Mr. Foster severely criticised the financial administration of the government during the year 1896-7, and accused them of having broken faith with the country. He agreed that the tariff had not been reduced to as great an extent as had been promised, and he argued that the prosperity of Canada was due to good crops here and and shortage elsewhere and not to the management of the Liberals. Then he accused the finance minister of threatening the manufacturers with further reductions in the tariff, and found much fault with all metic he could make twenty months well believe," he added, laughingly, "that the twenty months have seemed to him as long as 30." Mr. Foster, he said, could not strive with manifest facts-he had maintained that nothing had been gained by the Liberal tariff policy-but Sir Richard pointed to the manner in which the tariff changes had been received, not alone by the English Government, but by the English people. The increase of bank deposits, exports and imports, etc., was a sign of prosperity which Washington, April 10.—At 1:30 p.m. Mr. Foster's time, too, but it was not so good when as in his time some of these signs were accompanied by an enormous decease in the value of property all over the country and an enormous exodus of people, and if it was the case today, as it was then, that the people were leaving the country by thousands and ten thousands, Sir Richard said, he would not claim that these evidences of prosperity were of themselves all that Canada could wish to see, as proving that a new era of prosperity has dawned upon us. He was happy to be able to tell the ex-minister, and he had not the slightest doubt that the next census would bear him out in this, that at long last, after 18 years of misgov-Edison said to an interviewer in regard and Canadians were remaining in their ernment, the tide had at length turned own country, and that we were not likely to see again the miserable spectacle presented by Mr. Foster's own province, when in 1891 it turned out that the total growth of New Drunswick, with room enough to accommodate twice its population, was some 32 all told. He would not deny that luck had been with the Liberals, but he aid not forget other times, when they were called to account for bad times which affected other countries far more than they did us. He proceeded to quote figures to show that the Conservative expenditure of 1895-96 had been curtailed for party purposes, and that the Liberal expenditure had been largely attributable to Tory obligations. Mr. Foster's estimate for 1896-97 was $38,358,000, as against Mr. Fielding's estimate for the next year of $39,125,000. But in this latter amount there were three new charges, for which Mr. Foster had no corresponding items. They were rental to the G. T. R., $210,000; Yukon administration, $396,000; I. C. R. operating expenses, $560,000, or a total of $1,166,000. To make the comparison a fair one, this amount should be deducted from Mr. Fielding's estimates, leaving the net amount $37,959,000, or about $4,000,000 less than Mr. Foster's estimates, the last year the Conservatives were in office. (Cheers.) In regard to the reduction of interest on savings bank deposits there was much to be said on both sides. He was surprised that Mr. Foster had not dealt with the matter fairly. In 1894, when the returns were brought down, showing the number of depositors in government banks and the amounts to their credit, it appeared that twothirds of the whole amount of deposits was held by one-sixth of the depositors. Out of $40,000,000 then on deposit, or an average of $1,000 per head. ## The Rumble of The Railways

A Boon for Engineers and Improvements Mapped Out by the Canadian Pacific and G. T.R. A Deep Cut.

The Wabash has fitted up rooms Toronto which are open to enginers and firemen when they come in off their runs. They have warm and cold baths, and many other conveniences, free of charge. Vice-President Shaughnessy, in an interview Monday said that traffic had become so congested that the Canadian Pacific Railway will doubletrack its line to Toronto from Montreal. Survey parties will start for this purpose at once. He also says the new air-line from Montreal to Ottawa by way of Caledonia Springs will be opened by June. Early next month the engineering department of the C. P. R. will commence several important pieces of work upon their system entailing the expenditure of large sums of money. At Galt about $100,000 will be expended in the construction of a new bridge over the Grand River, the building of a new station and improvements to a new station and improvements to tracks; at Woodstock there will be an expenditure of $14,000 for a new station and alterations to the track; at Owen Sound $16,000 will be spent in a new engine house to hold six locomotives, and additional track accommodation, and at Toronto Lyngton the modation, and at Toronto Junction the sum of $6,000 will be required for the extension of the car repairing shops. In addition to this work the line between Toronto and Windsor, Toronto and Owen Sound and portions east of Montreal is to be ballasted; the line between Montreal and Vaudreuil is to be double-tracked to accommodate heavy suburban traffic, and a large of the line east of Montreal is to be furnished with the new heavy steel rails. Large numbers of workmen will be required and the line will be a scene of activity during the coming summer.

Within ten miles of Pittsburg work has been begun on what will be the deepest railway cut in Western Pennsylvania, which perhaps means the country. One hundred workmen are now at work at Glenn station, above Woodville on the Chartiers branch of tion. Work on the double tracking has already begun. The best engineers in the railroad business were consulted on the work, whether it would better to make the tunnel double ing a cut. The cut idea won the day, and work has just begun. What will be the width of the top of the cut when it is completed is now a cut when it is completed is now a matter of serious conjecture; the ground has been found to be of a soft, clayey nature, likely to slide at any moment, and it is admitted that the slope must be great. Already the workmen have encountered a five-foot vein of limestone and a small vein of coal. These alone are the only stable substances found on the hillside. It is estimated that the depth of the cut from the rails will be about 130 feet. Present computations are that it will be about the middle of July before the work on this cut is completed. The present tunnel, through which many trains are passing daily, is between 300 and 400 feet long .- Pittsburg Dispatch.

Washington, April 10.—The radical theory of Christianity is set forth by Dr. Talmage in this discourse. The text is Helbrews, ix., 22: "Without shedding of blood is no remission." John Greenleaf Whittier, the last of the great school of American poets that made the last quarter of this century brilliant, asked me in the White Moun- haif. At two o'clock tomorrow afternoon go among the places of business or toil. It will be a not difficult thing for you to find men who, by their looks, show you that they are overworked. They are prematurely old. They are hastening rapidly towards their decease. They have gone through all crises in business that shattered their nervous system, and pulled on the brain. They have a shortness of breath, and a pain in the back of the head, and at night an insomnia that alarms them. Why are they drudging at business early and late? For fun? No. Because they are avaricious? In many cases, no. Because their own personal expenses are lav-4sh? No. The simple fact is, the man is enduring all that fatigue and exasperation, and wear and tear, to keep his home prosperous. He is simply the champion of a homestead for which he wins bread, and wardrobe, and educations bread, and wardrobe, and educations of critics to shoot at. In detailed the myrmidons of darkness. But yonder is a clear light burning, and outside on a window casement a glass or pitcher containing food for a sick child; the food is set in the fresh air. This is the sixth night that mother has sat up with that sufferer. She is very anxious, for she has buried three children with the same disease, and she prays and weeps, each prayer and sob ending with a kiss of the pale cheek. By dint of kindness she gets the little one through the ordeal. After it is all over the mother is taken down. Brain and nervous fever sets in, and one day she leaves the convalescent child with a mother's blessing, and goes up to join the three departed ones in the kingdom of heaven. Life for life. Substitution! The fact is that there are an uncounted rumber of mothers who, after they have navigated a large family of children through all the diseases of infancy, and got them fairly started up the flowering slope of boyhood and girlhood, have only strength enough left to die. Martyrdom of the domestic circle. Substitution. About 38 years ago there went forth from our Northern and Southern homes hundreds of thousands of men to do battle. All the poetry of war soon vanished, and left them nothing but the terrible prose. They waded knee-deep in mud. They slept in snow-banks. They marched till their cut feet tracked the earth. They were swindled out of their honest rations, and lived on meat not fit for a dog. They had jaws fractured, and eyes extinguished, and limbs shot away. Thousands of men cried for water as they lay on the field the night after the battle, and they got it not. They were homesick, and received no message from their loved ones. They died in barns, in bushes, in ditches, the buzzards of the summer heat the only attendants on their obsequies. No one but the infinite God stitute! who knows everything, knows the tenbattlefields. Why did these fathers leave their children and go to the front, and why did these young men, postponing the marriage-day, start out into the probabilities of never coming back? For a principle they died. Life for life. Blood for blood. Substitution! But we need not go so far. What the cametery? and ye visited me." Life for life. Blood for blood. Substitution!

In the legal profession I see the same cries, "By that blood you and I will be bishop Baillargeon on a visit to Rome."

On his return he received the amoint. off him only by armed constables. Who would volunteer to be his counsel? No attorney wanted to sacrifice his popularity by such an ungrateful task. All were silent save one, a young lawyer with feeble voice, that could hardly be heard outside the bar, pale and thin and awkward. It was William H. Seward, who saw that the prisoner was idiotic and irresponsible, and ought to be put in an asylum, rather than put to death, the heroic counsel uttering these beautiful words:

heart, I can expect to find a sentiment, look through the figure of speech tow- a thought, not to say of reward, or of acknowledgment, or even of recognibefore heaven, and you, that to the best of my knowledge and belief, the prisoner at the bar does not at this moment know why it is that my shadow falls on you instead of his own." The gallows got its victim, but the creature showed to all the surgeons and to all the world that the public were wrong, and William H. Seward was right, and that hard, stony step of obloquy in the Auburn court-room was the first step of the stairs of fame up which he went to the top, or to within one step of the top, that last denied him through the treachery of American politics. Nothing sublimer was ever seen in an American courtroom than William H. Seward, without reward, standing between the furious populace and the loathsome imbecile. Substitution

In the realm of the fine arts there brilliant but hypercriticised painter, Joseph William Turner, was met by a volley of abuse from all the art galhave since won the applause of all civllized nations, "The Fifth Plague of famous essay on art that the world ever saw, or ever will see-John Ruskin's "Modern Painters." For seventeen years this author fought the batthere you will find a dim light, but in poverty and broken-heartedness, the tles of the maltreated artist, and after, most of the houses, from base to top, painter had died, and the public tried to undo their cruelties toward him by giving him a big funeral and burial in St. Paul's Cathedral, his old-time friend took out of a tin box 19,000 pieces of paper containing drawings by the old painter, and through many weary and uncompensated months assorted and arranged them for public observation. People say John Ruskin in his old days is cross, misanthropic and morbid. Whatever he may do that he ought not to do. He will leave this world insolvent as far as it has any capacity to pay his author's pen for its chivalric and Christian defense of a poor painter's pencil.

What an exalting principle this which leads one to suffer for another! Nothing so kindles enthusiasm or awakens eloquence, or chimes poetical canto, or moves nations. The principle is the dominant one in our religion—Christ the Martyr, Christ the Celestial Hero, Christ the Defender, Christ the Substitute. He forsook a throne and sat down on his own footstool. He came from the top of glory to the bottom of humiliation, and changed a circumference seraphic for a circumference diabolic. Once waited on by angels, now hissed at by brigands. From afar and high up he came down; past meteors, swifter than they; by starry thrones, himself more lustrous; past larger worlds to a smaller world; down stairs of firmaments, and from cloud to cloud, and through tree-top and into the camel's stall, to thrust his shoulder under our burdens and take the lances of pain through his vitals, and wrapped himself in all the agonies which we deserve for our misdoings, and stood on the splitting decks of a foundering vessel, amid the drenching surf of the sea, and passed midnights on the mountains and wild beasts of prey, and stood at the point where all earthly and infernal hostilities charged on him at once with their keen sabres-our Sub-

When did attorney ever endure so thousandth part of the length, and breadth, and depth, and height of anguish of the Northern and Southern mother for the patient in the lazaretto, or mother for the child in membraneous croup, as Christ for us, and Christ for you, and Christ for me? Shall any man or woman or child in this audition of that one moment which was deemed under his one arm, and all their sorrows under his other arm, and said: "I will atone for these under my right arm, and will heal all those under my left me with all they surges, ye oceans of sorrow"? And the thunderbolts struck him from above, and the seas of trouble rolled up from beneath, hurricane after hurricane, and cyclone after cyclone and then and there, in presence of heaven and earth and hell—yea, all worlds witnessing the price, the bitter price, the transcendent price, the awful price, the glorious price, the infinite price, the eternal price, was paid that sets us free. That is what Paul means, that is what I mean, that is what all those who have ever had their hearts changed mean by "blood."

I glory in this religion of blood. I am thrilled as I see the suggestive color in the sacramental cup. I am thrilled as I see the altars of ancient sacrifice crimson with the blood of the slain lamb, and Leviticus is to me not so much the Old Testament as the so much the Old Testament as the New. Now I see why the destroying angel, passing over Egypt in the night, spared all those houses that had blood sprinkled on their door posts. Now I know what Isalah means when he speaks of "one in red apparel coming with dyed garments from Bozrah"; and whom the Apocalypse means when it describes a heavenly chieftain whose them. It is the most wonderful it describes a heavenly chieftain whose preventative of disease known.

John, the apostle, means when he speaks of the "precious blood that cleanseth from all sin"; and what the small price.

In the legal profession I see the same principle of self-sacrifice. In 1846 William Freeman, a pauperized and idiotic negro, was at Auburn, N. Y., on trial for murder. He had slain the entire Van Nest family. The foaming wrath of the community could be kept back of Jerusalem was the battle field on which Christ achieved our liberty! It was a most exciting day I spent on the battle field of Waterloo. Starting out with the morning train from Brussels, Belgium, we arrived in about an hour on the famous spot. A son of one who was in the battle, and who had heard from his father a thousand times the who story recited, accom-panied us over the field. There stood the old Hougomont Chateau, the walls dented and shattered by grape shot and cannon ball. There is the well in which three hundred dying and dead were piled. Yonder were the 160 guns of the English, and the 250 guns of the French. Yonder the Hanoverian Hussars fled for the woods.

Yonder was the ravine of Chain, which the French cavalry, not knowing the ground. that it was a hollow in the ground, rolled down and down, troop after troop, tumbled into one awful mass upon the foe. In that orchard 2,500 men were cut to pieces. Here stood Wellington, with white lips, and up that knoll rode Marshal Ney on his broke, and Marshal Ney, with his boot slashed by a sword, and his hat off. and his face covered with powder and blood, tried to rally his troops as he 'Come and see how a marshal of France dies on the battle field.' From yonder direction Grouchy was expected for the French reinforcement: but he came not. Around those woods Blucher was looked for to reinforce the English, and just in time he came up. Yonder is the field where Napoleon stood, his arms through the reins of the horse's bridle, dazed and insane, trying to go back." Scene of a battle out: "Boys, you can't think of giving way? Remember old England!" and the tides turned, and at 8 o'clock in the evening the man of destiny, who was called by his troops Old Two Hundred Thousand, turned away with broken heart, and the fate of centuries was decided.

No wonder a great mound has been reared there, hundreds of feet high-a mound at the expense of millions of was as remarkable an instance. Of ten business a young author of 24 years, just one ternoon, the greatest battle of the universe went on. Eternal destinies were verse went on. Eternal destinies were being decided. All the arrows of hell pierced our Chieftain, and the battleaxes struck him, until brow, and cheek, and shoulder, and hand, and foot, were incarnadined with oozing life; but he fought on until he gave a final stroke with sword from Jehovah's buckler, and the commander-in-chief of hell and all his forces fell back in everlasting ruin, and the victory is ours. And on the mound that celebrates the triumph we plant this day two figures, not in bronze, or iron, or sculptured marble, but two figures of living light, the lion of Judah's tribe and the Lamb that was slain.

Death of Cardinal Taschereau at Quebec

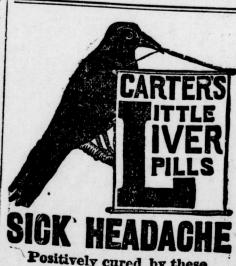

After a Long Illness-Result of Spine Disease and an Over-Worked Brain -The First Canadian Cardinal,

Quebec, April 13.—Cardinal Taschereau died at 6:30 last evening. His ailment was spine disease, accompanied by an over-worked brain. Preparations have begun already for the funeral, which will take place next Tuesday morning.

Elzean Alexander Taschereau, the late cardinal, was born in Ste. Mary de Beauce, Que., in 1820. He was of French descent. When 8 years of age he was sent to the Seminary of Quebec. Nine years later he went to Rome and a year later received the tonsuret. The same year he returned to Quebec and resumed his theological studies, and on Sept. 13, 1842, was ordained a priest. He was soon afterward appointed to the chair of moral philosophy in the Seminary of Quebec, which position he filled for twelve years with great ability.

In 1847, when an unknown and fatal fever devastated Grosse Isle, he volunteered to assist in ministering to the sick and dying, and labored assiduously until he was stricken with the fever, and for weeks his life hung by a

In 1854 he was sent to Rome by the second provincial council of Quebec to present its decrees to Pope Pius IX. for ratification. He remained there for two years, making a study of canon law. He received the degree of doctor of canon law from the Roman Seminary in 1856. On his return he became director of the Petit Seminaire, and he held the office of the superior of the Grand Seminary till 1859, when he was appointed director of public instruction for Lower Canada. In 1860 he became superior of the

On his return he received the appointment of vicar-general of the diocese of Quebec. In 1865 business of the university again called him to Rome, and in the following year he was reappointed superior of the Grand Seminary.

He was in attendance at the Ecumenical Council at Rome in 1870, and on the death of the Archbishop of Quebec, in the same year, he was appointed administrator of the archdiocese jointly with Vicar-General Cozeau. In February, 1871, he was appointed Archbishop of Quebec, and consecrated on March 19 by Archbishop Lynch, of Toronto. He visited Rome a number of times on business connected with the affairs of the archdiocese.

In 1886 he was created the first Canadian cardinal, the beretta being conferred upon him with great pomp at Quebec on July 21. He was exceedingly active in promoting the cause of popular education, and establishing charitable and benevolent institutions in all portions of the Dominion. In 1893, upon his own request, Mgr. Begin took charge of the archbishopric. From this till the time of his passing away he has been sick nearly all the time, while the last six months his disease has kept him almost continually to his room.

This is hard work,

most people think. But is it any harder for a man than the old-fashioned way of washing is for a woman? And yet how many women, apparently bright and intelligent, still persist in that clumsy, wearisome, expensive way of washing!

Why don't they get Pearline and save the hard work, the ruinous wear and tear, the needless rubbing and wrenching? Pearline can't hurt the clothes. It's the most economical thing to wash with. Why don't they use it, like millions of other women? 550

Today, a bye-election is taking place in West Prince, P. E. I., to Ell a seat in the House of Commons. This will probably be one of the last elections to be held on the antiquated, expensive, and altogether unfair lists provided by the discredited Dominion Franchise Act of 1885. It is a significant commentary on this act that in the election today no man who is under 25 years of age will be able to vote. Away with a measure so unfair to a large body of the electorate, and expensive to the taxpayers as a whole!

A correspondent is informed that in 1857 John Scatcherd was re-elected M. P. for West Middlesex. On Mr. Scatcherd's death, some time after, A. P. Macdonald was elected, but in 1861 he was defeated by Thomas Scatcherd. who served till Confederation. Then the county was redivided, and Mr. Scatcherd became M. P. P. for the north riding. In the same year, 1867, A. P. Macdonald defeated Dr. Billington for the west riding. In 1872, George W. There is a speculative movement in favor of York and elsewhere have been importing large quantities, and in the last 24 months no fewer than 11,000,000 bags, of 132 pounds each, have been imported into the States, though the average consumption for four or five years has been only about 4,500,000 bags annually. The speculative nature of the trade has been shown by the increase in the price of one cent a pound in the last few days. It would be easier to make money out of the proposed special tax of $1 a barrel on beer than to collect taxes on tea and coffee.

The report gives at length a statement of the agreement reached between the G. T. R. and the Wabash Company for affording that enterprising company trackage facilities for both freight and passenger traffic over the Grand Trunk line between Windsor and Buffalo and Niagara Falls via Welland Junction. By this bargain the Wabash company is granted the joint use for a period of 21 years of the G. T. R. lines between Windsor and the Black Rock station of the G. T. R. in Buffalo, via Glencoe, St. Thomas, Welland Junction and Fort Erie-the international bridge, controlled by the G. T. R., being used. The distance between Windsor and Buffalo is 228 4-10 miles, and the distance from Welland Junction to Niagara Falls is 171/2 miles. The Wabash also gets the use of the G. T. ## HONEST MEN, READ THIS

Most men are honest. Ninety-nine in a hundred can be trusted. We have learned this in 15 years' active practice among men who are weak in the parts that make true and vigorous manhood. We have successfully treated hundreds of thousands of cases, and, with rare exceptions, have always been paid for our remedies and appliances. Our treatment is so sure to develop shrunken parts, to give bodily strength, to remove impediments to marriage, to stop unnatural losses, to restore to weak men the feelings and buoyancy of youth, that we gladly offer a Free Trial for Ten Days We will send our medicines and appliances free to any honest man, who may try them ten days. If he is pleased with the result, he is to keep and pay for them.

If he is dissatisfied, he has simply to return the appliances and medicine to us, and that ends the transaction, without any expense whatever. There is no C.O.D. fraud, no deception of any nature.

If you want to know what our treatment consists of before trying it, send at once for our famous free book, "Complete Manhood." Sent sealed in plain envelope. Cut out this adver-ERIE MEDICAL CO., Buffalo, N. Y. We pay duty and send all packages from Canadian side,

The situation is regarded as so critical that the Republicans of the ways and means reached an agreement as to a method committee have of raising $10,000,000 additional revenue annually for the prosecution of the war by increasing the tax on beer and tobacco and placing a tax on tea and coffee. They also agree to authorize the issue of a popular loan of $500,-

000,000 and the issue of certificates of indebtedness to meet emergencies. THE FORAKER RESOLUTION. Washington, D. C., April 13.-The Foraker resolution, which it is believed will be the one submitted to both the house and senate today by foreign affairs committees after tine at 84c. Argentine sheep brought and which it was thought late last night would pass both branches of congress today, reads as follows: "Be it resolved, by the senate and house of representatives of the United States of America:

"1. That the people of the Island of Cuba are, and of right ought to be, free and independent. "2. That the Government of United States hereby recognizes the republic of Cuba as the true and lawful government of that island. "3. That the war Spain is waging against Cuba is so destructive of the commercial and property interests of the United States, and so cruel, barbarous and inhuman in its character, as to make it the duty of the United States to demand, and the Government of the United States does hereby demand, that she at once withdraw her land and naval forces from Cuba and Cuban waters. "4. That the president of the United States use, and he is hereby authorized, empowered and directed to use, if necessary, the entire land and naval forces of the United States to carry the resolutions into effect." THE HOUSE RESOLUTION. The house committee had a harder time than the senate committee. Congressman William Alden Smith bolted his party, holding out for a statement regarding independence, and at a late hour last night the committee agreed to the following resolution: "Resolved, that the president be, and he is hereby authorized and directed to intervene at once to stop the war which is now being waged in the Island of Cuba between the government of Spain and the inhabitants of the island, to the end that the people of the island may be enabled by their own action to establish a stable and independent government of their own. Resolved, further, that the president authorized and empowered to use the land and naval forces to accomplish the purposes herein set forth, and that congress will support him by all necessary and needful legislation."

These resolutions do not recognize the present government in the island, but provide for its ultimate recognition. It is not a war cry from the senate to the house resolutions, and the two committees should have little difficulty in getting together.

ARRIVAL OF GEN. LEE. Consul-General Lee arrived yesterday afternoon, and at once became the hero of the hour. There was a great outpouring of the people on the streets to witness the serenade rendered him. On his arrival he visited the state department and the White House. Consul-General Lee was before the senate committee on foreign relations for an hour, late in the day. He talked freely with the committee in regard to the conditions in Cuba, and especially with reference to the destruction of the Maine. He said that in his opinion there was no room to doubt that the destruction of the vessel was due to Spanish agencies. mean the Spanish authorities in Cuba?" he was asked by a member of the committee. "I mean the Spanish officials," he replied, "but not General I think some of the officials were cognizant of the plans to destroy the vessel." Gen. Lee said that Brice, the American consul at Matanzas, Cuba, with thirteen refugees, arrived in New York yesterday on the steamer Jarlsburg. In the party were the consul's staff and their families, who were forced to flee for their lives. Consul Brice said that for three days before leaving Matanzas his life was constantly threatened, and that the Spanish mobs made several attempts to drag him through the streets. During three days Mr. Brice remained at his post, distributing supplies to the starving reconcentradoes. On April board the steamer, which sailed immediately. So forcible was the mob's violence that not one of the party had time to bring on board any baggage.

The consul's loss in this respect was SAGASTA SEEMS SATISFIED. Madrid, April 13.—Senor Sagasta, the premier, on leaving the palace after his daily visit to the queen regent yesterday, informed the newspaper representatives that the government was wait-known to him, not hostile in tone to-ward Spain, and that he would conwhich the armistice in Cuba afforded While the message of the president is much criticised by the general public and by a portion of the press as provocative, it is known that the members affairs, Senor Callon, at the request of of the government and Gen. Woodford | Senor Agasta, made a report on the do not consider it so, but are confident of a permanent peace.

PRESS OPINION. London, April 13.—The Daily News says editorially this morning: no desire to detract from the credit that justly belongs to the pope; but neither the spiritual nor temporal machinery of Europe would have been put in motion to stop the horrors in Cuba, except for the action of the United States. A Weyler would be invaluable in Armenia. There is nothing selfish in Amercia's resolve that Cuba shall be free from her butchers and tormentors. If the pope really desires peace he could exert the whole of his great influence with Spain, who cannot in the long run disobey him; while NOT CALLED ON TO ACT AT Spain would not suffer humiliation in submitting to the pontiff, who has no physical force behind him." The Times says: "Optimistic critics of President McKinley's message lost sight of the fact that in both Washington and Madrid those whose chief preoccupation, to say the least, is not the maintenance of peace, are playing with fire in a powder magazine. Gen. Fitzhugh Lee's influence will tend to aggravate the bitterness felt for the loss of the Maine—a natural cause of suspicion and anger; but to blow the smouldering fires into flames at the present critical moment is a rash act, not easily to be condoned by the con-science of the civilized world." THE FEELING IN SPAIN. El Liberal, hitherto so favorable to the present cabinet, criticises in the sharpest manner its surrender to the powers, and says that only an ener-getic attitude toward the United States, a clear vindication of the rights of Spain in Cuba, and a cessation of assistance from America to direct successfully and defend enerthe insurgents will redeem the contiduct of the cabinet in the eyes of nation that is morally sad and weary of successive humiliations. The Imparcial boldly asserts that the honor of Spain can only be vindicated if the truce is short and decisively devoted to complete naval and military preparations, and to sending a powerful fleet of battleships, cruis-

The ministerial Liberal papers and Conservatives like the Epoca do their sage to be "deplorable," and he is said best to allay public opinion and military displeasure by showing that the Spanish position is strengthened for developments of the Cuban question by her having assented to the proposals of the pope and the powers. They try to make out now that all concessions must come from America, by withdrawing her war vessels, ceasing to give insurgents assistance of any kind and respecting the rights of Spain and the new autonomous regime in Cuba. The minister for war, in an interview with Spanish reporters, expressed the same hopes, saying: "No armistice has been granted-inerely a suspension of hostilities, with a view to prepare for the submission of the insurgents and concessions on the part Military and naval circles believe of the United States. Otherwise both would pass for harboring a desire to prolong the crisis and lead to war. that the truce will be unlikely to lead to anything unless the pope and the powers exercise again the same pressure upon Spain and President Mc-Kinley and force both to make concessions in the final settlement of the Cuban questions, which it will be difficult to induce the Spanish people to accept, unless their rights are resrected and her debt charged to Cuba.

"HEADING FOR WAR." London, April 13.—The afternoon papers of this city unanimously ex-press the opinion that both the United States and Spain are heading straight for war. There is also a disposition to blame President McKinley for his alleged indecision. The Westminster Gazette remarks:

"If the proposed resolutions pass it means the Americans have cut selves off from peace. They will have done so deliberately, after much thought and considerable provocation, and in spite of concessions upon which at least a temporary peace might have been patched up. It will be their PRESENT. The Spanish Government, however, expressed the opinion that it is called upon to take action until the ount. recommendations of President McKinley have become specific acts. Thus it is considered by the Spaniards here that matters are practically as they were before the message was sent to congress, and the opinion is expressed in official circles that neither the message nor last night's cabinet meeting have changed the prospect of peace. (Cheers.) It was the irony of fate that Sir Charles Tupper, who in an interview in the Montreal Star had sought to minimize the effect of Mr. Fielding's budget sreech by saying that it had been delivered to an empty house, was compelled last night to content himself with an audience of a mere handful of members, who appeared not to be interested in what he said. He spoke after Sir Richard. The opposition leader's speech ranged all over the field of Canadian politics, and abounded in superlative invective and extravagant self-glorification. He then took up the question of the preferential tariff, maintaining that the government had deceived the English people with the tariff of last year, which was not the same as that of today. That tariff of last year was the most extraordinary, the most impudent attempt to mislead the government and people and manufacin any country. In conclusion he pronounced the government unworthy of the confidence of the people of Canada. Mr. Paterson moved the adjournment of the debate.

He was wise who wrote, "Half the sting of poverty or of small means is gone when one keeps house for one's own comfort, and not for the comment of one's neighbors." Deny it as we will, few of us have the moral force to set up a standard of our own, based upon our own incomes and our own particular home environment. We commit the folly of regulating our expenses by the income of some one else. If the Browns across the street hang up expensive lace curtains, we are discontented until lace curtains have gone up to our windows, no matter how much smaller our income may be than that of the Browns. If the Smiths put down a velvet carpet our neat and pretty ingrain becomes an eyesore to us. We are extremely mindful of what our neighbors will think about We are extremely many things that ought not to conthem in the least. We have no standards of our own. Our dress, and even our tables, must be regulated by the standards of others. We have not the courage nor the independence to be indifferent to the comment of our neighbors. This form of moral cow-beyond their incomes. They can face ardice is causing many families to live in debt and forfeit their self-respect easier than they can face the unfavorable comment of their friends and neighbors. The extent to which this imitation of others is carried would be ludicrous did it not bring so much unhappiness in its train. It is frequently the direct cause of the discord and discontent and debt that have driven hapoiness from the family hearth-stone. Let us have a standard of our own, based upon our own tastes, our own incomes, our own needs, and let us Toronto, April 13.-The twenty-third cheerfully and bravely adhere to this standard, heedless of that dreadful bugbear, "What will the neighbors say?"-Harper's Bazar.

*`@+@+@+@+@+@+@+@+@+@+@+@+ Mabin glanced at him, and began to hope nervously that she might not see too much of him. She had never seen a man whom she considered so handsome as this brown-faced Joung lieutenant, with the merry, black eyes, who made her feel so ridiculously shy and stiff. And the very attraction he had for her seemed to the simple young girl alarming, since she raised him in her maiden fancy to a pinnacle from which such a peerless creature could never descend to her.

In spite of herself her tone sounded cold and constrained, therefore, as she cut short the pause in the conversation by asking if they were all well at the vicarage.

"Quite well, thank you," answered Rudolph, demurely. "I suppose that kind inquiry is meant for a snub, isn't it? and intended to imply that I ought not to have addressed you in this informal manner over the wall, but that I ought to have called in the proper manner at the other side of the house?"

"It wasn't meant to imply that," replied Mabin with solemn straightforwardness. "Only I wanted to say for years." something, and I had nothing better to say. I must tell you that everybody says I have no conversation."

"People allow you very few good points, according to your account. "Quite as many as I have, though." "Well, at least, then, you have the one merit of unusual modesty." Mabin looked up at him steadily and

"It's rather difficult for me to talk to you, because I can never tell whether you are serious or only laughing at me. Don't you rather-rather puzzle Mrs.

"Well, I am afraid I rather-rather shock her, too." "We must all seem, down here, very antediluvian to you. There is only one person about here you can speak to in your own way." "Mrs. Dale?"

To Mabin's fanciful and rather jealous eyes it seemed that Rudolph's color grew a little deeper as he uttered the "Yes"

"Ah! you will have an opportunity of learning the art, if you are going to stay with her." "But it is an art which will be entirely useless when I get back here again. Papa and mamma would think it rather shocking. Do you know, if

"I've got something to tell you," said he. "But it's rather a confidential communication, and these lilac bushes extend a long way. Will you come nearer to the wall, or may I get over it?" "You may get over if you like," said Mabin, coming, as she spoke, a little nearer to the Eushes.

Rudolph availed himself of the permission in the twinkling of an eye, and stood beside her on the grass path under the limes, looking down at the pretty nape of the girlish neck, which showed between the plain, wide, turndown collar of pale blue linen, which she wore with her fresh holland frock.

But she was also surprised to see how white Mrs. Haybrow had grown. "You should have waited until after dinner. You look quite worn out," she said. "Well, and what had your friend got to say to you?"

The Canadian Ship, Marlborough Wrecked-14 of Her Crew Probably Lost.

Fort Simpson, N. W. T., March 28., via Saddle Lake and Qu'Appelle, N. W. T., April 13.—Late on the evening of March 23, Chas. H. Walker, whose home is in Seattle, Wash., arrived here with his team of three husky dogs, which had brought him all the way from Point Barrow, on the Arctic coast. Mr. Walker brought the information that the greatest catastrope that ever overtook the Pacific Steam Whaling Company's fleet came upon them last September. He brings an identifying letter from the company's agent with the fleet.

PERISHED ON THE ICE. Mr. Walker says that as many as eleven men perished on the floating ice upon which they took refuge when the boats went down. He says they were on the ice ten days and nights, and that the cold blasts from the north caused the most terrible suffering during the entire time. All were badly frozen, and more than one of those who perished were crazed before being finally overcome by the cold. Walter Whiting, steward of the Novarch, in despair, shot himself.

ATE THEIR MOCCASINS. The first and second engineers of this steamer were overwhelmed with the intense suffering, and both went mad before finally succumbing to the pangs hunger and the benumbing cold. While all started from the wrecked boats with food and blankets, they were obliged to drop everything while jumping from one ice cake to another. Some of them chewed their deerskin moccasins to prolong life. A BRAVE WOMAN.

Mrs. Whiteside, wife of the captain of the Novarch, was the only woman among the shipwrecked party, and she not only saved her own life, but encouraged her husband, and conducted herself so heroically as to inspire others with renewed courage. Mr. Walker says that his steamer, the Orca, on which he was "boat leadsank about 6 a.m. on Sept. 28. Everybody on board escaped to the Jess P. Freeman, and at about 10:30 a.m. the same day this steamer was lous crowd of women gazed at him and sunk, but not until all on board

BATTLE FOR EXISTENCE in which the despairing ones went helplessly to their graves, and the strong and hopeful, by clinging fast to the last desperate chance, saved their lives.

The steamer Novarch was also lost, but it is not mentioned in Mr. Drynan's letter. No news of this calamity has as yet reached the whaling company, hence Mr. Walker is making the best time he can. The trip he is making on snowshoes will be the longest in a continuous direction ever attempted. He will have made upwards of 3,000 miles over the snow when he reaches Edmonton. CANADIAN SHIP MARLBOROUGH

LOST. New York, April 13.-The North German Lloyd steamer Saale (Capt. Blanke), which arrived yesterday from Genoa, reports that on Sunday last she picked up a lifeboat containing two men of the crew of the ship Marl-borough, of Windsor, N. S., who probably are all that survive of the ship's crew of fourteen. The two sailors were very much exhausted when rescued by the Saale.

The Marlborough sailed from St. John, N. B., March 16, for Sharpness, with a cargo of deals. There was experienced a succession of heavy gales, chiefly from the eastward, in which the ship labored heavily, causing her to leak badly. The storm continued without any cessation until April 4, when, during the height of the gale, THE SHIP WENT TO PIECES.

The crew attempted to launch the lifeboat, but it was dashed to pleces before it reached the water. There was one other boat. The men went to wo: k making life-rafts from the cargo of deals, and nine of them left the side the water-logged vessel. Cochran and four men were the last to leave in the remaining boat. Shortafter abandoning the Marlborough hose in the lifeboat lost sight of the mainder of the crew. The captain's boat drifted away before the gale. In the hurry of abandoning the Marlborough but scant provisions could be placed in the boat. The little crew SUFFERED FEARFULY from thirst, and later on from hunger. On April 7 Capt. Cochran died from exhaustion and exposure; the following day another occupant of the boat died, and on Easter morning, at daylight, another of the crew died. There were now left in the boat Chief Officer George V. Masters and Seaman James Fannon. Both men were well-night worn out from hunger and thirst. Their boat was in a badly damaged condition, having been stove in by the sea and badly battered by the floating wreckage from their vessel.

RELIEF AT LAST. They had almost despaired of being rescued when Mate Masters sighted the smoke of a steamer heading to the westward. The Saale's lookout had meanwhile sighted the castaways, and the ship's course was headed for the boat, which was reached just before 10

The Mariborough was built at Windsor, N. S., in 1863, and owned by George A. Churchill, of that place. She registered 1,383 tons.

DAYLIGHT GHOST. Mysterious Hand Which Appears in

Window Near Cornwall. Cornwall, April 13.-The sensation of the hour is the ghostly hand which appears every afternoon in a pane of glass in the window of John Martin's house at Mille Roches. Hundreds of people who laughed at the tale as a supernatural yarn, have, like the doubting Thomas, seen the hand for themselves and are at a loss to explain its appearance. It appears to be in the glass, and is clearly defined, but is only visible at certain hours. The super-stitious are inclined to connect its appearance with a recent death in the family. Send to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for a free copy of the "People's Medical Adviser." For paper-covered copy enclose likely to be bought from her by the mailing only. Cloth-bound, 50 stamps.

"Cricket is the national game in Australia, and the interest in it is widespread and on the increase. When a great match is on, immense throngs gather about the bulletin boards and watch eagerly for reports. There is little betting, and every good play, whether by the home or visiting team, is appreciated, and cheered for what it is worth. It is as near sport for sport's sake as can be found in athletics today, and happily the curse of gambling has not cast a pall over it. The parasites of society who worship the goddess of chance have so far confined their nefarious trade to the race course, and may the day never come when they think of entering the cricket field to degrade a healthy ex-

His stroke is described as one that will 'whiz like blue lightning, burn up the grass as it travels, and make the hair stand on end, if it doesn't actually curl it.' ercise and pleasurable sport. "The world's record for attendance at a cricket match was broken at Sydney recently, when 34,500 people paid $7,500 to see the match between New South Wales and Mr. Stoddart's visiting English team. It was a beautiful summer day, well calculated to display the brightly colored dresses and hats worn by the ladies. A good-natured throng, from the governor in his box to the "larrikin" on the bleachers, entered into the spirit of the occasion. Enthusiasm reached its highest pitch when the Indian prince, Ranjitsinhji, made his appearance. He is a born cricketer, and treated the spectators to some of the most brilliant feats ever witnessed in fielding and batting. A typical oriental in appearance, he is cool, steady and graceful at the bat, handling it with the skill of a master. While in action he has the agility and rapidity of movement so characteristic of an elemental race. The crowd recognize his skill and admire his style and individuality. As might be expected, "Ranji," as he is familiarly called, is as great a fad in Australia as Paderewski was in America. The ladies, in their rash, impulsive way, adore his title and applaud everything he does. The press reports of a ban-quet which he attended says: 'A cur-

"If Thomas Carlyle were living he would doubtless be constrained to add to his writings on 'Hero Worship' a chapter on 'The Hero as Athlete,' and this Indian prince of the royal blood would furnish an excellent subject. His popularity in India, England and Australia arises no less from his sterling manly worth than from his singular achievements on the cricket field. Born and bred a Rajputi prince-a race that are sticklers in matters of caste-Ranjitsinhji has given the intellectual wheel a full turn, as it were the is a Cambridge scholar), and has thus brought the east and west into closer proximity and deeper sympathy

MORRISON-ROSS. A quiet wedding took place at the residence of Mrs. James Ross, 831 King street, when her second daughter, Lottie, was united in marriage to John R. Morrison, of A. E. Pavey & Co. Miss Emma Ross, of Toronto, cousin of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, and Mr. Albert Friendship, of this city, assisted the groom. Rev. Robert Johnston tied the nuptial knot. The groom's present to the bride was a purse of gold. Among the other presents received were a beautiful piano from the groom's father and a magnificent silver tea service from the bride's mother; also a handsome leather couch by the Pickwick Club, of which the groom was one of the oldest and most valued members. Young Sullivan Before the Police Court

Again-John Renehan Allowed to Go. Timothy Sullivan, who has for the past twelve or fourteen years been a frequent occupant of the police court dock, was in his old place behind the bars this morning. He was charged as a drunk, and was remanded for a week at his own request. Sullivan has been up 33 times, and served five terms in the Central, one for three months, and four for six months each. It is only a month since he served the last term. John Renehan, the drayman, who confessed to taking stamps from John S. Pearce & Co.'s store, where he was employed as a carter, came up for sen-Mr. Pearce had written the magistrate a letter, in which he asked for a suspension of sentence upon the prisoner, adding that the mortification of spirit and loss of character would be a severe punishment for the prison-er. "I think," said the court, "that a great deal of your trouble has arisen largely from your intemperate habits." Renehan was allowed to go with a caution that should he ever come up again his past deeds would seriously militate against any leniency the court might otherwise feel disposed to extend.
