FIGHT BRICK MEN WITH A NEW CEMENT

Is Latest Proposition of Builders.

900 Lamps According to New Plan.

The Canadians Must be Given a Show.

To fight the alleged brick combine, which has again sent the price up to 88.50 a thousand, a number of local contractors, it is said, will turn their attention to cement buildings. One prominent builder has already taken hold of the matter in a business-like way and claims to have an invention which will make it possible to build workmen's homes for twenty-five per cent. less than it can be done with brick. He proposes using reinforced cement. The walls for the first storey will have a steel wire mesh supporting the cement. There will be a space between this and the inner wall, which will also be supported with a steel wire mesh. The space will be filled with cement. The by-law calls for a nine-inch wall, but the inventor of this scheme believes that with the steel reinforcement a five-inch wall for the first storey and four inches for the second will do. Some of the contractors think it is time the brickmakers were brought up with a yank. It is not a few years since brick could be purchased for $1.00 a thousand, and it is said, on an even lower price was quoted. At that time three or four men had to be constantly employed firing, because wood was used to burn the brick. Natural gas is used now and the expense for labor is greatly reduced.

FOR WENTWORTH.

Who Will be Man if Thompson Retires.

The Dundas Star, which, however, is not an authority on matters pertaining to the Liberal party, has the following: A report has gone abroad that Mr. R. A. Thompson will not again contest North Wentworth in the Reform interest for the Legislature, words having been given out, it is said, that his recent illness, together with his large business connections, make it necessary for him to give up his Parliamentary duties. Whether the report has any real foundation or not, we are not able to say, and both Reformers and Conservatives would be glad to see Mr. Thompson in the nomination. Still, there are others, but these appear to be the real ones, who are looking for the nomination, in case Mr. Thompson retires.

They found her and placed her under arrest, and the woman is now at headquarters awaiting deportation.

Permit For Driver For Liveryman Refused and Police Court Case Will Follow.

Mr. Sam McKay, the well known liveryman at the corner of Jackson and Charles streets, has thrown down the gauntlet and defied the police to prosecute him for doing a cab business without a license when he has a livery license. He claims that a livery license covers all livery wagons and cabs. At the first of the year he was the only liveryman who refused to renew his cab license. He still kept on doing a cab business and this morning the matter came to a head when he sent a new driver to Chief Smith for a permit. The rule is that in the case of a new driver

PAINTED HIM.

New York Art Students Decorate "Peeping Tom."

New York, March 27.—There was a new kind of Peeping Tom and he is a chauffeur and almost all winter long he has spent his evenings on the roof over the night life classes of the New York School of Art at 223 Broadway. The skylights over the men's life class and the women's, next to it, are of frosted glass. You can peek through tiny windows and see all. Artists have been "laying" for the person that has been making cat calls on the roof. They got him on Wednesday evening and they took him down into the life class feet last, and made him throw his clothes away and mount the model throne—the lady model had been promptly dismissed after the roof capture—and throw out his chest to offer a good surface for paint, and they applied their brushes industriously and turned him into the aurora borealis. They would be painting him still if Mr. Robert Henri had not dropped in late in the evening to make his semi-weekly criticisms of his students' work.

BIG FLOOD.

Etobicoke Overflowed and Brampton Streets Flooded.

Brampton, Ont., March 27.—The Etobicoke rose very quickly yesterday from 6 p. m. until 11 p. m., caused, no doubt, by a jam somewhere, after which time it gradually subsided. The water was running five feet deep in places on the main street. Several stores were flooded and stocks damaged. Horses had to be removed from their stables for fear of drowning. Several residences were flooded, necessitating the removal of furniture. This morning the entire area of "Flats" resembles a lumber yard in disorder, the lumber belonging to C. A. Vine, lumber merchant. The factory of the Canada Shoe Company is closed today, on account of the boiler rooms being flooded. The flood was the worst since 1878.

A PLUCKY WOMAN

Chased Would-be Burglar With a Revolver.

Mrs. Thomas, 8 Alma avenue, is a plucky woman, and she proved it last night to the disgust and terror of a bold burglar. Mrs. Thomas and a lady friend were upstairs in her residence when the front door of the house was opened cautiously, and some person walked in. The stealthy tread of the would-be thief was heard along the hall, and, without an instant's hesitation, Mrs. Thomas got a revolver she had in a drawer and ran downstairs with it in her hand. The burglar fairly scowled the carpet, he went out so fast, and nothing has been heard of him since. He had not been able to get anything before he got the scare.

A NEW TRIAL.

J. L. Schelter Gets Antcoe's Conviction Quashed.

Mr. J. L. Schelter, of the firm of Farmer & Schelter, this morning succeeded in having the conviction of Magistrate Jells in the case of George Antcoe, a foreigner, quashed, on the grounds of being irregular. A new trial was ordered. Antcoe was sentenced to spend 18 months in Central Prison on a charge of cutting and wounding. Mr. Schelter became interested in the foreigner's case, and, after looking into the particulars, made application for leave to issue a writ of habeas corpus and certiorari. His application was granted, and argument was heard this morning. Mr. J. R. Cartwright, K. C., Deputy Attorney-General, appearing for the Crown, Justice Clute heard the evidence, and quashed the conviction. The irregularity consisted of the record citing the election of the prisoner being defective, he not having had an opportunity of going before a higher court with a jury. An order was made remanding the prisoner from Central Prison to the local jail.

REPRESENTATIVES OF FARRELL IN THIS CITY THIS MORNING.

International League Has Probably Blocked the Montreal Franchise Transfer.

There will be no Eastern League team in Hamilton this year. Yesterday the International League promoters telegraphed the National Baseball Commission the name of the president and asked for protection in class D and forwarded a copy of the schedule, which will prevent any other recognized league team from coming into this city.

Mr. Edward Gorman, part owner of the Metropole Hotel, New York, who came here a few days ago to look over the ground for Frank T. Farrell, one of the principal stockholders in the Montreal Eastern League Club, admitted this afternoon that it was all over so far as Hamilton is concerned, in view of the action of the International. "If Montreal's franchise is transferred now," he said, "it will go to Trenton, N. J."

Mr. Gorman, with his wife, has been at the Royal Hotel all week. He is an old Hamilton boy, but has not been here for nearly 25 years. In 1880 he played with the Eagles Baseball Club, and since that time he gained distinction in the ring, having gained two decisions over Guilo. After leaving the squared circle, he and John L. Sullivan started a hotel in New York, and fortune has smiled on him, evidently. He has all the car marks of a successful boniface.

FATED TO LOVE HER

CHAPTER V.

The sun had recently gone down behind a pile of storm clouds; and the winds which had raged throughout the day were beginning to sink, to die into feeble moans, as though exhausted by their own turbulence. Gradually, but surely, the shadows of twilight were enveloping Farnley Park; darkening the long slopes that undulated beneath the bounding trees; hiding the nooks where tritons and dog violets heralded the spring. To Gabrielle, who, at this hour, was approaching her new home, the scene appeared an emblem of her life, whose sun, she believed, like today's sun, had set, leaving twilight only.

A month at the seaside, with Mrs. Barber, had done much toward restoring her health. But she still felt weak; and it was a very pale, a very young face that watched in anxious curiosity from the carriage window.

"I shall be glad to see Olivia again," she thought. "I wish, with some very good reason, to be in awe of him; and Olivia said that he had such penetrating eyes. What a beautiful park this is! What fine old trees! And there is the house in the distance—how large and grand! I have often read of such a place, but I never thought of it as a home—it seemed too splendid. I would rather be going to our own little rectory, with the servants so glad to see me, and the drawing-room fire so cozy, and my stool and tea waiting to be made, and papa's chair in its old place."

"Are you feeling ill, ma'am?" inquired a dignified maid, who had been sent to escort her from the station, and who now sat on the opposite seat, in solemn respectability.

"I am only tired, thank you," answered Gabrielle, and repressed the swelling tears.

The drive through the park was long; the road was winding, and some times had the house appeared in sight, only to vanish among intervening trees; and Gabrielle, after as many fits of needless agitation, had just prepared her mind for another half-hour's journey when the carriage stopped in a single, unannounced sweep, and stopped. The goal was reached.

A long, three-storied pile, of irregular architecture; part, to all appearance, very old, and part comparatively new. At the east end, thickly wooded, was a ivy, was a small chapel, to Gabrielle's eyes the one bit of home. A stately personage—whom, a little doubtful, she supposed to be the butler—advanced to meet her, opened the carriage door, mechanically followed, followed him up a flight of steps, on either side of which reposed a huge stone lion—across the hall—a vision of marble pillars, orange shrubs, statues—finally, through a tiny ante-chamber into a great drawing-room with a painted ceiling, where, all alone, he left her. Then Gabrielle looked up at the ceiling, round at the pictures, and exclaimed:

"No, I can never, never feel at home here!"

"My poor child!" cried Olivia's voice at the door, "here you are." A kiss, "I cannot say how glad I am to see you. And you look really better; the sea has worked wonders." Another kiss, and another. "How stupid of Wilcox to bring you into this desolate room! Come with me, dear."

Possessing herself of Gabrielle's travelling bag, she led the way to a small, octagon-shaped parlour, where books, and work, and pretty things abounded; and a bright little fire imparted a universal glow of cheerfulness and warmth.

"Now," said Olivia, wheeling a crimson sofa into the fire's vicinity, "you shall lie here, and I will give you some tea. This is my own special sitting room. Isn't it snug?"

She was pouring out a fragrant cup of tea as she spoke, and placing it on a table beside the sofa. And Gabrielle drank the tea, and it refreshed; and her desolate feelings began to melt "like snowflakes in 't' heat."

"After all," she thought, "home depends on people, not on places."

"We shall be a very small party, Gabrielle—only three, for some time to come. Marian and Cissy are away, making a round of visits. You will be a great acquisition to me. I seldom see James, excepting at meals, and in the evening. He has never been seen in the other half he immerses himself in his study."

"What does he do there?"

"In his study? Oh, he reads and writes, he is always writing something. Just now he is busy about a notice for the Quarterly Review, Gabrielle, dear, I am so sorry—but he can't bear to be so unpunctual; I must go and dress. You will be still and rest—sleep, if possible—and I will send your dinner here."

This proposal Gabrielle gratefully accepted. She felt hardly equal, just now, to encounter the formidable James; and when the maid who had escorted her to Farnley reappeared, bringing a pair of comfortable slippers, and a pillow to "enhance the ease" she believed in, she gratefully accepted, physically speaking, her complete. She lay watching the fire, and listening to the sounds in the hall, such sounds as betoken a dinner table in course of preparation. Presently a gong sounded, and Olivia peeped into the room; begged her to ring if she should want anything more, and reiterated the hope that she might sleep. Then the maid came again, bearing a tray with a tempting little dinner—dinner exactly suited to Gabrielle's still fastidious appetite. And, this disposed of, and the tray removed, and the maid gone finally, Gabrielle did sleep.

Dreamless sleep, first; but, after a while, confused visions, blending the with another, began to fit before her. "Now her father was alive again—they were at Eversfield as of old; now he lay upon his deathbed, and she watched him laboring in breath, on the mountain; and she was with Charlie Godfrey, on a high mountain; and she was with Charlie and they fell down—down; and suddenly Charlie was gone, and she was alone in a valley, walking rapidly. The valley of the Shadow of Death, she thought, but she could not be sure—everything was so vague, so mysterious. And after all, was she alone? It seemed as though one walked by her side—a figure—whose she knew not. At the end of the valley was an opening; in the distance she heard music—beautiful music, swelling ever louder. Eager to reach it, she pressed forward, that figure still at her side, occasionally his face darkened; then, by an irresistible impulse she turned and beckoned him on. The valley widened; she had reached the opening. Before her stood a multitude, a mighty multitude, bathed in a flood of sunshine; the music proceeded from their midst. She heard it in its fullness now, and it was as the sound of many waters. All instruments were there—the organ, the harp, the trumpet, the flute, the clarinet. All voices were there—children, women, men—every variety of stature, of face, of form. Around, above, among the clouds, floated innumerable angels. The air was full of music, of beauty, of glory. Then the unknown figure, hitherto so silent, smiled on her, and said, "God bless you!"

She had been only dreaming, she knew; and yet—how was it that the music continued?

"Has James awakened you, dear?" asked Olivia, at her side.

"James?" she echoed absently.

"Don't you hear him playing on the chapel organ? I fear it did awaken you."

"It is very beautiful," said Gabrielle. "It gave me a beautiful dream."

"I have been in heaven, and he took me there!" she thought, as her eyes closed once more.

Further witness she had none, this night, of her Cousin James' vicinity; Olivia insisted upon sending her to bed, and, moreover, forbade her to rise before breakfast in the morning. But when the morning came, Gabrielle awoke refreshed; and the faithful Olivia, knocking as the gong sounded, at her hour, found her not only dressed, but looking—Olivia herself admitted—better than she had looked that year.

So they descended together to the breakfast room—a pleasant room, large and cheerful, and fragrant with hyacinths. The sun was beaming through the windows as brightly, almost as warmly, as in June. Below them were two fountains, in full play. The crystal water sprang up, as if in joy, to greet the sunshine, and fell transformed to gold. A peacock stood near, unfolding its gorgeous tail.

Involuntarily an exclamation of delight burst from Gabrielle's lips.

"The peacock and the fountain match well, don't they?" said a voice behind her. She turned with a start, and met the eyes—very large, very dark, very brilliant—of a young man, who had entered unobserved, and was standing at her elbow; a tall young man, distinguished looking, and of athletic build.

"I don't think we need an introduction," he said, smiling, as he proffered his hand.

"You are my Cousin James, I suppose," she answered, shyly.

"And you are my Cousin Gabrielle. I am glad to welcome you to Farnley."

"Thank you," murmured Gabrielle, and turned again to the window. But she saw the fountain no longer.

"The tea is ready," said Olivia, from behind the urn.

"So am I," replied James; "I have walked to Holt's farm and back this morning; and my natural appetite is none the less."

"To Holt's farm and back? Ten miles! Why did you go so early?"

"I wanted to catch the old man before he started for market. May I give you some, Miss Vix-Gabrielle? Then you must have this egg. I met that son of his yesterday, Olivia—the black sheep."

"Anthony?"

"Yes, that's the name. Well, I met him on my way from the Featherstone's. Poor fellow! You never saw such a wreck. I should say he was far gone in decline. And there he is at Rotherbridge, living as he can, craving for peace with his father, but afraid to go home. I volunteered to try what I could do in the way of intercession."

"I fear you would not have much success. Holt is so terribly hard."

"Yes, he's hard enough. He gave way at last, though. He will fetch the lad home to-day."

"Indeed!" exclaimed Olivia. "So soon! Ah! James, that's what poor old nurse used to call your gift of coming over people!"

James did not apparently hear this speech. He turned to Gabrielle, and hoped that she felt herself rested.

"Oh, yes, thank you, I slept so well!" said Gabrielle, still shy.

"This house is a harbor of refuge, in one respect. No ghost, notwithstanding its age has ever been seen in it. Rather a bad compliment, I fear, if we come to sift the matter. But, at any rate our nights are our own."

"Yes, I suppose we should be more distinguished for a ghost or two," said Olivia. "But it is not a distinction that I desire."

"Gabrielle feels the same no doubt. Now, for my part, I should enjoy meeting a ghost. It would be something fresh, at least. Besides, what are we ourselves but ghosts? Only we are veiled."

"If you talk so you will make us afraid of ourselves!" exclaimed Olivia. But Gabrielle smiled.

"Do you believe in ghosts?" inquired James, addressing her again. "The bona-fide ghost, I mean—the kind of thing that comes at night, in a white sheet, walks like the rustle of silk, and so forth?"

"Does anyone, nowadays, believe in anything so foolish?" cried Gabrielle.

"Does anyone, nowadays, confess to anything so foolish?" said James, smiling.

Then having, as he conceived, done his duty by her, he turned to Olivia, and during the remainder of the meal, the brother and sister discussed the letters of the morning, with their family matters, leaving Gabrielle to her own meditations. It was a relief to think that the first interview with this formidable James was over. Though, after all, he was not so very formidable! He made her feel shy, a little in awe—she could fancy him, on occasion, sarcastic; still, on the whole, he was both agreeable and attractive; and she believed that he could, if he chose, be fascinating. Then his face. She had never, that she remembered, seen such a face before— one in which physical beauty and intellectual greatness were so wonderfully united. Olivia might well be proud of him. What sister would not be proud of such a brother? In short—since Gabrielle's organs of veneration and ideal-ity were as large as their scope for exercise had been limited—she had worked herself, before breakfast was over, into a fit of genuine hero-worship.

A bell, ringing long and loudly, called to prayers; and Olivia led the way, through the back door, which opened on the hall, and down a stone-flagged passage, to the chapel. The chapel, which had been built towards the middle of last century, was a good specimen of the best of the old architecture. East and west were two large windows, each of seven lights; the lower windows were small, but very beautiful. Their pointed arches were supported by slender columns, and they abutted on stone. The gable was generally of a somewhat later date, and retained much of its first glory in radiant coloring. Gargoyles, cherubs, faces angelic or human, good or bad, peeped from each corner; and in the ribs of the roof no opportunity had been lost for the insertion of a bunch of nuts or acorns, a star, or a flower half hidden among leaves.

A group of angels, carved in oak, with graceful faces, stood on the chancel roof, supporting the huge brass candlestick; and three similar angels, two at the organ, and one at the vestry door, were armed with staves, which, now at the end, served to carry wax lighted candles upon their heads. Two more monuments, masterpieces of mediæval sculpture, stood on either side of the altar. Her eyes wandered beyond these to the east window. It was a window erected—as she learned from the old English inscription on its base—in honor of James Gordon, knight, aged sixty-eight years, and of Cecily, his wife, aged sixty-two years, the husband of that Cecily—who had passed to their rest in the month of August, 1410, within two days of one another.

What kind of a man had he been, Gabrielle wondered, that James Gordon of so very long ago? He had lived in a chivalrous time; perhaps he had been one of those great knights of whom she had read, "zealous for the faith, and true and tender," "a valiant and a valiant gentleman." One of those who, although not wanting in glory or other virtues, counted it ever less august glory to defend the weak, and to wrap his arms round the neck of some poor, and perhaps, in outward form, he had resembled the James Gordon of to-day. Perhaps "Cecily his wife" had been as proud of him as Olivia was now of his descendant.

She was indeed a happy woman, that Cecily—so it seemed to Gabrielle. How her heart must have swelled when she saw her colors waving from her helmet at the tournament! She must have felt anxious, though, sometimes, when she longed to make his start, and then saw him ride away, not knowing whether he would ever ride home again. And no doubt she was sometimes, in her youth, a little jealous, too, for if he were indeed such another as his nameake, he must have been admired by many—many ladies, perhaps, than she.

"What all was over now now," she had long been at rest—and on what a pleasant story of his later life, that Gabrielle had grown old together; they had built this chapel together—it might be as a thank offering for the blessings which together they had enjoyed; and when that separate career, which she thought of which with such surety often trembled, it proved, in God's mercy, so brief, that ere the one who was left could have had time to realize its worth. It was over, and—Gabrielle trusted—they were reunited. Forever and forever.

She wished that it was possible to look back five hundred years, and see the old couple kneeling, as they must often have knelt, side by side in this very chapel. Then she tried to imagine that sight, until they became as living forms before her—forms far more real, for the time, than those which were actually present. Suddenly she awoke to the consciousness that a long train of servants—chamber servants—were filing in through a long door, and that James was seated at the organ. Immediately afterward an elderly clergyman, short, and inclined to stoutness, with gray hair, and a very stern look, and a procession of monks, entered in his surplice, and the service began. The clergyman read in gusts, reminding Gabrielle of the wind. His voice first rose to ungodly heights, then fell to ungodly depths. His spirit, however, was fervent, and his intonation was impressive; and James' music, to her ear, was sublime. Beneath his fingers the dead notes awoke to such life and glory as the unsophisticated Gabrielle never doubted to come straight from his heart. And she supposed that it was the reverse of his grand, self-contained nature which made his countenance all the while so immovable—she could almost have thought, so cold.

THE HAMILTON TIMES

FRIDAY, 1 MARCH 27, 1908.

THE COUNTRY FIRST.

How partisanship and personal enmity warp the view of men who, in their duty to the public, should keep an open and judicious mind, and discuss public questions from the broad standpoint of principle, is too often illustrated in Canadian political life.

Mr. Sifton went outside of this little mill-house round, and kept well out of the puddle of "dirty politics" of which Canadian readers have heard far too much.

Mr. Sifton, and his dumbness with respect to the future of the line, after the government has built it, is the operative duty of the Opposition or any friends of government ownership.

In this article we do not propose to deal with Mr. Sifton's record at Ottawa. A book might be written on it. For lackness it is without a parallel in Canadian history.

Mr. Sifton says he has something like contempt for nursery politics, and generally he has avoided the personal tattle and wrangling which disgrace so much of our political literature.

It is well that when a speaker on public questions has something to say, which appeals to the good sense of men, it should be dealt with on its merits, and not that the bitterness of partisanship should deprive the country of anything good that any of its people have to offer.

Hon. Mr. MacKay's brilliant speech on the budget in the House last night was in striking contrast to Mr. Whitney's peppy remarks.

CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION.

The Tories will, no doubt, make the most of the report of the Civil Service Commission, which was presented to Parliament yesterday.

LOADING THE DICE.

Much was made of the fact that when Whitney announced his redistribution bill, he promised that the partitioning up of the Province should be left as a guarantee of its fairness to a committee on which the Liberals should have representation.

POOR CRITIC, HARD TASK.

When George E. Foster set about preparing his criticism of Hon. Mr. Fielding's twelfth budget speech, his glance over the public accounts did not add to his enthusiasm.

OUR EXCHANGES

Wilson was not our choice, but he'll do. Before entrusting a page with a letter to post it is now Dr. Sproule's custom, we are informed, to question the boy closely on transubstantiation and other nice theological points.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Mr. MacKay last night dubbed Hon. Mr. Monteith "the weak sister" of the Government. That will stick.

THE POOR SPEC.

The hog industry is one of the chief sources of revenue to the farmers, and Mr. Sealey, as the prospective representative of Wentworth, is already doing a grand work in using his great influence and business ability in seeking legislation that will restore this industry to its true place as one of the leading sources of revenue to farmers.

ITCHING DEVILS

Are little patches of eczema on the skin, scalp, or hands, which are instantly relieved and speedily cured, in the majority of cases, by gentle applications of Cuticura Ointment, the great Skin Cure, preceded by warm baths with Cuticura Soap?

OUR EXCHANGES

WHAT'S THIS?

Allan Studholme, M. P. P., took up the whole evening and carried it into history in the long arms of his verbosity.

DEAD IN HIS SHACK.

Body of Unknown Man Found by Fire Rangers. Saul Ste. Marie, Ont., March 26.—Last night Messrs. Huxson and Fisher, of the Soo, brought in the news that they had discovered the body of a man in a shack 2 1/2 miles from Searchmont, on the Algoma Central.

MANITOBA'S LIABILITY IN ITS PROVINCIAL TELEPHONE SCHEME IS NOW $3,877,000.

Manitoba's liability in its Provincial telephone scheme is now $3,877,000, and all about $375,000 of this has been expended. The Winnipeg Free Press complains that the policy of the Roblin Government seems to be to so muddle up the accounts as to prevent the people from knowing how much they are spending.

ALCHEMY OF JACK FROST. Wonderful Artistic Pictures Wrought From the Fabric of Moisture. What has not been enraptured by the delicate, lacelike tracery that Jack Frost weaves upon the window panes or the feathery beauty of hoar frost in a patch of shrubbery? The prosaic statement that all these pictures are produced by the freezing of moisture is not an adequate description of an agent that has the power of adorning in a few hours such prosaic objects as gate posts and dustbins with all the trappings of fairyland. Moisture is, indeed, the fabric out of which all this feathery whiteness is built up, but although it seems sometimes as if it is distributed in a very capricious manner there are nevertheless certain definite circumstances which cause the hoar frost to settle down on some surface rather than others.

PACIFIC FLEET. 223,000 Tons of Naval Strength in Squadron. The fleet is made up of 223,000 tons of fighting ships, mounting 925 modern guns of the latest improved types, says Harper's Weekly. Although the 13-inch guns are the heaviest on all the ships, the most powerful weapons in the fleet are the 14 1/2-inch guns. Each one of these shoots a projectile weighing 870 pounds, with a muzzle velocity of 2,700 feet a second and a muzzle energy of 44,000 foot tons, which is to say a power that could lift 44,000 tons one foot.

Biography of a Snow Flake. Such is the term which has been applied by a high authority to the history of the aerial frost flowers of winter. In order to have a fair start in life a snowflake should be built upon a particle of dust. Then, if it has the good fortune to begin its career at the top of a cloud, many miles above the earth, and to pass through many atmospheric strata, differing in their temperature and the amount of moisture they contain, the snowflake is very likely to become a notable individual among its kind. In a stratum of warmer air the little flake catches moisture on its tiny particles, and when it enters a colder stratum below, the moisture is frozen, and so the flake grows. In a thawing air many flakes sometimes cohere, forming disks from an inch to two or three inches across.

AN ICE SHOVE. There was quite an ice shove in the bay this morning, the northeast wind carrying the great mass of floating ice and doing some damage. A corner of the Jatten boat house wharf was carried away, and a number of small boat houses crushed.

Stanley Mills & Co., Limited. 3-inch guns, whereas the Oregon had 20 mere 6-pounders. Gunners experts declare that the Oregon develops 819,456 foot tons of energy in five minutes of firing, while in the same time the Georgia develops 3,927,172 foot-tons of energy. That is to say the Georgia is five times as effective as the famous Oregon. This advance is due to the increased rapidity of fire, due to improved mechanism in handling the guns and the improved methods of training the gunners. Marvellously excellent mechanical devices have much to do with the greater efficiency, but best of all is the system of teamwork in each gun crew, whereby every man, in obedience to signals given, if necessary in pantomime, does his work with all the speed and precision of a football or baseball player, to whom instantaneous intelligent action is the price of victory.—Philadelphia Record.

OWNERS MUST TAKE ACTION.

City Not Likely to Apply to Railway Board.

Teamsters Will Get No Increase This Year.

Will Pass New By-law Regulating Gravel Pits.

It looks as if the Herkimer street residents who asked the city to make a special application to the Ontario Railway Board to have the annoyance caused by the crossing of the Brantford & Hamilton Railway cars over the Street Railway's tracks stopped, would have to act themselves.

Not Settled Yet.

A sub-committee will endeavor to straighten out the technicalities which have so far kept the city from signing the agreement to take over the eighteen acres of land in the southwest and owned by W. D. Platt as a park site on certain conditions.

Ald. Evans, Mr. Platt's solicitor, said there would be no objection to the city retaining stone from the Stuart and Long property across the park.

No Increase for Teamsters.

The sub-committee dealing with the application from the teamsters for an increase, recommended that they be paid 18 cents a day more. At present they receive $1.82 a day and 10 cents for overtime.

Ald. McLaren objected on the ground that there were too many men hard up and out of work to be granting any increase.

The Unemployed.

A deputation of the unemployed appeared, and asked why the city was going to do to supply the hundreds of unemployed who have registered with work.

"We laid the facts before the Mayor and there is not much more to say. We think it is high time something was done," said the spokesman.

Ald. Lewis, the acting chairman, said he had been informed by the engineer that the waterworks construction would be begun at once, and as many men as possible given employment.

The matter of opening up a new street from James street south near the machine to John street was left to the City Solicitor and Ald. McLaren to report on.

City Engineer Barrow will report on the cost of building a retaining wall on the Jolley Cut and cutting out the south bank.

There were several applications to have streets fixed up, and the board will deal with all these later on.

The matter of mapping out a plan of electric lights in connection with the Hydro-Electric scheme was left with Aldermen McLaren, Allan and Sweney, to work in conjunction with Engineer Sothman.

The committee refused to do the grading requested by the Board of Health on Paradise road. The aldermen thought the board should pay for the work out of its own appropriation, and use the garbage collected in that end of the city to make a road.

A deputation of New street residents declared that the road was in such awful shape groceries, coal and wood dealers had refused to deliver orders because the street was almost impassable.

"There is a brick crossing there, but it is buried so deep under mud you cannot find it half the time," said one of the speakers.

The engineer will make a report at once, and will also advise as to fixing up Elizabeth and Henry streets.

Louis Cullen, alias Colton, who was arrested yesterday in an express office, where he went to secure a package sent from Rochester, N. Y., in response to a Black Hand letter, confessed to-day that he had written two letters demanding money and threatening death if it were not paid, to persons in Rochester, N. Y., and Poughkeepsie, N. Y. He said his motive was to get $700 to set himself up as a cobbler and wed Miss Jennie Sessie, an Italian girl living in Rochester.

DAYLIGHT-SAVING MEASURE.

Freak Bill Passed to Second Reading Amid Roars of Laughter.

London, March 26.—The House of Commons has passed on its second reading the Pearce Daylight-saving Bill, which provides new British time for the summer months.

That such a measure, which many regard as mere foolishness, should get such attention in the House of Commons will be wormwood to the Suffragettes, whose Woman Suffrage Bill was sent to the Committee of the Whole House, which action virtually shelves it.

GOOGLES AND MOUSTACHE.

Di Guise Adopted by a Canadian Traveler to Elude Ancient Foe.

Windsor, March 26.—United States Immigrant Inspector Edge had his attention attracted by the strange actions of a stranger crossing on the Michigan Central car ferry this morning and took him into custody.

The man was clad as a hunter, wore goggles and a heavy false moustache darned his upper lip.

At police headquarters he gave his name as Frank Taggart, a veterinary surgeon of Wiltonville, Ont., and told the authorities he was on his way to his old home in Watervliet, Mich., to visit his parents.

The disguise was to avoid being recognized by an old enemy and former rival in a love affair, who resided at Watervliet, and who had threatened to give him a whipping. He was released after his identity had been verified.

An application for cancellation must be made in person. The applicant must be eligible for homestead entry, and owing the eligible for cancellation will be received from an intending homesteader, or from a person who has cancelled his application.

Where an entry is cancelled subsequent to institution of proceedings, the applicant for cancellation will be entitled to prior right of entry.

(4) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or the Agent for the district of the Dominion Lands Act, or while living with himself, must notify the Commissioner of the Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of his intention to do so.

GOOD CLEAN BOUTS AT HIGHFIELD.

Students Perform With the Mitts For Society.

Crispin and Davidson Meet at Britannia Park To-night—Allen Defeated Moran at Montreal.

Clean and clever demonstrations of the manly art of self defence were given at Highfield School boxing class last evening, before a gathering of ladies and gentlemen. The affair, barring the presence of the diminutive mitt artists and the spongers, had the appearance of a social function. Hamilton society was well represented and among the men present were some of the most prominent professional and business men in the city.

The bouts last night marked the close of the term, and were for the school prizes and titles. In two or three cases the boys did not appear to be evenly matched as to weight and size; the boys came together according to age. Nearly all the bouts were pretty even, however, and in two cases, however, the men were so evenly matched that the decision of the referee was open to question. The only decision, however, that would have met with open disappointment at a public entertainment was the one in the C. Martin vs. Merrick bout.

The greatest interest was taken in the final bout for the junior cup, between M. Crispin and L. Ferris, which caused much excitement. The nine-year-olds were fast and clever and were so evenly matched that the referee ordered an extra round. At the end of that he stated that he would have to decide it on the basis of the preliminary rounds. He gave it to Crispin, whose foot work and ring generalship was admirable. Ferris used his hands in a more scientific manner, however, but no fault could be found with the decision.

Following are the results of the bouts: Juniors: Preliminary—M. Crispin vs. L. Merrick; won by Crispin. L. Ferris vs. P. Child; won by Ferris. Final—Crispin vs. Ferris; won by Crispin.

Intermediate: Preliminary—G. Lynch-Staunton vs. M. Crispin; won by Staunton. C. Martin vs. J. Merrick; won by Merrick. Semi-final—Washington vs. Staunton; won by Washington. Final—Washington vs. Merrick; won by Washington.

Senior: Preliminary—G. Holland vs. J. Kennedy; won by Holland. S. Bankier vs. A. Turner; won by Bankier. Final—Holland vs. Bankier; won by Holland.

This was one of the best bouts of the evening and both boys showed up exceedingly well. At the close of the bout Principal Collinson called on Commodore R. A. Lines to present the prizes to the successful contestants. On motion of Mr. Kirwan Martin a vote of thanks was tendered to the boys and the officials.

Much credit for the splendid showing made by the contestants is due Mr. Albert Taylor, the physical instructor, who has had charge of the boxing branch of the instruction during the present term.

JEFF NOW A PROMOTER.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 26.—Jim Jeffries has made good his threat that he would open a fight club outside of this city, a club where he could hold twenty or twenty-five round bouts. Recently Jeff declared that he did not approve of the ten-round bouts the City Council of Los Angeles only permits, and that he would open a club where real fights could be held. His word was doubted, but Jeff went through with the move. To-day the following telegram was sent to Bill Papke: "Will you fight Ketchell twenty-five rounds before my new club here during Fleet week, about April 23, for 60 per cent. of the gate receipts, seating capacity 5,000?—James J. Jeffries."

ALLAN WON FROM MORAN.

Montreal, March 27.—The fistie bout between Billy Allan, of Ottawa, and Jimmy Moran, of New York, for the feather-weight championship of Canada, which was pulled off at Maisonneuve last night, resulted in favor of Allan, who was given the decision in the fifteenth round. Allan had the better of the encounter throughout, but Moran put up a plucky fight.

VISITORS EASY.

St. Catharines Indoor Baseball Defeated by Score of 26 to 7.

A team of indoor baseball players, representing the XIX. Regiment, of St. Catharines, played a nine from A. Co., XIII. Regiment, at the Alexandra rink, last night. The visitors were easy for the home team, being defeated by a score of 26 to 7. Six of their seven runs were scored in the last two innings. The St. Kitts' boys' explanation was that they were used to playing with a ball four inches smaller than the one used in the game.

D. Adams, of this city, and Sergt. McKinley, of St. Kitts, were impartial umpires. The teams were as follows: XIX.—Pickard, Jewess, Adie, Wallins, H. Edmonstone, Glynor, T. Edmonstone, Burrill and Becton. XIII.—Hofman, Simpkins, Douglas, Birmingham, Nixon, Pael, Lemon, Birmingham and Day.

The batteries for the visitors were Jewess and Adie, and for the locals Nixon and Lemon. Jewess and Nixon are both southpaws, and did good work.

ATHLETICS AT Y. M. C. A.

Some athletic events took place in East Hamilton Y. M. C. A. last evening between the Buster Browns and Hoogigans. A basketball game was first played, the result being 24-22 in favor of Buster Browns' team. The Hoogigans were captained by Russ Thompson and the Buster Browns by Wm. Brown. Both these men play a fast and scientific game, and bid fair to become players in the Central team. Then followed a relay race, won by the Hoogigans, who also were winners in the walking race. The pig-back was won by the Buster Browns.

GAME TO-NIGHT.

The indoor baseball teams of those old rival clubs, the Nationals and the Ramblers, will meet at the Alexandra rink to-night in the first of the series of three games for the city club championship. The line up of the teams is as follows: Nationals—E. Memory, C. Craig, P. E. Doran, B. A. Counts, B. G. Blair, B. P. Hennessey, L. S. M. Phillips, F. S. C. Harris, L. J. McMaster, r.f. Nationals—D. Campbell, C. J. McMahon, P. N. Smith, B. J. Tracey, B. H. Pickard, cbr, F. Hughes, l.b., T. Sheridan, r.s.; L. Tuennel, l.f.; J. Brydges, r. f.

FOUR FAVORITES

Finished in Front at Bennings Track Yesterday.

Bennings, D. C., March 27.—Four favorites and two heavily favored second choices won yesterday at Bennings. The first event, a handicap at five and a half furlongs, afforded the last race of the day. Four horses faced the barrier, with Smoker a strong favorite, Sugarpine, on his race of Monday, had a strong following, but showed no speed. Smoker

Old Jawn L. and a Salvation Army Lass.

One time, after he had lost the championship, as well as most of the coin he had gathered, John L. Sullivan opened a cafe in Forty-second street, New York. It was the occasion of a great celebration among the men who had followed him from victory to victory during many years. Sullivan still had friends by the thousand. On the opening day his place was crowded to the outer doors. Champagne flowed in rivers, and few were allowed to buy while John was near. During the afternoon two women dressed in Salvation Army uniform walked into the bar, proffering the War Cry for sale and soliciting contributions to a charity fund. The men in the place were not charitably inclined; that afternoon, except in the matter of purchasing refreshments. Some turned their backs, some laughed. Sullivan was

STOPS BETTING ON N. Y. TRACKS.

Albany, March 27.—The Assembly yesterday afternoon fulfilled expectations by passing by an overwhelming majority the bills of Assemblyman Hart, designed to abolish the legal protection of gambling at race tracks in this State, in accordance with the recommendation of Governor Hughes in his second annual message to the Legislature. The first of the bills, that to eliminate the discrimination which has virtually legalized gambling with race track enclosures, while it is a felony elsewhere, was passed. A number of amendments were defeated by a large majority.

O. J. C. PROGRAMME BOOK.

The announcement of the stakes to be run at the spring meeting of the Ontario Jockey Club is quickly followed by the programme book of the meeting—in its new familiar colors of black and red forming a girde with beaver on maple leaf and horseshoe and merrythought surrounding. The new pictures that adorn the book are very interesting. The frontispiece is a reduction of the new banner, which is the handsomest of the series of pictures of the Plate winners.

The King's Plate and Minto Stakes are the big events for the opening day, Saturday, May 23rd, and these, with the Trial, Curse, Alder Steeplechase and the Vanitie Curse, form a six-ong card. Victoria Day, which falls this year on Sunday, will be kept on May 25th, and on this day the Victoria Stakes, $1,000 added; the Queen's Hotel Cup, $500 added; Woodstock Plate, 100 purses, with $2,000 added, and Woodbine Steeplechase, $1,000 added, at two and a half miles, should prove an attraction sufficient for the holiday. During the first week the breeders' Stake, Japsie Leaf Stake and Liverpool Cup will be run off, the valuable Toronto Cup, with $5,000 added, being set for decision on Saturday, May 30th. On Monday, June 1st, of the second week racing, the Seagram Cup and Valley Farm handicap will be decided; on Wednesday the gold cup given by the King Edward Hotel Company, with $1,500 added, for three-year-olds and upward, at a mile and a quarter. This race has always proved one of the classics of the meeting, and has invariably been won by a good horse. The Stanley Produce Stakes, on Thursday, June 4th, is a valuable plethora of good things, the Tyro Stakes, Waterloo Handicap, William Hendrie Memorial Handicap and Street Railway Steeplechase bringing the meeting to a close. A foot note at the commencement of each day's racing states that $500 is the lowest value of any purse run during the meeting, entrance money in all races going to the winner.

IN THE PADDOCK.

At Washington on Monday, Anians, racing in the name of Albert Simons, won the sixth race and was bought for $1,200 by J. E. Madden. Wednesday, after he won the sixth race, he was bought by Albert Simons and bought in at $1,200. Later G. W. Langdon purchased the gelding and Call Boy from Madden for $9,500. The Montreal Driving Club's programme for the coming season at Deerpark Park commences on Tuesday, with the first race, which will be of five days each, in June, July, August, September and October. J. H. McCormick and his connections are reported to have situated one of the biggest betting houses in the city when their former failed to win the fifth race at New Orleans Tuesday, for which he was an overwhelming favorite. At Muller set a fast pace for three-quarters, only to succumb in the last furlong to Feany, which won in an unusual kind of manner. Al Muller lasted long enough to beat Clorifer for second place.

Comment and Chat

Have you sent in a name for the Hamilton baseball team yet?

The basketball match at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium to-night between the Toronto All Saints and the Hamilton II. is for the junior Canadian championship.

Imagine a team of athletes from Toronto being "all saints!"

Former Jockey "Monk" Coburn, under indictment at New Orleans for using the mails to defraud, was released to-day on $250 bond. Coburn advertised to name six winners in as many days on prepayment of $12. People who sent money without receiving returns made the complaint.

Regarding the new International Baseball League, the London Free Press says: "The league should be, too, a good proposition from a financial standpoint to admit of that theory being entertained for a moment, for the four cities now in are known to be good ball towns, and it is certain that they have not deteriorated any. Furthermore there is a whisper that there are even bigger things than the four-club league in sight for next year."

At the meeting of the Hamilton Homing Pigeon Club to-night the dates for club races will be fixed.

The committee of the Hamilton Kennel Club has decided to extend the time for making entries for the coming show to April 2. Premium lists may be had from the secretary, Robt. Colvin, at the Custom House.

has signed a Hamilton contract, and will covart around the foothills of the mountain range across the valley. "Well, 'Bun' had the good and bad days, like the rest of them, but they were mostly good, and when he was good he was a wonder. He could stop all kinds, while his work behind the nets was always of the best. However, the Indians doubtless have a better man to fill his place."

And 'tis said the folks over there are after more N. L. U. stars, with the evident intention of making their ancient enemies in St. Kitts sit up and be good. In fact, it is known that they are already dickering with some well-known stars who wintered in that vicinity, and it would not be surprising to hear at any moment that "sport" Murton had signed to manage the new aggregation of stars. Fred Hubert, who is the man behind the gun, got his lacrosse experience in Brantford, where he learned that it was no use going to the races with a cart horse. He'll have the best or none at all.

Guy Nicklaus says of the Oxford-Cambridge boat race: "People who do not know one end of a boat from another are laying the odds of 3 to 1 on Cambridge. This is merely weight of money, and by no means justified. It is likely they may learn a useful lesson. I can remember several occasions when the best boat was done, and layers' odds on Cambridge have been badly let down. The years 1890 and 1905 occur to me at the moment as two very good examples of this kind of thing, and it looks to me at the moment of writing as if history will repeat itself in 1908."

Toronto World: A feature of the controversy between the A. A. U. and the American Union is the campaign stuff being sent out regularly, evidently by Sullivan, president of the latter body, boosting the Boss himself, while the Canadian are resting on their oars. It is looking as though the volume of knowledge in their possession should come out at a time when it will have the best effect. It is said on good authority that there is a medium aged runner now in Toronto who figured prominently once at a stall fed amateur around Sialtan, and who will make affidavit that this fellow Sullivan used to send him around to the amateur games, paying his expenses and a stated weekly salary.

It is said the betting at Bennings on Monday was so light that some of the bookmakers did not take in enough money to pay expenses. One of the leading layers handled only $165 on the Bennings Handicap. According to many turf veterans betting in the eastern States has been falling off steadily in recent years, as is the case in England. Bud McMahon, the well known road walker, says: "Betting is growing lighter each year. Bookmaking was a profitable business a few years back, but it's a hard game now. The play centres on one or two horses in each race and there is really no longer a percentage in the layer's favor. It's an open and shut case of speculation between the public and the bookmaker nowadays."

John Willie, the heavyweight fighter, through his manager, who is at Hot Springs, failed to cover a $500 wager to meet Marvin Hart. The conditions were that the winner take all and the receipts to go to charity if the fight resulted in a technical decision, as at did when they met St. Patrick's Day. The battle may take place later in Milwaukee or in Calumet, Mich. But Willie evidently did not like the conditions which were necessary to bring them together at Hot Springs, which would have forced each to go for the money and the loser get nothing. Hart stated that he would continue taking the baths and preparing himself to meet Tommy Burns again when the latter returns from Europe. Hart, having a victory to his credit over Jack Johnson, might claim the right to first chance at Burns if he himself had not been beaten by the Canadian. The proper plan would be for this pair to have another match, the winner to meet the champion.

HENDRIE HORSES WINTERED WELL.

The Hamilton Stable Has Five Platers at the Woodbine. Toronto, March 27.—Among the visitors at the Woodbine yesterday were George M. Hendrie and Col. J. S. Hendrie, who went down to look over their string of horses, which are being wintered there. This is the first season in many that these horses have been housed in Toronto, and they never looked better, nor were they as far advanced so early in the spring as this year. The horses are being trained by John Nixon, who first became famous as a trainer when he sent old Lion Heart over the jumps for the first few years of his successful career. This was Nixon's first horse and he was looked upon as the greatest jumper of his time. Last year Nixon did well for the Hendrie stable, winning many stakes with the horses at all distances and under adverse circumstances. The horses have wintered well, and are more than up to the mark as far as work goes. They have even gone so far as to gallop on the track already this season, their trainer losing no opportunity to get on with the string. There are a lot of good four-year-olds in the stable this spring which should assure its success. The weak spot in the lot, as looking himself, and although he had a hard season in 1907, he has taken on weight, and is as fine a four-year-old as will be seen on the Canadian circuit the coming season. Denham is a much stronger-looking four-year-old than a three-year-old and there is not a scratch on him. This horse went wrong last summer at Fort Erie, but has fully recovered. Although he is province-bred, he will make some of the best of them go to beat him, as was proven when he ran a mile at Fort Erie last season in better than 1:40, breaking his maiden against seasoned horses. Glimmer, who won a number of long-distance events last year, is the one on which the stable depends to uphold their colors in these races again this spring. This horse is the son of Martimas, the only Canadian horse to have ever won the rich Futurity for two-year-olds. The honest little mare, Kelpie, who was his helpmate in all of the stakes he won, will be used for the same purpose again. This pair of horses are useful ones and should gather some purses.

The majority of the two-year-olds are province-breds, and will be kept as King's Platers for next season, so that little will be done with them as far as racing goes. In the King's Plate-race this year the Hendrie stable will have an entry of five, although it is not likely that all of them will go to the post. Scud is the best of the bunch. It is said that he worked five furlongs, with good weight up, last fall at Windsor, in 50 seconds, which shows him to be a strong competitor.

WILL START AT WOODBINE.

The horses will not start their season's campaign this year until the Woodbine opens. In former years they have been taken to Washington or Baltimore, but such will not be done with this spring. Entries have been made in all of the big stakes on the Canadian circuit, as will get plenty of racing without going to New York or Saratoga. Jockey Mulcahey, who has been doing good work all winter at the southern tracks, will again be with the stable and will make a useful buy to have under contract. He rode some first-class races last season, and has

MAC'S COLTS BEATEN.

At the Brunswick alleys last night Mac's Colts were defeated by the Internationals by 67 pins. The scores were: Mac's Colts: MacDonald 137, 187, 139-503; McQuillan 149, 160, 179-488; Murray 128, 178, 118-422; Almas 111, 160, 157-425; Filgiano 184, 163, 161-508.

CRISPIN AND J. F. DAVIDSON.

Crispin, the champion speed skater of Canada, and John F. Davidson, will meet to-night at the Britannia rink in a mile race for $300 a side. As neither of the men has been beaten here, the contest will be a very spirited one. Both men are in good shape, and Crispin thinks that records will go by the board. The entries for the six-day grind that begins at the Britannia rink on March 30 continue to arrive, and the affair will be the biggest team contest of its kind ever held in this country. A number of speedy skaters from outside points have intimated their intention of competing.

Must Sell 13,000 More Tickets For Hospital Scheme

City Makes Grant of $3,500 to the Art School.

Miss Jeannette Lewis appeared before the members of the Finance Committee last evening, for the purpose of ascertaining what the aldermen intended doing in regard to Mayor Stewart and Chairman Billings, of the Hospital Board, continuing as trustees of the Sick Children's Hospital Fund.

Miss Lewis said she had raised $4,169.35 by the sale of tickets. Of that amount $2,274.61 was on deposit in the bank, and there is $1,789 outstanding in cheques. There then is about $216 due from the theatre on the 10 per cent. promised Miss Lewis on the first two weeks that the scheme was in operation.

At that time she received only 40 per cent, instead of the 50 per cent. basis on which she arranged to work later. His Worship stated that the time was now up for him and Mr. Billings to act as trustees, and he thought it was a question for the committee or the Council to decide whether they should continue. He did not think it would be fair to the other theatres to have the scheme go on with the sanction of the Council, thus leaving them out in the cold.

Ald. Farrar did not think it was a question for the Council to decide, but he recommended the appointment of Mr. Billings and himself, and said that he was the only one who wanted to block her scheme, and she did not think it was fair.

Ald. Wright could see no reason why the present trustees should not continue in office, and he moved that they act until further notice.

The committee agreed. Ald. Farrar brought the old sandpaper into the limelight again, by asking what was being done regarding the payment of the $400 by certain persons for private work done on the beach. It was decided to ask the Council to instruct the Fire and Water Committee to collect accounts from the people.

The Board of Control matter was brought before the committee again by Ald. Farrar, who wanted to know if the Solicitor was going to Toronto to advocate the passing of the bill. Mr. Waddell said he could not see how he would be able to appear before the Municipal Committee and advocate the passing of such a law, when the Council had thrown the matter out at one of its meetings. It was decided to recommend to the Council that the bill be supported and that Mr. Waddell go to Toronto for the purpose.

The following grants were made: Hamilton Art School, $3,500; Sons of England, $300 for the annual Lodge meeting during the second week in August; Army Medical Corps Band, $50; Hamilton Keenel Club, $30; Victorian Order of Nurses $50.

CATHOLIC AND PROTESTANT.

(London Catholic Record.) A Congregational minister of Hamilton has been throwing less light than confusion upon the difference between Catholicism and Protestantism. A comparison is difficult to be established by reason of the first principles being radically different, and likewise because in the latter case there is no type by which we may be guided.

If a well intentioned Catholic be asked his creed upon any religious question he will give a definite answer. If the witness be Protestant much will depend whether he be High Church, Low Church, Methodist, Presbyterian or some other sect. The Hamilton minister, for some reason or other, confuses the subjective apprehension or conviction with the truths to be believed. Whether Protestantism presents any advantages over Catholicism is beside the mark entirely. We readily admit that there are several advantages, so far as case of living is concerned, or temporal advancement and social encouragement. There is no searching examination of conscience, no insisting upon restitution before pardon be granted. There is no religious authority prescribing acts of religion, penance, or otherwise establishing laws for our conduct. The only power to be acknowledged is human respect and our own conscience. In answer to the former there is the "rejoice contentions," and in defence of the latter there is the throned of human frailty. We see a number of advantages in Protestantism which bespeak an earthly origin and betray an inexplicable attempt to widen a certain gate which upon the very high authority we are assured is always narrow and through which few can enter. The reasons why Rev. Mr. Unsworth thinks Protestantism is preferable to Catholicism are fourfold. We must protest that they are not reasons at all, for they mistake the Catholic case wilfully or not, we do not say, nor does it matter much. Men who make public utterances ought to be sure beforehand. The first reason given why Protestantism is preferable to Catholicism is because Protestantism "affirms that Christianity is an experience operating upon all men directly without a go-between." All the affirmation in the world would never make Christianity an experience. Still less does it operate upon all men directly, nor does it preach directly. What is any preacher to his congregation but a go-between frequently without jurisdiction and without authority? Very different is Mr. Unsworth from the go between contained in his insinuation. To speak of the sacraments as media between God and man—as necessarily conveying grace and admitting to the kingdom of Christ—is the system which our Lord established. To insinuate that these stand as separation walls between God and the soul is to misconceive and calumniate Catholicism. There should be some system by which Christ would unite Himself to the soul. The sacramental system is that which He chose, and which portrays Christ's infinite power, wisdom and goodness. It reaches the individual, it contains and distributes grace. And whilst God does not need ministers to effect His purpose, still through all time God has made use of ministers to execute His blessed will. Angels are His ministers and the Apostle speaks in the same terms as Himself; he is the ambassador of Christ and the dispenser of the mysteries of God. Order and ministrations there will always be, and God who can do all things by Himself, will be glorified afresh throughout the immortal Church by using as His instruments the creatures to whom He imparted His power. So was it that the eternal Son of God acted; He chose men whom He ordained and upon whom He bestowed His power of teaching, of sacrificing and of absolving and baptizing. He left them on the highways of pilgrimage, in the field of struggle—to win men from sin and to bring His own sacred personality more closely in contact with those whom He redeemed. The sacramental power is the continuance of the touch of Christ's hand. And the priestly power is as that of Him Who healed in Judea and at Jericho's gate. The second advantage claimed for Protestantism by the Rev. Mr. Unsworth is also unsatisfactory and inexact. "Protestant Christianity included in the Church all who had a fellowship with God. It believed in the Holy Catholic or universal Church while the Roman Catholic was exclusive and claimed that passports to heaven were given only at its headquarters." A positive contradiction is the most fitting answer to such discursive detraction. The third reason is that "Protestantism includes all truth and all new truth." What is all truth as contrasted with "all truth"? It leaves the door open, not to truth, that is not it. It closed the door to truth when the so-called reformers went out from the Church. Protestantism has opened the door to every wind of doctrine that blew from the four quarters. Protestantism, the gentleman also tells us, is not afraid of the modern spirit. Not at all; it has simply thrown up its hands—dropped its Bible for the plundering spirit of atheistic criticism, abandoned revelation and supernaturalism to the wolves, and given up its sacred remnant of faith to be torn to pieces by rationalism and scientific scepticism. Naturally enough Mr. Unsworth has a word to say about Modernism, not that he displays any knowledge of the subject, or that his word is more than the "hollow cry." He maintains that if the Modernists were dismissed the Roman Church "would have all the thinkers outside its fold." As long as he is around, there will be one outside the fold who will not think much of his. This is a climax. "Protestantism believes in the people. Roman Catholic worship is democratic, though the management of the Church is oligarchic. Protestantism trusted to the people. Democracy with all its mistakes was a thing of the past, and this is what the Protestant belief was based on." Mixing up belief and management, opinion and faith, applying one standard to his neighbor, another to his own household, as ignorant of Catholicity as he is prejudiced against it, he gives a few reasons which have no foundation, in fact, and from which no conclusion can be drawn unless it is that Protestant pulpits are used either to calumniate our Church or preach sensational subjects.

ROOSEVELT A USURPER. The President denounced in the House of Representatives.

Washington, March 26.—More shafts of sarcasm and invective were aimed at President Roosevelt in the House of Representatives to-day, in one of the most scathing arrangements of a public officer ever heard in that chamber. Mr. Beall, of Texas, charged the President with having been guilty of "a disgusting usurpation of power" not only toward the national Legislature, but the judiciary as well. Congress had, he said, abdicated to him its powers and the judiciary of the country felt the effect of his influence. God and the future alone knew, he declared, just what niche he was to occupy in the temple of his country.

CASE AGAINST G. T. R. FAILS. Prosecuted at Meaford for Running Grain Train on Sunday.

Meaford, March 26.—An action brought against the G. T. R. by the Lord's Day Alliance, represented by Rev. Dr. Campbell, charging the railway company with running a grain train on Sunday, December 15, 1907, was tried here before Mayor Horsley and Mr. J. J. Johnston, J. P. The railway company claimed that it was necessary to run trains on that date to keep their tracks clear, as a snowstorm was raging. Crown Attorney Armstrong of Owen Sound prosecuted, while W. Pace, of Meaford, appeared for the G. T. R.

The Magistrate could not come to an agreement to convict on the charge, which will no doubt be dropped, as Meaford, being a grain port, a certain amount of Sunday work is sometimes necessary.

GENERAL HORNE INSANE. Held Not Guilty of Death of Editor of Kansas City Post.

Kansas City, Mo., March 26.—Gen. Richard C. Horne was acquitted of the charge of murdering H. J. Groves, managing editor of The Kansas City Post, by a jury in the Criminal Court to-night. The verdict stated that Gen. Horne was insane when he shot Groves, and has not fully recovered, and recommended that Horne be committed to any asylum. The jury was out on eighteen hours.

Gen. Horne, on November 23, 1907, after he had been told that his services were no longer needed by the paper, shot and wounded O. D. Woodward, theatrical manager and President of The Kansas City Post, and killed H. J. Groves, the managing editor, in the editorial office of the paper.

SYSTEMATIC SAVING

Those who spend all they earn, seldom get on in the world. Temporary loss of employment and other reverses come to all from time to time, and some reserve money is vital to tide over these periods.

A Savings Bank account is the best—indeed, the only sure—means of providing against these uncertainties of life.

Every man and every woman should, in justice to themselves and those dependent on them, have a Savings Bank Account.

The Bank of Hamilton offers every possible assistance and encouragement to those who desire to lay aside and save a small portion of their weekly earnings.

$1.00 or more opens a Savings Account, and $1.00 or more, may be deposited each week, or as desired. No knowledge of procedure is necessary. There is no formality. No charge is made for opening Savings Accounts, and current bank interest is added to your savings every three months. Money may be withdrawn whenever required.

EDRADO'S CUNNING EXCUSE.

Black Hand Man Says He Was Only a Tool. Montreal, March 26.—Ive Edrado, the Italian accused of sending blackmailing letters to Senator and Mrs. Forget, was on trial to-day, and, though he pleaded not guilty, he made such damaging admissions and there was such a lot of evidence against him that the Judge immediately committed him for trial. On Monday next he will again come before the Enquete Court. He claims that the letter which he sent to Madame Forget was previously sent to him by mail. It was in a sealed envelope, and was inside another to him, directing him, under pain of an early death, to send the sealed envelope to Madame Forget and to deliver the money as soon as it was paid to him.

His story becomes weak with cross-examination. Edrado says that he does not know who it was that sent him the letter, as he has lost it, and cannot remember the name or the address. When asked how he intended to deliver the money, he received it, he shrugs his shoulders and says nothing.

CLUE TO BARTLETT MYSTERY. Police Have Detailed Description of One of Dead Man's Associates. London, March 26.—Mr. John T. Fuller and Mr. Ben. Parker, of Watford, former employers of the missing man, Henry Bartlett, have furnished the local police with information that may prove a means of solving the supposed murder mystery. The gentlemen named have given the officers of the law detailed descriptions of Bartlett's associates, one of whom is alleged to have slugged a companion at Watford and robbed him of considerable money. One of the party was seen in London about Dec. 1. Bartlett made the acquaintance of these men on the vessel while coming to Canada, and one of them answers the description of Alfred Brown.

Mr. Fuller had a letter written by Henry Bartlett. He compared the signature with that on the forged order, and had no hesitation in declaring the latter to be a forgery. Henry Bartlett's real signature was the same as on the pay sheet which he signed himself. He signed merely "H. Bartlett," not "Henry Bartlett," as was the case with the forged order. Bartlett's body was buried to-day in Mount Pleasant cemetery.

AMONG THE JEWS

News Notes About Them From All Over the World.

Israel Zangwill, in a recent speech, said: "This is the dilemma of the Jewish position. No undeveloped land could receive our emigration. No developed land would afford us autonomy." Isador Haas, California pioneer, miner and merchant, has been elected by the board of trustees of the little city of Grass Valley its Mayor. Grass Valley is an old mining town, with a romantic history, with which Mayor Haas has been identified almost from the very beginning.

While Rome, Italy, has elected a Jewish Mayor, Rome, Georgia, has followed in the footsteps of its big namesake and elected Mr. Isaac May as alderman. The most remarkable feature of this election is that Mr. May's name was placed on both opposing tickets, and was chosen unanimously. Mr. May takes an active interest in Jewish affairs of his city, and is a liberal contributor to Jewish and other charities.

Dr. Zamenhof will translate Proverbs into Esperanto for the North American Review. He has already made a translation of Ecclesiastes and will also translate the Psalms. A committee is now at work in making a translation of the entire Bible into Esperanto.

Arrangements have been made by which Jewish students at Harvard University and at the State University, Austin, Texas, will hear lectures on Judaism, by Writing from Jerusalem to a friend in New York. Adult students who make a tour of the United States last year, to study economic and social conditions, say: "I know the energy and the creative power of your people. But when I see what is being done here I must reserve a fraction of enthusiasm for the people of Jerusalem. They are not gassed on by competition, and their surroundings make for innocence and stagnation. Nevertheless, a spirit of progress has developed which commands respect. If you had here you would know what a new and original Jerusalem meant, and you would stand against, as I did, when I was told that two hundred had been expelled in the last three months. As a result the improvements have been still more extensive. An art school under the direction of Boris Scott, who was at the head of the Bulgarian Academy of Fine Arts at Sofia, is flourishing, and carpet and rug weaving, carving, modeling and metal working are taught to boys and girls who are of the same class as the children who years ago were taught to beg from the tourists. Jerusalem is showing off its gate of antiquity."

The municipality of Liverpool has accepted with gratitude the offer of Nathan Straus, of New York, to furnish the city with pasteurizing plants for the preparation of milk for infants. It is not known what the decision of the Dublin City Council will be with reference to a similar offer made to Dublin by Mr. Straus, through Mr. Richard Croker, Mr. Croker, in communicating the proposal, described Mr. Straus as one of the greatest philanthropists in America.

Owing to the failure of the Board of directors of the Michael Reese Hospital, of Chicago, to establish a kosher kitchen, the orthodox Jews of that city contemplate building a hospital where the dietary laws may be observed.

Ely Jacques Kahn, son of Jacques Kahn, of New York, has been admitted to the Paris Beaux Arts, standing third among the six hundred competitors, most of whom were Frenchmen. Mr. Kahn graduated from Columbia University in 1901.

Gustav Brown, a baker, of 99 Thirtieth Street, New York, learning that some of his customers had neglected their orders because of destitution, hired a vacant store, where he dispenses the brown loaves to the hungry ones. The first Sunday a bread line more than a block long made its way slowly in and out of the store from noon until midnight.

To find homes amid the sunny lands of Louisiana for a hundred thousand Jews now eking out an existence in the slums of New York was the mission of a representative of the B'nai B'rith of the metropolis, who has just completed a visit in New Orleans and at several other points in the State. A considerable sum has already been expended toward relieving the congestion on the New York East Side. The first colony in Louisiana will be established on a plantation three miles north of Hammond. The tract of land comprises a thousand acres, and is offered at ten dollars an acre.

The cure for the blues—Cascarets. A million boxes go out every month to carry a world of sunshine. Are you getting your share?

Cascarets act as a bowel tonic, not as an irritant. They are vegetable. Their action is natural. Their effect is the same as the effect of some foods. They are gentle; no griping. They are pleasant; no greading. They are convenient; no waiting. One old way was castor oil. The effect was to grease the bowels, and for a single day. Oil never causes the bowel muscles to act. Other ways were pills, salts and cathartics. The effect was the same as pepper has in the nostrils. They flooded the bowels with fluid. Those fluids were digestive juices. And the waste today means a lack tomorrow. We know that the method was wrong. That the after-effects only weakened the bowels. But we had no gentle laxatives in the old days. So we waited as long as we could, then took a big dose of physic. The method today is to take one Cascaret at a time—just as soon as you need it. Then the bowels are always clean. Cascarets are candy tablets. They are sold by all druggists, but never in bulk. Be sure you get the genuine, with CCC on every tablet. The price is 50c, 25c and Ten Cents per Box.

Yet through the darkest dregs of dimmest dross, Dogged determination drives its way, Diligence demands to diligence at last, Deliberation dispels dispute, Dismay is dashed with draughts of dear de-light, Deft dainty dances, and delicious dreams! And then he went to heaven, But to stay he didn't care; If kicked because he said that some Non-union men were there. He went down to the other place And there produced his card; Then Satan threw an extra face And studied good and hard. And Detective Huckle Started the Subscription List.
Good Meeting Held In Wentworth Church.

The banquet held last evening in Wentworth Baptist Church for the advancement of the Laymen's Missionary movement...

While the good things were being enjoyed Messrs. G. Fraser, Haldane, Ma'n, C. Russell and E. Kempton supplied music.

The chairman, Mr. D. Hodd, in his address expressed his pleasure at being present at a gathering for the purpose of interesting men and getting them to take hold of the great Laymen's movement for the evangelization of the world.

Mr. Hodd, after reading a letter from Rev. D. Quarrington, wishing them success with the meeting, called on Mr. C. J. Bodley, of Toronto, for his address on the Laymen's movement and the progress it has been making.

Mr. Bodley said he hoped all were in the family of Jesus Christ and that the meeting would be very liberal in its attitude and in a business-like way he presented the laymen's movement to the men present.

A large proportion of the church, who are not giving to missions, the young people had a good opportunity to sacrifice for the advancement of Christ's cause.

Lady Grizel Hamilton, who, with her husband, the master of Belhaven, has been spending some months in the Trans-Tana territory, British East Africa, has returned to this country.

Her big game includes a hippopotamus, a leopard, a rhinoceros and Cape buffalo, this being the first occasion as far as is known, on which a woman has shot the last-named animal.

Despite all warning, Lady Grizel went hunting alone one morning along the Ticker river. Shortly after she espied the buffalo, a large and formidable water-buck, and after trailing him some distance, was fortunate enough to get a shot at him.

Lady Grizel and her husband were enabled to visit some hitherto unknown country and among the natives who, for the first time, saw a white woman, the master of Belhaven and Lady Grizel had many remarkable experiences.

Their stay in Africa, which lasted for six months, was replete with interest, which is largely added to by the fact that a remarkable collection of pictures, perhaps some of the finest of this character received in this country, were taken by the master of Belhaven.

YOUNG PLUNGERS WHO HAVE WON IN THE WALL STREET WHIRL.

(New York Herald.)

Einar Windstrom, Texas cotton buyer, who has taken $500,000 out of the market recently, has had many predecessors in their profitable pursuit of wringing a stream of fortune out of the financial panic.

A consideration of the movements and methods of market plungers is always a more or less absorbing study, and when the successful battler against the street or the pit is of tender years, as has been the case on a number of occasions, the achievements attain an added glamor.

Another plunger came into his own last summer, when the "dollar what" movement came in with an electrifying rush. "Eddie" Bagley, the "messenger boy broker," who has been trading the earth only a bare quarter of a century, pocketed $125,000 in profits, and seldom has there been a more popular victory.

Last November saw the conclusion of a bear campaign conducted so quietly by Mr. Livermore that few of even the best informed men in the financial district were aware of the identity of the promoter.

Seven years ago he came to this city, and since then has been operating slowly but surely, waiting for the big chance. This he thought he saw last November, and he backed his judgment in deals that meant millions as calmly and coolly as he had placed his few dollars in the bucket shops of Boston.

ways and the factories, with more smoke and still more—all of the densest quality. As manufacturing towns have great interest in him, Dr. Shadwell makes allowance for their grime, in measure, but Montreal, in his opinion, passes all measure.

When he comes to the vital statistics of our city, Dr. Shadwell is inclined to put the figure of our population greatly in excess of the census returns.

Dollar wheat, by the way, was responsible for the rise in fortune of a number of sanguine operators. Charles W. Partridge, part owner of Hillman's Chicago store and father of the Princess Engage, has a determined bull and sent his money into the pit with all the confidence in the world that it would be returned to him with substantial interest.

The most sensationally successful bear operations conducted by one man of recent years have been those of J. Brandt Walker, who, after selling Union Pacific, Reading, Steel, Copper and Canadian Pacific for eight months, found himself last October possessed of the cheerless profit of about $5,000,000.

Not so successful as were the plunges made by the celebrities, Arthur E. Apple, sensational attempter of the market, by breaking the market on the Philadelphia Exchange.

FRUIT MEN AT BURLINGTON.

SUCCESSFUL INSTITUTE MEETING HELD THERE YESTERDAY.

Messrs. Johnson, of Simcoe, Emory of Alderhot, and McCalla, of St. Catharines the Principal Speakers.

Two sessions of the Fruit Institute were held at Burlington on Thursday, March 26. There was a large attendance of fruit and vegetable growers to hear Messrs. Johnson, of Simcoe, and Mr. McCalla, of St. Catharines.

When he comes to the vital statistics of our city, Dr. Shadwell is inclined to put the figure of our population greatly in excess of the census returns.

Mr. Emory, of Burlington, next gave a short address on strawberries. On them he spoke of a narrow row, 3 1/2 ft. by 2 1/2 ft. Each parent plant should be allowed to set 2 plants, keep all the others out.

Mr. Johnson spoke on "Orchard Management." Growers in Ontario have been very negligent in taking care of their apple orchards.

The remainder of Dr. Shadwell's letter has to do with some of our manufacturing establishments. The C. P. R. works have spacious, well-built shops.

Mr. Johnson then took up strawberry culture. He likes it to follow a well manured corn crop. Manure should be applied in the fall and in the spring.

CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION.

Too Much Political Pull and Patronage—Militia and Marine Departments.

Ottawa, March 26.—The report of the Royal Commission, appointed last spring to investigate the conditions of the civil service of Canada, presented to Parliament this afternoon, hit straight out, right and left, at a multitude of radical defects which the commissioners find in connection with the whole system of the public service of the Dominion.

Only made on the report of the Deputy Minister. It is recommended that the office of a permanent messenger should be restored.

It is pointed out that the estimates for the fiscal year 1906 contain over fifty votes, to which were added the saving clause "notwithstanding any thing to the contrary in the civil service act."

The practice in postoffices of employing letter-carriers to do clerks' work is condemned.

On the subject of employment of women in the department, the report says: "The commissioners have to draw attention to another set of circumstances which has cropped up during the last few years, and that is the great reluctance of women appointed to succeed in the public service."

ment. Large amounts have been spent in several places in the Dominion for supplies, bought from those enjoying political patronage at what may be called retail rates.

British System Recommended. In Great Britain the estimates are accompanied by memoranda and the Secretary of the Treasury explains all the differences.

Purchase of Stores. The purchase of stores was then taken up. The report says by the evidence of several officials who are concerned in the purchase of stores it has been conclusively shown that large amounts of money are paid over each year to merchants whose names are on the patronage list in several localities.

Employment of Women. On the subject of employment of women in the department, the report says: "The commissioners have to draw attention to another set of circumstances which has cropped up during the last few years, and that is the great reluctance of women appointed to succeed in the public service."

The Patronage Evil. Another paragraph says: In the matter of promotions the same patronage evil is apparent.

Whole Service Underpaid. On the subject of salaries, the commissioners state in part: "As was the case in 1892, when the commission reported that the men of the higher grades of the public service are paid less in proportion to the value of their work than they would have received had they been employed by railways, banks or other large industrial corporations."

The Militia Department. The Department of Militia and Defence also comes in for much severe criticism.

Some Not Amenable to Discipline. Without going so far as to say that the official who has been appointed through political influence and whose friends are in power is not amenable to discipline, the commissioners have found in certain instances that officials appointed by virtue of political patronage and remaining under its aegis have taken to themselves the idea that their services are altogether beyond the control of the higher officials.

Efficiency of the Service. Dealing with the question of the efficiency and fidelity of the service, the commissioners raise the issue as to how far the departments are efficient in looking after the best interests of the Dominion, as respects their several expenditures.

Extravagant Management. In conclusion, the commissioners point out the large growth of expenditure, the increase of the permanent staff, and the fact that in addition to about 220, that in addition to the general system of high pay favored men in the militia service draw pensions not only for themselves, but for their wives and children, that the staff is sufficient for a corps of 100,000 men, and that the permanent corps is under 3,000 men, that the desertions have been one in three, that about 40,000 militia are trained in the annual camps, that rural battalions have no drill except at these annual camps, that it is arguable whether the city corps are as efficient as they were some years ago, while 40,000 men come out for drill yearly, compared with a population of over 1,000,000 men in Canada between the ages of 20 and 40, the proportion seems small.

COMMISSION IS MISTAKEN.

HON. MR. BRODEUR DEFENDS HIS DEPARTMENT.

Ottawa, March 26.—The presentation to the House this afternoon of the report of the Civil Service Commission was the primary cause of an unexpected and interesting discussion.

Hon. Mr. Brodeur's statement was as follows: "In the report which I desire to make a brief statement of the general tenor of the report will be no doubt discussed in due course, and I have no wish to anticipate such discussion."

Mr. Brodeur's statement was as follows: "In the report which I desire to make a brief statement of the general tenor of the report will be no doubt discussed in due course, and I have no wish to anticipate such discussion."

Mr. Bennett corrected. Mr. Brodeur asked if there was anything in the report as to padding lists in connection with material paid for and not delivered at St. Sorel.

Mr. Brodeur replied that the Civil Service Commission's report contained no mention of it.

Mr. Taylor's questions. Mr. Taylor wanted to know what was the cost of the Civil Service Commission report, whether the commissioners had been paid, and if the Minister who disagreed with this report, would vote with the Opposition that the report be not received.

Commissioners Were Mistaken. "Anthracite coal in Ottawa costs from $7.25 to $7.25, and the regular price at Prescott is $7 per ton.

made into the payments made since the date of this contract, and the prices which have been paid are those mentioned in the contract.

Another Little Error.

"I will call the attention of the House to another sample of the manner in which the two commissioners have supported their statements.

Mr. Borden's view. Mr. Borden regarded it as a somewhat extraordinary course for a member of the Government to be put up to attack the report of a commission appointed by that Government.

Mr. Bennett corrected. Mr. Brodeur asked if there was anything in the report as to padding lists in connection with material paid for and not delivered at St. Sorel.

LABOR HAS DUTIES AS WELL AS "RIGHTS."

(President Stickney, of the Chicago Great Western, in Leslie's Weekly.) The fact appears to be that, following the general trend of economic discussion which has been agitating the public mind, the thoughts of railroad employees for several years have been centred to such an extent upon their so-called "rights" that they have had no thoughts left over to bestow upon their duties.

A PLEA FOR THE BOYS

There was discord at Henderson's house, Monday night, As Willie—come in from the street— To the mother's tired gaze, as she scanned his attire, Brought his trousers—but missed the seat.

The child told the story with many a halt, And listened with heart full of dread, To his parent's stern verdict—"No supper to-night!"

Outside in the sitting room, quiet and still, The father discussed with his wife, In a pessimist key, with ne'er a bright view, The prospect of Willie in life.

He pictured a vision—a gallows, perhaps— Each vision more black than the last, For the lad who would thus his kind parents annoy, And forever their happiness bias,

But even in slumber his visions remained, Disturbing his nocturnal rest, And a mischievous boy, full of spirit and fun, Was standing right there on his chest—

This urchin was livelier far than young Will, Tho' in many respects much the same, He looked like him, too, and queerer than all, He answered to just the same name,

Then up from his pillow and to the next room, He tiptoed in silence and shame, And over the boy with the tear-spattered cheeks He knelt in profession of blame,

Ye fathers with business worries and cares, Engrossing each hour of the day, When pranks of your children your patience annoy, Remember your own hours of play,

We make Boys' Clothes that will wear out—sometimes—but we don't think there is a company in Canada that gives the same care and thought to the selection of materials as we do, and never have we had such an assortment of models and new fabrics as is represented in our stock this week.
