WINTER. AN ODE.

NO more the morn, with tepid rays

Unfolds the flow'r of various hue;
Noon spreads no more the genial blaze,

Nor gentle eve distills the dew.
The ling'ring hours prolong the night

Usurping darkness shares the day;
Her mists restrain the force of light
And Phœbus holds a doubtful sway.

By gloomy twilight half reveal'd
With sighs we view the hoary hill,
The leafless wood, the naked field,
The snow topp'd cot, the frozen rill.

No music warbles thro' the grove;
No vivid colours paint the plain;
No more with devious steps I rove
Thro' verdant paths now sought in vain. Aloud

Aloud the driving tempest roars;
 Congeal'd, impetuous showers descend;
 Haste!—close the window—bar the doors;
 Fate leaves me Stella and a friend.
 In nature's aid, let art supply
 With light and heat my little sphere:
 Rouse, rouse the fire, pile it high;
 Light up a constellation here.
 Let music sound the voice of joy,
 Or mirth repeat the jocund tale;

Let love his wanton wiles employ,
 And o'er the season wine prevail.
 Yet Time his dreary winter brings,
 When mirth's gay tale shall please no more;
 Nor music charm, tho' Stella sings;
 Nor love, nor wine, the spring restore.
 Catch then, O catch, the transient hour:
 Improve each moment as it flies:
 Life's a short summer—man a flower!
 He dies!—Alas! how soon he dies!

THE PROSPECT OF SPRING.

THE Snow-drop marks the early tints of Spring,
And soon the plummy heralds of
the year,
Nestling, shall speak the cheerful season near,
And vocal melodies in concert
sing.

Again with genial glow the nymphs
shall charm,
The whisp'ring groves with leafy green be hung;
Love's potent impulse youthful bo-
soms 'larm,
And soft persuasion dwell upon each tongue.

Last Quarter, 13th Day, 9 h. 2 m. Afternoon.

 May!
 Youngest daughter of the Spring!
 Bright as dawn of blushing day!
 Hither haste on balmy wing!

Whilst soft music's dulcet note,
 High enlivens flowery vale;
 Hark! the woodland robin's song,
 Wakes for thee the feather'd
 throng;
 List attentive as they sing!
 Hither haste on balmy wing!

SUMMER.

O TIME of joy! enchanting scene!

Teeming with gay delight,
What blifs in thy soft blush is seen!

What verdure feasts the fight!

A thousand beauties charm my eyes,
Where'er my fancy strays;
The vary'd scenes still pleasing rise;
Each something new displays.

The earth does now her verdure spread;

All nature calm and gay;
Each tree now waves it leafy head.
And gentle zephyrus praise.

And whilst they fan th' ambient air,
The birds their voices raise,
And swell their notes with artless care,
To chant their Maker's praise.

With feeble wing, the bee now roves,
And with unceasing toil,
Murm'ring thro' the breezy groves,
Culls all her flow'ry spoil.

No stormy wind disturbs the waves,
The stream now smoothly glides;
The brook its banks in quiet laves;
And silently subsides.

The lowing herds range o'er the mead
With flow'rs and verdure drest;
The bleating flocks as happy feed;
And all the plain is blest.

Now swallows wing the dewy glades
As thwart the lawns they fly;
To rivulets and cooling shades
The rustic sylvans hie.

THE SUMMER MORNING.

A GAIN Aurora pours her purple light
 O'er all the scenes which ev'ning
 bath'd in dew;
 The blooming landscape brightens
 on the sight,
 And Nature wakes her melodies anew.

But, ah! the tuneful warblers
 raise their voice,
 And vernal Nature smiles for me
 in vain:
 I sadly note their varied charms, and bear
 Deep in my soul the winter of despair.

APPROACH OF WINTER.

VOCAL songsters of the grove,
Trilling airs of tender love,
Quit, oh quit the leafy spray,
Tune your notes to warmer day.

Insects, swarming buoyant air,
Sporting here, and sitting there,
Seek a happier shelter soon,
Now begins the tempest moon.

Lambkins, bounding o'er the lawn,
At sober eve, or frolick morn,
Changed is nature's beauteous
scene,
Hasten from the faded green.

Little fry, the pool that skim,
Have you learnt afar to swim?
If you're caught in pond or lake,
Can you bars of iron break?

Frost,

Frost, and snow, and rattling hail,
Freezes, covers, piles the vale :
Roaring howls the mad'ning storm,
Nature's children, are yet warm ?

Whether has the lambkin sped,
Is he living, is he dead ?
See, in yonder cot he stands,
Feeding from Adelia's hands.

Yes, methinks the bird replies,
I have flown to vernal skies ;
Fields of rice and stores of grain,
Wait me on the southern plain.

Where is ev'ry insect gone ?
Sure they're not a distance borne ;
No ! oh no, behold them dwell,
Safe, secure, in thick lin'd shell.

| DREAD winter reigns ; all nature fades         Beneath his savage sway ;         Dark night the throne of sol invades,         And clouds the gates of day.         Thus glory's sons from fame are hurl'd ;         One common grave awaits the world. | Strip'd are the bowers of vernal ease ;         No fruits the trees adorn ;         No fragrance fills the playful breeze,         And dreary is the lawn.         Thus beauty's fairest floweret fades,         When wintry age its bloom pervades. |

A CURE for the RHEUMATISM.

MR. COXE, in the fifth volume of his Travels into Poland, &c. mentions, that the peasants of Norway use the following remedy, as effectual in rheumatic cases: They prepare a decoction of oak leaves in beer, and apply a cloth, dipped in the decoction, to the part affected. — A remedy unquestionably simple and harmless, if not really effectual.
