"ARBITRATE !"

DETROIT, July 10 .- The mass meeting held at the Auditorium under the auspices of the Trades Council and the A. R. U. last night was a monster gathering, fully 6,000 persons being present. Although all classes were represented, it was easily apparent that the large proportion of the audience was composed of members of labor unions who were in hearty sympathy with the big strike inaugurated by the A. R. U. After addresses from Mayor Pingree and others, the following was adopted by the

"Resolved, that in the present crisis of human affairs, we solemnly pledge ours selves anew to the cause of self-government, and in order to better preserve our national pride, promote the universal advancement of civilization, and to insure the safety, prosperity and happiness of all our people, we hereby request the Congress of the United States, during its present session, to pass an act providing for submitting to the States an amendment to the Federal constitution for the establishing of insterstate boards of arbitration, designed for the adjustment and settlement of labor troubles arising within their jurisdiction."

THE M NAGERS' SIDE. CHICAGO, July 10 .- The situation as reported by the General Managers' Association today grows steadily brighter. Through passenger service on all lines is generally resumed, and suburban service is almost restored to its normal state. Freight service is also improving.

LEGAL DEFINITION OF "CONSPIRACY." Judge Grosscup this morning charged night last night. The strike involves all the special grand jury as to its duties in roads at that point except the Union regard to the big strike. The charge was Pacific. sweeping enough to cover offenses of all kinds. Judge Grosscup said labor unions southern division of the Columbus, were necessary and their purpose was good, but when they interfered with rights of others they exceeded their prerogatives. He said if ten men met and agreed to injure the business of a road it was conspiracy, but if one man controlled the actions of these ten and ordered them out it could hardly be defined as such. This Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe system, and as was construed as being favorable to Debs. THE PRESIDENT'S PLANS.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 10 .- It is stated the President has no intention of calling on the militia organizations of the several States to suppress the disorders. He will not resort to this measure until the resources of the regular army are exhausted. All the regular troops have been ordered to prepare for service.

The authorities are waiting the effect of the trade unions and while they are undeniably anxious as to the consequences of this great addition to the strikers' force, they apparently believe no serious trouble will follow.

Assurances are pouring in on the President that his course in dealing with the disturbance is approved of by prominent persons of both political parties. It is hoped the vigorous preparations made by the general Government will avert bloodshed in California.

PULLMAN DENGUNCED IN CONGRESS. WASHINGTON, July 10 .- The resolution offered yesterday by Mr. Pfeffer (Pop., Kan.) as to Government control of railroads and other kindred matters was laid before the Senate today, and Mr. Pieffer made a speech, in the course of which he denounced Pullman and the railroads.

ARRESTING LABOR LEADERS. CHICAGO, July 10 .- John J. Hanahan, vice-grand master of the Firemen's Brotherhood, was arrested last night for conspiring to interrupt interstate commerce and traffic by inducing a Belt line crew to quit work. District Attorney Gilchrist said the Government has a good case against Hanahan. United States Commissioner Herne today fixed Hanahan's bail at Debs, Howard, Rogers, Kelleher and several other strike leaders have been indicted for conspiracy by the Federal grand jury, and are now in the district attorney's office for interference with interstate traffic, and will be taken to Indianapolis.

MINERS NOT TO BE CALLED OUT. COLUMBUS, Ohio, July 10 .- President John McBride, of the United Mine Workers, said today that he would promulgate no order calling the miners out to co-operate with the A. R. U. "I have no such power," he said; "the executive board of our organizating only has the right to order a strike."

They say that in no event will the organizations comprising the federal board, walk out. "PETERING OUT" AT CLEVELAND.

CLEVELAND, O., July 10.—The indications are that the backbone of the strike has been broken. One crew has been put to work in every yard in the city, and each of the roads has succeeded in making up and sending out at least one freight train, There have been no signs of disturbance. All the firemen employed by the Big Four who have been on strike returned to work this morning.

At Cincinnati the railroad situation is improved, except on the St. Louis division of the Big Four.

PORT HURON MEN RESUME. PORT HURON, Mich., July 10 .- Several of the engineers who have been out with the A. R. With so many companies of militia here there will not be much violence. The greater issue is to come now, but I hope it will be conducted peacefully and quietly.

Tuesday Night's Situation | Growing

CHICAGO, July 10 .- There is no disguising the fact that the local situation tonight in the labor troubles is more grave than it has of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, been at any time. THE SENSATION OF THE DAY. Although to some extent it had been ancicipated, the arrest of President Debs and his associates was the sensation of the day. The president of the A. R. Organized labor was prompt to strike back at the latest manifestation of Federal power and authority. Hardly had the word been flashed across the half mile of intervening ground between the Government building and labor headquarters that indictments had been returned and warrants for Debs and his associates placed in the hands of the officers, when the committee appointed by the Trades and Labor Association of the city to urge upon the Pullman company the desirability of submitting the dispute with its employes to arbitration attached its signatures to the order. ATEPAYERS OF THE CITY OF London are requested to take notice that for 1894 they may, if desired, pay their taxes in two installments, the first of which must be paid during the first 30 days of August, and the second during the first 30 days of October. Ratepayers paying the installments as they become due according to the above dates, will not be charged interest, nor will discount be allowed. If either of the said installments is not paid during the time above specified, a 5 per cent charge will be immediately added thereto. Any ratepayer paying the whole of his taxes during the first 39 days of August will be allowed a discount of 3 per cent off the second installment, the payment of which he might have deferred till October. THE FRENCH TREATY

On the main motion Mr. Laurier moved in amendment: "That the treaty with France having been negotiated under the assurance given by the English plenipotentiaries that the Canadian Government's policy was to fibre in the civil structure is strained to establish a direct line of steamers between Canada and France. It was the duty of the Government before proposing the ratification of the treaty either to accept the statement of the plenipotentiaries or to notify the French Government that they would not be bound by it-

When the members were being called in for another division on Mr. Laurier's amendment the "Marseillaise" was sung. The amendment was rejected by 56 year to 109 nays.

On the main motion, for the second reading of the bill, still another division was taken. This time every French-Canadian in the House voted for the treaty and the following Conservatives against it: McCarthy, Cockburn, McNeill, O'Brien and Bergin. The motion was carried by 121 yeas to 41

THE POLICE COURT.

A Remarkable Story-A Woman Convicted-Accused of Burglary. George Clark came to the city yesterday with his arm in a sling, a pitiful tale and a note, recommending him to charity as an injured railway man, purporting to be signed by Superintendent Morford, of the M. C. R., St. Thomas. It was a forgery. "I got it in a was a forgery. "I got it in a very peculiar way," explained Clark to the magistrate this morning. "I picked it up in St. Thomason the street and found it was made out in my name." The magistrate thought this so peculiar that he didn't believe it. Clarke was made to show his arm, which he did with great pretense of suffering. There was apparently nothing wrong with it. He was remanded to jail, and the doctor will look at it.

Nellie Allister, alias Ida Jenkins, of Piccadilly street, pleaded guilty to keeping a house of ill-fame. The magistrate imposed a sentence of six months, but suspended it on condition that the woman left the city never to return. She consented and was discharged. Her companion, Eliza Smith, was dismissed.

Albert Carrothers and George Clampitt were accused of breaking into and stealing from Wm. H. Brown's store on Wellington street, near the G. T. R. tracks. P. C. Campbell swore he saw the two with an unknewn companion in the vicinity late Sunday night. He watched them, and saw one kick open the door and enter. He knew Clampitt, and going to his house atter midnight found him asleep and some plug tobacco under his mattress wrapped in an old coat. HON. GEO. W. ROSS. The Minister of Education on Education and Religion. STOUFFVILLE, July 10 .- The ceremony of the laying of the corner-stone of the new Presbyterian Church here was performed by Hon. Geo. W. Ross at 7 o'clock last evening before a gathering of about 1,000.

Hon. Geo. W. Ross spoke for about an hour in his characteristically instructive manner, expressing at the outset his pleasure and sense of the honor conferred upon him for the privilege of laying the corner-stone of a church in this beautiful little town. He looked on the building of a new church as an important era in a town, the community as a whole being bonefited thereby. He also looked upon such an event as evidence that they had the courage of their convictions. The speaker, enlarging on this feature of the work, referred to such men as Knox, Garrison, Bright, Cobden, Lincoln and other leaders in important movements. In eloquent language he held the attention of the large audience, who broke out in applause at frequent intervals. As Minister of Education, Mr. Ross regretted that higher religious instruction could not be introduced into our saytem, but was delighted to know that in nine-tenths of our public schools the exercises were opened daily with prayer, and in many cases the use of Scripture selections was also habitual. It was not desirable that sectarianism should be introduced, but a broad spirit of catholicity inculcated. At the same time he advised all the young men and women to choose some branch of the church, there being such a variety as to meet the aspirations of all. He closed an excellent address by giving expression to sentiments of the truest loyalty, which, if practiced, would develop a Canadianism characterized by righteousness of the highest type.

William Lawson Loses His Wife and Child,

And Finds Them in Hamilton with His Partner, Fred Edgsen - The Father Endeavers to Secure His Boy.

The Hamilton Times of June 10 says: Wm. Lawson, an industrious Danish carpenter doing business in London, Ont., is in the city today trying to get possession of his 4-year-old son. Up to ten months or so ago Mr. Lawson lived in Hamilton, and five or six years ago he married a daughter of Mrs. Hull, an Englishwoman, well known on account of the active interest she takes in municipal and political east, right under the mountain, near the head of Wellington street. Towards the close of last summer Lawson and his wife had trouble, which resulted in number of interviews with Police Magistrate Jells, and which did not end until into business with Fred Edgson, who had formerly been an attendant at the Lon-Silk and Embroidery Bonnets, don Asylum, in a carpentering, jobbing and repair business. They did a paying business, according to Lawson's story, and all went well until a couple of days ago, when Mr. Lawson suddenly found himself absolutely alone in the world-minus wife and child, partner and money. He suspected that all had disappeared together, and thinking that his wife would head for Hamilton he came here by the midnight train, and early this morning visited his mother in-law's house. What he saw there, as told the Times in his own words, was: "I looked in the window and there saw my wife in bed. I could not tell who was with her, but I called and she got up, and then I saw a man, undressed, step behind something. I said, 'I know you, Fred; you needn't hide'; so then Fred Edgson, my partner, came to the window with my wife. I asked for my child, but they would not give him to me, and Mrs. Hull jawed some. Then I asked Edgson why he skipped off with my wife, and he said sho asked him to, so he did it. I could not

The Police Magistrate and City Treasurer to be Summoned-Said to Have Violated a Law of the Water Commissioners. The police court some morning in the near future promises to be of especial interest, when about twenty of London's leading citizens are to be charged with sprinkling their lawns with city water after 8 o'clock in the evening. Warnings were published in the papers, and after sufficient time had been given for all consumers to become acquainted with the rule, the inspectors began to take regular evening strolls. In their travels thay have been no respecters of persons, and among those who will be summoned for violation are Police Magistrate Farke and Mr. John Pope, city treasurer. When the list was handed in at the meeting of the commissioners last night Chairman Jones did not want to see it, but favored the idea of summoning every offender. Commissioner Cowan, however, wanted to know if any of his friends were in it. The names were glanced over, and Mr. Cowan discovered more than one with whom he was intimate. The city treasurer will put up the defense that he was going by solar time. The board wondered how the police magis trate would dispose of his own case.

In response to requests from many citizens the commissioners have considered the idea of laying out a park on the city property at Springbank, Mr. Chas. H. If you trust in God and yourself you can surmount every obstacle. Do not yield to restless anxiety. One must not always be asking what may happen to one in life, but one must advance jearlessly and bravely. -[PRINCE BISMARCK.

-Only those communications to which the writers are willing to have their names apsended in print will be published in these columns. Neither the writing nor the publication of anonymous letters can be justified.

-Mr. Awrey, M.P.P., in an interview, says that the Mowat Administration will have no difficulty in serving the four years' term upon which it has entered. "Some of the Patrons," he added, "would never have entered the field if it had not been for pressure and indorsation from the Liberals. The two platforms are about identical."

-Tax collecting is a rather dangerous job in Fiji. A cablegram from New Zealand announces that several tax collectors so incensed the natives of that island that they killed and ate them! The aborigine apparently has not been seized with the idea that the more taxes he pays the richer he becomes.

-Mr. John Bach McMaster, in the July Forum, says that the "Know-Nothing" party was given that name because the true name and purpose of the order were known to none save those who reached the highest degree; and that, as members of the lower degrees, when questioned about their party, always answered, "I don't know," the nickname "Know-Nothings" was given it, and at once accepted.

-A new material for paving roadways is being used at Philadelphia, where scientific men have utilized grass, chemically prepared and submitted to high pressure, in such a way that blocks for paving purposes are made practically as hard and as durable as stone. For some time they have been making railway car wheels out of compressed waste paper. There seems to be no end to the ingenuity of man to use up material that was formerly thrown away. If the race is not improving its conditions the failure to do so cannot be traced to the lack of agencies tending in that direction.

-J. G. Sipes, of Galt, writes to the press

"In the interest of the county of Wentworth, I repeat my oft-told story of a great lake of oil (petroleum) that lies hidden beneath the ground at the western end of the great Beverley swamp, that is only waiting for someone with capital and enterprise enough to develop it. -The Kingston Whig says:

"Some of the western papers are concerned about Hon. Mr. Harty's place in the Government. But Mr. Harty is not concerned about it. He proffered his resignation and it was not accepted. For the present the majority against him in Kingston is one, and it is in danger of melting away before the further scrutiny which it will receive ere long."

This view is in accord with common sense. There is every indication that Hon. Mr. Harty will regain his seat in Kingston long before the summer is over. Enough Liberal votes were left unpolled to give him a substantial majority, to say nothing of the means by which his opponents managed to get their fictitious majority of one, which will be exposed in due course,

HARVEST PROSPECTS.

In Canada, the United States and Great Britain, according to the latest advices, the harvest promises to be up to the average. The hay crop in Western Ontario will not be as heavy as last year, but it is nevertheless good. That crop is now about saved, and the wheat harvest has begun. It will be fully up to the average. In Great Britain, after three years of shortgood. The outlook is reassuring. With plenty of the fruits of the soil, even if the prices obtained are not as high as they have been, the international barter of a powerful impetus.

AN OBJECTIONABLE BARGAINtrade treaty with France.

This has been done, in spite of the earnest protestations of the grape growers of Western Ontario, who claim that their interests will be seriously menaced by the importation, at a low rate of, duty of the cheap wines of France.

The treaty has been indorsed, too, in spite of the united objections of the temperance organizations of the country. They look upon a treaty, whose chief aim is to supply a market for French wines and kindred luxuries in Canada, in exchange for the concession of a mimimum tariff on Canadian exports to France, as a blow at temperance, as a standing obstacle to the promotion of their cause.

Other objections to the treaty were recited by Liberals and by independent Conservatives when its passage was advocated.

One objection was its one-sidedness. While France only loses $32,000 by her reduction of duties on Canadian imports, Canada will lose $80,000 odd on French wines, soaps and other luxuries that will be admitted at a low rate of duty. It was rightly argued that taxes should be reduced first on necessaries of life, not on such luxuries as wines and soaps.

But the Ministers stood by the treaty. Thouga Sir Chales Tupper went beyond his instructions in its negotiation, though it is conceded by many Conservatives that it is not an equitable bargain, and that it specially militates against the grapegrowing industry of this country, many members voted for it because Sir Charles Tupper had pledged the honor of the country to sustain it.

Now, if the treaty is not a proper one, surely it would have been better to defeat it, and to recall the bumptious High Commissioner who is responsible for the muddle than to insist an its going into force. Sir Charles Tupper must have some strong, if mysterious, hold on the Administration at Ottawa when he can thus force upon it a treaty so calculated to injure many Canadians, while helping few, if any, of our people. Treaties that are inequitable, even if arranged by His Majesty the High Commissioner, should never be passed by the representatives of a free people.

ALGOMA WEST.

A Londoner who has just returned from visit to Western Algoma says that he has reliable information to the effect that Mr. Conmee is elected, and that it will be soldeclared when a tangle in the returns from outlying districts is cleared up by the courts. As we have anticipated, Sir Oliver's following grows with time, as it has done in every recurring election since the veteran Premier was given the management of Ontario's affairs.

A CONFESSION, AN EXPOSURE AND SOME REFLECTIONS.

The position of the Canadian high tax journal of today is far from enviable. One of the products of protection is the disastrous labor troubles in the adjoining republic today, but you cannot get the Canadian high tax and trade restriction advocate to openly admit it. He beats around the bush, and finally winds up by saying that if Canadians had reciprocity with the United States they would be just as badly off. This is begging the whole question. Reciprocity gives freedom to buy and to sell. Canadians have been so anxious to obtain that ideal that the Canadian Conservative leaders went to the country at last general election with a falsehood on their tongues. They asserted that they had an offer of reciprocity from the United States, and what they desired was indorsation of the idea.

Now, if reciprocity was so bad a thing as is now contended, why did the Conservative leaders authorize Sir Charles Tupper to make an unrestricted offer of reciprocity to the United States authorities three and a half years ago? That the high tax policy of Canada has militated against our interests there can be no doubt. While, by the report of the Minister of Agriculture, the Canadian taxpayers paid over $2,000,000 in the ten years prior to 1891 to secure the immigration of 850,000 old world imm igrants, it was found that the total population of Canada only increased 520,000. What came of the 850,-000 and of the natural increase of the people of Canada, numbering nearly as many more? We know that a very large portion of them crossed the borders, with the object of bettering their condition. They could not find employment in Canada because of the restricted from its policy towards employes, by whose markets for our products. To help to retain our population and to make Canada an increasingly attractive country to live in has been the object of the Liberal party. Its general policy was formulated at the great convention held in Ottawa in June, 1893, when it was resolved that the existing tariff is to be condemned because "it has discriminated against Great Britain," and it was declared that it "should be so arranged as to promote freer trade with the whole world, more particularly Great Britain and the United States." In the second resolution, in the matter of reciprocity with the United States, it was declared "that a fair and liberal reciprocity treaty would develop the great natural resources of Canada, would enormously increase the trade and commerce between the two countries, would tend to encourage age, the harvest prospects are unusually friendly relations between the two peoples, would remove many causes that have in the past provoked irritation and trouble to the Governments of both countries, and would promote those kindly relations between the commodities, upon which so much of the empire and the republic which a ord the world's prosperity depends, would receive best guarantee for peace and prosperity; that the Liberal party is prepared to enter We have heard of Canadians who into negotiations with a view to obtaining such a treaty, including a well-considered defined, we believe that the Dominion The Dominion Government last night would enjoy a healthy growth. Our people prevailed upon Parliament, to adopt the would not be called upon to solve the difficult labor troubles arising from fostering gigantic monopolies, such as have grown up under the "protective" system in every country where it has been firmly established, and any foreign population that might come to us would be absorbed without difficulty, and by decent treatment would be made into good citizens.

It is so much gained that the Canadian supporters of the high tax system begin to get ashamed of the operation of their pet ideal of national taxation, as carried out under the most favorable conditions possible. If "protection" has failed in the United States most signally, how is it possible to make it a success in Canada? Everyone must know that in a country the size of Europe, possessing over 40 states all enjoying entire trade freedom with each other, and having almost every variety of climate and product within their bounds, a restrictive trade policy would be a benefit to the workers if it would be of advantage to them anywhere. Now our Canadian "protectionists" confess that it has been an absolute failure, and warn us that if we even undertake to do business with our neighbors we will be hurt by the operation. Was ever confession more abject?

On the Tariff-More Changes in the (Special to the ADVERTISER.) OTTAWA, Ont., July 11 .- Mr. Foster gives notice of further tariff changes, the most important of which refer to tea by adding the following to the list of prohibited articles: Tea adulterated with spurious leaf, or with exhausted leaves, and which contains so great an adulteration of chemical or other deleterious substances as to make it unfit for use. The other new items are: Lamp springs, 10 per cent ad valorem; glass bulbs for electric lights, 10 per cent; frames, clasps or fixtures for purses or reticules, not more than seven inches in width when imported by the manufacturers of purses, chatelaine bags or reticules for use in their factories, 20 per cent; maple sugar, 20 per cent; German looking-glasses, unsilvered, 17½ per cent; satins for use of corset manufacturers, 25 per cent. Section 277 of the tariff bill reads as follows: Wrought iron or steel nuts and washers, iron or steel rivets, bolts with or without threads, nut and bolt blanks, less than three-eighths of an inch in diameter, 1 cent per pound, 25 per cent ad valorem. To this is now added the words, "but not less than 35 per cent." The following are additions to the free list: Ground logwood and patent prepared dyes. Wire used in the wire grip machine for the manufacture of boots, shoes and leather belting, free, has added to it the words, "and Champion nailing machines." Bird skins and skins of animals not native of Canada for taxidermist purposes not further manufactured than prepared for preservative. Brass and copper wire twisted, free, for use of manufacturers of boots and shoes has added to it the words "iron."

SYMPATHY FROM LONDON For the Pullman Strikers-Trades and Labor Council Resolution-Street Railway Percentage

Wanted. An enthusiastic meeting of the city Trades and Labor Council was held in Labor Hall last (Tuesday) night, when the lollowing resolution was unanimously carried with instructions that a copy of same be sent to President Debs, of the A. R. U., and Grand Master Sovereign, of the K.

Whereas, the Pullman company has officially refused to submit the dispute with its employes to arbitration; and whereas the Pullman company by so refusing to arbitrate has willfully ignored the serious results to the public welfare of the United States which have resulted labors the wealth of the Pullman company has been accumulated; and whereas, in its reported reasons for refusing to arbitrate, the Pullman company has denied the right of wage-earners to any consideration in the management of industrial establishments which their labor sustains, we, the representatives of organized labor in the city of London, Ontario, heartily sympathize with the strikers against the Pullman company, and while deploring the acts of an irresponsible mob in Chicago, would encourage our fellow wage-earners in this conflict to fight the issue to the bitter end, and we would call upon all Christian citizens in America to assist in establishing the principle that employes have a right to arbitration in matters of dispute concerning the administration of industrial establishments in which the interests of themselves and families are at stake. We further trust that in view of the presence of Federal troops at the scene of conflict, the United States Government will step in and compel the Pullman company to recede from its position and submit to arbitration n the interest of public peace.' The committee on Electric Street Railway were instructed to support a demand for a percentage from the company.

THE WHEEL.

COW BEATS 'CYCLE. John P. Horsey, of Baltimore, had an excising chase in East Goshen last evening, says a letter from West Chester, Pa. He was riding a bicycle from Philadelphia to his home and wore a bright colored suit. Near S. R. Downing's farm he met a cow. His gaudy clothes enraged the animal and she gave chase. For half a mile she galloped after Horsey, who rode at the top of his speed to escape. The cow caught him, upset and badly bruised the rider and smashed the wheel. He was picked up by a farmer and brought here.

THE TROUBLES OF LADY BICYCLISTS. A curious scene was witnessed in the principal hostelry of a pleasant Surrey village a few miles from Epsom. The inn is a great rallying place for bicyclists, and on great rallying place for bicyclists, and on the statement of Saturdays, Sundays and popular holidays a cheap but sufficient dinner is served in the large room to ladies and gentlemen who take country exercise on velocipedes. Everything about the place is conducted in the most decorous manner, for the landlady is a prim and rather stately dame of the old AGENERAL ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION PROPOSED, school, who does not believe in advanced ideas of any kind. She was, therefore, gathering that met last night to discuss the much scandalized when two young ladies, arrayed in tunics and knickerbockers of the latest cut, arrived at the inn, probably after having seen the Derby. They jumped | convener of the meeting, occupied the chair very jauntily from their machines of them said to the landlady, "Is dinner served yet?" The proprietiess surveyed the newcomers from head to foot with great deliberation, and finally answered, Yes, Mr. Miss, dinner is served, but I am sorry to say I cannot let you enter my dining room in such clothes. There are ing was cordially concurred in by ladies and gentlemen there who would be the different representatives. It was shocked at you." But the advanced thought advisable that a joint stock women-bicyclists protested against such insult to their garments, which they declared to be becoming and comfortable, and asserted that they had never been so treated in any other hotel. They were entitled to dine, and they must. But the landlady stood on principle, and declined to allow them to enter in their knickerbockers. She, however, offered a compromise by expressing her willingness to lend them two of her own skirts under which they might hide their bicycling garments during dinner. One of them was so hungry that she almost consented to turn herself into a guy for the occasion, but the other indignantly rejected the offer, and the two left the inn dinnerless. The interview between them and the landlady caused great amusement to many bicyclists who heard it .- [London Daily Telegraph.

ATHLETICS. It was a thoroughly representative advisability of forming a general athletic association to boom amateur sports in London. Charles S. Hyman, M.P., the and there were also present Messrs. C. E. Perry, James Franks, A. F. Wicks, Dr. Balfour, Dr. Belton, C. W. Davis, Campbell Beecher, George Macheth, Geo. T. Brown, Dr. Jento, W. J. Reid, P. Mulkern and W. Brasbie. The situation was discussed at length and the idea of amalgamatcompany be formed and one general clubhouse and grounds procured. The whole matter as above outlined and the question of shares and membership fees was, however, left for the consideration of a committee to be chosen for that purpose. The following resolution was carried: "Resolved, that the existence of an athletic association, while promoting the best interests of the different athletic clubs at present in the city, would also materially add to the general development of amateur athletics, and that Dr. Balfour (London Bicycle Club), Bert Sheere (Alert B. E. C.), George Macbeth (hockey), Campbell Beecher (cricket), Geo. T. Brown (tennis), A. Talbot (Meteor, B. C.), Dr. Jento (football), C. E. Perry (lacrosse), W. J. Reid, T. S. Hobbs, W. Brasbie, and C. S. Hyman, be a committee to consider and devise plans for the formation of such an association, their report to be considered at a general meeting to be called for that purpose by the chairman pro tem." It is thought that there is a great deal of athletic brawn in London that only needs developing to establish a record for the town. By amalgamation it is thought that this interest will be fostered and developed ranged by the Scottish Cyclists' Union. and games might be held a ccuple of times each season and cash prizes awarded. Mr. Hyman said that he knew of a couple of men who would take $5,000 worth of stock if the balance could be subcribed. The next meeting will be held at the call of the convener, Mr. Hyman.

More than 500 men (mostly Polanders) called at the office of the Buffalo poormaster on Tuesday, demanding either bread or work. Some have been nine months idle. Premier Thompson Says Parliament Is Not a Court of "Justice."

Ex-Temperance Advocate Foster Supports the French Wine Treaty-Amenaments Voted Down.

(Special to the ADVERTISER.) OTTAWA, July 10 .- In the committee on privileges and elections this morning the question of whether Arthur Turcotte, member for Montmorency, has forfeited his seat by virtue of being convicted of being a Government contractor, was discussed at length. Mr. Edgar argued in favor of his motion in amendment to Mr. Amyot's declaration, the facts and penalty of forfeiture. Mr. Dickey moved an amendment to the amendment to postpone the matter until the next session in order to allow in the meantime the trial of the suit in the Superior Court of Quebec instituted to recover penalties from Turcotte for sitting and voting in defiance of the Independence of Parliament Act. In this way, Mr. Dickey contended, they would have the benefit of the judgment of the court. His motion, therefore, recommended that no action be taken. Mr. Dickey would not undertake to say that Mr. Turcotte had not been convicted before the committee of what was charged against him.

Mr. Edgar ridiculed the notion that they had anything to do with penalties or a suit to collect them by a private individual. The independence and dignity of Parliament was in the custody of Parliament. D'Alton McCarthy went over the case and showed that J. B. Prevost, who was Mr. Turcotte's partner, contracted with the Government, and together they executed it and together received the money, Mr. Turcotte getting one-half. Mr. McCarthy pointed out that the trial of the case referred to by Mr. Dickey might not be had before next session, er it might result in the acquittal of Turcotte by collusion. What better position would they then be in next session?

Mr. Langelier read the evidence that Prevest, who got the contract, did not get the money. Mr. Turcotto alone got the money, and even the checks were sent direct by the Government to Turcotte, so little was there any pretense that Prevost was the real contractor.
Sir John Thompson believed that the whole transaction was a bona fide one and that Prevost made the contracts in good faith and for his sole benefit. Later on he said that whether Turcotte shared the profit and was in collusion with his partner, Prevost, or not, was a matter of inference, and he did not choose to draw that infer-

Mr. Edgar in the course of his remarks had asked why the high court of Parliament should hold its hand in order to allow a petty court in Quebes to try the case. Sir John Thompson noticed this and said, "I never saw a court of law like the House of Commons, and I hope to God I never will. We should get rid of that trumpery expression which misleads members sometimes who imagine that they are occupying the seat of justic Hon. David Mills resented the view that the moral degradation of Parliament was such that it could not deal fairly with a member of the House. If the House adopted that view, then the people should go further and say the House of Commons was unfit to exercise its functions.

A vote was taken, and Mr. Dickey's amendment postponing the action was rejected by 60 to 18. Sir John Thompson, Sir Adolphe Caron and Mr. Costigan voted against the majority, but Mr. Daly voted

Sir Richard Cartwright after joking Mr. Foster on being sufficiently converted to move the ratification of the treaty, proceeded to criticise the measure. would be pleased to see our trade with France improved, especially it our taxes were lightened thereby. The treaty, however, did not admit any Canadian goods free, but merely gave the minimum tariff to certain named articles. He dwelt on the serious aspect of the loss of revenue which the treaty would involve. Referring to the Ontario wine growers, he condemneda proposal which would discriminate againstour own wine producers. Altogether this treaty had been concluded on lines, which were calculated to injure rather than benefit Canada.

Col. O'Brien voiced the suspicion that Sir Charles Tupper had forced this treaty on the Government. There was a time, he said, when the Finance Minister sympathized with the temperance sentiment, but circumstances had altered his opinion, and he was supporting a treaty which had been protested against by every temperance organization in the country. This House had refused to reduce customs duties on any articles of British produce and yet jumped at a chance of knocking off duties on the products of France. He moved in amendment that while the House was at all times willing to sanction any treaty on fair terms that added to Canadian trade they were unable to concur with the treaty on the ground that it would not prove reciprocal in its results, because it gives to France greater advantages than Canada receives; that it is unfair and unequal inasmuch as while France received the most favored nation treatment in all matters, Canada only received it in respect to articles enumerated in the treaty; that while France can denounce the treaty if Canada increases her duties on wines, Canada was not in the same position; and in the opinion of the House it is unfair and unjust to the great mass of consumers that the duties should be lowered on articles of luxury, while high duties are maintained on many necessaries of life.

This amendment was seconded by Mr. McCarthy. Dr. MacDonald enumerated many objections to the treaty and the loss of revenue

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 75c. bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

Of this, $15,000,000 pounds went into wine, producing 2,000,000 gallons, which, with the plant used, amounted to nearly $2,000,000. There was no advantage of freights to the native wine growers, because wine was carried cheaper from France to Montreal than it was from Windsor, Ont., to Montreal.

Mr. MacLean, of East York, a Government supporter, opposed the sacrifice of the Canadian native wine industry. "I am sorry," he said "that the duty developes upon me once more to defend the National Policy instead of the Minister of Finance." Mr. MacLean said he would vote against the treaty if it were not that they were in honor bound to ratify it.

terest to be served by the ratification of genuine Angostura, manufactured by Dr. the treaty and quoted the high commissioner J. G. B. Siegert & Sons. to the effect that without a direct line to France the treaty would be of no advantage te Canada. Dr. Christie spoke briefly against the treaty, and then Mr. Cockburn, of Toronto, a Government supporter, protested against the injury inflicted on the grape growers and wine producers of Ontario by this treaty. There was good ground for the suspicion that this treaty rested on an obligation to subsidize a line of steamers to France, and he was not prepared to pay that price. Col. Amyot denounced Messrs. McCarthy and O'Brien for opposing everything French. This was greeted with cries of "Shame" from the Opposition. He dwelt on the excellence of pure wine as compared with whisky. Mr. Girouard rebuked Mr. Amyot for trying to introduce a question of sentiment into a matter of business. Believing they were in honor bound to ratify the treaty, he would vote for it. The debate continued by Mr. Casey against the treaty, Mr. Lachapelle for, and

Mr. Edgar against. Mr. Edgar moved that the following words be added to Col. O'Brien's amendment: "That it appears from the papers laid before the House, and from the statement made to this House by the Finance Minister that this treaty was signed as the most favored nation treatment without the instructions of the Government, and of the Government that trade with the French colony of St. Pierre and Miquelon would be affected by the treaty." Sir John Thompson strongly supported the treaty. He complained that the treaty. now that one had been negotiated, had been denounced in general terms only, and not criticised in detail.

Dealing with prohibition objections, Sir John Thompson repeated that if prohibition came they had only to ask that the treaty be terminated. This treaty would not be proclaimed in force until they had a distinct understanding from her Majesty's Government. The notice of termination would be given when Canada desired it and if Canada found it injurious. He repeated, therefore, that he was justified in referring to this as "the little

French treaty." Mr. Laurier said if they had labored for twenty years to bring about this treaty the mountain had brought forth a mouse-it was indeed "a little French treaty," although they had taken eighteen months to make up their minds to ratify it. He was in favor of all extension of trade in any direction, but he denied that we were getting the advantages we contemplated by the act of 1879. The only advantage obtained under the treaty was the minimum French tariff on a few articles, and that

Mr. Laurier reminded Sir John Thompson, who talked of being in honor bound by the treaty, that Ontario's purest and best men. he was also bound in honor to implement the treaty of subsidizing a line of steamers to run direct between Canada and France in accordance with the formal written pledge of Lord Dufferin and Sir Charles Tupper. The treaty was indeed useless, thing, too. because of the Surtaxe Dentrepot unless this

Artful Mr. Lindsay.

The St. Thomas Journal exposes what seems to have been a nice little scheme. Mr. Lindsay, a strong Conservative, had secured the Patron nomination for the Commons in the east riding of Elgin. A week after the Local House was dissolved he sent in his resignation, with an injunction to the secretary to keep the matter secret till after the elections. Evidently he feared that if Liberal Patrons got to know he had funked, and would not offer Patron opposition to the Dominion Government, some Liberal votes might be lost to the Patron candidate in the Local contest, and thus the Conservative candidate would have been beaten. Now the Liberal Patrons are thinking about it.

THE FURNISHER.

The room is enveloped in gloom on all sides (it is a big room), save where Terry and Laurence are sitting, about the middle of the table. Laurence, indeed, is sitting on the table, close—very close—to Terry, who is eating something off a plate with evident relish.

a mistake about it. But friendship—""How friendly you were to me this evening!" says she, scornfully. "How kind! A friend should be kind, I think; but you —"

It is lobster salad, as Trefusis sees to his disgust. First a gelatine, a pie, was it?—what was it that odious girl had told him?—and then tobster salad! No girl with a conscience would do such a thing as that. She must, indeed, be perfectly heartless to enjoy lobster salad at this hour of the morning, and after all that has passed between them. There lies the crux of the whole thing. After all that has passed!

For a moment they do not heed his entrance, and he has time to look at her; to wonder whether the feeling he has for her is love or hatred; to tell himself that he was mad when he had decided on marrying this willful, ill-tempered, beautiful Irish coquette, and then to swear to himself doggedly that nothing under heaven shall induce him to give her up, until she dis-

Here Larry looks up and sees him. "More visions," he cries, though perhaps not quite so heartily, so lightly, this time.

Terry, here comes Trefusis." Terry starts most unmistakably. "Yes. says she, peering at him through the

oom. "Do you want me?"
"No," says Trefusis, coolly. He advances to the table, draws a chair to it, and seats himself leisurely. "But I heard you and O'More were having some supper here, so I should like to join you."

"How good of you!" says Terry, with an audacious little sneer.

Trefusis casts a quick glance at her. Amazement is in his heart. He had thought to bring down Nemesis upon her head by his sudden entry here; here, where she is supping secretly with her cousin, at an hour when all other members of the household are in bed, or, at all events, supposed to be there, here, in this room, at an hour when the morning light is stealing in through every chink in the shutters, and without a light save that of one weakling of a lamp, that is evidently at its last breath for want of oil, and whose glimmer re-sembles nothing so much as the farthing ru hlight we have all seen-in imagination.

Yet she has the audacity to sneer at him to put him in the wrong—to remind him by that sneer that she has not forgiven what he said to her at their late encounter. Yet what had that late quarrel been about? Surely about the man with whom she is now sitting at this untoward hour in happy conclave.

"What would you like?" she asks, with a chill but courteous air. "This lobster salad is very good."

"Not lobster salad, I think," says Tre-fusis. "Pray don't worry yourself about me. I'll look round." "Try the greengage tart," says Larry, hospitably. Is there malice in the suggestion? Jealousy is green!

Trefusis makes a little gesture: "My dear fellow, don't let me disturb you." He finds some ham somewhere, and sits down directly opposite Terry, and begins the supper he does not want in a most deliberate manner. There is something heroic, indeed, in the way he gets through that ham, hating it all the time.

Meantime, Larry, who suspects a scene later on, and who can always be depended upon at a pinch, is talking away with all his might. He has grown to the heights which are sometimes called brilliant, when suddenly Trefusis stops him by addressing

"It must be so uncomfortable for you to be eating your supper in so bad a light. Shall I put a match to one of these other Shall I put a match to one of these other lamps? I'm sorry I didn't think of it when I first came in. You must have been wretched, sitting in the dark like this."

"It is not dark," says Terry, calmly.
"And I like a dim light. Don't light another lamp for me, please." another lamp for me, please.'

"No? I beg your pardon, O'More. Pray go on; you were saying something about the Burkes' party, I think.

"No. I was only talking about poor Mrs. Burke's wig," says Larry. It would fall to one side, you know. And when she tells you that she never lost a hair since she was 17, it comes in awkward. I say, Terry,' feeling that the strain is becoming unbearable, "it's getting late isn't it?" No one could possibly accuse Larry of frony, but to Trefusis this remark sounds

"Well, if you think so, go to bed," says his cousin, who is now trifling with a bunch

"It that a dismissal?" says Larry, slipping off the table to the ground. He grows rather red. Had this meeting here been arranged between her and Trefusis, and has he been in the way all this time? For a moment his heart beats to suffocation, and then he knows. He is sure. Nevertheless he bids her good-night with some haste, nods to Irefusis, and leaves the room. "You needn't hurry, Larry. I'm going too," says Terry, rising from her chair, but he leaves them for all that.

Terry looks straight at Trefusis now they are alone. She holds out to him a "Good-night," says she. He pushes back his chair and takes her pand-holds it. In this faint light her eyes are gleaming. "What does it all mean?" says he. He is putting powerful control upon himself. "You swear to me one moment that you would not marry your cousin for any reason, for any bribe as it were, and yet now I find you here with him at this hour, and in such a confidential mood." "Was it confidential? She lets her hand remain in his, but as though it were dead, lifeless, without a movement.

"It looked so. What were you saying to "Even if I remembered, I certainly should not feel myself bound to tell you,' answers she, calmly.

"No? Perhaps, if you did remember," is making the anger within him a perfect storm of wrath, and is fatally destroying his judgment—"you would not dare to tell. You were talking of me, perhaps-accusing Terry draws her hand out of his, with a sharp gesture. She steps back from him. "Is that what you would do?" she ask?, with terrible contempt. "With whom, then, do you talk of me and my many sins and misdemeanors? I shall have to take heed of my ways, I see. Is that your honor? I—" she turns upon him with a little sob of passion in her throat, "I tell you that is beyond me! I have not got to the height of civilization that permits a girl to discuss the man she has promised to marry with any person on earth."

She turns abruptly to the door. He follows her, and lays his hand upon her

"Terry," says he, quickly, "forgive me that. It was only a momentar madness. I know you would not do it. Ett"—he has drawn her round so as to face him again, and is now gazing at her—"why can't we be friends!" says he.

"Friends!"

"Friends!"
"Yes," hurriedly, "friends. Friendship is a good thing to begin on. I know you do not love me. You," with some irrepressible bitterness, "have given me to understand that too often for me to make a mistake about it. But friendship-

"I am sorry for every word I said to you that offended you," he replies, slowly, distinctly. In his secret soul he is wondering at himself; he is apologizing to her, asking her pardon, for the sins of her own commit-ting! Truly he has fallen very low.

It is a pity, perhaps, that he had not so abased himself somewhat earlier. The willful but lovely head is now turned a little in his direction; two large eyes, soft with dewy tears, are looking into his.
"No, no!" It is a charming penitent who now looks up at him. "I was wrong -very wrong! I should not have given Larry that first waltz, but"—her voice sinking into a shamed whisper—"I think you might have said that I was lookingwell, you know-nice!"

"I could never say that," says he. "That was not the word." He draws her a little nearer, and she does not resist him. "What word was there to describe you? It is not coined," Again she looks up at him. The unkill-able Irish mirth iu her declares itself in the little broken smile, that in the midst of all her agitation and grief lights up her eyes and lips.

"I think you might invent one," says she, with a zlance divinely shy. She holds back from him, but at last lets him press his lips to hers, giving him a dainty, unimpassioned little kiss for the warm one he gives her. Then she slips from his arms, and runs away up-stairs. Though she had been distinctly cold to him all through this last interview, perhaps never has he been so nearly en rapport with her as on this night, when he had entered the supper-room ready to slay her with his wrath.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

"Only a Brakeman!" To the Editor of the ADVERTISER:

I heard some people say today, "He is only a brakeman!" which goes to show that a brakeman is thought nothing of by most people. But if they had to endure the hardships and trials that a freight brakeman has, they would not think the way they do. I suppose if it had been an engineer-one who keeps his eagle eye upon the rail and bravely stands at his post-it would have been different. But being only a brakeman it matters not much. In cold and wintry weather when the snow and sleet are falling and a brakeman has to get out on top and hold a train down a thirteen-mile hill, slipping and sliding from one side of a car to another, it is not very pleasant. I have seen the time, and expect many a brakeman has also, that I could not get from one car to another without going down on my knees to pass over. But most people never think of that or of what we have to contend with. This is only one of the many hardships a brakeman has to endure, Yours,

JAMES THOMPSON, London, July 10, 1894.

A Lendoner's Reflections on Labor Questions. To the Editor of the ADVERTISER:

Will you please allow space for a few thoughts on the labor question which may be acceptable to the Cauadian readers of your valuable newspaper. The aversion of Canadian young men to emigration from Europe arises thus. Say they: "While our young men are walking about idle the cullings of Europe step in and take our work, which is decidedly wrong. These newcomers force down wages on all sides.' The British laborer is invited to come and has the right to be wherever the British flag waves, and Canadians have the same valuable privileges also. Everywhere in the Empire and the world where that flag is unfurled there is life, national life, and our right to be. Forcing up wages has ever been the object of the British workman the world over. Would it were the same object of all workers from other parts of Europe!

Whether it is the right policy to bring out men from countries where there is an over supply to a country where there is more men than work already is where the wrong comes in. It behooves us as a people to provide work and wages for our own people and, if possible, for all comers. The country gets the benefit and there should be wisdom enough in the country to formulate plans and provide means to do it. Then there would be no wrong. As a local state of things we are blessed. No strikes to contend about, no car burning, no defiance of constituted authorities; in fact, nothing to mar our prospect of developing our local improvements. We believe with the water commissioners that the improvements at the Waterworks were needed. We have the means to do it, and the work shall be done by our own citizens as far as in our power. These are the kind of men to look into the labor question, and our desire is for an increase i such men on our council board.

It may not be best to stop all work needed on our streets, sidewalks, common sewers, etc., because a number of property holders say so. Labor must be fed, work or no work. The public library building drags along, and it is not to the credit of our present council. Then this is a good time to take up the matter of public free swimming baths, which the late Hon. Elijah Leonard provided for by leaving a handsome sum for the establishing of free baths. A site for the building is expected from the council. This money left by Senator E. Leonard might supply many with work.

We think that the long delay of coming to an agreeable understanding with the London street railway is wrong, very wrong, and not justifiable to the voters of this city. It is stopping employment and needed city improvements. To give work would be worthy of our consideration, rather than to provide soup kitchens. JOHN LAW.

OTHERS, Do You Know that Paregorie, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Knew that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed? Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle? Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined? Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word

"Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense? Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless? Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

De You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

WORKING, WAITING, TRUSTING.

A trav'ler o'er the world's highway. When night comes on where shall I stay? What am I, I desire to know, Whence came I, whither do I go? The answer's come, you've body, soul.
You've come from God, who made thee whole.
Within, without, you'r not your own,
Your goal is sure—the judgment throne.

Be sure you take the trusted Guide, Byways to sin are open wide, But straight the gate, narrow the way That leads to home of endless day.

Be guided here by heaven's behests, E'en though the butt of graceless jests, Still keep in mind thy absent Lord, And recompense of the reward.

Eschew who to be pure demur, And throats that's open sepulchre. The handled peach loses its down. And flirting maids their modest crown.

With gathered skirts, the genteel maid Passes unsmirched the fith way-laid; Much that for love goes current here, Is not much else but passion sheer.

Through seeing Him I'll still endure
Whose purpose is most firm and sure.
Most surely He will not deceive,
He will not leave alone to grieve.

I will not doubt His tryst with me. For where He'll say He'll surely be. At times though irksome be ny lot, I ll keep my garments without spot. With helping hand to those among.

With law of kindness in my tongue, When standing in the last review, He'll know and He will own me too. PRESERVING KETTLES. I'll follow where His steps have led, Inspired by what the Master said, "Did what she could," enough for me. From Him who died my soul to free.

BROWN ENAMELED. Walking alone, yet not alone. The "Ancient of Days" my chaperone, Also Brass Fruit Kettles, all sizes. Don't forget our Kitchen Specialties, particu-larly the Royal Roaster Proved worthy here through heavenly light I'll work, then walk with Him in white.

Toronto Bible Training School.

The ADVERTISER has received the prospectus of the Toronto Bible Training School, an interdenominational institution to be opened in that city next September. The object of the school is to provide a Biblical and practical training for Christian workers similar to that which is given in the well-known Bible Institute of Mr. Moody at Chicago. Young men who wish to be prepared for service as catechists and missionaries, but who cannot pursue a full literary and theological course of study, and young women who desire to devote themseves to mission work, either at home or abroad, will be welcomed as students. The tuition will be free, a small fee only being charged for incidental expenses. The president of the school is Rev. Elmore Harris, B. A., and the secretary is Mr. Wm. vesterday to breaking into the postoffice at | Ferguson, 58 Grenville street, Toronto, who will answer all inquiries. Among the instructors and lecturers for the first session are well-known ministers of the different evangelical denominations.

Dog Days and Pets. These are dog days. They began July 2 and will end Aug. 11. They have nothing to do with dogs beyond making those animals uncomfortable, like the rest of us, from the heat. They get their name from the fact that Sirius, the brightest star in the constellation of the Great Dog, and called the Dog Star, on these days rises and sets with the sun. You can see Sirius any bright winter night. It is a beautiful for evil in the East should not fail to at- bluish star, as bright as Jupiter, and rises soon after Orion, the great giant who has stars for a belt and stars for a sword. The ancients, who did not know enough to discover that the world was round or moved around the sun, took notice that the days when the dog star kept pace with the sun they had the greatest heat, and they thought, therefore, that this star produced it.

In a recent book on "Pets, and How to Care for Them," the writer finds out that reports have been got from prisons and reformatories showing that very few of the men who are prisoners in these places kept pets when they were boys, or were taught kindness to the lower animais. So you see that the boy who robs birds' nests, or kicks and hurts dogs and cats not only does an unkind and cruel thing to these creatures, but he also gives himself a little push on the wrong road in life.
