Street Railway Company and Bell People "Mix Up"*Row Over the Opening of a Manhole at the Corner of Dundas and Richmond Streets.

The Bell Telephone Company and the London Street Railway Company are worked up to a high state of excitement over the opening of a huge manhole at the corner of Dundas and Richmond streets, in front of the offices of the C. P. R.

The Bell people have no surface wires on Dundas street, all its wires being underground in large conduits. The business of the company is so great that it is now necessary to stretch an extra cable carrying 800 wires, or the wires for 400 phones, in the conduit.

To do the work it will be necessary to open the manhole, and keep it open all one day, or perhaps two days. At least, the Bell people say they can do the work in one day, but the street railway people say it will take two days.

When the manhole is open it is impossible to run cars around the south-west corner of Dundas and Richmond streets, and, of course, this means the knocking out of the Ridout street belt.

and the Springfield service, as they are at present operated. Mr. King has suggested to Manager Beard, of the Bell Company, that his company should do the work at night, so as to not disturb the street railway's service, but Mr. Beard informed Mr. King that the work cannot be done satisfactorily at night, and that it will have to be done in the daytime.

Mayor Interviewed. Mr. King then had an interview with the mayor, but it is understood the Bell people have an agreement with the street railway and the city to open the manhole whenever it becomes necessary, and to keep it open so long as they have work to do. Consequently, it looks as though Manager Beard holds the high cards thus far.

Manager Beard, when seen by The Advertiser, admitted that there was a little friction between the two companies, but he had declined to make any statement on the subject.

Sixteen Applications for Position of Building Inspector of London*Job Looks Good and Many Men Would Like to Secure It.

Sixteen applications have already been received by the city clerk in answer to Ald. Josh Garratt's advertisement for a building inspector, and there are more to follow. The advertisement has a couple of more times to run, so the end is not yet in sight.

Considerable amusement is being caused around the city hall by the advertisement, because No. 3 committee certainly cannot deal with the matter, as the bylaw authorizing the appointment of a building inspector has not yet been passed, and until it is passed, there will be nothing doing. Thus Ald. Garratt is accused of playing a joke on the applicants.

Must Submit Bylaw. "The bylaw must be submitted to the council before such an appointment can be made," said an alderman this morning. "When that is done the committee can then make a suggestion as to the appointment. The proper way would then be to advertise, but I think the applications in now will be considered by the committee. It will be some time yet before the appointment is made." In the meantime a number of the applicants figure out that they have been joked in the matter.

Toronto Board Confirms Appointment

The Toronto board of education has endorsed the action of the sub-committee which selected Mr. J. R. Moore, M.A., and Mr. John S. Wren, of Harvard Street Collegiate, and Mr. W. C. Ferguson, of London, for the positions in science, mathematics and modern languages in Riverdale high school. Mr. Ferguson is still out of the city, but it is thought that this action of the Toronto board finally settles the matter of his going, and that his resignation will only be a matter of a few days now.

Buffalo's Appreciation of London's Crack 7th Regiment of Fusiliers*Some Sidelights From an American Source Which Are of Much Interest.

Londoners who have been living in blissful ignorance imagining they knew a thing or two concerning their own Seventh Regiment, will be interested to learn that the people of the Bison City know more about the crack corps than the people of the Forest City.

The Buffalo News, which is usually well informed on Canadian matters, tells the people of that city that the Seventh is known as "Prince Arthur's Own Fusiliers." And then it deals with the regiment's war history in a most interesting manner, referring to the Riel rebellion of 1885 as "the frontier war of 1885." Here is an article in full:

A Buffalo Story.

Much to the joy of Chairman John L. Clawson and the other boomers of Old Home Week, the grand military parade for Canadian Day is assured. Last week the prospect was not encouraging until some enterprising persons at headquarters got busy and sent a delegation to ascertain what two Canadian regiments would be able to be present.

Late last week an acceptance was received from the Thirtieth Regiment at Hamilton, Ont. The next thing to do was to get another regiment to parade with that corps. With this object in view, a delegation was sent to London, Ont., to invite the Seventh Prince Arthur's Own Fusiliers to come to Buffalo. There was a general hurrah at headquarters when the delegation returned yesterday and reported that the invitation had been most cordially accepted.

These two regiments will parade in this city on Canadian Day. On McKinley Day the Canadian troops will participate with the National Guard at the dedication of the monument.

The War History. The Seventh Regiment is rated as one of the best regiments in the Dominion. It has had its full share of active service, first serving in the Fenian troubles, and afterward in the frontier war of 1885. When the call to arms came in the South African war, the London regiment was among the first to volunteer. Its uniform is patterned after that of the London (England) Fusiliers. With their smart red tunics and blue facings and bearskin bushes and blue trousers with a red stripe, the corps presents a unique and striking appearance.

The band of 40 pieces is known throughout the Dominion and breadth of Canada, being under the supervision of Bandmaster Slatter, one of a family of bandmasters. Besides an excellent brass band they also have a bugle band of 12 men of mean reputation. When the regiment arrives in Buffalo the members will be entertained by the Seventy-fourth Regiment of this city and will be quartered at the Seventy-fourth armory.

THE WARTON SHOOTING CASE
GOES TO THE ATTORNEY-GENERAL*A Preliminary Hearing Given Agnes Thomas Over the Slaying of Gilbert.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Warton, Aug. 22.—Agnes Thomas, having been rearrested, was brought before Police Magistrate Miller this morning, for trial. The finding of the coroner's jury last night simply meant nothing. It was nothing more or less than everyone knew. Up to the present time, none of the raiders have been on the witness-stand. They are keeping mum, lest they should be indicted for housebreaking. It is said they tell a different story, and declare that the bullets went whizzing around them, and that Gilbert took to the bush to protect himself, when he was shot. So far, therefore, there has been no rebuttal evidence whatever, as the raiders do not want to take chances of being sent to the penitentiary.

Were Roughly Used. Dr. Albert Fisher and Chief Hull were again examined, but very little new evidence was produced. It was brought out, however, that the test had been completely demolished, the furniture broken and strewn in every direction. Continued on Page Eight.

Alex. McDonald, G.T.R. Foreman,
Killed by Train at the Cove Bridge*Was in Charge of the Gang
Taking Out the Old Piers.

Mr. Alexander McDonald, of Toronto, building foreman of the Grand Trunk, was struck by train No. 67 shortly after 8 o'clock this morning, receiving injuries from which he died shortly afterwards in Victoria Hospital. He never regained consciousness after being struck. His relatives in Toronto have been notified.

McDonald was in charge of the work at the Cove bridge and had his gang at work taking out the piers. The Sarnia local was going west, and Mr. McDonald was giving his men some instructions. He was warned about the approaching train, but did not get out of the way quickly enough. He was hurled some distance. When his men reached him he was unconscious, and it was seen that he was severely injured. He was placed on a handcar and brought to the city, and taken to Victoria Hospital. Drs. Drake and McMillan found that McDonald was sinking fast, and that nothing could be done for him. He lived only five minutes after reaching the hospital. His injuries were terrible, the man having the life literally crushed out of him. His skull was fractured, his back broken, and several other bones broken.

McDonald was 70 years of age, and had been railroad foreman for many years. He was well-known among the Grand Trunk employees. The body was removed to Smith, Sons & Clark's undertaking parlors and instructions are being awaited from the relatives in Toronto.

Rev. Dr. Pidgeon Is Still Undecided

The congregation of Victoria Presbyterian Church, Toronto Junction, is anxious not to lose Rev. Dr. George C. Pidgeon from the pastorate, and in view of the invitation to him from First Church, London, which will be considered at the meeting of the Presbytery on Sept. 3, a committee has been appointed to prepare the case to be presented by the congregation at the presbytery meeting. Councillor Hain is chairman of the committee. Mr. R. C. Smith was chairman of the congregational meeting on Wednesday night, which took this action, and Mr. W. H. Fletcher secretary.

A dispatch to The Advertiser from Toronto last night stated that Dr. Pidgeon would in all probability come to London, but today's globe declares he is undecided, and that he will leave the matter entirely to his congregation. He has been invited to become the pastor of the First Presbyterian Church here to succeed Rev. W. J. Clark.

Loafing in Victoria Park Must Cease
Two Youths Fined by P. M. Love*Accused of Using Insulting Language to Passers-by—
A Warning to Others.

For some time past, complaints have been finding their way to the police station about young men who loaf about Victoria Park and conduct themselves in a disorderly and objectionable manner, by making insulting remarks about passers-by.

This morning two young men, David Cox and Bert Ball, were arraigned before Magistrate Love on such a charge and each fined $5, with a warning not to transgress in such a way in the future. The above-mentioned young men had been caught while in the park, lying on the grass near a path, speaking to all the girls who chanced along their way. Magistrate Love expressed his determination to put a stop to the nuisance, and the next man or boy caught engaged in such practices will be severely punished.

"Nathan Marks," called the court clerk three times, but Nathan did not materialize. At last a voice was heard to reply, saying the above-mentioned individual had taken his departure for the old country. Nathan is wanted on a charge of immoderate driving, and if he ever comes back while the memories of the police officers hold good, he is liable to arrest.

Harry Gainsbury, who appeared some time ago on a charge of cruelty to poultry, was fined $2 or 5 days. Robert Stanley, a prostitute-holder, was ordered to appear again on Tuesday. (Continued on Page Eight.)

He Knew Cow Would Eat Grindstone

"I felt like saying, 'I told you so,' when I read the article in The Advertiser on track elevation yesterday," said Ald. Matthews this morning. "When we had that piece of land near the Cove bridge the company had to come to us, but when we gave that away, our hold on the company was gone, and we got the worst of it. I am convinced that if the tracks are ever elevated through the city, we will have to pay for them, and no mistake. The company has got all it wanted. It does not need to elevate its tracks through the city so badly as it needed that strip of land, and when the officials of the company got that they obtained all they wanted. I wanted the whole business settled before I would give them the land, but that was not done, and the question is settled for some time. Mind you, I am in favor of going right after the company to see if something cannot be done to get the tracks elevated, and then the citizens will see that it is not their fault that something is not done. That will put it up to the company. We can then find out if the officials have been sincere in their dealings with the people of London."

A Telephone to Every 16 People

The Bell Telephone Company will shortly issue its new book, and in it will be found the names of over 3,000 subscribers in London. Three years ago there were only about 2,000 subscribers here. Three thousand 'phones means one 'phone for every 16 people who live in the Forest City.

Of course, this fact has nothing to do with the silver issue of 16 to 1. It's 'phones that being discussed. The company has installed very many two-party lines in London, the reduced rate for such 'phones tending to popularize them. It is said that within six months there will be 3,500 'phones in this city.

INSPECTOR HAS NOT ARRIVED YET*Nothing Doing in Regard to Buildings Reported as Unsafe.

The provincial building inspector, summoned by Ald. Gillean not long ago, has not yet put in an appearance, so far as can be learned, and consequently nothing has been done about the alleged unsafe buildings in this city. The department of public works paid no attention to the matter at all. "There is no provincial building inspector," said Mayor Fidd this morning. "There are factory inspectors, but their duties are not the same as would come under the work of a civic building inspector. They visit the city often, and make reports on other buildings."

SUDDEN DEATH OF A LONDON BOY*Roland Barton Passes Away
at His Home in Winnipeg.

The death occurred very suddenly on Saturday night last of Roland Ray Barton, the son of William George Barton, 322 Victor street, Winnipeg, formerly of London.

On Saturday evening the went out to St. James' Park on Portage avenue to see some friends play tennis. He had been feeling quite cheerful when he suddenly felt a severe pain in the neck and began to feel sick.

He at once returned to his home on Victor street and finding no one at home rested himself. A friend happened to call who had been visiting friends of the Bartons' down east, and was intending to deliver their greetings, and found that the boy was very ill and immediately notified the father. Dr. Barber was at once called and some other friends, but all they could do was of no avail and he died about three hours after he had been taken ill. Up until the time of his death he remained conscious. He leaves a mother and father and a brother and sister.

He was employed as a clerk in the office of the McClary Manufacturing Company's branch at Winnipeg, and was well liked and a general favorite among his friends. He was born in London, and was 15 years old. The family left this city and went west a short time ago.

FORMER LONDON LADY DIED SUDDENLY

Mrs. Thomas Haggart Dropped Dead at Pilot Mount, Manitoba.

A dispatch from Winnipeg last night announces the death of Mrs. Thos. Haggart, of Pilot Mount, Man., who formerly resided in London. She dropped dead while going about her work.

TWO STABBED TO DEATH

Italian Workmen in Coaldale, Pa., Murdered by Black Hand.

Coaldale, Pa., Aug. 22.—When Frank Peknolas, and Samuel Ambrose were walking together along Ridge street today they were attacked by several men and stabbed to death. As robbery was not the motive, and as the "Black Hand" has been active in this section, the crime is charged to the members of that band. There is no clue to the murderers.

8,000 PRISONERS FREED

Bucharest, Roumania, Aug. 23.—King Charles today granted amnesty to all those who were implicated in the recent agrarian revolt, with the exception of about 200 militant priests and those already sentenced for murders committed during the uprising. The prisoners, who totaled 8,000, were forthwith released.

Windsor Mail Clerk, Well-Known in London, Suicides While Deranged*Shot Himself Through the Heart
—Had Been Ill for a Long Time.

Mr. E. O. B. Rogers, a well-known mail clerk, of Windsor, committed suicide at his home yesterday evening by shooting himself through the heart. Death was instantaneous.

"Ed" Rogers, as he was familiarly known, had a large circle of acquaintances in London. For many years he had been on the run on the Grand Trunk from Windsor to London, and spent a couple of hours a day here. He was about 45 years of age, and well liked. He was a good natured, kindly disposed man. Early last fall his friends noticed that something was wrong with him and in September his malady reached a somewhat acute stage. He was relieved of his run in October, and his friends had him sent to a sanatorium in Guelph. He seemed to improve, and returned to his home in Windsor.

He was not quite safe, however, and his wife and family kept a close watch on him. Last evening when his wife was busy he got away, and hunting up a revolver took his own life. He is survived by a wife and three children.

The widow is a daughter of Mr. Rorison, of Windsor, an old mail clerk now pensioned, and well-known in this city. Deep regret is expressed by his many acquaintances among the railroad men. He was popular with them. He has been off the road since October last.

Fire Chief Clark Sounds Warning

"Some day some of the bicycle riders who follow the fire brigade to fires will get killed or badly injured," said Fire Chief Clark to The Advertiser today. "Men and boys on wheels take desperate chances, and do not appear to realize their danger." The chief went on to say that he often marvels where the bicycles come from, when the brigade turns out. There may not be a wheel in sight when the firemen dash on to a street, but in a minute afterward the riders fairly flock around the apparatus.

It takes a speedy rider to keep up with the horses, but some of them are able to do it, and they take delight in riding as close to the engines, the trucks, and the supply wagons, as they can. They do not appear to realize that the heavy apparatus is liable to slew a few feet at any time through ruts in the road, and that it is liable to crush anything in its way. "I don't know what to do about the matter," said the chief in conclusion, "but I hope this warning will keep the riders away from the apparatus. We are so busy looking out for ourselves, and watching so that there will be no collisions of apparatus or with vehicles, that we have no time to look out for the bicyclists who have no business crowding in between the different pieces of apparatus, which are being hauled at a gallop over the streets."

New Hotel for Richmond St
Mr. John Evans to Erect It*But, He Says, There Is Nothing
Definite as Yet—London House Sold.

Mr. W. B. Lashbrook, the former proprietor of the City Hotel, has purchased the London House for a consideration of from $20,000 to $25,000. Negotiations re the purchase were only of two days' duration. Mr. Lashbrook sold the City Hotel several months ago for $29,000, and since that time has been looking about for another site.

The newly-purchased hotel will be almost completely remodelled. Steam heat will be placed in every room, a new bar will be installed and a modern toilet room placed in the basement. The new owner takes possession on Sept. 2.

A New Hotel.

It was stated today that Mr. Evans contemplated the erection of a very fine modern hotel on Richmond street on the ground occupied by the old London Mutual Fire Insurance Company building opposite the Grand Opera House. This property it is understood has a frontage of about 80 feet, and it would make a fine site for an up-to-date hotel. Mr. Evans, when seen by The Advertiser this morning, stated that there was nothing definite in regard to the proposition as yet.

MARENGO WHIPS
GERMAN TROOPS*Hottentot Chieftain Scores a Notable Victory—Nearly Forty Were Killed.

Cape Town, Aug. 23.—Marengo, the Hottentot chieftain, who escaped from the custody of the British a week ago and crossed the border into German Southwest Africa, has administered a decisive defeat to the German troops who pursued him. Between thirty and forty Germans are reported killed, and scores are wounded. Marengo is leading 500 men, and his force is said to have been ambushed. A special expedition will probably be planned for his capture. Already he has cost the German Government hundreds of lives and millions in money.

ST. GEORGE WILL NOT BE READY*Addition to School Will Not Be Completed for School Opening.

The public schools of the city will open on Sept. 3. Nearly all of them have been made ready for the re-opening of the "kiddies." St. George's school has had a $15,000 addition made to it, but the new part will not be ready for some time after the school is opened. The rough work is now practically completed, but it will take considerable time to finish it. This will give four extra rooms, and relieve the crowding that has been experienced in this school. Inspector Edwards returned to the city yesterday after his holidays.

AMERICAN GRACE DARLING

Woman Lighthouse-keeper Decorated for Saving Eighteen Lives.

London, Aug. 22.—One of the best-known personages of Newport, America's fashionable seaside summer resort, is the woman lighthouse keeper, Miss Ida Lewis, who has for 28 years vigilantly kept alight the beacon on the Lime Rock, of the harbor.

Last March Miss Lewis celebrated her 68th birthday, and the jubilee of her residence on the rock. Her father was the keeper of the light, but for seventeen years was a paralytic. His daughter performed the duties of keeper in his behalf, and, through an act of Congress, was appointed to succeed him, being the only woman to hold such a position.

The Newport folks are justly proud of their Grace Darling, who has saved eighteen lives from the sea. She was only 20 when, one summer evening, just after dark, she heard from the lighthouse the cries of four young men, sons of prominent Newport summer residents, whose catboat had capsized. She rowed to their rescue, and after much effort saved them all.

The garrison at Fort Adams is similarly deeply indebted to her, for she has at different times saved five soldiers from drowning.

Her heroism has been acknowledged by Congress, which awarded her a gold medal. Gen. Grant, Gen. Sherman, and Admiral Dewey have been among her distinguished visitors, delighting to do her honor. Newport itself nearly 40 years ago presented her with a row-boat, and in it drew Miss Lewis through the streets to the old city hall, where she received the public thanks of the State of Rhode Island and the city for the rescues she made with such daring and clever seamanship.

America's Grace Darling still displays mental and physical vigor, and maintains the reputation of the lighthouse as being one of the best managed on the coast.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for over THIRTY YEARS by MILLIONS OF MOTHERS for their CHILDREN WHILE TEETHING, with PERFECT SUCCESS. IT SOOTHES THE CHILD, SOFTENS THE GUMS, ALLAYS ALL PAIN, CURES WIND COLIC, and is the best remedy for DIARRHEA. Sold by DRUGGISTS in every part of the world. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's." Washington is practically the only national capital that has no stunts at all, but Berlin runs it close in this respect.

POISONOUS NUTS

Prompt Measures Against a Deadly Novelty From Africa.

London, Aug. 22.—Dr. Collingridge, the medical officer of health for the city, reports how prompt action has prevented an epidemic of poisoning in London from nuts.

Six children who were taken from the Old Kent road and Southwark Bridge road districts to Guy's Hospital, one after the other, had unmistakable symptoms of vegetable poisoning.

Dr. Collingridge ascertained, after exhaustive inquiry, that the nuts had come from the East End to South London. He immediately stopped their sale wherever he found them, and Sir James Ritchie, the sitting magistrate at the Mansion House police court, has condemned four hundredweight of them as being unfit for human food.

Three other little sufferers were afterwards traced to Camberwell, but they had been treated at a local chemist's shop and were able to go home.

All the victims had, it seemed, purchased the "new Kellou nuts from Africa," a fruit novelty shaped like a cob-nut, with a rough shell, while the kernel had the appearance of a Brazil. A street hawk purchased from a wholesale merchant two hundredweight of these things.

To an interviewer the merchant explained that they were the unlucky venture of a ship's captain.

DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT.

The six hundredth anniversary of the invention of the table fork, which was by King John IV, Duke of Bretagne, to eat fruit with in 1307, will be celebrated in sundry parts of the world. In Paris several banquets will be given in commemoration of the event.

PAINS, LIKE THE POOR, ARE ALWAYS WITH US.—That portion of man's life which is not made up of pleasure is largely composed of pain, and to be free from pain is a pleasure. Simple remedies are always the best in treating bodily pain, and a safe, sure and simple remedy is Dr. Chase's Electric Oil. You cannot do wrong in giving it a trial when you are in pain.

MUNICIPAL LAUNDRY FOR MEMPHIS, TENN.

Police Would Thus Employ Time of Women Who Are Sent to Jail.

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 22.—One of the chief troubles of housewives—the washerwoman shortage—may be relieved if the city council does not interfere with the plans of Police Chief George T. O'Haver, who proposes a municipal laundry to occupy the time of female prisoners in the city jail.

Chief O'Haver's suggestion is primarily in the interest of humanity, for at present the women convicts work on the rock pile, performing the same labor as men, with the exception that their hours are shorter.

Chief O'Haver is in charge of the work of city prisoners, and while his orders are subject to review by the fire and police commission of the council, it is seldom that they are changed.

The chief has announced his intention of putting the laundry scheme in operation. The first test will be made with linen and blankets used at the jail. The washing necessary for these to keep them spotlessly clean, is not sufficient to occupy half the female prisoners half a day.

"If there is not enough work for the women from the city, we shall take in washing for them," says the chief. "There may be some complaint from the laundry interests, but I do not believe an objection on the grounds of competition will hold good."

"In the first place, it will be impossible for the police laundry to take in any but coarse articles for washing, owing to the constant changes which will be made among the prisoners performing this labor."

"This class of trade is not solicited by the laundries of the city, and I think most of them refuse to accept it."

"The washerwoman shortage is a constant cry. I think that the municipal laundry system may do away with this, if not in one way, then in another."

"There are hundreds of vagrant negroes in Memphis, many of whom work possibly only one day in the week. I have prepared a rigid order to clean out all sections infested by vagrants. It is one of the worst evils the police have to contend with, and one with which we have been unable to cope until now, a new law having gone into effect."

"These women will be made to work one way or another. If they want to hire out or take in washing in their own homes or perform other honest labor, well and good. If not, they will be hauled into court and sent to the city prison, where they will be made to work without compensation."

"Then again, the lighter work for the women prisoners will make it easier for police officers to get convictions in vagrancy cases."

"The police judges are reluctant to sentence women, white or black, to the rock pile, but with washing as the heaviest work, I think this objection will be removed and we will be able to obtain sentences severe enough to clear out the city and at the same time benefit housewives."

FIGHT WITH JACKALS

South African Planter Has Terrible Experience in the Bush.

London, Aug. 22.—Mr. Clarke Kuhr, a British settler, had a terrible fight with jackals, near his home at Beaufort West, Cape Colony.

What he took to be a herd of buck approaching him turned out to be a pack of "Panne" jackals, the large variety so much dreaded by farmers. He fired and killed the leader.

The others advanced on him, and a grim fight against overwhelming odds began, for he was alone in the bush. Using his rifle as a club, Mr. Kuhr disposed of a few more of the brutes, but his weapon broke, and he was left with only two barrels to defend himself. By this time he was fearfully torn and mauled, and was growing exhausted.

Just before he sank to the ground unconscious one large jackal sprang on his shoulders and buried its teeth in his neck, and he remembered nothing more. When he recovered his senses he was in a sheep kraal with four friends who had saved his life.

They came on the scene as he was falling, and as the infuriated beasts were rushing on him to tear him to pieces a few shots and a combined rush scattered the animals in all directions.

FRENCH FIERCE FIGHTERS

Too Ruthless in Slaughter of Moors Say German Critics.

Berlin, Aug. 22.—The attention of the German Government is fixed upon the events at Casablanca more than upon any other subject in Germany's external relations. The presumption, of course, is that the French Government will observe its declarations at the beginning of the operations, and remain in Morocco only long enough to restore order. Yet, the indications are that France's definition of that period will depend on developments in the situation, and may be a long one. The principle of the French action is considered to be altogether correct.

The German Government under similar conditions would have acted as France has done, in other words, she would have sent warships to Casablanca had German subjects been killed. But the French action, although sound in principle, is looked on officially here as not being well managed, and as being characterized by a certain degree of ferocity and slaughter that might have been avoided.

There are 300,000 people employed in the German mines. London uses 50,000 tons of sugar annually for jam making alone.

HOSPITALS CROWDED

MAJORITY OF PATIENTS WOMEN

and girls who are awaiting or recovering from operations made necessary by neglect.

Every one of these patients had plenty of warning in that bearing down feeling, pain at the left or right of the abdomen, nervous exhaustion, pain in the small of the back, pelvic catarrh, dizziness, flatulency, displacements or irregularities. All of these symptoms are indications of an unhealthy condition of the female organs, and if not heeded the trouble may make headway until the penalty has to be paid by a dangerous operation, and a lifetime of impaired usefulness at best, while in many cases the results are fatal.

The following letter should bring hope to suffering women: Mrs. Robert Glenn, of 434 Marie St., Ottawa, Ont., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham: "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is so well and widely known that it does not need to be advertised. But I am pleased to add it to the many which you have in your favor. I suffered untold agonies from serious female troubles for nearly three years, and was not perfect health, saving me the pain of an operation, but as I was unwilling to do this, I tried your Vegetable Compound and I am only too pleased that I did so, for it restored me to perfect health, saving me the pain of an operation and the immense bills attending the same. Pray accept my hearty thanks and best wishes."

Just as surely as Mrs. Glenn was cured of the troubles enumerated in her letter, just so surely will Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cure other women who suffer from female troubles, inflammation, kidney troubles, nervous excitability and nervous prostration.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all women who are ill to write her for free advice. She is a daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham and for twenty-five years has been advising sick women free of charge. Address, Lynn, Mass.

FIRE RAGES ON OCEAN LINER

Stubborn Blaze Starts on Steamship Friedrich der Grosse in Mid-Atlantic.

New York, Aug. 22.—There was a brisk fire on board the North German Lloyd liner Friedrich der Grosse, Monday night, as she was homeward bound, and some 700 miles out at sea. The blaze did extensive damage to the ship's laundry and also to the bakery, but was kept under such good control that the passengers were not alarmed. In fact, there were some who had not heard of the fire when the ship reached port today.

Every precaution that prudence can suggest is taken in the laundry of a big steamship to prevent fire. The officers of the Friedrich der Grosse are unable to account for the origin of Monday night's blaze. Some of the laundry had been collected in a collection of inflammatory shirts and pajamas turned in on Monday afternoon by an American.

Thirty bags of the ship's linen and the shirts and pajamas aforesaid, besides considerable other laundry besides, were on board, and were destroyed. The blaze started in a collection of inflammatory shirts and pajamas turned in on Monday afternoon by an American.

Because of the excellent discipline maintained on the Friedrich der Grosse, the passengers were not alarmed by the fire when the ship reached port today.

ST. THOMAS MAN HED FOR BIGAMY

Common Law Wife Claims to Have Met Him in Railroad City.

Detroit, Aug. 23.—Wednesday morning as Warren E. Stoner, aged 25, a conductor on the Jefferson avenue line, here, was about to draw his pay, he was arrested by Detectives High and Larkins on a charge of bigamy, preferred by his common law wife.

The woman claimed to have met Stoner in St. Thomas, Ont., a number of years ago, and to have lived with him in Detroit. Two children were born, both now dead. The second child died two weeks ago.

Mrs. Stoner says her husband left her last April, saying he didn't intend paying the rent any longer. On July 20, she says, he married Miss Ethel James, aged 22, of 387 Fifth street, the ceremony being performed by Frank G. Gilchrist, an elder. In obtaining the marriage license Stoner swore that he never had been married before.

"I went to the other woman's house, but it didn't do any good, sobbed the first Mrs. Stoner.

When a reporter called at 387 Fifth street, Detroit, yesterday, the second Mrs. Stoner opened the door only a few inches and refused to discuss the matter.

Stoner had $39 on his person when searched in the central police station. His first wife is being cared for by her sister at 21 Columbia street east.

After some delay Judge Jeffries issued a warrant for Stoner on the bigamy charge. A question arose in the judge's mind as to whether the first or second wife should prosecute Assistant Prosecutor McClellan decided, however, that the first wife could swear to the complaint.

A WISHY-WASHY PROGRAMME.

Mr. Borden's statement of policy is variously viewed by Conservative newspapers. The leading Conservative newspaper in Montreal, the Gazette, shies at the most radical of his proposals, that of state ownership of telephones and telegraphs. Says the Gazette:"The telegraph and telephone lines of Canada represent a heavy investment of capital. In many parts of the country they have only begun to spread. Their purchase would involve a heavy outlay of capital,
which would have to be borrowed,
and there would have to be continued capital expenditure on extensions as the country increased in population and commerce. There will be all through the country and especially among Conservatives, those who will think that private enterprise and private capital, which have provided this continent with as efficient a telephone and telegraph service as are to be found in the world can be left to carry on what has been so well begun, at least until the country has less to do with its credit and until there is a general complaint that the services are now managed are inefficient or unduly costly. It is not part of a government's duty to do that which others are doing well."The Gazette is unnecessarily alarmed
if the Toronto World's interpretation is the correct one. With the World the public ownership of public utilities is almost a fetish, but it is not stirred to enthusiasm by Mr. Borden's pronouncement. It points out his declaration is qualified, being limited to telegraph and telephones and then only
"after due investigation" and "without prejudice to capital already invested in these enterprises." "Sir Wilfrid Laurier," says the World, "will say the same thing. Perhaps the idea will grow as the learned and cautious leader of the Opposition gets further west."The Conservative Montreal Star says that Mr. Borden deals in hints rather than in dramatically positive assertions. "His platform contains several very good ideas," adds the Star, "but it is not too much to say that he appears to be a trifle afraid of handling them himself." The same journal regrets that he has abandoned the avowed party policy of extending the Intercolonial to the Georgian Bay. It praises rural mail delivery and telegraph and telephone planks of the platform, but says many of the others are old favorites which have cheered the hearts of many a leader out of office,
only to be forgotten when the test of opportunity was applied. They could not be omitted from any official party platform, but neither can they be dependent upon to carry much weight.A careful perusal of Mr. Borden's platform shows that the declarations which are supposed to be the most radical or original are qualified and hedged about with reservations. For instance, he pronounces for an independent commission to regulate civil service appointments, but says that there are "certain high public offices"
and "many minor appointments" which could not be brought within such a system. While he talks of senate reform he proposes no plan, and even admits the "possible dangers" of an elective basis. He presents an academic argument in favor of state ownership of railroads, but does not advise that any steps be taken to apply the principle. He favors rural mail delivery, but says it "must be preceded with proper inquiry as to cost and as to the standard which should be adopted."
The present Administration has been constantly making these inquiries and watching the operation of the rural mail delivery system in the United States, but considers that it does not yet warrant Canada in copying so costly an experiment. On the tariff question, Mr. Borden is equally equivocal.
It is merely a platitude to speak, as he does, of a tariff which will have
"regard for the interests of the consumer as well as the wage-earning population." And so on through the whole of Mr. Borden's speech: he merely toys with new ideas, or as the Montreal Star puts it, he seems afraid of handling them.

THE MOROCCAN TROUBLE.

France and Spain are evidently finding the duty of policing the coast towns of Morocco, intrusted to them by the Algeiras convention, a far more difficult task than they bargained for.
The outbreak of Moorish fanaticism
at Casablanca found them totally unprepared. According to the cable reports, despite the machine-gun equipment of the French forces, unless reinforcements speedily reach them, they will find their position most perilous.
The French general commanding at Casablanca has asked for reinforcements to the number of 12,000, hispresent force of 3,000 or 4,000 men being two weak even to attempt a forward movement for the purpose of dislodging the Moorish horsemen from the heights near the town, a vantage ground, which, if the rebels possessed artillery, would render the French position untenable.Should the tribesmen gain one victory it will be much harder to subjugate them afterwards. They are not lacking in physical courage, and besides being fanatical in their fury, they are resourceful to a considerable degree.It seems surprising, in the light of past experiences, that France and Spain should follow the futile policy of landing small expeditionary forces to restore order in a country inhabited by a large, hostile and warlike population. The weakness of the French forces has clearly resulted in the unnecessary destruction of property and loss of life. The sanguinary bombardment of Casablanca and the rapine and murder which ensued would have been avoided had the French made adequate preparation and employed a large force. Under any circumstances the task of subjugating Morocco is not one that any power could enter upon with a light heart. The population of the country is estimated at from 5,000, 000 to 10,000,000 and some of the tribes are actuated by religious frenzy. It is the boast of the Berbers that they have never been conquered by an invader.
Moreover, an attempt to bring them
under French or other civilized rule might cause a holy war all over North Africa, including the French possessions.The prediction has been made that the Franco-Spanish punitive expedition, which has as its avowed purpose
the redress of wrongs committed upon foreign residents and the policing of coast towns, will eventually assume the proportions of a conquest of the whole country. But the French minister of foreign affairs has seen fit to publicly declare that the Government of which he is a member has not changed its intentions or policy with regard to Morocco in the slightest degree; that there is to be no war of conquest on the part of France, and that no attempt to penetrate the interior for the purpose of subjugating and pacifying the rebellious natives is to be made. In other words, France will adhere to the terms and spirit of the Algeiras convention, will look after the interests of Europeans in the treaty ports, protect life and property
and insist upon the early introduction of the police, military and administrative reforms which the powers agreed upon and the Moroccan Government pretended to accept.No limit can be set to the outlay which France may be forced to undergo in the process of restoring order.
The question therefore arises, how is she to be reimbursed for the large expenditure imposed upon her? Will the powers signatory to the Algeiras convention each contribute its share to her recompense, or will an adequate indemnity be demanded of Morocco?
Pending the payment of the latter,
would Germany agree to French occupation, indefinite it may be, of Moroccan territory by way of guarantee?
There are questions upon which no light has been thrown, but it may be taken for granted that France, though doubtless more interested than any other power in the speedy pacification of Morocco, does not contemplate
singly bearing all the cost of present and future operations.There is a string tied to every one of Mr. Borden's so-called progressive planks.If there is to be a by-election next month the water commissioners will be well-advised in postponing for a few weeks the submission of the water bylaw. The water question is a big one and should have undivided public attention.The Lemieux Act has scored another triumph in the settlement of a dispute involving 1,300 Grand Trunk locomotive engineers. Although this legislation may not be effective in every instance, its results have already justified it.It may be doubted whether the Warton crowd was inspired by moral indignation in attempting to drive away two women of doubtful reputation. People have no excuse for taking the law in their own hands in this country. When they do there is a suspicion that they are not particularly law-abiding.

Provincial general election, May, 1902.

Dominion general election, November, 1904.

Provincial general election, January, 1905.

Dominion by-election, June, 1905.

And now there is to be another by-election in London this autumn; a general Dominion election probably next year; and a Provincial general election not later than 1909, possibly in 1908.

THE ALL-BLUE LINE.

[Ottawa Free Press.]

The cartoonist of the Toronto News has a picture of Mr. B. L. Borden preparing thespeech for his coming stump tour of the Dominion. In the background are visnettes of the Tory members from Toronto, labeled, "The All-Blue Line." They look blue, but not so blue as they will after the next general election.

A HUNTER'S LUCK.

[Glasgow News.]

A young man staying in the country, who had received permission to shoot over the land of a farmer, got rather close once or twice to the house and the ground around it. Later in the day, the farmer, who "You've had good luck today?" said the farmer.
"Well, no," said the young man, reluctantly. "I haven't had any luck at all."
"Yes, you have," repeated the other;
"you just missed my best cow this forenoon."

"CUT IT OUT."

[Puck.]

It seemed not, and yet among
The maxims in our English tongue
No plither to lips has sprung
Than "Cut it out!"
How vain and futile these compared
The axioms in common sense are!
How vain and futile these compared
With "Cut it out!"
"Beyond the Alps lies Italy!"
Ah, could we guide the sweet young She,
Our sole advice to her would be:
"Dear, cut it out!"
Would that we might do more—insist,
With folks who never would be mistreated of the commonplace,
Devoted of society and grace;
All orators like Beveridge;
Women who play at morning bridge;
The poets of the cheer-up school;
Who perpetrate the dearest drivel;
The tedious wits who sign their names
To hackneyed josh of Henry James;
The men—but, Lord! the list is long,
And tire some may grow my song;
So—cut it out!

NEW YORK DRIVERS' STRIKE

When Called Out, Many Quit Their Wagons in the Street.New York, Aug. 22.—About 200 drivers and stablemen employed at the wholesale beef packing houses went on strike tonight. They demand a uniform working week of 65
hours and increased wages.Both the independent companies and the so-called "trusts" are effected. The companies have notified the retailers to send their own teams
to distributing depots for supplies.
For the present, at least, it is thought that the retailers will not be seriously inconvenienced.The strike followed a meeting of representatives of the teamsters'
union and agents of the companies,
and when the order to strike was received from a messenger of the union,
it is alleged that the drivers left their teams on the streets or wherever they happened to be at the time. The companies were taken somewhat by surprise, and it was late in the night
it is alleged, before the abandoned
wagons with their perishable loads
were recovered and brought to the stables.Charles Hilton, business agent of the local teamsters' union, said that the immediate cause of the strike was the packers' refusal to grant them ten holidays instead of two each year.

CONDITIONS UNSETTLED

Conflicting Reports of Hostilities in Central America Continue.Washington, Aug. 22.—Conflicting reports, largely unofficial, continue to reach Government officials here of the renewed outbreak of hostilities in Central America. According to reports from naval officers the situation there appears to be quiet.But there is an undercurrent of feeling of instability attributed mainly to the possibility of a renewed attack by Nicaragua on Salvador. While the reports are discredited here, the opinion of those who have been on the ground is that the relations between the two countries are still grave.Salvador is smarting under the action of the Nicaraguans in sending an expedition against it several months ago.While the latest report lacks official confirmation, directions will be given to commanders of American vessels to report promptly any unusual happenings, and to safeguard American interests. Both the cruiser Milwaukee and the gunboat Yorktown are now in Central American waters on the Pacific side, while the Dubuque is on the Atlantic side.

GAYNOR VERY ILL

Doctors Say He Will Die Unless Permitted to Leave Prison.New York, Aug. 22.—A dispatch from Macon, Ga., to the American says that John F. Gaynor, convicted in the federal court, with Capt. Greene, of complicity in the Savannah harbor frauds,
and who is confined in jail here pending an appeal to the United States supreme court, is in a critical condition.He is wracked by coughing, has lost the use of his legs, and physicians say he cannot live unless removed from jail. They have asked the department of justice to allow him to be removed to a health resort.Mrs. Gaynor, on fine days, has been allowed to drive her husband about the city, accompanied by a United States marshal.

RUDOLPH TWIRLS

A GREAT GAME

Bisons Lose Again to the

Maple Leafs by Four

to One.

Toronto, Aug. 23.—Spitball twirlers are a terror for any team, but when two of the same caliber oppose each other, a light-hitting game is bound to result. Such was the case yesterday, when the Leafs reversed the tables on the Orioles by a score of 4 to 1 in a light-hitting exhibition, with the safeties—five—even up.
Doc Adkins, also a member of the

the Pets two games one Saturday afternoon not long ago, was trotted out and while the fans listened with awe

as Umpire called out his name, yet they had faith in our kid—Dickie Rudolph.Both fire artists were in rare form,
and although the connections registered could be balanced, yet Dick was ace high all through. The locals had men on bases in every innings that Adkins officiated, while two of the plate, while his mate died at the plate.
Another bird gave up the ghost at second, while the other four exploded at first, and this accounts for the five men left on bases and, incidentally, shows how good our Dick was.Mike Wotell was considerably in the limelight, scoring from second on Rudolph's bunt, also throwing Kelly out at the plate on Dunn's fly. Wiedy had a busy street as he got the seventh made a nice one-hand pickup of Hall's bunt, and Schafly used great head-
work when he dropped Adkins' fly, throwing Burrell out at second, thus forcing the pitcher to run. He also landed on one of Adkins' twirlers for a homer.Umpire Cusack, who was behind the plate, was very much to the bad on
it is alleged, before the abandoned
wagons with their perishable loads
were recovered and brought to the stables.The visitors were only able to bunch hits in one inning, yet the fifth, from which their lone runter resulted.
Demmitt and Rapp singled in succession, Burrell's out advanced the base-runners a peg nearer home, while Adkins' hit to Schafly allowed Demmitt to cross the pan. O'Hara fanned. Before this the fans were kept on Easy street as regards the game.The Pets tapped the register for one in the second. Frick bunted straight down the line to Rapp, but Wotell got a life on Hall's fumble. Hurley was passed up, while Rudolph beat out a perfect bunt. All eyes were on Dick running to first, and before the spectators knew what was happening Wotell was sliding over the plate with the first score, coming in from second on the play. Tyrus Cobb isn't in it

White Sewer Matter AgainWill Look Into Proposal to Build It Out of General
Funds.The board of works met last night, all the members being present. The most important matter discussed was the suggestion that a sewer be constructed to White & Sons' works on Rectory street out of the general funds.The city solicitor will be interviewed to see if the sewer can be built out of the sewer debenture funds now in hand.City Engineer Graydon estimated that it would cost $3,000 to construct a sewer to connect White & Sons'
work with the nearest outlet.
The sewer should be a rental sewer,
charging the property owners 15 cents
a foot for fifteen years, whenever they ask permission to connect with it, and also making them put in their own private drains from the sewer at their own costs. Mr. Graydon thought that a large industry like Whites' should be given an outlet for its sewage in the interest of the public health, and in a few years the city would more than derive the cost out of the rentals it would receive. The sewer would run on the Hamilton road from Anderson avenue and Chesley avenue,
and on Chesley avenue to Lovett
street.

Proposed a Different Route.

Mayor Judd was not in favor of the route proposed by the city engineer,
but thought it better to put it straight down Rectory street from the works to the Hamilton road.
More people would use it immediately, and the city would profit thereby. The sewer could not be constructed out of the general funds this year. He was in favor of making the sewer a trunk sewer, and pay for it out of the general sewer fund, if that would be allowed by the city solicitor.

Ald. Saunders moved that Ald. Matthews and Mayor Judd be a committee to interview the city solicitor to see what arrangements could be made to construct the sewer under the sewer debenture bylaw or otherwise,
and report at the next meeting of the committee. The engineer was also asked to prepare a statement of the cost of constructing a sewer from Homehurst street to Chesley street.

Action Against City.

Mr. J. M. McEvoy notified the committee that he had issued a writ against the city for $200 damages on behalf of Mrs. McBride, who fell into the Cove, through the alleged defective condition of the roadway of the Pipe Line road, some time ago.
Dr. Waugh had examined the woman at the request of the city, and found she had sustained no injuries
save a wetting and a severe shock.
Mayor Judd was instructed to confer with Mr. McEvoy looking to a settlement. The chairman of the committee thought that as Mrs. McBride was not badly hurt, $100 would be sufficient to cover loss of clothes and inconvenience.
His worship will report next Thursday night regarding the possibility of a settlement.

Wanted a Sidewalk.

Mr. C. Christian and others interviewed the committee, asking it to construct a sidewalk and sewer on Dundas street. The bylaw for the sidewalk had been passed, but the sidewalk had not been constructed. A sewer was badly needed, and if the road were graded at the same time, it would be made permanent. Mr. Christian presented a petition for a sewer, signed by nearly all the property-owners. He wanted the sidewalk this year if it could possibly be constructed.
Ald. Matthews promised that the committee would do its best to get the work done this year if it were at all possible.
Mr. W. Wilkey, Lorne avenue, askedthe committee to initiate a sewer on Lorne avenue. A petition had been put into the council two months ago, but nothing had been done about it. The delay had caused serious inconvenience to his tenants.Ald. Saunders moved that the chairman see about this matter at once,
and report back. If the petition is sufficiently signed the bylaw will be prepared forthwith, and the sewer initiated as soon as possible.City Engineer Graydon was authorized by the committee to lay the sidewalk on Ridout street, between Bruce street and Elmwood avenue, where he thought best. The street is a narrow one, and Mr. Graydon will put the sidewalk against the property line.Those present were Chairman Matthews, Ald. Cooper, Ald. Saunders, Ald.
Rose, Mayor Judd, City Engineer
Graydon and Secretary Bell.Aunt Salome Sellers, of Der Isle, 106

My Lady Cinderella

By Mrs. G. M. Williamson

Author of "My Friend the Chauffeur," "Lady Betty Across the Water," Etc., Etc.

Would I come to him? This was a very different way of putting it from what I had expected. No questions asked, no references required. I ought to have been delighted; but—perhaps it was the cold twilight and the musty smell of the big room, with its faded furnishings, that had disheartened me—I felt vaguely miserable.

I did not let my stupid depression interfere, however, with a speedy snapping up of the luck which had befallen me. Eighty pounds a year! Why, with economy, I might easily send fifty to Sir George Seaforth at the end of the first year, and so on, until he was repaid for his "experiment," so costly to me as well as to him.

I lost no time in announcing that I could come next morning, or even that same night if necessary. Mr. Raynor—it appeared that my employer's name was Raynor—preferred the latter arrangement, and so it was settled.

I stayed for a few moments longer, discussing details of future occupation, learning that the new master of Arrish Hall spent most of his life in India, and had come to Dorsetshire because his doctor had recommended sea air and complete quiet; then, veiling the light of triumph on my face as I passed the waiting candidate, for whom disappointment was in store—I was shown out of the front door.

The distance did not seem so long now, nor the heat so great. I walked more briskly, planning ways and means to speed the sending of that check, to increase its size by diligent economy. I was no happier that I had been on the night that I fled from Southwood Park; my wrongs rankled as deeply now as then, but I had an incentive. I was buoyed by the hope of administering punishment—a mean, unworthy hope, perhaps; but it would scarcely have been natural if in a week the desire to make the sinner suffer as he had made me suffer should have been superseded by softer feelings.

I had only passed the gates of The Pines by a few yards when I was obliged to step out of the way of an approaching brougham. A face looked at me; it was "plain Miss Smith's."

I uttered a slight exclamation of surprise, which was echoed by one from her. She had recognized me, and, what was more, she was calling me by name, not the new name, with which I had hardly made myself familiar yet, but the old one—Consuela Brand.

"What are you doing here?" inquired the spinster when the brougham had been stopped and I had obeyed her beckoning summons to the window.

"Then you didn't get my letter?"

I answered her question by another. "Haven't had a letter from a human soul for a fortnight. Gave orders not to have any forwarded. I've been disappointed, my girl. Went on the contrary for the first time in my life. To tell the truth, my idea was to see the eye-doctor in Wexham that everybody goes to. I had a scare about my sight, but he laughed at me, and told me I wanted stronger spectacles, that was all. I made the mistake of forgetting I was growing old. In my relief I was inclined to remain on the continent for some time. I did remain, and I think I shall occasionally repeat the experiment. I wish you had been with me. Are you and Lady Sophonisba, or whatever her name is, visiting in these parts, or are you free to come with me to lunch?"

"Lady Sophie de Gretton and I have parted," I exclaimed, vividly blushing. "I'm lodging in a fisherman's cottage at present. In future I'm to be secretary to a gentleman at Arrish Hall, but for the moment I am free to go anywhere where you are willing to take me."

"Then get in and tell the coachman to drive on," directed Miss Smith. By the time we had reached the house door at The Pines I had, without taking her entirely into my confidence, told my companion with what I had come, when I found myself in need of a friend, to Dorsetshire.

"And you did quite right, too. It's my boast that I'm a woman of my word," she had just responded as the door was thrown open by the superior maid who had pulverized my vanity during my former call.

Her face when she beheld me entering the house in familiar converse with Miss Smith was a study. She even looked somewhat alarmed; but I had not told tales out of school, and she was safe with her mistress so far as I was concerned.

On Miss Smith's desk, in a room ambitiously named "the study," reposed my letter among numerous others; and when the spinster had greeted her monkey and bevy of other pets, she insisted on reading it as a sort of preface to my explanations.

"Can't you get out of going to this man Raynor, and come to me instead?" she asked abruptly.

"I'm afraid not," I said. "It wouldn't be very honorable, would it? You see, it is my fault that he has told other people his arrangements are already made, and if I went back upon the agreement now I might cause him a great deal of trouble, poor old man! Though there isn't any written contract, and though the whole affair has been conducted on both sides in a very unbusinesslike way, I feel bound in honor."

"I suppose you'll have to carry out your bargain, then," sighed Miss Smith. "And you're right, no doubt. Only it is rather trying that I should have come home just too late. I told you in London that I liked you, and I tell you so again in Dorsetshire. It would please me very much to have your face where I could look at it whenever I wanted to. I was on the point of giving you an invitation to come here and stop with me as long as you choose that day at my sister-in-law's, when in sailed Lady Sophonisba and snatched you away from under my nose. Now it's this Raynor man—this goodness knows what—who has taken that old ghost trap, Arrish Hall. You're not superstitious, evidently, my dear, or you wouldn't be found dead living there—as an Irishman would say."

"No, I'm not superstitious," I returned. "Besides, beggars mustn't be choosers; though, of course, I should have been much happier if I could have stopped for a time with you."

"Well, I shouldn't have paid you eighty pounds a year, my child. I consider the man is throwing money away on you, though it's an ill wind that blows nobody good; and I dare say you're pleased to get it."

I admitted that I was pleased, though I did not confess why I cared so much, so very much; and, after all, I began to think that I had done well in answering the advertisement.

"Run over and see me every day if you can, when you are settled down at Arrish Hall," said Miss Smith, when, after luncheon, I was ready to depart. "I certainly can't go to you, or folks would be putting it round that I was setting my cap at this old widower, or bachelor, or whatever he is. Good-by, and remember that if you don't like your place, there's another one open to you."

Mrs. Nye, while expressing herself as sorry to lose the "sweetest face she'd ever had inside her house," congratulated me on my luck and helped me to pack. My luggage did not necessitate the expense of a cab—every shilling saved was to go toward the great sum—but my good landlady would not permit that I should carry it. Thomas Nye should see to that, and glad he would be to do anything for Miss Burns. I could just go on by myself, with my hands crossed, and leave the rest to him.

There were tears in my eyes when

CHAPTER XXIV.

The Story That the Housekeeper Told.

So deeply was I engrossed in thought that I believed myself to be still alone in the hall, when a voice spoke suddenly close to my ear. I turned, with a start and a suppressed exclamation, to see an elderly woman, whose slipped feet, had made no noise in their approach.

"Good evening, miss," she remarked. "I am Mrs. Walsh, Mr. Raynor's housekeeper, and I am asked to show you your rooms."

She was staring at me, blinking and peering from under her bushy hair, wrinkled lids, that looked like badly rolled-up blinds, over the dull windows of her eyes. I did not like her face at all. The features were prominent and slightly misshapen by a severe attack of smallpox, which had left her skin deeply pitted, faded to the color of clay.

Its cadaverous effect was heightened by a dark red from false hair folded smoothly over the ears under a smart cap with lavender ribbons. She had keys in her hands—they were knotted, deceitful-looking hands, with incredibly long fingers.

No, I did not think that Mrs. Walsh and I were likely to be friends. I said something, I hardly knew what, though I tried to make it civil, and followed her out of the hall, through the corridor I had seen in the morning, past the door of the dreary "library" where I had talked with Mr. Raynor, and so upstairs.

At the top Mrs. Walsh lighted a candle among several others in brass sticks on a table. We walked along a narrow passage, which would have been dark save for our candle, and a light that came dimly from below. At a door halfway down its length the housekeeper paused.

"Your sitting room, miss," she announced, with an air of pride. It was a very good room, as far as size and shape were concerned, and it was evident that some pains had been taken to make it habitable. I was grateful for this, and glanced about with a certain interest.

"It is very kind of Mr. Raynor to give me such a nice room," I said. "He seems to be a great sufferer. Have you been with him long?"

"Oh, no, miss," exclaimed Mrs. Walsh, with an air of surprise. "I never saw Mr. Raynor till a few days ago. I was caretaker here. I've lived in the house ever since Sir Marmaduke Yorke, who owns the Hall, took a distaste for the place, and went away, leaving it shut up but for me and my son, who's gone to America now. Mr. Raynor came down with a gentleman, and was taken through all the rooms. They were described to him, though he couldn't see. Then he seems to have decided on renting the Hall at once, for within a few hours I got word that he would move in the first of the week, and would keep me on as housekeeper, if I could cook. That was what I was used to in old days. I don't say it isn't a rise for me to be in my present position, but I intend to give satisfaction to Mr. Raynor if I can."

"I've been expecting a batch of his servants down from town," continued Mrs. Walsh, "but the master doesn't wish to have them sent for, it appears, until the place has been got into better shape. Thinks they might find fault and be discontented, I suppose; though what's been good enough for me in these years ought to be good enough for them. And Mr. Jennings, Mr. Raynor's own man, who has come with his master, to make himself generally useful until the others arrive, has not complained of the way he found things in the house. If the rest are anything like him, we shall do very well."

As she talked the woman settled her cap and her collar, giving her neat black cashmere gown a pat now and then, which expressed the pride of novelty. If she was repulsive in her respectable, housekeeperly dress, I wondered what she must have been when, free from the obligation to live up to a new position, she had merely been caretaker.

I had the kind woman good-by at last, though three miles or so was not a very formidable distance; and I am not ashamed to tell that I kissed her. I did not start until after I had my supper—with an extra dish, and a few homemade cakes to put in my bag, as a present, from Mrs. Nye—for I did not wish to arrive at Arrish Hall until after my employer had dined.

My breakfast and luncheon were to be served to me alone in my own sitting room at my new home; but dinner was to be eaten in state, with the companionship of Mr. Raynor; and this ordeal had seemed too much for the first night of residence.

The same servant I had seen in the morning let me in again in the evening, when I had found my way up through the shadows of the avenue to the old hall. Mr. Raynor had hoped to greet me. I was informed, but a severe attack of gout had driven him early to bed. The housekeeper would show me my rooms—I had not seen them earlier in the day, though Mr. Raynor had seemed half to suggest that I should—and I would not be needed until 10 o'clock next morning.

For a few moments I was left alone, standing in the large hall. A hanging lamp of quaint old fashion had been lit, but the dim light it gave seemed only to render darkness more visible, to make the shadows crowd nearer from the corners. The place looked as if it had lain under a ban.

For the first time my thoughts dwelt upon the vague, references made by Mrs. Nye and Miss Smith to the stories told about the house. It was said to be haunted, I knew, and to have stood tenanted for years. I began to wonder, with a slight creepiness running down my back, what were the tales that had kept Arrish Hall empty for so long.

Save your time and your strength. Do not waste them trying to make good bread and pastry with an inferior flour. You will get only trouble and disappointment for your pains.

The easy and satisfactory way to bake is to use "FIVE ROSES" Flour, as this brand never gets lumpy or hardens, and never needs any special preparation for use.

Its uniformity is such that, unlike ordinary brands, the same methods, all of them simple, can be used with every bag. "FIVE ROSES" Flour, an oven, some water, a little yeast and common sense will give you a whiter and sweeter loaf, and lighter and flakier pastry, with less trouble than any ordinary brands on the market. Users of it save time, temper and money. "FIVE ROSES" is, in fact, the flour that satisfies.

The Newbury Old Boys In Merry Celebration

Town From Many Points

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Newbury, Aug. 22.—The old village of Newbury is in gala attire this week, and the citizens are entertaining hundreds of old boys and girls who have revisited the scenes of their youthful days to meet and greet their relatives and friends. The project was inaugurated a few months ago, and carried out to a distinctly successful issue, chiefly through the enthusiastic efficiency of Charles Tucker, president; J. G. Bayne, secretary; D. J. Baitzner, of Cincinnati; Geo. Smallgrove, Amos Fennell, Reeve Rush and others.

The first day was devoted to reception and registration of visitors, followed by a baseball match between Bothwell and Alvinston, umpired by D. J. Baitzner, in which the score was Bothwell 7, Alvinston 3.

This was followed by a match between the winners and Newbury in which the home team turned the tables on the winners of the previous match by a score of 9 to 4.

In the evening there was a grand parade to the Old Boys' Park, from the town hall, headed by the Wabash Band a rube band and a couple of Highland pipers from Detroit. On arrival at the park the crowd was called to order by D. J. Baitzner, who formally presented a deed of a beautiful plot of six acres of land located in the heart of the village to Reeve Rush as a donation from the Old Boys to the village, to be used exclusively for park purposes. About four-fifths of the purchase price had been subscribed by the Old Boys.

Prizes for the best fancy make-up in the parade were awarded to Dr. W. Storey, of Detroit, as an Irishman; Ernie Archer, as Uncle Sam; J. H. Whittaker, as John Bull; Harry Grippy, as a Dutchman; Charlie Stokes and J. Jones, as Mexicans; Fred Archer, Turk; and C. Armstrong, as Mother Goose.

A concert of a somewhat go-as-you-please style was held in the town hall afterwards at which D. J. Baitzner presided as chairman in a highly efficient manner, his humorous comments and sensible suggestions at intervals being very much appreciated. He extended a very cordial welcome to all the visiting old boys and girls and expressed keen appreciation of the generous hospitality extended by the citizens to the home-comers.

Dr. W. F. Roome was called on as a representative old boy. He narrated his early experience when he first landed in Newbury forty years ago and hung out his shingle on the twelfth of July, when there was a big demonstration in progress in the village. He well remembered his first patient, who he was glad to say, is still alive, so he had the satisfaction of knowing that he didn't kill his first patient, whatever may have been the fate of subsequent ones. He spoke at considerable length of the vastness and importance of Canada, and congratulated the Newbury Old Boys on what they are doing as nation-builders wherever their chosen sphere of activity lies today.

A Civic Welcome.

Short and congratulatory addresses were delivered by Reeve Rush, who extended a hearty civic welcome to all, and assured the visitors of a wide-open hospitality from the citizens.

Miss Siddall then favored the audience with a beautiful rendition of that charming Irish ballad, "Killarney," to which she graciously responded with "Comin' Thro the Rye," sung with charming sweetness and expression.

Mr. Lee Aldwell, of Sonora, Texas, another old boy, gave a short speech which was very appropriately followed with a quartet, "Home Again," sung in excellent harmony by Misses Fennell and Everett, and Messrs. Bayne and Jamieson.

Dr. Storey, of Walkerville; T. A. Bellamy, of Ingersoll, formerly principal of the public school 28 years ago; Rev. James Bracken, of Hamilton; James Douglas, John Armstrong, principal of the school now; and Jas. Bayne, lawyer, of Detroit, each had a few reminiscences to narrate and timely remarks to make.

Mr. Siddall sang a couple of humorous songs in superior style.

The proceedings were brought to a close by singing "Auld Lang Syne," "Home Sweet Home," and "God Save the King."

Mrs. Hammett, formerly Abbie Miller, recited some original verses prepared specially for the occasion, which fairly "brought down the house," and elicited vociferous applause.

The park is occupied by a merry-go-round, a dancing pavilion and numerous cane racks, refreshment booths, etc.

Beautiful banners, streamers, flags and other decorations appear in profusion throughout the village.

SECOND DAY.

The second day of the Newbury Old Boys' reunion was simply a continuation of the success of the first, the inauguration on Wednesday. The arrival of the Seventh Fusiliers Band from London on the morning train was eagerly anticipated, and when they paraded up Hagarty street they were greeted by a large crowd of spectators even at such an early hour as 8 o'clock.

The forenoon was spent in a quiet way in making preparations and arranging details for the afternoon programme, which was started with a parade from the town hall to the southeasterly limit of the village, and then back to the park, headed by the Seventh Fusiliers Band, the Highland pipers and the rube band. Next in order was a very funny burlesque baseball match in masquerade costume between teams of Newbury old boys from Windsor and Newbury home guards, and it was left to the boys to act as umpire, and as the game was long remembered by both players and spectators. Life is too short to narrate all the funny incidents, the ludicrous situations, the numerous errors, or the grotesque antics of the players. It was, however, a very closely contested game, and the score was 1-0, in favor of the home guards; or at least they won by one.

Erasmus Emergency Gay had the nerve to act as umpire, and as he was able to leave the field unassisted it may be assumed that his decisions were accepted. The batteries for the home guards were, S. Fennell, pitcher, and Chad S. Fennell catcher. For the visitors Mick Guy and "Maude" Connolly took turns at twirling the sphere, while "Fizzer" Stokes manfully endeavored to prevent the ball from passing out through the main entrance.

Great interest was manifested in the horse races, and some excellent sport was witnessed, though the new track was rather heavy, owing to the deep dust. The winners were as follows: Running race, for green horses—1. C. Robinson; 2. L. Kelley; 3. William Tomlinson.

Twisting race, green horses—1. Dr. McMillan; 2. E. Goff; 3. Joe Munroe.

Fifty-yard race, old boys in costume—1. Wm. Marcus; 2. C. Ryan.

One hundred-yard race, boys under 16—1. Bruce Fletcher; 2. G. Stevenson; 3. W. Haggith.

Boys under 12—1. W. Macleary; 2. G. McMaster; 3. M. Walker.

The promenade concert given by the Seventh Fusiliers Band in the park at night attracted a very large crowd. The dancing pavilion and various other places of amusement on the park were well patronized.

Thursday was observed as Civic Holiday in the village, and business was generally suspended. Large crowds came in from the country in every direction early in the afternoon and it is safe to say that fully 5,000 people were in the park.

of 60 per cent, although they had previously given toll to the Government.

Collection Was Famous.

The sale of the Stanford diamonds has interested dealers throughout the world, for their peculiarities were widely known. Most of them were of the yellow or canary variety. Nearly all had interesting histories, one of them having been owned by the Empress Josephine, and worn by her on the occasion of her marriage to Napoleon, while another belonged to the Marlborough collection.

Mrs. Stanford died in March, 1905, in Honolulu, and there were rumors that she had been poisoned, but official investigation failed to establish that allegation. She was much interested in the university and made it the object of many benefactions during her lifetime.

EPICUREAN PAUPERS

Raised a Row Because the Tea Was Too Weak.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—The action of six Willesden paupers is arousing much comment. Owing to lack of accommodation at Willesden they had been "winded out" at the workhouse at Winslow.

There, for "disorderly conduct," one of them was placed on the punishment list. Then he retaliated by giving notice to take his discharge, and the five others followed suit. They had personally to be conducted back to Willesden—the parish from which they started. Their next move was to make application for remission to Willesden workhouse. Asked to furnish suitable reasons for leaving the boarding-out institution, they complained generally of their treatment at Winslow. The only instance of "ill-treatment" they supplied was that they were given (as they alleged) weak tea. The Willesden authorities ordered the epicureans to return to their Buckingham home. The cost on account of these men during the past three months is returned at £25 2s 6d.

YOUNG MARCO POLO ENDS WORLD TOUR

For Five Years He's Traveled;
He's Now 18, "Too Old,"
and Will Settle Down.

New York, Aug. 21.—On a capital of thirty-five cents and an irrepressible wanderlust, James Erskine, eighteen years old, has just completed a tour one and a half times around the globe. He arrived in New York yesterday as full of tales of strange adventure as a Marco Polo, and with more money and better clothes than he possessed at the inception of his romantic journey.

"My people were drowned in the Galveston flood," he said, "and that's what made me leave home. But I'm going to get off the road now. Traveling is not funny like it used to be. It is easy when you are young, but not now. I'm getting too old."

That is the way the adventurous youth sums it all up.

When he left Galveston five years ago he was a barefooted boy of thirteen. He crossed the great State of Texas on a freight train, but changed to the top of a passenger coach at El Paso, and journeyed through to Los Angeles on the Southern Pacific's fastest express. By working at odd jobs and boarding the blind baggage, the bumpers, or the trucks, he made San Francisco just as the United States transport Thomas was about to sail for the Philippines.

Thousand Miles on Hardback.

Late one night he untied a rowboat hidden under one of the docks, and rowed himself out to where the big vessel was moored. He climbed up on the hawser chain into the ship and concealed himself within a canvas covered lifeboat. Here he found hardback, provided in advance for the shipwrecked, and he subsisted on it until discovered a thousand miles from shore.

He was permitted to go ashore on the Island of Guam, but failed to get back on the boat and was left, one among a few hundred white people, in midocean. A Government supply boat picked him up and he worked for the mess until he got to Manila. He attached himself to the commissary of a military company and toured the islands.

The transport which took him from San Francisco brought him back, but he hid himself as a stowaway on the Sherman and crossed the Pacific again to Nagasaki. Despite the vigilance of the crew, he slipped off the ship and bribed a Chinaman to row him ashore. He saw Kobe and Yokohama, and crossed the Japan Sea to Shanghai, and thence up the Yellow River.

Two Dollars a Week in Kimberley.

The youth tells of meeting a Chinaman who owned a sailing poultry craft, on which he raised ducks and sold them in convenient ports. The Mongolian gave him a job, and landed him in Hong Kong, where he caught a packet for Calcutta. Working at everything from "cleaning potatoes to mending rigging," he journeyed from India to Lisbon, Gibraltar and Alexandria. A party of tourists picked him up there, and carried him on camel back to Cairo "to see the pyramids and graves."

Crossing to Constantinople he boarded a sailing vessel for Cape Town, and spent several weeks in South Africa, washing dishes in a Kimberley restaurant for $2 a week. A fishing schooner transported him to Sydney and Melbourne. As a part of a cargo of wool, he made the long journey from San Francisco. His itinerary from the coast here included the cities of Salt Lake, St. Paul, Kansas City, Galveston, Chicago, Cincinnati, Norfolk and Washington.

"I'm going to get a job and settle down now," he says.

DARROW AFTER EVIDENCE

Is in Toronto and Possibly Will Seek News as to Orchard.

Toronto, Aug. 22.—Clarence S. Darrow, counsel for the defense in the famous Haywood trial at Boise, Idaho, was a visitor to Toronto today. Mr. Darrow is traveling unpretentiously, and is evidently glad to get a rest after the turmoil of the trial. Mr. Darrow is spoken of as a possible counsel for the defense in the Pettibone and Moyer cases, which are yet to be tried, though there have been rumors of objections.

It was whispered in the hotel corridors this morning that Mr. Darrow's trip to Toronto might be extended as far as Northwestern County, and that he would there gather material to discredit the evidence given by "Orchard," who, as Alfred Horsley, spent his boyhood days in the county, and finally brought disgrace upon the county by confessing his real identity. It may be that the eminent legal gentleman now in the city could secure some interesting stories there. At any rate, if all the rumors be true, it is not unlikely that he will try.

LAWSON SAYS, "I TOLD YOU"

Bostonian Declares Latest Speech Is Hard Drive at "System."

Boston, Aug. 22.—Thomas W. Lawson said tonight:

"For three years I have been telling the people that before Theodore Roosevelt got through with the system it would resemble a tin can which had been through the wars on the end of an army mule's tail. During the past year the President has been alternately putting his left and right boot in the center of the system coat-tail, but yesterday at Provincetown he performed the difficult feat of simultaneously planting both without leaving terra firma or showing his teeth. Wall street and the system knows just 'who is who' in this fair country of ours."

"It may not be out of place for me to repeat that the man who landed on

OLIVER FAVORS A WHITE CANADA

Minister of Interior Studied British Columbia Conditions.

Vancouver, Aug. 22.—"My principal mission here is to gather information regarding the question of Oriental immigration, which I understand is an absorbing public attention at this juncture. Let me assure the people of British Columbia that I have come with an open mind. So far as I am personally concerned I am unswervingly in favor of a white and British Canada. As Minister of the Interior, and in charge of the department especially entrusted with immigration affairs, my policy has been, as it will be in future, to attract desirable settlers, and to exclude all undesirable."

This was the epigrammatic way in which Hon. Frank Oliver last week stated his views respecting the Oriental problem.

"I am very glad you are here, for British Columbia, unless the bars are raised against Orientals, will soon be no longer a white man's country," was the comment of Mr. R. G. Macpherson, M. P., who was present and who went on to outline the conditions leading to the displacement of white men by Asiatic competitors.

Mr. Oliver was given an opportunity to study conditions at first hand, as he made a tour of Chinatown and the various sawmills. Later an appointment with the Anti-Asiatic League was arranged.

Mr. Hamar Greenwood, M. P. for York in the Imperial House, has agreed to address the club in Vancouver in the first week in September. Mr. F. C. Wade, K.C., president of the club, personally induced Mr. Greenwood to speak here.

A New York man has just patented a device for the encouragement of thrift. It consists of a toy savings bank with a clock attachment. The clock is set in the face of the bank and cannot be wound unless a dime is dropped in the slot. As winding causes the time to fall into the vault and the clock will run but 24 hours without rewinding, the contrivance assures the accumulation of 70 cents a week. The theory is that the necessity of depositing a dime every day will lead to slipping in other coins at odd moments and thus establish a habit of saving.

HER JEWELS SOLD FOR UNIVERSITY

In Compliance With Will, Mrs.
Stanford's Gems Are Disposed of in London.

New York, Aug. 22.—Almost all the diamonds belonging to the estate of the late Mrs. Jane L. Stanford, widow of Leland Stanford, Jun., have been quietly disposed of, and the proceeds are to be devoted to the Leland Stanford, Jun., University, in compliance with the terms of the will of their owner.

The sale took place in a wholesale house in London under the supervision of a committee consisting of Timothy Hopkins, Joseph D. Grant, Charles D. Lathrop and Whitelaw Reid, United States ambassador to Great Britain. Several New York dealers were concerned in the sale, although the bulk of the gems were disposed of in London. Ludwig Nissen, of Broadway, and John Street, obtained some of the largest diamonds, and the quaint settings in which they once reposed are now in his safe, although the stones have been transferred to other mountings and incorporated into necklaces.

Gems Bring $350,000.

It is said that $350,000 has been realized, which falls considerably short of the appraisal made by experts, which was half a million dollars. Two of the large canary-colored diamonds may now be seen in a necklace to which they were transferred from a pair of earrings once worn by Mrs. Stanford.

None of the stones was registered in the customs house before the consignment was taken to England, and therefore those which were brought back here had to pay duty at the rate

BASEBALL BOXING BOWLING

All That's Worth While In Sports Way

LACROSSE RACING ATHLETICS

What Is Doing in the East End League

[By Charles Morehead, Official Scorer of the League.]

The attendance at the East End League games during this the second year of the league's existence has been far beyond expectations, and the crowd's could be but barely accommodated.

Owing to the action of No. 2 committee of the city council last year in fixing the grounds to there is now an infield second to none anywhere.

The league has turned out some promising players into what is termed faster company. This may be so in a sense, but individual ball players do not always make a winning ball team.

"CHARLIE" MOOREHEAD.

In the East End League the Ramblers who are leading in the race for the Zwickler Trophy, are a team that play well together and seem to have the faculty of helping one another on the bases.

Campbell, the left fielder, is probably the speediest man of the league when on the bases, but while not up to Brennan, of the Oriens in stealing bases, this is owing to his not being able to hit as well, consequently he does not reach the base so often.

Sheritt's work at third base ranks

JACK BEGGS.

with the best of them. Cochrane, Shannon and Gillies are all fine players. The question of a series of games with the McClarys, of the City League, has never been taken up seriously by the league. The idea has been ap-

SNAPSHOTS AT VARIOUS SPORTS

It has been decided to postpone the East End League games scheduled for tomorrow until a week later on account of the Grand Trunk picnic.

Yea, ye Free Press warriors! We are girding ourselves for the coming off-and-on fraying of the tongue, and will be there or thereabouts when the gong shall have sounded for the opening of hostilities.

Local bowlers who competed at Woodbine say that it was just a case of "shut-your-eyes-and-pray." The greens were described as terrible. "It wasn't the good bowlers who, as a rule, won out there," declared one of the London players, "it was the lucky men."

The London men have no complaint coming as to their treatment while at the big new rink, and predict a great future for Woodbine when the greens are worked into shape.

Knight's of the chunder path will have a chance to show what is in them tonight out at Queen's Park when the first of a series of twilight amateur meets will be held by the Y. M. C. A. The races are open to all, and no entrance fee will be charged, or any prizes given.

An error appeared in these columns yesterday when it was stated that Skidoo jointly held the former matinee record of 1:06. Clipper, owned at that time by Dr. Fred Wood, made the mark last year.

The Tigers are up against it at present in the matter of backstops. The entire Tiger catching staff is on the hospital list. Payne was hit on the hand by a Boston bat on Wednesday, smashing two fingers, and Schmidt was hurt in the same game. On Thursday Archer broke one of his fingers. Schmidt will do all the receiving until another catcher can be secured.

The Saintly dope-sheet scribes of the Railroad Village are just having all kinds of sport with our prizes, the McClarys, over that recent farce at St. Thomas.

The Times' ink-slinger says: The St. Thomas ball team had a barrel of fun trouncing the champions of the London City League at Pinaforte Park yesterday afternoon. The Stars were announced to be on the street, east of Mulberry street.

FRANK DONOHUE.

proved by the patrons of the games who have been interested in the good ball playing furnished at the park this season by all of the teams.

Whether their suggestion will be acted upon remains to be seen.

Among the pitchers of the five clubs are some clever performers.

Twirler Brooks, of the Somervilles, has struck out 65 men in eight games, and Heathfield, of the Ramblers, has struck out 50 in ten games.

For the Oriens, Delaney has proved himself a fine fielder this year, having retired twenty-three men in 14 games. Brennan, Taylor and Palmer are also good players.

Donohue, the manager of the Somervilles, plays the best game at shortstop in the league, and is an accurate thrower and sure on ground balls.

The Somervilles have some good material on the team, the bright and particular star being R. Myers, who is a clever hitter, and Allport, who excels at base-running and is a fast all-around player.

For the Wortmans, Tanton has put up a great article of ball at first base and his work has always been well thought of.

Jack McConnell, the hard-working backstop, will also figure high this season in fielding percentage.

The Stars, tail-enders at present, have a coming first-sacker in B. Waud, who is sure and can get a ball across to third in good style.

Hughes, in left field, is another young player who has played an almost errorless game—he has had but one error.

Considering that this is the Stars' first season in the East End League, they have done well, indeed, against the older and more experienced teams.

Taken as a whole, the league looks good, very good, in fact, for an amateur aggregation.

Job, but they were unable to come and the champions came along instead. What the Saints did with the leaders in the brush-pile town's league was a shame. They just made runs when they felt like it and were never once pressed by the visitors. The Londoners, however, were short their championship pitcher, Gibson, and their catcher, Cook, and this, of course, weakened them. "Rube" Kerr, Gibson's understudy, went on the slab, to do the twirling, but he lacked form. He was touched up for ten hits for a total of fifteen bases, issued eight passes, and hit three men. Orr, on the other hand, was very effective, keeping the eight hits scattered, and only walking two. Orr's support was well-nigh perfect, and the backstop work by Retz, Manager Salter's latest find, was excellent. Payne, another new 'un, played a perfect game at third, and batted well. The fielding of the Londoners was very cloudy at times, while Stein, the catcher, let eleven Saints steal bases on him.

Johnnie K, whom Mr. Geo. McCormick, of this city, recently sold to Ald. McBride, of Toronto, failed to make good in the 2:30 class at the Luffkin Park races in Toronto, the day before yesterday, being among those ruled out after five heats had been traveled. Johnnie K was, however, the favorite for the event. The Globe says of the horse: "Ald. S. McBride's new purchase, Johnnie K, made his first start here. He was not up to a hard race, but will make good later."

Dr. Jack, another ex-London horse, was out of the money also. The race resulted as follows:

KRUGER WINS NORFOLK STAKE

Carries Off a $6,000 Purse After a Sensational Finish.

Readville, Mass., Aug. 22.—Kruger took the $6,000 Norfolk stake today in three of the closest finishes ever witnessed at a Grand Circuit meeting.

While scoring for the first heat Sam Rysdyk, Wilkes, Addington and Miss Gay collided at the wire. Lester Dore, of Taunton, Mass., driver of Miss Gay, was thrown in the air and landed fully 30 feet in front of his mare. He escaped with a badly sprained ankle.

Cox, who was behind Addington, was thrown against the fence, but was not much injured. None of the horses was hurt in the mix-up.

Geers set the pace in the opening heat with John A. to the distance flag, when McDonald brought up Kruger with a rush, winning by a neck.

In the following heat Geers allowed Kruger to lead until near the finish, when he outbrashed the gelding, getting the decision by a narrow margin. In the final heat McDonald dropped directly behind John A., and again brought Kruger ahead in a desperate drive through the home stretch, while Dore's Hal just nipped the finish.

Kruger is the property of Ralph B. Williams, of Boston.

Athasham surprised the talent by taking the Ponkapog, valued at $4,500. Embay attempted to spread-eagle his field by gaining a big lead through the trotting first halves in better than 1:03, and lasted barely long enough to win the first heat.

In the following heats, the California stallion raced Embay into submission in the final furlong.

Lotta, owned by Lotta Crabtree, handled the better of the field in the 2:08 trot. Summary:

TIGERS CAPTURE THE LAST GAME

Result Mighty Dubious Until End of the Ninth Inning.

Detroit, Aug. 22.—The Tigers just managed to land the series from Boston by taking the final game yesterday afternoon in another nerve-wracking game by a score of 8 to 7. This puts them back in second place. Bill Donovan was in for the Tigers. Bill Wick pitched good ball, but he is sick from a heavy cold and coughed constantly during the game. Toward the close he weakened. In the ninth he walked three men and forced in one tally. The Tigers had a lead of one when Donovan was taken out and Siever took his place with the bases full. Eddie got two strikes on Congalton but the third was unnecessary as, with two out, the Beaneaters grounded to Rossman.

Detroit opened by gaining a nice big lead, getting runs in all of the first four innings. It stood seven to two when Boston finally began to get to Donovan in the sixth. With the bases loaded and two out with Congalton to bat it looked mighty dubious. But Siever forced "Bunk" out to Rossie and the day was saved.

Tigers Get a Lead.
McGuire sent his new left-hander, Kroh, to the box for one inning and the Tigers made three runs in that time. Jones walked and after Coughlin had fied, Crawford singled. Cobb beat a hunt, but Knight, in his hurry, threw wild to first and Jones scored. Crawford and Cobb moving up a base. Downs singled through the box, Crawford and Cobb scoring.

This gave the Tigers their lead and they were not passed, but they were badly scared. A single by Barrett, a sacrifice by Sullivan and an error by O'Leary on Congalton's drive gave

Music Banished Trouble in the Home

The Scotch Pipe Band, headed by pipe-major McDonald, of the local police force, gave a concert last night at the Home for incurables, for the entertainment of the inmates. The music was apparently enjoyed to the fullest by the majority of the unfortunate residents at the institution, and especially by those to whose minds the strident notes of the pipes brought sweet memories of their boyhood days in the highlands of dear old Scotland. Many a heart beat fast under the inspiration of the music, and many an aged man, decrepit and worn through many long years of suffering and sickness, was fairly rejuvenated, and, forgetting his present misfortune, was carried back amid flights of fancy to some old Scottish village, where, many years ago, amid all the happiness of youth, such harmony as that of the London Scotch Pipe Band, to which they were listening, had been attended by the marching of men in highland costume, the gay Scottish dance, or the more serious and less impulsive, the recollections of which still played vividly before the mind.

A Bunco Game That Went Awry

There was a time when the farmer was looked upon as a receiver-general of all the latest types of gold-bird and green goods games.

According to a little story which leaked out today and is going the rounds among the farmers who gather on the market place, one local farmer at least is fairly clever at the bunco game himself. At all events his methods of doing business yesterday were none too scrupulous.

Mr. F. L. Ross, who conducts a grocery store at 126 Hamilton road, yesterday went to the market and bought a load of rather choice hay for which he agreed to pay $15 a ton.

Shortly after Mr. Ross left another buyer appeared and the same farmer sold the load to the second man for $15.

Then Mr. Farmer pondered, but only for a moment, when he caught sight of another load of hay almost as good as his own. The other hay was purchasable at $13 a ton, and Mr. Ross lost no time in buying up the load, which, by the way, weighed considerably less than his own.

All might have gone well had the fox agreed to deliver the inferior hay himself, but he didn't, and consequently Mr. Ross was inquisitive when he saw the strange driver forking hay into his lot.

A little questioning brought forth the whole tale.

"Right here is where I get a load of hay cheap," said the grocer to himself, so he let the man go ahead.

Later the farmer who had attempted the little deception appeared at Mr. Ross' place of business looking for his money.

After telling the visitor what he thought of him, Mr. Ross offered $8 a ton for the inferior hay which had been delivered.

Mr. Farmer jumped a foot.

"Why, that hay is just as good as mine," he shouted.

"When we need an expert to do our buying we will give you the first chance," retorted the grocer. "Take $8 a ton or take away the hay."

Now, loading a ton of hay is no light task, and the farmer threatened all manner of things if he didn't get his money at once; but the grocer was obdurate.

Then Mr. Farmer camped right on the job until late last evening, when a compromise was reached. Mr. Ross paid $13 a ton, actual weight, for the hay for which the farmer had paid $12 a ton, and the latter was compelled to deliver the load which Ross originally purchased before he received a cent for either load.

The second man who purchased the $15 load is wondering why he did not receive his hay.

EAST ENDER FELL FIFTEEN FEET

Mr. Chris. Anderson, of Charlotte Street, Suffers Serious Injury.

Mr. Chris. Anderson, a carpenter, living at 480 Charlotte street, met with a serious accident yesterday afternoon while at work on a building in the east end. He was engaged on a high ceiling, when he slipped, and, losing his grip, fell to the floor a distance of fifteen or twenty feet. He was badly bruised, and had one rib broken, and his collar bone dislocated. He was taken home and Dr. J. B. Campbell called. It is thought he will be laid up for some time, as his injuries are quite serious.

One of the peculiar features of the accident is the fact that when he fell there were a lot of nails scattered on the floor. Only one of them injured him, and that penetrated the upper part of his ear. It will cause him very little trouble, and was removed by Dr. Campbell.

Had Mr. Anderson alighted an inch or so either way the nail would have pierced his head.

THE STANDARD SET.

The standard set is as follows: Age, 21 to 28 years; 22 to 26 years preferred; married men preferred; Height, 5 feet 10 inches, and weight 165 to 175 pounds, with a chest measurement of about 38 inches or over. The candidate must be of sound health in every way. Above all, the character references of a candidate for employment on the police force must be excellent, and show him to be thoroughly reliable.

Many young men join the local force and after they have begun to get used to the work, find more profitable employment and leave. The wages are too low.

"A Message From Mars" Tomorrow.

The world is full of selfish men and selfish women. The author of "A Message From Mars," the splendid comedy that will be seen here tomorrow, afternoon and evening, is evidently a thorough student of human nature. He built his play upon humorous lines, and so constructed it that it was made to point a moral of no uncertain force in opposition to the sin of selfishness, thus delivering a fine sermon, as it were, to selfish men and women, exhorting them to get it out of their system. When the play was presented here on a previous occasion all who saw it were extremely well pleased.

PETTY CASES AT DIVISION COURT

Crowded Court at First Sitting After the Long Vacation.

The opening sitting of the first division court after the long vacation was held this morning before Judge Macbeth. It brought out more cases than has been heard before a division court sitting in this city in years, almost 80 cases being entered.

The courtroom was almost entirely filled with spectators, lawyers and parties interested in the cases.

Most of the cases were of a petty nature, and were disposed of quickly. One rather amusing case was that in which A. Keenleyside, a local property-owner, had entered a suit for $8 or $9 rent from H. Smithson, a former tenant.

Smithson had been occupying Keenleyside's house for about two years, having vacated it recently. Some few weeks ago the landlord decided to paper the house, but could procure no paperhangers. He asked Mrs. Smithson to do the work, offering, so she claimed, to pay her for the task. When the work was done Keenleyside ordered his tenants to leave the place. They did so, without paying the rent due, on account of a dispute about the money promised for the papering, and because the landlord insisted that they pay the water rates as well.

Mrs. Smithson testified that it took her nearly three weeks to do the papering, and that she considered it worth $5 at least for her labor and the paste.

"What do you consider a fair price for papering a room," Mr. Keenleyside asked his honor.

"About 50 cents, sir," was the reply.

"I never got any papering done for that price," said Judge Macbeth.

His honor asked Keenleyside if he had ever charged the water rates to his tenants before, and he replied that he had not, but that he had recently learned that other renters paid the rates, so he thought his tenants should too.

The costs of the case were placed on the defendant, and the counter-claim for papering taken under consideration. The water rates will be paid by the landlord.

A Suit Over Wages.

A suit against George Peters for back wages by W. A. Young, a driver, was non-suited, because Young quit work on Saturday noon instead of finishing the week out. Young testified that he gave over a month's notice of his intention to leave. His honor held that a man employed by the week forfeits his wages unless he stays the time out.

One of the cases involved but $1. W. Stinson, a teamster, had ordered a horse collar of a local harness maker, and the collar did not fit. The original price of the collar had been $4. When the defendant discovered that the piece of harness did not fit he traded for a "weather cover," valued at $4, and agreed to pay $1 difference. Verdict for plaintiff.

The bulk of the other cases were either held over or non-suited.

A Conservative's Disclaimer.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

Looking over the newspapers in the library, and in your own paper, I noticed what is called the school board outrage, laid to the Conservative party. People would not have that opinion if they knew all the circumstances. Wm. Fitzgerald's folks and Mr. McCutcheon's are neighbors in Nissouri. Emmerson McRoberts' and the young teacher's mothers are sisters. These two, for personal reasons, may have pulled the other trustees through their Conservative leanings. I cannot say. Neither the Conservative party or the Conservative Club should be discredited with the blame. Of course, at election times Conservatives vote for Conservative trustees; but it does not follow that they want politics introduced into the selection of teachers. Fair-minded Conservatives and the citizens generally want to see the teachers encouraged to do their best for the children and get fair pay.

PETTY CASES AT DIVISION COURT

Crowded Court at First Sitting After the Long Vacation.

The opening sitting of the first division court after the long vacation was held this morning before Judge Macbeth. It brought out more cases than has been heard before a division court sitting in this city in years, almost 80 cases being entered.

The courtroom was almost entirely filled with spectators, lawyers and parties interested in the cases.

Most of the cases were of a petty nature, and were disposed of quickly. One rather amusing case was that in which A. Keenleyside, a local property-owner, had entered a suit for $8 or $9 rent from H. Smithson, a former tenant.

Smithson had been occupying Keenleyside's house for about two years, having vacated it recently. Some few weeks ago the landlord decided to paper the house, but could procure no paperhangers. He asked Mrs. Smithson to do the work, offering, so she claimed, to pay her for the task. When the work was done Keenleyside ordered his tenants to leave the place. They did so, without paying the rent due, on account of a dispute about the money promised for the papering, and because the landlord insisted that they pay the water rates as well.

Mrs. Smithson testified that it took her nearly three weeks to do the papering, and that she considered it worth $5 at least for her labor and the paste.

"What do you consider a fair price for papering a room," Mr. Keenleyside asked his honor.

"About 50 cents, sir," was the reply.

"I never got any papering done for that price," said Judge Macbeth.

His honor asked Keenleyside if he had ever charged the water rates to his tenants before, and he replied that he had not, but that he had recently learned that other renters paid the rates, so he thought his tenants should too.

The costs of the case were placed on the defendant, and the counter-claim for papering taken under consideration. The water rates will be paid by the landlord.

A Suit Over Wages.

A suit against George Peters for back wages by W. A. Young, a driver, was non-suited, because Young quit work on Saturday noon instead of finishing the week out. Young testified that he gave over a month's notice of his intention to leave. His honor held that a man employed by the week forfeits his wages unless he stays the time out.

One of the cases involved but $1. W. Stinson, a teamster, had ordered a horse collar of a local harness maker, and the collar did not fit. The original price of the collar had been $4. When the defendant discovered that the piece of harness did not fit he traded for a "weather cover," valued at $4, and agreed to pay $1 difference. Verdict for plaintiff.

The bulk of the other cases were either held over or non-suited.

A Conservative's Disclaimer.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

Looking over the newspapers in the library, and in your own paper, I noticed what is called the school board outrage, laid to the Conservative party. People would not have that opinion if they knew all the circumstances. Wm. Fitzgerald's folks and Mr. McCutcheon's are neighbors in Nissouri. Emmerson McRoberts' and the young teacher's mothers are sisters. These two, for personal reasons, may have pulled the other trustees through their Conservative leanings. I cannot say. Neither the Conservative party or the Conservative Club should be discredited with the blame. Of course, at election times Conservatives vote for Conservative trustees; but it does not follow that they want politics introduced into the selection of teachers. Fair-minded Conservatives and the citizens generally want to see the teachers encouraged to do their best for the children and get fair pay.

WILL GRAHAM GO TO CABINET?

Prominent Leader's Name Mentioned for the Vacant Ontario Place.

Ottawa, Aug. 23.—A special to the Globe says: While no definite announcement as to the cabinet appointments to be made next week is yet available, speculation here is rife as to who will be the successors to Hon. Mr. Hyman and Hon. Mr. Emmerson. Sir Wilfrid Laurier is, of course, keeping his own counsel, and will not announce his choice of new lieutenants until that choice has been ratified by the Ontario Legislature, to take the vacant portfolio from Ontario, Liberal members of the Provincial Legislature are naturally averse to losing the brilliant services of Mr. Graham in the provincial field, but it is felt here that his universally recognized fitness for service in an administrative cabinet capacity will be of greater benefit to the country as a whole if exercised at Ottawa than is possible at present in provincial politics.

The opinion here is gaining ground among those who are close to the Government councils that Sir Wilfrid will ask Hon. George P. Graham, of Brockville, leader of the Opposition in the Ontario Legislature, to take the vacant portfolio from Ontario, Liberal members of the Provincial Legislature are naturally averse to losing the brilliant services of Mr. Graham in the provincial field, but it is felt here that his universally recognized fitness for service in an administrative cabinet capacity will be of greater benefit to the country as a whole if exercised at Ottawa than is possible at present in provincial politics.

He is admittedly an ideal choice for a federal cabinet portfolio, and although no one but the Premier himself knows who will be chosen to succeed Hon. Mr. Hyman, it is considered probable that when final announcement is made it will be found that Mr. Graham has been chosen as the next minister of public works. Among the names mentioned for the cabinet by the Premier, members of the Commons whose fitness for the post is also admitted, including Mr. Pardee, Mr. Archibald Campbell and Hon. Speaker Sutherland, and it is possible that all things being considered, one of them may be called to the cabinet by the Premier.

However, the prevailing opinion here among those best informed is that indications now point to the selection of Mr. Graham.

In New Brunswick ex-Premier Pugsley and Mr. Carvell, member for Carleton Place, are the names most prominently mentioned. Either would make an excellent minister. Sir Wilfrid has not indicated in any way whom he will ask to become minister of railways, but the impression prevails that New Brunswick's popular ex-premier, who has been long and prominently identified with the public life of the province, will be asked to succeed Hon. Mr. Emmerson.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. William Court, 324 Wortley road, South London, was the scene of a quiet, but pretty wedding yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock, when their eldest daughter Miss Bertha was united in marriage to Mr. George N. Brown, of this city, the Rev. Mr. Walker officiating.

ROBBED A GENERAL

Montreal, Aug. 21. — A daring robbery was committed today, when Gen. De Negrier, of Paris, a guest at the Windsor Hotel, was relieved of his wallet, containing a letter of credit for a large amount, while he was attempting to board a street car.

Gen. De Negrier, who is well known in French army circles, having had command of the French troops in Algeria, is on a visit to Canada. According to his story he was followed to the Bank of Montreal, where he drew a considerable sum on his letter of credit, by those who eventually stole his wallet. After leaving the bank and while trying to board a car, in order to return to his hotel, he felt himself pushed, but paid no particular attention to it. At the time his wallet was in his right hip-pocket, and in the same pocket were the bank notes and gold which he had just drawn from the bank. The thieves missed the money and got away with the wallet, which contained the letter of credit, which is of no negotiable value except to the general himself.

LONDON AND DISTRICT

—Evangelist Belcher addressed the policemen at their meeting in the Y. M. C. A. rooms on Thursday afternoon.

—The model school opens Tuesday, Sept. 3, and will be held as usual in the Aberdeen School. Inspector Edwards will receive applications at once for places.

—The Alberta Saturday News of a recent date says: "Mr. Gordon Carling a grandson of Sir John Carling, of London, Ont., and a son of Mr. Fred Carling of Ottawa, left Calgary this week in company with Mr. L. E. Ward, the well-known guide, for a trip to the valley of Sheep Creek, in the Yellowstone district. They left the railway at Cochrane and struck the Clearwater trail. Sheep Creek Valley, according to the Calgary News, is rich in fertility and is a natural home for fruit. The valley is inhabited by a band of Indians who are supposed to be descendants of Iroquois, who once roamed the plains of the Illinois. During Black Hawk's time in Illinois, these Indians were driven by other hostile bands away from their homes near the present site of the city of Chicago. Through strange lands they traveled towards the northwest driving before them their vast herds of horses, through the great Mormon settlement, and the land of Sitting Bull, and through the bad lands on to the Canadian Northwest, and finally after three years of travel and hardships the dead who had not been killed by the yellow arrow or smallpox, reached their present location. Their pelts they dispose of at Lac St. Anne, to the west of Edmonton."

Active Preparations FOR THE WESTERN FAIR

The Western Fair, Sept. 6 to 14, will without doubt be a great success if the weather proves favorable. Entries are coming in fast in all the departments. At the present time indications are that the horse exhibit will be very large.

The London Hunt Club have kindly offered to exhibit the best couple of hounds and horses composing the hunt team that won this class in the International Horse Show at London, England, this year, in competition with the world. The exhibition will be composed of four horses, ridden by the master, Hon. Adam Beck, the huntsman, and two whips, in the hunt colors, and will consist of horses in their exhibition of jumping exactly as shown when winning the above prize. Mrs. Adam Beck has kindly consented to exhibit her harness horses, carriages and appointments, as exhibited at the above show. This attraction will be presented before the grand stand, Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept. 11 and 12.

The great pigeon flight will take place Wednesday afternoon. The dog show will be held from the 10th to the 13th. Entries close Aug. 31. Entries in all other departments close Sept. 5.

There will be many new exhibits this year. The Women's Art Association of Canada will have an exhibit (not for competition) of the home industries and handicrafts of Canadian women, consisting of lace, baskets, embroideries, books, pictures, etc., which will be very interesting. Manufacturers will have their employees at work making their goods. Special medals have been donated to the dairy department by Ryrie Bros., of Diamond Hall, Toronto. The special cups donated in the agricultural department by the Bank of Toronto will bring a large exhibit. Programmes have been issued. The attractions this year are good, taking place twice daily before the grand stand, concluding each evening with a grand display of fireworks.

Reserve seats for the grand stand will be on sale a few days before the exhibition at Mills' book store, 398 Richmond street. Programmes, prize lists, entry forms and all information given at the general office, Richmond street.

SEVENTH REGIMENT WILL PARADE TONIGHT

First of the Fall Drills — A Big Time at Buffalo Is Promised.

The Seventh Regiment will tonight hold its first parade since Lieut.-Col. Reid took charge of the corps. Drill will commence immediately for the Buffalo trip, and it is confidently expected that the regiment will give a good account of itself when it lines up beside the crack American regiments which will be at Buffalo during all the week.

This will bring the annual drills much earlier than usual, in much more suitable weather than formerly. The drill will be completed before the winter sports begin and the boys will thus be enabled to continue their sports unhampered.

The Seventh Band will not parade with the regiment tonight, as it is in Newbury filling a two days' engagement with the Old Boys of that town. The bugle band is expected to turn out in full strength, however. Capt. McCrimmon, who has been doing some excellent shooting at Toronto, will be home, and will take part in the parade.

NEWS OF PORT STANLEY

A Much Appreciated Entertainment Given by Young Ladies.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Port Stanley, Aug. 22.—The spacious veranda of Mr. Water Bell's cottage on Hill Crest, overlooking New Orchard Beach, was the scene of a very pleasant gathering last night when some of the younger girls of the beach gave a rendition of "Cinderella." The book of the playlet was written by Miss Margaret Bell, and the production was under the direction and control of Miss Helen Bell.

Following is the cast:
Prince Charming, Miss Margaret Bell
Cinderella, Miss Ethel Welch
Stepmother, Hazel Coles
First Sister, Gladys Croden
Second Sister, Anna Eckert
Herald, Master Russell Eckert
Fairies, The Misses Dorothy Welch and Glyn Howard.

Fairy Godmother, Jessie Bell
Elucutionist, Jean Walker
Stage manager, Master C. Welch
Orchestra director, Master H. Stevely.

The playlet was given in fine style, and the entire production reflected the highest credit on all who took part. Between the acts Miss Jean Walker, a promising young elucutionist, entertained the audience with several first-class recitations. Miss Walker is decidedly talented and we expect to hear great things from her. The orchestra consisted of a graphophone, kindly loaned by Mr. J. A. Croden, and operated by Master H. Stevely.

After the play the girls served dainty refreshments and the party broke up with a hearty vote of thanks to the entertainers, and to Mr. and Mrs. Bell, who spared no pains to make the affair a success.

A laborer named Wm. Forbes was arrested by Village Constable James McIntyre, and taken before Squire Price, J. P., this morning charged with using blasphemous and obscene language on the public highway. He pleaded guilty and was given his liberty on paying $3.85 fine and costs.

A young druggist from London was arrested at the instigation of a Pere Marquette conductor for disorderly conduct on a train last night. As the railroad people did not lay any formal charge against him this morning when court opened, Squire Price discharged him.

Miss Ada Gardner, of London, is the guest of Mrs. A. C. Kerr, Fraser Heights.

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Purdom, of London, are registered at the Hill Crest Hotel.

Mr. G. F. Welch, of Vancouver, B. C., who has been spending five weeks with his son, Mr. A. E. Welch, at Lookout Cottage, New Orchard Beach, left recently for New York City to meet another son, Rev. G. R. Welch, B. A., with whom he will return to Albany, N. Y., for a visit with his youngest daughter.

Mrs. Joseph Bevington, of Winnipeg and Calgary on his return trip.

The Southwestern Traction Company have the rails all laid and the wires strung right into the village. Today a director of the road stated to The Advertiser that the company fully expected to have the cars running from the port to London in time for the Western Fair.

Mrs. George Stacey and family, of St. Thomas, who have been summering here, returned home today.
