to return with the officials.

"There is much feeling in Turkey as a result of the action of the United States," said he, "and reprisals are being urged in some quarters. When the break came our government offered to place at the disposal of American citizens a special train in which they might travel in comfort on their way to Switzerland. After we learned the attitude in America toward the Turkish students, the government withdrew the offer of travel accommodations.

"When the war began our government closed the English, French and Russian schools and seized their property. Robert College at Constantinople (an American institution) was not molested, however, and is still open. There are about 400 Americans still in Turkey."

CHEAP PEAS FOR SOLDIERS.

U. S. Government Buys From Cannery "Much Below Market."

Washington, July 21.—Award of contracts for half a million cases of canned peas, the entire supply needed for the army and navy for the coming year, is announced in a statement by the public information committee with the comment that the price is "much below the present market."

The government's needs were outlined to representatives of the cannery here by Herbert C. Hoover, Quartermaster Sharp and officials of the defense council's supplies committee. As a result the contracts have been distributed among concerns situated near army and navy depots.

MORE BERRIES

NOW LIKELY TO GO AWAY

Boston and Montreal to Take Late Offerings

THE PRICES YESTERDAY

Fifteen to 20 Cents in Boston, 13 to 14 in Montreal—Suggestions to Those Sending Them Away

Frederton, N. B., July 21.—The provincial horticultural department estimates that the strawberry crop of New Brunswick this season is between 500,000 and 700,000 boxes. The crop so far has been absorbed by the market without any prolonged period of low prices. St. John appears to be the only place in the province where anything approaching a glut took place. The height of the season is now past and prices will have an upward trend.

Contrary to expectation, the quantity of berries shipped to Montreal and Boston has not been large. The quantity will increase, however, as the season nears its end. The lateness of the strawberry crop in Ontario and Quebec interfered with the sale of New Brunswick fruit in Montreal and the lateness of the crop in northern New York state had a similar effect in Boston. Tomorrow will see the end of the berries from those sections and the crop from this province will have no competition. The Boston quotations yesterday were fifteen to twenty cents a box and Montreal quotations were thirteen to fourteen cents.

The experience of this year has shown that strawberries to be sent out successfully must be slightly green, well packed, the top layer placed by hand and the berries sent in smaller crates. Advice from Boston are that berries sent under these conditions arrived in excellent condition. Montreal reports that New Brunswick strawberries sold there for prices equal to those paid for the best Ontario fruit and were equal in quality. There is considered to be an excellent opportunity to develop the market further in succeeding years.

An unexpected feature of the marketing of strawberries in the Frederton section has been the strong demand for the fruit from points on the north shore. On the lower St. John River the crop exceeded expectations.

CHEERING WORD FROM SON

Y. M. C. A. Chaplain Writes of Meeting With Gunner L. C. Chamberlain

Mrs. Lillian Chamberlain of this city has received a very interesting and reassuring message from a chaplain with the Y. M. C. A. in France, telling her of meeting her son and of his present good health and welfare. The letter is as follows:

Headquarters Canadian Y. M. C. A., Canadian Corps, France, June 18, '17.

Dear Mrs. Chamberlain:

At a religious service which I conducted last evening in the Y. M. C. A. in this area, your son, Gunner L. C. Chamberlain, was present and not only indicated his interest in the Christian life, but also gave me your name and address with the request that I should write regarding his welfare.

I had the pleasure of a handshake and a few words with him. Let me assure you that he is well in health. He also assures me that "the good light" goes well in his own heart, and to win there is to win everywhere.

You have done a noble service in giving him to the country's cause. I join my prayers with yours that he may return safely and in the near future, and that during these days of anxiety and separation, both he and his loved ones at home may receive the comforting and protecting care of God.

Yours most sincerely,
JOHN MACNEIL, Captain.

With the Canadian Y. M. C. A. in France, Gunner Chamberlain went overseas about two years ago with a well known New Brunswick unit, and was transferred later to the artillery. Another brother, Pte. Gordon, is at present stationed at a headquarters section in England.

TRYING TO MAKE TROUBLE BETWEEN BRITISH AND DUTCH

German Official Much Wrought up Over Destruction of Hun Merchantmen

Copenhagen, July 21.—British seizure of German ships was denounced as "a brutal assault on defenceless merchantmen" and "a profitable act" by Dr. Kriege, director of the judicial department of the German foreign office, in replying to a question on the Reichstag. Dr. Kriege said that Germany had urged Holland to demand an apology for this unheard of violation in Dutch waters and a precise assurance that it would not recur.

Dr. Kriege said Germany was entitled to and would expect immediate restoration of the captured ships and compensation for the cargoes of those sunk, also for the wounded seamen and their dependents. Holland, he said, had already expressed regret at the occurrence and declared it would demand the fullest satisfaction. Holland further promised that the Dutch fleet would do its utmost to prevent a repetition and, replying to the German representations, said it was prepared to employ the utmost energy to obtain satisfaction of the German demands.

The German government, Dr. Kriege said, was confident Holland would act accordingly.

Prohibition Coming in Britain But Not Soon

Fish Workers Will Get Their Beer Until Hunger Pinches—But They Will Not Resist Prohibition if Choice is Between Beer and Bread

(By Arthur S. Draper)
The average workman is suspicious of what he recalls the temperance fanatic. The average workman is not a drunkard. He objects to being labeled as such. He suspects the extreme totalitarians of pushing what he thinks is his fate under the guise of war emergency.
There is a fundamental difference between intoxication and the slight loss of efficiency due to drinking. Intoxication has been probably greatly exaggerated, but loss of efficiency due to drinking is probably greatly underestimated.
I have attended practically all of the conferences of the board since the early days. I have met labor leaders in the storerooms of Glasgow, Sheffield, Newcastle and the dockers of London. I am convinced they are willing to make any compromise the government thinks essential to win the war. They have not complained of any restriction, because the government has always stated quite clearly that the restriction is necessary to efficiency, economy and tonnage of food.

SAY GERMANS FEEL THE WAR IS LOST
Polish Refugees Predict Upheaval When Soldiers Go Hungry

U-Boat Campaign Blamed—Germany Lost More Than She Could Gain, People Believe, When America Was Forced to Fight

Refugees from Poland who reached New York last week declared that underneath the surface in Germany there is a deep political unrest and a growing belief that the country lost more than she could gain by the unrestricted use of the submarine when she forced America into the war on the side of the Allies.

The Germans left us only our clothes," he said. "They drove off the live stock and took possession of all the goods in the place. It is impossible to describe conditions in Grodno, where the people are starving and every bit of food is under government control. For trivial violations of the military order Jews are beaten daily. Food prices are very high, and those who have money can eat; the rest must starve. For six months we could get no meat. Sugar, for example, is 70 cents a pound, and other things correspondingly as high."
Some refugees brought their food certificates, and in some cases their allotment was an egg a month and a lump of sugar a day. Berman said that not so long ago he went through Bialystok and saw children on the streets crying and begging for food. When he returned those children were dead of hunger, and he saw some of their bodies. Mrs. Esther Elsenberg, who left Warsaw three weeks ago to join her husband in Chicago, said:
"The people in Warsaw are dying of hunger. The death rate is 900 a day here and there and those who do not actually die of starvation are so weakened by lack of food that they fall victims to disease. Six months ago bread was 17 cents a pound. Now it is 35 cents. The fortunate get about four or five half pounds of bread every two weeks. "The Germans are sick of war. It was bad news to the soldiers when they learned that America had gone to war. They did not think she would. Though there was a strict censorship, the people learned that American troops had ar-

Canadian War Industry Preparing For Peace

Even While Munition Production is Being Speeded Up, Our Manufacturers Are Standardizing Their Plants For Making Peace Goods—Metal and Electro-Chemical Trades Grow

Evidence of how Canada has adapted and developed her industries to meet the needs of the empire is adequately indicated in some details recently brought out by Col. D. Carnegie, a member of the imperial munitions board, at a gathering of engineers.
There was still greater difficulty of getting the required machines, and toward this specialized work and new machinery were bought or old machinery adapted to the requirements of the new industry.

When this changing their factories from the arts of peace to those of war the Canadian manufacturers faced enormous difficulties. There was the difficulty of getting the required machines, and toward this specialized work and new machinery were bought or old machinery adapted to the requirements of the new industry.

There are now in Canada 650 factories engaged in the manufacture of shells; 150 are in the process of being expanded in Canada except Prince Edward Island, and there have been installed in these factories 18,000 new machines that have cost the manufacturers $85,000,000 but as a result Canada is now turning out every week 40,000 of the 18-pounder variety, including cartridge cases, fuses and propellants, etc. In addition to 400,000 high explosive shells of all varieties, a total of 800,000 shells per week.

Out of this activity has grown other, brought to the front by the far-reaching demands of this new industry. Mining has received an impetus that will be felt for all time, and great electro-chemical industries have arisen to meet the needs of the munition factories.

One of the activities creditable to Canada has been the bridge-building and structural steel industries. While these have developed outcroppings that are definitely connected with the war, yet they are devoted to the activities of peace and are establishing a deservedly good reputation. Despite the disasters associated with the Quebec bridge will be a monument to Canadian energy and ability.

One of the centres of manufacturing activity, even while every effort is being directed toward speeding up the imperative production to the highest possible limit, there is yet an undercurrent of preparation for the days when this great war industry shall find itself prepared to enter the world markets to meet a changed industrial situation with success.

RED TAPE
(The Wall Street Journal)
Red Tape is synonymous with technicalities which hinder completion of governmental contracts or actions. We read of important matters held up while official Washington huffed and hawed because papers had to be revised by this man or that department, each jealous of the other, all to the detriment and delay of the matter on hand.
That a thing can be done without preliminaries is proved by an incident in the Civil War. An old engineer was told one day a bridge must be built over a certain stream. "The major will furnish you the plans in the morning," said his superior.
The next day he was called before the commandant, who asked: "Have you received the plans for that bridge?"
"The bridge is done, sir; I don't know if the piers is finished or not," was the reply.

WHERE 3,000 CHINESE MONARCHISTS SURRENDERED

TEMPLE OF HEAVEN Peking

The Temple of Heaven, Peking, where 3,000 of the Chinese monarchist troops of General Chang Hsun surrendered to the victorious Republican forces. General Chang Hsun endeavored to replace a Manchu emperor on the throne of the Celestial republic. Republican forces invaded Peking, the forbidden city, and soon put the monarchists to flight and forced General Chang Hsun to take refuge in the Dutch legation.

until the Germans entered Wilna. "From what I have seen of the Germans," he said through an interpreter, "they agree that the war is lost and their only hope is to save something out of the wreck. They fight on because the soldiers are held under strict discipline and because they are urged on by their patriotism. The food situation is troubling Germany more than anything else. German hopes were centered on Russia, believing they could conclude a separate peace with the Russians, obtain from them a food supply and then turn on the remaining enemies.

The German soldiers are sorry that America is in the war, not because they fear the military power of the American, but because America is in a position to shut off their supplies. The Germans do not hate America, and they do not want to fight her. There can be a revolution when only the women and children and the men necessary for the defense of the home are left. The soldiers have plenty to occupy them, and besides the soldiers are well fed. There may be trouble when the soldiers go hungry.

Chain Berman, merchant and teacher of Grodno, Poland, has come to America in hope of finding his wife and children, from whom he became separated when the Germans entered his native place.

"The Germans left us only our clothes," he said. "They drove off the live stock and took possession of all the goods in the place. It is impossible to describe conditions in Grodno, where the people are starving and every bit of food is under government control. For trivial violations of the military order Jews are beaten daily. First Submarine Away Back in 1620

It Was the Device of a Dutch
Physician

King James I of England Said To Have Made Trips — Diving Bells
and Plungers

The submarine is much older than the German empire, and the credit of being the first sovereign to make a trip in one is given to James I of England, a monarch who has generally been represented as a man of more than ordinary timidity. Doubt has been cast on the story, but whether it is true or not that James actually made a trip in a submarine, it is interesting to recall that one of James' friends did undoubtedly construct the first practical submersible boat recorded in history.

At Siege of Tyre Alexander the Great is said to have employed diving bells at the siege of Tyre, 333 B.C. An Arabian historian named Bohaddin, who lived about 1150 A.D., relates that a diver entered Ploemais during a siege by means of a submarine apparatus. An invention for descending into the sea was heard of at Toledo in 1598, and Charles V. is said to have interested himself in it. Forty-two years later an Englishman, William Boone, was credited with inventing "a plunging apparatus" similar to a device produced nearly 200 years later by one Symons, which was galley shaped, with a dome-like roof but differing in the manner of submersion. Boone's plunger was submersed by contraction of the hull through the insertion of hand vices, which reduced its volume, while Symons made use of leather bottles, which he filled with water. Magnus Pegolius in 1605 made a similar device, which was regarded as a marvel of its time.

Van Drebel's Device According to Allan H. Burgoyne, F. R. G. S., "the honor of having constructed the first submarine boat undoubtedly belongs to Cornelius van Drebel, a Dutch physician. His first submarine was made in 1620, when he built and launched a navigable submersible boat, and so successful did it prove that he had two others constructed on the same plan, in the larger of which James I, of whom Van Drebel was an intimate friend, made a lengthy trip. These early craft were built of wood and rendered watertight by stretching greased leather all over the hull. The following is from a description of the largest: She carried twelve rowers, besides passengers, and made a journey of several hours at a depth of from twelve to fifteen feet. The holes for the oars were made to hold water by leather joints. Van Drebel accounted his chief secret to be the composition of a liquid that would speedily restore to the troubled air such a proportion of vital parts as would make it again for a good while fit for respiration. The composition of this liquid for enabling air to be used again was never made public. Van Drebel died in 1634 without having completed his experiments, leaving no document relative to his work on the subject.

The Pure-Air Problem According to the Abbe de Haute-fueille, who some years later published a pamphlet on the art of breathing under water, there was no liquid employed. "The secret of Drebel," he says, "was in an apparatus which consisted of bellows, with two valves, and two pipes coming on to the surface of the water, one bringing pure air down and the other conveying the foul air away." Van Drebel constructed his boats with two bottoms and submerged them by filling the space between the two with water. He conducted his experiments on the Thames and is said to have made a trip under water from Westminster to Greenwich, a distance of about ten miles.

Commander Murray F. Suter of the Royal Navy, who has written of work on submarines, while giving full credit to Van Drebel for his submersible, is inclined to doubt that it was practically navigable under water. As to James' trip, after referring to the king's reputation for timidity, he says: "This is extremely doubtful, as even with submarines of the present time people who are timid would scarcely be keen for facing this somewhat unusual experience. There can be little doubt, however, that James inspected and watched with great interest a craft rowed with the top of the hull on the water, or just under, occasionally, as with the scale devices then available an even depth line would not have been maintained."

Its Utility Forecasted In a work entitled "Mathematical Magic" published by John Wilkins, a brother-in-law of Cromwell, in 1648, there is a reference to Van Drebel's submarine, which he calls the "Ark," with the following curious exposition of its possibilities: "It is not easy to recite the many advantages of the Ark to the nation. First and foremost, it is private. A man may go to any part of the world invisible, without being discovered or prevented in his journey. Motion will be safe from the violence of tempests, which never moves the sea more than five or six paces deep. They are safe from pirates and robbers, from ice and great frosts, which are such deadly foes to us in our passages toward the Poles. One is also free from the uncertainty of the tides. It may be of great advantage against a navy, enemies who by this means may be undermined and blown up. So too it may be of great use for the relief of places besieged by water, to convey into them supplies, and also for the capture of a place that is accessible by water.

Submarine Exploration "It may be of unspeakable benefit for submarine experiments and discoveries. We can compare the swiftness of ascent of bladders and corks with the rapidity of descent of stones or lead. We may explore subterranean passages and caverns. We may study the nature of fish, and we may catch them by luring them with lights or by shooting them with guns put out of the ship by bags. And fish are important, for they give the occupants of the ark the oil they require for dressing meat by lamps. Fresh water for the occupants may be got from the pure springs at the bottom of the ocean. But, above all, the discovery of submarine treasures is more desirable not only in regard to what hath been drowned by wrecks, the several precious things that gush there, as pearl and coral mines. Some colonies of people may inhabit the vessels, having their children borne brought up without knowledge of the world who could not choose but by association with strange contrasts upon the recovery of the upper world."

DUNLOP TIRES

What "Dunlop" Means

PEOPLE never speak of over-production in Quality, yet we might "trim down" "Traction" or "Special" and conscientiously sell them to you as good tires. But we could not still call them "Dunlop." That word in tire value means more than merely making a tire. It means a reputation for superior tire-making that embraces nearly a quarter of a century—a reputation which was obtained only by endless energy, and is maintained only by ceaseless vigilance.

Kind of Peace—Which German
People are Told is Yet Possi-

Flagging Spirits

Millions of Germans Will be Deluded, to Revive Their Hopes,
Until Prussia is Defeated in the Field

(By Lovat Fraser.)
The kind of peace which the demented German populace is still being taught to expect is the peace Germany has always wanted, and it is a peace which will give Germany the whole earth. Germany has one set of peace terms for the pacifist dreamers of Britain and other countries, but quite another brand for home consumption.

There has recently come into the possession of the Daily Mail an extraordinary pamphlet which is now being circulated broadcast throughout Germany. It is the work of four government-inspired professors, and is in every German city. Its title is "Germany's Future," and it defines the terms of the "Hindenburg Peace," which most misguided Huns suppose to be at hand.

The pamphlet has received the official approval of the Prussian Minister of War, General Von Steis, and the Munich Post says that its circulation "enriches" the hands of military and civil officials.

The whole scheme is an elaborate device to revive the flagging spirits of the German people. The point for us to remember is that until Prussia is defeated in the field millions of Germans will continue to be deluded by such methods.

The German chancellor told us to "look at the war map." The British public may be advised to look at the pamphlet and reproduced herewith. They show us the real German answer to the Russian formula of "no annexations and no indemnities."

The German wishes.

One map discloses the German idea of Europe as our foes wish to transform it when peace arrives. Nearly all Belgium, including the mouth of the Scheldt, is to remain in their hands. Professor Gruber, one of the authors of the pamphlet, goes even farther than the map. He wants all Belgium, and the northern part of the Pas de Calais, with Dunkirk, Calais and Boulogne. There must be no Channel tunnel, he contends. That portion of north-eastern France which includes the Lorraine fields must also become German. On her eastern front Germany is to absorb Poland and Courland and to acquire preferential domination and sovereignty over an immense area of western Russia, stretching from Finland and Archangel to Odessa, and extending eastward through the Caucasus to the Caspian. Petrograd is to be Germanized. The Black Sea is to be a German lake. Austria-Hungary, which will really be an appanage of the Hohenzollerns, obtains all the eastern shores of the Adriatic, including a third of Serbia, and all Albania. The plant Hapsburgs also receive the pleasant little gift of Southern Roumania. Bulgaria is to be rewarded with two-thirds of Serbia and the Dobruja.

Do not treat this grotesque sliding up of Europe as a madman's dream. Remember that the Germans believe in it, that the Prussian minister of war endorses it, and except on the Russian front, the German armies hold nearly all the territories thus earmarked. Nothing but the most crushing military defeat can smash these megalomaniac pretensions.

Turn now to the other map, which shows the official German conception of the world beneath the sheltering wings of the German eagle. Observe the whole of tropical Africa, exactly as General Smuts warned us. She proposes to establish protectorates over Morocco and Tunes, and intends to seize British Somaliland. Turkey is to reconquer Egypt and Tripoli and the Sudan. India, apparently becomes "a unified national organism with her own aims and objects in life," though we can imagine how long the Prussian wolves would spare such an unprotected heifer as Hindustan. Russia is graciously given all Persia. There are some discrepancies between the two maps, but I have explained their principal features. One notices with thankfulness that Canada and Australia are mercifully left unannexed. No attempt is made (at present) to dispose of the sun and moon and stars. The African Colonies?

The difference between the German map of Europe and the German map of the world is that in Europe much in Africa the Germans have been everywhere defeated. Yet there are radical newspapers and reviews in this country which are already imploring us to return to Germany her African colonies.

But the wholesale spoliation of territory is only one phase of the "Hindenburg Peace." The allies are to pay Germany five billion nine hundred million pounds as an indemnity, and the German national debt is to remain at the pre-war figure. As the allies cannot pay so much cash, Great Britain is to hand over half of the English mercantile marine, part of the Royal Navy, and enormous quantities of food and raw materials. The Russian districts which pass to German control are to be populated wholesale with German settlers. With all her territorial extensions Germany will soon become self-supporting in the matter of food. The Russian Ukraine alone produces twenty million tons of wheat annually. There will be a trade and fiscal alliance throughout all the regions in which German influence is to become supreme. With a great German-African colonial empire and a Turkish Egypt, Germany will be assured forever of her supplies of cotton, rubber, palm oil, cocoa, hemp, and other commodities. By demanding half the allied merchant vessels, Germany will attain mercantile supremacy at sea. She will be in perpetual possession of all the coal and iron and oil she requires, and she seeks to safeguard her domination of the Old World by expelling England from the Mediterranean.

I have given only the merest outline of this frenzied vision of Macht-Politik. I have made no allusion to the innumerable diagrams, the masses of figures, the arguments addressed to German cupidity and greed with which the pamphlet teems. We know full well that these phantasms can never become realities, but the German masses with their drugged imaginations and their brains warped by a defective diet think otherwise. They are told that the submarines will bring about Great Britain's downfall, that all these things will come to pass if Germany holds out they believe what they are told, and they are holding out.

The pamphlet was issued after the Russian revolution began, but before the United States entered the war. The writers forgot one factor. They forgot the United States. No revised edition has been issued to explain that ten million young Americans have registered for war service, and are ready to fight against the Germanization of this planet.

The German schemes will be blown sky-high like the ridge of Mesinas, but this little pamphlet is more significant than many pacifist conferences, for it tells us what the Germans and their war minister are really thinking. We know now what is meant by "The Hindenburg Peace."

Gallant Speech
"Mary Anderson," said a critic, "has temporarily returned to the stage to play for the benefit of the soldiers."
"She is as beautiful, or almost as beautiful, as she used to be. I dined with her last year at her charming English residence at Broadway. During dinner she complained that she was growing old."
"Last night before my mirror," she said, "I counted four gray hairs."
"Nonsense," her husband, spoke up: "My dear," said he, "as long as gray hairs can be counted they don't count."

The Transformation

Right in the heart of the great city of Toronto, in the centre of the principal business district, close by the cross-roads of main traffic, stands the "second longest bar" in all Canada. Observers say they used to count hordes of men entering this stronghold of the Traffic. Were the frequenters of the bar better men when they came out?

On September 16th, 1916, Prohibition went into force in Ontario, and, of course, the bar lost its license. On the 16th of April, 1917, the old bar was busier than ever! But what an arresting, beautiful transformation! Would that you and your sons could have been there to see the sight. The old bar-room was a bevy of flowers. Fifty fair ladies served refreshments to Toronto's most prominent citizens and their wives, and not one of them all but was proud to be seen in the old barroom.

The aching, worrying hearts of the army's mothers are relieved now when they see their sons enter this building—for the old bar is helping to save men now instead of ruining them.

The hotel is now the "Y.M.C.A. Soldiers' Club," one of the Young Men's Christian Association's long chain of clubs, marquees, huts and "dug-outs" extending from Vancouver to the firing line in France—those helpful sentinel-posts that safeguard our precious soldier men and boys wherever soldiers are congregated. To the Y.M.C.A. Canada owes a debt of gratitude she never can adequately repay.

Like New Brunswick, the Traffic in Ontario has the opportunity, after the war, of putting Prohibition to the test at the polls. But Prohibition in Ontario is being enforced, and the old strongholds of the Traffic—the long bars we mean—are one by one being turned to useful purposes. Many of the hotel buildings that depended for existence upon bar trade are now devoted to commercial enterprises—constructive instead of destructive.

Does New Brunswick want to return to the destructive license system, and again be a partner in the old firm of John Barleycorn and Company, Limited?

Or does New Brunswick want to maintain Prohibition for ever? If so, Enforcement must be province wide, must be both strict and effective.

Help to Enforce Prohibition

Every man and woman in this province shares the responsibility for the proper enforcement of Prohibition—not the officers of the law alone. Your duty is clear.

The Studebaker Car
A Safe Investment

STUDEBAKER cars are built in Studebaker factories at Walkerville, Ontario. They are built with full knowledge of Canadian roads and conditions throughout the Dominion. The men who build them are skillful, trained mechanics.

Their work is carefully supervised by the most expert engineers in the automobile industry.

The materials used are tested and proved in the great Studebaker laboratories.

Many materials have been developed by Studebaker solely for Studebaker purposes.

No car at any price uses higher grade steels than Studebaker. Studebaker uses drop forgings instead of castings at every possible point—this insures lightness and great strength.

The Studebaker motor has been developed by four years' experience with the same basic design in the hands of thousands and thousands of owners in every part of the world. It is an evolution, not an experiment.

It is the most clean cut, accessible motor you ever saw.

Its valves are noiseless and do not require frequent lubrication. It is probably the most powerful motor ever used in a car of such light weight as the Studebaker car.

Its power is free flowing and flexible. Its response to the throttle is instant.

It is very economical in its consumption of gasoline.

The Studebaker electric system is simple, accessible, never failing. It is the best electric system that the highly organized skill of Studebaker and Wagner engineers working in close harmony could devise.

All wiring is easy to get at—all wires are protected from grease and damp by flexible steel conduits.

No matter what the climate the Studebaker starter never fails. It exerts a cranking torque equal to two hundred pounds. It always starts the motor.

Studebaker cars are big and roomy. The front seats are individual and form-fitting, adjustable forward and back to all leg lengths, the one next the driver is reversible—its occupant may face the tonneau if desired.

The tonneau seat is 48 inches wide—the ideal width for a five passenger car.

There are two auxiliary seats, arm chairs in fact, stored under the tonneau seat, enabling you to carry extra passengers in comfort if desired.

These chairs are standard in both FOUR and SIX cylinder touring models.

All Studebaker upholstery is of genuine, high-grade, hand buffed leather. Studebaker doors are wide opening—easy to enter or leave.

These are only a few of the qualities that make the Studebaker car the great value car of Canada today.

No other car at anywhere near the Studebaker price offers them all.

You owe it to yourself to let us prove in an actual demonstration the quality and value of the Studebaker car.

We are at your service at any time.

There will be no change in Studebaker models this year, but the increased cost of materials and labor may force Studebaker to make an advance in prices at any time without notice.

Alleged Profits of The William Davies Company in 1916 on Bacon, as Indicated by Department of Labor to be Five Cents per Pound, Untrue: Actual Profits Two-Thirds of a Cent Per Pound

THE statement issued by the Department of Labor concerning the business of The William Davies Company Limited has been given widespread circulation throughout the country and provoked public unrest.

Whatever the technical wording of the report was, the effect has been that the newspapers have published that "the profits on Bacon alone" of this Company "for 1916" were about "five millions of dollars." This interpretation of the official report is not surprising in view of certain statements that the Commissioner of the Cost of Living makes. The Commissioner is reported as saying that "There were two individual cases of profiteering in 1916 and that had these cases occurred since the passage of the cost of living Order-In-Council, he would consider it his duty to recommend that the facts be laid before the Attorney-General for consideration as to their criminality." The situation created by such erroneous and damaging statements is serious as emanating from a Government official, from whom one looks for not only accurate statements but correct conclusions.

The William Davies Company, being a private concern, has followed the practice of all private corporations, except when it made a bond issue in 1911, in that it has not published reports of its assets and liabilities or profit and loss. The present circumstance, however, in which a Government Official has led the public to false conclusions, makes it advisable for this Company, for both the public interest and its own interest, to publish particulars of its business as well as point out the error of the statement of the Government Official.

For the last fiscal year ending March 27th, 1917, The William Davies Company bought and killed 1,043,000 head of Live Stock (Cattle, Hogs and Sheep). This, plus purchases of outside Meats, produced 160,000,000 pounds of Meats. The Company handled 6,550,000 pounds of Butter and Cheese, 5,650,000 dozens of Eggs, and manufactured 26,500,000 tins of Canned Goods. The net profits on these were .68 cents (or two-thirds of a cent) per pound on meats, 1.04 cents on Butter and Cheese, 1.04 cents per dozen on Eggs, and .47 cents (or slightly less than one-half a cent) per tin on Canned Goods. These profits include profits on all By-Products derived from these accounts.

During the year the Company served at its retail stores 7,500,000 customers, the average purchase of each customer was 35c, and the net profit upon each sale was 5-8 of 1 cent. The turnover of the Company from all its operations for the last fiscal year ending March 27th, 1917, was $40,000,000. The net percentage of profit upon this turnover, after deducting war tax, was 1.69 per cent, or including war tax 3.45 per cent.

The William Davies Company has assets of $13,385,000, of which $3,865,000 is tied up in fixed investments. To provide the necessary facilities for the increased volume of business the Company expended $750,000 in buildings and equipment during the year. Companies of other character present no more reasonable statement of profit and loss based upon the investments made in the business.

The William Davies Company offered to the Imperial authorities, as well as to the War Office Service (which represents the Imperial authorities in Canada) to place the output of its Factory with respect to Bacon supplies, Canned Beef and Pork and Beans at the service of the authorities, on the basis of cost plus an agreed percentage. These offers were successively declined as the authorities evidently desired to purchase in the open market, and on this basis The William Davies Company has secured War Office business by open competition with the world.

Respecting the Report of the Commissioner on the Cost of Living:—

Last Winter the Commissioner, under authority of Order-in-Council, required packers to submit statements under oath for some years back and up to December 1st, 1916, of incoming stocks of Meats and the cost of such, as well as statements of outgoing product and the selling value. This Company represented in writing at the time that the information as specifically required was not in accordance with Packing House Accounting methods, and invited the Commissioner to send an Officer to the Head Office of the Company to examine the books for any information desired, and to secure a viewpoint as to the best way of collecting data which would be of use to the Government. This offer was declined, and there was nothing to do but fill in the information required as literally as we could determine it. For example, there was no recognition of the fact that a raw product may enter a factory under a specific classification and leave the factory as a finished product under some other classification.

We submitted a series of accurate figures based upon our interpretation of the official requirements which made no provision for charges of any description other than incoming freight and unloading charges to be included in the cost or to be deducted from the selling price. There was nothing in the report which could be read so as to determine a profit and loss statement. The very fact that with only a statement based upon cost of raw products and value of sales in Great Britain a Government Official has deduced "Large margins," "Profiteering" and "Criminality" if it had occurred since the passage of a recent Act, shows too dangerous a trifling and incapacity to be permitted to deal with any important situation. The statements of this Company have been treated by the author of this report as if the outgoing product was identical with the incoming product, and from the series of reports he has singled out two items—the Bacon and Egg reports—and from them deduced an erroneous "margin" which the newspapers have interpreted as "profit." The author of the inquiry shows a strange lack of even a fundamental knowledge of simple bookkeeping and a dangerous inability to co-ordinate figures. The following are specific and outstanding errors in the report:

The principal item that is causing excitement deals with cold storage Bacon. The term "cold storage" is not defined, and the public is allowed to make its own definitions. As all Bacon in a packing house is under refrigeration it is really all cold-storage, and therefore this Company's figures of cold-storage Bacon represent the complete quantity of Bacon handled in its entire Plant, whether in freezers or in process of cure for immediate shipment. That some Companies inter-posed cold-storage product as "freezer" product only is evidenced by the smallness or entire lack of figures on the Bacon list for some Plants, indicating that many Firms did not submit statements of their complete stocks, as did this Company. An Official of this Company pointed out this cold-storage distinction to Mr. O'Connor and Miss McKenna in Ottawa a few weeks ago, and the failure to make the distinction after having had it pointed out evidences lack of desire for accuracy of the real information desired.

It is true The William Davies Company, in 1916, exported 97,791,000 pounds of Bacon, but we do not know how the margin of 5.05 cents per pound is arrived at by Mr. O'Connor, as there were no figures to justify such a conclusion. The probabilities are that the margin is arrived at by taking the average cost per pound of incoming product from the average selling price per pound of outgoing product. This may be a rough way of estimating the gross margin when dealing with small figures, but when dealing with figures the size that Mr. O'Connor has to deal with, a very small fraction of a cent per pound of error makes a very important difference in the total, and one must be careful to make sure that the outgoing product is the same finished merchandise of the incoming product reported on.

Allowing it to pass, however, as a rough estimate, we wish to point out—(first)—the inquiry of the Commissioner allowed only for incoming freight and unloading charges, and made no provision whatsoever for operating charges of any kind, such as labor, curing materials, refrigeration, et cetera. Such actual charges on the 97,791,000 pounds exported were $1,162,000—or 1.2 cents per pound. This amount covered all charges up to the point of placing the Bacon on cars in a packing-house. In addition to this was the actual cost to land and sell this 97,791,000 pounds in England after leaving the packing house, which involved charges of 2.9 cents per pound—or $2,836,000. This 2.9 cents per pound included inland and ocean freight, landing charges, war and marine insurance, cables, and selling commission to agents. The ocean freight and war risk alone would make up 2.4 cents of the charge of 2.9 cents per pound. This 1.2 cents, plus 2.9 cents—a total of 4.1 cents—must be deducted from Mr. O'Connor's margin of 5.05 cents per pound, leaving a margin of .95 cents, or slightly less than a cent per pound, which still has to be reduced because of the error of premises and because of further factors which have to be considered to determine net profits.

It is quite evident some of the other packers did not show selling values in the country in which the goods were sold—a proceeding quite proper, as the forms submitted to be filled in were indefinite and ambiguous, thus permitting without charge of evasion a variety of interpretation as to the information required. It is thus possible that of all the figures submitted by the different packers that no two sets of costs and sales prices are determined at the same common point. It is this difference of interpretation of what was required that accounts for the difference of the alleged "margin" made by the different companies. Common conclusions, however, have been drawn by the author of the report from varying bases of premises.

The figures of the Egg business were submitted on the same basis as Bacon, and similar deductions must be made.

(Second)—The above margin is further reduced in that the author of this inquiry singled out the Bacon figures as an item in which the selling price shows an alleged improper advance over cost, but he did not give us credit for the statements of other products, of which figures were submitted, the selling prices of which were under cost. The reason of this was that through failure to inquire the Department entirely overlooked the fact that product may come in as pork and, through the process of manufacture, go out as Bacon, or, in another instance, enter the factory as beef and go out in the form of canned meats; for example, much of the product which came in as pork, and which was entered on the pork sheet submitted to the Commissioner—about which he makes no mention—was cured and left the factory in the form of Bacon, and was, therefore, entered on the outgoing side of the Bacon sheet—the result is that the Bacon sales are increased by this amount over the incoming stocks of Bacon, and, likewise, the sheet showing sales of pork is reduced by the amount that went out in the form of Bacon. If the Department takes one set of figures that show favorable to the Company they should take another set of figures that show unfavorable, as the principle in either case is the same, and failure to do so looks as if the author of the report was exercising more enthusiasm than sound judgment in his investigations.

(Third)—It is queried in the report, that "if the margin of 3.47 cents," alleged to have been made in 1915, "was satisfactory, why was it necessary to show increased margin in 1916?" Assuming again for the moment the soundness of the premises in asking such a question based on an erroneous "margin," it will be found that the increased margin is chiefly absorbed in increased ocean freight rates and war risk insurance in 1916, of which apparently the author of the report was in ignorance.

The Company does not challenge either the legal or moral right of the Government to investigate business enterprises when public interest directs such an investigation should be made. If an investigation of the packing and meat business is ordered, the Company will place at the disposal of the investigating committee, if it is considered they can render any service which will be of value. The Company has not now—nor at any time during the fifty years of its operation—anything to conceal in method or practice of carrying on its business. It does, however, claim the right to conduct its export business without abusive comment from Government civil servants—especially when the conclusions drawn from the data asked for are improper and false.

One of Canada's chief export industries is the packing business. It is essential to the live stock industry, and, along with other export industries, it maintains the financial stability of this country and should, providing it is on a sound basis, receive encouragement and not slanderous abuse. In view of the publicity given to the report of the Commissioner on the cost of living, the Company demands the same publicity in having an official Government investigation of this report to determine the truthfulness or untruthfulness of its conclusions. We do not seek public consideration as a company, but we do say that untruthful official statements, or statements the effect of which is to create an untruth, adversely affect the live stock industry of this country, which is so valuable and essential a wealth-producing power and, in the long run, are harmful to the very people that the statement seeks to benefit.

If the passing out of existence of a corporation such as The William Davies Company, or if nationalization of packing houses would materially and permanently reduce food prices, then in view of the present world tragedy it ought to be consummated without delay. The fact of the matter is, however, that with millions of people in Europe turning from producers into consumers because of war, and the tremendous destruction of food products incident to war, there is no remedy for the high prices of food while such conditions last, except the remedy of thrift and increase of production.

Long before there was talk of a Food Controller in the United States or Canada The William Davies Company urged the Government at Ottawa, in writing, to appoint a Food Controller with full power to do what he saw fit, as we realized at that time the upward tendency in the price of food commodities unless checked by official effort. At the most a great deal cannot be done in reducing food prices while currency is inflated and until the scale of prices of all kinds of commodities declines also. What can be done can only be done by a Food Controller. We wish to point out that nothing at all can be accomplished unless the data secured are accurately and clearly made and the deductions therefrom sound. Only public harm arises from dangerous incompetency in the haphazard collection and careless use of important figures.

As far as The William Davies Company is concerned this terminates all public statements of the Company, and it will pay no more attention to speculative and haphazard statements made either by newspapers or civil servants. The only further statement that will be made will be at an official investigation.

Umpire Bating Breaks up Game

St. Peter's League Fixture Thrown Into Discard on Account of Unsportsmanlike Tactics

The game in St. Peter's baseball league last evening between the Shamrock players and for a time it looked as if several runs would be made. In the last of the first Maples came down strongly and placed two runs across the plate. They succeeded in blanketing their opponents in the second and adding two more runs to their credit. At this stage of the game some of the Shamrock players, apparently fearing defeat, started to protest every decision of the umpire, Walter Dunlop, who had been giving fair and impartial decisions. White Gibson, apparently angry at the umpire's decision, decided that they could render decisions as well as officiate in their respective capacities and went up to the umpire and told him that they had better umpire themselves and walked off the field. After some delay Michael Howard essayed to umpire, but it would have been much better if he had stayed on the Shamrock's bench. He may have given his decisions according to his judgment, but they were declared void by the umpire. Gibson and McIntyre apparently were satisfied, but had they been good sports they would not have permitted such decisions, even though they were in their favor. A bell which was struck foul by fifteen feet was called fair by the umpire and McIntyre left the field, followed by his colleagues. This occurred at the first of the fourth inning and therefore the game was thrown into the discard. It was regrettable that Billy Howard was not on the job. He may make mistakes once in a while, the same as the best arbiters in the world, but on the whole his decisions are fair and impartial. Next week the Thistles and Shamrock will meet three times—on the 28th, 29th and 30th, with indications there will be "something doing."

Montreal May Lose Franchise

That the club may finish the season in Norfolk, Va., following an offer from that city on Saturday, is quite possible.

The Norfolk offer is to have the Montreal club finish the season there, and the other teams in the league could arrange to make the jumps satisfactorily to the southern city, it was by no means impossible that the shift would be made.

"Even if there is no change this season, it is very likely to be the last for International League baseball here," said the Royal head. "I am thoroughly disgusted with the attendance and will, therefore, transfer the franchise at the first opportunity that offers. The club owes Montreal no consideration in view of the miserable support."

Riley of Saratoga Springs, N.Y., as will be seen by a letter received by the Boston Globe from Mr. Ten Eyck, with a check for $500 enclosed to back the challenge.

"I have received notice from parties in Saratoga Springs with me and that he has posted money with J. B. Walker of Saratoga.

"Last year there was considerable correspondence between us in relation to a race, but nothing ever materialized, as I could not get him to sign an agreement of proper form.

"During the course of our correspondence I made a proposition to row him two races in one day, one of the races to be rowed in the morning and the second race to take place during the afternoon on Lake Oneida, where I had defeated him three years hand running, in 1910, 1911 and 1912, each race to be for $500 a side and both races to be pay or play. Now that proposition still goes and I am enclosing a check in the amount of $500 as a deposit, the balance, $500 each, to be deposited when the articles are signed."

There is still one race to be decided, but this will not affect the final outcome of the championship.

Shevlin and Butler Draw. Newport, R. I., July 20.—Eddie Shevlin, Boston, and Walter Butler, Revere, boxed twice fierce rounds to a draw last night. Both hit after the bell in the first round and there was a mixup. Shevlin was cleverly defensively, but Butler the harder hitter. Butler almost had Shevlin out in the fourth and again in the eleventh with left and rights to body and head. Shevlin had Butler groggy in the fifth, seventh and twelfth. Butler took a bad beating due to Shevlin's cleverness but forced the going all the way and connected often with drives to body and head.

Teddy Murphy, Boston, won over Young Al Thomas, New Bedford, in eight rounds. Murphy was too clever for Thomas, landing often with left to head. Murphy scored a knockdown with right in the fifth. Murphy took every advantage, which didn't please the crowd.

GALLANTRY OF THE R. A. M. C.

Heroes of British Army of Whom Little is Ever Heard—Gallant Doctors and Aids—A Nurse's Heroism—Wonder Stories of The War

The men of the R. A. M. C. are not added to "flag-waving," they detect anything which savors of "swank." They know that the commonplace story of seeking the wounded, on the battlefield and saving them does not thrill the on-looker in the same way as the heroic, spectacular charge of the irresistible Tommies—the desperate hand-to-hand encounters in woods and villages—the deadly side-on-sock business of the bomber as he dashes from trench to trench. If their work is not assessed at its true value—well, that is not their affair!

It is rarely indeed that the men who risk death to bring succor and assistance to the wounded are eulogized; their prizes are seldom sung; yet the hero-deeds they have done have demanded a courage that is probably of a rare quality than that which actuates the soldier when fighting the foe. As a certain writer put it the other day—"To compare various types of courage is futile; ours is an army of heroes, and there's an end of it. Yet it is a fact that while you will find many men who can stick it in a trench or in an attack when they are armed and the blood is stirred by the fighting, there are not so many who can walk in cold blood, and without arms through that hell fire, about their Master's business."

An Australian army doctor just out of hospital talked to a reporter recently of the heroism of the stretcher-bearers. He was a little angry that this fine fellow had been so little praised.

Heroism in Cold Blood

When volunteers are asked for, the men who step out of the ranks are already regarded as heroes. It is a fact, dangerous work, but it is not that! Most British soldiers are ready to face death without a tremor, and they regard the bombs and shells bursting round them with as much calm as a goal-keeper regards the ball at the forward's toe. As for a charge, when a British soldier's blood is up he can do anything. But to leave the shelter of the trenches, and walk calmly about your work in the full blaze of bombardment needs courage of the rarest kind. Yet you will see these brave fellows calmly bandaging and carrying the wounded with the earth rising in fountains all round them, and men falling in sheaves.

And the resource shown is often as wonderful. One doctor—may-care Anzani noted for nothing but wild pranks, volunteered for the job, with a mate. He soon lost his bearings, and then he established himself in an old crater as an intermediate station. He commandeered stray soldiers to help him, dressed the light cases, and sent the bad cases on. Soon there was a regular stream of wounded passing from the firing line to the rear. He saved hundreds of lives that day. Then he went back to the trenches, and the next day he was in danger of judgment for some wild practical joke.

But the heroes of the R. A. M. C. are by no means confined to the doctor's gallant assistants—the doctors themselves show an example of coolness and courage, and devotion to duty that is beyond all praise. In many instances they at least have been officially recognized for their valorous conduct on the field.

Well-Earned V. Cs.

Captain W. Allan, V. C., we are told in the prospectus of a brief language of the London Gazette, won his Cross for most conspicuous bravery and devotion to duty. When gun detachments were unloading H.E. ammunition from wagons which had just come up, the enemy suddenly began to shell the battery position. The first shell fell on one of the limbers, exploded the ammunition, and caused several casualties. Captain Allan, however, remained cool, and commenced dressing the wounded, and undisturbedly by his promptness saved many of them from bleeding to death. He was himself hit four times during the first hour by pieces of shells, one of which fractured two of his ribs, but he never even mentioned this at the time, and coolly went on with his work till the last man was dressed and safely removed. He then went over to another battery and tended a wounded officer. It was only when this was done that he returned to his dug-out and reported his own injury.

In the same list we find that for most conspicuous bravery and devotion to duty, Captain N. G. Chavasse was awarded the Cross. During an attack he tended the wounded in the open all day, under heavy fire, frequently in view of the enemy. During the ensuing night he searched for wounded on the ground in front of the enemy's lines for four hours. Next day he took one stretcher-bearer to the advanced trenches and under heavy shell fire carried an urgent case for 800 yards into safety, being wounded in the side by a shell splinter during the journey. The same night he took up a party of twenty volunteers, rescued three wounded men from a shell hole twenty yards from the enemy's trench, buried the bodies of two officers and collected many identifiably dressed, although fired on by bombs and machine guns. Although he saved the lives of some twenty badly wounded men, besides the ordinary cases which passed through his hands. His courage and self-sacrifice were beyond praise.

A gallant Irish doctor, Captain J. A. Sinton, although shot through both arms and side, refused to leave the wounded and attended to them under heavy fire. He also was awarded the V. C.

Although himself wounded, Captain J. Leslie Green, R. A. M. C., went to the assistance of an officer who had been wounded and was hung up on the enemy's wire entanglements, and succeeded in dragging him to a shell hole. Captain Green then endeavored to bring the wounded officer into safe cover, and had nearly succeeded in doing so when he was himself killed. His was one of the increasing number of posthumous V. C. awards of the war.

A clergyman recently told a thrilling story of the heroism of a Scottish doctor from a letter written by his son, who is an officer serving at the front. A few wounded men were in an almost inaccessible place, and the doctor was forbidden to go to them. Being a Scotsman, he ran the gauntlet of 800 yards in the open, and reached the party of wounded. He amputated two limbs and bound up the wounds of the other men as best he could. Finding that the best service he could render was by going back, he rushed across the open, and just as he was reaching the home-french a German bullet struck him in the heart, and he fell into the arms of the speaker's son. "Oh, the cloud that came over all of us," said the writer, "when we realized that the man had given his life, not called by duty, but only by heroism, and by that unspicable, indescribable impulse that dwells in men at their best."

Beave Act

A wonderful feat stands to the credit of another doctor. The enemy had made a sudden and ferocious attack on a section of the British near Ypres. A young officer was shot and dangerously wounded, and left behind by his men, who were forced to retire. Hearing of this, a surgeon tried to locate the wounded man. It was pitch dark and a light was impossible, but the brave doctor crawled on over the rugged ground till he reached the officer. Now he was baffled more than ever. The officer was unconscious and could not say where the wound was. To show any light meant that he would make himself self an easy target to the enemy, but the brave did not hesitate. He struck a match.

Instantly a volley crashed out, and bullets flew round him. But he had seen what he wanted, and his fingers gripped a severed artery and held the fast-flowing blood. Under heavy fire, and throughout the intensely cold night, the hero knelt there holding back the wounded man's life blood. At last the hero knelt there holding back the wounded man's life blood. At last the hero knelt there holding back the wounded man's life blood. At last the hero knelt there holding back the wounded man's life blood.

Operating in Three Feet of Water.

Temporary Captain Henry Burke, R. A. M. C., won the Military Cross for an amputation under conditions that can be termed extraordinary. Four days of incessant rain had made the trenches exceptionally trying, and for nearly a week the men had been standing above their knees in water. It was pitch dark and the rain still pelted down, when a bomb from a mortar fell plumb in the trench. A sergeant, standing more than ten yards away, turned a somersault over the traverse in front of it and landed head first in over three feet of water. One of his legs was horribly smashed. By good luck a surgeon happened to be in a dug-out near by, and hearing the explosion and the splash, looked out and saw the wounded man struggling in the water. Splashing among the mud, he ploughed his way to him, and, seeing the sergeant's deplorable condition, determined to make a dash for his instruments over the exposed morass of mire in the trench, instead of through the long, round-about communication trenches. So, propping the sergeant up against a corner of the parapet, and making him fasten his fingers into the mud that faced it, he pulled himself up and reached the wounded man. He amputated the leg, and then, while the sergeant was still standing, he started slithering across the open. It was a perilous job, and the doctor was quite well aware of the risk he ran. If one of the German flares revealed him while upright, he was a dead man, but by flinging himself down into the slime in every step, the splendid stars, he managed to avoid detection. Having secured his instrument case, he was successful in making the return journey across the open to the wounded man, and there he and the patient were both standing up to their thighs in water, he performed an operation, severing what was left of the leg—the stump being just clear of the water, and the arteries with no light in the pouring night to help him but the frazzle of the German flares.

A Patient "In the Pink"

Not the least remarkable thing about this amazing operation was the stoic endurance and the unconscious heroism of the poor Tommy who had lost his leg—it might well have been his life, for he might have bled to death. As it was, when he was brought down to the field hospital he was put a little on one side, as a man about to die. What else could one expect after that agony in the ice-cold puddle? But that evening he chattered cheerfully, joked with the priest who came to anoint him, and wrote a letter to his wife— "I hope this will find you in the pink as it leaves me," he began. He mentioned that he had had an "accident" which had taken one of his legs away. "But the youngsters will like to play with my wooden leg," he said, and discussed the joke of it.

Another Story—A Very Moving One

at that—illustrating the truly noble and courageous part which the nurses of the Red Cross are taking in succoring and attending to the wounded heroes of the war, will fittingly conclude an article which might well be indefinitely extended. As an instance of sublime devotion it is absolutely Christ-like.

A Heroic Nurse

In one of the field hospitals the staff was short of nurses, &c., and Nurse Lorence volunteered to get the requirements. As she knew the district and needed some fresh air, owing to her long spell of duty, the authorities acceded to her request. She had covered about three miles of her journey when she met some French soldiers in charge of a lumber-carriage, who informed her that three wounded men were lying on the outskirts of a wood close by and urgently needed assistance. Without demur she mounted the van and was taken to the spot. After investigation she scribbled her name on a piece of paper and implored the soldiers to hasten to and get them.

Then kneeling down, she sought to staunch the wounds of the stricken men. These she found to be many and serious, and the brave woman tore up most of her clothing to improvise bandages. Night came on, and the van and the cold was intense, the rain beat down in pitiless torrents, two of the men raved in delirium, and to add to the horrors of the situation the rattle of musketry denoted the presence of the enemy. Thus in pain and suspense the ill-fated woman spent the long hours of that fearful winter night.

Next morning a detachment of chasseurs found the quartette—two of the men were dead, and the other was kept alive by the devoted woman who had shielded him from the rigors of rain and cold by her own body. She was in a state of collapse from exposure. Restoratives were applied, and, recovering consciousness she faintly inquired: "Are they all right?" Ere an answer could be given she sank back and yielded her noble spirit to Him who gave it. Small wonder that when the full story of her heroism was told by the survivor, brave men allowed the tears to fall down their cheeks, and that martial honors were accorded the funeral of the devoted nurse.

Judge Finds New Kind of Slacker Who Hastens to Plead Guilty

A new kind of a slacker—one who deliberately commits crime and pleads guilty so as to go to jail instead of to war—was discovered by Judge McIntyre in New York. More than forty young men, unmistakably of conscript age, were arraigned for various crimes, and invariably the defendants pleaded guilty.

The slacker with which some admit their guilt caused Judge McIntyre to become suspicious. He questioned several of the arresting patrolmen and learned that many of the youthful offenders committed their crimes openly and made no effort to evade arrest. Judge McIntyre asked one defendant what had led him to break the law and received a half-hearted reply that "hard times and no work" were the cause. "I do not believe you," Judge McIntyre said. "There is plenty of work for all. I think there is a different reason. Since I have been presiding in this
