A TERRIBLE TRAGEDY

John La Ghrist Shoots Three Lead Bullets Into His Wife.

URNS THE PISTOL AND PLANTS A PELLET IN HIS BRAIN

His Wife Preferred the Companionship and Love of Another Man.

She Had Purchased a Ticket for Nome to Join Her Amour, When She Was Confronted Last Night By Her Forsaken Husband, Who Had Just Arrived From the Outside--Three Children Survive Their Parents' Disgrace--Wounded Wife Has Good Chance for Recovering--Suicide Will Rest in Potter's Field.

Dawson's annual attempt at murder and suicide, both preceding ones having been successfully carried out, has been made for 1900.

Each year since Dawson has been a town the promptings of a jealous heart has caused some man to murder the object of his erstwhile love and temporary hatred, and then turn upon himself the weapon of destruction and end his life. In all three attempts of this kind within a period of two years, the latter part of the program has been successful, and in the two former cases, the woman has been killed. The latest attempt in this line of tragedy was, however, a deviation from the former program as in this case the woman, although shot in no less than three places, still lives, with fair chances for recovery. Her would-be murderer was more accurate in his own case, and his lifeless clay now remains of what was but yesterday a live and passion-animating man.

Yesterday evening about 6:45 o'clock people who were near the alley which runs between and parallel with First and Second avenues, heard a number of pistol shots fired in rapid succession, and glancing along the alley to a point almost directly in the rear of the Pioneer saw a woman half running and half crawling along the street, and a man standing in the door or on the doorstep of a board shack which adjoins the alley, near that particular place. When persons attracted by the shots hastened to the scene they found the woman lying in the alley, and at the same time the man retreated into the shack, closing the door after him. Sergeant Wilson, of the police, and one or two of the constables were soon upon the scene. A number of men made a rush for the shack, but were warned by an officer that there might be danger of bullets coming out through the door. This had the effect of causing them to fall back, when the officer approached the door and started to open it he found that the man's body was lying on the floor and against the door. He pushed the door open and entered to find the man unconscious, having turned the pistol upon himself, holding it well up on his left temple and firing one bullet through his hat and skull, into his brain.

In the meantime the woman had been carried to the Good Samaritan hospital, where an examination of her wounds were made, which revealed the fact that she had been hit by the three shots, one of which took effect in her right arm, another slightly penetrating and tearing one of her breasts, and the third passing through the right side of her neck. The wounds were hastily dressed and in five minutes after she was removed from the examination table, on which she was all the time conscious of what was going on, it was occupied by him who had attempted her life and afterwards succeeded in numbering the minutes of his own. Drs. Duncan and Simpson made a hasty examination of the self-inflicted wound and saw at once that death was imminent. They were right, for, after three hours' heavy breathing during which time he never regained consciousness, the destroyer of his own life passed away.

Who was the man and who was the woman? were questions which were probably asked one thousand times before the tragedy was 15 minutes old.

The latter question was more easily answered than the former. The woman was known as Mrs. Madden, who came here in August, 1898, with Hugh Madden from Glenora on the Sticking, where they had resided since the previous March, and had since lived here with Madden as his wife until he went to Nome over the ice, she having all arrangements completed to sail on the Merwin to join him; but the troubles at the time of the date set for that steamer's starting on the trip caused the woman to decide to wait for a later steamer, and only yesterday she purchased a ticket on the steamer J. C. Bar on which, having had her baggage placed aboard yesterday evening, she intended passing the night in her stateroom when she had left not more than 30 minutes before the attempt on her life. While on the examination table at the hospital last night, being aware that her journey to Nome as a passenger on the Bar would not be accomplished, she had the forethought to arrange for having her baggage brought ashore, telling where the checks for it could be found.

At a coroner's inquest conducted this morning by Magistrate Starnes, the mystery of the tragedy was cleared up, and the identity of the dead would-be murderer and suicide, and his relation to the unfortunate woman fully established by a long and somewhat rambling letter which he had prepared some time yesterday, as the letter bore the date "Dawson, June 7th, 1900." The letter, which embraced language which precludes its being printed, states that the woman is the wife of its writer, John La Ghrist; that they were married at Hamilton, Ontario, in 1876 and that the fruit of their marriage was four children, two daughters now in Boston, one son in Toronto and one son who died in infancy; that the fall of 1897 the husband and wife were both seized with a strong desire to come to the Klondike and in order to gratify that desire, sold their property in Hamilton, La Ghrist staying to settle up the business, his wife coming on to Vancouver there to wait until his arrival; that while in Vancouver she conducted a disreputable house, and met and began living with Hugh Madden, refusing to longer live with her husband when he arrived on the scene; that in the spring of '98 Madden and Mrs. La Ghrist went to Glenora, where the woman again ran a house of prostitution, coming with Madden to Dawson in the fall of '98, where they have since lived.

The letter further states the intention of the writer to attempt to persuade the woman to return to him and resume wifely relations, and that in case she refused then he would kill both her and Madden; that the letter was being written in order that, if anything happens to me it will fall into the hands of the officers of the law.

From the wording of the letter it is evident that La Ghrist intended, in case his pleadings with his wife to return to him were of no avail, to kill her and then himself.

It is not thought at the time he wrote the letter that he knew of Madden's having gone to Nome, as, after arriving in a small boat from Bennett with two or three other men on the 6th, the party had stopped in a tent near the Sister's hospital and La Ghrist had not been up town until yesterday afternoon.

The dead man, when seen at the Good Samaritan hospital, presented the appearance of being a man not over 45 years of age, well formed and vigorous, weighing perhaps 170 pounds; his complexion was dark and his face rather French in appearance, he wore a dark mustache and had been recently shaved; his hands presented the appearance of those of a working man.

After viewing the remains and hearing the evidence presented, the coroner's jury rendered a verdict to the effect that decessal came to his death by a shot fired by his own hands, the bullet from a .32 calibre pistol penetrating the brain. Jurors were: C. S. Burwell, foreman; W. J. S. Beckett, G. C. Allenger J. F. Brewster, T. Lowe and W. Lowe.

La Ghrist came to Dawson last fall in an attempt to reclaim his wife when, it is stated, Madden bought him off for $1500, the husband leaving alone for the outside on one of the late steamers last fall.

The wounded woman says that when she met her husband yesterday he asked her to return with him to the outside and they would go to Australia and begin their life anew, she demurred. He then asked her for money and she again demurred. According to her statement, La Ghrist then pulled his pistol and at once began firing.

The woman is at the Good Samaritan hospital, where she is resting easily, and, unless complications arise, has, the physicians state, an excellent chance to recover.

Except a few pieces of silver, less than $5, the dead man had no money on his person. The body will be buried tomorrow in the potter's field.

Coming and Going.

An interesting sight is now to be observed by anyone going along the beach near the bridge. Scows are arriving and departing at frequent intervals, those from above loaded with merchandise and those going down usually with live-stock and a large number of men. One of the latter left this morning with 11 men and two horses. The scow was rigged schooner-fashion. She is bound for St. Michael.

A Dog Gone Place.

The C. D. Co. send all their dogs up river in the summer time to an island in Lebarge called Dog Island. There are but two men there and fully 200 canines. Nets are spread in the lake and the fish obtained are fed to them. The company also has another reserve near Cicote where mail dogs are kept, these are to be all sent up the river to join the Lebarge colony.

Sargent at Taggish.

C. S. Sargent, of Sargent & Pinska, has been heard of at Taggish where he was reported with a scow load of merchandise coming down the river. He is expected in Dawson on the 15th inst.

Royalty Travels Incog.

Not wishing to court notoriety on his way to Dawson, Count Carboneau, who was a passenger on the Ora from Whitehorse Wednesday night, traveled under the modest name of plain "Mr. Des Long Champs." He was around calling on his old friends yesterday.

Whitehorse Growing.

Mr. Arthur E. Maynard, formerly paying teller in the Canadian Bank of Commerce in this city, and who went to Whitehorse to fill a similar position for the big financial institution in its new bank at that place, was a passenger on the Ora Wednesday evening, having come down on a hurried business trip. He says that as yet Whitehorse is not much of a place, but that there is every indication that the place will have assumed the proportions of a young city before the end of the summer.

Mr. Maynard says the first train will run into Whitehorse today and that from now on that will be an active and busy place. Mr. Maynard will return to Whitehorse within the next few days.

Select Dinner Party.

Col. and Mrs. Wiggins, Miss Spencer and Mr. Hastings, of the A. C. Co., were the guests of honor last evening at a dinner given at the McDonald hotel by Mr. and Mrs. G. K. French. The others present were Capt. and Mrs. Starnes, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin L. French, Mrs. McDonald and Lieut. Col. Hemming.

Newly opened--Mrs. West's ice cream and confectionery parlors.

The liquors are the best to be had at the Regina.

Fresh eggs just arrived. Mohr & Wilkens.

The only first-class market in the city is the Denver Market.

WON BY SINCLAIR

Glove Contest at the Orpheum Attracts a Good-Sized Crowd.

BOTH MEN WERE IN GOOD FORM

And Made the "Go" Brisk and Lively While It Lasted.

COOPER FOULED HIS MAN,

And the Referee Gave the Decision to Sinclair in the Seventh Round.

At the Orpheum last night Billy Cooper and "Caribou" Sinclair were matched in a ten-round go. The affair was pulled off successfully and a splendid exhibition was given. The fiasco in which Dick Case and McKenzie appeared recently had a great deal to do with the lack of interest displayed by the people in the event, although a fairly well filled house witnessed the go. Both men evidently went in to win from the start, with Caribou the aggressor. All the work of the men was done with their lefts only an occasional right being delivered.

Round by round was contested fiercely by both men, Caribou showing up better in each round until finally in the seventh he was given the decision owing to a palpable foul by Cooper, who it is believed delivered the blow in a clinch knowingly as he realized he could not win and thus saved himself from a knockout.

It was noticed that Caribou has improved won't fully in his style of fighting, but has poor judgment in delivery, otherwise he would have had his man in lullaby town in the first few rounds. Cooper did the best he could and made the hit of the night in the first round, landing on Caribou a straight left which brought the blood from his nose much to his discomfort. Several times during the contest Caribou was fouled, the onlookers yelling and directing the attention of the referee to the fact. He warned Cooper several times, until the last, which was so palpable that he gave the decision as noted above.

Geo. L. Graham acted as referee with Tidball official timekeeper. Geo. O. Willice and the Colorado Kid challenged the winner, the latter being backed by Eddie O'Brien.

Time was called at 12:15.

Round 1--Caribou led and landed left on jaw, again leading and landing, then upper-cutting and clinching, following with four left swings, all landing with more or less force on jaw. Cooper came back with left landing heavily on nose and drawing blood; then swinging and missing as time was called.

Round 2--Cooper led driving in left and right on jaw, then two stiff left jolts. Caribou swung and missed twice, then delivered a left swing and clinched. At breaking Sinclair got in a straight right on wind and had Cooper going but was too rattled to follow his advantage. He followed soon.

FRIDAY, JUNE 8, 1900.

INVESTIGATE FULLY.

The conviction of the three men concerned in the Struthers case has demonstrated several things very forcibly. First and foremost, it has established beyond a doubt that there has been crooked work in the gold commissioner's office to an extent yet unknown, but presumably covering a considerable length of time. It has shown that the general methods of conducting business at the gold commissioner's office must be extremely lax and unsystematic to admit of such violations of the law being committed. It has also proven a lack of judgment on the part of someone in placing Struthers in the position he occupied, with no adequate check kept upon him; and, finally, as a sort of corollary to the last proposition, it indicates that the heads of the office are woefully ignorant of what transpires in their particular department.

The people of this territory have never had confidence in the administration of the gold commissioner's office at any time since the original induction of Thomas Fawcett into office.

This lack of confidence has been augmented by the persistent and determined effort which has been made to keep the transactions of the office as nearly as possible hidden from public knowledge. A demand was made long ago for a complete reorganization of the office and investigation into the methods of conducting business which have maintained therein.

This demand, though supported by an overwhelming array of facts, has been studiously ignored, and a systematic effort made to divert public attention and interest by impugning the motives and attacking the characters of the men who identified themselves with the movement calling for an investigation.

The Struthers case, however, has finally brought matters to an issue, which cannot be dodged or avoided, if the government desires its administration of Yukon affairs to become in any degree established in the confidence of the people. The gold commissioner's office is the most important branch of the government service in the Yukon. Honest and efficient administration of that office is absolutely essential. In one way or another, every man in the territory comes in contact with the office, which has in its keeping, records of property interests running far into the millions.

It has resulted in serious and lasting injury to the country in general that the workings of the office have not been such as to inspire a feeling of public confidence. Investors have hesitated to place their money in Klondike properties on this account, and a general feeling of mistrust has prevailed.

We submit that the time has arrived when a thorough, searching and impartial investigation should be conducted, to the end that justice may be done all parties and the gold commissioner's office of the Yukon territory be placed upon a level with similar departments of public service in other portions of the Dominion.

Political questions are agitating our brethren in Alaska just as strongly as though they were down in the states and right in the midst of the fray. Preliminary conventions are being held for the election of delegates to the national assemblies of the various political parties, and all the politicians are getting their war paint on. Alaskans seem to be just as vitally interested in the questions of expansion, free silver, trusts, etc., as are the people generally throughout the states, and the matter of party platforms has been most vigorously discussed in all the Alaskan coast towns. They are not overlooking a few demands for federal recognition, of various requests for alterations in the Alaskan code, and the prospects appear to be that Uncle Sam will in the near future give some attention thereto.

The various committees having in charge the celebration to be given on the Fourth of July, report satisfactory progress in perfecting arrangements. It is to be hoped that everyone will enter heartily into the spirit of the occasion and assist in making the celebration a success. Every business house in Dawson should be represented in the street industrial parade, which promises to be a most attractive feature of the day. A great variety of floats can be arranged, which, aside from their value as contributions to the celebration, will be fully worth the expense involved as a means of advertising the local business houses which participate.

The indefatigable labors of Postmaster Hartman and his staff, together with the efforts of the mail contractors, have served to give Dawson a mail service in every way satisfactory, when the disadvantages under which they have been working are taken into consideration. The mail leaves and arrives in Dawson as promptly as anyone could ask, and is handled in the office with a dispatch which is most creditable to the efficiency of the force. The federal postal department has every reason to be proud of the service which it gives the people of this territory.

The Nugget is indebted to the U. S. consulate for a copy of the United States government's "Preliminary Report of the Cape Nome Gold Region," a pamphlet filled with valuable information respecting the new gold discoveries. It contains the latest maps of the adjacent country, together with a series of half-tone illustrations, showing different points of interest in the town of Nome and at the diggings. The report, as a whole, looks very favorable upon the Nome diggings.

The continuance of low water is making shippers uneasy about the arrival of expected goods from above. There has as yet been no through freight arrive from Bennett, and it is not known when the first shipments will get through. According to advices, the railroad should be running into Whitehorse in a very short time, and any blockade which may exist will be soon removed.

Two Nome Railroads.

Articles of incorporation of the Nome Railroad Company were filed in San Francisco on the 18th of May. The company proposes to have a main line four miles long, with a branch line two and a half miles long. The incorporators are C. D. Lane, E. J. Catehen, C. H. Willard, P. J. Miller and F. W. Wynn. The capital stock is $100,000. The road will run from Nome to Anvil creek in Alaska.

The same persons have incorporated the Wild Goose Railway Company with $100,000 capital stock, to operate four and a half miles of road from the shore of Bering sea near Nome toward Anvil creek, with a branch line a mile and a half long.

Don't Like Croker.

London, May 15.—The Express today advocates the ostracism of Richard Croker in England, in retaliation for Tammany's attitude on the Boer war. It says:

"It has not escaped notice in this country that in America the welcome to the Boer delegates has been inspired and encouraged by Tammany Hall, which is controlled by the notorious boss, Richard Croker. The records of Tammany are already black enough without the addition of this new infamy. But what makes the action of Tammany peculiarly infamous now is the fact that Croker claims the hospitality of an English domicile, poses as an English country gentleman, and runs horses on the English turf, yet is aiding and encouraging the worst of England's enemies. If Croker finds that the racing air of the United States does not invariably suit his constitution, he should secure the calm seclusion of an Italian villa, within reach of the Duke of Orleans, with whose company he will probably find congenial society."

Famine in India.

London, May 16.—Dealing with the famine in the central provinces of India, which have an area equal to that of Austria and a population of nearly eleven millions and which were formerly prosperous, the Daily Chronicle's correspondent at Bilaspur writes:

"The demand for government assistance is unparalleled. In one district 40 per cent are dependent on the Sirdar for their daily bread. In two others the percentage is over 30 in the whole area. There are 1,500,000 people with no other sources of subsistence than government charity."

"Three miles out from Bilaspur, 1500 persons are busy adding to the long list of tanks constructed by famine labor. Further on stone breaking is in progress and peasants, who have never before handled any implements save those of husbandry, wrestle manfully with crowbar and boring tools. When the rock is broken, women and youngsters busily ply little hammers. An able bodied man earns three cents and women two cents."

"If the price of grain increases the wage is increased, and vice versa, so that a full day's toil secures to every worker a sufficiency of food. No work, no pay."

"The old and feeble are drafted into the weakly gangs and even these wrecks of humanity, save a few pils (quarter of a cent) of their miserable pittance and starve their shrunken body in order to get a morsel of opium or tobacco."

"The type of relief work described at Bilaspur is done by the hundreds in the central provinces and the aid given to the able bodied people seems sufficient, and kitchens and hospitals are well managed. But, the penny wage for a weakling is insufficient. I am assured, however, that it will be raised."

OLD LETTERS DISCOVERED.

Correspondence Between Christ and King Agrippa

Brought to Light in Rome After Being Lost 1803 Years—Rare Old Documents.

New York, May 22.—The Herald and the Journal and Advertiser print today special cables from London and Rome respectively, which say that two letters, one from King Agrippa to Christ, and the other from the Saviour to the king in reply—letters referred to by Eusebius in the fourth century—have been discovered, after being lost 1803 years.

The letter from King Agrippa to Christ reads:

"I have heard of Thee and the cures wrought by Thee without herb or medicine, for it is reported that Thou restoreth sight to the blind and maketh the lame to walk, cleanse the leper, raising the dead, chasest out devils and unclean spirits and healeth those that are tormented of disease of a long continuance.

"Hearing all this of Thee, I was fully persuaded that Thou art the very God come down from heaven to do such miracles, or that Thou art the Son of God and performest them. Wherefore I have sent Thee a few lines entreating Thee to come hither and cure my disease. Besides,

"Hearing that the Jews murmur against Thee and continue to do Thee mischief, I invite Thee to my city. Which is but a little one, but is beautiful and sufficient to entertain us both."

Christ's reply to the above reads:

"Blessed art thou for believing Me, whom thou hast not seen, for it is written of Me that they that have seen Me shall not believe and they that have not seen Me shall believe and be saved. But concerning the matter thou hast written about, this is to acquaint thee that all things for which I was sent hither must be fulfilled and then I shall be taken up and return to Him that sent Me. But after My ascension I will send one of My disciples that shall cure thee of thy distemper and give life to all them that are with thee."

The Journal and Advertiser says: "The special cable from Rome purporting to prove the truth of a tradition that is almost as ancient as Christianity. Of course, the Journal cannot vouch for the truth of the statements which were made yesterday, April 30, by Prof. Bohrmann, of Vienna University, to the archaeological Congress in Rome, but they are of intense interest."

The cable message continues: "Prof. Bohrmann announced that these letters had been discovered carved in a stone over the gateway of the old palace of the Kings of Ephesus, and that they were undoubtedly the letters referred to by Eusebius and other early writers according to whom they were written in Syro-Chaldae characters and originally discovered under a stone, eighty-four miles from the city of Iconium in the year 97 and then lost. Fragments purporting to be of the original were declared spurious by Pope Leo III. Prof. Bohrmann says this discovery proves that such letters were written and supplies the full text.

A special from London is also printed in which Prof. George Robert Milne Murray, keeper of the department of botany and natural history in the British museum, is quoted as saying that the inscription was undoubtedly genuine. Prof. Murray had been shown a facsimile.

Violin Music.

The violin was used recently with interesting results in experiments with all sorts of living creatures. First it was played before a tarantula. She paid no attention whatever to it. But a nest of scorpions became intensely excited and wiggled frantically.

A cobra showed remarkable susceptibility. She was sleeping soundly when the experimenters approached her, but the first tone awakened her, and she raised her head. As the music swelled she continued to rise till she was standing straight as a pillar, supported only by her tail. Every change in tempo and pitch had effect. The pizzicato made her puff her entire body, swft waltz music caused her to erect her ugly hood to its fullest size, and a sudden dissonance made her wind and twist her body as if she were in real agony. The polar bear tried to dance to the sounds of the instrument. At least he swayed his body rhythmically and made a rumbling sound which portaged deep measure. The grizzlies and the lions moved their paws and the lions their tails also in time with the music. It happened that a string snapped, with its peculiar, sharp smack, just as the player had begun to perform before the cage of a hyena. That poor animal at once hunched its back up, drew its tail between its legs and crouched, trembling, in the farthest corner of the cage. The elephant and the ostrich were delighted by soft tones and appeared to suffer true distress from loud and sharp notes.—New York Press.

Cy Warman in Dawson.

Cy Warman, the poet, author and one of America's most graphic descriptive writers, visited Dawson, the latter part of last summer. Warman is not the man to announce his arrival in a city with a blaze of trumpets, being very quiet, but exceptionally observing. After his return to the outside he wrote some of the most vivid descriptions of Alaska ever yet penned regarding that country. A late issue of the Moyle, B. C. Leader, has one of Warman's articles which appeared in the New York Sun. By reading the article it will be seen that things have changed very little in Dawson since Cy was here, except that watermelons are not yet on the market and meat is considerably higher. Otherwise things are about as Cy found them ten months ago. The following is the article:

"Cy Warman, composer of the song 'Sweet Marie,' and author of a score or more short but interesting stories, made a trip to Dawson city some time ago. Cy evidently took in the town, for when he returned he contributed some pen pictures of midnight vice and revelry to the New York Sun, which are simply astonishing. In describing his experience he says:

"At one place we pushed the doors open, peeped in, coughed and backed out again. The foul air, bad tobacco, and the smell of spilled gin were too much even for my hardened friend Thomson. To a woman who blew cigarette smoke and smiles in his face he said: 'You are no lady.'"

"I think he must have been wrong, for I am sure no gentleman would dress as that did. It wore a pink bathing suit, short and starched natural stockings, sunset slippers and garters of gold. Its hair was the hue of a house on fire. After looking it over carefully for a moment Jim said it was what Klondikers call a 'dream.'"

"'Wash yer neck?' asked a miner, jerking his head towards the bar. "'Qui,' said the dream, and then she put a naked elbow on the board and carled in a clear, confident voice, 'High oall.'"

"Here comes a man crving Puget sound papers only eight days old. Behind him, in the gloaming, a man is carrying a basket of sliced watermelon, little crescents cut thinly from a six inch shell, and he wants 25 cents a bite. Watermelons are cheap now. You can buy a whole one as big as a boy's head for $2.50. They were $10 earlier, and they were $25 last year. In a little market a man is cutting a round steak for 75 cents a pound. Porterhouse is a dollar."

Found the Ends.

An Irishman who was out of work went on board a vessel that was in the harbor and asked the captain if he could find work on the ship.

"Well," said the captain, at the same time handing the Irishman a piece of rope, "if you can find three ends to that rope you shall have some work."

The Irishman got hold of the rope, and, showing it to the captain, said: "That's one end, your honor." Then he took hold of the other end, and showing it to the captain as before, said: "And that's two ends, your honor." Then, taking hold of both ends of the rope, he threw it overboard, saying: "And faith, there's another end to it, your honor."

He was immediately engaged—London King.

Kruger's Pinching Qualities.

When Kruger wants to punish people, he has a way of pinching them, using only four fingers of the right hand, but those fingers are especially strong. He invites the offender to sit next him and then grips the flesh of the leg between two of his fingers and twists it until the person turns blue and green. He was particularly frate with a gang of four who had stolen his horses.

"What made you steal my horses?" he asked angrily. The leader of the gang replied, "Because they were very bad, and we thought we would give your honor the opportunity to replace them with better ones."

Kruger was very angry and pinched very hard one after the other till they turned all kinds of colors.—Ex.

HE FOUGHT AGAINST FATE

How Aaron Burr Endeavored to Stem the Tide of Ill-Fortune.

Engaged in Practice of Law in His Old Age but Family Sorrow Carried Him Down.

"Aaron Burr was 60 years old when he resolved once more to battle with fortune," writes William Perrine in The Ladies' Home Journal. "Going quietly into New York, he opened an office for the practice of law and in a fortnight had earned $2000 in fees. But hardly had he written to his daughter about his luck when there came from South Carolina the news that her beautiful boy, who had been the idol of the ambitious statesman, was dead."

"But there was in reserve for Burr a still heavier blow. Toward the close of the year 1812 Theodosia Allston made preparations to visit her father in New York. Passage was engaged on the schooner the Patriot for Theodosia, her physician and her maid, and the lovely woman was Tadinat with the expectation of meeting her father within the next five or six days. The Patriot sailed from Charleston out into the ocean in Christmas week, and not a vestige of her was ever again seen, and it is surmised—but nothing is known as to her fate—that she foundered off the coast of Hatteras.

"Day after day and long after all hope had been abandoned—there might be seen on the Battery at New York the lonely and unhappy father, peering far down the bay as if he were scanning the sea for a sail. Of his agony Aaron Burr gave the world but little view. He had schooled himself in the habit of never exhibiting his emotions, but in one of his letters he declared that he felt as if he had been severed from the human race."

The Eternal Feminine.

Mrs. Alan Gardner, on one of her big-game shooting expeditions in Somaliland, gave a native woman a looking-glass, says Tit-Bits. She was so delighted with the first clear sight of her dusky countenance that she sat through two entire days and nights outside Mrs. Gardner's tent gazing, with rapture at her own reflection. On the morning of the third day the fame of the looking-glass had spread through the country, and a row of 40 Somali women collected from far and near, were engaged in taking an admiring turn at the magic mirror. When Mrs. Gardner came on the scene she was greeted by 40 feminine Somali voices joined in chorus, and each begging for a looking-glass "all to herself." But, alas! for the limitations of a sporting outfit, the dusky belles were obliged to content themselves with the one mirror. And the woman with the looking-glass remained for many weeks the most important person in Somaliland.

Aged Lovers Wed.

A wedding of romantic interest occurred at Rushville, Ind., the other evening in which the happy couple, now well along in years, were sweethearts 55 years ago in Rush county. The groom, William D. Westerfield, a wealthy farmer of Manlia, Rush county, is 74 years of age and the bride, Mrs. Helen J. Conway, of New York city, who came to Rushville to wed the lover of her girlhood days, is 72 but a well-preserved and good looking woman. The ceremony was performed by Justice Poe.

THE SENKLER INVESTIGATION

Nothing New Developed at Last Night's Session.

To Show That the Gold Commissioner's Actions Were Other Than Upright.

The Senkler investigation was on again last night, but that is about all that can be said for it. Nothing of particular interest was brought out and there was no evidence connecting Commissioner Senkler with participation in any act which was not in accordance with his official duties. At the conclusion of the session Attorney Wade, who has been acting for Mr. Senkler rose and suggested that it would be an act of magnanimity on the part of Mr. Woodworth, who represents Mr. Mc Tavish, to acknowledge that nothing had been found against Mr. Senkler which in any respect reflected upon the latter's character.

Judge Dugas thought there was no occasion for a display of magnanimity. The facts were there to speak for themselves and that was enough.

A feature of the proceedings was the introduction of John J. Mahon, whose case will be looked into by the commissioner. Mahon's story is familiar to a great many people in Dawson, his claims being substantially as follows: That he staked the lower half of hill side claim No. 2 on the left limit above lower discovery on Dominion creek on the 11th of July, '98. He made application to record on the 15th of the same month, but found the ground reserved for one C. Bean. Mahon went again to the ground and found no stakes, but his own and returned and so reported at the commissioner's office. After a number of delays and failures to record he was informed that the claim had been recorded by one W. E. Potter. Mahon then instituted protest proceedings, but from a variety of reasons never secured a hearing and the case was finally dismissed. The claim is a valuable one and an interest now held in it by ex-recorder Bolton, who was in the office at the time Mahon endeavored to record. Interesting developments are anticipated if all the details of the case is brought out before the commissioner.

Another Smashed Record.

Mr. F. H. Griffith arrived in the city yesterday from a ten days' tour of forty-mile river, where he owns considerable mining property. The trip from forty-mile is seldom made afoot and in less than ten days or two weeks; but Griffith covered the distance in a day and a half and had time to spare to toy with ruby sand along the river bank on the way up. He reports the trip one of the roughest of his experience, but aving mastered it, he would, were it not for the fact that he sails for Nome on the Barr, enter the Fourth of July obstacle race.

Hurrah for Bryan!

Mrs. Ross E. Bryan presented her liege lord with a nine-pound son and heir yesterday morning. The mother and son are doing well, and it is 16 to 1 that the father is the happiest man in town.

Capt. Bliss in Town.

Capt. Bliss has been in town since Monday. His work as royalty collector on Dominion is pretty well along, but he will return to the creek in a few days to complete the government's business for the season.

Prominent Filipino Captain.

Manila, April, 28.—Major General Wheaton reports that Senor Paterno, the former president of the so-called Filipino cabinet, was captured in the mountains near Trinidad, province of Benguet, on April 25th. Paterno, recently, through relatives in Manila, requested and received permission to enter the American lines, but failed to appear. His relatives explained that he had been sick a long time and was an invalid. He was brought to San Fernando on a litter accompanied by soldiers of the 48th regiment.

Road House Burned.

On Wednesday last a fire occurred at McNeil's roadhouse, located at No. 3 below upper discovery on Dominion creek. The house is run by Misses Julian and Evers. There was a fire in the stove at the time and the moss in the roof became ignited as a result of a defective flue. The lining of the cabin quickly caught fire and the flames soon spread over the entire inside of the building.

The alarm was quickly given to the men working on the claim who hastily formed a bucket brigade from the sauce boxes to the cabin. After an hour's hard work the flames were subdued, but not until the cabin had been practically gutted. The roof was pulled off in order to enable the men to get at the flames. The damage will amount to $400 to $500.

The roadhouse has been doing a good business and it is the intention to have it immediately repaired. Mr. McNeil, the owner, left Dawson today for the scene of the fire.

Up in a Balloon.

Balloonist Leonard is preparing for an ascension tomorrow in a brand new airship. Ever since the disaster which occurred to his balloon about 10 days ago, Leonard has been busy on the construction of a new machine in which to navigate the air. It is made of strong canvass and the aeronaut thinks will fully equal the balloon which burned. He wants to make one more ascension in Dawson before leaving for Nome, in which town he says he will soar to the clouds on July 14th.

New Railway Company.

Ottawa, May 15.—The railway committee of the house of commons this morning reported in favor of a bill to incorporate the Canada National Railway & Transportation Company, which proposes building a road from Collingwood to Toronto. The bill was fiercely fought by the promoters of the Toronto Georgian Bay Railway Company, a rival company backed by Toronto financiers. The former is backed by Americans and Canadians.

Stabbed By His Wife.

Kansas, City, Mo., May 16.—As the result of a family quarrel, Thomas H. Moss lies at the city hospital dangerously wounded from being stabbed by his wife with a pair of scissors. One of the blades entered Moss' right side, and penetrated the lower part of the lung. Physicians say he may die. Mrs. Moss is locked up at the police headquarters.

RIVER AND WATER FRONT

The Steamer Sybil is Due to Arrive From Whitehorse.

River Slowly Rising—The Barr Sails Tomorrow—Departure of Hannah Delayed Until the 25th.

The C. D. Co.'s steamer Sybil is due today from Whitehorse. She was reported as having passed Selkirk this morning at 4 a. m. She will bring in considerable freight picked up along the river from scows which were tied up last fall by the ice. She is billed to sail Sunday afternoon.

The river has been gradually rising for the past 24 hours and now measurement shows an increase of four inches of water. At up river points it has raised several more inches.

The general temperature up river is from 40 to 45 degrees, the latter at Selkirk and the former at Bennett.

First-class tickets are nearly all sold on the Seattle No. 3. She can carry nearly 200 passengers, without using the barge which will be taken in tow.

The John C. Barr will sail tomorrow with a large passenger list. The ticket office is crowded at all hours with intending voyagers.

The Alaska Commercial Co. will not dispatch their magnificent steamer Hannah for the down river trip before the 15th instant. They announce that the river, in their belief, will not be open at the mouth at an earlier date for sailing on account of the coast ice. An invitation is extended by the company for the public to inspect the boat.

Sutherland Found Guilty.

The jury in Justice Dugas' court yesterday, before whom Ronald D. Sutherland was tried on the charge of complicity in bribing a government employee, this being a branch of the Fred Struthers case, the details of which are well-known to the readers of the Nugget, was not long in agreeing that Sutherland is guilty as charged. As in the preceding cases, those of Struthers and Brown, sentence was deferred, but will be passed possibly before court adjourns this evening.

Coast Improvements.

A special letter from Washington, D. C., to the Portland Oregonian says that during the coming summer the lighthouse board will investigate the various lighthouse and fog signal sites recommended for Alaskan waters by shipmasters and others. The appropriation of $500,000 proposed for this purpose by Senator Foster was cut to $300,000 by the senate committee on commerce, although the treasury department favored the larger expenditure. There is, little likelihood of any appropriation being made during the present session of congress. There is a disposition in the house, where Congressman Jones has been active in endeavoring to advance legislation of this kind, not to allow any sum to be expended for Alaska lighthouses until next winter. The reasons given for this is that appropriations amounting to nearly $700,000,000 have already been arranged for, and that it is injudicious to allow any additional sum to be approved.

However, it is practically certain that an appropriation will be made during the second session of the 86th congress, both for the lighthouses and fog signals for Alaska, and also for a system of submarine cables for that district. A survey for the proposed cable, in accordance with Senator Foster's bill, will shortly be instituted. The desirability of the cable and lighthouses and fog signals is admitted quite generally.

Levine is Bound to Lead.

The opening of navigation means a great deal to the merchants of Dawson as with the advent of the first boats from above comes their consignments of spring and summer goods. Mr. A. S. Levine has been particularly fortunate in this regard for he has succeeded in bringing through two scow loads of fresh goods, even ahead of the arrival of the boats. This gives the Star Clothing house the only consignment of merchandise which has arrived this spring from the outside. The scows were dispatched by Tom Carmody of the V. V. T. Co., and were loaded with fancy shirts, derbys, Stetson broad-brim felts, fedoras; clothing of the latest and most fashionable cut, bicycle suits, underwear, silk and light natural wool, etc. These goods are now on display at the Star Clothing house and offered to the people at a most reasonable figure. Mr. Levine is to be congratulated on his success, particularly as he brought the first consignment of his goods in over the ice before any of his competitors, and now follows with his latest enterprise.
