. "From Adam's offence resulted condemnation upon all men; from Christ's righteousness, justification upon all men. The condemnation would have God. produced the exclusion of the race from existence by the infliction of immediate death upon Adam. But, the justification of all, in view of the atonement secured the continuity of the race, by which every person comes into the world in a justified state." Now, we believe that every child taken away from the earth in the period of infancy in virtue of this "justification of life," goes to swell the number of the saved and to be a star in the Redeemer's crown for ever, and, also, that every child who lives continues in the enjoyment of this "justification of life," until by an act of his own free will he voluntarily refuses the good and chooses the evil. Dr. Wilbur Fisk expresses the thought thus, "Guilt is not imputed, until by a voluntary rejection of the Gospel, man makes the depravity of his nature the object of his own choice."

Religious biography contained in the Scriptures and elsewhere abundantly confirms, in our opinion, the statement that their are instances in which children have never lost this "justification of life." By careful instruction and training their feet have been kept in the way of life and there is no remembrance on their part of a time when they did not enjoy a conscious assurance of the love of God.

They have never had such an experience of sin as to make a separation between God and them, more than that which any adult person may, though in a justified state, experience, and, consequently, they cannot point to a period as the majority of converted persons can, when by the operation of the Divine Spirit upon their hearts, they were changed from a state of nature to a state of grace.

It may be objected that these views do not harmonize with Scripture teaching respecting the necessity of becoming a "new creature," of being "born again," and of being "converted;" for, if a child may retain the justification of infancy there need be no subsequent necessity for the change indicated by fellowing from that great master of these phrases.

To illustrate our idea of the relation they sustain to the opinion we advocate, let us refer to another passage of Scripture, the Great commission, "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature; he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved, but he that balieveth not shall be damned." (Mark, 16, 15-16.) If we are to interpret these words in their widest signification, we at once exclude any infant dving in infancy from the possibility of salvation; for such an infant "believeth not" and therefore

We at once see the necessity of limiting the direct application of the terms of the Saviour's last command to those who have attained such a maturity of understanding as renders personal faith in Christ possible. And, in like manner, we must limit the direct application of the phrases before quoted to those who have lost the justification of infancy and therefore need a renewal, or we may say, another renewal of their nature by the power of the Spirit of

Any other opinion of the relation of children to Christ than that here urged nvolves in difficulty and doubt the familiar saying of the Saviour, "Suffer little children to come unto Me, and forbid them not: for of such is the kingdom of God." (Mark 10, 14.)

For example, examine it in the light of the opinions that a living child is only justified on condition of its dying in its infancy. Then we must choose one horn of the following dilemna :- either we must believe that these children, who were there in the Saviour's presence, not all children, are spoken of, and that they were such as would die in infancy and were justified on that condition, or, we must believe that Jesus spoke not of children themselves as nembers of the kingdon of God, but, of certain characteristics of childhood as finding a resemblance in adult Christians, and thus make him employ only a bold figure of speech.

Which alternative will we choose ? Will we say Jesus meant only some children, or, that He was merely speaking in a figure? We conclude there is a deeper meaning intended than either of these suppossitions would imply.

Again examine the saying in the light of another opinion, advocated by the late Dr. Nadal, (Meth. O. Rev., Oct. 7, p. 57,) that " regeneration is not the condition of admission into the Church of Christ," and that, therefore, persons may be in the Kingdom of God and yet not justified or regenerate. The intention of this theory is to show that children may be in the Kingdom of God and yet not in any sense justified or re-

On this ground we have the spectacle of Jesus holding up as models to which his disciples must conform the unjustified and unregenerate, a view we cannot heaven) signifies the spiritual Kingdom of Christ or earth, and also that glorious reign of God over redeemed and glorified men in a future world are points not to be disputed; and the words of our Lord if they relate to one must relate to both. If little children are the subjects of his spiritual kingdom on earth, then, until the moment that by actual sin, they bring personal condemnation upon themselves, they remain heirs of the kingdom of eternal glory; and if they become subjects of "shall be damned." We will not argue this position farther, but, will content ourselves with presenting a concise statement of the truth taught by the Scriptures and the standards of our church, as interperted by one of our ablest living theologians, -" The true statement would be that signed them to the milder grade of they (infants) are born into the world depraved, but as Fisk expresses it, 'the atonement meets them with its provisions at the entrance.' * * * The atonement fills this probationary world with its influence, and the human being receives his atoning justification consequent upon his entering into it. Is is as if a room were filled with a purifying influence and a leper is cleansed by entering within its walls. The question is not as to the genuineness or the depth of the depravity, as derived from Adam or from the immediate parent.

As a lucid, and to us a convincing, exposition of the Saviour's meaning in this assertion, four times repeated in substance in the Gospels, we give the systematic theology, Richard Watson, -" That this Kingdom (of God or

That depravity is done up in all the elements of the stal man. Nor does regenerative mant or adult absolutely remove it, until completed at the glorification; for, both infant and adult still retain susceptibility to temptation and sin, mertality, disease and death until the final renovation. * * The state of the saved living infant is essentially the same for the infant as the state into which regeneration admits the adult. And so, infant justification is for the infant the same as that justification into which faith brings the adult believer.

INTERSTING ANNIVERSARY MEETING IN LEEDS ENGLAND-REV. PETER MC-KENZIE, - THE SLAVERY QUES-TION, &C., &C.

On the 6th of October, 1813, the Weslevan Missionary Society was inaugurated at Leeds under the presidency of Mr. T. Thompson, of Hull, a local preacher, banker and member of parliament. And thus, in 63 years has come, to its present colossal proportions a society for promoting Christianity. second perhaps to none in Christendom, whose agents are found in every land under heaven, trying to diffuse that light of which they have been the happy partakers. Its machinery is vast, and the work done is immense. The effects for good upon the idolatrous inhabitants of heathen lands, in bringing them to recognize every man as a brother, have been so great that recognizance has been taken of them in official government returns, and they have thus given impartial evidence of the power of the Gospel to enlighten, instruct and civilize the nations of the

But, although a great amount of work has been done, and is being done by the society with which we stand more immediately connected; and though a large amount of money is annually raised for the support of missionaries and the progress of the work of God; yet : great work remains to be done. Co. servation and aggression are continu ally to be going on side by side in the mission fields. While the for ward movements are constantly to be made, care must be taken to secure, what ground is already got. It is wi h these two great ideas before the Chr. stians of the Methodist Church, that the public are annually called upon to note the progress their Missionary Society has made during the year; wl at are their expenditures and to liste a to their proposals for the occupation of new ground

The meeting commenced by the Rev. J. S. Workman giving out the hymn

" Earth rejoice your Lord is King, Sons of men and angels sing.'

The immense audience stood up to sing, and were led by the large organ and choir; and as they heartily sang the hymn of praise, the idea that the determination was still strong among the Christian of the Methodist body to spread Christ's kingdom in the earth, perceptibly, was impressed on one's mind. The presence of such a vast concourse. some of whom came great distances, proves that the missionary enterprise was as dear to the hearts of Methodists as ever it was. The attention with which they listened to records of success, and the heartiness with they cheered the different speakers, showed a growing attachment to the work of God. When they stood up the sight was very imposing: and a young preacher near me whispered to his companion, "I say Mr. D-, would it not be a grand thing to preach Christ to all these people, and bring the unconverted to the Saviour. After singing, the Rev. Walford Green engaged in prayer, responded to by many a hearty " Amen, thus showing that the old Methodist fire was not yet quenched by the cold formalities of a fastidious age.

On the other hand, there had been a steady addition from the receipts of the various Districts in the United Kingdom, averaging for the last few years £3000 annually, is a cheering fact, indicating the growing attachment of our Churches to the Missionary cause. The adoption of the report was movd by the Rev. Anthony Ward, who in a brief speech referred to the cheering character of the Report, and then turns ing his speech on the late Admiralty circulars, roused the feeling of his audience by denunciations of slavery, whether on board a British vessel or

The deck of a British vessel, he arzued, is as much British territory as British soil, and a slave, as soon as he sets his foot on board a British Ship is as free as if on British soil, and no one had any right, if he recognized any laws of humanity or even British law to again deliver him up to his former illeritimate and cruel master. (We are glad, however, to say that the order has been withdrawn.) He said it was a blot on the English statute book.

The Rev. H. J. Piggott, of Rome set conded the adoption of the report. He wished the audience to look upon him, not so much as a person as a representative character. He did not wish them to regard him so much as Henry John Piggott, as a Missionary from Rome come to tell them the progress Christianity and Protestantism had made in the fair and fruitful Italy.

He said that a few years ago the very dea of a missionary, and especially all despised Methodist minister entering into Rome to preach the Gospel in opthe Popes, would have been thought preposterous. A revolution had to weep over Europe before he could be there as a missionary from the city of the Popes, the head of Roman Catholicism, A mighty power had to be shackled and bound down, and the gates of Rome, the seat of his authority, had to be thrown open to its deadliest enemies. It was evidently the work of God. Then again, the way in which native ministers had been raised up to carry on the work, was The chairman said that the honour of the handiwork of God, for they he

They had full and entire religious liberty in the country, And even in Rome itself. He felt no more oppression on his spiritual lungs in Rome than he did in Leeds. It was a hopeful feature of the revolution in Italy, that it had given freedom of conscience and of worship. Though there had been a number of political administrations, and though there had been changes of policy, yet upon this point there had been no uncertain sound. They had liberty of conscience and of worship from the day when the revolution clamoured in the valleys of Piedmont, to the day when it reached its meridian-five years ago-when the 972 Italian troops entered the city of Rome. The adoption of the report was then put to the meeting and carried. The Rev. John Walton moved "That an enlarged means will warrant an increase of missionaries, openings for whom everywhere abound; particularly among the vast population of the East. This meeting records its conviction that frequent and fervent prayer ought to be offered for the bestowal upon the Church of suitable men, fitted by gifts and zeal for the long-felt requirements of the work in these days of great opportunity." The finger of God was pointing them at the present time to the East, to our Indian Empire. When they slept at their post in time past, they had been roused to their duty by pestilence, famine and sword: and now God was sending our future King (meaning the Prince of Wales) to visit the swarthy millions over whom he would one day rule. But he would not find the India of which he had read in books. He

SERMON,

BY REVD. G. O. HUESTIS. Workers together with Him.-2 Cor. 4. 1. "All things are full of labour." Man was evidently made to work. His physical and mental nature require it, cannot be properly developed without it. True manhood is the result of toil.

Labor is one of the prevading laws of life on this planet. Its universal suspension for even one year would produce universal ruin.

Stores of useful knowledge are accumulated only by persistent effort. The necessity for mental activity, in other words, educational effort, will never coming upon the stage of action.

Morally, man needs it. Idleness is exceedingly distructive to good morals. Virtue and temperance cannot florish where slothfulness prevails, Religion dies without diligence. No man can be happy while able to work, unless he has something to do. The lazy, and those who are idle because they imagine they have nothing to do, are among thing to do. Let no one dream of inactive ease, while abilities and opporvouchsafed.

The working period is short. We accomplish but little during the first ten years of life, and if spared to old we have sufficient time to accomplish work a man can do, in a few years if he is wise, in earnest and presevering.

All however, cannot work with equal skill and energy. It is not expected that the man who has but two talents can rival him who has five. Nor can he man with one compete with those the have more, yet, if he refuses to the Master, who will say with terrible emphasis when the working period is ended, Thon wicked and slothful servant.

Our chief topic to-day, is work in the Christian vineyard, -work that will not be affected by the Divine Being apart from human agency. Workers together with him.

There are in the world besides Christians, who may be called workers, "workers of iniquity," but of them and their unsatisfying toil we will not speak at present.

Our work for God commences when we are born of the Spirit, adopted into Shall we refer it to the sovereignty of of the Alm, ghty, "I will pour my spirit his family, not previously. Our works testify here, and they will do so hereafter-for they follow those who die in the Lord,-respecting our Christian character. The possession of faith is shown by works. It cannot be otherwise. Who ever saw faith? A man may sav. "I have faith" but I have no reason to believe it unless he shows it by his works. The same is also true of the principle of love; it is seen only by its manifestations in words and deeds. Hence the importance of good works in the Christian system.

Let us for a moment survey some of the fields of toil, requiring Christian in reference to many of these, it is only to the family circle. circuit will be havir its Anniversary Missionary Meeting. Here and there speakers will remind congregations how well they have sustained the mission cause, and how much their contributions exceeded those of the preceding year. This, in some cases, will doubtless be true; so true that if all circuits exhibited the same increase, there need be neither lack of funds on the one hand, or hesitancy as to the taking up of new work on the other.

2nd. To resolve that by God's help that duty shall be performed.

The Central Missionary Board felt that liberality of his people.

The faith of the Board has not failed. God has not withdrawn his support. The contributions of the people, however, have fallen so far short of what was hopefully anticipated, that the plans of the Board have been deranged, (so far as the existing work is concerned), and the extension of the work rendered most difficult, while the debt incurred during the year is so large as to be alarming.

The income from all sources at... 147,000 00 Leaving, it will be seen, a balance against the Society of We start then with a debt of $37,000 00 pear that any other answer can be given For the maintenance of existing work alone, it is quite clear that it will re-$104,000 00 Amounting to $37,000 00 in excess of the contributions of last year. Add to this the present debt of Society, and the interest, say 40,000 00

And you have... as the amount needed as the Missionary income for the present year.

Can the Church furnish this amount ? Will the Church furnish this amount ? To these questions our answers need be very brief.

The Church can; and if the facts are rightly placed before our people, the Church

With a membership of over 100,000, it will be evident that an average of $2.25 from each member will secure the amount needed. To question the ability of the Church to do this would be folly. One has but to look at what the Church has done for the cause of Missions to be convinced that it will continue to do all that the Missionary cause requires.

Another way of putting it is this: Last year the amount contributed was $147,000. What is needed then is an extra $77,000, or 77 cents additional per

Let every contributor then, to his subscription of last year, add 80 cents and the thing is done. No one who considers, can say that this will be burdensome to any. for an addition of 80 cents a sum, (with management) within the reach of the humblest member of the Church.

There is one way in which the object By the Superintendent of each Circuit so bringing the matter before his people as to secure from each and every member not less than the sum of 82.25.

But some will say "many will give over $2.25, some hundreds of dol ars, so that I need not give as much as $2.25." Let such an one be perfectly satisfied on one point. that for the amount in excess, the Boarl will not only find abundant use, but will be able to employ it; here let there be no misunderstanding.

It is well to call attention to the practice, which, though kindly intended, is very often a cause of embarrassment. Friends occasionally put their subscriptions down to be specially applied, not unfrequently taking their subscription from the general work and placing it to account of special work, not stopping to reflect that they diminish the general income upon which the Board bases its calculations, and place it to a special account upon which it must be apparent the Board can make no calculations. It would enable the Board to make its arrangements with greater certainty, if subscribers-say for the coming year-would either increase their general subscriptions in keeping with the increased need of the work, or

Annual, so much.

Towards debt, so much.

The former being an amount upon which at least the Society could rely from year to year; the latter a special sum to meet the present want.

Messrs. Cochran and McDonald, who are working with so much success in Japan, ask for help. Shall it be denied? Although among the first to occupy that. field, we are to-day numerically among the weakest. In other words, although other Churches moved more slowly at first they have strengthened their forces with greater radiness.

If the North-West is to be peopled, the missionary must accompany the immigrant. Manitoba and British Columbia ask for additional workers. Labrador needs one or two men. Should these calls not be answered, and answered immediately?

To be prosperous in our Mission work we must be progressive. This means not only the spending of money, but the spending of it freely; a policy which does not include new work is a policy of retrogres-

Over and above all these plans now suggested, there will be abundant room for the generous gifts of brethren, who, in anticipation of any appeal, are ready to put down their names for any sum, from $2.00 to $1.000 or upwards, in liquidation of the debt of the Society.

Let us hope that from the first meeting held, even to the last, throughout our Dominion every member will realize his share of the responsibility and meet it, so that our Church may take that position which it ought to occupy in the world's evangelization.

and King of kings, Rev. 17, 14.

GENERAL STATEMENT.

After the prayer whence our last lesson was taken, Jesus and his disciples went out to Gethsemane. John 18, 1. After he mob. had prayed, a band led by Judas came and arrested him. By these he was led back to the city, and taken before Annas, the ex-high-priest, John 18, 24. Here the Sanhedrin quickly passed the death sentence previously agreed upon, John 11, 53; John 18, 14; and then they hurried him off to Pilate the governor to have the sentence confirmed, John 18, 28. Some conversation passed between the governor and the accusers. John 18, 29-32; then followed the interview between Pilate and Jesus, from which our lesson is selected. The TITLE presents "Jesus the King;" the Topic presents him as " Sovereign of the heavenly kingdom." The DOCTRINE is
"The kingship of Christ." The GOLDEN TEXT affirms. "He is Lord of lords, and King of kings." All this is descriptive of the king himself. The OUTLINE presents 1. The kingdoms of the world: 2. THE KINGDOM OF CHRIST. Let us reverently approach this wondrous subject. See LESSON COMPEND. FOSTER: 3477, 3479, 3476, 3472, 3475.

Where in this lesson do we learn-1. How easy it is to slight the truth?

How apt we are to misjudge Jesus? 3. How important it is to enter Christ's kingdom?

JUDGMENT HALL, verse 33. The Roman pretorium, or place where causes were tried. This was most likely in Pilate's residence, not far from where the highpriest lived, nor from the temple. CALL-ED JESUS, AND SAID, etc. Pilate had been outside to get the charge from the Jews assembled there. He now proceeds o a private conversation upon the matters charged. ALT THOU THE KING OF THE JEWS? From Luke 23, 2, we learn that they charged Jesus with, 1) perverting the nation; 2.) forbidding to give tribute to Cesar; 3.) saying that he himself is Christ a king. Catching at this one final point, Pilate asks, " Art thou the king?" etc. This was sedition. The Jews were a subjugated people, and no man dared claim kingship.

WHAT IS TRUTH? verse 38. Pilate's famous question, the answer to which he was not sufficiently concerned for to tarry a moment for its reception. A SORRY CASE.—We find in a daily paper the following edifying account of a misunderstanding in the choir, which we hold up for the contemplation of those who are ready to " get mad" about the music. But every congregation ought to be able to sing with heart and understanding, whatever be the state of passion in the gallery. "The pastor was absent and a stranger filled his pulpit. He was ignorant of the fact that the choir themselves the night before, and that not a member was there to sing on Sunday morning. He gave out the hymn selected There was no musical response--no sound of praise-from choir or congregation. After a moment's embarrazing sillence, a brother arose, and walked up to the pulpit, whispered in the preacher's HIDES ear. The preacher nodded his head and smiled. He thought the brother said the wrong hymn had been read, so he turned the leaves again, and gave another out. It was a long one, and he read it through closing with, 'Please omit one stanza.' A dead silence in the congregation again. The preacher looked uneasy, and was about to give out another hymn, when another brother arose and spoke from the gallery. "You see our choir has busted. Some of 'em thought the bass sung to low, and some of 'em thought the sopranny was too high, and others thought that we ought to hev a better alto, and thre wasn't many that liked the tenor, and so the rest got mad, and there won't be any singin' to-day.' "-Working Church.

Theiron bonds of caste were breaking, one man was learning to look upon another more as an equal than a superienor an inferior. There was a free press, and casts had been levelled by equal justice. Millions of children were in attendance upon the educational institutions of the country, 50,000 of whom were girls. There were half a million of native Christians who subscribed 220,000 annually toward the support of their ministers. There was as much religious liberty in India as in Leeds, or even Rome. Missionaries might preach what they pleased, and were supported by an ever increasing Christian literature. It was worth the Prince's while to go and see for himself the changes that had taken place. And he trusted that the visit would be a blessing to that land and this.

of the Conference), in seconding the resolution, referred to the great advattee which Methodism had made in the United States and Canadian Dominton. When they thought of these things and of the power this Christianity exercised, and then remembered that these were but offshoots from the mother country, they might see the great rencouragement they had to keep ug their missionary zeal. In Ireland, togoa great change had come over the members and ministry of the Church. But it was a shame that in Rome they had so much religious liberty, and yet there were 500 village parishes in England deprived of this liberty. Here was a sample of a Catechism which was circulated among this population :- Ques We have amongst us various sects. called by the general name of Dissenters. In what light are we to regard them? He was thankful to believe that this did not represent the opinion of many in the Church, but he could positively say that in 500 villages in England this doctrine was taught regularly, and it was high time that the people and country spoke out respecting it. And throughout this country there were men who were working very hard just now, and while he admired their energy, he, could not but wish they had a better Gospel, and instead of preaching Ritualism they would preach the glorious Gospel of the blessed God. It was impossible to look back upon the history of our country without feeling that while Popery degraded the land, Protestantism had raised it to its present position. God had given us a Protestant Constitution, and we must take care to maintain their religious privileges. Dangers were before us, and we must seek to meet them by maintaining our Protestant religion, for our greatness in the future depended on the maintenance of that which had made us great.

The resolution was then adopted. A collection was then made, and a vote of thanks to the Chairman concluded the proceedings. The collection realized

THE EVIDENCES OF THE CHRIS-TIAN SABBATH.

Do we make enough use of the numerous and convincing arguments af forded by the Lord's Day against Atheism and Infidelity? Here we find in almost universal observance among Christians-and that means to-day over one half of the world's territory-one day in seven, during which active labor The Rev. Gervase Smith, M.A., (Pres. ceases, and the exercises of worship prevail. Where did this institution originate? Has there been any period in the past history of mankind during which an arrangement could have been made, by common consent, to give up one-seventh of the week to the worship of God and the repose of his creatures? Are not all the tendencies of the human mind naturally in antagonism to any provision by which it would be de prived of opportunities for satisfying its ambition? Yet the law exists, and commends itself so well by its reasonableness and advantages, that what mankind would doubtless have opposed had it been left to themselves, they energetically defend since it has been originated by another.

Again, as to abolishing the Sabbath. This is found to be equally difficult. At intervals powerful monarchs have employed their strength to erase this law from the constitution of their countries? How have they succeeded? After prod therefore their worship is idola- fane Kings and Emperors have gone Ques. Do you not find among down to the dust, their nations have to repair the altars and restore the Sabbath. If ever there was weight of intellect and keeness of sophistry afforded to an evil cause, they have been lent to eradicate the instincts of Sabbath observance from the minds of Christians; but infidels have died-their works have perished, and the Sabbath survives. The Sabbath is monumental. Standing before it, the intelligent christian can confound the sceptic and confirm his own faith in the word of God.

> THE PERPETUAL CONFLICT .- Says an exchange: At a crowded meeting held in Glasgow under the presidency of the Earl of Galloway, resolutions were passed declaring that the Vatican decrees, claiming supreme power, removed the Papacy from the domain of mere religion, and called for resistance; that the Papacy is a most perfect system of tyranny, and its appearance in Britain demands the attention of every friend of liberty.

And thus the struggle goes on forever. Centuries ago the Papacy was so despotic that men rose and chastised it till it raised the cry of persecution. In later times it has been regarded by most as considerably modified in its pretensions. But when the camel has once gained a complete entrance, he tells the occupant of the room to walk out of it he is inconvenienced. Romanism cannot be true to itself and live in peace with Protestants. One ruler, one one kingdom, one law, is its motto. The Pope and supremacy are its eternal avowal and ambition. Till the end of have furnished you with brief accounts the present order of Providence, it would appear that there is no alternative but to contend for Protestant liberties and stand fully armed against Papal encroachments. stances are very rare of women whose nature has a bias so evil from the beginning that they are fitleaders of iniquity. And when they do appear on the earth, they should, perhaps, be swept from its surface very soon, as moral monstrosities. Woman is either an angel or a demon. When she assumes the latter character, the other sex can produce nothing to equal her in power for mischief. But all her history shows that Mrs. Davis was gradually led away from innocence. Should she not have time to regain, by contrition and a return to the true feelings of womanhood, something of what she has lost?

SABBATH EXCESSES.—The Churches should next hold a counsel to consider what can be done towards rendering the Lord's day more a season of rest as well as devotion. Distraction is the only word for the way in which many Christians spend the Sabbath. How many there are who begin, say at nine o'clock, with a class-meeting, attend public service at eleven, go to Sunday school at two, probably meet with other Christians at a four o'clock gathering, appear in Church again at seven, and finish up with a prayer meeting till nine o'clock The Sabbath thus spent may be a delight, but is it also quite conducive to mental and physical health? Let the Churches husband their strength; re duce the number of public services and leave more time for domestic fellowship and instruction. We would like to know to what extent any parent can deal as a Christian ought with his own household, who spends the Sabbath in a perpetual run from one means of grace to another?

CORRESPONDENCE.

BEARDS, TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO AND NOW.

A search among old papers-the accumulation of past editorial industry in tive document. It seems to have been a contribution intended for a prominent column in some paper; but was rejected, probably, because, at the time it was written, some of the individuals who took part in the transaction to which it alludes, were holding positions somewhere in the church, and might rebel against a recital of their deeds. As the way, so far as we know, is now clear, and the incident of the document, with its several lessons, would be as welcome to our readers as it has proved interesting to the writer, we give the substance, in our own words, of this

A vouthful member—his name is not given-of a Meteodist Conference-it is not said where-presented hipself for ordination somewhere in the vicinity of twenty five years ago. He was known as an independent, rather brusque, and sturdy lad. Bringing an excellent recommendation from his Circuits; having been endorsed to the fullest extent by his Superintendent, and having proved himself sound in knowledge of doctrine and discipline, he passed readily all the preliminary courts of the church. His name was called in Conference. Rising in his place, what was the astonishment of the grave assembly of divines at seeing on the face of this candidate for the holy office a beard whose ample growth and culture left Jewish luxuriance in the shade. Of course, his name was at once arrested. The dignity of the Conference demanded enquiry. One were devoted to the discussion of this rare innovation. Future candidates would take similar liberties were this instance permitted to pass without censure. In- show that Prophets, Apostles, and in trusting God-especially when using Fathers were natural in their adornments of the beard; advancing arguments-at that day but beginning to recommend themselves-in favour of this growth as a preventive to throat disease, the candidate concluded by declaring positively that he would forego ordination rather than submit to tonsorial degradation. A compromise was ultimately effected, consisting of the gentlest trimming by a hand which never could cut deep in any operation. The Committee made its report; the candidate was ordained: but next day the storm revived under the pressure of Conferential apprehension, that, after all, its dignity had been tampered with. It is easier, however, to ordain than unordain, as the judges of Dr. Colenso have discovered. The candidate became a clergyman. The document goes on to show how beard-growth became, after that date so common that observers failed to notice it after a time; how it even exceeded all bounds of past fashion, if not of decency itself; how the young men of congregations followed the example of their pastors, till the country seemed a nursery of dragoons; and how sad was the prospect opened up by the introduction of this evil into society :- that preacher's voices would be muffled by peard: the divinest expressions of the face shrouded by beard; and a long continuation of etceteras.

The most curious phase of the history of this document has yet to be told. When last we saw its author (who is in unmeasured terms for ordaining a man " with a beard like a Billy-goat") he was himself perfectly Aaronic; by ample folds and with most graceful sweep his handsome beard covered the space from his cheek-bones to his capacious chest. As to the Conference of which he so eloquently wrote, when last we saw it in full assembly, the fathers were principally transgressors of the early Conference regulation, for if there was a newspaper office-has brought to a single shorn face, it was among gathered up their remaining strength light a curious and somewhat instruc- those who could not cultivate an adorn-It was the Conference hirsute,

PHILIP PHILIPS.

DEAR MR. EDITOR, -Your paragraph referring to Philip Philip's success in Australia, in your last week's issue, is very suggestive. We are told that Mr. Philip's efforts in London, were applauded night after night by thousands of admirers. "In the Unite! States he is idolized," and now he is "taking Australia by storm; but when he was in the British Provinces, he was "barely tolerated by most-appreciated by but few." I rejoice that I was one of the "few" of course I do not profess to be a judge of good singing-who highly appreciated Mr. Philips when in Charlottetown. I have heard many good singers in England, but to my mind Philip Philips surpassed them all. The fact is, Mr. Editor, our notions are too exalted. And this does not apply exclusively to singing. When Dr. Punshon visited the metropolis of this Colony, and poured forth his strains of eloquence, he did not "take" with a great many of the all times to the vicissitudes of the Itinerpeople. If this suffering is entailed by bringing out from England a number of men to preach to a few dozen Methodists, scattered among other denominations, who are loyal enough for preaching, but too mean to deny themselves a single luxury, even to a few pounds of poisonous and filthy tobacco, in order to pay the preacher, the sooner it is known the better for all concerned.

REPLY TO THE ABOVE .-- Our correspondent remiuds us of an expert and popular headsman, who won fame by preparing his victims for the block. With gentle hand he smoothed the hair and patted the held of the doomed, then-brought down the guillotine! We would have hesitated before publishing this letter (which was signed "Cape Breton") were it not that others-though we cannot see how that is possible-may cherish kindred doubts. Besides we know our correspondent; be may be hot-headed, but he is by no means coldhearted.

1-As to the apparent personalities of our correspondent, one or two words will suffice. "Cape Breton" is not consistent in charging us-even by implication-with holding a good vantage ground in comparison with Brethren on dependent circuits. Our ministerial life was subject at several years-more than our correspondent can count in his ministry-in all the when Providence opened our way to "independent" positions, we did our full share in raising means for the support of the less fortunate class. OUR ONTARIO LETTER

November, 1st, 1875.

Your Correspondent, belonging to the rank and file of the ministry rather than to the privileged commissioned ones, tarries at home in the quiet village parsonage, when others rush to great Committee meetings, so that he is unable to report your readers.

"The times are hard" is an expresion heard on every side-the Tax Gatherer says so-the Stewards of the Church say so,-Tradesmen with long overdue accounts coming to them say so, and even Farmers say so. Yet they are the strangest hard times a people ever knew: for barns are full to overflowing, and granaries are too small to receive the produce of the threshing machine, and farmers are perplexed what to do with their grain, for never had Ontario such a crop before. But prices rule low, and those who have it, won't sell their grain till compelled to do so. A splendid summer has been followed by an early Fall, and the prospects of an early Winter, if not a severe one.

Our Assizes are exciting a somewhat deep interest. The case recently tried in Toronto of a Dr. Davis and his wife has attained a more than Provincial notriety. They are now under the sentence of death, with but little hopes of a possible reprieve, for causing the death of a victim of their arts, a Miss Gilmour, the daughter of an estimable father, a devoted Evangelist of the Baptist persuasion, and an emigrant from Scotland. THE ONWARD PROGRESS OF THE CHURCH. In September our Aylmer Methodists dedicated their new Church. The place is only a village of perhaps 1300 inhabitants. It has been a sort of metropolis of Nova Scotia immigrants, who brought their immersionist proclivities with them. Some thirty-four years ago the school house was shut against

On the day of dedication $9,000 was pledged. Dr. Ives, of Auburn, N. Y., was mainly instrumental in leading the people to contribute this noble amount He led both Committee and congregation to see the wisdom, the propriety, and the righteousness of at once raising the whole sum needed. Apt illustrations of God's blessing upon liberal contributions were so abundant with him. and his good humour was so infectious, that the people gladly tarried hour after hour until the whole was raised. It is the most beautiful and complete Church in any village or town of the Province, and is thoroughly furnished in the best of style. Our much same way, bear the travelling expenses of loved President and Chairman of Dis-Dedicatory Sermon with his usua! elo-No travelling expenses are deducted quence and ability. Being on a week day, most of the surrounding ministers were present, and enjoyed the occasion. Rev. Mr. McDonagh is the pastor. And to his indomitable zeal the Church is mainly indebted for the success.

THE PROVINCIAL SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSO-

CIATION held their Convention three weeks since in Hamilton. Your correspondent was permitted to be present as a representative, and to read a paper on "What we aim at in the future." It was largely attended, and convened in what is popularly known as Dr. Ormiston's Church-one of the largest and most handsome in our Provinces, belonging to the Presbyterian body. The pastor after whom it is thus popularly styled, is now one of the celebrities of the New York pulpit; a graduate of our own Victoria College. Both Canadian Methodism and Presbyterianism seem to share an interest in his just fame as a pulpit orator. The chief interest of the Convention seemed to concentre in the person and addresses of Mr. Jacobs of proceedings of an ecclesiastical character | Chicago. He was the only representative which might be of interest to many of of American workers among us, and his stay was short. The address given by Rev. Hugh Johnson, of Centenary Methodist Church, Hamilton, was confessedly the most eloquent and thrilling one of the occasion, and heightened the fame of this rising minister of our church and Conference. Though rather below the medium height, yet with well proportioned and compactly built frame, and pleasing countenance, and dark hair, and sonorous voice, Mr. Johnson is prepossessing on the platform and in the pulpit. He owes his position partly to Dr. Punshon's insight into character, and ability to appreciate worth; but mainly to his own stern determination to succeed. He fought his way from the plough to the school-the teacher's desk, the college and the pulpit. He accompanied Dr. Punshon to California and British Columbia. From Windsor, a small town opposite Detroit, he was lifted into a Toronto Church. He vindicated the wisdom of the appointment after a three years stay, and Centenary, Hamilton, invited him to succeed the popular Mr. Potts. He has sustained his reputation, and has just returned from an extensive European tour, enriched with notes of travel and memories of our mother country, which will be of incalcul-

And now, Mr. Editor, allow your orrespondent to congratulate you on the new appearance and name of your paper. Dropping the word Provin cial and retaining the significant and much loved name WESLEYAN-indicates a broader ambition. May it be yours to attain what you deserve, a Dominion circulation. Your letters from the West have enlightened us much on the proceedings of our Connexional Committees. While your criticisms will not be lost upon us, they prove to us that ecclesiastical Confederation was desirable. We shall mould each other, and the mould, we believe, will be of a church true to whatever is strictly Wesleyan in the past, but agressive and capable of adapting itself to the exigencies of each succeeding age of the future. Soon with a new hymn book but the old fire; with many new tunes but the same spirit of praise; with new enterprizes, but the same grand aim; with new machinery, but at the old-fashioned work: with new methods, but glorious stereotyped doctrines our fathers taught; with new names-but the same spiritual nature; with new men-and women toobut with the memories of the fathers and of the past enshrined in our hearts. we trust to be able to achieve moral victories and spiritual conquests, the very mention of which have thrilled the church of God, and inspired its brightest hopes and most fervent prayers for the future. Yours truly,

INTELLIGENCE. CIRCUIT

RIVER PHILIP.-The Sabbath School Convention recently held at Oxford, has lready given a freshimpetus to our Sunday School work, in that beautiful and flourishing village. Both teachers and scholars seemed determined, with the blessing of God. to make the school a success. This we expected from the soul-stirring addresses that were delivered on that occasion, to both young and old.

On the following evening, in the same place, our missionary meeting was held, and though not largely attended, in consequence no doubt of the heavy rain that was falling at the time, yet the subscriptions were nearly double those of last year. Interesting and profitable special services have been held on this circuit during the past six weeks. At Grey's Road the power of God to save was exhibited in our midst. The Holy Ghost rested on both ministers and people. Old profes-sors were quickened and encouraged, and a goodly number of others who previously were living without prayer and piety are now walking in the ways of the Lord This work of grace commenced and progressed chiefly in connection with the abors of our lay brethren from Oxford In this congregation we have a noble staff of devoted Christian workers, who are ever ready to co-operate with their ministers in every good word and work. At East Branch advances have also been made on the kingdom of Satan. The services here were attended with a gracious influence. Many young persons have given themselves to the Saviour. May they abide in Him. During the services fourteen adults received the rite of Christian baptism.

THE HOUR OF TEMPTATION.

In the hour of temptation "be vigilant." This watchfulness, joined with sobriety extends to all the estate and ways of a Christian, being surrounded with hazards and snares. "He that dispiseth his way shall die," says Solomon. Is it not most reasonable hence to press watchfulnes, to keep continual watch to see what comes in and what goes out; to try what is under every offer of the world; every motion of our natural hearts; whether there be not some secret intelligence or not? WONDERFUL MEMORIES.

Pliny says that Cyrus had a memory so prodigious that he could name every officer and soldier in 'is armies; and that Lucius Scipio knew every Roman citizen by name when that city contained more than two hundred thousand capable of bearing arms. Seneca speaks of a friend. Pontius Latro, who could repeat verbatim all the speeches he had heard declaimed by the Roman orators. It is said that Joseph Scaliger committed to memory both the Iliad and the Odyssey in twentyone days. Sir William Hamilton tells us of a young Corsican, of good family, who had gone to Padus to study civil law, in which he soon distinguished himself. "He was a frequent visitor at the house and gardens of Muretus, who, having heard that he possessed a remarkable art of faculty of memory, though incredulous in regard to resorts, took occasion to request from him a specimen of his power. He at once agreed; and, having adjourned with a considerable party of distinguished auditors into a saloon, Muretus began to dictate words, Latin, Greek, barbarous, significant and non-significant, disjointed and connected, and he wearied himself, the young man who wrote them down, and the audience who were present;- we were all,' he says, 'marvelously tired.' The Corsican alone was the one of the whole company alert and fresh, and continually desired Muretis for more words, who declared he would be more than satisfied if he could repeat the half of what he had taken down, and at length he ceased. The young man, with his gaze fixed upon the ground, stood silent for a brief reason; and then says Muretus, Vidi facinus micificissimum. Having begun to speak he absolutely repeated the whole words in the same order in which they had been delivered without the slightest hesitation; then, commencing from the last, he repeated them backward till he came to the first. Then, again, so that he spoke the first, the third, the fifth and so on; did this in any order that was asked, and all without the smallest error. Having subsequently become familiarly acquainted with him, I have had other and frequent experience of his power. He assured me (and he had nothing of the boaster in him) that he could recite in the manner I have mentioned, to the amount of thirty-six thousand words. And what is more wonderful, they all so adhered on the mind, that after a year's interval he could repeat them without trouble. I know, from having tried him, he could do so after considerable time."-E. S. Drone,

A TRIBUTE TO DEPARTED WORTH THE LATE MRS. WN LIAM HEFFERNAN, OF GUYSBOROUGH.

MR. EDITOR,-

If it be

"profane to quench a glory lighted at the skies." then, after a Christian woman has adorned the dectrine of God our Saviour, by consistent and holy life, and a happy and triumphant death; to refuse recognition of the grace of God in her, is an unworthy, not to say an impious, act. The primitive Christians glorified God in the life of their apostle; and when the martyrs and confessors had sealed the truth their lives had adorned, with their blood, other companions in tribulation embalmed their names in honouring records, and appointed days of festivity and holy rejoicings at their tombs; and praised God that they were counted worthy to be partakers in the cup of the suffering of his Christ. Though it sometimes happens that the righteous perish and no man layeth it to heart; yet seldom does a real saint pass away from earth without leaving, in some circle at least, a savour of grace and a fragrant memory. These thoughts have been suggested by the recent departure of an eminently good woman, from the ranks of the militant to the glories and the rewards of the triumphant church, leaving fragrant reminiscences to be treasured in the hearts of a large circle of relatives and friends. I have as yet seen no notice of memorials of this Christian lady, probably owing to the fact that she could have been little known to the late Superintendent of the Guysborough Circuit, where she was best known, as a long period of her protracted affliction was spent in Halifax under medical treatment; and the present Superintendent could scarcely have known her at all. I have been recently reviewing these scenes of my earliest ministry, and recalling their memories. Among my first acquaintances, on that Circuit, none is more delineated on memory's page, and of none did I form a higher opinion than of the late MRS. HEFFERNAN, the then healthy and beloved wife of the Hon. W Heffernan, hate an M.P.P. for the County of Guysboro'. I have been dwelling in thought up in her manner of life-her faith, her charity, her consistent walk-" her chaste long and trying affliction—her exemplary patience—and her happy death, of which I have only heard; and I am sure, Mr. felt by all. Editor, you will allow me space to pay a sainted and happy memory.

She was converted to God and joined Matthew Cranswick, the fruit of whose fail to feel her Christian influence. Every inch a lady, and equally a Christian, she was at home in all the walks of life. A denizen of earth, adorning every phase of society, she was equally a citizen of heaven, aspiring after the life everlasting, in the world to come. Were the Pagan Philosopher again on earth, he might say, "What noble women the Christians have," and truly it is so. Never does Christianity appear so beautiful, so attractive, as when it is seen to shine out in the life of the Christian matron. Jesus himself, as man, admired the piety and devotion His grace had hallowed and sanctified. whether as suppliants at His feet, as mourners at His cross, or as watchers at His sepulchre. Witness his exclamation to the Syno-Phoenecian, O! woman! to John at the cross, Behold thy Mother and after the resurrection: Mary! In all His treatment of women, as related in the Gospels, there is a tenderness—a dignity of manner-an admiration of her worth -a respect, as in His last exclamation to Mary, almost amounting to awe. But it is the awe and reverence she feels to Him that calls it forth responsive to her. What a depth of tenderness and respect in that one word with which he greeted her at the tomb-Mary! Her presence there, at that early hour, showed that she loved much; and much was she loved in return. "This that she did is spoken of for a memorial for her." St. Paul speaks too of the "holy women of old." and their true adornments: "even the ornaments of a meek and quiet spirit whic's in the sight of God are of great price." Those who have known Mrs. Heffernan best will acknowledge that she possessed these ornaments in no small degree.

But it is only the grace of God in her which we wish to magnify; which moulded her character, purified her heart, and which has we doubt not made her at length, without fault before the throne of God. Sainted and glorified, we see no spot in her. Washed in the blood of the Lamb, "she has swept through the gates." and beholds the King in His beauty, or,

"Overwhelmed with rapture sweet Falls low adoring at His feet.

We glorify God for such a life. No hunan culture cou'd have produced it. No influence or examples, however refined or elevated, could have developed it, even from the best germs of earthly mold. Inof such a life. That which created and formed it came from above. Originating. in a new and heavenly birth. it developed itself, under the nurturing influences of the divine word and Spirit, to the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ. 'The christian is the highest style of man."

Such lives preach to us the most powerfully, after they have passed away out of our sight. They are lectures silent but of sovereign power. It is in our sober. thoughtful hours that we take in, and feel most deeply their lessons. That one life has come-how vividly-to my mind of late, especially in hours of thoughtful. meditative devotion. I see her as she enters the church in days long past. A Methodist of the olden stamp, she meekly kneels to invoke the divine blessing. Then all is attention, for she is about to hear the Word of God. The exercises closed. she retires thoughtfully. "Lord I have loved the habitation of thy house and the place where thine honour dwelleth." Again I see her at the class-meeting. She has silently knelt to plead for God's blessing. When called upon to speak, her words were few but fitly chosen. They tell of an inward peace which the world knoweth not of. She retires edified and blessed. Her peace is left with her. No man taketh it from her. Again I see her presiding at a larger or a smaller party of select friends-all goodly people, or people who deeply respect religion. As we are there we think of the scenes of Bethany. She is both at the Master's feet and cumconversations coupled with fear"-her bered with serving. Those entertainments always close with prayer-for her ministers are there-and the dew of grace is has seldom been more forcibly impressed upon our minds than by the events that have recently transpired in this community. That malignant and fearful disease.

Diptheria first made its appearance at the residence of Mr. Hoyt, of Douglas. There was in that house a little child, at once the comfort and the joy of its parents. As we looked upon that little girl, and remembered that only a few months before her brother playmate had been taken to the arms of Jesus, we thought that Ella would be left. Mysterious was the providence which took the babe away after short sojourn of fifteen months in this life. The parents though sad. can yet, we trust, by the mighty power of faith in God exclaim, "He doeth all things well." The disease next visited the family of Bro. Leonard Inch. father of Mrs. Hoyt. It laid its hand upon one after another, until with awfully fatal stroke it rested upon the youngest son. No skill could arrest its progress.

On Friday morning we went to see him his condition being then for the first time considered dangerous. Indeed it was only for the two days preceeding that he felt the disease at all. We found him earnestly praying to God for pardon. Remaining with him during the greater part of the day, we pointed him to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sins of the world." On the Saturday we saw him again. He was earnestly seeking to have his soul washed in the Redeemer's blood. We commended him to that God who never casts away the soul that comes to him, and have good reason to believe that being justified by faith, he found peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ. On Sabbath morning he appeared somewhat better, and calling for a drink, he raised the cup to his lips. Suddenly the cup fell to the floor, his arms were thrown around his brother's neck, there was one fearful gasp for breath, and the strong young man was dead. Thus passed away in the twentieth year of his age, George Leonard, youngest son of Leonard and Eleanor Inch. No signs of the disease being seen for some time, it was thought that the messenger death had executed his commission Alas! how little we know of

In the latter part of August, at almost the same time, five of the family of Bro. William Inch were all prostrated. Emeline the eldest, was converted to God about two years ago. Since that time she lived a consistent Christian life. She was a legible Christian. You did not need to search the Church records to find whether her name was there. She lived the truths she professed, and was earnest in exhorting sinners to flee to Jesus.

Upper Keswick, Oct. 21, 1865.

HANNAH, widow of the late Stephen Level departed this life for the mansions of bliss on the 13th of August. The family removed from Grand Bank, Newfoundland, some years ago and settled in Kingston.

From an acquaintance of ten years with our departed sister, we feel warranted in saying that she was a Christian in heart Christ were always welcome, and with the kindness of a mother she cared for their wants. Her presence in Church was always a comfort to those who occupied the sacred desk, and her hearty responses as the congregation was led in prayer, give evidence that she was breathing afar the promised spirit. Her supplications for the presence of God and the conversion of souls were zealous and hearty. Her last illness continued for the space of a few months. At times her sufferings were intense, but amid them all she had a calm trust in Jesus, and a firm confidence that the dealings of God were all

The Scripture aphorism is, "If the root be holy so are the branches." The case is adjudged. Paul has ruled it. 1 Cor. viii. 14: "Your children are holv."

At their birth, he accepted his children as the Lord's. At their baptism he took them from the ministers arms as the Church's. Of a trust so precious, so solemnly committed, and so sealed, he held himself bound in after time to render account. His plan of carrying out that idea was this: So soon as his children reached the age of seven years, he entered their names upon his class-book, led them by the hand to the meeting as auditors, and claimed for them recognition as members. If any asked," why should they be in?" his reply was, "Nay. it is your business to show why they should be out!" Where one who has been an alien, a profligate, or a worlding, presents himself for admission to Church membership, he of course, must be met with questions: he has his right to prove. But children of Christian parents, having no stain of overt offence, are in a different case. They have a birthright-a pirthright that has been publicly acknow ledged: their's it remains until they forfeit it by immorality, let it lapse by neglect, or repudiate it by perverseness. On the Church that refuses their recognition must lie the onus of showing cause.

Methodism, by its, on the whole, wise division of money burdens, according to reported numbers in membership puts. practically, a serious check upon the wide following of parental action. Mr. John Collins once affirmed in public, "From the beginning of their seventh year, I paid a penny a week for each of my children;" and then, reaching out his hand, he added emphatically. "I did that when all I had for a large family was earned by these fingers as a hard working mason." Of course, not every poor man will have either energy or self-denial enough to do the like : we know it is not done. Statistics furnish sad proofs that there is some missing link between baptized youth and accredited membership. Many, deeply concerned, are saying, something must be done. But what ? If, after consideration, John Collins plan be thought healthy, the financial difficulty may be easily met, either by giving a special catechumen ticket, or by enacting that young people so introduced, the flock, should, until they attained any age which a wise weighing of the question might determine, be excluded from all calculations intended to be the bases of money arrangement. My DEAR SIR .- Many thanks are du to you for your letters in the Recorder of last week. Some very unfavorable impressions have been made in the minds of som young men, who had not the charce (may I call it?) of getting into the work of the regular ministry in this country, but whe nevertheless had the full persuasion that they were moved by the Holy Ghost to preach the Gospel. There are two young men from this Circuit, (Hinde Street) now on their way to Newfoundland, through the influence of Mr. Lawrence. They have left behind some very dear and anxious friends. As you state you will be happy to correspond with any such during your stay in England, will you kindly say h w long it will be, after their arrival before they have an appoitment to a circuit or Church. Will those Circuits be extensive? Will they receive no remuneration for service rendered until they have been so employed for one year? Have they, as here, to travel four years as probationers so rendering it absolutely necessary to remain single for that time. Are they provided with a home or have they to seek one for themselves? Is the ci eal, or is it extremely cold?

. If not taxing your time too much an answer to the above will allay some fears that some of us have had, but which your letters has gone a great way towards removing. I will not tax your time further. Believe me dear Sir.

A VISIT TO MOUNT ALLISON

DEAR MR. EDITOR. On Friday, the 29th ult., in company with Rev. J. Hart, Superintendent of the Circuit, I was favored, through the courtesy of Principal Inch. with an opportunity of visiting and inspecting our Female Academy at Sackville. The building has recently been greatly enlarged and beautified, and is now capable of accommodating a much larger number of students. Nothing is omitted to render the inmates of the establishment cheerful and healthful.

Throughout the building in the halls, dining room, class and recreation rooms, and private apartments of the boarders, an air of comfort prevails. The students are contented and happy, and speak in most eulogistic terms of the unceasing affection and tender watchfulness of Professor Inch and his amiable wife. So far as I was able to judge from my observations and enquiries, parents could not entrust their daughters to safer and more considerate hands. The pupils, on the occasion of my visit, were engaged in their usual morning's work. I had an opportunity of attending, with utmost satisfaction, the Grammar and Rhetoric Classes, taught by Miss Bennett, the Geometry Class taught by Miss Johnson, and Miss Chesley's Botany Class; and also visited the spacious 'Studio' where Miss' Wheeler was teaching the art of painting and drawing to a class of young ladies, who evidently prosecuted the interesting study with commendable zest. A VISIT TO MOUNT ALLISON. DEAR MR. EDITOR,

On Friday, the 29th ult., in company with Rev. J. Hart, Superintendent of the Circuit, I was favored, through the courtesy of Principal Inch, with an opportunity of visiting and inspecting our Female Academy at Sackville. The building has recently been greatly enlarged and beautified, and is now capable of accommodating a much larger number of students. Nothing is omitted to render the inmates of the estab-

The students are contented and happy, and speak in most eulogistic terms of the unceasing affection and tender watchfulness of Professor Inch and his amiable wife. So far as I was able to judge from my observations and enquiries, parents could not entrust their daughters to safer and more considerate hands. The pupils, on the occasion of my visit, were engaged in their usual morning's work. I had an opportunity of attending, with utmost satisfaction, the Grammar and Rhetoric Classes, taught by Miss Bennett, the Geometry Class taught by Miss Johnson, and Miss Chesley's Botany Class; and also visited the spacious 'Studio' where Miss Wheeler was teaching the art of painting and drawing to a class of young ladies, who evidently prosecuted the interesting study with commendable zest. Some of the work I inspected in this department reflected great credit both on teacher and pupils.

Inch and his estimable lady, who regard the young ladies as their especial charge, and in whose interest they manifest deepest concern.

It is to be hoped that the Second Term, so soon to commence, will open with an enlarged number of pupils; and that this time-honored Institution may be increasingly patronized by the Methodists of these Lower Provinces, and that its prosperity and success in the The questions asked will give you some future may be as in the past, and yet more abundant.

DEAR SIR,—Following you have a list of the donations towards the erection of some gave no names at all, so that I did There will be a separate pamphlet for not know whether they were in Ontario there are many places of the same name both at the West and East, as Kentville, Chatham, Windsor, &c., and when the initials of the Provinces were not given, I could not tell with precision whether to credit the donations until sent or not, but the Christian Guardian lists contain everything. The Trustees are very thankful for the help given them, for our city is at present in a state of great depression; our stap'e export article (lumber) being unsaleable, and so our principal subscribors are quite unable to pay up. We have thus some $12,000 promised which we will not be able to touch perhaps for a year, if then, But as we are committed to the enterprise, and have already expended some $22,000 we must endeavor to fight through. I hope we have not yet ex-

SETH HANCE, Baltimore, Md.—Dear Sir: Seeing your advertisement. I was induced to try your Epileptic Fills. I was attacked with Epilepsy in July, 1863. Immediately my physician was summoned, but he could give me no relief. I then consulted another physician, but I seemed to grow worse. I then tried the breatment of another, but without any good effect. I again returned to my family physician; was cupped and bled soveral different times. I was generally attacked without any premonitory symptoms. I had from two to five fits a day, at intervals of two weeks. I was often attacked in my sieep, and would fail wherever I would be, or windever be occupied with, and was severely injured several times from the falls. It was affected so much that I lost all confidence in myseff. I also was affected in my business, and I consider that your Epileptic Pills cured me. In February, 1863, I commenced to use your Pills, and only had two attacks afterwards. The last one was April 56'. 1825, and they were a less serious character, With the blessing of Providence your medicine was made the instrument by which I was cured of that distressing affliction. I think that the Pills and their good effects should be made known everywhere, that persons who are similarly affected my have the benefit of them. Acty is read wishing
