NEWS OF THE WAR.

THE RUSSIAN DEFEAT AT EUPATORIA.

(From the Daily News Correspondent.)

About half-an hour before daybreak this morning I was roused from a sound and comfortable sleep by the clang of arms, the heavy tread of marching men, going at double quick-time, words of command yelled, rather than shouted; and on listening more attentively, the dull, heavy roar of the cannon fell on my ear. Upon going out, I found the streets crowded with troops, all hurrying to the point of attack,—officers tearing at a mad gallop over the frozen mud, and the steamers in the harbour getting up their steam with all possible haste.

When I reached the entrenchment, a furious cannonade was going on to the right, at an outwork thrown forward a short distance on the plain, and almost surrounded by diminutive windmills; for four or five minutes, nothing could be heard but the rapid and tumultuous barking of the field artillery, and then the heavy pieces broke in with a roar which drowned all other sounds. The ground surrounding Eupatoria is a vast sandy plain, broken now and then by hillocks, and close to the entrenchments, by two or three small ravines. To the extreme right there is a large salt lake, which completely protects it on that side, and on the left, an eminence of no great elevation runs away in a north-westerly direction till lost in the distance. Upon the summit of this were two large masses of Russian cavalry, lancers and dragons, drawn up in squares, and further on to the right were huge columns of infantry, some displayed on the slope; but larger numbers still, I suspect, were behind the hill, the glittering of their bayonets, when the sun rose, being distinctly visible. In front of these, in a long line, were at least seventy guns, about a third of which were pouring a torrent of shot upon the Turkish outwork and the adjacent portions of the entrenchment in the rear, the fire being vigorously returned, not only from the point of attack, but from all the redoubts on the left and centre of the Turkish lines. Anything more picturesque than the flash and smoke of the guns, before the day broke clearly, can hardly be imagined; but when the sun broke through the clouds, and revealed clearly the enormous masses of artillery and infantry that crowned the eminence and lined the slope, I confess—and there were many who partook of my fears—that I could not contemplate the result, without considerable apprehension, above all when I remembered, that the only means of retreat open, in case of reverse, was the Black Sea, which roared and foamed in our rear with considerable violence. The cannonade lasted in this way, without any striking result on either side till nearly eight o'clock, when the Russians brought down another battery of 8 pieces at full gallop, and taking up a position within 800 yards of the outwork, (the garrison of which, though the works were still unfinished, had defended itself with unshaken courage,) opened a furious enfilading fire. To draw off a portion of this, a redoubt—the position occupied by the regiment of Colonel Ogilby—opened its fire, from one gun, and drew on it instantly a succession of discharges from four pieces out of the eight.
Happily, though in one or two instances, they got the range very fairly, and knocked clay off the top of the ramparts in the men's faces, the majority of the shots went very high, and after whizzing over some tents, fell in amongst some cavalry on the heights in the centre of the position, or dropped right into the sea, without hurting any one. This lasted about an hour, during the whole of which the cannonade continued towards the outwork and on the extreme right with the same violence as ever, and now became mingled with a sharp rattle of musketry, which inspired some apprehension for those parts of the field from this point not visible. In the early part of the day, I had planted myself in the redoubt held by Colonel Ogilby's regiment, but as soon as it opened fire, it became untenable for lookers-on, partly on account of the smoke, and the impossibility of remaining upright, without making one's person a target for such portions of the Russian artillery as might think it a suitable point of aim. On going higher up along the entrenchment, I witnessed some splendid practice from the Valorous steamer in the harbour, which threw shells with great precision across the mounds of sand on the sea shore, and amongst the cavalry on the left, causing them to shift their position several times, till they got fairly out of range. Throughout, the Turkish artillery acquitted itself remarkably well; after every shot, we could see the enemy's horses rolling over, or flinging off riderless across the field. Their artillery must certainly have suffered severely, as was testified by the number of dead horses, and fragments of gun-carriages found afterwards. About ten o'clock, a column composed of the Azovski regiment was pushed forward to the assault on the extreme right, where they had less to fear from the fire of the artillery, through a large graveyard. What induced them to choose such a spot as this for the attack, it is hard to imagine, as the inequalities of the ground must have thrown them more or less into disorder from the first moment. A few minutes previously, the Russians had sent a rocket-party ashore, who landed on the extreme right of the town, and coming round amongst the windmills, opened their fire on the Russians, just as the head of the column issued from the burying ground and appeared on the glacis, and at the same moment the musketry commenced from the entrenchment. The column pushed on to a distance of about twenty yards from the ditch, but there gave way and fell into disorder. Selim Pacha now made a sortie with a brigade of Egyptians, and charged them with the bayonet; but in the act of leading his men on, received a musket-ball through his body, and fell dead. Ismail Bey was also wounded on the same occasion. The Russians now fell into disorder, gave way, and retired, leaving the graveyard strewed with their dead. The artillery limbered up, and went off, firing occasional shots till it passed the brow of the hill. The cavalry preceded it at a canter, but when on the other side the whole retreated in the most beautiful order, to a distance of about two miles, where they bivouacked on the plain. Immediately after the cessation of the firing, I walked down to the outwork, and as every yard along the inside of the inner entrenchment found traces of the conflict, in the shape of littered houses, dead horses, and here and there wounded or dead men. These were, however, the natural consequences of four hours' cannonading, and I passed them without bestowing much attention on them, till I was stopped in a narrow passage between the parapet and a ruined wall, by two soldiers marching abreast, with a very excited triumphant air, and each carrying in his hand, what at first I took to be a pig's head, but which, on nearer approach, I found to be the head of a Russian, who had fallen in unfortunate Russia who had fallen in the graveyard; one, from the long hair, evidently that of a Greek volunteer; the other the closely cropped skull of a soldier of the line—both gory and disfigured, and leaving bloody traces on the ground over which they passed. I had scarce recovered from my surprise and horror, when I met two other savages bearing aloft on the points of their bayonets two other trophies of a similar nature. They had hardly passed me, however, when they were stopped by the news that their two confederates, who had preceded them, on laying their hideous spoils at the feet of Omar Pacha, instead, as they expected, of being patted on the back, and receiving a good baksheesh, were instantly arrested, and marched off to prison. The two last instantly lost their enthusiasm, dropped their bayonets, and went back, with a very downcast air, all the way looking as if they wished to rid themselves of their burden without exhibiting their fears or their weakness to their comrades. The scene in the interior of the outwork was terrific.

Men lay on every side gashed and torn by those frightful wounds which round-shot invariably inflict.
Here a gory trunk, looking as if the head had been wrenched from the shoulders by the hand of a giant; there an artilleryman, lying across a splinter of his own gun-carriage—the splintered bones of his thighs protruding from the flesh; another cut in two as if by a knife, and his body doubled up like a strip of brown paper. The artillery horses and their drivers were stationed amongst the windmills which stand in thick clusters between the outwork and the fortifications of the interior, and as the whole of this space was swept for nearly two hours by the fire of the battery which was last brought up, the havoc was dreadful. Nearly 80 artillery horses were killed on a small patch of ground, some by the shot, others by the splinters of wood and stone, which flew in showers from the mills at every discharge, and the soil was strewed with their blood and entrails. I saw the horses of one gun knocked into one indiscriminate mass, as if a mighty force had squeezed them up like so much butter. The mills presented a most ludicrous spectacle; some had one arm left; others two; and some were tumbled into a mass of ruins, from which a wheel or a wing stuck up in the air, as if protesting against the outrage.
None of all these things, however, attracted much attention from the defenders of the position. All were talking loudly, some few laughing; artillerymen taking the harness off the dead horses, and making repairs on the damaged guns; some throwing up fresh clay, where the works had suffered; others covering off the wounded in blankets, many of the wounded lying on the ground, others reverentially covering the dead with the skirts of their coats, and amidst a hum and buzz of voices, which rose merrily and cheerfully upon the morning air, towards the sunny sky, as if it were the close of a fight, and no grim evidences of a bloody struggle lay on every yard of the soil. Omar Pacha rode round soon after, with a large staff and most of the European officers who were in the place, and in his train, I went down to the graveyard. The firing had certainly not ceased twenty minutes, and yet at least 2,000 Tartars had rushed out of the town, and stripped and plundered the dead Russians. When Omar Pacha reached the spot, he drove them all away, but not before every one of the bodies was stark naked. The greater number seemed very young men, some mere boys; all wore an expression of perfect repose; no straining or distortion was visible either in the features or the limbs; they lay like men who were weary and slept. Many were half buried and crushed under the tombstones, which the round-shot and the rockets had hurled from their places, and sent flying in pieces in all directions. Many of the Russians had still a shred of a shirt or an old pair of drawers clinging to their mangled remains, and it would have required no great stretch of imagination, to have supposed them the peaceable tenants of the tombs around, who had risen to ask the cause of the wild tumult which ranged above their bodies. In all 200 bodies were collected and buried by the Turks. As the artillery must have carried off a large portion of theirs, as is usually the case, I think the Russian loss may be fairly estimated at 300 killed and 700 wounded. The Turks have lost 80 killed and 200 wounded. These accounts both exceed my rough guess, given in a telegraphic despatch immediately after the action. The damage done to the fortifications was very trifling, and was repaired in three or four hours. The troops are now working night and day in strengthening the position, and I think no fears whatever, considering the large force which garrisoned it, and notwithstanding the enormous masses of artillery with which the Russians threaten it, need be entertained as to its safety. The whole of Liprandi's division is supposed to be here. They have an overwhelming force of cavalry all round the town, and they are right, for no finer cavalry ground, I suppose, exists in the world. The whole country from this to Peretok is one immense plain, smooth as a bowling green. The Russians have retired nearly two leagues hence. The main guard of their cavalry is, however, still in the plain, below the town. The videttes are less numerous than before the attack. It is considered not improbable, that their next attempt will be made in the night. I omitted to mention, that seven of the inhabitants of the town were killed and twenty wounded in the affair of the 17th. The want of surgeons was greatly felt. The Tartars have eaten or scalded all the dead horses of both parties. For the last two days, they have been feasting and making merry. This need excite neither pity nor surprise, as horse-flesh, more majorem, is their usual food, even in their villages.

GRAND COUP CONTEMPLATED BY THE EMPEROR NAPOLEON. We copy the following from the New Orleans Picayune of Feb'y 21st. As to the correctness of the facts stated, future events can only afford the proof: We give the following extraordinary intelligence to our readers. We are not permitted to name our authority. It will suffice to say, that by the last mails, a letter was received from Paris by an individual in this city. We have been permitted to publish a translation of a portion of this correspondence. "The Emperor has seen all the calamities and reverses of Sebastopol ever since the allied army sat down before the city. St. Arnaud was a trooper (pandour)—he might have taken the place by a charge of cavalry at the first outset, but failing that, a siege became necessary. Neither Raglan nor Canrobert were equal to their position, and Louis Napoleon knew it. He did not want Sebastopol to be taken this winter. He knew that short of a butchery, of which the history of war affords no parallel, the place could not be carried. He determined, that Sebastopol should subserve a mighty political purpose. "For this, he has been delaying supplies while he has concentrated his forces in France. An overwhelming army is gathering on the Prussian frontier. At Marsailles, Toulon, and Algiers, a flotilla, to be reinforced by English vessels, will be ready to sail on March 15. On the arrival of this armada in the Crimea, the Emperor will leave Paris and appear in person before Sebastopol. A coup de main, upon a gigantic scale, will be attempted. Sebastopol will fall. The elated army, flushed with the feat, will sweep over the Crimea and occupy the Isthmus of Perekop. After a campaign which will endure a fortnight, Louis Napoleon will return to Paris, where the suddenness of his departure and promptness of his return will find all conspiracies unprepared for development, and where the glory of his victory will scatter all treason to the winds. "Such is the campaign contemplated by Louis Napoleon. Be assured, that if Providence does not interfere, it will take place as I have said. Collaterally with the departure of the Emperor for the East, the French army on the Prussian frontier will operate upon Rhenish Prussia. A note will be sent to the King of Prussia, demanding free passage for the French troops through his dominions, which, if refused, will advance to the Rhine."

If the above prove correct, Louis Napoleon has outplayed the whole world. We have been creating a monster in Sebastopol, and been ending it with terrors, so as to facilitate the feat in contemplation by the Emperor, of achieving a great Russian victory, where his uncle encountered his most disastrous defeat. The Edinburgh Review is just fifty years old; the Quarterly, forty-four; the New Monthly Magazine, thirty-three; Blackwood, thirty-eight; and Fraser, twenty-four.

BRITISH RECRUITING IN NEW YORK.

If over a city was filled with "the cankers of a calm world and a long peace;" if ever city stood in need of phlebotomy and depletion, that city is New York. We are therefore rejoiced to learn, that Queen Victoria, in her hour of need, in her lack of food for powder on the shores of the Black Sea, has bestowed herself of her stray subjects and liegemen who have been subsisting on the doles of public and private charity in the Empire city of the Western World, during the past winter. The Know Nothings will certainly thank her for reclaiming her subjects in the streets of New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and the other American centres of population. It seems that Mr. Angus McDonald, the British recruiting agent in New York, is meeting with abundant success in his endeavours to fill the exhausted ranks of his sovereign's armies on this side of the water. Needy Rhinelanders, Patlanders and expatriated John Bulls, who fondly imagined, that they had fore sworn their allegiance to the Imperial Lady of the Isles, forever and aye, will shortly find themselves once more under the folds of the banner of St. George.

Some of the New York journals, with decided Russian proclivities, are somewhat indignant at the success which the British recruiting sergeant is meeting with, in their city, and are calling upon Mr. District Attorney McKoon to look to it, that the neutrality laws are not violated; but it seems, that Mr. Angus McDonald is conducting his business in such a manner, as to dodge these laws completely. And if he should make himself obnoxious to their penalties, we do not think, that anybody but a maniacal admirer of Russian Czarism would lodge a complaint against him, for, all things considered, his errand to New York is a merciful one, in view of the pinched bellies and forced idleness and misery, which have been the lot of hosts of the laborless poor of that city for months past. It seems that the Crimean fever has not attacked the ex-European population of New York alone. Native American Boverlydom has been seized. "Mose" would feign find vent for his pugnacity in a skirmish with the Russians round Sevastopol. The cool-blooded and dare-d—l audacity of "Mose" and his unconquerable propensity to disgrace the profiles of his neighbours, and to draw their claret, which only make a ruffian and outlaw of him at home, which only lead to Sand-wich Hall tragedies in Gotham, would win him an abundant harvest of laurels, and make a hero of him on the shores of the Black Sea. What a field Sergeant McDonald's offer opens to discontented, restless and disappointed filibusteros and ex-Mexican officers and soldiers, who have been forced to give up the idea of ravishing the Queen of the Antilles from its Castilian proprietors. An opportunity is now afforded them to forget their disappointments, and signalize themselves on an arena which is the cynosure of all eyes, the focus and centre of attraction for the fixed gaze of the world.

"IF IT DOES?"

A recent number of the organ of the "United Kingdom Alliance," published at Manchester, contains an interesting and forcible letter from the Rev. Henry Gale, a minister of the Church of England, residing near Hlminster. Mr. Gale, by a series of brief propositions, places the wickedness of the liquor traffic, and the consequences legitimately flowing from it, in a light so intensely vivid, that we see not, how it can fail to flash conviction into every mind. We transfer a portion of his letter to our columns, and in doing so, ask for it the earnest consideration of all Christian ministers, especially of those whose ecclesiastical connections will naturally induce them to sympathize with the "Establishment," of which Mr. Gale is a member. Says he: "If the drunkard's drink runs away with resources that should be used in the distribution of the Scriptures, the advancement of education, and the elevation of the masses of society, AS IT DOES—IF it obscures the intellect and perverts the judgement, causing men to despise and reject the best gift of the Almighty, a Saviour to redeem them from their sins, and to give them light, peace and joy, AS IT DOES—IF it not only hinders and obstructs the accession of new members to the visible church of Christ, but steals in and robs that church of members already there, AS IT DOES—IF it produces nine-tenths of the cognizable (et ergo, a large proportion of the, at present, unrevealed and secret) crimes of the land, AS IT UNDOUBTEDLY DOES—IF, in short, it does all the men for the duties and true pleasures of life, it does, and prevents their preparation for death and judgement, as it does—If it sends our brethren hourly into the presence of our great and holy God and Father, rebels against His authority, unsubdued to His will, sparing His proffered mercy, courting, as it were, the miseries of an everlasting hell—what duty so incumbent upon the ministers of the Gospel, as the coming out, and being separate from, and teaching not, the unclean thing! And, oh! what fearful responsibility upon the heads of those ministers who neglect such imperious, such overwhelming duty!"

At Pekin, when a newspaper publishes any false intelligence, the possibility of its repetition is removed by the removal of the publisher's head! What a sad thing it would be for some of our contemporaries if such were the case here.

REV. MR. FITZGERALD'S LECTURE ON EDUCATION.

That we have not noticed the delivery of this lecture at an earlier period, must not be attributed to any want of respect for the Rev. Gentleman, nor a due appreciation of the importance of the subject.

Mr. Stark, in giving his account of the nature and aim of the moral and normal training-schools, the adoption of which, with its costly apparatus, of platforms and play-grounds, is to make Prince Edward Island "a model and example" to surrounding provinces, omitted to state that the end and aim of Mr. Stow's method—the one professed by Mr. Stark—is not only to have the bible read and expounded every morning, but that moral training means bible training, and that the bible must not only be read, but taught, in the normal schools and colleges, under the system in force at Glasgow. It was to supply this omission that Mr. Fitzgerald came forward, and frankly stated that, in his opinion, and in that of several very eminent men, whose names were mentioned and sentiments quoted in the course of the evening, no system of education could be pronounced perfect, no code of morals pure, which was not based on the principles of christianity; and that, in order to produce the religious and moral effect which should be the aim of every system of education, it is essentially necessary that the bible, the whole bible, be adopted in the schools as a class book. That the maxims of christianity are the only safe basis on which to erect a permanent super-structure of morality, is a truth which no one will ever pretend to impugn; and that these maxims are to be sought for in the bible only, every class of christians readily admit. The second part of Mr. Fitzgerald's proposition will not meet with such universal concurrence, and this the Rev. Lecturer candidly admitted. We have ever deprecated the introduction of discussions on topics of religious differences, whether of faith or practice, into the columns of a newspaper; they seldom, if ever, produce conviction; and they never fail to aggravate that worst of all species of animosity, religious rancour. In this Island, two-fifths, at the least, of its inhabitants profess the Roman Catholic Faith, and it must, we think, appear obvious that any system of education which is to be sustained at the expense of all, and under which all are to be taught alike, must, in order to be beneficial, meet with general approbation; and here it is that the difficulty begins. It is not that the Scriptures are not the rule of faith common to both parties, but because they cannot agree which version of these scriptures shall be the one from which the rule shall be drawn, that makes the difference. That there is no very irreconcilable difference between these versions is, the writer of this thinks, evident, for if there were, the Apostle's Creed, the symbolum or universal watchword of christianity, would not have been common to both parties, and which every community proves that the essential doctrine is the same in both.

"Sed non nostrum tantas componere lites," and we are not going to offend against our own rule.

There is a third class, however, which includes both parties, and is, we think, daily gaining ground; the object of which is to give as a class book, one containing extracts from the Old and New Testaments, concerning which there is no dispute, and which it is essentially requisite that every christian should be acquainted with, thus inculcating in the tender mind, a knowledge of the general principles of the christian religion in the public school, leaving the peculiar doctrinal points to be taught in the private families, or the respective Sunday Schools of the different denominations. The temperate language of the lecture was such, as obtained for it universal applause, as well from those who were of the Rev. Lecturer's faith, as from those who differed from him. We shall, however, when Mr. Stark's Normal School is in operation, discover the means by which these differences are to be reconciled and difficulties overcome. The model teachers to be turned out of his manufactory, will, no doubt, be capable of conducting the public schools of the Island on such a system as shall ensure the approbation of all parties. We are curious as to what will be the result.

Holloway's Pills, the most celebrated Remedy in the World for the cure of diseases of the Liver and Stomach.—Edmund Alga, of Niagara, was for the period of nineteen years a complete misery to himself and a burden to his friends; he suffered so severely and continuously from liver complaint, and a disorder connected with his bed, the doctors did him no good, and he was left off consulting them. Nine weeks he continued using Holloway's Pills, and his bowels last week at the store of Professor Holloway, to acknowledge most gratefully, that he was quite cured. Professor Holloway hopes that the thousand others who have been benefited will now come forward.

TO THE EDITOR OF HASZARD'S GAZETTE.

Sir: The foregoing Letter was written for the Advertiser some six weeks ago, promised to be published, retained for nearly four weeks in his possession and then returned; if you deem it worthy a place in your columns you will oblige, Sir, yours, G. H. H. H.

April 3, 1856.

After years of anxious perseverance, of undeviating pursuit towards the desired object of their wishes—after the disappointments, the obloquy and sufferings, of those who earnestly advocated the cause of the people, by seeking the introduction of a Court of Escheat—after having been disappointed by excellent promises, brow-beaten by the hirelings of the proprietary faction, their delegate repulsed from the Colonial office, and themselves obliged to yield their sturdy opinions up to the force of arms, the people in their forty-eight and forty-nine, with undeviating consistency and unwavering pursuit, again resumed their opposition to the proprietary rule, and returned a majority to the Assembly of 1850, who returned the late, and obtained the present system of governing, and who, by the desertion of the land question, have aroused against them the ire of their own supporters. Sir, the people to the Eastward are becoming alive too, and those to the West will soon follow, in tracing we have only obtained a change of men, but not of the principles of governing on this very important question.

I have thought Mr. Editor, a few recollections from the pen of a friend closely connected with the political events of the country, from the time last named to the present period might not be uninteresting, and the revelation of these things at the present moment is desirable, and probably will ere long, burst with the indignant fury which sometimes marks the bitterness of disappointment in a confiding people, on the heads of those upon whom they have relied. So many representations have been put forward through the press, by the partisans of the different political parties, each professedly labouring to cultivate the understanding, that either were the advocates of the rights of the people, all so contradictory and of such a conflicting nature, at least so far as regards the adherence of those in power towards the popular cause, that any unbiased mind, willing to arrive at the truth, would have to wade through such a slough of contradictions, recrimination and personal abuse, as would involve him in a maze of fallacies, from which nothing but inconsistency and confusion can be drawn; at least, viewing the actions of the parties over in my own mind, such appears the conclusion.

Under the old oligarchic sway, one unwavering conception had taken possession of the minds of the people; they believed the government of that time were so strongly prepossessed and interested in favor of proprietary claims, that any scheme, however just or equitably framed, which touched upon an investigation of the rights of title of the grantees, would be rejected with disdain, although urged upon them by the necessities of the country, the uncertainty of the landed tenure, as well as the deliberate and repeated resolutions of the Assembly; the latter body, the Eighteenth General Assembly in their first Session in the year 1850, were so well aware of this fact, and of the slight regard heretofore paid by the government to the will of the body which they represented, that almost with one accord they stood for Responsible or Self-government, as then offered by Her Majesty's Ministers, under the impression, that the principles of that system of government would alone insure to the country, the equitable settlement of this grievance, which they had labored under so long to remove.

Such, then, Mr. Editor, was the state of things, as well as the course of feeling which guided the Assembly prior to the introduction of the present system of Government, nor do I conceive this opinion can be denied; the recollection of the efforts of the Electors and their undeviating course towards the attainment of that object, and the number who held such opinions in the Assembly in 1850, are of too recent, and form too interesting a period in the annals of the country, to be easily forgotten,—having made shipwreck of their principles, they offer up in lieu thereof the humberg of the one-ninth and tenants' compensation Bills,—much I, in common with many of their former supporters, regret, that the majority of 1850 from whom were formed the first Government under the Responsible system, have not marked their course, with consistency in principles, with the same undeviating line which distinguished Cooper, Rae, McInosh, Le Lacheur, and others of the early reformers.

Amongst most of the better informed of Charlotte-town, I know, Mr. Editor, there is an apathy towards the settlement of the Land question; that there are many who will not conform to the foregoing facts and opinions, but that on the contrary, some will be found to look upon the cause and still popular ideas of earlier times as being illusory. But why this objection, what was it the Country struggled for? merely a Court of inquiry to ascertain or rather distinguish public rights from claims. Is there any thing inconsistent with the dictates which regulate the known principles, by which all moral men are guided, for gentlemen chosen to protect the public interest to authorize the introduction of a Court for the investigation of the titles of those who are believed to have infringed largely upon the public domain, is it extraordinary, is it unprincipled, has provincial patriotism fallen so low as to fear the vindicating its rights? are a few, mostly strangers to our soil, to ride rough-shod over us? shall they be allowed to exact tribute from us and our posterity for ever, while we know they refused to make good their claim thereto? No! Mr. Editor, such is not the case for many are ready when called on to come forward and nobly defend their christianized from this entailment of feudal oppression; for my own part, I cannot conceive any just grounds of fear on the part of gentlemen who hold their estates under a bona fide title, but rather, on the contrary such an institution would afford the most indignant secure confirmation in the that of the people, to the sacred rights of the that this Court is a... I think, Sir, I may safely add, that when the party who are still distinguished by the term of Liberal came into office the majority of the members sincerely desired to bring into effect, the long deferred wishes of their constituents, and that in my opinion several, but not all of them were pledged to that effect, and when the Civil list bill became law, it was looked upon as a certain guarantee of the power within ourselves to ascertain the extent of the right of the Colonial public to the interest directly conveyed to us by the Crown in the Statute just referred to, what the Island has derived from the sessions so largely spoken of, to what advantage they have been turned. I shall, Mr. Editor, with your consent, per-sue my remarks in another number of your indepen-

COLONIAL LEGISLATURE.

HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY, WEDNESDAY, April 11.
The appropriation Bill passed.
The Revenue Bill was put into committee.
Mr. Warburton suggested that it would be better to pass the Bill for more than one year.
Merchants would then be better able to give their orders for goods, and would not require to wait for the Bill to pass before they made large importations. He also wished to see the system changed for the collection of duties, and particularly for duties of large amounts such as spirits, &c.

The Duties are left the same as last year, except the duty on Home manufactured spirits which has been reduced 6d. per gallon. The duty on Port Wine has been raised 6d. The duty on tobacco is much the same, as it is to be paid on the manufactured article.

Mr. Haviland, moved that printing paper and materials be exempted from duty, the other colonies had taken off these duties, and as the House, professed to be the friends of Education they should extend it to what would enable us to have cheaper books and newspapers, besides books came in free of duty, and while there was a duty on paper, it was a tax on the home manufacturer, who employed people and machinery on the Island.

The views of Hon. Members on this subject, will be given in a future Number, the motion was lost on the following division.

AYES.—Haviland, Montgomery, Warburton, Longworth, Speaker, Clark.

NAYS.—Mooney, Coles, Perry, Muirhead, Cooper, McIntosh, Laird, Lord, Munroe.

House in Committee on Bank Bill.
Mr. Haviland explained—The present Bill was introduced instead of the one that passed the House last Session, and to which Her Majesty refused her assent for the reasons assigned in the Despatches.
Members were acquainted with those reasons, as they had already been debated. He believed that every Hon. Member would admit the necessity of a Bank; the want of exchange was severely felt, a large amount of money for the Patriotic Fund was now lying idle because reliable drafts could not be obtained. The amount of Capital proposed was limited to £30,000 in 1500 shares of £20 each, perhaps it would be better to divide it into shares of £10 each, which would accommodate men of small means. If persons were interested in the Bank in various parts of the Country, it would not be so liable to a run, in cases of hard times.
Mr. H. spoke of the principal features of the Bill, which we have given a little more in detail from our notes, as the Bill went through Committee.

Capital to be £30,000 divided into 3000 shares of £10 each.
£15,000 to be paid in, before the Bank can go into operation, and the remainder to be paid in two years.
Corporation may hold Real Estate to amount of £3,000.

As soon as 600 shares are taken up, a meeting may be called to make Bye Laws and choose 7 Directors, after giving 30 days' notice. Mode of transfer of shares to be approved of by the Governor in Council.

Annual General Meetings of Stockholders to be held on the 1st Tuesday in March for choosing Directors, who will choose one of their number for President. President to be remunerated by what the Stockholders may deem proper.

Holder of twenty-five shares may be a Director.

Holder of 1 or 2 shares will have 1 vote; for every two shares above 2 up to 12, 1 vote; for every three shares above 12 up to 30, one vote; and no one person shall have more than 15 votes. Stockholders not to hold more than three proxies.

No person can take more than 40 shares until the list has been open three months; they may then have 80 shares. No Stockholder shall hold more than 100, unless acquired by purchase, after the Bank has commenced operations. And no person shall at any time hold more than 20 per cent. of the shares.

When £15,000 have been paid in, the President shall notify Lieut. Governor, who may appoint three Commissioners, who shall not be Shareholders, to inspect vaults, &c.

Shareholders shall be liable to twice the amount of Stock.

Notes may be issued as small as £5.

Mr. PALMER suggested, that the Notes be issued in British Sterling, as it would be thought tend to their being taken more freely in the other provinces, where our currency is depreciated.

Mr. Lord thought they ought to be issued in dollars.

It was left to the Shareholders to fix as to what sums they might issue.

Some debate took place, on allowing the Bank to issue notes as small as 5s; two or three Hon. Members arguing that it would drill out the small currency, and others, that it would have no prejudicial effect.

Mr. WARBURTON moved, that no private Individual shall issue any Note printed on a plate, or otherwise resembling a Bank Note, under a penalty of five pounds.

Shall be kept in City of Charlottetown.

Directors shall at the General Meeting on the 1st Thursday in March, lay before the Company a statement of affairs.

Joint Committee appointed by the Legislature can visit the vaults and inspect the Books.

Stockholders being not less than 12 persons owning 600 shares can call a Special Meeting giving 30 days notice.

Before a dissolution, it must be advertised 12 months. Shareholders liable for two years.

Cashier to make return to the Government annually, in triplicate, of affairs, according to a form.

Directors may, if approved by Shareholders, issue additional shares to the amount of £30,000, such shares shall be sold at auction.

Suspension of payments for 90 days, a forfeiture of charter.

Limits charter to 21 years.

The Bill was reported and ordered to be engrossed.

THURSDAY, April 12th.
Several conferences were held with the Legislative Council.

The Bank Bill was read a third time and passed.

THE LEGISLATURE.—Since Thursday, no new matter has been introduced in the House of Assembly. What had been previously in progress, has been passed through. Yesterday a joint Address of both Houses was agreed to for presentation to the Queen, together with the vote for the patriotic fund. The Legislative Council have the Charlottetown Incorporation and the Bank Bills in Committee. It is the intention of both Houses to rise on Tuesday.

LATE FROM EUROPE.

A Colonial Mail arrived yesterday afternoon.
We have seven days later news from Britain via New York, which will be found below.

New York, April 7.

Telegraph Despatch to the Halifax Reading Room.

The American Steamship Baltic, arrived at New York on Saturday morning.—Liverpool dates to the 24th ult.

Advices from the Crimea quite unimportant.
Conference proceedings satisfactory.

First point relative to Protectorate of Danubian Provinces, affirmed unanimously.

Cotton had declined one eighth.

The market for Breadstuffs continued—steady prices unchanged.

Sugar in moderate demand—no change in price.
Coffee firm with a steady demand.

At the Vienna Conference, the first of the four points of guarantee, viz: that the Danubian Principalities be placed under the joint protection of the Five Powers, has been agreed to.— The second point is under discussion.

The Czar Alexander has made a speech to his army which is interpreted as pacific.

SECOND DESPATCH.

(By the Fredericton and Quebec Lines.) The Vienna Conference unanimously agreed on the first point—placing the Principalities under the five powers.

The new screw steamer City of Baltimore, of the Liverpool and Pennsylvania Company, had been taken up by the French Government for six months, and had left Liverpool for Marseilles; having in tow the American ship Ticonderoga, also engaged by the French Government.

The new Czar had made several mild speeches in the Diplomatic, and very strong ones to the army. On the whole, his language was interpreted in a pacific sense.

The first of the four points which had been unanimously agreed on at the Vienna Conference reads thus—"the abolition of the exclusive privilege of Russia in Moldavia and Wallachia —the privileges accorded to the new provinces being placed under the guard of the five powers."

The latest despatches from Vienna say the Conference is progressing favorably. The second point was either settled or would be to-morrow.
It must be recollected that the question of peace or war is not settled until the third point is settled.

The Paris correspondent of the London Times telegraphed under date of Friday evening—"the news from Vienna appears to be favorable to peace, and at Paris the people are disposed to believe the Conference will be attended with happy results."

Count Nesselrode, it is believed, will proceed to Vienna when the negotiations become critical.

The new Czar gave strong evidence that he would adhere to the plans laid out by his father —that he would make no concessions.

Rumors were current of a new basis of arrangement, including the Black Sea and opening of the Danube, the erection of Turkish forts in Asia, &c.

Advices from Constantinople state that the Porte has determined to maintain undiminished sovereignty in the Dardanelles, and protests against the Christians of the Empire being received under foreign protection. The Porte also desires the participation of Prussia in the Conference.

Nothing of importance before Eupatoria.
General Burgoyne remains in the Crimea at the request of Lord Raglan.

The health of the allied troops is satisfactory.
The English position was well fortified.
The Russians had received reinforcements.
At an allied council of war, held on the 9th, it was resolved to recommence active operations.

QUEBEC, March 29.—Important Proceedings in the Canadian Assembly.—The second reading of a bill for introducing the elective principle into the second branch of the Legislature, was carried in the Assembly last night by a vote of 80 against 4.

NO WONDER HE WAS THANKFUL.
READ AND JUDGE FOR YOURSELVES.

Gentlemen—Having experienced the beneficial effects of Dr. McLane's Celebrated Liver Pills, I take great pleasure in recommending them to the public. I feel warranted in saying, that they are a certain cure for liver complaints and all bilious diseases, no matter how difficult or long standing. I myself was afflicted with this dreadful disease for over two years, and oh! how thankful I am, that I heard of these Pills. I purchased one of your agents three boxes, and before I had finished the third box, was completely cured. I verily believe, but for Dr. McLane's Liver Pills, I should have been in my grave; but as it is, I am now enjoying the best of health, and stand a living witness of the efficiency of Dr.
McLane's Liver Pills. Besides recovering my health, I consider that I have saved in pocket some two or three hundred dollars physician's fee.

This testimony I give you with the greatest pleasure, and hope it may do something towards making these invaluable Pills known to all who are suffering with liver complaint.

WILLIAM BISS, Traveller in Western New York.
P. S. Dr. McLane's Celebrated Liver Pills, also his great American Vermifuge or Worm Destroyer, can now be had at all respectable Drug Stores in this city.

Purchasers will please be careful to ask for, and take none but Dr. McLane's Liver Pills.
There are other Pills, purporting to be Liver Pills, now before the public.

Silent Sorrow. CERTAIN HELP.

Numerous Extraordinary, Anatomical, Exploratory Coloured, Engravings. In Six Languages. Fifty-third Edition. Price 2s. 6d. in a sealed envelope through all Booksellers or sent post free from the Author, for 42 Postage Stamps.

THE MEDICAL ADVISER on the physical decay of the system produced by delusive excesses, infection, the effects of climate, &c.; with remarks on the treatment practiced by the Author with such unvarying success, since his settlement in this country. Rules for self-treatment, &c.

By WALTER DE ROOS, M.D., 35, Ely Place, Holborn Hill, London, where he may be consulted on these matters daily, from 11 till 4. Sundays excepted.

Sold also by Gilbert, 49, Paternoster-row, London; Watt, 11, Elm Row, Edinburgh; Powell, 15, Westmoreland-street, Dublin; and through all others.

Dr. De Roos, from long practical experience in the most celebrated institutions of this country and the continent, has had, perhaps, unusual opportunities of observing the peculiarities relating to the physiology, pathology, and general treatment of the disorders referred to in the above work, and having devoted his studies almost exclusively to this class of diseases, he is enabled confidently to undertake their removal in as short a time as is consistent with safety.

PERSONS IN ANY PART OF THE WORLD, may be successfully treated by forwarding a correct detail of their case, with a remittance for Medicines, &c. which will be returned with the utmost despatch, and secure from observation.

THE CONCENTRATED GUTTE VIVÆ, or Vegetable Life Drops, are recommended to all those who have injured themselves by early excesses, and brought on Spasmodic, Nervousness, Weakness, Languor, Low Spirits, Aversion to Society, Study or Business, Timidity, Trembling and shaking of the Hands and Limbs, Indigestion, Flatulency, Shortness of Breath, Cough, Asthma, Consumptive Habits, Dimness of Sight, Dizziness, Pains in the Head, &c.

Their almost marvelous power in removing contumacious, Secondary symptoms, (Eruptions, Sore Throat, Pains in the Bones and Joints, Scarcy, Scrofula, and all other impurities, must be felt to be believed. 4s. 6d.; 11s.; and 33s. per bottle. The 25 Packages, by which £1 12s. are saved; and the £10 packages, by which a still greater saving is effected, will be sent from the Establishment only, on receipt of the amount per draft on a London house, or otherwise.

PAINS in the BACK, GRAVEL, LUMBAGO, RHEUMATISM, GOUT, Indigestion, Bile, Flatulency, Headache, Nervousness, Debility, Diseases of the Bladder and Kidneys, Stricture, &c.

THE COMPOUND RENAL PILLS, a their name Renal (or the Kidneys) indicates, are the most safe and efficacious remedy for the above dangerous complaints, Discharges of any kind, and Diseases of the Urinary Organs generally, which if neglected, frequently result in stone in the bladder, and a lingering, painful death. They agree with the most delicate stomach, strengthen the digestive organs, increase the appetite, improve the general health, and will effect a cure when other medicines have utterly failed. Price 4s. 6d., 11s., & 33s. per Box, through all Medicine Vendors.

GUARD AGAINST the recommendation of spurious or other articles by unprincipled Vendors, who thereby obtain a large profit. To protect the PUBLIC against FRAUD, Her Majesty's Hon. Commissioners have directed the words "WALTER DE ROOS, LONDON," to be printed in white letters on the Stamp affixed to the above, to imitate which, is felony.

Sold by HASZARD & OWEN, Queen Square, Charlottetown.
